WAR REVIEW.

Newton D. Baker, American Secretary for War, has successfully passed through the submarine zone and reached a French port. The continuation of patrol attacks by the German submarines all along the West front in France and Belgium indicates that they have been heavily re-equipped, and will be asked to withstand the pressure of a more serious nature, which has been suggested by the progress of the British, French and American in meeting enemy assaults in the past few weeks, and from the feeling of optimism that prevails, the headquarters staff to the west front, a warm reception may be expected by the enemy when he launches his attack. In the past fortnight, from Belgium to the Spanish frontier, the Germans have escaped minor assaults, in most of which they have been beaten before reaching the Entente trenches. Where a footing was obtained the German tenure of possession generally was short lived, for counter attacks expelled them. Everything in the way of modern warfare, and even the coming devices of frightfulness which the German mind has invented, not omitting liquid flame, has been tried against the Americans, but nowhere have they been able to dent the front held by General Pershing's men. On the contrary, the Americans have answered all German offensives with spirited great bravery, and although they have suffered some casualties, they have made the enemy feel the effects of their gun and rifle fire. One thing has been apparent in all the affairs that have occurred in that strip of territory between the trenches, known as "No Man's Land," is that the Germans do not like coming into hand to hand encounters with the Americans and invariably give ground in face of their various do or die attacks. As in France and Belgium activity along the entire fighting front in Northern Italy is heightening, and patrol engagements and artillery duels seemingly signalize the approach of bitter fighting. Doubtless with the spring the enemy will endeavour to force his way from the mountains up onto the plains of Venetia, and also to cross the Piave River and form a junction with his northern army. Here, however, the Italian army and French, and preliminary encounters may be expected. Although the breakdown in the Russian army in Asiatic Turkey was expected to release thousands of Turks who might be sent against British operations in Mesopotamia and Palestine, the British commanders in these regions apparently are unafraid, and look of them again have driven their lines forward. Lieut. Gen. Marshall having captured Hill on the Euphrates River, 80 miles west of Baghdad, and Gen. Allenby in Palestine having gone forward for an average depth of between two or three miles on a front of 15 miles, northwest of Jerusalem. Little additional information has come through concerning the situation in Russia, as regards either Great Russia, Little Russia or Eastern Siberia. Reports from Sweden say that a force of German infantry and artillery has invaded Finland, landing at Abo from the Aland Islands. The Cosack leader, Goul Somonoff, is endeavoring to put down the opposition of the Bolsheviks along the trans-Siberian railway in East Siberia. The Japanese Foreign Minister has declared in the Diet his intention to discuss the subject of Japan's intervention in Siberia. British airmen have successfully bombed Great Dalmier, a motor factory at Stuttgart, where for a long time the extensive manufacture of airplanes and motors has been in progress. Munitions factories and railway stations also were bombed during the attack, which was carried out in broad daylight.

LONDON, To-day.

Pointing out seriousness of German advance in Siberia and in Southern Russia, urging Japanese intervention, and insisting that German people afford no hope of raising against their imperialistic masters, Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, pointed out in a statement to the Associated Press what had already been accomplished by Germany in the East. Lord Cecil said, "look at what Germany has already done towards the scheme of world conquest in the west. She has taken the rich Baltic Provinces over which she purposes to install a German Prince. She sent troops to Finland and concluded an agreement which puts the whole foreign policy of Finland at her disposal. These steps in the north have practically cut off Russia from access to the sea. Looking further south we find that Germany is in course of occupying Odessa, the greatest Black Sea port, and that she has insisted that Russia cede to Turkey all ports at the west end of the Black Sea. Her evident design is to substitute for the Berlin to Baghdad railway, a new avenue to the east by trans-Caucasia and Northern Persia. In the execution of this design Germany moreover, has had, consciously or unconsciously, the assistance and co-operation of the Bolsheviks. Look at the plight of Armenia. Both Britain and America have always taken a deep interest and sympathy in this unhappy people. Armenian refugees who fled into trans-Caucasia are now under the Russo-German treaty to be handed back to the Turks. You have only to look at the map to see what a tremendous scheme of conquest Germany has undertaken, having been thwarted in her plan to conquer France. This is the second string to her bow and for the moment the whole German people seem to be backing this new Imperialistic scheme. Military control in Germany is paramount and unshaken. German democracy is docile and servile and the allies must adopt every means in their power to frustrate Germany's designs in the east.

ALLIES FRIENDS RESIGN.

MADRID, To-day.

King Alfonso to-day accepted the resignation of the entire cabinet headed by Marquis Albuernas, leader of the Liberal movement and a staunch friend of the Allies. The King has summoned to the palace the heads of different parties, Antonio Maura, Conservative leader, ex-Premier Eduardo Dato, Count Romanones, Liberal leader, Juan Lacierra, Minister of War and the Duke of Alba. There are two solutions to the ministerial tangle which has developed in Spain. First, a constitutional cabinet, comprising every element of the Liberal parties, and second the formation of a Conservative ministry embodying the various bodies opposed to a liberal administration but home-genuously Conservative in principle. Eventually military dictatorship, under Minister of War Juan de Lacierra, founded upon an exclusively military cabinet, seems to have been abandoned.

OF WHAT USE?

LONDON, To-day.

A Russian Government wireless despatch says that M. Tchitcher, Deputy Foreign Minister, has protested in behalf of the Russian Government to Germany, against the landing of German troops on the Aland Islands, Finland, as a violation of article six, of the Russo-German peace treaty. This provided for an international settlement of the question.

FIRED ON BOATS.

LIVERPOOL, To-day.

The Evening Express says, it is authoritatively informed that the body of one of the junior officers of the British hospital ship Glenart Castle, which was torpedoed in the Bristol Channel by German submarine, was picked up a short distance from the spot, and was found to have two gunshot wounds, one in the neck, the other in the thigh. There was a lifebelt on the body. While there have been no reports that Germans fired on the escaping crew of the hospital ship, at the time of torpedoing, this discovery leads to the belief that an attack was subsequently made on some of the boats.

STEAMER WRECKED.

Lord Cecil said, "look at what Germany has already done towards the scheme of world conquest in the west. She has taken the rich Baltic last night. All of the 176 persons on board are reported safe and were expected to reach here today on the steamer Sophia. Whether the vessel is a total loss is not known.

TO DEFER ACTION.

WASHINGTON, To-day.

By request of Senator Stone, of Missouri, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is considering reciprocal draft treaties with Britain and Canada, an agreement was made in the Senate yesterday to defer action on the resolution authorizing the President to fix a date for the registration of aliens subject to draft, under-pending on future treaties. Senator Stone said his Committee would doubtless report on treaties in the immediate future but first decided to consider the resolution in connection therewith.

HUN REPRISALS.

BERLIN, To-day.

Paris was again attacked with bombs last night the German War Office announces, which was reprisal for the throwing of enemy bombs on the town of Treves, Mannheim and Pirmasens on February 19. This attack was very effective.

ANOTHER AIR RAID.

BERLIN, To-day.

Thursday night, says an official statement, London, Margate and Sheerness were attacked with bombs by several airplanes and good effects were observed.

NEW RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT.

PETROGRAD, To-day.

The Pravda, organ of the Bolsheviks, prints a despatch from Irkutsk which says, the ex-President of the Council of Ministers of revolutionary Russia, Prince Lvov, has constituted in the far East, a new Russian Government which will present his seat at Peking, and which is awaiting the landing of Japanese troops at Vladivostok in order to enter Siberian territory with them.

TO CONTROL FISH.

BOSTON, To-day.

The copy of a so called agreement for control of the fish business, and said to have been signed by the captains of all but one of the 133 vessels bringing fresh fish to Boston, was put in evidence yesterday at the hearing of Government's civil suit for the dissolution of an alleged combination among dealers. In presenting this document Edward F. McClennan, who with the Assistant District Attorney, G. B. Goodster, is conducting the case for the Government, stated that it had been copied from the original agreement by Wm. H. Matheson, who is acting as an examiner in the case. It was headed, "Guarantees and Agreement for control of the fish business." No arguments were made on the matter.

FUNERAL OF CAPT. JOSEPH KEAN.

The funeral of the late Capt. Joseph Kean took place this morning at 11 o'clock from his late residence on Victoria Street. Members of the Masonic and Loyal Orange Associations were in attendance, as well as representatives from all classes. The funeral was the largest seen in this city since the funeral of the late Capt. Arthur Jackman.

BODIES IDENTIFIED.

The following bodies taken from the waters at Cappa Hayden since Friday last have been identified as John S. Munn, Capt. Joseph Kean, Edward Berteau, Second Steward, Charles Snow, W. Butler (Diver), James Miller, John Lynch and Michael Dunphy. Over thirty other bodies whose identity has not been given are now at Petty Harbor Station where Undertaker Carnell and assistants are having them prepared for burial.

That alone will cause war to cease in the world, and bring harmony, charity, righteousness, dealing between nation and nation, between man and man, bring real prosperity and happiness. God is calling for such men. "Whom shall I send, who will go for us?" Such a man, my brethren, we trust, we pray, your future Bishop will be, and that God will enable him by His Grace more and more to become. He has a glorious heritage in the past history of the Church in this Diocese. At the back of our minds to-day, even during this august and holy ceremony, there is the cherished memory of him who for so many years, with the chastened fervor of his cultured eloquence, and with the more constraining power of his holy life, preached from this place the ever-lasting Gospel: of him who, having fought a good fight, and finished his course, and kept the faith, has passed from among you, but whose memory lives, and will live, still suggesting "the tender grace of a day that is dead," awakening often in many an old friend's heart a regretful wish for "the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still." You who have known him know what manner of man a Bishop ought to be, and so faithfully is to be laid upon another, upon one who has gone in and out amongst you, and in the exercise of his sacred office, by his faithfulness and zeal, as well as by the consistency of his Christian character, has won your affection and your confidence. We feel sure that his sacred ministry amongst you as your Father-in-God will be fruitful of the greatest good, and that the Lord will strengthen him in all his doings and further receive from you, without doubt, a most hearty welcome as your Bishop, coupled with loyal and enthusiastic support in the work which he is about to undertake. In the name of my brother Bishops, who have journeyed to your city to take part in this holy solemnity, I desire to say that we bring to you and your future Bishop the most cordial greetings of the Canadian Church. For a long time it has been our sincere desire to be drawn into closer relationship with you in our ecclesiastical polity, believing that a closer union would result in greater good for both ourselves and you. And if you will pardon me for striking a personal note, coming as I do from the Diocese of Quebec, and since the two Dioceses are contiguous, at least on the coast of Labrador, I trust and feel sure that close bond of mutual good will and co-operation will ever exist and grow stronger as the years go by. We feel very keenly for you in this sad time, when the recent disaster has plunged so many homes into sorrow and bereavement, and we pray earnestly that God will comfort and cheer the stricken hearts, and raise up protection and help for those in need. May the God of love pour out upon the Church of Newfoundland, upon her Bishop, her Clergy and her people, the rich fullness of His Divine Benediction. May He, who spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, freely give you all things.

EVENING PRAYER.

Evening at the Anglican Cathedral yesterday was largely attended. The order was taken by Rev. C. H. Barton, Rev. W. J. R. Higgin, reading the first lesson, and the Bishop of Newfoundland the second lesson; Rev. J. Briston intoning the prayers.

The Archbishop of Nova Scotia preached a powerful and timely sermon, selecting for his text the words "Ye are the salt of the earth" from 5th chapter St. Matthew's Gospel, 13th verse. Bishop White pronounced the Benediction. The singing was of the usual high standard which those who attend the Cathedral expect.

The following announcement was made by the Bishop:—

Next Sunday (5th in Lent) the induction, installation and enthronement of His Lordship Bishop White will take place at 11 o'clock, following Morning Prayer, which will be said at 10 a.m.

SATURDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

In order to allow Oillers John Davis and Edward Timmons to proceed to the icefields, and Jose Fernandez, a Spanish foreman, to return to the United States, all three being members of the crew of the ill-fated Florizel, the further hearing of Captain Martin's evidence was again postponed, but will be resumed this afternoon.

John Davis, Oiller, Sworn:—I was on the Florizel for 9 years. I was on her the last voyage. I was on watch when she left port. I came on again at 4 o'clock. She generally has steam up all day. The fourth engineer came on watch at 3 o'clock. I went off at 8 o'clock. I was in bed between 8 and 4 o'clock. I could not say how the ship was at night. The 3rd engineer was on watch when I came on at 4 o'clock. He was relieved by Mr. Lamson, the second, myself and the second came on watch together. There was only one officer on watch at the time. There was no one in the engine room but myself and second except some foremen who were asleep at the back of the engine. There were three foremen and coal passers all Spaniards on watch at the time. I could not say if Jose Fernandez was on watch at the time. I am very seldom called to the stoke hold. The engines were running all right the same as usual. I have nothing to do with the revolutions of the ship's engines. I read the dial but cannot add it up. The main bearings were all right in my watch. None were hot. We had no trouble with the engines in my watch. I might have to help the engineer if there was trouble with the engine. The full working pressure is 175 pounds. I did not notice what pressure was on during my watch. The engines were running the same as usual. With this new propeller she did not make as many revolutions. That was the ice propeller. The revolutions at winter are practically the same. It all depends on the steam. I was in the engine room when the ship struck. The engines were not stopped. I could hear the telegraph. Full speed astern right after she struck was heard in the engine room. The second was standing near the telegraph. He put her full astern. She reversed within a couple of seconds. She was kept astern as far as I know. I was there a couple of minutes. When the water started to come in I got out immediately. About 3 or 4 minutes after she struck I heard the water rushing. I did not see it. That was on the starboard side of the engine. I don't know where it was coming from. It sounded like it was coming through the side of the ship. The engines were going astern when I left; the 2nd engineer was standing by the engines. I told him to come on and get up out of the room. He did not answer as far as I know. He did not tell me to remain. I went up and called the three engineers who were in their beds. I remained there about a minute, when I went on the saloon deck. I went up the side of the ship. I climbed from the main deck to the top deck. The passage way was jammed by passengers from the shelter deck to the boat deck, aft. It was too dark to see forward. As a matter of fact I did not look. I got on the starboard side of the smoking room, there was a lot of passengers there, also three engineers, the chief, 3rd and 4th. They might have come there after me; I saw them among the crowd. The sea was then coming over from aft. I was there about 10 minutes, all were there when I left. Women and children were crying. I didn't recognise anyone except the engineers. I did not count the children, there were about two or three, some about 5 years of age. I don't know how many children. I remember seeing two; I did not recognize any of them, they were all passengers. I then went to the Marconi Room. The sea was coming over the boat deck. It was also going over the smoking room. I got forward by watching the sea. There was no one else trying to get up at the same time as myself. One of the oilers and a couple of passengers were in the Marconi Room when I got there. The operators, Mr. Carter and Mr. Murphy, were outside. Timmons was the oiler that was in the Marconi Room. I was there till I was taken off. The two passengers who were then in the Marconi Room remained there up to the time when they were taken off. I do not know their names. It was filled right up, all they could stow in. There was no one turned away from it not as I know of. I was all parts of the room. I don't know how many were in it. There was two women there, Misses Cantwell and Dentist. I never saw them before. Some one told me their names. I know Joe Mullenvey, also Capt. Parmiter. That's all I know except our own crew. In the Marconi Room were two operators, two gunners, three engineers, second, third and fourth, two oilers Timmons and myself. The bosun Dooley was there but he left with the captain. They intended swinging a line ashore. I was taken off in a dory. The two girls were taken off first. I was trying to keep life in myself; we had nothing to eat or drink. We had a flash light in the room. The operator had it and used it for signalling. The sea broke the door open. We stamped our feet and sung and did many other things to keep alive.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gibbs.—I came on watch at 4 o'clock next morning. I was on when she left port. I came off at 8 o'clock. There were three foremen in my watch. The foreman who came off watch were lying back of the engine; that is not unusual. There was no part of the ship's deck carried away when I go on deck. The lights were then out.

To Mr. Warren.—I turned in immediately I came off watch. She doesn't turn as many revolutions in the winter as she does in the summer, was what I heard the engineers talk about. I did not know that with my own knowledge.

Edward Timmons, Sworn:—I was on the Florizel 4 years in August coming. I went on watch at 8 to 12 o'clock. I relieved Davis. Hennesbury relieved me at 12. Wm. Taylor, 4th engineer, was on watch. The engines were running all right in the 8 to 12 watch. They were going their usual speed.

I don't know what revolutions the propeller was making. She was running at full speed till 12 o'clock as far as I know. There was no trouble from 8 to 12 with the engines. I had nothing extra to do. The engineers had nothing special to do as far as I know. The engines require the same amount of oil whether she is going fast or slow.

To Commander McDermott.—The engines were racing a little before 12 o'clock. I turned in at 1 o'clock. I was getting a mug of tea. I never woke till she struck. I thought she was in ice when she struck first. The second time I knew it was rocks as she struck heavy. The lights went out as I got on the deck. The lights went out suddenly. My quarters were underneath the forecastle head. The seas were coming over her as I came aft. I did not see anyone. I came aft on the port side and went into the saloon. I could not see. I heard people roaring and screaming. The waters were in the saloon then. I could not tell how many were there, women mostly. I went aft on the starboard side down through the saloon. I was trying to get up on the boat room deck. There was some people with grips and blocked up the doorway at the head of the stairs. I got up through when the people got clear of the smoking room door. The 2nd and 4th engineers were the only ones I knew. I went on the starboard side of the smoking room, outside the room. There was quite a bunch standing there. I only recognized 2nd and 3rd and 4th engineers. It was not light enough to recognize anyone. There was no confusion. I don't know if there was any children or not. I remained there about 4 or 5 minutes when I went to the fiddley. That was the only place I could see. It would be safer in the fiddley than in the smoking room. I went forward on the starboard side, the seas were coming over them. They were heavy enough to carry me away. There was 3 or 4 foremen in the fiddley. It was too dark to see if anyone was washed overboard. It was dark at the time when I got to the fiddley. I remained there till daylight, about one hour and a half. No other persons came into the fiddley. At daylight I went to the Marconi room. There is an open space between both rooms. The Marconi room was full at the time. Mr. Carter, the Marconi Operator, was there. Two women, and some of the crew: Davis, Molloy, Harry Snow, 3rd mate. The Captain came there after. The three engineers were in there. I remained there till Monday morning.

Mr. Carter signalled to ships on Sunday night with flash lights. We got a signal from the Prospero on Sunday night from her operator by means of the whistle. I saw a boat leave the shore on Sunday but it was swamped shortly after leaving. On Sunday night a lifeboat from one of the steamers came near. I did not see any rockets fired off from the shore. There are two doors and two ports in the Marconi Room. I did not hear my report of a gun or rocket from the shore. The second steward also had a flash light. No one was refused admission to the Marconi Room. I was taken off in a dory. I don't know who rescued me.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gibbs.—The screaming was heard in the forepart of the Social Hall. The weather at 8 o'clock was fine. At 12 o'clock it was snowing a little.

To Mr. Warren.—One o'clock I went asleep. I generally sleep in my underclothing. It was between 5 and 6 minutes after the ship struck that I arrived at the Social Hall. The seas were then going down through the saloon doors. I got wet before I got to the saloon. I did not see anyone till I got to the foot of the stairs leading to the smoking room deck.

Jose Fernandez, a Spanish foreman, through his interpreter, Mr. A. A. Delgado, said:—I am a native of Corunna, Spain. I was a foreman on the last voyage of the Florizel. I went on watch at 4 a.m., Sunday. I was not on watch on Saturday. There is three foremen on watch at a time. The coal burned all right, it was the usual coal. I was in the fire room when she struck. I don't know what happened. All the foremen came up in a hurry on deck. They got on one side of a boat and took shelter on the top deck on the starboard side. There were more people there. It was very dark and I could not tell who were there. I believed it was No. 1 boat we sheltered under. I remained there four or five minutes. I went alongside the smoke-stack and then to the Marconi Room and stayed there 3 or four hours. I don't know how many people were there. There was room for a few more in the room. Leaving the Marconi Room I went back to the smoke-stack (fiddley) where I remained 20 hours. There was an officer and 4 or 5 other persons in the fiddley. I joined the ship on the 5th of July last year. There were 3 or 4 passengers in the fiddley. There was a soldier (Major Sullivan) there but I only know him by sight. I remained there till I was taken off. The others stayed there till I was taken off. I saw the dead bodies on deck. I don't know how they died; they were men. There was 3 or 4 other Spaniards there at 4.30 Sunday morning. I don't know what became of them as I went to the Marconi Room and remained there 3 or 4 hours and went back to the fiddley. When I came back from the Marconi Room the five Spanish foremen were gone. I did not see any lines come by means of a rocket from the shore. I saw two Bengal lights on the shore.

After the War.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

What a lot of things this war has changed! What a lot more it is going to change! And one of the things that belongs to both those classes is the servant problem. Everywhere one goes one meets women who are cutting this Gordian knot. Before the war they were forever trying to untie it—that is to get good servants at reasonable wages. Then the war came along and offered them the shears and straightway they cut it by doing the work themselves.

Two Children And Nineteen Rooms. Just the other day I met a woman who has two children, a house with nineteen rooms and a husband with more than a comfortable income. She used to keep one, and sometimes two, maids. She is doing her own work now with two days of a chorowoman's labor. She has two reasons, one that by so doing she can better rob the greedy maw of the crumb bucket. The other that she can thus have money of her own for the countless needs of war time.

Fine For the Children. A gain I know a young mother with four children all under ten. Her husband, too, has a reasonably comfortable income and her father is a wealthy man. Yet she, too, is doing her own work, for much the same reasons. One of the interesting results in her case is the effect on the children. Each child has his or her task. Three of them are girls and they are learning a wonderful lot about housework. I asked the oldest how they liked the new order. "I don't like the dishes," she said, "but I'm learning to cook and that's lots of fun. I used to want to go into the kitchen and mother would never let me, and now I can go there whenever I want and I've learned to make hasty pudding and gingerbread and I'm going to make corncake to-morrow."

There will be many results of this exodus into the kitchen. One will be that after the war (especially with the probable influx of immigrant labor) inefficient maids will not be able to exact a wage out of all proportion to their abilities and to the rest of the economic scale. The Maids Will Gain, Too. Another is that women will be more intelligent and more thoughtful about the equipment of their kitchens. One woman I know has already reorganized her kitchen. When she used to keep a maid she was always wondering what made her so slow about getting a meal. She knows now. She knows that when the ice chest is down a long corridor and one has to go through two doors and round a corner to get the dishes to set the table, getting a meal is a burdensome thing. And she has changed all that. So the maids will gain as well as lose by this readjustment.

We have been using MINARD'S LINIMENT in our home for a number of years and use no other Liniment but MINARD'S, and we can recommend it highly for sprains, bruises, pains or tightness of the chest, soreness of the throat, headache or anything of that sort. We will not be without it one single day, for we get a new bottle before the other is all used. I can recommend it highly to anyone. JOHN WALKFIELD. LaHave Islands, Lunenburg Co., N.S.

Your Boys and Girls. It can never be insisted upon too strongly that children be given only light suppers and that the digestion should take its hardest work to do during the day, before evening and bedtime come. Bread and milk makes the best supper and a child should eat all the wishes of this light and nourishing food. If care is taken in this direction, sleep will be sound and rest will be refreshing. There is no more perfect food combination for a child's supper than bread and milk, although in many homes this fact seems to be entirely forgotten. The dish is easily prepared, it contains all the elements of perfect food and it deserves a prominent place in the dietary of every child, provided the milk is pure and the bread wholesome.

To-Day's Tabloid Tale.

DEPENDING ON WHOSE. Bullion Boliver's choleric blue eyes glowed angrily as he looked down at the placid face of Rudolph Penny.

"This is a free country and every man in it has the right of free speech," he cried. "No arbitrary power has the right to interfere with the free expression of a man's personal opinion, and my personal opinion is that President Wilson hasn't got sense enough to come in out of the rain, that the American people are a set of ignorant blockheads, and there's not a sane Englishman in all England, because no sane man would be an Englishman. That's my opinion, and this is a free country and I've got a right to express it, and every other man's got an equal right to give his opinion, I don't care what it is or who suffers in consequence."

Rudolph Penny reached out and shook his hand. "I'm glad to hear you say that," he said heartily. "Every man should be entitled to the free expression of his own opinion, that's right. No man's opinion if a man that has sentiments like yours in a time like this present is that he is a rank ingrate, a miserable excuse for a citizen, a yellow patriot and a pro-German. Of course, that's just one man's opinion, but as you say, I have a perfect right—"

Bullion Boliver took him by the scruff of the neck and hurled him against the nearest wall. Then he lifted him by the seat of the trousers and hurled him against the furthest wall. Then he jumped on him eight times, called him out of his name, and walked off.

"Fish!" murmured Rudolph Penny weakly, but disdainfully. "I called his bluff, all right!"

Milady's Boudoir.

KEEPING WELL FOR BEAUTY. The old habit has become in the winter regime of many women who feel the cold and must go out every day. From a tablespoon to a wine glass, the latter advised by a celebrated physician, is taken twice or three times a day according to the digestion. This is heating and nourishing and is sometimes taken in place of meat, where this is eliminated from the diet as in the case of kidney disorders. It is a gentle lubricant and is desirable on that account if the oil possesses no other virtue. When the digestion and blood are in prime condition the various functions must be retained and this is impossible without a certain amount of exercise, preferably out of doors. Exercise within a heated apartment or house is surely better than none but the ideal place for exercise is in the open where the air is not contaminated with impurities to be found even in the cleanest, most sanitary home.

Exercise out of doors increases the oxygen supply, it warms the blood and stimulates the circulation. Naturally we feel a glowing warmth, which no radiator or artificial means could produce. Activity out of doors for half an hour or an hour every day the weather permits, will tend to keep the head and throat clear, steady the nerves and encourage deep breathing. Sleeping in a well ventilated room is important for good health. Avoid drafts, but have a free current of air in the room, the bed clothes warm but light in weight.

WARTIME SMILES.

No war comrade, more than ever, when war goes on apace, it should be your endeavor to wear a cheerful face; don't cast wet blankets over us; there are enough to bore us with their depressing chorus, when grief is a disgrace. We hear enough forecast of disaster, as we go; we hear enough dod-gasting of everything below; we hear enough of sighing, we see enough of crying, without another trying to hand out slabs of woe. Don't labor to dishearten the delegates you meet; but show, with courage Spartan, a smile serene and sweet; we're weary of the fellow who, with his streak of yellow, can only beef and bellow, and show his frigid feet. One thing is true as blazes, and always has been true; a lot of grouchy phrases won't make things good as new; should we strike ugly sailing, and see our plans go trailing, a lot of tears and wailing won't make the boys less blue. One thing is true as thunder, and always has been so; if we would trample under a fierce and deadly foe, we need high hearts, undaunted; and with us is not wanted the man who's always flouted the condor wings of woe. So dry your tears disgustin', and let our soldiers feel that you have perfect trust in their courage and their steel; how can they fight, on hearing that we, instead of cheering, are doubting, weeping, fearing, and making doleful apit?

Household Notes.

- Rice is rich in starch and deficient in oil.
- Scalloped codfish and rice is delicious.
- Growing children need most nourishing food.
- Children should not be allowed fried foods.
- Chopped parsley adds a nice flavor to an omelet.
- Salmon is particularly good for fish timbales.
- Corneal mush needs very thorough cooking.
- Canned beet greens can be used the same as spinach.
- Dumplings can be made with half corn flour.
- Spinach is excellent cold with a salad dressing.
- Fried bananas are a good accessory with meat.
- Rice bread retains its moisture for several days.
- Honey is particularly good in cakes and cookies.
- Potatoes are more wholesome baked than boiled.
- Good gingerbread can be made with part rye flour.
- Gelatine pudding can be made with dried apricots.
- Popovers can be made of half rye and half white flour.
- Corneal hot cakes are best when the batter is very thin.
- Baked bananas are an agreeable change in cooked fruits.
- Two minutes in boiling water will set the white of an egg.
- Simple sweets are essential to the proper growth of a child.
- Hot scones made partly of oatmeal are delicious for tea.
- Fat and flavor should be supplied to fish by sauces and relishes.
- Young green vegetables should be cooked in salted boiling water.
- A three-pound lard pail is good for keeping fish in the icebox.

Everyday Etiquette.

"Should a widow use her husband's initials or name or her own on her cards?" asked the young widow. "Legally, a widow has no right to use her husband's initials or name, but public sentiment is in favor of allowing her to do so," said her social mentor.

Inexcusable Bungling Ties Up Railway.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—Taking a retrospective view of railway operations since the beginning of this year the question which the situation suggests to one is: how long is this fiasco going to continue? What has the Government done in the matter of the Company's inability to live up to the terms of its contract in so far as it relates to the operating of the cross-country train service? It cannot any longer remain inactive in the face of the record of the road during the past two months. The patience of the people is about exhausted. The commercial men when asked if nothing can be done to improve the service shrug their shoulders and tell us it is useless to approach the officials of the Company as they appear to be utterly indifferent. The Government seem to be bound hand and foot by Mr. Coaker, whose recent association with the President of the Road and other officials high in its service, in business matters, appears to have chained him to the Reid Company's chariot more firmly than Mr. Coaker would have believed the ex-Premier, Lord Morris, was bound to the Reid interests by the collective force of "gold." When we were having a daily cross-country express service in operation and traffic circulating over the system in a fairly satisfactory manner, Mr. Coaker used to be loud in his denunciations of the Company's delays. He assured the fishermen that as soon as they turned out Morris and the Reid Company prosecuted and compelled to pay damages for their failure to live up to their obligations. He pointed out then that they had Mr. Morine in the country and could
