Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King Defends Government's Attitude in Near East.

Carleton Place. Ont., Nov. 30 .- (By Canadian Press staff correspondent.) -Declaring that subsequent developments had shown the present government's attitude in the Near East situation to have been the wisest which could have bene followed, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, prime minister, tonight defended that policy as to the best in the interests of Canada and the whole empire. His himself as "reddest declaration was made in speeches here and at Almonte.

The prime minster tonight entered Lanark constituency to speak in support of David Findlay, the Liberal candidate. Canada does not need to boast of her loyalty to the empire, Mr. King declared.

"Was I alone to decide whether Canada was to go to war against Turkey, or Russia, or anyone else? It was for Parliament and the people to decide such matters. If ever you let the control of such decisions get into the hands of any small group of men then you are forfeiting one of the principles for which Britain has has long stood." Loyalty to Britain was not an issue, the premier declared.

Former Labor Leader Declares Men Want Work. Not Doles.

GIVEN SECOND READING

London, Nov. 30 .- Having disposed of the Irish legislation, the House of Commons today addressed itself to the routine business of debate on the reply to the speech from the throne. John Robert Clynes, former parliamentary labor leader in moving an amendment to the address, raised the question of unemployment, which, outside the foreign policy, is the biggest problem facing the new government

Mr. Clynes' criticisms of the government followed the familiar lines of an attack on the foreign policy as being largely responsible for the poor commercial and industrial situation. He declared that what the unemployed wanted was work, not doles, and that the greatest opportunity would be found in an adequate housing scheme.

On the question of unemploymen insurance, he warned the government against being tempted into the direction of insurance by the separate industries, contending that insurance of the workingmen was a national obligation. This warning was prompted by rumors that the government was contemplating some such

The debate showed that the government had no new remedies to put forward, and that it relies mainly on the proposals of the previous govern-ment, which include the building and improving of roads and similar pub lic services, as well as inducing the railway companies to hasten work upon contemplated extensions as the best means of absorbing a large amount of unskilled labor.

Offer No Assistance. In none of these projects, however, was any government assistance fore-shadowed. The only effort in the atter direction mentioned by minister of labor, Sir Montagu Bar-low, was a proposal to renew the existing trade facilities for twelve months and to increase the maximum guarantees under that measure to £50,000,000, which is about double schemes under the trade facilities act, and said he hoped for much from its extension. The government had reunemployment, and would keep the question under close attention, bringing up fresh proposals as they be-

He admitted that the question of unemployment insurance by industries was a complex one, and said the government had taken steps for a full examination of the matter. Given Second Reading. The same comparative apathy attended the discussion of the Irish reading without revision by the slenderly-attended House. The Duke of Devonshire, on moving the second reading without revision, said he might almost regard it as his hereditary duty to propose the rejection of the home rule bills. He, however, found himself in the strange position of being the minis-ter responsible for moving the second reading of a bill to confer a constituthe circumstances of today it would be impossible for any government, however it might be composed, to take any other course than that he now was recommending to the Lords. Moreover, it not only would be useless, but dangerous, to go into past history and revive old memories. Under these circumstances the only question was whether the constitucrown agreed it did.

The great problem that the empire had to face today was how they could maintain the integrity of the empire, and at the same time have complete self-government in each of the big colonies. "For we would rather govern our-"For we would rather govern our-selves badly," he said, "than be governed well by someone else "No one knows the destiny of our empire; no one knows the path we

Has Fine Institutions. "English literature," the dean con-tinued, "would be recognized in the future as the noblest monument of empire. England was the home of the finest institutions of government and freedom, and she numbered among her sons many of the greatest figures in every walk of life.
"So that it behoved us, as Canadians, to cherish the memory of our Motherland, and to honor the heart of the empire—England."

"Scotland," the premier toast of the evening, was to have been answered by C. St. Clair Leitch, K.C., who, however, was unable to be present, and a worthy substitute was found in the Rev. Dr. McNair, who, in a witty address, eulogized Scotland and Scottish men.

"One of the greatest problems facing Canada today was the question of immigration," said Rev. Dr. Mc-Nair. "There was difficulty in deciding who was a profitable settler, and he was proud to say the men from the land of cakes were always wel-

Tells of St. Andrew's.

J. H. McIntyre, the official bard of the association, replied in a short address to "Th' Day and A' Wha' Honor It."

The day, he pointed out, was the day of the martyrdom of St. Andrew; not, as might be supposed, the day of his birth.

St. Peter he regarded as having many of the characteristics of the Scotch. He had bravery, enthusiasm and spirituality, and these the speaker elieved to be the outstanding points in the Scottish character.

Professor Dorland, who was in-troduced by Dr. M. C. Dewar, in replying to the toast of Canada, admitted that he had no Scottish bleod in his veins, but he had at least studied at a Scottish center of learning, which gave him a certain per-sonal knowledge of Scots. In his opinion, the bulwark of Scottish

Mr. Meighen Is Wrong.

Hon. Arthur Meighen has taken the stump in the by-election in Lanark, and he is demonstrating beyond all doubt why the people of Canada turned from him and his party on the 6th of December last year.

Sir Henry Thornton, who is to direct the management and the consolidation of national railways in Canada, had to return to England to wind up his business affairs there. He did this in the shortest possible time; he is in New York today on his way to Ottawa to start work. By way of welcome to Canada, Mr. Meighen states to the electors of Lanark:

"I would like to see Sir Henry change from his habit of speech-making in England to action on the railways of Canada. Banquets over there are not much good to improve operation of our railways

The ex-premier at another meeting referred to Mr. Thornton as "an experiment at a high figure." The appointment of Tom Moore, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Council, to a place on the as far as the men are concerned.

In his references to the national ines he seeks at all times to create a feeling of distrust and suspicion, that being his sole contribution to and a half dollars.

The King government is scored in he same speech because its tariff did not cut a swath through existing rates and make this a free trade land. When the campaign was on Mr. Meighen and his political troops put on an exhibition of frenzied ruin because the country, under Liberal rule, was going to be ruined by the importation of foreign-made goods. There was the most persistent and determined attempt all through this district to tag and label every Liberal candidate as a free trader, and as such a menace to the industrial prestige of Canada.

There can be no question that Mr. Meighen is deliberately and brazenly beyond facts when he says the Lib erals went to Ottawa as tariff wreckers and then failed to per-

Liberal candidates all over the to the last contest, that they were not free traders, but were revenue tariff advocates to the extent of the financial needs of the country. As proof of this we reproduce extracts from statements wired to The Advertiser on December 3 of last year. They come from successful and defeated Liberal candidates:

North Oxford, D. J. Sinclair-"We believe in a tariff for revenue only. a tariff which will give adequate protection to industries earning a legitimate profit, but which will discourage the creation of monopolies."

South Essex, Hon. Geo. P. Graham -"Free trade for Canada is an impracticable idealism. Am in favor of tariff on basis adopted by Liberals after election of 1896."

North Essex, Hon. W. C. Kennedy -"A tariff for revenue which will adequately protect the industries of this country and the labor employed therein. Any tariff change made by the Liberal party will be of a constructive nature.

East Middlesex, Major Duncan Ross-"I believe the tariff should be used primarily to secure revenue." North Waterloo, W. D. Euler-

"Free trade is impossible. I favor a tariff that will produce revenue, protect and encourage legitimate industry providing employment at good wages.'

West Elgin, Wm. Tolmie-"After ten years of Tory rule the financial condition of this country is such as to put free trade absolutely out of the question. I favor a tariff that will bring the revenue we require." London, C. R. Somerville-"A tariff that shall be a just balance between the selfish high protectionist and the impractical free trader."

Similar answers came from Brant. takes. ford, South Perth, North Perth. West Lambton, North Bruce and South Oxford. In not one case was there a Liberal candidate in this great section who went to the people, as now charged by Arthur Meighen, on the "platform of the penalty of past mistakes. Canadian Council of Agriculture in regard to the tariff." Mr. Fielding did the only thing any man could do under the circumstances-recognize the amount to be raised and then distribute the burden where it could best be carried. At no time has he shown any inclination to make a hobby-horse out of theories and on it ride over hard

The Conservative leader's speeches in the Lanark contest step along very well with his utterances in the Federal House. He is a critic, a fault-finder and a user of sharp phrases. He shows no more signs of construction than he did last session when he persisted in forcing to a vote his silly little resolutions expressing want of confidence in the King administration,

Discourtesy At City Hall.

References have been made at several of the municipal mass meetings in London to the manner in which callers at the city hall are treated, and the statements have on several occasions drawn quite a round of applause from the audience. Whether this applause can be taken as evidence that others have met with this sort of treatment is not known, although it is a fact that a pointed reference, driven home in an emphatic way against any person or department, always seems to find more or less response from a crowd in the way of applause. It would be much fairer to all concerned if those people who have charges to make would come out openly and be more specific. The Advertiser holds no brief for the whole civic administration in its many ramifications, and it may be that there are officials who have shown a lack of courtesy and consideration. Against this is the fact that a broad, general statement, taking in the city hall as a whole, is not a fair proposition, and it throws suspicion on many who are not at all blameworthy.

The two principal departments at the city hall are those presided over by City Clerk Baker and City Treasurer Bell. These men are capable, courteous and willing at any time to meet ratepayers who come to them, The city treasurer has access to all the information about civic finances, and holds the reasonable view that it is the property of the ratepayers, and that there should be no financial secrets. The city clerk is also ready to meet ratepayers at any time and give information that comes within the scope of his department.

It is hardly a fair thing to bring out the charge of discourtesy at the directorate of the national lines he city hall, and in that way cast a classes as no representation at all reflection on the whole organization. We have mentioned the two leading departments, and the same holds true of others. If there is just cause for complaint it should be brought definitely and specifically to the solution of a problem to which the attention of the authorities, and the people of Canada are financially if no satisfaction is gained there, committed to the extent of a billion then to the public at large through the medium of the press.

Here Is the Solution.

Traffic cops work in the very heart of constant danger. But you rarely, if ever, hear of a traffic cop being killed or even struck by an auto. There are two reasons for this. They are:

First: Every auto driver is more or less afraid of a uniform. He takes mighty good care not to hit the policeman in charge of traffic. Because the driver is cautious he does not run down the traffic cop.

Second: The traffic cop in turn is cautious. He obeys the rules of the suddenly into he ought to be able to handle corn on he ought to be able to

The Evening Story

PINK BROCADE AND GRAY HAIR. (Copyright, 1922, by W. Werner.) All her life-that is, for more than forty years—Thesba Warren had lived in the small town of Nanticoke and worked hard and seen the dreams and ambitions and hopes of her girlhood go by unrealized. From the time she was sixteen, when she had had to earn money, she had worked for Mrs. Ashmore the milliner. Her progress up to her present position as partner had been so gradual as not to deserve mention in detail. It is enough to say that after twenty-four years of selling. sewing and studying hats she might sides, it would be a good deal of trouble to get the window lettered Thesba lived with Mrs. Ashmore in four rooms back of the shop, and they agreed very well because Thesba would have agreed with anyone. Not that Mrs. Ashmore was so difficult; she was merely big and business-like earn money enough to do something for her daughter's little son, who

at last have had her name in gilt letters on the front window only that she preferred it not to be there. Bewould never have a chance unless she gave it to him.

Thesba often envied Mrs. Ashmore that little invisible child. She had no one. Since her mother died, when she was nineteen, she had been as much alone as it is possible for a person to be. She had had before that, besides her mother, a cousin and a lover, but the cousin had married a man who had whisked her from a humble sphere into an important one, and the lover had ceased to love and had gone away into the world about business of his own. At long intervals Thesba heard from her cousin Cora, but she never heard from the man, who, as a boy, had loved her almost well enough to make her happy.

So, at forty, Thesba, in spite of her close association with Mrs. Ashmore, was a very lonely little being. She earned money enough, but she did not know what to do with it, so she put it away and sometimes almost forgot she had it. She could have had wonderful hats, but she wore small black ones, pulled down close over her fine, glis-tening gray hair. Her hair was too soon gray, but it suited the quaint pink face underneath, out of which Thesba's blue eyes opened with the surprising innocence of a child's. She had a pretty mouth, too, which, like her eyes, was too young for her gray hair. And her figure was trim and slight and supple, with none of the crooks and humps one might expect from her having sat so many years with a needle in her hand. One morning when the postman came in and dumped a lot of mail on the counter there was one letter which Mrs. Ashmore instantly singled out as being especially interesting. "I guess it's from your Cousin Cora Steel," she said to Thesba.

Thesba took the letter. It was from Cora. She did not open it then, for she was busy, but later she read it thoughtfully. "Cora has asked me to come and make her a visit," she said. "Well, why don't you go?" returned Mrs. Ashmore.

"She never did such a thing before," went on Thesba, wonderingly.
"I've always noticed," said Mrs.

"I should by all means," replied

Mrs. Ashmore firmly.
With Thesba it was not so much a matter of her wanting to go as it was of Cora wanting her to come. She replied that she would arrive at a certain time, and when that time came she stepped off the train, neat and plain in her black, with Mrs. Ashmore's suitcase in her hand. Cora Steel had changed a good deal. She was stout and grave, but she greeted Thesba warmly. Cora's car was waiting and they entered and were snatched away from the noisy station through many lengths of city streets to the big house which spelled prosperity from roof to basement. Wallace is away on a business trip." Cora explained, "so we shall have plenty of time to visit.' Presently Thesba found herself in a

Mr. Alonzo B. See's recent violent | though both the contracting parties attack on women's colleges has stirred up a good deal of resentment among those who believe in higher education for women.

"I don't think his ideas are worth discussing," said one woman who is a college graduate. "Alonzo B. C. is a very good name for him. "Who is this Alonzo B. C., any.

Someone said he was a Brooklyn man who had made his money in elevators, and the college woman said his ideas sounded like the ideas of a self-raised man. Which proves that in spite of the heavy intellectual handicap of a college education one may still be mildly frivolous occasionally in conversation.

Poor College Women.

College women, Mr. A. B. See declares, cannot write a legible hand. they cannot spell; they cannot speak the English language. They have their brains twisted by psychology and logic. There would be no nonsense about the A. B. See academy. He would substitute cookery for the classics, and syntax for science.

There would be a spelling match every Saturday night, and the highest diploma for the year would go to the girl with the shiniest nose. College women may be just as bad as Mr. A. B. See says they are. One doesn't like to contradict a millionaire, but the fact remains that col-

And what is stranger still, they college men. There are sta-to prove it. Many of these marriages turn out quite happy, Anything rather than war; we have proved that since 1871. Germany emerged from the war of 1914 with hate in her heart. Hatred of Belgium, guilty of having refused to allow herself to be ravished. Hatred of Great Britain because she had seen that the German menace was directed at her through France. Hatred of the United States for hav-Hatred of the United States for having come to the aid of threatened civilization. Hatred yesterday, infinitely more so today, of France.

For Great Britain and the United States the nightmare has been dissipated. Economic chaos, inevitable sequel to great convulsions, remains, but little else. Against France the war lasts for ever. We shall be sure of our safety only when Germany ful-

That is precisely what Germany re-fuses to forgive. Germany is innocent of the war: her press and her Emperor proclaim the fact; her financiers and economists shout it, after having studied the matter intimately.

Now exactly where, up to the present time, has German democracy exhibited itself? There exists a republic in name but imperialistic in will and in action. Not a solitary item of government or administration has been altered. Not an emblem. Not a man. The same generals and functionaries who formed the Germany of yesterday comprise the Germany of today. They are of the same spirit and have the same end in mind. They are today indulging in fraud in order to be able to indulge tomorrow once to be able to indulge tomorrow once again in force.

The imperial republic carries too many wounds in her sides. Alsace-Lorraine, Danzlg and Silesia, notably. Before a Europe which today is abandoning France to her fate, and which tomorrow will abandon Poland, the great crimes of Frederick II may be recommenced. Then will come the day to assail the young states born of the splitting up of Austria-Hungary. It matters little if Germany is demobilized so long as the military framework exists for the calling up of troops.

nounce the fact. France desires the destruction of Germany. Germany proclaims that it is so. Nor is Germany alone in proclaiming such to be the case. American newspapers have written so. They wrote:

Says She Wishes More War. I do not write this word without eighing it. Yet it is only too obvious that Germany in 1922 wishes to recom mence the war. You don't believe that over here in America. That is because you behold Germany deprived of her arms, her claws cut. But claws grow again. And arms can be made slowly and slowly. Germany will not recommence the war tomo next day. But a day will come when Europe, going from concession cession, will have granted all. All the articles of the Treaty of Versailles will have been either tacitly or openly abrogated. Our commissions of control will control us no longer. We shall look for new and fantastic groupings and alliances, and Europe, undermined, will lend her last cents to Turkey and to Russia—she has advanced enough already to Germany. Nurses' Home a Pressing Need for the care of patients, for increasing the accommodation for out-patients, and provide facilities for essential research work.

The proposed building will not only provide adequate quarters for

Advisory Board of Victoria Hospital.

There are many reasons why the bylaw providing for the building of a Nurses' Home should receive the support of the electors. The Home is an integral not a separate part of the hospital, and the furnishing of proper housing facilities for the nurses is not only conducive to better care for the patient, but will provide very much needed accommodation for patients.

At the present time there are one hundred and fifty pupil and staff nurses at Victoria Hospital. There is accommodation in the Nurses' Home for only eighty-eight, the remainder being housed here and there in various wards ill-adapted to their requirements, and possessing no modern sanitary arrangements.

To add to the difficulties already at hand, a class of probationers will shortly enter the hospital, and accommodation must be found for them under already overtaxed conditions, so that the urgency of the situation must be apparent to each and every one.

The Medical Advisory Board of the hospital appreciates the pressing necessity of the needed addition and, together with the medical profession of the community, implores the support of the electors for this bylaw.

THE SPENCER SITE FOR THE CITY HALL IS A VOTE FOR A

Bigger and Better London

London citizens have voted three times in favor of the McCormick site for London's new city hall. This vote was always overwhelmingly in favor of this site as the one best selection that London afforded. Three times the city councils (for some unknown reasons) have gone contrary to the wishes of the people who elected them, and, by different methods, have contrived to block the will of the citizens.

The present site of the city offices (known as the Spencer block) is certainly not suitable for a civic office building, nor will it ever be possible to make it such by rebuilding. It has only the one side that is not hemmed in by other buildings, has no means of being lighted at the rear and sides other than by artificial lighting, and it would be the grossest extravagance to build a temporary civic office building, at an estimated cost of $300,000 on this property, besides tearing down a building that is worth today $60,000. Added to this would be the expense of moving. When the Spencer site was taken over some years ago by the city, and a move made from the old city hall on Richmond street, the alterations to the present building; together with the moving, cost the citizens $61,000. Another move and alterations would cost as much again, or more. These are the things that help increase London's tax rate, with nothing to show for the expenditure. Is this Economy?

You own the McCormick site. It is admitted the finest location in the city for a city hall. It has a frontage of 200 feet on Dundas street and 165 feet on Wellington

Three times you have voted the money to erect the city hall on this site. A good substantial civic building can be erected here, with light on all sides-a credit to the city-and the very thing you have voted in favor of three times in succession. Why was your will not carried out? There is some reason.

Assure the city council that you know your mind and that you do not want any interference with your expressed wishes by voting against the Spencer building site for an office building on Monday next.

O'DOWD GETS N. Y. "WORLD'S" TITLE

Fouled by Rosenberg in Eighth Round After Leading All Way.

New York, Nov. 30.—Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul won over D'ave Rosenberg of New York on a foul in the eighth round of a fifteen-round bout here today. Rosenberg was disqualified for hitting low after 2 minutes and 26 seconds of fighting in that round. O'Dowd was leading by a wide margin when the bout ended.

The judges' decision awarding the bout to O'Dowd gives him the recognition of the New York State Athletic Commission as world's middleweight champion.

Commission as world's middleweight champion.

Rosenberg twice had been warned by Referee Patsy Haley in the eighteenth round, when suddenly O'Dowd crumpled up and sank to the floor. Referee Haley immediately disqualified Rosenberg, and the bout was awarded to the St. Paul boxer by the judges.

Immediately after the bout Deputy Boxing Commissioner Harry Burchill ordered that Rosenberg's share of the receipts be withheld pending an investigation by the athletic commission.

O'Dowd outfought and outgeneraled Rosenberg all the way, scoring a knockdown in the third round. When Referee Haley was forced to warn the New York boxer for hitting low, O'Dowd had a big lead and was going strong. The weights announced were: O'Dowd, 159; Rosenberg, 156.

Chicago Dec. 1.—Wheat trended upward in price today during the early dealings, with trade moderately active. Higher quotations at Liverpool, rain in Argentina and prospect of immediate farm relief legislation at Washington, all counted as bullish factors. A further reduction of 20,000,000 bushels in estimates of Argentine exportable surplus was also a subject of comment. The opening, which ranged from $40.000. plus was also a subject of comment. The opening, which ranged from %c to 1½c higher, was followed by a little reactio nand then by a fresh advance. Corn, moving up with wheat, touched the highest price which the December delivery has yet attained this season, 72%c. After opening ½c to %c us, the market sagged somewhat, but soon rallied.

Oats started a shade to ½c to %c higher, and later continued to harden. Futures opened:

The Navy League of Canada, while unable to guarantee that such reparations will be paid in full or in part, is taking up the cause of our injured merchant sailors or dependents of sailors who were killed, in an effort to secure for them every dollar of reparations which His Majesty's Britannic Government may secure from Germany and allocate to Canada for this purpose.

Before The Navy League of Canada can take action in this matter it is essential that all information must be supplied not later than December 16. 1922, to Lieut.-Col. Cecil G. Williams, Manager.

Enuresis (Bed-Wetting) and Enuresol Tablets

Incontinence of urine in adults, commonly known as bed-wetting in children, is more common in boys than in girls. Incontinence or bedwetting has been considered incurable when it persists beyond maturity. Incontinence of urine is more common in women than in men. Constant or very frequent urination, day or night, indicates some abnormal Enuresis may be caused by paralysis, the secretion of a large amount of urine, as in diabetes, calculus (gravel) cystitis, irritation, worms, unduly sound sleep, dreams or gastric disturbances.

It is claimed by many people that bed-wetting will be outgrown. This is true to a certain extent; bed-wetting may stop, but the cause remains. ENURESOL TABLETS removes the cause of which bed-wetting is only

This theory has been proven correct by the uniformly good results obtained with ENURESOL TABLETS in young and old, as the following typical cases from our records show, names of which will be furnished

R. D., Minnesota: Girl, age 14 years, had always been a bed-wetter, although apparently well otherwise. Her parents tried many treatments, medical and mechanical, without benefits. Seven weeks after beginning to use ENURESOL TABLETS she stopped wetting the bed, but continued the treatment six weeks longer and she has had no return of the trouble since. R. G., Wayne, Michigan: Boy, 11 years. Three years ago his mother ordered four boxes of ENURESOL TABLETS and four months later reported the boy had not wet the bed for six weeks, and since reports the trouble has not returned

Mrs. W., Milwaukee, Wis.: Age 44 years, had never had a full night's sleep, having to get up four to eight times a night. Visited Hot Springs, mud baths, sanitariums and was operated on twice in two different hospitals without benefit. Six weeks of ENURESOL cured her completely, three years ago and have been seen and the completely. three years ago and has had no return of the troublesome nuisance.

F. J., Minnesota, 75 years old, is no less interesting. For over 25 years F. J. suffered with incontinence of urine, day and night. As he years r. J. sunered with incontinence of urine, day and night. As ne grew older the trouble increased, having to pass water every half hour or oftener. Had a stroke of paralysis which increased the trouble to such an extent that only a few drops of bloody urine could be voided with intense pain, causing surgeons to suspect cancer of the bladder. Being placed on ENURESOL at the dose of two tablets every two hours with a glass of cool water or milk, the tenesmus disappeared in twelve hours and had a good restful sleep the next night, and fully recovered perfect health in the next three months. Mr. F. J. is now 85 years old and at last report was still alive and well

It is important to regulate the diet, and overeating, coffee and acid

It is important to regulate the user, and orestands, foods should be used sparingly.

ENURESOL TABLETS are absolutely safe and harmless, being a tonic for the kidneys, bladder and nervous system.

It is dependable for weak, hervous, restless, slow-growing, languid children. A fair trial of ENURESOL TABLETS will convince you of their

A placement goal by Hanson in the first period and a touchdown by Cassidy in the third make up the total of Cornell's efforts that counted today, but give no indication of the ripping offensive and the complete superiority of the Red team.

LONDON NEEDS BUSINESS MAN

Wenige Replies to Criticism. at Ward 2 Meeting.

Both mayoralty candidates were given a fair hearing at the meeting called for the purpose of discussing municipal affairs, especially those pertaining to Ward Two, held in Empress Avenue School, West London, Thursday evening. For three hours the electors of Ward Two packed into one room and the adjoining corridor, waited to hear ex-Ald. George Wenige, mayoralty candidate, speak. Several times when other speakers were called by the chairman, the audience asked that Mr. Wenige be given the toor. His reception was most enthusiastic, and when he had concluded his remarks there was a spontaneous out-burst of cheering.

Ex-Aid. Wenige declared that it had been spread in the ward that he was not a fit candidate for mayor because he would not be able to properly receive a duke and duchess if they should happen to arrive in London. "It is not a man with a plug hat and swallow-tail coat, but a businessman London needs for her mayor," he de-Clared.

Stand By Platform.

He championed the commission form of government, the re-opening of the North End fire hall, the atof the North End fire hall, the attempt to recover the $65,000, which, he claimed, the City Gas Company had "stolen" from the people via the readiness-to-serve charge route, and to stand firmly on his platform, which he had outlined and broadcasted at the commencement of his campaign.

Attention was drawn by him to a sentence at the bottom of his opponent's add which stated they were inent's ads, which stated they were in-serted and paid for by the Citizens' Committee. Was it not fair to reason that those who had spent that money would expect some favors from their candidate during the year? he questioned. "Is there one of you here present on the Citizens' Com-mittee?" he inquired.

Ald. James Child, mayoralty candidate, pledged himself to support fair wages. He declared the statement that he was in favor of 19 cents an hour for garbage men was absolutely false.

Ald. Childs pointed to South London as an example of the benefit reaped by paving the roads of a com-munity. That district had had a building boom as a result of its good roads, he remarked. Motor equipment in every hall in the fire department was included in his platform, he declared. Flat de-nial to the statement that the two horses from the North End fire hall were "eating their heads off at No. 1 hall" was given by him. One of these horses had died of paralysis and the other was now being used by the garbage department, he told the elec-

Extend Building Program.

He would spread the building program of the city over a number of years, and promised to remedy the assessment condition, which forced the small house owner to pay more than his just share of the taxes.

The engineer's department, which he believed was doing good work, was defended by him.

The candidate received quite an ovation when he stood out for the promotion of clean sport in the city, and the interesting of public-spirited citizens in a new hockey arena.

Ald. Albert Judd, who is seeking reelection to the council as a repre-sentative of Ward Two, was roundly applauded when he stated he had opposed the payment of aldermen. This matter should be left to the rate-payers to decide, he thought. The movement on the pay of the control of movement on the part of the council to pay itself was commercializing a trust given it by the people, he de-clared, and assured the gathering that he and Ald. Douglass were bitter opponents of any move in that direc-tion. He also advocated a civic garage, so that city cars could be kept track of at night. For the bringing of this matter to the fore, he gave all the credit to Ald. Douglass. Ald

Judd explained his actions of the past year to the apparent satisfaction of all present. all present.

Douglass Speaks.

Ald. Leonard Douglass, an aldermanic candidate in Ward Two, was well received also. He supported Ald. Judd on the question of paying aldermen, and was a strong advocate of a civic garage. He defended Dr. W. S. Downham, health officer, as the most capable man available for the post, and showed that official had saved the city thousands of dollars. He also pledged himself to do all in his power to obtain better roads and better schools for West London. He pointed out that in other years, oiling on West London was not done West London roads was not done until late in the year, Hyman street, Central avenue and other thoroughfares getting served first.

Ex-Ald. W. A. Wilson, aldermanic candidate, said he favored a fair wage for city employees, and favored the "yeas" and "nays" on all ques-tions voted on at civic meetings. He admitted he had moved and supported motion to increase a bonus to a ity official. William Tite, another aldermanic candidate, declared organized labor had fought for day labor for 20 years. As a labor candidate he favored it. He termed the 10 per cent cut in the wages of garbage men as a "most dastardly thing." Like Ald. Wilson, he pledged himself to serve the people to the best of his ability.

Would Act Fairly.

Ald. Bean, aldermanic candidate, declared he would act fairly and honestly on all civic matters if he was elected, and thought that his year's experience had fitted him to carry on and serve the people of Ward Two efficiently.

Walter Ellis, labor candidate, said there was not one thing done but what it had been advocated by labor years ago. He did not think it needed a university-trained man to manage London's business affairs. He had a university-trained man to manage London's business affairs. He had received his education in Ward Two and had lived in the ward all his life. He was sure he could serve his district as ably as anyone.

Mrs. John I. A. Hunt, Mrs. Palmby

and S. F. Lawrason, board of educa-tion candidates, all spoke briefly. Mayor J. C. Wilson explained all the money bylaws to be voted on by the people, and brought out several strong points in favor of the building of a new nurses' home.

Tchitcherin Confers With New German Chancellor.

After a day spent in getting acquainted with Chancellor Cuno and the other members of the new German government, M. Tchitcherin called in the foreign correspondents, with whom he freely discussed his government's attitude at Lausanne, repeating in large measure what he had already said in similar interviews in Russia.

He maintained that neither the League of Nations nor any international combination of powers should exercise any control whatever over the Turkish straits, which should be completely closed to warships and restricted to commercial navigation. Russia, he declared, would be prompt to support Turkey in her attempt to overthrow any agreement violating Turkish sovereign rights or leaving the straits open, and Russia's program would remain unchanged, whatever conclusions were arrived at by the powers

POSTPONE DISCUSSION.

Lausanne, Nov. 30.—After verbally protesting today to the hepresentaprotesting today to the mepresenta-tives of the entente countries against the decision to keep Russia out of the Near East conference, except with respect to the Dardanelles, M. Rakovsky asked the conference not to begin the discussion on the Straits orrow as arranged.

This Request Was Granted. M. Tchitcherin, Russia's chief dele-gate, will not arrive here before tomorrow night, and M. Rakovsky re quested postponement until Mo of the Straits discussion, mainly be-cause he wants the chief minister present. He informed Lord Curzon, M. Barrera and Marquis di Girroni that Russia was not content with the allies' decision to keep her from participation in all the deliberations of the conference.

The official reply to the Russian petition contended that the original invitation extended to Russia clearly explained that Russia was bidden to Lausanne only for the Straits nego-tiations, and that therefore there was no possible basis for a misunder standing.

Says Greece Ruined. On the different aspects of this question the Russian delegates would be given every opportunity to make known their views. The former Greek premier, M. Venizelos, who is continuing his official conference activities without his position being af-fected by the Grecian executions, attended the meeting of the sub-com-mission on the Ottoman debts this **ernoon. The entire question of the Grecian executions, the withdrawal of the British minister from Athens and the resultant effect of this on the he resultant effect of this on th Greek and English relations at the conference was gone over tonight in the course of a long conversation between M. Venizelos and Lord Curzon.
The former took the initiative and motored to Lord Curzon's hotel at Ouchy.

M. Venizelos declined to make any comment, but the indications are that he is feeling greatly embar-rassed in his relations toward the delegations, including even the English, are trying to prevent the Grecian tragedy from endangering the conference, which is regarded as to important to the general peace of Europe to be affected by a Gracian Europe to be affected by a Grecian burple to be affected by a Grecian internal question.

F. O. Lindley, the British minister to Greece, who has withdrawn from Athens, is due here tomorrow to confer with Lord Curzon.

Henry Ford and the Church.

I once preached a sermon for Henry Ford's special benefit. I told him I was going to do so, and asked him to be present and hear it. He came. He listened very attentively. He went away. It was a good sermon, if I do say it myself, but so far as I was ever able to see it never "lazed him. It came about in this way:

Mr. and Mrs. Ford were members of my parish. I was building a new church, a gothle structure, that was costing considerable money. The building had been under way for some time and Mr. Ford had made no contribution toward the cost of its construction. This somewhat its construction. This somewhat its clear its construction. This somewhat its land of weath and of wealth and very generous toward his church. Is dear the sermon ran, in part, "who has to the struction of Mr. Ford. I steep lead to him. The buildings we erect are symbols of our pride in and affection for the things inside. What a man thinks of his home is revealed in the kind of house he builds around it. What a man thinks of his business is shown in the buildings he erected to house it. One of the gentlemen who interviewed Mr. Ford on this occasion was himself a man of wealth and very generous toward his church.

The sermons are not with the centers of worship should be as could speak as recipients of her private and individual charity.

The pity of it is that so many proved to be undeserving. Great was the surprise and con-fusion of people to find that their letters had touched the sympathy which they had hoped to arouse, but that that sympathy represed to not that that sympathy proposed to act intelligently. No case, if it seemed to merit investigation, was turned down by Mrs. Ford.

There is a woman on a farm in Arkansas, for example, who must be still wondering at the reach of the Ford Motar Company, because an investigator appeared at her door one day in answer to her pitiful appeal to Mrs. Ford. And she must still experience some embarrassment when she recalls how widely her real condition. as the investigator found it own by Mrs. Ford

The personal attention which Mrs. Ford gives to these cases is but an index of the gentleness, the kindness and sympathy that are in her, as well where people could see them, and as of the thorough and intelligent relegate the power plant to the rear? manner in which she does her work. "And that is why I am going to put all the money I can get into this church. It is the spiritual powerhouse back of all the fine things men are doing in the way of service. It stands for that which should be symbolized in costly and beautiful ways. And in that way men, who understand it and love it, will be glad to see it housed."

Some time later, on an Easter morning, a check was placed on the singles and the continued in the Episcopal Church, he is quite sattable treested in creeds, much less subtractions. What he belongs to a church. Then he is all right.

The man who asks the second question is not, so I have discovered, particularly interested in Mr. Ford's religious one. He is disposed toward doing his own thinking in matters of religion as in other matters. Theology interested him, but it is not the kind that is found in the seminaries.

He is not an orthodox believer according to the standards of any church that I happen to know.

The man who asks the third question. In the world not solve to the sermon—the sermon was worth more. But when it came to a building for the social activities of the parish, it was the third. I never credited it to the sermon—the sermon was worth more. But when it came to a building for the social activities of the parish, it was different. That's a good thing, it was different. That's a good thing, it was different without a protest."

A short time afterward Mr. Ford referred to the visit which he had from the two members of my vestry, or 1 don't believe in building big and costly churches for the rich," he said, in explaining his refusal to contribute owner the vertical to contribute owner the vertical to contribute which was larger than I felt wise to accept. He will find the answer to his question scattered here answer to his question scattered here and there throughout these pages, so that I need not restate it here.

To sum it all up, Henry Ford is not a churchman in the sense that he attends any church with regularity, enters into its worship, sacra-mental or other, is interested in the extension of its work, and contriblutes toward its support in a manner commensurate with his means. His father was a vestryman in the little Episcopal Church in Dearborn. was in this church that Mr. Ford was baptized and confirmed.

Like many another man baptized and confirmed in early life, he has not maintained a close contact with organized religion in later years. I cannot conceive of him working con-tentedly and enthusiastically in any organization, religious or secular, in which he is not the dominating spirit and majority stockholder. If he were to accept the authority and respon-sibility for the reorganization of the church along lines of efficiency and finance I have no idea what he would do. But I am sure that whatever he did would go down in ecclesiastical history. Much that is now at the bottom would come to the top, so far as the organization is concerned, and much now at the top would sink into oblivion. We would have the unique religious views?"
