At St. Louis, which was at that time the great depot of the fur trade, where all the trappers and hunters assembled to dispose of their spoil, he became acquainted with an old trapper or mountain man, as they were called, whose real name was Dubois, but who was called by the Indians, "Omata, or Hawk Eye."

Hawk Eye proposed that he should accompany him in one of his trading expeditions to the Rocky Mountains, which he did, and soon became acquainted with many of the chiefs and tribes of that remote region. When Hawk Eye went to St. Louis to dispose of his furs, the Doctor always remained behind, stopping with whatever tribe he happened to be, and prosecuting his search for plants. Being a SKILLFUL BOTANIST, he, in this way, soon collected and classified correctly, under their scientific botanical names, over ten thousand different plants.

He had been among the Indians over six years, and in that time had traveled over the whole extent of the West, from Fraser's River to the Isthmus, two or three times. He was known and beloved by nearly every chief, and whenever he happened to be with a tribe, he was always appealed to, to decide any question about which they might disagree. Trappers and hunters in that region at the time, if any are still living, will well remember the "Benisonian, or Great Judge," as he was called by the Red Men—and now we come to the RESCUE OF THE BEAUTIFUL INDIAN PRINCESS.

Hawk Eye was absent at St. Louis, the Doctor was staying with a small band of the large tribe of Indians called Navajoes, within the borders of Mexico. He had, as was his custom, been for over a week searching among the mountains for plants and herbs to add to his collection, his rifle supplying him with food, and sleeping at night in the shadow of some tree, or in any cave he might happen to find.

About one o'clock, of a beautiful day, you might have seen Lim standing on a crag that almost overhung a little valley, and almost beneath his feet arose the smoke of the Indian encampment—but a sight was before him, as awful as it was unexpected. On a little plain at one side of the lodges were gathered all their inmates, collected around one object. An Indian girl, with her long hair floating in the wind was bound to a stake, and around her was piled the fuel, soon to be lighted for her torture. Strange as was the sight, the Doctor for a moment stood motionless, enchained by her extreme beauty. The chisel of Praxiteles never formed a lovelier shape, her face and form were of faultless beauty; but the crowning beauty was her eye; before its lightning glance, her tormentors (soon to be) stood abashed, and the chief, with the torch already in his hand to light the pile, thus addressed the red maiden:

"Daughter of a great chief," said he, "Chichemeque's heart is sad; he has no squaw. Be my squaw, and live the queen of all my tribe; refuse, and die." Then was seen the proud blood of the Aztecs. Starting from the almost hopeless posture in which she stood, she drew herself up straight as an arrow, and fixing her eyes steadily on the chief, "Dog or a Navajoe, you sne, "I defy thee. I am the daughter of an Aztec Chief. The Eagle mates not with the thieving Hawk."

At the sound of her voice, the Doctor started from his trance; he saw the chief applying the torch to the pile; already the flames had commenced to rise. Casting aside his collection of plants, he bounded from the cliff, and rushing down the rugged side of the mountain, in a moment he was in the midst of the throng; scattering them on either side, he reached the pile of light wood already blazing; regardless of all but the girl, he hurled the faggots aside, and with his hunting knife, cut the thongs that bound her; catching her in his arms, he ran with her to the ledge of the Ichapotan, or Medicine Man of the tribe, and placing her within the entrance, he turned to confront the astonished Navajoes

HE CONFRONTS THE INDIANS.

It was time he did so. So perfectly confounded and astonished were the Indians at his audacity, that they had not only stood quietly looking on while he carried the girl from their midst, but had given way to him in silence; but now, they had recovered from their surprise, and as he turned, he saw that the chief had moved a few steps in advance of his warriors, and was already, having fitted an arrow to his bow, raising it to shoot the audacious white man. At a glance, the Doctor saw his peril, and boldly resolved to meet the danger. Dropping his knife, he took a few steps towards the chief, with his arms folded on his breast. At this, the Navajo chief paused and lowered his weapon; the Doctor seized the propitious moment, and addressing himself to the tribe, he said:

HE ADDRESSES THEM.

"For shame! oh, Navajoes, what would you do?—Kill an unarmed man and a brotner! Am I not a friend? and where is one of you can say I ever refused to bind up his wounds, & succor him in distress? Hear me, then, my brothers, and consider well before you act. You would murder a defenceless girl, the daughter of a great chief; I ask of you, her life."

Then seeing that they still appeared unsatisfied, and fearing they would deny him the request, he continued: "I ask it not as a favor, but as a right. I demand her for my squaw. The Great Spirit has said it, and I say to you, that if you dare refuse, to-morrow you shall see sudden darkness come at noon-day, and the sun shall change to blood—may, for a sign that I speak truly, the great sun shall be darkened to-morrow, whether you consent or not. Then keep the girl but twenty-four hours unharmed, and if it does not happen as I say, commit us both to the flames; but if it does so come about, know ye me as the "Benisoutan," the Great Judge of the pale faces, over whom the "Manitou" spreads his wing, and whom you cannot harm."

Such an address was suited exactly to the superstitious minds of this people; without a dissenting voice, all agreed to keep the Princess till next day.

The prediction of the Doctor was founded entirely on an almanac, Hawk Eye had brought him from St. Louis, some months before, and in which was predicted an eclipse of the sun on the following day. He waited with anxiety the result. The Princess was well treated in the meantime, but all depended on the event.

It occurred as the Doctor wished. The eclipse was almost total. Great was the terror of the tribe, and loud their promises to the Doctor, if he would "drive away the demon (or spirit of evil) from the Sun." After waiting until he knew it was nearly time for the eclipse to pass off, the Doctor made all sorts of motions and mutterings in view of all the tribe, twisting himself into all sorts of contortions with great and solemn gravity.

After a short time the reflection commenced passing from the face of the sun, and soon was entirely gone.

The limits of this narrative will not allow us to recount in detail all the ceremonies and observances gone through with by these simple people to testify their reverence for the "Benisoutan;" but the Doctor wished only for the life of the lovely Tula, it was granted, of course, and soon after, Hawk Eye returning, the two set off together with the Princess for the village of the Tezucan's, whose chief was the father of Tula.

THEY REACH THE VILLAGE.

The village was situated in a lovely and secluded valley, far up among the mountains, and the Doctor and Hawk Eye were the only white men that ever had entered therein; the passes to this valley are so difficult and so blind, that no one, not even an Indian unacquainted with them, could ever find it. The Princess had very imprudently wandered beyond the bounds, and so been seen and captured by the Navajoes. Under her guidance, the party toiled safely through the passes of the mountain, and at length stood gazing upon the "village and the vale;" truly it looked a lovely spot, the happy valley of FACETIE.

Mrs. Partington desires to know why the captain of a vessel can't keep a memorandum of the weight of his anchor, instead of weighing it every time he leaves port.

Old farmer Cloverseed is a very polite man, so much so that he is even polite to his cattle. He is frequently heard to say as he drives his yoke of steers, "Please haw Buck, also Bright. Thank you."

We notice that the ladies of the North are actively engaged in sending lemons to the hospitals, for the use of our wounded soldiers. Would not it be a good idea for President Lincoln to appoint these ladies "Lemon-ade-de-camps?"

"My dearest Maria," wrote a recently married husband to his wife. She wrote back, "Dearest, let me correct either your grammar or your morals. You address me, 'My dearest Maria.' Am I to suppose you have other dear Marias?"

Massias reproduced. You may imagine how well they were received by the chief, how many presents were heaped upon them, and so pleasant was the life they passed, that nearly a year had elapsed before they once thought of quitting this terrestrial paradise.

STRANGE CUSTOM OF THE TRIBE.

During this long stay, however, the Doctor had been very busy in searching for plants, and he found very many new and strange herbs and plants that he had never seen before, and so added greatly to his collection.

Since he had been there, however, he had seen no serious sickness among the tribe, and he noticed one very strange custom. If one were sick or felt badly, in any way, he went immediately to the house of the chief, and received something from his hands, after eating which, he always recovered, and this was the only "doctoring" they had. Among them were no conjurers or medicine men, as in all other tribes. They seemed to depend entirely on this wonderful plant.

What it was, the Doctor often enquired, but the Indians would only say that the chief alone knew, and it was death to be overheard talking of it. At last, the Doctor determined to try and ascertain of the chief the name of this wonderful medicine. Going to the venerable old Sachem he said to him that he had one request to make of him, and if granted it, it would more than repay him for all he had done: the Doctor then begged him to reveal to him the secret of the "MANOCHAN" OR GREAT MEDICINE; urging him by his daughter's life, spared to him by the Doctor's exertions, to comply with his request.

The chief heard him through in grave silence, and rising to his feet, with the dignity of a Roman Senator, he drew his blanket round his noble form, unbenumbed by age, though ninety winters had whitened his locks, and thus he said: "my brother is a brave man, his head saved from the sneaking Navajoes, Tula, the blossom of our tribe, without whose smiles the heart of Tawaco would be sad. If an Indian had asked me this, by the law of our nation, for asking merely, he must have died; but the heart of my brother is strong; his hand drew from the fire a princess of our nation; listen then and hear."

The History of this Wonderful Herb.

"Many moons ago, ere the white man trod the soil of the land, away to the south, on sunny plains and in deep valleys, dwelt the forefathers of the Tezucans. Then they were a great and mighty nation, and they had towns and cities before which those of the white man sink into insignificance; they lived in peace and plenty, cultivating their lands in quiet, and feeding their flocks and herds, or when called to battle for their rights, rose in strength and conquered all; and so they lived, until the white man came with his accursed arms, so new and so terrible to them, and his more accursed fire water. He overcame our ancestors; they faded from the earth, leaving nothing but gigantic piles of ruins to mark where once their cities stood.

"My tribe alone are left. Piloted to this valley hundreds of years ago, by one of their number, who had discovered it by accident, here we have lived since, our religion and our customs still unchanged; no stranger's foot has pressed the sod, except you two; but one of you will leave it. You are my brother; you can go; your hand saved my Tula from the fire; but Ometa must remain, or die.

"In but one thing were we, and still we are, superior to the pale faces: WE KNOW THE PLANTS AND HERBS that compose the wonderful medicine; guarded jealously by its possessor, that secret never has been revealed, and now, you, one of that hated race, ask it of me; but were it not for you, my Tula would be far hence; then listen and hear well.

"Some distance from this village lives the aged mother of this tribe, descended as she is

THE MANOCHAN OF THE AZTECS TRIUMPHANT.
"Judson's Pills cure Fever and Ague."

"READ THE TESTIMONY."

FAYETTE, N. C. Ala., September, 4, 1859.

MR. B. L. JUDSON.—Dear Sir: I speak thus for suffering humanity! Three of my friends, Major Noely, Samuel Jones, and S. P. Morrow, having suffered for eighteen months severely with CHILLS AND FEVER, have been totally cured by a few boxes of your celebrated Pills, after having exhausted the skill of the celebrated Dr. B. McCracken, and two other Physicians, besides many other hopeful though vain efforts.

If you think this declaration will relieve a single sufferer, please publish it to the world.

Yours truly,

T. J. THORNTON.

from the great prophet of our nation; to her and her descendants is the secret given to keep and guard, and it will be at peril of both our lives if we attempt to get it from us. I am chieftain of our nation, and to me she gives it prepared; but I know not what it is. Great as is my power over my braves, hers is still greater, because they look upon her as the guardian of this precious secret; and were she to receive the visit coldly, or a look but alarm enough to call her guards, you would be sacrificed—I can do not save you choose, then, my brother, if still you say go on, Tezucó's heart and hand go with you."

THE DOCTOR RESOLVES TO SEE THE AGED SORCERESS.

The Doctor replied to this, thanking the chief sincerely, and telling him, that with help, he would most certainly try to discover this wonderful thing which seemed to be the whole tribe always in health, by a few doses being taken as it were at random: he could not, as he said, satisfy his conscience should he leave any means untried to discover this wonder of the world, as by it he could do much good to his fellow men. After making an appointment with the chief, he left him.

THEY SEE THE INDIAN SORCERESS.

It was on a beautiful night, shortly after the interview we have described, that the Doctor and Tezucó might have been seen standing in front of what appeared to be an enormous pile of rocks resting against the mountain side. The moon, pouring over every thing a silvery radiance, brought out the two figures as they stood in bold relief against the dark back ground.

The chief had just given the signal, and now awaited the appearance of the guide to conduct them to the Sorceress. In a moment, he came, seeming to spring from the rock itself, and at a motion from the chief, he disappeared again, but followed now by the Doctor and the SACHEM. He led them through a small opening in the rock into a large cave, in which were some thirty savages, standing or laying at length, but each grasped his arms in his hands ready for use. Passing this, their guide pressed upon a point of the rock, and it seemed to open, disclosing an aperture, barely large enough for one person to pass through at a time. On passing this, they came to a large cavern, in which were many strange objects; the Doctor could not tell what their use—following the guide through numberless windings and intricate passages, they came, at length, to the chamber of the great Omeemasha herself.

Boldly confronting her, the Doctor stated briefly the object of his visit, and then, urging, the chief himself set forth his wishes in the matter. They waited a reply—

Omeemasha, without moving from her seat, said: "Young Eagle of the pale face, your heart is brave, and your hand is ready, that I know—for it was your hand that rescued the daughter of our chief from the torture of the Navajoes. You, it was, who spared to our tribe a daughter of the Sun,* worthy to succeed me in my charge; therefore, to you, with all due ceremony, will I impart the secret of our race; a secret known to us, alone, by the ruler of the Universe."

"And a secret," cried the Doctor, "that once in my possession, shall bring her to and strength upon its wings to all the world."

"Then have it as you will," said the Omeemasha; yet stay: "you must swear such an oath as you dare not break, never to reveal to mortal the whereabouts of this venerable Agés have our people lived here undisturbed, and we wish not to be discovered now."

To this, the Doctor readily consented, and the Omeemasha rising, bade them to follow. Farther and farther into the mighty mountain they proceeded, and came at last, to a gloomy cavern, in which, against one side, was a kind of altar of a strange and enigmatical form, having directly above it what appeared to be a golden image of the Sun and a familiar looking plant, also formed of solid gold. (Both these objects looked like those saved from some temple of the Sun, such as Pizzarro found in his conquest of Peru.) On this altar were many symbols of Huather worship.

* The ancient Aztecs worshiped the Sun.

* THE AMERICAN FLAG

The history of our flag is as follows :-

The flag during the confederation was indorsed by the Congress of that body, by a resolution adopted on the 14th of June, 1777, in the following words :-

Resolved, That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation.

This flag continued in use under the Constitution until the 4th day of July, 1818, having passed with unaltered honor through the war with Great Britain, from June 1812, to its close by the ratification of the Treaty of Ghent, in February, 1815. In the year 1818 the number of States in the Union amounted to twenty, and on the 4th of April, 1818, the Congress of the United States passed a law in the following words :-

Be it enacted, etc. Section 1. That from and after the Fourth day of July next, the flag of

THE DOCTOR TAKES THE OATH.

The Omeemasha caused the Doctor to stand near it, and with one hand upon it, and the other raised, he took an awful oath administered by her, never to reveal the situation of the valley.

Then leaving the chief, the Doctor and the Omeemasha proceeded on to a cave literally filled with dried herbs and plants; on examination the Doctor found there were six different and distinct plants and herbs arranged carefully in separate piles. He knew each at a glance, and carefully noted their names.

The Omeemasha then told him that these were the plants and herbs that composed the great Manochan or Healer, and that the symbol he had seen above the altar was meant to represent the principal plant in the combination, without which, the others would be useless, and that for the reason of its great efficacy and value, the tribe worshipped it as a child of the Sun, born by its heat and nourished by its light.

SHE TELLS THE SECRET TO THE DOCTOR.

Then with many strange ceremonies the Omeemasha communicated to the Doctor the great secret—the proportions of each herb and plant, to produce this marvelous medicine; after which they rejoined the chief, and he and the Doctor with their guide were soon once more in the open air.

HE LEAVES THE VALLEY.

Some time after this, the Doctor left the valley, but, greatly to his regret, was obliged to leave Hawk Eye behind him. The Indians conducted him on his way till they saw the smoke of a camp, and then left him. On the Doctor's reconnoitering this camp, he found it was the encampment of a band of trappers, four in number, all of whom he knew, on their way to St. Louis with their furs; and on presenting himself to them was immediately recognized, and joining their party, he went with them to St. Louis, where he arrived just seven years from the day he left it.

Hail! Double Benefactor; saving life—
From torture lingering, in death by slow degrees
A maiden rescued! from the lighted fire,
And thousands from the fangs of fell disease!

In his Great Pills, of Mountain Herbs combined,
Thousands in house-holds now, throughout our land,
A remedy, that never fails, can find,
To save their loved ones from death's ruthless hand!

the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the Union be twenty stars, white on a blue field.

Section 2. That on the admission of every new state into the Union one star be added to the union of the flag, and that such addition shall take effect on the Fourth day of July next succeeding such admission.

So stands the law at this day.

A witty editor of a penny paper took for his motto, "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance—that of the Star only one cent."

What did lot do when his wife turned to salt? Got a fresh one.

The husband who devoured his wife with kisses, found afterwards that she disagreed with him.

LETTER FROM PAUL ROMAIN—A TRAPPER.

ST LOUIS, Mo. June 8th, 1856.

DEAR SIR:—You will, no doubt, well recollect the time that you joined our party on your return from the strange tribe you told us of. How pleasant were those days! Alas we must all bow to age. I am not the man now that I was then; you know how quick was my eye, how true my aim. Many a redskin has received his allowance of cold lead from me; but always, yes, always in self defence. I am yet, I know, a rough; and my acquaintances here say, a fearless man, and I do feel as if I would give anything once more to meet and "raise the hair" of the sneaking Kiowas or blood thirsty Blackfeet; but I hope the precepts of religion will keep such thoughts from my mind, for I am, I hope, a changed man. But I must to the object of my letter; it is to thank you for the medicine you gave me. You recollect on our journey you gave me a quantity of strange herbs, telling me how to use them in any case. I have used them ever since, and they have saved the lives of hundreds on the endless plains west of the Missouri; in the pathless wilderness of the "Llanos Estacado," the staked plains of Texas, time after time have found and relieved the sick trappers and hunters. You wrote me that the medicine would be very soon prepared and placed in the reach of all, under the name of Judson's Mountain Herb Pills. I hope you will so prepare it in some way that every one can get it. I know (for you and I have often "roughed" it together on the plains,) that you have spent your life in trying to benefit our countrymen, and a greater blessing you cannot confer than to place the "Mountain Herb Pills" so all may be able to get them. I could tell you instances without number, where this medicine has raised my friends almost from the grave; but you know its power as well as I do; it can't do more than it did for "Carson" when you and I were together; poor fellow, he thought he was going, and so did all of us. You would have hard work to persuade him that he is sick now; his lungs are as sound as a dollar. Many a close hug have I seen him have since with some bloody Indian.

If we were but young again, Doctor! oh, the memory of those days, how it clings to me! How nicely you fooled that old Navajo rascal. If the eclipse had not come, though! what would you have done? I have to laugh every time I think of it. I suppose you have at last concluded to settle down and enjoy some portion at least, of your endless wealth; I can see very well why we poor trappers wear out our lives on the plains and mountains of the west; but had I been in your place, the rocky mountains would have been as an unknown land to me now.

Please write me. The young lady you sent me some medicine for is entirely well; the doctors here cannot understand it. Dr. Gray has written you about it: he gave her up, and he says the pills saved her life and that he will have them for his other patients.

Yours truly, PAUL ROMAIN.

Letter from Vienna, Austria—From a Member of the Royal College of Medicine.

Royal College of Medicine, Vienna, January 4th, 1858.

DEAR DOCTOR.—I have been so much engaged in my professional duties since your departure, that you will, I know, excuse my seeming negligence in writing you. I trust the classic shades of Athens, or the mighty memories meeting you at every step, among the palaces and ruins of Rome, have not detained you. You ought, Doctor, to carry out your oft-expressed intention of bringing what your untutored sons of the forest so truly called the "Manochan, or great Malbino" in a cheap form, within the reach of all; and I address this to you at New York, hoping you are even now engaged in doing so.

You said you would call it "Mountain Herb Pills;" the name is good, for it really expresses what it is, entirely vegetable.

You can do much more good by having it prepared thus, so all can get it at any time at a small price, than to reveal its composition to our colleges. You know, as well as I, the jealousy of the profession. Not one in a hundred would take the trouble to prepare and use it; and if they did, would charge a tremendous fee on the strength of the wonders it would perform.

As for its success here, I own I am surprised; I expected much from it, but I did not suppose it in the power of medicine to perform such cures as it has done since you left. It makes no difference what the disease is, it reaches and cures it. Envy you the happiness of discovering such an assuager of the pains of illness, and trusting I may yet see you again,

I remain yours, very truly, LEONARDO DELVECHIO, M. D.

MESSRS. B. L. JUDSON, & Co. :

Dear Sirs—I am in the Mercantile business, and my customers are desirous that I should write you to send me a quantity of your "Mountain Herb Worm Tea." I have sent to Nicholson a number of times and obtained the Tea for them, and it is valued very highly by them. Now they ask me to get it from you. I could sell a large quantity of it, if I had it.

Please send me some, and also some of your Pills.

Diseases of the Liver.

You may always know when your liver is out of order, or when you are what is called bilious, by any of the following symptoms: pain in the side and back, dizziness, dull headache, a bad taste in the mouth in the morning, sallow colored complexion, yellowish tint in the eyes, costiveness, or diarrhoea of a very dark color, low spirits and dismal forebodings. It is acknowledged by all physicians and others who have seen their action, that are a perfect cure for all bilious affections. So pleasantly do they search out and drive away the seeds of disease, that all persons living in a country where Fever and Ague, and all other bilious diseases are prevalent, will find they should never be without them. From two to four pills each night, on going to bed, will in a short time drive away the sickly yellow look of bilious persons, and bring to their cheeks a beautiful glow of perfect health.

Diseases of the Chest and Lungs.

These diseases are too well known to require any description. How many thousands are every year carried to the silent grave by that dreadful scourge Consumption, which always commences with a slight cough. Keep the blood pure and healthy by taking a few doses of these pills each week, and disease of any kind is impossible. Consumption and lung difficulties always arise from particles of corrupt matter deposited in the air-cells by bad blood. PURIFY that stream of life and it will very soon carry off and destroy the poisonous matter; and like a crystal river flowing through a desert, will bring with it and leave throughout the body the elements of health and strength. As the river leaving the elements of fertility in its course, causes the before barren waste to bloom with flowers and fruit, so pure blood causes the frame to rejoice in strength and health, and bloom with unfading beauty.

Diseases of the Bowels and Stomach

are always caused by large deposits of hurtful matter, left by bad or impure blood in those important organs, and the poisonous material in this vitiated blood, acting on the system, makes it too weak to throw off this matter by the natural channels, or if any is carried off, it is a very small portion. So arise diarrhoea and dysentery, colic, costiveness, bad breath, indigestion, nausea, loss of appetite, belching of wind off the stomach, &c. To cure all these "the blood is the life" and must be perfectly pure and clean, then you cannot be sick. A short use of these pills will delight you. You will feel with surprise their mighty power, and be willing to say with the red men of the west, truly they are the "mighty healer."

Dyspepsia.

This is a very distressing complaint, and gives the patient more suffering than almost any other disease; in fact, it is a combination of many complaints in one. The symptoms are numerous, and are of the nature of almost all other complaints combined. From this fact arises the very many cases where this disease is mistaken for some other, and so improperly treated. The first symptoms—indigestion, flatulency, loss of appetite, heart-burn, Headache, &c., if neglected, almost always awaken some dormant disease, and send the poor sufferer to a premature grave. What you must first do, is cleanse the blood and regulate the bowels; do this with the "Mountain Herb Pills," and you can bid defiance to dyspepsia.

Fevers.

Fever, like all other forms of disease, is caused by impure humors; these impurities in its essence cause a quicker circulation of the blood in struggling with nature, trying to cast out of the body the corrupt matter.

JUDSON'S MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS

are acknowledged to be a delightful, cooling and strengthening medicine for all kinds of fever. Resort to them at the first symptoms.

Female Complaints.

Every sensible woman will never suffer again with those distressing afflictions peculiar to her sex, when the cure by the "Mountain Herb Pills" is so sure and certain. Females of pale sallow complexion, are restored by a few boxes of these pills to vigor and beauty, changing the skin to the clear and healthy "white and red" so peculiar to women.

PUNCTUALITY.

It is astonishing how many people there are who neglect punctuality. Thousands have failed in life from this cause alone. It is not only a serious vice in itself, but it is the fruitful parent of numerous other vices, so that he who becomes the victim of it, gets involved in toils from which it is almost impossible to escape. It makes the merchant wasteful of time; it saps the business reputation of the lawyer, and it injures the prospects of the mechanic, who might otherwise rise to a fortune; in a word, there is not a profession, nor a station in life, which is not liable to the canker of this destructive habit. Many and many a time has the failure of one man to meet his obligations brought on the ruin of a score of others. Thousands remain poor all their lives, who, if they were more faithful in their word would secure a large run of custom, and so make their fortunes. Be punctual, if you would succeed.

JUDSON'S

Mountain Herb

WORM TEA.

Above, we present you with a good likeness of Teznoo the Sachem of the Teznoos, and you will find a similar portrait on each package of the Tea. We hope you will read the very interesting narrative, contained in this book of the adventures of the Doctor among these Indians. It was from them that he procured the "Manochan, or Mighty Healer," and which we now prepare under the name of

"JUDSON'S MOUNTAIN HERB PILLS."

This WORM TEA is made entirely of simple plants and herbs; nothing else is used in making it. It derives its uncommon efficacy and miraculous power almost altogether from an herb discovered by the Doctor in his travels among the red men. This herb, combined with other well known plants, composes this Tea.

How gratifying it is to us to be able to supply you with such a medicine, and doubly pleasant that we can assure you that no calomel or other mineral is put in it. No, nothing but plants and herbs, and these plants undoubtedly those intended by nature for the destruction of those pests of humanity—WORMS.

Symptoms which cannot be mistaken.

The countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semi-circle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritated; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headaches, with humming of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; furred tongue; breath very foul; appetite sometimes voracious, with a crawling sensation at

DOMESTIC RECEIPTS.

VEAL—MINCED.—Cut your veal into slices, and then into little square bits, but do not chop it. Put it into a saucepan, with two or three spoonfuls of gravy, a slice of lemon, a little pepper and salt, a good lump of butter rolled in flour, a teaspoonful of lemon pickle, and a large spoonful of cream. Keep shaking it over the fire till it boils, but do not let it boil above a minute. Serve it hot.

REEF A LA MODE.—Take a round of beef, lard it with bacon, then make a dressing of bread, butter, sweet herbs, onion, parsley, salt and pepper, and stuff around the bone and in several places in the lean part—skewer it, and bind it close with tape. Have ready a deep pot, put the beef into it, and half cover it with water; stew it four or five hours—baste it constantly with the gravy, and turn it in the pot. When done, place it upon a dish, and garnish it with forcemeat balls, parsley and carrots. Pour the gravy over it, having been previously flavored with Madeira wine.

the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fleeting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy, not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hiccup; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper generally irritable, etc.

Judson's WORM TEA is beneficial at all times, whether worms exist or not. If you see a child suffering under even the slightest of these symptoms, give this WORM TEA; if worms exist, it will kill them; if not, it will only act as a gentle purgative, moving the bowels gently, and benefiting the child in either case.

JUDSON'S MOUNTAIN HERB WORM TEA NEVER FAILS!

The Doctor has given us one particular case, which yielded entirely to its wonderful effects:

It was a child of Col. Henry Howard of Maryland; she was three years of age, and a daughter deeply beloved by her parents and friends.

They saw her gradually sinking, day by day, and could obtain nothing that would relieve the little sufferer, or inspire them with a hope that she might recover. The well-known symptoms, as described above, told truly the nature of her disease. Medical aid was procured, and consultations held among the most learned physicians, but all in vain. And as each day went by, her afflicted parents noticed that there was no change for the better. She was no longer the light and graceful fairy that made her mother's heart bound at her approach, or filled her father's soul with love and pride. Disease, by slow but sure progress, was fast exhausting the feeble frame of the sufferer.

Col. Howard, was well acquainted with my family, and as a last hope wrote to me, imploring me to come and express my opinion of her condition before it would be too late to save his child. What money failed to lead me to perform, my strong feelings of friendship for him could not resist. I went, although my presence was very necessary elsewhere, and once more grasped my old friend by the hand.

He led me at once to the couch where the poor child lay, and I shall never forget the expression of his face as he watched my lips to hear the opinion I might give. When I told him she would yet recover, he almost fainted with delight at the unexpected result. The child was almost killed with worms.

I immediately prepared the MOUNTAIN HERB WORM TEA, and commenced its use. The next morning after the first dose had been administered, she passed over two hundred worms; and before a week not less than eight hundred worms of all descriptions were expelled from her bowels, by this wonderful medicine.

From this time her recovery began, and I am positive that had she used the Worm Tea when she was first taken sick, she would never have been brought so low.

Now, when I can present to you such wonderful results as these, can you blame me for departing from the strict rules of the profession, and recommending to all the use of this wonderful remedy.

How much better and safer would it be to have it always in the house; a little delay when a child is taken ill may often be the cause of its death, while acting without delay, and (if it has any one of the symptoms mentioned) by giving the Mountain Herb Tea immediately, you will not only save the child a long and tedious illness, and yourself much expense, but also feel happier in knowing that you have done your duty, and perchance saved its life.

OBSERVE.—Always find the Name and Signature of B. L. JUDSON & CO., and the portrait of Tezucó, on each package of this Worm Tea.

CARLTON'S

CONDITION POWDERS, The Greatest Medicine FOR HORSES, COWS, SHEEP, AND HOGS.

The recipe for CARLTON'S CONDITION POWDERS was obtained by us at a great expense many years since. They are the Original and Genuine Articles; and although crowds of scurrily imitators have tried to counterfeit them, the name, "CONDITION POWDER," is all they can imitate. BE NOT DECEIVED—shun all other so-called Condition Powders, and get the

GENUINE CARLTON'S,

And your Stock will show you the difference by their improved appearance, the glossiness of their coats, their renewed appetite, health, and vigor. Nothing can equal these Powders as a general Condition Medicine.

The CARLTON'S CONDITION POWDERS, given according to directions, are the best thing in the world to strengthen a horse, and to restore him to health and vigor after severe exposure or hard driving.

These Powders cause a healthy action of the digestive organs, and purify the blood of animals, thereby equalizing the circulation of the blood, and imparting vigor to the whole frame. This soon demonstrates itself by an improvement in the appearance of the coat, for it is a certain fact, that no animal can be in perfect health if the coat be rough and unthrifty.

CARLTON'S CONDITION POWDERS

Will be found a perfect TONIC AND RESTORER after attacks of any acute diseases, such as Influenza, Strangles, Inflammation of the Lungs, Nasal Gleet, etc.

Every one who owns Stock of any kind should use this Medicine; it is always beneficial, and is so harmless that it can always be given without fear.

Farmers who are fattening their Stock, should use these CONDITION POWDERS. They will keep all kinds of Stock healthy and in good heart, and make them fatten much easier and quicker than they otherwise would.

Remember this Caution.

Find the Signature thus—

In full on the wrapper of each package. This is the only test of the TRUE CARLTON'S CONDITION POWDERS.
