A Child of Sorrow.

CHAPTER XXX.

As he spoke, the door of the women's room opened, and Lucy, followed by Mrs. Towser, came out. Lucy had evidently apprised the elder woman of her danger, for she was as white as a ghost, and was wringing her hands, after the manner of terrified women the wide world over; but Lucy herself, though very white, was perfectly calm and self-possessed. Her lips, her teeth also, were shut closely, and her eyes were glowing with excitement and something deeper.

"Go back to your room," whispered Heroncourt, sternly; but she shook her head and looked at him imploringly.

"Let me stand with you," she pleaded. "I can shoot, I can hold a gun, help load. Oh! let me stay!"

Heroncourt shrugged his shoulders with a gesture of reluctant assent.

"You may stay if you promise to keep away from the line of fire," he said. "Stand back there, don't move forward, and keep quiet."

She nodded, and her lips quivered with a smile as if in gratitude. The three men drew back beyond the line of sight of anyone coming up the stairs and waited. And waited in silence, for their hearts were beating too fiercely to permit of words; and, indeed, what was there to say? They meant to sell their lives dearly and like Englishmen they were quiet and self-contained.

Heroncourt glanced across at Lucy, but the girl's lips were still set tightly, her eyes were still glowing in the dim light which came from the lamp in his room, for he had left the lamp burning because he often sat up in his room before going to bed. They waited. No pen can describe the torture of that suspense; the moments dragged into minutes as if each moment were an hour, each minute a day; under that terrific strain, Heroncourt grew hot and cold and the sweat broke out on his forehead in big drops. He had been in action in one of our little wars and had led a forlorn hope; that had been a delicious moment though death hung at the end of it; but this waiting, like oxen in the shambles for the oncoming of the butchers below, was a hundred times worse than any charge with the sword's point, any waiting in the line of fire; for there was no rush and whirl of battle, no sound of shot and shell to break the oppressive silence which seemed to weigh like lead upon his heart.

But even at that moment he thought of Maids, if he were to fall—and what could save him; it could only be a matter of time, for numbers must tell—what an end to their love-story! They had indeed parted forever! Who would carry her the news, how would she bear it? He could almost pray that she had ceased to love him; for he could picture his own agony and life-long misery if she were to die and he were left to mourn her. He glanced at the other two men. Gosford was standing with his rifle ready to be raised to his shoulder, a wooden, phlegmatic figure, the ordinary Englishman who faces peril and death with British phlegm. David Jones, on the other hand, was leaning against a partition, his hand on his rifle, his eyes fixed on the stairs; but there was a curious thoughtfulness in his pale eyes as if he were going over the past and regretting something that might have been done but had not been, some chance which he had lost.

Heroncourt, in a mechanical way, noted the different attitudes and expressions on the faces of the men; his ears were strained for an approaching footstep. At last he could bear the silence no longer, and he said, in a hoarse whisper:

"They're a long time coming."

David Jones nodded, then he jerked his head towards the lamp.

"Perhaps they're waiting for that to be put out, sir," he said.

Heroncourt stole swiftly and on tiptoe into the room and extinguished the lamp and then returned to his place and held his breath. They waited—how long? No one could have told if his life had depended on it. In the intense silence they imagined all kinds of noises, the sound of footsteps, the sibilant whisper of hushed voices; the whole air seemed full of mysterious, threatening sounds and presently all three men started and raised their rifles: a hand was fingering the latch on the outer door of the room below. Heroncourt had, of course, bolted the door, and presently, when the men had discovered the fact, a voice called out:

"Open the door! Open the door! We want the swag! Give us that quietly, and we won't do you any harm."

Heroncourt stepped forward and looked down at Baxter at the bottom of the stairs, and Baxter looked up and saluted. No reply was vouchsafed to the man, and presently, as if they had expected a refusal, an axe crashed against the door: two blows were struck, and the door fell in. At the same moment Baxter fired, slipped in another cartridge, and fired again. The besieged heard, as Baxter ran up the stairs and joined them, an angry yell, and the cry of a man mortally wounded.

"Well aimed, Baxter," said Heroncourt.

He was calm enough now, now that the attack had begun and the first shot had been fired. The scent of battle was in his nostrils, the Berserker fever was heating his blood, his lips were as closely set as Lucy's, his eyes flashing.

The assailants fired a volley into the room which smashed the glass and shattered some of poor Lucy's ornaments; then, seeing that the room was empty, they rushed in, but kept clear of the opening to the stairs.

"Come down—come down!" yelled Jake, with an oath, and waving a lantern. "We won't hurt any of you—but we must have the boss, we must have Mr. Tudor; we want him. Hand him over, and the rest of you shall go scot-free."

Even in that moment Heroncourt saw Lucy shudder as if a cold wind had struck her. David Jones laughed a quiet laugh.

"If you want Mr. Tudor, you had better come and fetch him," he said in quite an ordinary voice.

"Oh, you're there, are you? You black traitor!" cried a voice. "We'll have you as well; we'll have all of you, the women included. Better give it up; you're in a trap."

David Jones laughed again.

"Come, boys!" cried Jake. "We'll make a rush for it!"

Heading about half a dozen men, he sprang forward. The four men on the landing fired, and three of the gang threw up their arms and fell backward. Black Jake himself would have fallen but his foot slipped on the stairs, and the slip saved him. Before he could rise there was a rush from behind; the besieger fired again, and the tide was stopped, and ebbed back. But though they were bad, they were brave, and their losses had made them desperate: for something like a minute the good men fired into a wall of men which was broken by the dead and wounded, and then made compact again by those who took their places.

In this determined onset it was inevitable that some should make some way up the stairs, and Black Jake, keeping as near the edge as possible, actually succeeded in stealing within a few yards of the top. With a savage oath he levelled a revolver at Heroncourt; but even as he took aim, something flashed out from the other side of the gangway, the weapon dropped from his hand, and his arm fell to his side. Heroncourt glanced across and saw a smoking revolver in Lucy's hand.

She had, at any rate, for the moment, saved his life.

Black Jake fell back, stunned by the shot, and was roughly thrown from hand to hand into the room below; but the onrush was continued; and Heroncourt knew that the end was only a question of time.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Though the onrush was continued after the disablement of Jake, the besieged were not daunted; Baxter, David Jones, and Gosford fired in a volley with such deadly effect that once more the mass on the stairs was broken and gave way; they fell back with their dead and wounded and rushed to get out of the terrible fire of the resolute men above.

Heroncourt sprang across to where Lucy stood, all unconscious that she was within range, and half-dragged, half-lifted her out of the line of fire.

"That was a good shot of yours, Lucy!" he said, breathlessly; "it saved my life!" All unconsciously in lifting her he pressed her closely to him; it was just the little hug a man might bestow upon a child who had done something brave and unselfish; but the blood rose to the girl's face and she closed her eyes for a second or two. "But you must not get into the line of fire again; however much you want to. We men will do all the fighting that is necessary. Keep up a good heart, Lucy; they have not got up to us yet, and they never may."

He tried to speak with hopeful assurance, and even smile, but his heart was heavy with grim foreboding, for he knew that sooner or later numbers must tell and that his ammunition would not hold out long enough.

"I am not afraid," she said, looking up at him with a brave little smile.

"I am not afraid for myself; it is of you, Mr. Tudor, I am thinking; they have a spite against you."

Her eyes were fixed on his and something that shot through his, an expression of the dread on her account which had haunted him ever since the attack had commenced, suddenly enlightened her and showed her his danger. She shuddered, and her eyes closed for a moment or two, then she opened them upon his with a deep trustfulness, a child-like reliance.

"You will not let them get me?" she said. "If they force their way up, if we are beaten—you will—"

She glanced at the revolver in his belt meaningly, and her lips parted and the breath came quickly.

"Promise!" she whispered. "I would rather that it was you who did it—I should not mind if it was you who shot me. Promise!"

A lump rose in Heroncourt's throat, his lips trembled, and he could not speak; but he smoothed her hair, as he would have smoothed a little child's, and nodded the answer to her request.

"Now be a good girl and keep out of the fire," he said; "some of us may be hit and then we shall need you to look after us. You see?"

"Yes," she breathed, and slowly drew away from him.

This little scene, so full of pathos and grim tragedy, had only taken a moment or two. Heroncourt sprang back to his place beside the other men. They could hear the attackers talking amongst themselves in fierce undertones which were almost drowned by the cries and moans of the wounded.

"They are plotting something, sir," said Baxter, in a quick whisper.

"Some of them are going round to the back; they are going to try to take us in the rear," said David Jones quietly.

Cab Horses Stamped

Shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday there was a regular stampede of the cab horses at the G. P. O. stand and for upwards of ten minutes the scene presented resembled somewhat a Wild West Show. The ball was started rolling when the fiery steed of Cabman Hussey took fright and for the few minutes that followed every other four-footed animal in that vicinity was doing its best to break away with the ring-leader which had dashed across the street, capsize the Victoria, break on both shafts and damaged one of the wheels. When the horse bolted the hind wheel of the vehicle struck the woodwork bordering the window of Mr. John Anderson's store but fortunately did not crash through the plate glass.

C.L.B. Back From Camp

Last night the C. L. B. returned from Camp at Topsail after a good tramp of fourteen miles. Through the kindness of Lieut. Col. R. G. Renard, officers and privates, the 1917 camp was a great success; the daily attendance averaged about eighty. To-morrow morning the Brigade accompanied by the Volunteers and Foresters will hold a church parade, attending Divine Service at St. Thomas's Church in commemoration of the 3rd anniversary of the Great War.

Spectacles to Protect Eyes

AT THE MOVIES.

In order to protect the eyes of those who frequently attend movie shows, a special form of spectacles has been devised, says the August Popular Mechanics Magazine in an illustrated article. It consists of a pair of opaque disks mounted in regular spectacle frames, each disk having a narrow slit or opening through which the wearer peers at the pictures, while most of the eye is covered by the disks. The principle is that of an old method of testing the eyes for astigmatism, called the "stereoscopic" method, which consisted in trying the patient's vision with spectacles having opaque plates and small central slits somewhat like those of the new protective movie device.

Many Thousand Shingles

SHIPPED BY PARCEL POST.

A western lumber company made exceptional use of the parcel-post system not long ago when it shipped a consignment of 30,000 shingles through the mails. The destination of the shingles was 52 miles from the shipping point, and the postal charges were less than $50. Although a shipment of this size is uncommon, the parcel post is frequently used in the western states to send supplies to remote places in the stock-raising country as well as to the mines, many of which are far from the beaten paths of travel, and so have no adequate railway facilities. The lot of shingles referred to went via a star rural-delivery route.—From the August Popular

MOTOR MADNESS.

With apples stay me, I implore you, and comfort me, I beg, with flagons; and hark with patience while I bore you, for I am sick of choo-choo wagons. For days a car will run so sweetly, you r admiration for it quickens; it climbs the hills serenely, neatly, and pulls through mud to beat the ticks. For days no grief will be your portion, you saunt along in fine condition; combustion's perfect, so is torsion, there are no flies on your ignition. Your tires stand up without a puncture, you think you've left all grief behind; then grief comes whooping, at this juncture, to stir up madness in your mind. The plank things happen all together, not scattered raindrops, but a flood; and oftenest in rotten weather, when you must sloop around in mud. A thousand versts in peace I've driven, a thousand versts of calm and smiles; and then my heart was wrenched and riven a hundred times in twenty miles. When once the blamed old tires start bursting, when once the carburetor balks, when once the gear shift acts disgusting, the wise man leaves his car and walks. He says in earnest tones, "Sic semper! I do not choose to lose my goat; I will not spoil my sunny temper by fooling with that blamed old boat."

THE CREW GOES AFT.

Seamen are better berthed on board ship of late years than they used to be. The British regulations, however, are still a long way behind those of Norway and Australia. I now hear that the Shipping Controller is making improvements. Sir Joseph Maclay has decided that in the standard vessels now being built there shall be berths aft instead of forward, which, it is expected, will lessen the risk to the crews from torpedoes and mines. There are also to be, by way of comfort, separate rooms for meals and two-bunked cabins or cubicles instead of open fore-cabins to sleep in. Another improvement is a common smoke-room for sailors and firemen.

Remington UMC
Success with big game

CERTAINLY means, amongst other things, a wise choice in arms and ammunition. Whether you'll have the unfailing "big punch" of Remington UMC cartridges, and the smooth, swift deadly co-operation of a Remington UMC Repeating Rifle is for you to say.

TAKE the Remington UMC hand-operated, high power Repeater, its easy, perfect slide-action permits you to hold the rifle on the game without the slightest deviation. The solid breech absolutely protects the face against any blow back. Six fast, smashing shots. The smooth, graceful beauty of this arm with its safety devices is a standing wonder to shooters.

Remington UMC cartridges come in every calibre to suit every standard rifle. Tested, tested and tested again before they leave the factory.

LONDON GOSSIP.

LONDON, July 16th, 1917.
WE CAN, TOO.

The story of how the American Navy beat off U-boats in mid-ocean has made a fine feature in the Independence Day newspapers. Mr. Daniels knows the value of such a fine story in encouraging his people and their Allies, and the Admiralty should do the same. I hear workmen here say "the Americans seem able to do it" with the submarine. Why can't we? The Admiralty tell of wonderful achievements of the British merchant navy. Scarcely a day passes without my hearing authentic stories of how British armed merchant ships have beaten off piratical attacks. In one recent case a small tramp steamer, armed with a single gun of the smallest calibre, fought a huge U-boat for three hours. There was no trained gunner on board. The weapon was worked by a volunteer crew of deck-hands and stokers. The tramp was hit more than twenty times and had several casualties, but its pop-gun kept banging away at point-blank range, and finally landed a shell right under the base of the pirate's conning tower. There was a terrific explosion, and the submarine instantly disappeared, never to come up again.

OSCAR ASCHE FOR HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

Oscar Asche is spoken of as Sir Herbert Tree's successor as lessee of His Majesty's Theatre. He understands the spectacular requirements of the house better than any other manager, and his present success there, "Chu Chin Chow," has provided him with funds for the enterprise. His record in Shakespearean work is a guarantee that he would devote the theatre to worthy works. His one drawback as an actor is the limitation imposed on his art by a super-abundant physique. He could play Falstaff and Othello, but hardly Malvolio and Slender. Asche is in his forty-fifth year. His father was a Norwegian, his mother an Englishwoman, and he was born in Australia. His wife, Miss Lily Brydon, is the daughter of a Wigan (Lancashire) doctor.

STRATEGY OF SECRET SITTINGS.

The outside public are probably better able than members at Westminster to judge of the strategical effect of secret sittings, and that of July 9th on the latest London air raid can, therefore, be left to the constituencies to think over. Much of the preliminary and somewhat undignified confusion about its arrangement would have been avoided if there were any Standing Order of the House of Commons providing for the holding of such sittings. As purely an invention of the war period, they have not yet been regularised, and the mere "spying of strangers," while it has excluded the recognised representatives of the press, was never held to prevent the publication of a report if a member present at the debate chose to give it. Naturally, the newspaper so assisted watched such a report carefully from the possible point of view of a legal action, as in the case of the espial of strangers over the murder of Lord Leitrim in 1878; but in the latter half of the nineteenth century it had no fear of Parliamentary intervention. This had effectively been demonstrated eight years earlier, when the Press Gallery was closed during what was then thought a delicate discussion. A well known Cornish baronet, who could write shorthand, supplied a newspaper with a long report, which was published in full, and the House made no protest.

PRINCE JOHN IN HIS TEENS.

The King's youngest son, Prince John, entered his teens on July 12th. Although the Prince is nearly always at Buckingham Palace, he is less familiar to Londoners than any of his brothers. They have seen little of him since the days when, as a tiny child, he used to look over the garden wall of Marlborough House. He is a boy of spirit, with a liking for

THE BISHOP'S ENGLISH.

The Bishop of Chelmsford, in a letter to a London paper one day last week, wrote about advocating reprisals that "to do so would be to disgrace ourselves, the office we hold, and He whom we serve." An evening paper corrected "He" into "Him" without comment. The Bishop errs in a large company. Americans are often guilty of saying "between you and I." A famous Cambridge preacher earned the nickname of "Hook and Eye Taylor" for having remarked, "Holders of such views disagree with Dr. Hook and I."

Stomach Magnet For Metal, as Picked Padlock Proves.

Philadelphia Physicians Solve Mystery of Missing Spoons, Cigar Lighter, Screen Door Hooks (152 Articles in all), and Make Patient Substitute Fluid Food for Hardware.

- PHILADELPHIA, July 21.—For several weeks Mrs. Joseph Quinlan had been mystified by the disappearance of numerous articles from her household. She changed servants half a dozen times, but the articles, such as silver spoons and pieces of household hardware, continued to be missed. Recently her husband became ill and was sent to the Philadelphia Hospital and there to-day the surgeons cut open his stomach and removed the following articles:—
- Thirty-four silver teaspoons.
- One alcohol cigar lighter and chain.
- One padlock.
- Twelve screen door hooks.
- One glass medicine dropper.
- Six ten-penny nails.
- Thirty-six carpet tacks.
- Thirteen metal buttons.
- Six safety pins.
- Forty pieces printers' type.
- Thirty-two coins.
- Four souvenir medals.
- Nineteen screws (assorted sizes).
- Two hundred and forty-seven pebbles.

Disordered nerves were responsible for the unusual appetite which caused Mr. Quinlan to go on a hardware diet. When "the goods were found on him" Mr. Quinlan confessed and said he was unable to overcome his appetite when tempted, for instance, by a nice nickel-plated screen door hook or by a silver teaspoon that seemed to slide down like a stick of candy.

After the 452 foreign and undigested objects had been removed from Mr. Quinlan's stomach the physicians said he had a chance to recover.

STATE OF SIEGE IN ATTICA.

LONDON, To-day.—A Reuter despatch from Athens says the proclamation of a state of siege in Attica is due to threatened agitation on the part of the late regime. The despatch adds the proclamation is subject to parliamentary sanction within five days.

GERMAN SUB. TO REMAIN INTERNED.

AMSTERDAM, To-day.—A semi-official statement received here from Berlin says that as the result of an investigation by an International Commission at the Hague, the German submarine U-6 will remain interned in Holland and the U-30 will be released. The German submarine U-30 stranded on Dutch Island, off Walcheren, last February was disarmed and interned at Flushing. There are no available records concerning the U-6.

STEIN MEASURES WITH MUTINEERS.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—The Commanding General of the twelfth Russian Army has decided that all soldiers belonging to units which are disbanded owing to mutiny or refusal to take part in the offensive shall wear on their arms a distinctive emblem which shall be black in color. When their conduct under fire shall have rehabilitated them they will be permitted to discard the emblem.

RUSSIAN NAVAL APPOINTMENT.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—Captain Nemitz has been promoted to Rear Admiral and Commander of the Russian Black Sea fleet. He succeeds Vice-Admiral Kotchak in command of the fleet.

AMERICAN SHIPPING.

WASHINGTON, To-day.—The immediate commandeering of most of the vessels under construction in American ship building plants was decided on today by the Shipping Board. The step is preliminary to requisitioning. American tonnage already on the seas will be taken to speed construction so that the yards may be cleared for building the ships for which the Government has let contracts. There are building in the yards of the country about 700 ships, totaling more than 1,500,000 in tonnage, most of it for foreign account.

CABINET CRISIS IN RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—Premier and War Minister Kerensky and all other members of his Cabinet except Vice-Premier Nekrasoff resigned today. Later, with the exception of Terestchenko, the Foreign Minister, they withdrew their resignation. The action of Premier Kerensky and his fellow Cabinet members came about as the result of accusations against Terestchenko, Minister of Agriculture, and the complete break down of negotiations to bring the constitutional Democrats into the Cabinet. Terestchenko was accused of having been in contact with the German Cabinet. An effort will be made to reconstruct the Cabinet under M. Kerensky, M. Terestchenko, Socialist, has resigned his seat as Minister of Agriculture in the Russian Cabinet. In a letter to Premier Kerensky he said he was resigning to obtain freedom of action in order to defend his character against the calumny that he had been connected with German General Staff. The Government accepted the resignation at the same time expressing the conviction that M. Terestchenko will succeed in rehabilitating himself. Vice-Premier Nekrasoff informed the Associated Press that some of the documents supposed to incriminate Terestchenko already had been examined. He considers the charges against the Minister of Agriculture as not being very grave but the Cabinet was obliged to accept his resignation provisionally. Terestchenko has been the central figure of the present Cabinet of Russia. Negotiations for reconstruction of the Cabinet have been in progress for several weeks. One of the conditions raised by the constitutional democrats, whose presence in the Cabinet was desired, was that Terestchenko should resign. On July 28th, D.S.G. from Petrograd reported Premier Kerensky had resolved to sacrifice neither Terestchenko nor Terestchenko, Foreign Minister, who is opposed by the constitutional democrats.

GOVERNOR OF PETROGRAD ASSASSINATED.

PETROGRAD, To-day.—General Erdell, Military Governor of Petrograd, says Bourne Gasette, has been killed; he was treacherously shot in the back. General Erdell says a despatch from Petrograd of July 26th, had been appointed Military Governor of Petrograd in succession to General Polovtsov who had resigned after failing to put down the rioting in the Russian Capital. General Erdell had been Commander of the eleventh army.

COLLIERY COMPANY SEVERELY CENSURED.

SYDNEY, To-day.—The inquest into the New Waterford Colliery explosion was concluded to-night. Two hours later the coroner's jury brought in a verdict severely censuring the Company's officials and reprimanding the Deputy Inspector for not giving evidence.

BRITISH MAKE GAINS.

LONDON, To-day.—South of Hullebeck between Ypres and Warneton, the British made some progress. East of Monchy-le-Preux, the Germans have been driven from nearly all the ground they captured on Tuesday night. On Tuesday, the statement says, Anglo-French troops captured 6,122 prisoners. The statement reads, in the course of the day our troops again established themselves in Saint Julien. North of the Ypres-Roulers Railway, bodies of German infantry massing for a further counter attack were broken up by the fire of our artillery and the enemy was unable to develop his attack. We gained ground during the night South of Hullebeck. East of Monchy-le-Preux the enemy has been driven from nearly the whole ground gained by him in last night's attack.

COMPLETE LOSS.

HALIFAX, To-day.—The hospital ship which went ashore at Portuguese Cove on Wednesday morning is now a complete loss. There was considerable sea today and the steamer broke in two, the stern sunk in deep water.

DEVILS IN MEN'S SHAPES.

A BRITISH PORT, To-day.—Thirty-eight members of the crew of the steamship Belgian Prince were drowned in the most deliberate manner by a German submarine which sank her, according to an account given by survivors of the British vessel who have reached British shores. The chief engineer who was seriously near drowning, gave the following narrative of his experiences: About eight o'clock on Tuesday evening, when we were 200 miles off the land I saw the wake of the approaching torpedo. The vessel gave a lurch as she was hit. I was thrown to the deck among the debris. The vessel tilted heavily and we all took to the boats. The submarine approached and shelled the vessel; then ordered the small boats alongside the submarine. The skipper was summoned and taken inside. Others were mustered on the deck of the submarine. The Germans removed the life-belts and outer clothing of all except eight of us, smashed the life-belts with axes and then re-entered the submarine and closed the hatches, leaving us on deck. The submarine went about two miles and then submerged. I had a life belt. Near me was an apprentice boy of sixteen, shouting for help. I went to him and held him up until midnight, but he became unconscious and died of exposure. At daylight I saw the Belgian Prince afloat. I was picked up after eleven hours in the water by a patrol boat. The second engineer who also was a survivor succeeded in reaching the Belgian Prince before she blew up. The Germans came on board and looted her. He reported he was in hiding but finally jumped into the sea and kept afloat on the wreckage. The only other known survivor is too ill in hospital to tell his story.

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT'S WILL.

LONDON, To-day.—The will of the Duchess of Connaught, who died in March last, disposes of property of the sworn value of 125,611 pounds. The Duchess bequeathed 25,000 pounds to former Princess Margaret of Connaught, now Crown Princess Gustave Adolph of Sweden, and 500,000 pounds to Princess Victoria Patricia. The remainder of the property goes to the son of the Duchess, Prince Arthur of Connaught.

GERMAN BOASTS.

BERLIN, To-day.—Supplementary official statement issued by General Headquarters reads: The pause in the fighting in Flanders continues. The victorious advance of the Allied troops has liberated Galicia almost completely and the greater part of Bukovina from the enemy.

BRITISH SUGGEST NORFOLK INSTEAD OF HALIFAX.

WASHINGTON, To-day.—Great Britain has suggested that the examination of neutral ships bound from ports south of New York to Europe be transferred from Halifax to Norfolk, Virginia, in order to relieve the congested conditions in the Canadian port. The State Department has referred the question to various other departments interested and will not be able to reach a decision until it has heard from them. The Treasury has been asked if its customs examination could be carried out there; the post office department has been asked about the delivery of mails, and the shipping board as to any arrangements it may have entered into as to neutral shipping. The British have long been anxious to relieve the congestion at Halifax. At the time the examination of shipping was transferred largely from British ports to Halifax, it was stated that another port to the south, possibly in the Bahamas, would be selected for the examination of ships from Gulf ports. Since America's entrance into the war, Norfolk has become the most desirable port for this southern examination and the British feel that its selection would be of advantage to all parties.

BRITISH REPORT.

LONDON, To-day.—Hostile raiding parties were repulsed during the night northeast of Couzaccourt and southwest of Fontaine les Croisilles. Parties of our troops successfully raided the enemy trenches south of Lombardy. The number of German prisoners captured by the Allies in the operations on Tuesday were 6,122, including 139 officers.

GURKO ARRESTED.

LONDON, To-day.—Russian General Gurko, former commander of the armies on the south Russian eastern front, has been arrested according to Reuter's Petrograd correspondent. The retirement of General Gurko was announced last May. It was said at that time that he had been ordered to be dismissed because he objected to the interference by the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates with the Provisional Government.

GERMAN COAL FOR SWISS GOLD.

PARIS, To-day.—A despatch to the La Liberté from Berne, Switzerland, says that Germany and Switzerland have reached an economic agreement. Switzerland, according to the correspondent, will advance Germany forty million francs monthly for also about the rate of five per cent, and Germany will supply Switzerland with 200,000 tons of coal monthly.

WEEK END NOTES.

(I. C. M.) The Teachers' Summer School, which has just closed its sessions, was an event both beneficial and unique, and one which must surely result in lasting good for the cause of education in general. That so many members of the profession availed themselves of the opportunity thereby afforded is indeed commendable, and should be a source of gratification to those who promoted and financed the movement; and that the entire arrangement was so systematically carried out is cause for public congratulation. The real working of the school may not be known to the public, but judging from the very excellent and comprehensive reports as published in the columns of the daily press, there was expertise on the side of the instructors and mutual co-operation on the part of the teachers—who for the time were scholars. The subjects treated upon were very comprehensive, and they included the entire syllabus of our common elementary education, as well as some branches of higher education. From this diffusion of knowledge there will surely spring a rich harvest, and every corner of our educational work will reap its share of it. A newer idea has been implanted into the minds of the teachers, and they now possess a wider grasp of their had something to do with the formation of the Summer School. Many of us know of the difficulties which obstruct the teachers in their work. We have visited scores and scores of the schools during the last thirty years and have seen for ourselves the obstacles which hinder and discourage our school teachers. They have more drawbacks than the average citizen imagines, and many of the teachers being inexperienced, their burden is all the harder. The sessions of the Summer School have lifted some of these burdens from the shoulders of the teachers, and they will henceforth be better adapted to their work. They have had a course in teaching and no doubt have learned that there is a difference between education in itself and imparting it to others. One may be very learned and be quite a good scholar but at the same time may be a very incompetent teacher. The fact of teaching is not everybody's to possess, hence the benefits of the Summer School for this purpose. Our teachers have now been taught how to teach. Masters and professors of the highest standing have addressed them and have instructed them, and have drilled them. To many of them the course was new, and to all of them beneficial. In this the promoters are to be complimented and to be thanked for their liberality and great generosity. They may never see the full reward of what they have done, but they will have the consciousness that they have established a great work, and instituted a most useful movement, and that the Summer School for teachers has advanced the cause of Education and equipped the teachers for better service.

PENNIES.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine, a doctor, has occasion to pass frequently through the poorest section of the city. One day when he was starting on his rounds he asked the Wants-to-be-Cynic if he would give him pennies for a dime. "What's the big idea?" asked the Cynic. "The kids," said the doctor. "You know the streets down there just swarm with them and I always like to have a supply of pennies on hand. I don't know any way in the world you can give so much happiness and get so much fun cheap as handing out pennies to those kids. Best cure for the blues, I know."

One Kind Of Preparedness.
And he went off whistling and rattling the ten pennies in his trouser pockets.

Do you like the doctor's prescription? I do. I've tried it before in a small unsystematic way; but hereafter I'm going to be more systematic. I'm not going to leave having the pennies to chance.

Look back to your own childhood and see what a penny meant to you. Why it was an adventure, something that turned a grey day to blue. Can't you remember even at this distance, individual pennies and their history? I can.

How I Spent A Penny Once On A Time.
There was the penny big brother offered for winning a race on stilts. I won it and what do you suppose I did with it. Being smitten with a violent case of kindness to animals I gave it to a little boy who had some tadpoles in a bottle, to let them go. I, mind you, who was always before and after, a most energetic tadpole catcher. I can remember vividly how indignant big brother was.

Once a girl in our school had her cousin to visit her. And every day in the week, so rumour ran, they each had a penny to spend. I didn't believe it at the time. But I see now that I doubtless did her a grave injustice.

She Asks For "A White Penny."
True, a penny does not mean the same to a middle-class child of today that it did to you and me. Times have changed. I know a little four-year-old who is shrewd enough to spurn coppers and ask her aunts and uncles for "a white penny." You cannot give the same thrill you used to feel by handing a penny to your nephew or niece or your own child.

But the children to whom you can give in memory of the little wistful, eager child who vanished when you grew up are legion. Surely the vanished child will smile when he sees their faces light up. And since his hiding place is in your own heart that will bring sunshine there.

I bought a horse with a supposedly incurable ringbone for $30.00. Cured him with $1.00 worth of MINARD'S LINIMENT and sold him for $85.00. Profit on Liniment, $54.

THE BUNGALOW.

The bungalow is a house from which the running gear has been removed. It has less road clearance than an underslung runabout, and hugs the ground closer than a caterpillar. An able-bodied man could fall off the roof of a bungalow and alight on his neck without hurting anything except his morale, and if his morale was well concealed he would not feel a single quail.

The bungalow is designed for the residence of people who have grown tired of hunting the elusive hired girl to her lair and then watching her ooze away just prior to housecleaning. This going-away process on the part of so many hired girls who gallop to the hymeneal altar in pink chiffon is the reason why so many twelve-room houses are offered for sale to the highest and best bidder for cash. The average bungalow has only five rooms, including the back porch and the linen closet, and can be easily cared for by one wife who is well-muscled and does not care to do anything else.

When a child loses weight either baby or older child, it is a sign that something is wrong. The safest thing under such circumstances is to consult a doctor.

cleaner in its mad chase from cellar to garret. When this kind of a housewife sees a picture of a squat, flat-footed bungalow with a retreating forehead, which can be dry cleaned in less time than it takes to boil an egg from a standing start, she becomes willing to sacrifice a few thousand square feet of floor space in the hope of living to a ripe old age. The only woman who ought to try to take care of a two-story house, with vegetable cellar, laundry and three bedrooms in the attic, is a female Sandow with the muscular development of a 'fay horse.

The bungalow consists of a large living room entirely surrounded by grass seed and fresh air. Some bungalows have a dining-room and kitchen but this is not necessary and should be avoided whenever possible. One good-sized living room, with open fireplace and two lower berths, furnishes all the room that is needed by a family which is not proud and haughty by nature. Yet all around us we see huge, rambling houses in process of construction, loaded down with vacant rooms and mechanics' liens, while a modest bungalow can be built for $475, including open plumbing and a three-foot bathtub. If man had to do the housework, there would be less leg-room and aching joints in our homes.

Your Boys and Girls.

Baby is a very important person and the young mother should know these few rules. Babies often contract bronchitis from being kept out when the chill mists are falling after sunset in Autumn and Winter.

The flannel abdominal bandage should not be discontinued till all the first set of teeth are cut, and not then if the child suffers frequently from stomach trouble, in which case its use should not be discontinued at all. It should never be left off in cold weather, nor suddenly, but when giving it up should be torn away gradually bit by bit.

When a child loses weight either baby or older child, it is a sign that something is wrong. The safest thing under such circumstances is to consult a doctor.

Fashions and Fads.

The hem will be a very important feature of the autumn skirts. Side pleating are used on French crepe negligees instead of lace.

Crowns fashioned after the "Boy Scout hats" are new in millinery. Tinsel embroidery of a refined and quiet character is much used.

The Gas Range!

The Gas Range means comfort for the housewife; shorter kitchen hours for her, and a cleaner kitchen. It is a great mistake to think that cooking with gas is expensive.

Whenever a woman becomes used to gas for cooking, thoughts of a coal or wood stove fill her with gloom. A Gas range is so much easier to operate, so efficient for all kinds of cooking, and so much cleaner, that the idea of going back to the old style methods is decidedly unpleasant. Yet in winter many housewives think they must use a coal or wood stove, because there is no other way of heating the kitchen. THERE IS ANOTHER WAY AND IT IS FAR BETTER THAN THE OLD. HEADACHES AND BEAUTY.

Although a headache is looked upon as a very ordinary ailment it sometimes grows to be an annoyance as well as a destroyer of beauty. No one can look really charming, or even fail to show traces of pain, while suffering from a blinding headache.

A headache always has a cause, usually in some other part of the body, although the eyes are often the cause of the headache, which while painful is not necessarily alarming. But if a certain kind of headache recurs at frequent intervals, it is time not only to find a cure, but a cause.

One should not try headache remedies promiscuously without a doctor's advice, unless one knows what is in the dose, because headaches which show a tendency to become chronic are not properly headed at all and cannot be reached by headache medicines, or at least permanently cured as such headaches are sympathetic messengers from the brain recording a disturbance somewhere else in the body.

The trouble may of course be in the head, the ears, the eyes, the nerves, or adenoidal growths—all cause headaches and the first symptom of an abscess in the inner ear is a headache. Kidney trouble is often indicated by a headache and we all know that most of the ordinary headaches are directly due to the stomach.

Probably it is well that such a forcible reminder tells us something is wrong, if we are only wise enough to listen to the persistent hammering.

A headache is often due to an empty stomach or a stomach overloaded with indigestible food.

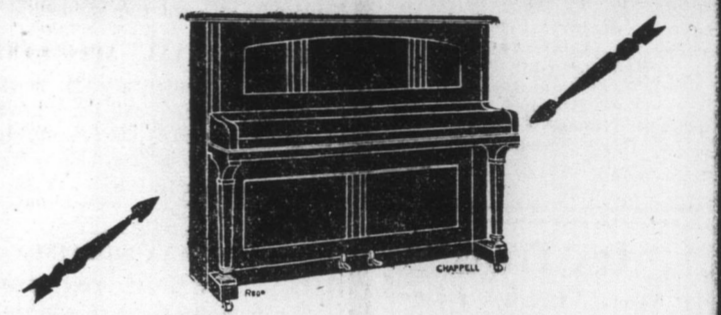

Fads and Fashions.

Four-pocket jackets in khaki is a new military effect in sports clothes. White vests of frilly organdy will be worn with serge and satin dresses. Silver and gold tissue has been much used for recent wedding gowns. Organdy neckwear is charmingly made with the tiniest and crispest ruffles. Cuffs of Georgette crepe waists are cut with points reaching over the hands.

Colored table linen threatens to be the fashionable thing for informal affairs.

Many of the new hats are trimmed with a wide bow placed on top of the crown. Macramé lace is in again, and, strangely enough, is combined with chiffon.

Satin will be used in the fall just as much as it has been used in the summer.

THE BATTLE IN FLANDERS.

BERLIN, Aug. 3.
A special despatch from the front to the Berlin newspapers agrees in describing the battle in Flanders as a struggle for the submarine bases in Belgium, as well as in characterising it as the most stupendous combat of the war. The British advance in Wytchate sector on June 7 is commented upon by correspondents as part of a strategic scheme to gain the boat bases, the June attack being calculated to give the Entente forces freedom of movement to permit them to proceed from Ypres battle ground in a northeasterly direction and strike at Zebrugge from the rear.

REGAINING GROUND.

LONDON, Aug. 3.
British troops, according to the official statement issued to-day by the British war office, already have regained part of the ground lost when the Germans penetrated, the British front line trenches on Infantry Hill, to the east of Monchy-Le-Preux, last night.

ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, Aug. 3.
The troops of the German Crown Prince, after an intense artillery bombardment last night, delivered several violent attacks against French positions near Cerny in the Aisne region, along a front of about 1,500 yards. The French official statement, issued this afternoon, says that all the attacks were repulsed. On the Belgian front the bad weather continues. The text of the statement follows: Bad weather persists along the entire front in Belgium, east and south of Cerny. After bombardment of extreme violence, the German forces delivered on a front of about 1,500 yards, violent attacks but they all were repulsed by our fire. In the course of the fighting we inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. Artillery fighting on both banks of the River Meuse, in the Verdun sector, was particularly spirited in the region of Avocourt Wood and Hill 304.

STILL HOLD POSITIONS.

BRITISH FRONT IN FRANCE, Aug. 3.—Belgium, British, French and German alike along the front of the battle in Flanders still held their positions late to-day in an iron grip of bog land produced by torrential rainstorms which has been deluging the battle line from Tuesday evening until to-day when it showed signs of moderating. Beyond artillery operations north, with the exception of one or two points, the French and British are resting in consolidated and strong organised positions commanding the territory which they captured from the Germans in the first few hours' onslaught. St. Julien to-day continued to be a storm centre, the artillery of both sides pounding steadily at their opponents' positions about this place. The British were again in possession of the 300 yards front just north of Friburg which the Germans wrested from them in a counter attack late yesterday. In a drive last night, after heavy artillery preparation, the British forced the Germans from this strong position and have held it since. This was the only counter attack of any consequence delivered by the Germans since late Wednesday.

ESTABLISHED IN ST. JULIEN.

LONDON, Aug. 3.
Northeast of Ypres in Flanders, Field Marshal Haig's troops again have established themselves in the town of St. Julien, from which they were driven early this week, says the official statement from the British headquarters in France to-night.

HINDENBURG CONGRATULATED.

LONDON, Aug. 3.
A Copenhagen despatch contains the following message, telegraphed by Emperor William to Field Marshal Von Hindenburg: "It is a need of my heart, dear Field Marshal, at the conclusion of the third year of this mightiest of all wars, in which you incessantly and with brilliant strategy of arms have defied the enemy's superior forces and cleared the way for our armies to victory, to express anew to you the Cross and Star of the High Command of Royal Orders of the House of Hohenzollern. The badges will be posted immediately."

RUSSIA.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 3.
The political crisis which is still unsolved, is taking a new form owing to a growing tendency of the country to divide into two sharply defined opposing camps. In the first camp are the educated, especially land and industrial classes, led by members of the Duma and Moscow manufacturers, while the second is composed of Socialists of all shades of opinion. The opposition between the moderate Socialists and the Bolshevik group, which reached its height during the July revolt, is declining as a result of fear by both camps that the Duma's industrial movements are reactionary and counter-revolution. The chief evidence of this division is an unofficial session of the Duma at which the moderate progressive party combined with the old reactionaries, led by Vladimir M. Purishkevich, Vice President of the Union of True Russians. In an attack on the Socialist and Socialist policy of the Cabinet, as influenced by the Councils of Workmen's and Soldiers' and Peasants' Delegates, Purishkevich sharply assailed the council for trying to dictate to the non-Socialist members of the cabinet the manner in which they already dictate to the Socialist Ministers. A sensational speech was made by a member of the Progressive Party that Mastennikoff, who ascribed the military disaster and internal anarchy as due wholly to the Socialists. He referred to them as a crowd of mad fanatic adventurers who call themselves the Executive Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates. Mastennikoff declared that the Duma alone could serve Russia, but that to do so it must cease being afraid of its own shadow, and meet in regular session and demand that ministers appear before it and render an account of their stewardship. The constitutional democrat Nicholasivoff also declared that the Duma must act boldly against this idea. The official organ of the Councils of Workmen's and Soldiers' and Peasants' and Deputies says that the Duma aims at a counter-revolution, and asserts that the aim of the Duma is to re-establish a despotism in the interest of property, particularly land property.

The Navy's Shoyan attacks the Duma meeting as having been a giant conspiracy against freedom, and declares that as after the July revolt when citizens are appealed to suppress the conspirators, they will have to fight and arrest members of the Duma. At yesterday's session of the Duma, all speakers repudiated the accusation that their aim is a counter-revolution. They asserted that the Councils and Government, under the influence of the Councils, would ruin Russia irrevocably and that the Duma's only aim was to prevent such ruin.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

LONDON, Aug. 3.
Prince George, former Crown Prince of Serbia, had a narrow escape to-day while inspecting troops on the Macedonian front, according to a telegram received. The horse on which he was riding was shot and killed.

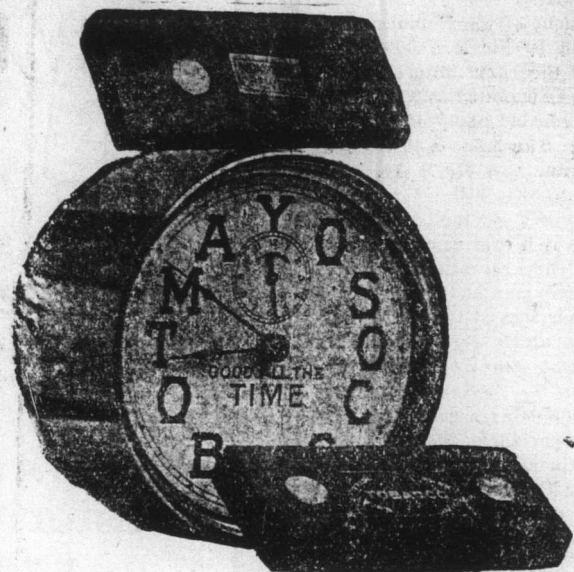

THE 'MONTANA'S' VICTIMS.

LONDON, Aug. 3.
Eight naval gunners were lost when the American tank steamer Montana was sunk by a submarine. Sixteen members of the crew also perished. The Montana was 2,750 tons gross, and was sunk by a German submarine on July 31. It was announced from London on Aug. 1st that 22 survivors had been landed.

THE SOCIALISTS CAMPAIGN.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 3.
Reports from Budapest to the Frankfurter Zeitung say that the formation of a coalition cabinet under the leadership of Johann Teleszky, former Minister of Finance, is pending. The Daily News which favors the Stockholm International Socialist Conference, learns that if the French Government refuses to issue passports for the French Delegates, Albert Thomas, member of the War Council, will withdraw from the Ministry, and French Socialists will cease to have any connection with the Government. The Daily News maintains that if the Conference is held, the British Government, notwithstanding the statement made by In-

We are requested by the Baseball League to state that the proceeds of the game on Tuesday night between the Cubs and B. L. S. will be devoted to the C. of E. In view of the worthiness of the object we feel that we need make no apology to the public on the League's behalf, in announcing that the admission fee will be 10 cents. Apart from the fact that the game is sure to be interesting as both clubs are running for the championship, when its purpose is considered we feel sure that it will be largely attended.

TEMPERAMENT.

When a temperamental infant Gets too busy with its yap, You can nearly always cure it With a slipper or a strap. When a temperamental pitcher Thinks himself a superman, You can bring him back to reason By the rattle of the can.

A CLOSE FINISH.

At present writing it looks like anybody's pennant. Undoubtedly the Lions are weakened by Ellis's departure. It is hard to gauge the Wanderers as Thursday's game was no criterion of their capabilities. Carew, of the Irish, is now in fine fettle, having fully recovered from his injuries, but if the Cubs should be victorious against him on Tuesday night, the whole four clubs will be equal, with 2 games each to play.

PLAYERS' ADVICE.

It appears that the League this season is composed of three ball clubs and the Wanderers. This differs considerably from those days when the Wanderers were the only ball club in the League. The change is for the better.

Meeting of the Patriotic Association.

The Patriotic Association met last night, the Governor presiding and a large number of members attending. His Excellency in his opening speech drew attention to the public meeting to be held to-day before the Colonial Building to celebrate the anniversary of Great Britain's entry into the war. He then referred to the report of the Regiment recently published, with particular mention of the honors won by it, the battle of Monchy, and prisoners of war, for whom he said everything possible was being done. Grand Falls had generously offered $250 to be used for the benefit of prisoners. The 2nd Battalion had been moved to Barry, in Fortshere, the depot still remaining at 277. The Foresters were doing good work on the other side under conditions very similar to those at home. The announcement of Capt. March's promotion to the rank of Major evoked loud applause.

Hon. J. A. Clift submitted the report of the Standing Committee, which stated that the last draft had got across safely. In all 3,614 men had now been sent from Newfoundland for active service with the Regiment. The report mentioned that arrangements had been made for the burying of Colonial soldiers in Broadwood Cemetery at the expense of the Imperial Government. The report then dealt at length with the matter of criticisms of the Committee's work by Hon. Dr. McGrath and appearing in the official reports of the Legislative Council and in the editorial columns of the Herald. Following is an extract from the report:

"Fair criticism is in every way desirable, and indeed, would be welcomed by this Committee, but we must respectfully point out that statements conveyed to the public through the channels indicated and emanating from a member of this Association, must of necessity, when untrue, do definite harm to the work of both this Committee and the Association to which it is responsible.

"The statements are all the more regrettable because they come from a member of the Association who has done such excellent service in other and important avenues of its work. We submit it is the duty of every member of this body who believes he has cause for complaint as to the manner in which its affairs are being administered, to bring the matter first before the Association, rather than raise a ferment in the public mind by statements through the public press or otherwise.

"This latter course has, unfortunately, been adopted in the instances to which we invite the attention of the Association, namely: The statements and comments which have been made with regard to the despatch of what is known as the 'Windsor Draft,' and the already much discussed question of the granting of commissions.

"With regard to the Windsor Draft, the Hon. Dr. McGrath has stated in the Legislative Council as follows: 'It was to leave here by the 'Florizel' and join the steamer 'Southland' at Halifax, but the day before it left the Governor attended to make the usual farewell address to the lads and so did a number of members of the Standing Committee. One of these had protested against the despatch of the draft, on the ground that the 'Southland' was a slow ship and that she might be torpedoed, and an emergency meeting was held and this point was discussed. This gentleman, who had a son in the draft, was strong in his views, and although the Governor and Capt. Abraham, who was also present, and whose views were invited, expressed the opinion that there was no danger, the Committee decided to hold the draft back.'

He has further stated editorially in the Evening Herald that 'Possibly many a man now lying dead in France would be alive if the reinforcements which that draft would have furnished had been available.'

Your Committee most emphatically deny that there was the slightest foundation in fact for any such statements as made by Hon. Dr. McGrath in his speech in the Legislative Council or for the account given by him of the circumstances under which the meeting referred to was convened and held. These circumstances are fully stated in the extracts from the minutes of the Committee already published in the official debates in the Legislative Council, and it will be seen that there was nothing to warrant the painful references contained in the Editorial suggestion or to justify the charge that any member of this Committee was responsible for the meeting being held with a view to delaying the despatch of the draft for any other reason.

In the light of all the circumstances now detailed, the Standing Committee has no option but to submit all the facts, and having done so they confidently look to the Patriotic Association to vindicate them in the eyes of the public.

In moving the adoption of the report Mr. Clift referred to the matter of the delay in sending the draft, and also to the matter of Commissions, despatching the Committee on both points and asking vindication by the Association. Several other members spoke on the subject and the report was adopted unanimously. Dr. McGrath was not present.

The statement of the Finance Committee, tabled by Sir E. R. Bowring, showed that the expenditure up to June 30th last amounted to $3,141,555.25, with a probable addition of $150,000 for July. The balance in bank at the end of June was $10,713.19.

Mr. F. J. Morris, K.C., then presented the report of the Recruiting Committee, which evoked considerable discussion. The recruiting figures showed that 200 men had been recruited for both services at the fifteen out-port stations, which were now closed. The Committee expressed its appreciation of Mr. T. McNab's generous gift of his offices as a recruiting station. Altogether about 700 men offered for enlistment in the Army, Navy and Forestry Companies. The report also embodied the resolution, lately published, recommending the adoption of some form of selective conscription, which the Committee felt to be necessary in order to maintain the Regiment at strength.

Many speakers took part in the discussion of this resolution. The Premier was of the opinion that the system of voluntary recruiting had not failed, and that that should be shown before the compulsory system was adopted. Mr. McDougall thought more recruits could be got if more active steps were taken, to which Mr. Morris pertinently replied that those best qualified to judge had concluded that all the steps possible under the present system were inadequate. Mr. Gosling thought the matter should not be decided hurriedly and favoured registration as the necessary preliminary step. Mr. Withers spoke vigorously in favour of conscription as the only means by which the country could do its duty. Dr. Robinson, while convinced that conscription was the only fair method, saw difficulties in the way of its enforcement. The Governor did not think that the voluntary system had failed, and pointed out that the compulsory system had not met complete success in other countries, such as Australia and Canada, and thought it would cause great trouble here. Dr. Blackall thought the Resolution should be submitted to the Government, with whom the responsibility for action or inaction would rest. Mr. Grieve showed that the Committee had done all possible and could reach no other conclusion. Mr. Justice Johnson thought the Government should act in the matter as quickly as possible, while Dr. Curtis considered the Committee had done all it could do. Mr. Higgins was of opinion that the remaining duties as to recruiting were included in the functions of the new Minister of Militia; he also thought that the public men of the country generally had not assisted recruiting as they might have done. The report was then voted on and adopted. The meeting adjourned at 11.15 until Friday next.

A number of people from Bell Island who reached the city yesterday had a complaint to make against an individual named LeDrew, who is in charge of the Government mail boat running from Portugal Cove to the Island, who refused to detain his ship two minutes a few days ago in order to take on board two wounded soldiers who were on their way to the Island. The cab containing the soldiers was about 200 yards from the head of the Cove wharf when LeDrew ordered his ship out in the stream despite the protests of the people, including the parents of one of the returning heroes, who were there awaiting the arrival of their son. Our informants are of the impression that LeDrew's action is an insult to our brave boys, as on many occasions the ship has been detained for upwards of an hour for the convenience of others, possibly less important persons. The Telegram cannot let this matter pass unnoticed and in the interest of the travelling public ask that an explanation from the ship-owners be given.

Two Psalms.

(From the New York Times.)

"The Lord on high is mightier than the noise of many waters, yea, than the mighty waves of the sea."—Psalms 92, 7. Such was the text on which the Court Chaplain preached an edifying discourse in the Berlin Cathedral in the presence of the imperial family, and of Hindenburg and Ludendorff, the two lightnings of the war. The service "is said to have been one of the most impressive held in the Cathedral during the war." The Kaiser, Hindenburg, and Dr. Michaelis were blessed in the most affecting manner by the courtly Chaplain.

Not the Ninety-third, but the Ninety-fourth, Psalm furnishes the right text for a sermon on Germany, the sweet German humanities in this war:

O Lord God, to whom vengeance belongeth; O God, to whom vengeance belongeth show thyself. Lift up thyself, thou Judge of the earth: render a reward to the proud.

Lord, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked triumph? How long shall they utter and speak hard things? and all the workers of iniquity boast themselves?

They break in pieces the people, O Lord, and afflict thine heritage:

They slay the widow and the stranger, and murder the fatherless.

Yet they say, The Lord shall not see, neither shall the God of Jacob regard us:

That is the Psalm of the Allies.

Dairies Closed

BY HEALTH OFFICER.

Two dairy owners have been refused permission to operate them in future. The places were found to be in an unsanitary condition when visited by the Inspector of Public Health and in the interest of the consumer it was necessary that drastic measures should be applied. We understand that the parties in question were warned to keep their dairies in a sanitary condition some time ago, but through carelessness did not comply with the law.

This is a serious state of affairs and should be a lesson to those who are inclined to be careless in such matters.

Winners!

The four lucky numbers are:
No. 601 winning 1st prize of $20.00

No. 1386 winning 4th prize of $5.00

The above numbers were drawn by T. Curran and E. M. Greene.

The Pr... th... Attempt... Defeated

The prorogation of the Legislature, following the Bill levying a Profiteers' Tax, in the Legislative Chamber, Hon. R. A. Secretary, moved the Second Reading of the Bill, explaining the prolonged discussion, made in turn by Hon. Harvey, Anderson, Goss, and Winter. The members, whilst in accord in principle, vigorously opposed its present form.

Hon. Mr. Milley was the first to object. He said in effect that the Government was around for further financial obligations for the war, but the Government was the result of a rough-shod order of the day, saying if the members had taken sufficient time to study the question of such an enactment, the absurdity of taxing 20 per cent profits of any business, clearly understood that had no objections to it if he did he would be reticent on the matter, but in stating that he lost sight of the fact that the Government of the day had and this was one of the features of the Coalition. Consequently, it behooved the House to assume the Opposition, not for the purpose of opposing the Government, but for the purpose of stating that the laws enacted were not in the interest of the people, and that the Government was not to be held responsible for the profits of the war.

Lower House, under the circumstances, and in some months to come, it was not possible to put it through. But what time, he asked, was the Government of this country to be held responsible for the profits of the war? The Government, he said, was not to be held responsible for the profits of the war, but for the profits of the war.

The Profits Bill in the Upper House.

Attempt to Rush it Through Defeated—Adjournment Taken Until Monday.

The prorogation of the Legislature arranged for this afternoon has been extended, following a discussion on the Bill levying a Profits Tax on Business, in the Legislative Council. The Leader of the Government in that Chamber, Hon. R. A. Squires, Colonial Secretary, moved the First Reading of the Bill, explaining its object. The Second Reading of the Bill elicited prolonged discussion, speeches being made in turn by Hon. Messrs. Milley, Harvey, Anderson, Goodridge, Knowlton and Winter. The various members, whilst in accord with its general principle, vigorously opposed the Bill in its present form.

Hon. Mr. Milley was the first speaker. He said in effect that it was obvious that the Government had to look around for further finance to carry out its obligations for the continuance of the war, but the Bill before the House was the result of an attempt to ride rough-shod over the first principles of finance and he had no hesitation in saying if the members of the Government had taken sufficient time to study the question of additional taxation they would not have brought down such an enactment. The utter absurdity of taxing 20 per cent. of the net profits of any business was apparent to all, though he wished it to be clearly understood that personally he had no objection to paying the amount called for in the Bill because if he did he would have remained reticent on the matter. He was emphatic in stating that we should not lose sight of the fact that the Government of the day has no Opposition and this was one of the saddest features of the Coalition Government. Consequently, it behoved the Upper House to assume the functions of an Opposition, not for the purpose of opposing the Government, but for detecting defective legislation and seeing that the laws enacted were reasonable and just. He pointed out that laws relating to excess profits taxes in operation in other places were the outcome of careful consideration on the part of Governments and the result of confidential interviews with the legal men representing all classes of capital and industries, and in some cases it took many months to come to the conclusion suitable to the best interests. But what time, he asked, had the Government of this country, in existence less than three weeks, to give to this important matter? The Bill had been rushed through all its stages in the Lower House under suspended rules, in less than one hour, without criticism, and the Legislative Council was supposed to put it through in less time than that. This he considered an insult to the intelligence of the House and to the country. He then suggested that a tax be put on our exports for a year or two, for instance, on fish, oil, etc., which were commanding such high prices at present and on which big profits were made; or increase the tax on Bell Island ore, which was yielding enormous profits. Another suggestion made by Mr. Milley in order for the Government to get the money so badly needed was to increase the surtax on our imports. Any of these suggestions would be better, he thought, and more acceptable to the people than what is proposed in the Bill. Again mentioning the unfairness of the Bill and the impossibility of its operation, he said there were many people in Newfoundland who never take stock and it would be impossible to know how to deal with their profits. He reiterated the unfairness and viciousness of the measure in its present state and coming from a Government, without Opposition, and in too short a time to consider such important legislation.

Hon. Mr. Harvey followed, contrasting the original Bill with the present one. He showed clearly that where a business was capitalized at one million dollars a tax of $10,000 would be paid the Government under the first whereas according to the amended Bill that same business would have to pay virtually double that amount of taxation. He agreed with the principle of war taxation, but could not support the present measure in its difficult and complicated form. In dealing at length with the effect of the Bill he showed the consequences that must accrue to our Trade and Commerce. If Halifax steamers and foreign owners of vessels chartered here were taxable they would likely stop running here. If on the other hand the tax only applied to local tonnage, that would be unfair discrimination and our vessel owners would sell out. In that connection, the speaker said, the Colony will be on the horns of a dilemma. Continuing, he elucidated how impossible it was for a business man here to even estimate with any degree of accuracy his assets or profits as in Canada or the United States. In any event, if the Bill did become law, February 1st, the time set down for the payment of the tax would have to be extended, as it rarely happens that the books of a big mercantile concern close before the end of March. Hon. Mr. Harvey also strongly objected to the unlimited powers given to the Minister of Finance, who had large commercial interests of his own and was surprised that he was willing to undertake such onerous and important duties; besides the Minister has enough to occupy his time by attending to the duties of his office; and in order that the details of private businesses should not become public property and the subject of idle gossip, the Minister should not have anything to do with auditing books, but provision should be made for a firm of chartered accountants, unbiased socially, commercially or politically, to be engaged by the Government. This he considered would be more fair and just, coming under the Act. Mr. Harvey in conclusion referred to the detrimental effect the Bill in its present form would have on the credit of the country, and in closing suggested that the matter be let stand over till next spring when a General Election will probably be held and candidates can put the issue before the people, meanwhile the tax for 1917 to be collected if the country decide in favour of the measure.

Hon. Messrs. Anderson, Goodridge, Knowlton and Winter spoke briefly in criticism of the Bill, pointing out its crudeness and unfairness, and requested that it be deferred for further study and consideration. The Government were anxious to resume discussion at 8 last night, as it was contemplated to close the House to-day, but eventually decided to adjourn until 3 p.m. Monday.

Summer School Notes.

THURSDAY, Aug. 2nd.

Morning Session, St. Bonaventure's College, 9-11.45.

From 9-9.15 Dr. Brunt outlined for B group the chief characteristics of a good Reading Book. He also took with them a model Reading lesson. During the next lecture-period he repeated his lecture to groups. Mr. Morehouse continued his series of lectures on teaching Arithmetic taking A group from 9-9.45, and group B from 9.45 to 10.30.

After recess Mr. Morehouse lectured to A group, and Dr. Brunt took a model English Literature lesson with B group.

Then 11.45 the teacher students went to the Methodist College Hall where, after Dr. Barnes, the Principal, had made a few very important announcements, Dr. Campbell gave the last of his series of lectures on Hygiene. He took as his subject "Preventive Diseases and Preventive Medicines."

At the close of the lecture Rev. Dr. Curtis proposed a vote of thanks to Dr. Campbell, Honorary Lecturer, for his splendid series of lectures. Dr. Burke ably seconded, and Messrs. Griffin and Cinet spoke in support of the proposition which was carried enthusiastically by a standing vote.

Afternoon Session, St. Bon's College.

From 2.15 to 3 Dr. Brunt lectured on Geometry, showing why it should be taught, and outlining course of work for different school groups. Then all lined up on the College Campus and were given instruction in Physical Culture, the ladies under Misses Worrall and Curtis and the men under Sergt. Major Hussey.

Mr. Morehouse then took the A group in Nature Study, while Miss Kelly gave an Art lesson to the ladies of B group, and Mr. Murdoch gave some practical instruction to the men on teaching Geometrical Drawing.

During the afternoon and evening the teachers attended the "Sunshine Entertainment" held at Victoria in aid of the "Jensen Camp Fund." On behalf of the teachers we again wish to thank Messames Browning and Harvey for their kind invitation to attend the Sunshine Entertainment, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

FRIDAY, Aug. 3rd.

Morning Session, St. Bonaventure's College.

Mr. Morehouse lectured this morning on the important subject of "School Discipline." He showed that the main factors in obtaining good discipline, viz., Personal Example and Influence, Force, Prizes and Rewards, should be skilfully used if the best results are to be obtained.

Dr. Brunt continued his series of lectures on English Literature. He outlined the work of a model lesson—"The Mightiest Julius"—from the Book of English Prose used for Intermediate classes for 1915-17.

After recess Mr. Morehouse gave a lecture to B group on Arithmetic dealing particularly with "Practical Business Methods" in working Interest and Discount.

Dr. Brunt explained to A group the time table which the lecturers had prepared for one-teacher schools. Afternoon Session, 2.15-4.15.

During the first hour both groups attended Dr. Brunt's lecture on Geometry, and if the recommendations of the learned lecturer are put in practice this much neglected subject will be given some of the attention it really merits.

Unfortunately the teachers were unable to enjoy to the full the last of the series of Physical Culture lessons. For just as they were lined up the thunder storm came on and they had to seek the friendly shelter of the College. The men were given a simple manual of Physical Exercise by Sergt. Instructor Hussey which will enable them to keep on with the work.

From 3.30 to 4.15 Mr. Morehouse gave an excellent and most timely address on Tree planting. This was the last of his series of lectures on Nature Study and also Mr. Morehouse's last lecture to the Summer School students of 1917.

At 5 o'clock a number of the teachers visited the Cold Storage Plant and were shown through the plant by Mr. H. D. Reid. The teachers are very grateful to Mr. Reid for this and his many other kindnesses shown them.

Evening Session, Synod Building 7.30-9.

During this last evening session of the Summer School special lessons were given in Geometry and Trigonometry by Rev. W. H. Thomas, Geometry by Miss Collins, Geometry and Algebra by Mr. Goodman, and French by Misses Sterling and Carmichael.

Commencing at 8.15 Mr. Davies gave the last of his most interesting lectures on Geology at the close of which books on the Analysis of Minerals were distributed to the students.

On Saturday the closing session will be held in the Methodist College Hall, commencing at 11.45. Professor Hutton will finish his most practical lectures on Music, and Dr. Brunt will also complete his course of four lectures on "The Child."

In the evening a conversation will be held in the Methodist College Hall. A musical programme will be given under the direction of Mr. F. J. King, and a committee of kind ladies has arranged a pleasant time for all connected with what must be classed as the successful Summer School of 1917.
