SERMON.

GOD GIVETH NOT THE SPIRIT BY MEASURE UNTO HIM. John, iii. 34.

WE never can attain to clear and animating views of the present excellencies and future prospects of the kingdom of Christ, until we learn to distinguish plainly between his eternal and essential attributes as God, and those perfections that belong to him, as our mediator, and which are represented to us in scripture, as the purchase of his obedience, sufferings and death. The former, which constitute the glory that he had with the Father before the world, are incomprehensible by man, and dazzling to angels; the latter are revealed to us as relative to our condition; as trophies won, and honours worn by the Captain of our salvation, for our sakes, and in which, through infinite mercy, we are invited to participate. Of all these gifts which Christ as Mediator has received for men, there is none that so strongly animates the Christian in his course, either of working out his own salvation, or of leading others to a knowledge of their Saviour, as the immeasurable donation to him of the Holy Spirit. To him, the believer sees, there was given an unlimited unction of the Holy Ghost, which continues in him as an inexhaustible fountain, which is imparted to every member of his mystical body, and by the means of whose agency it is, that the Lord God may be said to dwell among us. Hence only we can derive those grand and inspiring conceptions of the office, character, and power of the Lord Jesus, that excite the Christian to place himself beneath his standard, with a full assurance that, by the supply of the Spirit of Christ Jesus, he shall be made more thur. conqueror, and win that crown which it will form his highest delight, to cast hereafter in a rapturous extacy of praise, at the feet of him to whom alone belong the victory and the glory.

It is then to this subject that I am induced to request your attention on the present occasion; and I propose first, to lay before you the glorious views which the sacred writers, who were moved by the immediate influence of the Holy Spirit, took of its unlimited gift to our great Mediator, and then to advert to the effect that the consideration of them should have upon our feelings and conduct as believers in Christ Jesus.

I. In reviewing, in the first place, the declarations of divine truth on this important subject, it cannot, I think, fail to strike us, that Christ, by whom the world, for whose salvation he was afterwards to shed his blood, was created, and in reference to whose deliverance he was the Lamb slain before its foundation, performed his work by the agency of the divine Spirit, through whose mysterious operation darkness, disorder, and deformity were exchanged for a new creation of light, order, and beauty, a paradise for sinless beings, endowed with a spiritual capability of comprehending, praising, and enjoying a spiritual and a holy God. Scarcely had this new-created being fallen by sin, through which the whole creation travaileth and groaneth in pain until now, when the great design was proclaimed of redeeming ruined man, by the atonement of him by whom the world was made, and to whom, as Redeemer, it is given by the working of the same Holy Spirit, to raise a new heaven and a new earth upon the ruins of the former, and also to make man a new creature by regeneration, that he may become a fit inhabitant of those spiritual and eternal regions of glory, where he will be placed beyond the possibility of a second fall. Accordingly, we find that the prophetic allusions to the efficacy of Christ's ministry upon earth, to his gifts to his people in his state of exaltation, and to the extension and government of the Church, centre in the promise, I will put my Spirit upon him. The gospel is every where in the Old Testament declared as about to be the dispensation of the Spirit—as for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord—my Spirit that is upon thee behold my servant whom I uphold, mine elect in whom my soul delighteth: I have put my Spirit upon him, he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles.

When the desire of all nations enters the world to suffer for our salvation, and to be the first great preacher of his own gospel, he is born of a pure virgin, by the miraculous generation of the Holy Spirit, thus given him for this purpose. In his early years, it infuses into him a supernatural wisdom as a man, and supplies all the deficiencies of his lowly birth and simple education. In his entrance, at a more advance? period of life, on his ministerial labours. it descends on him in the form of a dove, and at this solemn moment the whole Trinity appear engaged in the great work of redeeming love! The Spirit anoints, the Son obeys the will of God, and the Father commends him to poor sinners as his beloved Son in whom he is well pleased. We find him exercising his ministry as one anointed with the Holy Ghost and with power; and in Nazareth he applies to himself the beautiful words of Isaiah-the Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor ; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind; to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord. When he performs his miracles, he declares that it is by the Holy Spirit : if I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God is come unto you. When he departs into the wilderness to be for our sakes tempted of Satan, that he might know how to succour his people in temptation, he is led there by the Spirit. Then was Jesus, are the words of St. Matthew, led up by the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil; and St. Luke says—then Jesus, being full of the Holy Ghost, returned from Jordan, and was led by the Spirit into the wilderness. During the whole period of his ministry, it is evident, that, according to the beautiful prophetic language of Isaiah, there rested upon him—the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge, and of the fear of the Lord; so that the words which he spake unto his disciples were spirit and were life. When his mighty works were ascribed by the scoffing Pharisces to the agency of Beelzebub, he describes their sin as infinitely heinous, because they had spoken against the Holy Ghost, through whom they were performed. Thus we see, that, during the fulfilment of our Redeemer's earthly course, God gave not the Spirit by measure unto him.

When those sufferings were complete, in virtue of which, prospectively accepted, he had received, as Mediator, the previous gift of the Holy Ghost,—when, through the eternal Spirit, he had offered himself unto God,—he was declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the Spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead.

Christ, having thus himself purged our sins, and having by his resurrection from the grave, whence he rose with all the majesty of a Conqueror, declared his victory over death, ascends to heaven, assumes his mediatorial glory, and exercises the power he had purchased as his right to send the Holy Spirit for the guidance of his people, and the extension and government of his Church. Our Lord tells his disciples that one especial object of his departure from them was, that he might send them the Holy Ghost to be their Comforter and Guide, who was to lead them into all truth; who was to support them in trials, to teach them how to speak, to enlarge their views, to remove their carnal feelings and prejudices, and to destroy in them the remains of affection for this world. Before he went up on high to take his place at the right hand of the majesty of God, and to sit as the Lamb in the midst of the throne, before which are the seven lamps which are the seven Spirits of God sent by the Lamb into all the earth, (a beautiful emblem of spiritual illumination,) he breathed on his disciples, and said, receive ye the Holy Ghost: thus bestowing on them a portion of that powerful gift, the fulness of which was soon to be poured out on them in its miraculous effusion on the day of Pentecost. Extraordinary influences of this heavenly unction were communicated to the apostles as necessary for the first preaching of the gospel, and for the confirmation of their authority. Though these have ceased, the purpose for which they were given having been effected, the promise still remains to as many as the Lord our God shall call, and now forms the excellency of the power by which the kingdom of Christ is established in the believer's soul, and the Redeemer's throne erected in the place of the destroyed strongholds of darkness and of death. The Spirit is that living spring, which, flowing from Christ as from an exuberant fountain, now that he is glorified, affords to the new-born child of God a perpetual supply of the waters of life, and causes the wells of salvation to be found of inexhaustible freshness and immeasurable depth. It is the unlimited flow of the Spirit from the crystal ocean of the love of Christ that forms the river, the streams whereof make glad the city of our God, which is his church, and which, passing through it in a perennial course, cleanses it of its impurity, fills it with a heavenly freshness and health, and imparts to the Tree of Life its never-failing luxuriance and fertility.

It is the work of the Spirit of Christ, to unlock the mysteries of the word of life, and to present it to the mind with a beauty, interest, and freshness it did not before appear to possess. It is generally his first operation, to enlighten and engage the understanding; he so operates on the natural powers of men, as to lead them up to the perception, though indistinct, that there is a divine glory on the face of the word of life, and a lesson to be learned from it, not to be taught by the school of nature, but upon which the primary disposition is to engage the powers of reason, and not the exercise of faith. Reason however soon discovers that there is a greatness and majesty in divine things far beyond the grasp of its narrow span; the eye of the understanding soon finds itself too weak to gaze on the glorious orb of the gospel sun, by which it is rather dazzled than enlightened, and not seeing its way clearly, becomes confused and dismayed. Then it is that the arrow of the Lord, though discharged by the feeble arm of man, pierces between the joints of the harness, finds its way into the conscience, and throws the convinced and humbled sinner prostrate in the While thus laid low, the heavy thunder of a broken dust. law bursts over him, and in an agony of terror and dismay, he is led to cry aloud, Lord, save me, I perish. This is the Spirit's first great work ; it exhibits to man his danger, that he may fly to Him who is the refuge and the covert.

But the same Spirit, by whose conscience-shaking power the once senseless and stupid sinner has become convinced and alarmed, and to whom (oh! who can stand before the revelation?) the secrets of his heart have been made manifest, designs to lay him low under a sense of the burden of sin, that he may lead to him who is able and is willing to remove the load. It is the province of that Spirit, by whose sword the bleeding heart has been transfixed, to bring to it the balm of Gilead, and the healing leaves of the Tree of Life: it is the heavenly messenger that whispers in the strickon sinner's car, the Lord that healeth thee is at hand, look unto him and be thou saved. When the soul hath discovered that nothing else can comfort and revive it, when, in the striking language of the Psalmist, it abhorreth all manner of meats, and draws near unto the gates of death, then it is that Christ is revealed to it as the bread of life, and the water of life—as the hidden manna, its medicine and its food.

The influences of the divine Spirit of Christ however do not rest here. It not only convinces but converts the soul; and it is of great importance to distinguish conviction and its law-light, from conversion and the sunshine of the day of Christ, which, like Abraham, the believer rejoices to see, and sees it and is glad. In conversion the blind receive their sight, and the affections of the soul are drawn out to that Saviour in whom it is led to see God as a reconciled father and friend, and through whose atonement, spiritually apprehended, the guilty burden of sin is taken away. In such, the repentance of love succeeds to the repentance of fear, and the work of the Holy Ghost, as respects the understanding and conscience, being completed, it is exerted to renovate the will, new-mould the heart, and to transform us by the renewing of our minds, that we may prove what is that good, and perfect, and acceptable will of God. This is the great miracle of these days, and only to be performed by the unlimited power of the Spirit of Christ. Is it not as great a marvel, that, by the simple preaching of the word of God,---that, at the sound of the gospel trumpet, the high places of spiritual wickedness should be laid low, and the dead in trespasses and sins rise from the grave of the world in which they had long been entombed as in a sepulchre, as that when the sons of Israel blew their rams' horns, the hitherto impregnable walls of Jericho should fall flat, or the dead awake again to life, under the influence of the extraordinary spiritual powers given to the first Apostles ! Yes, my brethren, indeed it is-and every converted sinner is a wonder in his own sight-is filled with an amazement at the power of the grace of the Holy Spirit which humbles while it elevates his soul-humbles him when he reviews his former lost condition and present infirmities, but raises him by the love of God above the world, and inspires him with the hope full of immortality. Such truths as these will ever remain totally unintelligible to the carnal understanding, and their advocates be accused of vain enthusiasm; but let me earnestly exhort those who are of this mind, not to argue that, because they have not experienced these feelings they therefore do not exist, but rather earnestly to prav that all things necessary for their salvation may be revealed to them by the Spirit of Christ. The man who has never beheld the light of day, may doubt the wonders it discloses to the seeing eye, while we who see are immoveably persuaded of their existence:--so he who has not seen the light of heaven breaking forth as the morning in his soul, may disbelieve in the glories of the new creation, which it makes visible; but if God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined into our hearts to give us the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ, we may say, to use the language of scripture in another sense, we speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen. It is only when the Spirit discovers to us our state by nature, and the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, that we can see the suitableness of the plan of redemption to our condition, the admirable wisdom of its contrivance, and its infinite fulness and freedom. The necessity of this spiritual revelation of divine truth to the mind, may be seen from the consideration that the offer of the gospel is to all, of every age and condition in life; but it is evident that the learned and diligent only can be convinced that the scripture is the authentic source of truth, by its external evidence, and that this does not necessarily include a full comprehension of its contents. If, therefore, no supernatural means were provided suitable to all, it would argue a defectiveness in the means of attaining to a knowledge of the revealed will of God, and we might reasonably doubt whether the covenant was indeed ordered in all things and sure. But the view of the gospel, as the dispensation of the Spirit, removes this difficulty at once, and experience shews that all orders of Christians who are regenerate by its influence, are taught in all things essential to salvation by a uniformly similar mode; and high and low, rich and poor, one with another, are brought by its teaching alone to the full assurance of understanding to the acknowledgement of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ.

It is not only, we may proceed to observe, the office of the Spirit of Christ, to place the Christian pilgrim, by the steps we have described, in the path of life, but to accompany him in his journey through the wilderness, and to supply all his wants upon the road. The work of the Spirit is a progressive work; he not only regenerates, but to his divine agency are to be attributed our subsequent growth in grace, and advances towards the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. It is at the suggestion of the Spirit that we are enabled to discover and express our wants; it is by his light that we are guided through dark and dangerous scenes, and by his comforts that we are solaced in the hour of trial. By the sword of the Spirit, accompanied with the shield of faith, we obtain our conquests over all our enemies. It is only when wielding these weapons that the believer can defy the scorn and malice of a persecuting world; triumph over the strong allurements of the seducer; effectually resist his corruptions; and defend against the besieger the weak point in the fortress of his soul. By the same Spirit he is alone supported when he launches forth into the deep waters of the mysteries of the word; and by its power, in his hours of sweetest liberty, he is enabled to leave behind him, for a brief space, all that belongs to earth, and to rise on eagle's wings of praise and love, finding the kingdom of heaven to be, indeed, righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. Then, on the other hand, the Holy Spirit brings the believer daily on his knees, in true lowliness of soul, at the foot of the cross, and so reveals to the heart the unchangeableness of the love of Christ, that it is melted at the thought of how little it can do for him who has done so much for us, and, like Mary at the Master's feet, weeps and weeps again; loving much, because he sees how much in him has been and daily is for-This is the great secret of working for God; a given. sense of the love of Christ towards us, sweetly and powerfully constraining us, and the Spirit infusing into our minds a zeal of God according to knowledge. It is only the Spirit of Christ that can make manifest to the praying Christian the defects of his private and his public duties: "nature," as it is well observed by an eminent Divine, " is blind, and cannot see them; proud, and will not own them; stupid, and insensible to them." The professing Christian, whose spirituality is at a low ebb, is not marked by the world, because his habits are free from open profaneness, but the discerning eye discovers him by his formal, barren, unsavoury Such deceive many; yea, deceive themselves, but course. cannot deceive God.

There are other unspeakable blessings to which I have only time briefly to advert, which are derived, by the working of the Holy Spirit, to those who thirst for his influence. The witness in ourselves, the spirit of adoption, the earnest, the seal, the full assurance of faith, are conveyed to the hearts of believers by the Spirit of Christ, so that, hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Holy Spirit. These gifts, poured into the soul with the dove-like gentleness of the heavenly unction, enable us, tasting and handling of the word of life, to experience the divine reality of religion, and cause us to rejoice in an unseen Redeemer, with joy unspeakable, and full of glory.

Again, it is to the same divine agent, that the enlargement of the visible Church, and its government in the world are committed. It is by the direction of the use of means by the Spirit of Christ, that the borders of Sion are enlarged ;- it is not by might nor by power, but by the Spirit of the Lord of Hosts, that the great mountain becomes a plain, on which the heavenly Zerubbabel lays the foundation, and erects the beauteous fabric of his Church. It was by the miraculous agency of the Holy Ghost, externally working by the Apostles, that they attracted attention on the great day of Pentecost; but it was by its influence on the soul, that the three thousand were added to the Church, having been pricked to the heart under the powerful appeal of St. Peter. Christ, by the work of the Holy Spirit, is to build the temple of the Lord and to bear the glory, and for this purpose there have been communicated to those who have laboured in his cause, diversities of gifts by the same Spirit; and he that would erect the wall without seeking its divine aid, will find his portion of it cemented and daubed with untempered mortar, and that it will quickly By the Spirit of Christ also, will the increasing Church fall. be defended against her enemies-when the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him. It is only by His blessing on the means used, whether of preaching or of education, that any society for the propagation of divine truth can hope to be successful; relying on any other aid, either of policy or of power, they must all fail. By the Spirit's help alone, we can plant the rose of Sharon on the sinuous and barren shores of Newfoundland, or in the icy regions of Labrador.

It is the full effusion of the power of the Redeemer's Spirit, that will cause the glories of that day, when all the nations of the world shall walk in the light of the Lord; when the light of the moon shall be as the light of the sun, and the light of the sun as seven days—the perfection of spiritual illumination, when the seven lamps of glory shall irradiate the globe. Whatever may be the different views of Christians as to the millennial age, surely no regenerate mind can doubt that there will then be a full supply of the Spirit of Christ Jesus. He that is joined to the Lord, is one Spirit—the same Spirit which is immeasurably in Christ, is in a measure communicated to him. Let us take heed lest we have our attention diverted from Christ crucified, revealed in us by the Holy Ghost, by whom alone fallen man can be saved in every age of this world, to a Christ personally reigning, lest we find our mistake somewhat similar to that of the Jews, who expected a kingdom with observation, which is designed to be erected in the inner man, and whose laws and government are every where in the sacred volume declared to be spiritual.

Lastly, the Spirit of Him who raised Jesus from the dead, is also to quicken the mortal bodies of his Saints at their final triumph in the resurrection from the dead. What a glorious majesty is there in the promise-the dead in Christ shall rise first-before the elements which constitute this material scene of wretchedness, folly, and sin shall be dissolved! As soon as the great angel, placing one foot in the sea and the other on the solid earth, shall proclaim, in the name of Him that sitteth on the throne, that Time is ended and Eternity begun, the Spirit of the Son of God shall awake the sleeping saints, forgotten for ages by the world, and sown for a vast period of time in corruption, to an immortal, spiritual, and infinitely holy existence :-- Christ shall change their vile bodies, that they may be like unto his glorious body, according to the mighty, (the spiritual,) working whereby he is able to subdue all things unto himself. Spiritualized by this power,-in scriptural language, raised spiritual bodies, they shall mount up to meet the Lord in the air-dead and living, all shall be changed in a moment, that they may be made capable of what they could not be in the flesh, being filled with all the fulness of God. The work of Christ as Mediator will then be complete, the Spirit's office, as flowing from him in that capacity, will be ended; there will be no flesh to subdue, no corruptions to contend with, no mortality to quicken, but the eternal and uninterrupted supply of that Spirit in all its glory, of which in this life we can receive only the earnest, will make the saints perfectly holy, and therefore perfectly happy.

II. Having now considered the scriptural view of the gift of the Spirit to Christ in his mediatorial capacity without measure, the question naturally follows, in what manner ought we to be affected by it? How ought it to affect us as respects our own personal piety, our uses of the means of grace, our efforts for the extension of the king-dom of our Redeemer?

We should, in the first place, continually remember, that the great criterion of our growth in grace is increasing spirituality of mind. Christ is gone to prepare a place for us; he has sent his Holy Spirit to prepare us for the place. Religion does not consist in a series of occasional impulses of mind however strong, but it is a renovation of heart, by which a new and permanent principle is infused, which should interweave itself with all our pursuits, qualify our actions, and direct the business of our lives. This principle, as it is the gift of the Spirit, so it is increased, strengthened, and kept in action by the same divine agent. It is this heavenly Dove which brings to us the olive-branch of the consciousness of the divine favour. Though the soul cannot at all times pass a correct judgment on its own condition, there are many signs by which we may obtain a comfortable assurance of increasing spirituality. If we are conscious that every trial, temptation, and desertion brings us nearer to God instead of driving us from him; if we are deeply humbled by a sense of the barrenness of our hearts, and feel in this grief over our spiritual drought a holy longing for a copious flow of the refreshing stream of the water of life in our souls; if we possess an increasing power over the pride, the passion, and earthliness of our spirits: if the many undeserved mercies of God melt our affections, and draw them out to him in love, and an ardent desire not only to offer our praises, but ourselves unto him-then may we have a good hope that the Lord is blessing us with spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. In the Temple, under the Mosaic law, that shadow of things to come, there was both an altar and a laver; he that offered sacrifice on the former was cleansed in the latter. So they who have an interest in the great sacrifice of the Lamb of God, who by faith in the atonement lay hold of the horns of the altar, must also be washed in the great laver filled with the pure water of the Spirit of Life. It is a great thing to maintain spirituality of mind under all circumstances, and this should be the constant aim of the believer; he should be Jike the stream from an everflowing spring, swelled perhaps by a full shower of blessings from above, but running clearly and rapidly even in the driest season. The water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto everlasting life. If we would have comfort in religion, the daily inclination of our minds must be towards spiritual things. True grace necessarily fixes the affections on them with a uniform attraction towards them, varied perhaps by the infirmity of nature in its intensity, but still towards them. It is not a good sign for us, my Christian brethren, if on occasions of this kind, we feel a warmth of zeal which subsides with the withdrawal of the causes that produced it, and are cold in our labours of love all the rest of the year. No; the secret converse with God, manifesting its effects on the outer man, is what the Christian should desire. Jacob was alone when he wrestled with the angel, Moses was alone at the burning bush, and in the mount with God, and Christ retired into solitude for prayer: but how did Jacob serve God-how did the face of Moses shine-how did the Saviour go about doing good! So they will most honour God openly, who seek him with the greatest earnestness in secret. The way to give effect to social religion is to cultivate in retirement deep personal piety.

When we recollect the declaration, that, if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his, how careful ought we to be to inquire whether we have indeed received into our souls that heavenly guest, whom the world cannot receive, for it knoweth him not, but whom the disciples of Christ know, for he dwelleth with them and is in them. The life and peace of the soul are derived from its being spiritually minded, from its growing in holiness, by which it is renewed in the divine similitude, made like God, not in degree, but in resemblance; as the reflected image of the sun in a mirror resembles the great orb of light, though infinitely inferior in splendor and glory. We should remember, that, if we are true Christians, we are dedicated to God, and set apart for a holy use, and we are to be holy, because he that hath called us is holy. Holiness is the only attribute of God, thrice repeated in the praises of heaven; spiritual angels are lost in rapturous admiration of this divine perfection, which is the glory and beauty of all the excellencies of the divine Being, which estranges them from all shadow of evil, and from every imaginable spot; and it is one of the great beauties of the covenant of grace that the purity of the Lord is united to the sweetness and tenderness of his mercy The king's daughter is described as all glorious and love. within, and under this image is represented to us the spiritual beauty and holiness of every consistent member of the Church of Christ, and we should cherish the recollection of this grace continually in our thoughts, that from our thoughts it may be conveyed to our affections, and from our affections to our prayers, and from our prayers to our life and conversation. In order to this, we must strive to make God and his glory our great end; we must long, by the assistance of the Spirit, to love him more ardently, that we may enjoy his presence with fuller complacency, and live in the exalted hope that Christ is purging our souls as a purifier of silver that he may set in them the jewel of the divine holiness. We can have no well-assured hope that we have an interest in pardoning mercy, unless we experience purifying holiness:-we can have no proof of our spiritual birth, but holy delights and spiritual mindedness; these constitute our inward life, and without them our apprehensions of our condition as believers can be only cloudy and shadowy; rather the torment of doubt than the felicity of a lively faith. There is no Christian who does not readily applaud this great gift of the divine Spirit, and few who do not admire it in others; but as the holiness of Angels consists not in their praise of the purity of God but in their conformity to his holiness, so the spirituality of men does not result from their commendation of this grace, but from their unceasing labour to attain to it, and their willing sacrifices, that it may abide with them. An experience of the excellency of the grace of spirituality, and the ardent longings for larger and larger portions which ever accompany it, can alone enable us to see the value of the gift of the Spirit to our Saviour, exalt our conceptions of his dignity and power, bless us with unspeakable experiences of his love, and inspire us with the hope that when Christ who, by his Spirit, is our life shall appear, we shall also appear with him in glory.

I may now advert, for a few moments, to the manner in which a clear comprehension of our subject should operate on the Christian, in his uses of the means of grace. There is an inexhaustible fulness in the Spirit of God, and he is ever ready and desirous to impart of it to us, only we must wait on him for it in the appointed manner, and be content to receive it in a limited measure and degree. The value of prayer can never be fully appreciated by those who do not consider the perfect provision that there is made for it in its effectual fervency, availing much. The Father is seated on the throne of grace, ready to dispense his blessings, with the full bounty of his love, to poor sinners in Christ,-the Son is at his right hand, interceding with him for us,-and the Spirit intercedes with him in us, by suggesting to us the making intercession for us with groanings that cannot be uttered. Holiness becometh thine house for ever, is the reverential language of the Psalmist, in reflecting on the worship of God; and not all the fragrant incense of the East, that arose in sweetest perfume from the golden censers of the Temple, even in the fullest splendour of Solomon's glory, yields him as acceptable a savour as one spiritual approach to his footstool, in the appointed way, by a heart under the influence of the Holy Ghost, weaned from the sinful endearments of the world, and panting for a comfortable assurance that the very God of peace is sanctifying it wholly. It is the want of grace to use ordinances spiritually, which makes them empty and dead to so many, but to the spiritual they are as vessels filled with the wine which wisdom hath mingled. If we are sensible of our weakness and dulness, what an infinite consolation we may derive from the reflection, that in Christ all fulness dwells; that by virtue of the eternal mediatory covenant, he hath the Spirit for our sakes, and that it was for his disciples' benefit that he sanctified himself. The believer sees himself altogether insufficient; derives often little comfort from external acts of religion, and would despond if it were not for the remembrance, that in all our weakness the Spirit is given for our help, and that though our deficiency be a just ground for deep humiliation, it is none for distrust. What an inexpressible blessing is it, to use the energetic language of a powerful writer, that "the weakest grace hath a throne of grace to supply it, a God of grace to delight in it, a Mediator of grace to influence it, a Spirit of grace to brood upon it." Victory is promised in the word; but in this promise a conflict is implied, and must be passed through; and many a dart of Satan will bruise, though not one shall pierce the shield of faith; but this view of final conquest should only redouble our ardour in the contest, and make us determined to use every legitimate weapon in the sacred warfare. Christ promised Peter that his faith should not fail; but he commanded Peter to watch and pray. The belief in the promise was the encouragement to obey the command. We preach, we pray, we hear, we communicate, we praise, but we only enjoy and profit by these outward ordinances of the Church of Christ when we devoutly seek and find in them a copious effusion of the life-giving Spirit of our living Head.

It now only remains for me to allude to the effect, which our expectations from the unlimited gift of the divine Spirit to Christ, should have upon our exertions to extend his kingdom in the world. It is our hope alone in the aid of the holy Spirit which leads us, in all our efforts to communicate the knowledge of the Redeemer, to trust in God, and not in man, and placing ourselves beneath the overspreading shadow of His wings, to fear neither our own weakness, nor the power of our adversaries. The interesting Society which I have on the present occasion to recommend to your patronage, and which designs, by the blessing of the Lord, to pay a portion of Britain's vast debt to her colonial population, by the education of the poor in Newfoundland and British North America, and whose judicious exertions have been hitherto eminently blessed, does not at this moment possess sufficient funds to engage the Teachers, for whom they have immediate employ, nor means to meet its current necessary expenses. The inhabitants of our oldest colony are building Schools, in the full expectation of receiving Masters from England, but there is not in the coffers of the Society wherewithal to send them. But surely it will be sufficient to proclaim this fact to rouse the generous spirit of British Christians to supply the spiritual necessities of those who are not merely allied to them by the ties of commerce and property, but by the closer bonds of language and of blood. It is our duty to send, as far as is in our power, a portion of the divine light to all, but more particularly to our own-our own by possession,-our own by consanguinityour own by the continual successive additions of the emigrating families of Britain. Shall the tenantless Schools, which the poor Newfoundlander has erected in faith, proclaim the coldness of our love, and tell the world that these empty fabrics are fit emblems of the void that is in British hearts. God forbid !- cheer the drooping spirits of our zealous agents, animate the hopes of our too long neglected colonies, and make yourselves happy by affording the Society, for which I plead this evening, an unusually large pecuniary supply, trusting to the Redeemer's Spirit to bless and multiply your offering of love. Not only our character as Christians, but our character as Christian patriots is involved in this cause. Where it has been exalted, support it—where it has been lost, redeem it.

But, my brethren, where is our ground of trust when our institution appears to totter, when our vessel appears to be aground? It is in the Spirit to raise her again upon the returning waters, and to carry her before its auspicious breezes, laden with the blessings of wisdom, to her destined port. Let us look unto the promises which God respects and Satan fears, and earnestly implore his power to fulfil his word. This power is unlimited, and it is by effecting his mighty wonders by means of the simplest order, and in human hands utterly inadequate, that he proclaims himself unanswerably the Omnipotent. Who knows but that hereafter, by the instrumentality of this Society, Newfoundland may become a source of light to the vast continental regions of Canada and Labrador-may, by Britain's help, become to North America, in religious aid, what Britain has been to a vast portion of Europe. To be sanguine in endeavours left to the skill and execution of man, is generally vanity; but we cannot be too sanguine in our expectations from the simplest efforts made with a single eye to the glory of God, and in a prayerful reliance on the Spirit's aid. Christ's blood was a sufficient redemption for the multitude of the redeemed, which no man can number; Christ's Spirit has power enough to rescue them from the world, and to preserve them to the end. The same Spirit which emboldened and protected a Prophet in gorgeous Babylon, can bless and support a simple Teacher in the desert. The Redeemer hath not only the seven spirits to awaken a sleeping world, but the seven stars to shine upon it, and, oh! may their brilliant glory quickly spread over its long desolate and forgotten regions. It is in the immeasurable gift of the Spirit to Christ that all the hopes of the Church must centre in her successive ages, in all her varied operations, in all her trials, in all her prosperity, till her warfare end in her glorious triumph, and her innumerable victorious hosts, following Him who by his cross triumphed over principalities and powers, enter in through the gates of the city.

Let us not then, my Christian brethren, relax in any one exertion, but rather full of the hope that maketh not ashamed, labour ardently with redoubled vigour. The prospect before us is encouraging: God is pouring on his Church greater treasures of knowledge, and a fuller measure of the Spirit of her Head, who is daily by the instrumentality of appropriate means, framing a succession of new materials for her enlargement. If we have a hope that we are built upon the corner stone, we should take heed that the evidence is that we are ourselves lively stones, full of the work of faith, the labour of love, and the patience of hope.

SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT

OF THE

NEWFOUNDLAND

AND BRITISH NORTH AMERICA

School Society.

 $I_T$  is with feelings of devout acknowledgement for the past; and with pleasing anticipations of the future, that your Committee again appear before you.

They hail with gratitude the periodical return of occasions like the present, which bring them into nearer contact with their friends, and which, they trust, have never failed to strengthen the bonds of mutual good-will, and to stimulate to fresh exertions in favour of the Society.

Your Committee can assure you, that its interests occupy no inconsiderable share of their affections. They believe it to be a work of God,—that it has from the first borne indisputable marks of His favour and providential care, and that though of small pretensions when viewed in comparison with some larger Societies, which are amongst the brightest ornaments of our country,—still it emanates from the same pure source with them, and in its measure, conduces to the same glorious end.

The retrospect of the past Year furnishes much real cause for thankfulness to the Lord. For though it be not in the power of your Committee to record any considerable enlargement in the scale of their operations, yet they have pleasure in stating that some new ground has been entered upon, and that that which had been previously broken up, continues to give undoubted proof that it has not been cultivated in vain. sent at the last Annual Meeting, have safely reached their respective destinations, in which, under the blessing of God, they appear likely to be highly useful. Some particulars relative to each of the stations they occupy will be given hereafter.

The most prominent feature in the proceedings of your Committee since the last Anniversary, is the mission of Mr. Willoughby abroad—a measure on which they found considerable expectations, as well from the importance of the two-fold object he has more immediately in view, as from the full proof he has already given of his qualifications for such a trust.

The extracts from his Correspondence, embodied in the present Report, will, it is hoped, satisfactorily prove that the first of these objects, (which respects the proceedings of the Society in Newfoundland,) has been attended with all the success which could have been anticipated.

The poor Inhabitants, with a feeling most cheering to your Committee and most creditable to themselves, continue to evince all their wonted eagerness for the blessings of Education. Their zeal in fact far outstrips the present scanty resources of the Society, and leaves room for just regret and anxious hope. The number of School Buildings now erecting by the Inhabitants in various parts of the Island, in the expectation that Teachers from this Society shall be forthcoming to supply them, is considerable. All seem disposed to help in one way or other,—and those who are too poor to give money, cheerfully give their time, their labour, and their heart to the work.

The kindness and liberality of the Merchants, the Clergy, and the higher orders of the community in the Island, generally, has been noticed with pleasure in former Reports. On the present occasion your Committee are strongly called upon to renew the expressions of their gratitude for the aid which has recently in various ways been so cheerfully and so liberally given to the Society, and also for the great hospitality which, in every place, has been shewn to Mr. Willoughby, their accredited Agent.

To Sir Thomas Cochrane, the Governor, your Committee are under peculiar obligations. His Excellency has ieir Jod, lars ven it– as from the first evinced a favourable disposition towards their Work, for which they desire to be truly thankful, and which they deem the more valuable as it proceeds from an enlightened mind, anxious for the moral improvement of a people specially confided to his care, and able to appreciate the means best adapted to attain so great an end. His Excellency, who has recently made a Tour of the Island, with the laudable view of acquiring correct information on points connected with the welfare of the inhabitants, has condescended to recommend to Mr. Willoughby some new Stations, as peculiarly in need of the assistance of the Society, and has also in the kindest manner assured him of his continued support in every proper way. Such facts evince a solicitude highly honourable to the character of a British Governor; and your Committee can only express their earnest hope that a recommendation proceeding from so high a quarter, will not be defeated for want of due co-operation on the part of friends at home.

The claims upon the attention of Mr. Willoughby, were so many and of so highly interesting a character, that he found it quite impracticable to attempt at that moment the second object with which he is intrusted, without risk of prejudicing the interests of Newfoundland.* These have ever been and still are of primary importance in the estimation of the Committee—to them they are bound by duty and by affection,—and with them are associated many recollections at once grateful and encouraging.

Mr. Willoughby's intended visit to the Continent of America, was therefore postponed till the present year, when it is to be hoped that his letters of introduction to the Governors of the British Provinces there, with which your Committee have been honoured by His Majesty's Colonial Secretary—as well as others with which Mr. Willoughby has been favoured by various friends of the cause—will, under the Divine blessing, ensure him such a measure of * In a Letter dated 16th January last, Mr. Willoughby observes, "I have much more that is encouraging to tell you, but cannot attempt it now :--things that I could not calculate upon,--doors of usefulness opened into which I am quite thrust. success, as shall effectually open the way for the proposed exertions of the Society in that part of the Empire.

Your Committee will now proceed to give a brief sketch of the condition of their Schools in Newfoundland, together with such extracts of Correspondence as appear to be most deserving of notice.

The first in order are those at ### ST. JOHN'S.

The accounts from this Station continue to be of a favourable character—the attendance, during the year 1829, having been better than in any previous year. The number on the books has, during that period, gradually risen to above 200.

Speaking of this Station, Mr. Willoughby observes, "The Central School is in every respect improving, and is certainly rising in the estimation of all."

The total number of Children admitted into the Central School, since its establishment in 1824, is 704;—and of Adults, rather more than 200.

The Loan Library has been much in demand, the last supply of Books being highly valued both by parents and children. During the winter, Mr. and Mrs. Jeynes devoted one evening in each week to read to the girls who came to knit.

"The four Branch Schools belonging to this district," adds Mr. Willoughby, "are proceeding steadily, and are admirably adapted to meet the circumstances of the small coves and harbours. At Portugal Cove fifty children, who a short time ago were destitute of any means of instruction, are now in regular attendance at the School."

At Torbay, near St. John's, arrangements are in progress for a School.

"At Pouch Cove," Mr. Jeynes states, "a School is much wanted. There is scarcely a more needy place in the Island, where the visits of Missionaries are spoken of as the appearance of comets.—I think the inhabitants informed me of four such visits during the last Forty Years :—one by a Roman Catholic Priest,—two by Wesleyans,—and one by a Church Minister."

TRINITY.

The School at this Station continues to thrive. Mr. Fleet reports that the number of Scholars in daily attendance is 84, of whom 50 attend the Sunday School also.

An additional Branch School has been formed since last year, (at Old Bonaventure,) making the whole number of these useful Auxiliaries, under Mr. Fleet's superintendence, four. In these, 125 Children are taught on the Sabbath.

Mr. Fleet's Adult Evening School is also well attended.

His Excellency the Governor paid a visit to the School in August, accompanied by several Gentlemen, and was pleased, on taking leave, to signify his decided approbation of the proficiency of the Scholars.

Mr. Fleet also speaks in strong terms of the advantages resulting from Loan Libraries, and o. the kindness of those friends in England who have contributed to their establishment. He also expresses his thankfulness for many little articles furnished to your Committee by various Ladies, and intended as rewards for children, with which, he says, they are "quite delighted."

There are four Branch Schools in this district. At two of the places, School-rooms are building by the people, for the Society.

Mr. Willoughby states that " at Silly Cove also, on the South side of Trinity Bay, where there is a population of about 450, a School-house is erecting for the Society, in the expectation that the Committee will send them a Teacher when finished."

"At New Harbour and at Heart's Content, the people are earnest in their entreaties for our sympathy. At the former place, there is a Church, but no Reader or Missionary. At the latter place, there is a population of about 500, without a School."

HARBOUR GRACE.

Your Committee are happy in being able to state that the Schools here have fully maintained their high character.

In the Day School are 158 Scholars,—in the Sunday School, 130,—and in the Adult School, 50.

The number of Branch Schools under Mr. Kingwell's care is now four; three additional ones, containing about 1i3 Scholars, having been opened in the course of last Summer. A fifth, at Bryant's Cove, to be crected by the inhabitants, is in progress. The people have shewn the greatest eagerness respecting it. When in operation, it will probably be attended by about 40 Children.

The daily Branch School, at Mosquito Cove, containing about 35 Scholars, is under the charge of a Monitor, who gained the whole of her instruction under Mrs. Kingwell's care. Here, also, a building is to be erected by the inhabitants, on a plot of ground selected by Mr. Willoughby when there in December last.

It is worthy of observation, that a Tract Society is established at Harbour Grace, and that the sum of 41. 12s. 6d. was recently remitted from it to the Society in London. A considerable further supply of Books and Tracts has since been sent out.

CARBONNIERRE.

The Society has no Schools at present at this Station, for want of a proper Building.

PETTY HARBOUR.

"At Petty Harbour," says Mr. Willoughby, "the Schools are in very good order. The number of Day Scholars amounts to 80; of those in the Sunday School to 70.

His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Messrs. Brooking and Bland, honoured the School with a visit, and expressed himself much gratified with the improvement of those of the Children he heard read.

At Bay of Bulls, in this neighbourhood, arrangements are making by the inhabitants for building a School-room for the Society.—It is much needed, as there is a "population of about 600, without a Minister, or any means of instruction, even of the poorest kind."

BONAVISTA.

It was stated in the last Annual Report, that the Schools here had been suspended, in consequence of the death of Mr. Hopper, the late Master. Mr. and Mrs. Meek have subsequently been appointed to this post. The Schools had not been commenced at the date of the last accounts, but it was expected that they would be opened immediately after the Christmas holidays. The new School building was not completed; delay having arisen, in consequence of the almost total failure of the fishery. Some of the principal merchants have contributed liberally towards the building, and have evinced great interest in the success of the undertaking.

GREEN'S POND.

Green's Pond was the northernmost place visited by Mr. Willoughby. He reports that the Schools there, under the care of Mr. and Mrs. King, were well conducted, and much esteemed by the poor, though the attendance had been necessarily limited, for want of larger rooms. The new building is now, however, nearly completed; and there seems every prospect of the School being a flourishing one ere long.

The daily attendance averages 56—that of the Sunday School, 64—and in the Evening School are 26 adults.

The School has been visited by the Chief Justice, and several other gentlemen.

Mr. King has latterly been greatly encouraged, by the countenance and support afforded him by the Merchants; and mentions, with much gratitude, the kindness he had received from them.

The planters had also shown a most cheering activity in promoting the building, by giving materials and labour. Mr. Willoughby says, that one day, when he was there, there were 43 men and stout lads at work, and rapid progress was made ; one friend had kindly given eight hogsheads of coals; and an old man and his sons had brought 125 turns of wood. A very liberal supply of wood had also been sent in for the winter. At Fool's Island, and also at Swain's Island, small branches have been opened, in which about 25 children are instructed every day, except Saturday. The inhabitants at each place have agreed to crect a small School-house.

There appears to be much need for the exertions of the Society, in the vicinity of Green's Pond; Mr. King having sent home a list of fourteen small islands, in which are about 500 children in need of education.

PORT DE GRAVE.

Your Committee will now briefly advert to two new Stations, at which Schools were opened last year. The first they will mention is Port de Grave. The inhabitants had applied for Teachers four years ago, and repeated their application once since. On the arrival of the new Teachers at St. John's, last summer, another application was sent, for the appointment of one of them to that station. In consequence of the eagerness thus manifested, Mr. Willoughby was induced to visit the place, and found that the Merchants, in order to secure a Teacher immediately, had contracted with a carpenter and mason to finish the School-building forthwith, and that they had secured a good house for present use. Under these circumstances he considered it advisable to change the proposed destination of Mr. and Mrs. Lind, from Twillingate (where the School-house was not in so forward a state) to Port de Grave. A highly satisfactory letter has been received from Mr. Lind, by which it appears, that he and Mrs. Lind had as many scholars as they were able to accommodate, and, that very many more were obliged to wait till the new rooms were completed.

In the Day-school were 55 children, viz.—30 boys, and 25 girls. In the Adult-school, 34 males, and 12 females; and, in the Sunday School, between 60 and 70 of both sexes. A gratifying list of subscriptions towards the School-building, amounting to 160*l*., has been sent home, as appears in the Appendix of the Report.

Mr. and Mrs. Lind appear to be much respected, and to have met with particular kindness from the inhabitants.

There is every probability of their having one of the most flourishing Schools belonging to the Society. Within the heads of the bay in which Port de Grave stands, is a population of about 3,000 souls.

By a letter from Mr. Willoughby, dated in January, it appears, that at Bare-Need, near Port de Grave, a feeling, similar to that of the inhabitants at the latter place, had been evinced. Not only had a subscription been set on foot, and a spot of ground fixed upon for a building, but the frame of it was actually up.

TWILLINGATE.

This is the most distant Station at present occupied by the Society. It was adverted to in the last Report as one which presented an encouraging prospect of success. Mr. Walker, the Teacher appointed to take charge of the Society's School there, reached it in October last, and met with a very kind reception from the inhabitants.

Owing to the great distress caused by the failure of the fishery, the new School-room still remained in an unfinished state. Mr. Walker, however, called upon the principal inhabitants, who expressed themselves very anxious for its completion. A public Meeting was held, and Subscriptions have been subsequently raised, amounting to Mr. Walker expected to occupy the new above 70/. rooms in about a week after the date of his letter, in the beginning of December last. Meanwhile the attendance at the temporary School-room amounted to 40 Day Scholars; in the Adult School, to 26; in the Sunday School, 41. Mr. Walker has also a Catechetical Class. He speaks in very grateful terms of the cheerfulness with which the Merchants and inhabitants generally render him every assistance in their power. He had received a good supply of wood. A haul was also promised, on which occasion the Merchants had engaged to send their men to assist.

The total number of Principal Schools in Newfoundland, now under the management of the Society, is 8; connected with which are 15 Branches in constant operation. The number of Scholars in daily attendance is about 1,040: viz. 800 Children and 240 Adults; and on Sundays about 823 receive instruction. These statements are doubtless much under the mark, for it will be remembered, that no returns have been received from Bonavista;* and from some of the other places they were sent at a time when the attendance was unusually low, in consequence of so many, both parents and children, being absent at the fisheries. The number of buildings now erecting by the Inhabitants for the Society is fourteen; and many more would doubtless be commenced without delay, could any encouragement be held out to them by your Committee. They regret exceedingly, however, to state, that, as a set-off against these claims, (which are exclusive of the places recommended by Sir Thomas Cochrane,) they have not dared, in the present state of their funds, to venture farther than to engage one Master and Mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Flint, who will leave England very shortly. In taking this step even, your Committee have been called upon to exercise faith in the fatherly care of Him in whose hands are all hearts, and who hath said-" The Gold is mine, and the Silver is mine." Mr. and Mrs. Flint are present to-day, and your Committee take this opportunity of commending them to the affectionate prayers of all friends of the Society.

HOME PROCEEDINGS.

The Home Proceedings of the past year have not been without their share of interest.

To the former list of Vice-Presidents, your Committee have had the privilege of adding the names of The Right Hon. Lord Mount Sandford; Right Hon. Gen. Sir George Murray, G. C. B., His Majesty's Colonial Secretary; The Very Rev. the Dean of Bristol; and Sir Matthew Blakiston, Bart.

Through the well-known zeal of Mr. Codner, one of your Honorary Secretaries, several of the Associations have been visited, and some new ones have been formed, which are likely to prove a valuable addition to this branch of revenue. Your Committee desire again to record their sense of the value of Mr. Codner's exertions, and to express their regret that the severe illness with which he was so long afflicted in the summer should have prevented another journey which he had contemplated, and from which much good would doubtless have resulted. Your Committee are happy to state that, when in town in June last, Mr. Codner was instrumental in forming a Ladies' Association in Westminster, under the patronage of Lady Malcolm. The Chair was taken on the occasion by the Rev. Henry Raikes, M. A.

Mr. Codner subsequently proceeded to Brighton for his health. During his stay there, a Provisional Committee, preparatory to the establishment of an Auxiliary, was formed. Sir Thomas Blomefield, Bart. presided at the Meeting, and has most kindly undertaken the office of Secretary.

A second Provisional Committee has been organized at Southampton, under the auspices of Sir Matthew Blakiston, Bart., the Rev. Dr. William Wilson, and other friends.

Your Committee avail themselves with pleasure of the present opportunity of testifying the obligations they feel themselves to be under to the Rev. Dr. Wilson, who in the handsomest manner consented to accompany Mr. Codner in his journey through parts of Dorsetshire and Devonshire, and to whom your Committee and Mr. Codner feel much indebted for the valuable support he afforded to the Society, as well at many public Meetings as by thrice preaching in its behalf at Exeter.

The cause of the Society has been pleaded at Wareham, Blandford, Bridport, Sidmouth, Honiton, Newton-Abbott, Teignmouth, Tiverton, Wellington, Bath, Dawlish, Shaldon, Chudleigh, and Exeter. At the latter place, the Chair was taken by John Kennaway, Esq., and at Chudleigh by the Hon. Capt. Pellew, R. N.

At Dartmouth and Plymouth Meetings were also held, at which the Rev. J. M. Glubb, M.A. and Rear-Admiral Brooking respectively presided.

On these two occasions Mr. Codner received material assistance from the Rev. J. A. Stephenson, M. A. Rector of Lympsham, for whose kind advocacy of the interests of the Society, he expresses himself under many obligations, and to whom your Committee beg to tender their sincere acknowledgments.

At Taunton, an Association has been formed under the patronage of the Rev. Henry Gale. At a Meeting at Bristol, at which the Right Hon. Lord Mount Sandford took the Chair, and which was most respectably attended, and ably supported by several influential gentlemen, the sum of 651. was collected. On that occasion, the Association which existed at Bristol, was superseded by the establishment of an Auxiliary, which promises to be of material benefit to the Society.

In every place Mr. Codner met with kindness and attention, and as the representative of the claims of Newfoundland, he is anxious to express through your Committee, the gratitude which he feels for the valuable support he has received, in promoting the important objects of the Society.

The Committee beg to assure their friends, in various parts of the country, several of whom have expressed a desire that their respective associations should be more regularly visited, that they feel deeply the necessity for such a measure, and that they have no doubt that the present summer will not elapse without some arrangement being made for carrying it into effect.

Mr. Willoughby, on leaving England, having been accommodated by Mr. Codner with a free passage in one of his vessels, which had occasion to touch at Hamburgh, availed himself of the opportunity to make known the objects of the Society to many benevolent individuals in that city, by whom they were warmly approved, and from whom he experienced much kindness and hospitality. The sum of 221. 17s. 1d. was the immediate fruit of his visit, from which also further benefits are likely to result.

Your Committee have been favoured with several handsome and most seasonable donations, for which they take this opportunity of making their public and sincere acknowledgments. The Contributions from Auxiliaries and Associations have amounted to 996*l*. 3s. 6d., which is an increase of about 40*l*. over those of last year. In some instances there has been a decline, owing no doubt to the irregularity with which they have unavoidably been visited. Others, more favourably circumstanced, have displayed a zeal, for which the best thanks of the Committee are due. The City of London Ladies' Association has raised within the year, the sum of 106*l*. That of the Camberwell Ladies, 50*l*.; and that of the Westminster Ladies, 23*l*. The latter has been but a short time in active operation.

From the British and Foreign Bible Society has been received the munificent grant of 2,150 Bibles and Testaments. By the Prayer Book and Homily Society—the Religious Tract Society—the Sunday School Society—and the Sunday School Union Society, very considerable favours have been also shewn to your Committee. The elementary books furnished by the two latter Institutions, are most valuable in the Schools, and have been granted with a promptness and liberality which reflects the highest credit on the gentlemen who have the management of them.

From several friends in the Country, and also in London and the neighbourhood, a considerable supply of books has again been contributed for Loan Libraries. These institutions, as has already been mentioned, are much approved, and your Committee venture to suggest that any books, which their friends may deem suited to such a purpose, whether new or old, will at any time be thankfully received.

Your Committee desire also to acknowledge with much thankfulness, the kindness of many Clergymen who have granted the use of their pulpits in aid of the funds of the Society, and of others who have preached in their behalf, in London, and in various parts of the Country.

It is not necessary that your Committee should make any lengthened comment on the details now laid before the Meeting. Those which refer to Newfoundland, contain a relation of facts, to which no truly Christian heart can be indifferent.

We recognise in them the struggles of the human mind for deliverance from the long bondage in which it has been held, and for a participation in those blessings, of which the nations of the earth, as if by one common impulse, seem now, at length, beginning to feel the value.

It surely implies no common earnestness of desire, when the poor unlettered man is willing to devote a portion of his time, his labour, and his scanty pittance, to furnish means whereby himself and his children may receive instruction, and be taught those ways, in ignorance of which his forefathers were content to live and die.

Nor can your Committee reflect, without sincere thankfulness to God, that it is in no inconsiderable degree owing to the agency of this Institution that these desires have originated, and have since been fostered and matured. Wherever its Schools have been established, there, a plain education, on Scriptural principles, has been placed within the reach of the poorest of the people, who have not been backward in perceiving its advantages. Hence new desires have been created, and wants, hitherto unknown, or but slightly felt, have gradually assumed that importance which demands and merits our respect.

That the necessity for more Schools should increase in a far greater ratio than the means of supplying them, is a matter of regret rather than of surprise. It is, however, most sincerely to be hoped, that the beneficence of British Christians will henceforth keep pace more equally with the ardour, and with the wants of their distant brethren. We have unquestionable evidence, that if the work, which has been so happily carried on hitherto, be arrested in its progress, it will not be owing to the apathy of those it is intended to benefit, nor to the want of countenance or of liberality in the better orders of Society in Newfoundland, but to the inadequate supply of those streams of Christian benevolence at home, which are indispensable to its prosperity and effectiveness.*

• With reference to these subjects, the Committee cannot withhold the following extract from a letter of Mr. Willoughby's, dated 31st October, 1829.

"The fishery has generally failed this year. It is expected that very great distress will be experienced, during the ensuing winter. I have found this a great hindrance to the progress of some of our buildings, as well as to my adding much, if any thing, to our funds.—Try if you cannot stir up the libeYour Committee trust that, in the increasing demands which every year brings for the Holy Scriptures, the Book of Common Prayer, Homilies, Tracts, and numerous small works of acknowledged excellence, an ample proof is found that their endeavours to give a right bias to the desire of knowledge, are not without success. The establishment of Loan Libraries also is a measure highly popular amongst those who are disposed to read, and calculated, under the divine blessing, to turn that disposition to good account.

There is one point more to which the Committee would allude for a moment. It is the testimony of Mr. Willoughby to the character of the Teachers. "It is," he says, "with much satisfaction that I can confirm the good opinion the Committee have of them. They are all steadily, judiciously, and zealously fulfilling their respective duties. Assure the Committee," he also adds, " that they are not labouring in vain,—that the Lord of the Harvest is blessing their undertaking, and beg them to pray that He will thrust out more labourers, by giving them men full of the Holy Ghost, and funds to support them."

Upon the whole, therefore, your Committee feel that they have much cause to " thank God, and take Courage." The many providential and unlooked-for mercies they have, in various ways, experienced hitherto, enforces on them the conviction that they ought still to trust to His guidance and support.

" rality of some of the wealthy Christians at home. I may venture to say, that had I about 500% at my disposal, I would in one year have twenty Branch School-rooms finished, by the inhabitants of as many places now destitute of any means of Christian instruction, and yet earnestly desiring it."

In a subsequent communication, dated St. John's, April 15th, 1830, Mr. Willoughby adds-

"Applications for Schools are increasing upon us from all quarters of the "Island. I am obliged almost to hide myself, for fear I should involve the Com-"mittee in difficulties. But I trust that the silver and the gold is flowing into "your treasury, as the way for Schools seems so opened, and the people so des-"titute, yet willing and pressing to be taught."

"I have laid the foundation of twelve Principal and Branch Schools during "the Winter; some of them are amongst very poor populations. The progress of "these will depend much upon the assistance they get. The timber for several "is hauled, and some are commenced." Nor can they view without heartfelt gratitude that "stirring of the Waters" in Newfoundland, which, though slight and circumscribed at present, seems destined, at no very distant period, to produce a wide-spread and most salutary result.

May the Lord hasten it in his time!—And may we, one and all, in the exercise of faith and prayer, and in increased activity in every good word and work, wait the fulfilment of that blessed promise which declares, that "the Word that is gone out of His mouth shall not return unto Him void, but that it shall accomplish that which He pleases, and shall prosper in the thing whereto He sent it !"

The following are the only Lists which had been received at the time of printing the Report. As the Teachers at the Out Harbours find difficulty in getting their accounts ready in time for the Fall Vessels, it is proposed that, in future, they shall all be settled up to the 31st of March in each year, like those of the Parent Society. Those Contributions therefore, from the different School Stations, which would otherwise have been acknowledged in the present Report, will be printed in that of the following year.
