who lived well, but quietly, and without any social pretentions.

For the last nine years they have lived at the Admanston Apartments, 251 West 89th street, and for three years have passed their summers at the Hotel Griswold, near New London.

"It is Impossible."

Bernard Geissler, for five years employed as a chauffeur by the De Cordovas, lived with his wife at 201 West 84th street. Mrs. Geissler, who collapsed after receiving news of the tragedy, said: "It is impossible that my husband could have killed Mrs. De Cordova and himself. He respected and liked the De Cordovas and liked his position very fanuch. I have not seen him since he went to Connecticut the beginning of July, but had a brief note from him Sunday."

Mr. De Cordova's brother said:

"The insinuations that have been made are brutally cruel. My sister-in-law was a fine woman, a devoted wife and mother, and there could not have been the most remote reason for such a tragedy, so far as she is concerned.

"Barney, the chauffeur, always impressed me as a quiet, careful and efficient chauffeur and a good employe. There was no sign of any mental disturbance on his part."

O'Connor E. De Cordova said: "The newspapers that quoted me to the effect that I did not know Arthur's wife made an absurd blunder. Of course I know her, and I know the chauffeur, who drove me three or four times. He impressed me as a decent and capable young man."

GOOD PLANS FOR THE CADET CAMP

Here's What Has Been Arranged for Next Week -Two Chaplains.

Much interest is being taken in the cadet camp which is to be held in Sus-Much interest is being taken in the cadet camp which is to be held in Sussex beginning on next Monday and ending on July 24 and this week of training and sports is being looked forward to with pleasure by many cadets in the province. Camp Commandant Lieut. Colonel A. H. H. Powell, and Lieut. Colonel A. B. Snow, who is in charge of training and the welfare of the boys, have been at Sussex and are making all arrangements possible. For the information of parents and guardians of children attending camp it might be said that a Protestant and Catholic clergyman will be present to look after the spiritual welfare of cadets and morning and evening prayers will be said. No smoking, swearing or bad language will be allowed out after dark. Cadet instructors will accompany the cadet eorps to look after each lad. There will be a regularly installed field hospital on the camp grounds in case of any sickness and a doctor with a day and night furse will be present throughout the whole camp.

Sports will be held for the amusement of all concerned.

A PARTIAL FAILURE.

Chief Trade Commissioner Harrison Watson, writing from London, England, to the department of trade and commerce, says it is to be feared that the Canadian industries exhibition, held in the Royal Agricultural Hall, London, June 17 to 19, failed to realize the hopes of many of the Canadian exhibitors, because the attendance, both of the trade and the public, was disappointing, "although it improved somewhat toward the close of the exhibition. Ill-fate, he states, dogged the venture throughout, transportation and other difficulties cropped up, so that the exhibition was not the success which had been hoped for.

More But Smaller Homes.

Montreal Gazette:—Building permits in June were for work valued at almost $2,500,000, as compared with $781,417 last year. A feature of the situation is the number of houses, and even tenements, being turned into small apartments, many of one room only. The dwelling shortage in Montreal is being rapidly overcome, but the citizens generally are henceforth to live in smaller places. And that condition usually is accompanied by the home without children.

that the half holiday for the farmers is coming, and that unless it does they will be unable to get farm-help. One speaker is thus reported:—With the half-holiday the farmers would get more enhoyment out of life and there would be less trouble keeping the young people on the farms. Farmers have been keeping their noses too close to the prindstone. They should take a day off occasionally, get out and see things, thus widening their knowledge and increasing their capacity for accomplishment. This doctrine will certainly appeal to the young people on the farms. Many a farmer in New Brunswick has lost his sons to the farm because life offered feet them nothing but a ceasless round of toil, without proper recreation. Give the young his most of which bore names composed of the word and then use of a horse and carriage now and then (or the motor car), and occasional real holiday, an opportunity matters, and he will find the country much more defending that he use of a horse and carriage now and then (or the motor car), and occasional real holiday, an opportunity matters, and he will find the country much more effeding that America Sup in 1893, the sant his brother, George, mate of the Papose, Baboon, Gossoon, Harpoon entitieng than if each succeeding day meant a repetition of the old tasks with meant and the proper of t

THE DEEP. The ocean beats the headland steep before my humble dwelling, and I sit there and view the deep, and hear the seabirds yelling. There are a thousand wondrous tales in every wave that's rolling, of coral isles and frantic gales and temple bells a-tolling. But who will tell a tale to me so I may write the story? For I have never been to sea, and haven't known its glory. And there are seamen all around, who've been to every harbor; I meet them by the village pond, and when I seek the barber. They've been on ships in every clime, they've fought through tempests thrilling, and they could tell a yarn sublime if only they were willing. In vain I tempt these ancient men to talk of seas and sailors, though they will spiel again, again, of tinkers and of tailors. They'll drool away on topics cheap until my soul grows limper, but of the wonders of the deep I cannot draw a whimper. Oh, none will tell of heathen chiefs who rule o'er bloodstained acres, and I can't hear of distant reefs, or blue lagoons or breakers. The mariners of many ships their secrets well are guarding, but they will open wide their lips to talk of Warren Harding.

ELWELL'S SLAYER

Savs He Was Formerly a Soldier and Was Prompted by Romantic Motives-Regarded as Crank.

Detroit, Mich., July 16-A telephone call from a man representing himself as the slayer of Joseph Bowne Elwell, New York turfman and card expert, was received by I. H. Polozker, assistant Unitceived by I. H. Polozker, assistant United States district attorney, without disclosing his identity. The man, who spoke with a slight foreign accent, asked Polozker to advise the New York authorities to "leave those other people alone; they had nothing to do with it."
He intimated that he was a former soldier and shot Elwell because the latter had broken up a romance between him and a woman. He said he would surrender "when he got round to it."

The man said: "I desire that the government discontinue the persecution of my New York friends whom some persons suspected of the murder of tricky Joe Elwell. I alone know how Elwell died. I'll give myself up when I'm good and ready and that will be only when I have evidence enough to show that the

and ready and that will be only when I have evidence enough to show that the murder was fully justified."

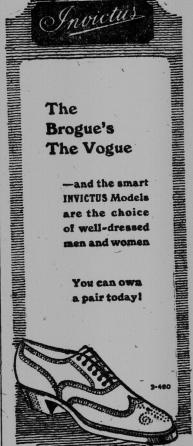

All efforts to learn the identity of the man or whence the call came were futile, although the prosecutor said the conversation lasted fifteen minutes. tile, although the prosecutor said the conversation lasted fifteen minutes.

The man told a story of an unsuccessful suit for the hand of a Bohemian countess a decade ago in the capitals of Europe. A final refusal, he told Polozker, led him to abandon his country for America, where he settled about eight years ago. During the early months of the war, Elwell, then visiting Europe, was said to have made the asquaintance of this woman and her sister. Several months later the sisters came to New York, living there since. When District Attorney Swann was informed of the despatch from Detroit, he said: "That is in line with many anonymous communications I have received in connection with the Elwell murder. It is either a hoax, in my opinion, or is the vaporings of a disordered mind. I shall not even bother to communicate with the Detroit authorities about the matter."

Mr. Swann said that at no time during his investigation of the Elwell case has he received any information that Elwell had been on intimate terms with a countess.

ROTHESAY TEA AND SALE. resbyterian church, in the Presbyterian all, Rothesay, yesterday afternoon hall, Rothesay, yesterday afternoon. The hall was very prettily draped with bunting, and national flags, and the tables were artistically decorated with red poppies. There was a very large number in attendance, and the tea and sale proved to be a great success. Mrs. J. Henderson, president of the Ladies' Aid, was in charge. Mrs. Eustace Barnes and Miss Helen Thomson poured the tea and coffee. The fancy work booth was in charge of Mrs. J. R., Robertson, and Miss L. W. Thomson. Miss Ruth Haslim and Miss Edith Kierstead had the care of the candy tables, and Mrs. Ernest Clark, assisted by Miss Annie Dobbin and Miss Bessie Henderson, were in charge of the ice-cream booth. Mrs. Fred. Gilliland was convenor of the committee, and Mrs. David Ross was in charge of the tables. The following young ladies served: Miss Christine McLellan, Miss C. McLellan, Miss Grace Pierce, Miss Beatrice Keefe, Miss Alice Harris Miss Elorance Braum. Pierce, Miss Beatrice Keefe, Miss Alice Harris, Miss Florence Brown, Miss

DENMARK CLAIMS CANADIAN ISLAND

Ottawa, July 16—Canada will probably establish a mounted police post at Ellesmere Island to establish jurisdiction, which is challenged by the Danish government. Greenland Eskimo have been slaughtering the musk-ox herds on Ellesmere, and representations from Canada have been met by the Danish government with the claim of sovereignty over that territory. Canada has notified Denmark, through the British foreign office, that Denmark must restrain her Greenland citizens or Canada will take measures to do so.

Our Tailored-To-Measure Garments Broke The Back Of "Old H. C. Of L."

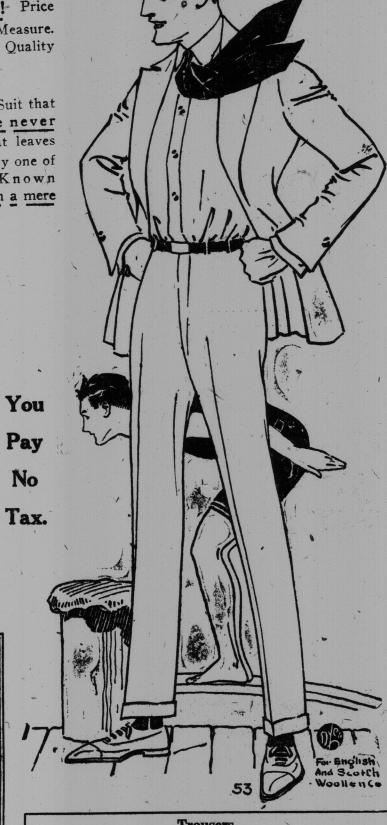

OUR policy, our Quality fabrics and our Standardized No-tax Prices were the foundation of this business twelve years We speak of Quality first, because we fixed the Standard of Quality before we fixed the Standardized Price Policy! Price alone is no reason why you should order your clothes Tailored-to-Measure. Price doesn't mean anything anywhere, unless it fixes the value of a Quality

We know that you can pay more than our Standardized Prices for a Suit that is not any better than our Tailored-to-Measure Garments. We have never tried to make a cheap suit to meet a certain price—every garment that leaves our Tailor Shops must be as good as you can get anywhere—and at any one of our 27 Quality Tailor Shops the Quality is the same and all at our Known Standardized Prices. Our garments represent Real Value rather than a mere vanity high price.

It has come and they could not help it. The combination of circumstances has come to make the sale imperative at this season of the year. The King Square Sales Company over bought and now they must take their medicine. They have decided to take an immediate loss in the season than to risk a greater loss later.

Now is the time when buying public can reap the greatest benefit of the GREAT BARGAIN FEAST. Enough has been said. It's up to you. THE BARGAIN FLOOD-GATES will be open at 9.30 a.m. on StATes morning, July 17th. Be Sure of the place. Look for the Big Sign over the door—"THE W. W. JOHNSON COMPANY, of Manchester, N. H."

miss Hughes quoted from different English year-books and other official authorities showing how the population of Ireland had dwindled because of what she stated upon similar authorities was the "crippling of Irish industries" by English interests, gradually forcing the people to migrate to America or the colonies in the hope of bettering their condition. But the old order was changing. Now the young men were staying at onies in the hope of bettering their condition. But the old order was changing. Now the young men were staying at home and seeking redress for their centuries old wrongs. Protestant and Catholic were sinking the religious differences among them, which religious differences had been largely fostered by English politicians with the dea of giving an unpleasant and wrongful impression throughout the world. Nationalist and Unionist and Sinn Feiner and Laborite were getting together, asking for the same right as other subjects of the British Empire enjoyed—the right to govern themselves in a country which was their own. In the recent elections only a small patch was left on the map of the country marked red as showing the remarkably slight minority which stood out against almost the whole country, marked green on an English map printed in a London newspaper. Counties which never before had been considered anything but loyal Orange had gone over to the side of the new movement for self-determination. How long, she asked, would people in Canada stand for the ignoring of their rights if one small cor-wauld people in Canada stand for the ignoring of their rights if one small corner of the country opposed the wishes of such a majority? How long would Canadian liberty-loving people endure oppression and mis-rule from any country, even England?

England?

In closing her address, Miss Hughes made an earnest appeal for Canadians to stand with their fellows of Australia, to join with France, United States and many powerful voices in England in active sympathy with the Irish cause. To this end she said a league had been formed friendly to Irish endeavor towards self-determination, and she hoped that many in St. John would join as they

"Lieutenant Governor Pugsley warmly welcomed the visiting delegates to New Brunswick, adding an especial welcome to the delegates from the United States. His Honor briefly sketched the advantages of the various provinces of the Dominion, comparing New Brunswick most favorably with any. Referring to temperance matters, Lieut. Governor Pugsley said the torch of sobriety and right living had been held aloft in his boyhood days in the town of Sussex by a division of the See of Temperance, which was still continuing the good work along this line coupled also with the torches of mortality and Christianity. His Honor, referring to the recent referendam on the Prohibition question, said he was not in a position to say what action the government would take, as he

The Secret of a Successful Sleep

Emerson in his essays on the English refers to them as being adepts in the art of "raising the solid bar of sleep between day and day." But Emerson lacked the knowledge of what the Hercules woven Steel Spring can do towards ensuring a suc-cessful sleep else he wouldn't have en-dorsed the English alone.

We are selling the Hercules Steel Spring and therefore are in a position to know its worth. This, coupled with what our customers say of it. Possibly we can equip your bed with a Spring and Mattress which will make sleep restful for you.
