NEW YORK, 28th Aug., 1851.

J. D. HASZARD, Esq.,

DEAR SIR;

The current of men's lives very often runs more exclusively in mere business channels, than what, perhaps, is for their highest good. It is no more wise than agreeable, to be always bowed down with labour and care. Hours of recreation, tend to banish sorrows and disappointments, and inspire us with coarage and perseverance to meet the difficulties which surround us amid the journey of life. Indeed, these occasional seasons of change from the ploddery of every day pursuits, not only help to render more bearable the pathway of our existence, but they are absolutely necessary to the enjoyment of a healthy state of our physical organization.

eary to the enjoyment of a healthy state of our physical organization.

Being allowed a short relaxation from the pursuit of my daily avocation, I joyfully began to prosper myself to prosecute a journey for a visit to the falls of Niagara. I have, for a long time, cherished a curiosity to see them. Accordings I started in company with the en gentlemen from New York, who were going there, on the 12th instant, at 6 o'clock, a.m. Crossing the Ferry to Jersey city, we arrived there, just as the Iron Horse was moving out of his stable screaming and paning to start on his journey. In a few minutes he was off, dragging the ponderous train with its hundreds of passengers, at the rate of thirty miles an hour, with perfect ease. This is the steam engine in its perfect state—it is a near approach to the spiritual and physical combination. How mighty is its power, of "fire and water born."

"Let the engineer put the steam on, And he shakes the hill like a very demon."

And he shakes the hill like a very demon."

We rapidly passed through some pretty villages in the State of New Jersey. Those most worthy of notice, however, are Patterson, an extensive manufacturing village situated in a beautiful valley, seventeen miles from New Yerk; Goshen, a shire town of Orange County, which is similarly situated, seventy miles from New York.
It is celebrated for the large quantities of milk and butter with which it furnishes the New York markets; and Middleton, a large and handsomely built village, containing five churches, an Academy, &c.

handsomely built village, containing five churches, an Academy, &c.

Nothing could exceed the combination of beauty and grandeur which the lofty meantains in the vicinity of the desolate Delaware, and the beautiful Susquehanna Rivers presented to our view, as we swept like lightning speed along their serpentine windings andgraceful curves. Throughout our route to Elmira lofty mountains, gently undulated hills, cultivated fields and handsome villages and hamlets, alternately met our eye, bursting upon our sight like the startling scenes of a moving panorama. Among these, however, we have seen some three or four villages whose locations must decidedly be very unpleasant, in low damp swamps (for they could not be called valleys) where the inhabitants breathe miasma, as amid the gloomy regions where it is of the Cataract, were united in wedlock. What an altar before which to make nuptial yows?

"Tangled juniper, beds of weeds

We nest visited Drummondville, a flourishing place, standing on the ground where was fought the famous battle of Land's Lane. Near it there is a tower erected, overlooking the battle ground and the surcounding country as far as Queenston heights. An aged soldier is always to be found at the tower who is ready to give visitors a complete history of the battle.

It is said, that after the battle, the American dead were thrown in a heap and burnt; and the Indians carried some of the wounded, who were yet alive, to share the same fate, but were stayed in their inhuman conduct by the exertions of the British soldiers—of one it is related, that seeing an Indian dragging a wounded American to the flames, who was begging for his life, he despatched the Indian, throw his body into the heap and saved the American. This was the greatest battle which took place on the frontier. From the battle ground we visited the Burning Spring, which is half a mile from the Falls, within a short distance of the Rapids in the Niagara River. This Spring, I look upon as one of the greatest curiosities to be seen here. The water which is warm, is surcharged with sulphuretted hydrogen gas, which on introducing a light, immediately takes fire and burns with a clear steady flame.

We next visited the suspension Bridge, which, as you are aware, spans the narrow gorge of the Niagara River, between the Cataract and the Whirlpool, is the most wonderful piece of workmanship in the world. It is 300 feet long, eight wide and 230 above the water. Its cost was $190,000. It looks from the bank of the river like thread bung high in the heavens.

Leaving the Bridge, we passed through the Cataract Village on the American side, which comprises a fine plot of ground on the height above the Ferry. Crossing the Bridge which connects Bath and Goat Islands, we crossed the Terrapia Bridge and ascended the tower, from the top of which, we had a splendid view of the Horse Sho

indeed. Here

"The weeping rocks distil with constant dews,
The gushing waters pensive thoughts infuse."

We next crossed the bridge to Prospect Island. Here we had a fine view of the American Falls. Crossing the ferry about half a mile below the Falls, we repaired to the Clifton House, situated on the first rise of the hill on the Canada side, filled with wonder and delight at our first visit to the great Falls of Niagara. The Clifton House is a beautiful and well-regulated House. Its gentlemanly Proprietor, conducts it entirely on the English system. It had about 400 guests, among whom was Jenny Lind, the celebrated Cantatrice.

Clifton House is a beautiful and welf-regulated House. Its gentlemanly Proprietor, conducts it entirely on the English system. It had about 400 guests, among whom was Jenny Lind, the celebrated Cantatrice.

But Time's wings which are silvery and noiseless, soon stole away the fleeting hours of day; and the sun was already descending below the hills in the West, as we re-crossed the ferry, to take the Cars for Buffalo. Buffalo, where we remained all night, is situated on the side of Lake Eric, and is 22 miles from the Falls, and three hundred and twenty-eight from Albany, the Capital of the "Empire State." Though Buffalo is but a few years growth, it is already a very important City, and promises to be the finest and largest in this part of the New York State. Its Streets are long, wide and regular and well paved; and many of its houses tall and elegant. It is situated in a favourable position for Trade with the interior of New York by the Eric Canal, and with the Western States; by the Lakes, Eric, Huron, and Ontario.

Leaving Buffalo, after a pleasant journey, via Schenectady, we arrived at Saratoga at 7 o'clock, p.m. This place may be called the "Jerusalem whether the tribes go up to the feast," appointed by fashion and folly. It is the Lethe, into whose waves must sink all the thousand cares and vexations attendant on city life, the great cauldron of fashion and politics, dwing the reign of the Dog Star.

Notwitstanding the ridiculous displays of guady dress, coatly equipages, a basurd rivalries, and dissipating amusements which characterize society at Saratoga, it is, nevertheless, a delightful and healthy retreat for one who seeks real comfort and relaxation from active life.

A concourse of people—young and old, male and female—invalids and robust and hearty manhood, may be seen as early as 5 o'clock wending their way towards its many springs to drink of their wayters. Their medicinal virtue is allowed by competent judges, to be very great. "Congress Spring," which is the best, is composed of Carbonate of Country." While the preminent features of the Counties, Citie and Villages of the Old World remain unchanged, in his there is a caseless and strong tide of progress, which sweeps away old landmarks, and is marked by new monuments. His mind is always in agitation in relation to some new railroad or canal or highway which will bring lands into request or afford the approach to new markets. Besides civil institutions are to be established. Churches, Court-houses, School-houses, spring up as if by magic by his political and social activity.

In his cities, changes are still greater. Buildings and storehouses once thought to be vast, are continually toppled down and removed to give place to vaster and more elegant establishments. Streets are run out for miles into the contiguous country, and a ceaseless rush of population and roar of steambouts and vehicles, are the signa and sounds of his "go a-head" activity. In short, every man under Brother Jonathan's aggregate address of "We the people" is more or less anxious to better his fortane by every exertion of industry and ingenuity, in shaping the plastic elements by which he is surrounded. Mone feels that he is necessarily confined to any limited circle. Every tendency is towards expansion.

Perhaps I have extended my letter longer than I should have done, but excuses would only, by lengthening it, add to my offeice. Trusting that you will treat the imperfections which may have crept into it leniently,

I remain,

Yours, very truly,

A. M'LEOD.

THE RAILROAD CELEBRATION AT BOSTON.

THE RAILROAD CELEBRATION AT BOSTON.

RECEPTION OF LORD ELGIN.—The Boston Journals of Eriday are filled with descriptions of the great Railway jabilee in that City. The Courár eaps, that the expectation of the arrival of Lord Elgin, Governor General of Canada, drew a great concourse of spectators to the Western Railroad, drew a great concourse of spectators to the Western Railroad, drew a great concourse of spectators to the Western Railroad, drew a great concourse of spectators to the Western Railroad, drew a great concourse of also on the spot to receive the distinguished guest. At a quarter past five the train arrived, bearing his Lordship and suite. The multitude welcomed him by a hearty cheering, as he issued from the cars, and stood upon the platform in the wide open air to the south depot. Mayor Bigelow then tendered to him a public welcome, and the hospitality of the city in the following address:—

Your Excellency.—In the name of my fellow-citizens, I welcome you to the metropolis of New England. We recognise you, not only as the ruler of extensive and important provinces, but as the principal representative on this continent, of the venerated land of our ancestors.—It is told of Samoset, the Indian chief, that his first as lutation to the pilgrims at Plymouth was "twelcome, welcome, Englishmen." Such was the greeting of the old warrior to, those who were to invade the hunting-grounds and extinguish the councilities of his race. With a better augury for the future, it becomes me on this occasion to repeat that saintation, and say "welcome Englishmen and their fellow-subjects" who come to us under circumstances so auspicious for our own and their prosperity.

There is a special interest connected with your Excellency's visit at this time, gracing as it does with your presence the establishment of a social and commercial alliance between this city and the Canadas. Lines of intercommunication have been opened, by which the products of your provinces can find speedy and convenient transit to the sea. The ra

Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,—I am quite overcome by this kind and cordial reception; but gentlemen, I have been travelling all day, and my throat is so full of dust, that you will excuse me, if I do not attempt to follow the mayor in his most elequent address.

But there is one thing he has said, which I cannot allow to pass unnoticed. He has suggested that we should censider this celebration, the "conjugal union of the Canadas with the Ocean." Whatever may be my object in coming to Boston, I assure yea, sir, that I do not come to "forbid the bans." (Hear, hear, and cheers.)

I appreciate most highly the sentiments of personal regard which you have as kindly expressed towards me; and still more highly do I appreciate the assurance you have given me of your respect and consideration for my sovereign and my country, and for that great rising Canadian people, upon whose prosperity and welfare my

I appreciate the assurance you have given me of your respect and consideration for my sovereign and my country, and for that great rising Canadian people, upon whose prosperity and welfare my hopes, and my feelings, and my wishes are all centred. Gentlemen, I come here upon the hospitable invitation of the city of Boston, but prompted also—I must confess it—by the desire to show by this act of mine, rather than by mere words,—because I know that this mode of expression is more emphatic and more intelligible withal,—to show by this act my conviction, that it becomes us, Americans and Britons—I put the Americans first "Heav, hear")—Americans and Britons—tescended as we are from the same stock, inheritors of the same traditions, and unless I greatly misconceive the signs of the times, with duties and responsibilities, as respects one another, not widely dissimilar, to be ready at all times, and in all places, and more especially at this time, and upon this soil of North America, to cultivate toward each other feelings of brotherly love and mutual friendship. These are my feelings, and I therefore gladly accept your profitered kindness. (Applause,)

The ceremony of opening the Grand Junction Railroad took place between 10 and 12 e-cleck on Thursday. The Engines were hand-somely decorated, and arches spanned the Railway, also decorated with evergreenes and flowers, and presenting satisfied inscriptions. One was—"Boston and the Canadas, united by bonds of fron." And on the reverse—" Union is strength."

An immense concourse of persons assembled to witness the coremony, which went off in the most satisfactory manner.

Professor Liebig, the celebrated German, known for his great proficioncy in chemistry, has written a series of 'Chemical Lettera,' which have been translated and published in England, in which he makes a partial defence of the old Alchemists who spent their lives and fortunes in the vain attempt to discover the 'Philosopher's Stone'. The Professor thinks that, in this age, man are too much disposed to regard the views of the disciples of the Arabian school of Alchemists on the subject of transmutation of metals, as a mere hallucination of the human mind. But, he says, "many of the fundamental or leading ideas of the present time appear to him who knows not what science has already achieved, as extravegant as the notions of the alchemist. Not indeed, the transmutation of metals, which seemed so probable to the ancients but far stranger things are held by us to be attainable. We have become so accustomed to wonders, that nothing any longer excites our wonder. The Philosopher's stone, for which the ancients sought with a dim and ill-defined impulse, was in its perfection, nothing else than the spience of chemistry. Is not that the philosopher's stone which promises to increase the fertility of our fields, and to insure the prosperity of additional millions of mankind? Does not chemistry premise that, instead of servagarias, we shall be anabled to raise alght or more on the cases soil? Is that science not the philosopher's stone which changes the ingredients of the cryst of the earth into useful products, to be further transformed, by commerce, into gold? Is that knowledge not the philosopher's atone which promises to disclose to as the laws of life, and which must finally yield to us the means of caring diseases and of prolonging life?

The Professor after cumerating many of the great discoveries of the age, speaks of man in the following manner, which to say the least is piquant enough. 'Science, 'rays the Professor,' has demonstrated, that man, the being who performs all these wouters, is formed of condensed air, which the word of condensed as well; as uncondensed in, that he prepares food by means of condensed after the velocity of the wind. But the strangest part of the matter is, that thousands of these tabercacles for ned of condensed air, which they require for food and clothing, or on account of their honor and power, destroy each other in pitched battles, by means of endease! at a and further, that many helieve the poculiar powers of the bodiless, conscious thinking and sensitive beings housed in this tabernacle, to be the result simply of this internal structure, and the arrangements of its particles or atoms; while chemistry supplies the clearest proof, that as far as concerns this, the ultimate and most minute composition and structure, which is beyond the case of our senses, man is, to ell appearance, indentical with the ox, or with the animal lowest in the scale of creation.

Mental Excitencent is the scale of creation.

M

MENTAL EXCITEMENT.—Bad news weakens the action of the heart, oppresses the lungs, destroys the appetite, stops digestion, and partially suspends all the function of the system. An emotion of shame flashes the face; fear blanches it? joy illuminates it; and and instant thrill electrifies a million of nerves. Surprise spurs the pulse into a gallop. Delirium infesses great energy. Volition commands, and hundreds of muscles spring to execute. Powerful emotion often kills the body at a stroke; Chile, Diagoras and Sophocles, died of joy at the Grecian games. The news of a defeat killed Phillip V. The doorkeeper of Congress expired upon hearing of the surrender of Corawallis. Eminent public speakers have often died in the midst of an impassioned burst of elequence, or when the deep emotion that produced it suddenly subsided. Largrave, the young Parisian, died when he heard that the musical prize for which he had competed was adjudged to another.

PUBLIC OPINION.—Let children be taught to set a true and just value upon public opinion. Show them how the world has always treated its greatest men—how it has stoned its prophets, cracified its Saviour, marryred its apostles.—Show how fickle—how indiscriminating it is to this day—how ignorance speaks with the name confidence, or even with more than knowledge—how the heights and depths of the greatest minds are measured at once by the conceit of the smallest. Show how hard it is for people to praise, how easy to blame. Call the attention of the young to be kind of criticisms current of both mea and things in this muchdreaded society, and let them say, if they really seek excellence whether they ought to value such criticism? When they have mastered any one subject, let them listen to the flippant, trivial, conceited, shallow judgments of the world of their acquaintance upon it, and let them learn from that to appreciate the worlt of public opinion, and judge whether the desire of fame, based upon such public opinion, is worth striving for, or ought much to influence their motives to action.

To appreciate a great man requires, if not one as great, still a great man, and the judgments of the world, therefore, must be either borrowed or erroneous—more frequently the latter, as self-conceit assally supplies any deficiency of talent.

Whatever-nature has ja worth denied.

Upon whom does fame bestow her rewards! Barely upon those who most deserve them.—Does conscience approve the judgment even of the most intimate friends with respect to our characters? how, then, can we expect the wor'd or prosperity to the justice? and praise or blame that is not discriminating, and just, who would value?

ENGLAND. TRACES'OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

TRACES OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.

The discovery of traces of the unfortunate expedition under Sir John Franklin, by the American vessels Advance and Rescue, is attracting much interest in England. A letter containing the following memoranda has been transmitted to the Admirality:—

Memoranda. 1. On the 26th of August 1859, traces were found to Northward of Port Innis, Wellington Channel, confirming those previously found at Cape Riley, Capt. Ommanney.—These consisted of fragments of clothing, preserved meat tins, and scraps of papers, one of these bearing the name of McDonald, medical cificer in the expedition.

2. On the 27th Cant. Penny's notice rejected graves. These

2. On the 27th, Capt. Ponny's parties reported graves. These were at once visited by Capt. De Haven, Mr. Ponny and Dr. Kuns.—They beer exspectively the names of W. Braine, R. M., and John Hartnell, of the Erebus, and John Terrington, of the Terrington, of the Capt, the date of the latest death being the 3d of April, 1846. Adthe date of the latest death being the 3d of April, 1846. Added to these and but unmistakable evidences were the remains of the observatory, carpenter's shop, and armorers' forge. Upon the full-side and shach were fragments of wood, metal and clothing, and stacks of empty meat him.—Everything indicated permanency and organization. There can be no doubt that the cove between Cape Riley and Beechy Island, fiscing Lancaster Sound, was the first winter station of the missing vessels.

The London News of the 10th instant gives great importance to these notes, and save:

The London News of the 10th instant gives great importance to these notes, and says:

"The intelligence of traces of Sir John Franklin and his companions has been scanned with eagerness by the veteran Arctic explorers now repeasing on their laurels at Woolwich, and many of them are sanguine in the expectation, that they may yet have the pleasure of welcoming at least the surviving portion of the noble crews who left Woolwich in May, 1845, with the Erebus and Terror. It may be interesting to know that the Royal Marine whose grave was found, was Surgeaut William Braine, of the Woolwich Division, who volunteered to proceed to the Arctic regions with the Exploring party, although he had only recently returned from the service in China."

Louis Napoleon grows more anxious as 1852 approaches, and the alleged conspiracy was supposed to impart strength to his cause; but the Police, as if malicious, throw ridicale on the plot, by making a razzia among some hundred and fifty German tallors—forty of whom, for sheer shame, but to be instantly discharged.

The Duke of Newcastle has appointed two practical farmers, both Protectionists, to revalue all his farms to suit the circumstances of the times. This has given great satisfaction, as it is considered a very much superior method of relieving tennant farmers than the remission of rents. It is a pity, that the landlords were not all of them in a position to profit by His Grace's example in this particular; but the majority are poor, and are consequently compelled to gamble with the occupiers of farms.

Difficulties with the Brazilian government are anticipated, as recent accounts from South America in connection with the crassade against the slave trade abundantly prove. Two more Brazilian vessels have been taken possession of by British craisers, ander circumstances not by any means calculated to pour oil on the troubled waters.

A line of steam packets is about to be established by the British Government between England and the Coast of Africa. Great results, morally and commercially, are expected to flow from this communication with that benighted region.

In France, another son of Victor Hugo has been imprisoned and sentenced to pay a fine of 2000 frances for publishing an article in the Evenoment. This article accesses Louis Napoleon and his court of being identified with the Emperors of Russia and Austria and the Kings of Prassia and Naples. These vindictive proceedings are said to be producing a marked effect on public opinion, and the people are beginning to find out, that the Presidency of Louis Napoleon is a greater despotism than has been exercised since the Restoration.

Prussis has completed a treaty with Hanover which, although the rates of import duties are raised in the latter, the free traders in England consider beneficial. Some consider this Treaty as a death blow to the Austrian. Free trade, "while others think it will eventually terminate in the breaking up of the whole Zollverien, Bavarria, Saxony, and Wirtemburg, will probably secede from the League, and thus split Germany into two groups, with the principle of regulated protection not amounting to prohibition adjusted to suit the material interests of both. It is said that the Hanse Towas will follow the example of Hanover, and become free harbours of the collective union. These and other movements of a like nature, headed by Prussix, will of course provoke fresh jealousies on the part of Austria.

British relations with Persia, in conjunction with Russia and our possessions in the East, wear a rather threatening aspect.

Additional troops are to be forwarded to reinforce Sir Harry Smith at the Cape, and these serving at Mauritius have also been ordered thither.

Additional troops are to be forwarded to reinforce Sir Harry Smith at the Cape, and these serving at Mauritius have also been ordered thinker.

We have had this week telegraphic despatches from Trieste, with Indian news to the effect that none of the Nizam's provinces had been eccupied, but that he was about to pay 40 laca as an instalment, the remainder of his debt in one year, and give security for the regular payment of his contingent. A conspiracy to effect the secape of Moolraj, had been discovered at Calcutta. The scheme was to fire the arsensi, and procure the liberation of the prisoners in the confusion. Gholab Singh had been worsted in some conflict near Cashmere, and a great many men and a large quantity of baggage had been lost. The rebellion in China was spreading; all the efforts of the imperial troops to suppress it having proved unavailing. It is said the rebels have taken and sacked the capital of Kwangai, near Canton. Piracies in the Chinese waters seem to be on the increase. The British Consuls in China will in future cease to interfere or assist the Chinese in the collection of duties.

The relations between the Ports and the Pacha of Egypt are again becoming of a hostile character. It is alleged, we know not with what truth, that the Saltan objects to the construction of a railway between Alexandria and Cairo, but some other differences are more likely to be the cause of the existing contentions. The Pacha has armed the forts on the const to resist any attack; but Lord Palmerston is not likely to permit any recourse to hostilities on either side. The news of Kossuth's liberation is hourly expected.

VALUABLE EXPORTS.—The total quantity of Dried Codifish exported from the port of St. John's N. F., from the 1st Jan. 1851 to the 16th September of the same year amounted to 309,994 quintals—the value of which was probably over £200,000. This is of course entirely independent of the immense quantities of seal oil, seal skins, &c., which form such large items in the Export trade of St. John's

The Sydney papers confirm the news received here by way of England, as to the existence of quantities of the precious metal in Australia.

The attention of the Government has been directed to it, and

The following condensed statement of a visit to the mines is furnished to the Sydney Empire:

"In the creek called Ophir, we found located down the creek, from 500 to 700 people, divided into parties from three to eight each, beay in dry digging, also washing eath from the banks of the creek, in all instances procuring, by means of cradling and washing more or less gold dust, many picking up lumps of gold about one foot below the surface.

Some had been very successful, others obtained only small quantities; mer with Mr. Piper, who had just opened a bed of soft slate; stood watching him gather, from crevices, several small pieces of about half an ounce each; removed the dirt from the large piece, and took it as a specimen, which I have now in possession.

BAZAAIR

IN AID OF Furnishing the New Temperance Hall.

(Under the Petronage of Lady Bannerman.)

THE New Temperance Hall in this Town being nearly completed, it has become necessary to provide the requisite Fends for beitably farmishing the same. A Bazzar will therefore be held, for his purpose, in the said Building, on Wednesday and Thursday,

The 16th and 17th days of December next. The 16th and 11th days of December next.

The projectors of this Bazaar deem it essential to the prosperity of the cause in which they are engaged, to render the Hall as comfortable and attractive as possible—to make it at once a rallying point for the Sons and their friends, and a credit to the community. To accomplish this object, however, from the Fands of the several Town Divisions, was found to be totally impracticable, without causing serious embarrassment thereto. An appeal to the liberality of the public has, therefore, been determined upon; and it is hoped that those friends who feel disposed to further this object, but who have mot yet commenced their labors, will do so without delay. Ladies can promote this object, not only by working for it themselves, but also by directing the attention of their friends towards it, and soliciting their aid.

PATENT ARTHFICIAL SLATE, And Unchangeable Metallic Paints; PROOF AGAINST FIRE & WATER!

Manufactured by the Patentee, in Cochester, Nova ScotiaTHE ARTIFICIAL SLATE is the product of a mixture of mineral substances known to be the best non-conductors of heat as well as the most indestructible; the Chemical affinity of which converts the surface of materials covered, into a Coating of Actual State—Proof against FIRE and WATER. Thus the laws of nature are made to accomplish results as surprising as they are useful, by readering Wooden fabrics as durable as brick or Stone, and less pervious to moisture, and consequently preventing decay and destruction from corroding influences hitherto supposed unatainable.

The METALLIC PAINTS are mixed and put on like

BY H. B JACKSON.

As die the embers on the hearth,
And o'er the floor the shadows fell,
And creeps the chirping cricket forth,
And ticks the death-watch in the wall,
I see a form in youder chair,
That grows beneath the waning light;
There are the wan, this features there,
The pallid brow and locks of white.

My FATHER! when they laid thee down
And heaped the clay upon thy breast,
And left thee elecping all alone,
Upon thy marrow cosch of rest;
I know not why I could not weep,
The scothing drops refused to roll,
And ol! that gird is wild and deep
Which settles tearless on the soul.

But when I saw thy vacant chair,
Thine idle hat upon the wall,
Thy book—the pencilled passage where Thine eye had rested last of all—
The Tree beneath whose friendly shade
Thy trembling feet had swandered forth,
The every prints those feet had made
When last they feebly tred the earth.

And thought, while countless ages fled, Thy vacant seat would vacant stand— Unworn thy hat—thy books unread— Efficed thy footsteps from the sand; And widowed in this cheerless world The heart that gave its love to thee;
Torn like the vine whose tendrile carled
More closely round the falling tree.

Oh! Father! then for her and thee, Gushed madly forth the scalding tears; And oft, and long, and bitterly Those tears have gushed in later years; For as the world grows cold around, And things take off their real hue, 'Tis add to learn that love is found Alone above the stars with you.

THE POOR MAN TO HIS SON. BY ELIZA COOK.

Work, work, my boy, be not afraid, Look labour boldly in the face; Take up the hammer or the spade, And blush not for your humble place.

Hold up your brow in honest pride, Though rough and swarth your hands may be; Such hands are sap-veins that provide The life-blood of the nation's tree.

There is honour in the toiling part, That finds us in the furrowed fields; It stamps a crest upon the heart Worth more than all your quartered shields.

Darieties.

(From the London People's Journal.) THE FIRST LESSON,

No teaching like a mother's !-no lessons sink into the virgin No teaching like a mother's!—no lessons sink into the virgin soil of childhood so deeply as those learnt at the loving mother's knee; the seed sown thus, and then, may be hidden for years, but it still lives and influences the life and actions of the learner ever thereafter. Ill fares it with the man who has no remembrance of kneeling as a child beside his mother's knee, and learning his first lessons from her lips—he knows nothing of one of life's holiestnemories; and great is the responsibility of that mother who confides her child's first teachings to another—who allows a stranger to write on the tablets of her child's mind that which will bias its whole life's career, and be as indestructible as the mind itself. The lives of the great men of history, most of them—and when we say great men, we understand good men—prove this; they have looked back to the time when their teacher was their mother, and thence have traced a silent influence that was ever about them—a "still small voice" heard amid the loud turmoil of busy life; and though

Chances mock'd and changes fill'd the cup of alternation, that chiefly led them onward, and set them in high places in sight of their fellows. And all great men have leved the memory of those mothers; other loves may have possessed them—the love of honor, of fame, of woman—but the love of her who framed their childish accents, and formed their minds, has transcended all—set as a star apart, and worshipped when they looked to heaven. Other loves may fall "into the sere, the yellow leaf?"—may have been mingled with suffering, and have left regret and disappointment behind; but this beginning with the first breath of being, ende only with its last. Years will steal beauty from the mother's brow, light from her eye, and leave whitened hair and feeble footsteps, but, what of that!—when the threescore years and ten attended, it may be, with sorrow and trouble manifold, are ended, and poorly chequered with scanty joys, and the boy who knelt at her knee has grown into a man experienced in the world's many ways, her love for him is fresh as ever; and his for her will have but grown Chances mock'd and changes fill'd the cup of alternation, with scanty joys, and the boy who knelt at her knee has grown into a man experienced in the world's many ways, her love for him is fresh as ever; and his for her will have but grown warmer, deeper: then looking on that countenance, in which still lingers the early beauty that had clothed it as with a glo-ylous garment, he may feel as did one whose flial love found such words as these to picture his mother in her matron solitude—"Hail to thee, my parent! as thou sittent there, in thy widow's weeds, in the dusky parlour in the house overgrown with the lustrous ivy of the sister isle, the solitary house at the end of the retired court, shaded by lofty poplars. Hail to thee! dame of the oval face, olive complexion, and Grecian forchead; by thy table scated; with the mighty volume of the good Bishop Hopkins apread out before thee; there is peace on thy countenance, the true peace; peace around thee, too, in thy solitary dwelling. No more earthly caree and affections now, my mother! Yes, one. Why dost thou raise thy dark and still brilliant eye from the volume with a somewhat startled glance? What noise is that in the distant street! Merely the noise of a hoof; a sound common enough; it draws nearer—nearer, and now it stops before thy gate. Singular! And now there is a pause—a long pause. Ha! thou hearest something—a footstep, a swift but heavy footstep! then risest, thou tremblest: there is a hand on the pin of the outer door, there is some one in the vestibule; and now the door of thy apartment opens; there is a reflection on the mirror behind thee—a travelling cap, a grey head, and a sun-burnt face—! My dearest some in the distant street the tramp of her son wanderer's horse.

Social Evile.—Parents are anxious about their sons, and as to showays and means to providing for them. Quite right that they should be so; but all this line there are, myhap, me fewer than three daughters, whose fate does not seem to excite so much emotion in their father's breast. He has enough to worry him in attending to the wants of his sons, and a thought rarely or never appears to cross his mind that his poor girls are likely, at his death, to be utterly unprovided for. He really has not the means to pay heavy insurances on his life, to secure on them provisions; his sons more than exhaust his means. That they will marry well is his only hope for them, and that they shall be married is by no means to be calculated on with certainty. On his death, the heir enters into possession, marries, and requires the bosse for himself. The staters turn out, live on in genteel beggary, visiting relatives occasionally who know their stratesed position, and ask them to their houses out of a feeling of charity. They get old, their brothers die, or are poor, or are far removed; want presses on them, they sew for bare life, and out by relatives and Friends for aswing for money, strangle for years with griping penury, and—die!

This is to certify that I was, for this last 12 months, troubled with Fits; and, from their very severe attacks, thought each one would terminate my existence; and, in addition to the Fits, I was reduced to a were skeleton, and was extremely weak and nervous. I heard a great deal about S. P. Townsendra's Saraspariils, for which you are Agent. I was advised to try it. And strange and wonderful to relate, before using the contents of one bottle, was greatly benefited. Indeed, so rapid and effectual was the cure, that it appeared to me to be almost miraculous. And I think that, in justice to the public and suffering humanity, I am bound to make the above statement, and any, that a greater blessing, in my opinion, than S. P. CURE OF A DISORDERED LIVER AND STOMACH, WHEN IN A MOST HOPELESS STATE.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Matthew Harvey, of Chapel Hall dirdrie, Scotland, datet the 18th January, 1850.

To Professor Hots, Loway:

S18,—Your valuable Pills have been the means, with God's blessing of restoring me to, a state of perfect health, and at a time when I shought I was on the brink of the grave. I had consulted several they considered my case as shapeless. I ought to say that I had been suffering from a Liver and Stomach complaint of long standing, which darring the last two years got so much worse, that every one considered my condition as hopeless. I as a last resource got a Box of your Pills, which soon gave relief, and by persevering in their use for some weeks, together with rubbing night and moraing your Ointment over my chest and stomach and right side, I have by their means along of completely cared, and to the astonishment of myself and every body who knows me.

(Signed)

KATTHEW HARVEY.

Bliss' Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy,

Bliss' Compound Cod Liver Oil Candy,

A new and effectual remedy for Coughs, Common Colds, Cold in the Head, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Asthma, Tickling in the Throat, Catarrh, Diseases of the Lungs and Bronchal Affections.
This favorite remedy is composed of Pure Cod Liver Oil, combined with other valuable ingredients, which completely disguise the repulsive taste of the Oil, without detracting from its medicinal virtues, presenting it in a form by which it can be administered to the most delicate invalid, without inconvenience. The medicinal influence of this Candy pursues the exact tract of the inflammatory action, causing cough. First, soothing the organs of the voice, its sedatative influence, passes along the nucous lining of the windpipe into the bronch, and allaying pulmonary irritation, giving case and comfort to the chest, restoring the voice to its accustomed clearness and powers; Congcoled Phlegas, Acrimony in the Philols, and Oddructions in the Clands, are gently and safely discharged by easy expectoration. It never disagrees with the stomach, a common cold yields to its benign influence in a few hours, and when resorted to, before the complaint is far advanced, all danger of Consumption is entirely prevented.

Sold Wholesale and Retail, at the Drug Store of M. W.
