CATHOLIC CHRONICLE.

VOL. XVII.

MONTREAL, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1866.

No. 9

CLARA LESLIE.

A TALE OF OUR OWN TIMES.

'You had a brother at Oxford, Miss Leslie?' said Courtney. 'Yes. Did you know him?' 'I did,' he replied, 'he and his friend De Grey.'

'I have wished so to speak to you for a long time. I have been so unhappy since you have been absent.' 'There was a sympathetic kind of a noise, and Mr. Wingfield asked, 'Has anything happened to disturb your home?'

'Consider what you are doing,' replied Mr. Wingfield. 'You are taking upon yourself to pronounce that the Church of England has no Sacraments, no priests; that you yourself have never received the Body and Blood of Christ, have never been confirmed, perhaps never been baptized—and all this on your private authority!'

the Church of England,' replied Clara; for she still trembled before that mighty system of devotion to the Blessed Mother of God, which is the last barrier Satan always throws before the soul that is returning to the fold of Christ, and speciously takes indeed the form of an angel of light, when he lures his wiles under the guise of greater honor to the Lord of Glory.

Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost. Amen.' She scarcely heard the concluding prayers; all was once more an indescribable chaos, and she perfectly trembled at the promise she had made.

'And he can still love us, Mr. Courtney.—You know they tell me converts change so, they forget all their old affections.' 'At any rate, your brother is not changed on that point,' replied Mr. Courtney, 'if I can judge by the overflowing love and affection with which he received me. He only seemed surprised and grateful to find that I could still love him as much as ever.'

'Ob, no, not at all,' replied Clara, amid her tears; 'but I took to reading 'Loss and Gain.' Mr. Morris gave me leave to do so, and that upset my mind first.'

'The Church of England sends her children to primitive antiquity to bear out her teaching,' replied Mr. Wingfield. 'She appeals to the first centuries, and challenges Roman controversialists to prove her not part of Christ's Catholic Church. It is on account of our strength in the Fathers that the Roman controversialists have lately changed their mode of attack, and no longer openly assert, as they did in the days of Milner, that the Church of the Fathers was precisely like the modern Church of Rome, but they fall back on the new system of Development. The controversy is one which requires years of study—study so intricate that neither you or I are up to it.'

'You must not trust your excited feelings,' said he; 'they are no guide. Now, Clara,' he added, 'you have often told me that I am the Voice of God to you; now is your time to prove you love and affection for me. Will you promise me one thing?'

'Here I am,' said she; and Catherine was in a moment at her side. Her face was flushed, her eyes brilliant. Clara thought she looked unusual; but Catherine said nothing, and tenderly asked Clara what had happened with Mr. Wingfield.

CHAPTER XV.—ANGLICAN DIRECTION. 'Courage, dutiful maiden; the nails and bleeding brows. The pale and dying lips, are the portion of the Spouse.' It was Christmas Eve of that eventful year 1848, and Clara sat restlessly in Catherine Temple's boudoir, starting at every sound, and her heart sinking within her with a feeling of dead sickness, and half fainting whenever she fancied she heard the door-bell ring.

'I do doubt the sacraments,' said Clara, in a low tone. 'I never did before, and the doubt is agony. I have no peace left.'

'I have looked at only that till now,' replied Clara; 'but now I seem to open my eyes to another side—the Evangelical side—of the question, and the whole Communion Service seems on their side, not ours.'

Mr. Wingfield was silent, then went on in a few minutes: 'Do you know the formula of abjuration?' 'I do,' replied Clara, producing it. 'I procured it at once.'

CHAPTER XVII.—NEW SORROWS. 'The arrow cannot wound the air, Nor thunder rend the sea, Nor injury long afflict the heart That rests, O Love in Thee!'

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Paris correspondent of the Evening Star, writing on the 9th inst., says:—It is reported that the Marquis de Lavalette has been favored with a letter from the Emperor, wherein his Majesty asserts that he had insisted upon obtaining the most insignificant territorial compensation from Prussia...

The Pull Mall Gazette says:—We hear from Paris that the appointment of M. de Moustier to the French Foreign Office is by no means, as is supposed by some Prussian and English papers, a sign that the Emperor has given up his design of extending the French frontier on the side of the Rhine...

THE REASON HE WAS DISMISSED.—The resignation of M. Drouyn de Lhuys, French Minister of Foreign Affairs we have good reason to believe is really a dismissal. The checks which Napoleon has received from Mexico and from Prussia rendered it expedient for the Emperor to disclaim responsibility for the policy which led to them.

The visitation of cholera in Belgium has been terrible. The official returns up to the 21st ult. put the number of persons attacked with cholera at 31,051; deaths, 16,599. The Catholic journals describe the effects of this awful scourge as having been remarkably beneficial in a religious point of view.

THE FRENCH BARRICADES.—It is stated that the garrison of the camp of Chalons has been definitely adopted by the French Government, with two modifications unanimously proposed by the committee appointed to superintend the experiments. To satisfy the first wants of the service, the manufacture of 200,000 of this new weapon is going to be carried out.

MAXIMILIAN'S SUCCESSOR.—Prince Turbide, whom the Emperor Maximilian has appointed to be his successor on the throne of Mexico, is now at Brussels, under the care of M. Eloin, the Imperial Chief of Cabinet.

LAMIRANDE AT PARIS.—We translate the following from L'Evenement of the 8th inst.:—The Orleans train last night brought with it Sureau Lamirande, the ex-Casimir of the bank of France at Poitiers. Seven months ago this person disappeared, leaving a deficit of seven hundred and eighty-six thousand francs.

31 million francs, while the paper in circulation is 365 millions. Formerly it was limited to thrice the amount of the specie in hand. In Milan, Florence, and probably in other Italian cities, popular banks have been established, which issue one franc notes, and these are now eagerly sought after. The National Bank has been authorized to issue five franc notes, which does not look as if the disastrous reign of paper were drawing to a close.

CHURCH LIBERTY UNDER PIEMONTESE TYRANNY.—In the Correspondance de Rome for several years past, the above heading has been a standing one, and under it has been recounted many a history that might make Catholic blood boil. For cruelty and unscrupulousness in its hatred of religion, the Piedmontese Government might compare with any Pagan or infidel tyranny that has ever reigned in the world.

ITALY.

PIEDMONT.—The Cession of Venetia.—The Independence Belge says:—The publication by the Montieur of the conditions attached to the acquisition of Venetia has produced in Italy a revival of irritation against the indirect cession of that province.

Various French and Italian journals combine in exhorting Italy to busy herself so soon as peace is concluded, before all other things, with the re-establishment of her credit. Nothing is more urgent, but it is to be feared that few things are more difficult. Much will depend on the attitude of the Government, and it is to be hoped it will show itself equal to the emergency.

PRUSSIA.

THE DETHRONED QUEEN OF HANOVER.—The Morning Post publishes a private letter from Hanover, which speaks of the sad effect that recent events have produced upon Queen Mary. Her hair, which but a few weeks ago was quite black, is now grey.

RUSSIA.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.—It is allowable, says the Vienna Presse, to form a supposition—the only plausible one—respecting the appointment of M. de Moustier to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, the nomination of this diplomatist means that the Eastern question is again raised.

ROMA.—DECREASE OF BRIGANDAGE.

The Pontifical Government is doing its utmost to extirpate the bands of brigands who still infest the province of Velletri and Frosinone. For this purpose strong detachments of troops have been sent into these provinces, rewards have been offered for the capture of brigands.

AUSTRIA.

An entire reform of the military system of Austria is spoken of, and it is said means will eventually be adopted for doubling the available forces of the Empire.

The following extracts from the letter of a distinguished English cavalry officer, who has travelled since the war through Austria and Prussia, with the object of examining the troops of all arms, may be interesting to English readers, and may prevent them from too suddenly taking up the idea that Austria's army is inferior to that of the Prussians because it has been beaten by them this once, under the double misfortune of inferior small arms and some incapable generals.

Now all this goes to prove what has already appeared in your columns, that Austria ought not to have been considered as without hope at the end of the campaign, and that Prussia will have some difficulty to hold her own, if the ancient Empire should re-arm her infantry, put her best men in command of her armies, and rise again to revenge her present humiliation.

THE FESTIVAL OF ROSES.

Sidonie was the favorite of her parents, as well as of all the inhabitants of Sonnenthal; she was fresh as a rose, and her eyes were soft and bright as the evening star. She was gentle and reserved in her words; her mind was well cultivated, and her heart innocent and pure.

others; soon they will have lost their brightness.—The same must happen to you also. Do not attach too much value to earthly objects. Thank rather on that which is eternal—a well-cultivated mind, and a pure and pious heart.

To render the garden most dear to his pupils, and to give more weight to his instructions, M. Thalberg conceived the idea of celebrating every year the Festival of Roses.

The young girls were at the height of their joy; dressed in their holiday-clothes, each repaired to the house of M. Thalberg, ranged two and two, they thus proceeded to the garden, in the vicinity of which a tent had been erected, and a table, on which were all kinds of prepared dishes.

Two of the pupils then took Sidonie's hand, and led her to a grass plot encompassed with roses, whilst a third strewed rose leaves in her path; then all her companions surrounded her; two among them were placed in the centre with the queen, who having knelt down, was crowned, when all again sang:

"Oh, sweetest, fairest, loveliest flower, By zephyr fann'd in summer hour! Long may thy virgin freshness last, Unwith'rd by the north wind's blast!"

Each pupil tried to make herself agreeable to the Queen of the Festival; they brought her the loveliest flowers, and anticipated all her wishes.

MYSTERIES.—'Mysteries are a living fire,' says a holy and learned writer; 'which forbids too near approaches. We ought, therefore, to beware of imitating the rashness of the Roman sage, whose impatient curiosity impelled him to explore the burning secrets of Mount Etna, until from an immoderate thirst of knowledge, he fell a victim to his own temerity.'

OF ANCIENT VERSIONS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.—There are many Latin versions, or rather, perhaps, recensions of the New Testament, some of which are of great antiquity, and highly valuable as critical evidences. Several of these old versions were published by Sabbatier and Bianchini, in the middle of the last century.

UNITED STATES.

RELIGIOUS DESTINATION.—Bishop Hopkins of Vermont, reports in his annual address that the theological department of the Vermont Episcopal Institute is without students.

PLEASANT BUT WRONG.—In Milwaukee during the State Fair many persons were indignant that they should be charged a dollar for admittance. A shanty near the fun-house was a good business. The proprietors sawed a hole into the grounds, the visitors going in under the bar.

BETTER TO SLIP WITH THE FOOT THAN THE TONGUE.—REV. C. A. BUCKLEE, Treas. Am. Bible Union, N. Y., writes—"I very cheerfully add my testimony to that of numerous other friends, to Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylolalsamum. The latter I have found superior to anything I have ever used."

PONCE DE LEON ON PERFUMES.—This celebrated lieutenant of the great Columbus, pronounced the flowers in the everglades of Florida, 'the most fragrant under the skies.' From these odor-teeming blossoms MURRAY & LANMAN'S FLORIDA WATER is prepared, so that the fame of its fragrance may be said to date back to the days of the great navigator, who gave to Canale and Aragon a New World.
