mourning today would not have fol-lowed the King's death ten years ago. It was because of what he had done since that he was lamented. In fact, ten years ago his death would have been regarded by many with feelings of relief, as though some burden had been lifted from the Empire, and some nightmare dispelled. "I do not say there would have been reasons for this; I am simply stating a fact." Mr Inkster went on to eulogize the King for the wisdom and sanity he had shown since ascending the throne. It vas the personality and good offices of the King that had won the friendship of France and the confidence of Russia, and had materially improved the relations between Great Britain and Germany. He was a keen judge of men, and acted impartially between party and party, and between class and lass. His treatment of Gladstone and Campbell-Bannerman was a credit to his discernment; his kindness of heart and his perception of the duties of his position. It was owing to Victoria and Edward that monarchy as an institution had been rehabilitated. The speaker hoped that the new sovereign was endowed with his grandmother's virtue and his father's wisdom, and would walk in their footsteps. THE KING'S OAK DIED SHORTLY BEFORE KING

Had Been Planted in Central Park When He Was Prince of Wales, [Associated Press.]

New York, May 9.—The death of King Edward VII. has set the folk in Central Park to talking about the comparatively recent death of the King's oak, which Edward planted in King's oak, which Edward planted in Central Park at the time of his visit to this country in 1860, when he was Prince of Wales. The death of the oak took place a year ago; it was a Burdock Blood Bitters, and it completely oak took place a year ago; it was a year ago that the King's health is said to have started on the decline.

Park employees recalled that in 1902

the oak was thought to be dying.

the commissioners to purchase the Popular Newspaperman Weds Charming Bride.

> A quiet wedding was solemnized at residence of Mr. and Mrs G. H. Larsche, 189 Central avenue, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when their eldest daughter, Miss Bessie, was united in marriage to Mr. J. Wallace Laut, a well-known newspaperman, of this city. The young couple were unattended, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Richard Whiting, pastor of First Methodist Church. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. They left on the 4:25 Grand Trunk train for Syracuse, where they will make their

Mr. Laut was one of the best-known of the younger newspapermen of the city. He worked for some time on The Advertiser, later going to the Free Press. He spent a couple of years in Syracuse on the Post-Standard, Later he worked in this city. In Syracuse he will engage in magazine work with Mr. W. R. Marshall, another former London newspaperman, Mrs. Laut was well known in musical circles and was for some time connected with the First Methodist choir.

A number of friends of the couple were at the station to wish them Godspeed.

Skin Diseases.

Under this name such troubles as Salt Rheum, Eczema, Erysipelas, Tetter Shingles, Psoriasis, Scurf, Itching Rashes Eruptions, Boils, Pimples, etc., are in-sluded. Skin diseases, as a rule, are not dangerous, but are unsightly, irritating and often terribly annoying to the suf ferer; they depend mainly on bad blood from one cause or another, for if the blood is pure and the circulation good no skir disease can exist, except it arise from lack of proper cleanliness or from contagion. To get rid of skin diseases it is necessary to observe strictly all the laws of health: maintain regular action of the bowels; avoid high living, eating only plain nour ishing food. Cleanse and keep the blood pure by taking Burdock Blood Bitters, which unlocks all the secretions, and makes new rich blood by acting on the Mrs. E. M. Myers,

Hand Embroidered

These hand-made and hand-embroidered speciallyselected Paris garments are nearer to perfection than any we have ever seen. The styles are simpler and more individual, and the embroideries more refined; generously cut and shapely. Delighted will be the JUNE BRIDE who secures an outfit from this assortment. The daintiness of the designs, the exquisite needlework, and the soft, fine materials are the charm for women who have a taste for the refined and beautiful.

6716-GROUP OF PRACTICAL MODELS -SET OF SLEEVES.

In renovating last season's gowns and walsts it is sometimes necessary to make over the sleeve. In the designs here shown we have two up-to-date models that may be made in full length or threequarter style, and with long or shorter cuff. The bishop sleeve is most practical for shirtwaists and house gowns, while the puff sleeve is very desirable for dressy waists. The pattern is cut in three sizes, small, medium and large. It requires 1½ yards of 24-inch material for one pair of sleeves in bishop style, 1% yards for sleeves with deep cuff, 1% yards for three-quarter sleeves with band cuff, or for puff sleeve. Pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

Clouds closed about her soul everything stood out against a dark background in sullen, dismal hues. So absorbed was she in her own misery that she did not hear a gentle knock at the door, did not hear the maid's voice speaking. Not until the door shook slightly to a determined tread did she look up, and then she made a quick motion to hide her grief, for above all things she was a woman of

"Er-I hope I don't intrude," said Fortescue, standing still before her. "I wouldn't do that for the world. You know that, I think. If you wish me to go, Marion, I'll go at once."

She gathered herself together, and because of her sorrow she threw more tion, warmth into her voice than she was perhaps aware of.

"No; don't go," she said. "I wish came upon me in an awkward moment, but now—yes, stay. I want you to stay, Harold." She was talking fevishly; she did not notice the momentary triumphant smile on the man's face. Fortescue looked at her tearwet cheeks and marked how Marion was one woman who could weep without making herself unsightly.

"Then I will stay," he said gently. "It seems to me that you are trouble, and there's nothing like a friend when one's in trouble, as I have found." He called himself friend, but he knew himself for the girl's bitterest enemy, for what he had in mind was that the hour had come

It was an oppressive day, one of those days when the human mind becomes momentarily unbalanced; a day when things are done that might be matter for regret for a lifetime. If Fortescue had chosen his moment he could not have arranged it more to his liking or to his needs.
"Let me ring for tea," she said

"You will surely stay for tea, now that you are here." She was still quivering from her recent grief; her hands were not quite under control, but she was aware of a sense of sympathy in the man. Fortescue seated lard. himself at a respectful distance from her, watching her every movement as a cat watches a mouse. "No tea for me, thanks," he said nonchalantly. "It's too hot; it's rather inclined for thunder outside. Sorry to find you upset, Marion. Is there anything I can do-command me. Marion, it goes to my heart to see you like this, when I'd give the welfare of my immortal soul to save you from a single pang." He had thrown a wealth of eartness into his voice now-it was vibrant with feeling. Marion found it pleasant to listen to after the recent nisery. If Fortescue had come upon her before he might have hesitated ere showing his hand so openly, but the fates were working on his side, he said; and little by little he drew nearer to her side.

"There are times when it is necessary to open out and tell someone—someone who can understand—what is wrong. A single word might do so wrong. A single word might do so much, Marion; just a little word. Not that I would intrdue on your private grief"—he was playing his cards deftly—"but you surely do not think that I am blind. I can see as far through a wall as most men, and I know that your life is not happy here." He stopped, as if to allow his words time to soak into her understanding; in reality to see whether he dare proceed along these lines. But Marion was too self-absorbed to notice that he had overstepped the bounds of good form; all she knew was that this man seemed to understand much of her trouble. "Marion, it nearly breaks my heart to see you growing thinser and paler every day," went on the tempter subtly. "Oh, there are times when I feel that I can't conceal the truth any tly. "Oh, there are times when I feel that I can't conceal the truth any longer, despite myself. There's nothing I long for so much as your happiness, and yet, watching, I find myself unable to further it in the least degree. Marion, isn't there a way to help?" Your sympathy is very comforting," she said softly. "After being used to coldness from everyone about me, to hear a word spoken kindly is very—very—" She sought for a word, but did not find one, for Fortescue had struck his blow. "Marion, do you think it's sympathy that is actuating me? Pooh! Sympathy is all very well, and you are sure of mine whenever you call upon it; but this sympathy is the outcome of something more than mere concern. I -Marion, you can show me the door and send me from you without even a farewell, but I must tell you the truth. I'm mad with it; the electricfer whilst he escapes scot-free. TAFT PUTS SURTAX ON THE PULPWOOD

Retaliates for Action Taken by the Province of Quebec.

Washington, May 9.—Following the regulation recently adopted in Quebec, forbidding the exportation of pulpwood from crown lands, the department has given instructions to collectors of customs on the Canadian border assessing duty on woodpulp and printing paper produced from pulpwood cut on such lands after May 1, as provided in the tariff act.

These rates are as follows: On mercantile ground woodpulp, onetwelfth of one cent per pound, dry weight. On chemical woodpulp, unbleached, one-sixth of one cent per pound, dry weight; bleached, one-quarter of one cent per pound, dry weight. On printing paper, the regular rates, and, in addition thereto, the additional duty of one-tenth of one cent per pound, when valued at three cents per pound or less.

LET THE WHITE SOX STEAL THIS GAME

Looks Much Too Easy at Start, and Careless Play Follows.

Detroit, May 8.-Eliminating from consideration the fact that they blew a ball game after it was bottled up-tossing it defensively on a weird bit of work by Detroit, May 8.—As if to assure Tiger Ty Cobb that cost two runs, and that fans in attendance at Saturday's game was entirely without a reason, and ofthan their opponents, and they had no errors—of record—while Chicago had one that helped to score a run. But in the little matter of tallies they tagged behind at the finish. The Sox had five, and were entitled to three. The Tigers had three, and should have had not less than twice as many

GRAHAM SCOUTS 7. TEAMSTERS 6 A game of baseball which had been arranged for some time between Graham's Scouts of the D. S. Perrin Com-1 pany and C. P. R., took place on Sat-lurday afternoon on the C. P. R. diamond. The game was stubbornly contested throughout, and it was not until the last part of the game that a timely two-bagger by Cap. Graham scored the winning run for the Scouts.
A. Gillies' (of the C. P. R.) three-bagger, and Taylor's long drives were the features. It is not unlikely that a return game will be played. Batteries-Scouts-Murray and Dwyer; C. P. R.-

THEIR AVERAGES

Moore and Maroney Are Taken for Total of 16 Hits by McGraw's Sluggers.

New York, May 7.-The New York Nationals took a free-hitting game from Philadelphia today by a score of 7 to 2, and could have won by a much larger margin had they not been hungry for a meal before leaving for the west at 8 o'clock. After the fourth inning the locals ran bases recklessly in order to get put out. Both Marquard of New York and Moore of Philadelphia were batted off the rubber early in the game.

Great Showing Made by the Boilermaker Saturday-Johnson Reported Killed.

Ben Lomond, May 9.-None of Jim Jeffries' workouts have pleased his trainers more than his Saturday bouts with Choynski and Papke. The speed and endurance shown by the fighter, and the ease with which he handled his two opponents through nine fast rounds, is still the talk of the camp. According to Farmer Burns, Jeffries improvement in condition in the last week has been remarkable, and he is confident that the big fellow could be in fine shape for the fight two weeks hence if necessary.

This was the only matter which came before the meeting. There are only two places in the city where the service could be held, it was agreed, viz.: the Armories and the First Methodist Church. Of these two places the majority of the ministers favored the Armories if arrangements can be made to get the building for the service.

PORT ARTHUR ENGINEER ASKED TO COME HERE

Personal Interview Is Sought by City Council With J.

Tonnisen.

At a special meeting of the counci held at noon today it was decided to ask Mr. J. Tonnisen, of Port Arthur, to come to London for a personal interview with regard to his application for the position of head engineer. A letter was received from Mr. Tonnisen, in which he asked for specific details of his duties, and the salary and he declared that if he felt capable of performing the duties outlined he would come to the city for a personal interview. On the motion of Ald. Tancock it was decided to furnish Mr. Tonnisen with all the details asked for, and his salary was named at $4,000. If the information is satisfactory to the applicant, he will come to the city within a few days' time. It was also decided to accept the rec

Mayor Explains.

Mayor Beattie pointed out that an invitation had been received from Rev. Canon Dann and had been accepted. He was under the impression that it was to be a civic service. There was no objection so far as he was concerned to an afternoon meeting, as it was probable that the Anglican ser vice would be held in the morning. He pointed out that at the death of the Queen the council had accepted an invitation from Rev. Dr. Smith to attend a service in the First Methodist Church. He thought cases were par-

New York Society Women's Hair Matched Only by Parisians.

While much attention is given to choicest gowns by New York society women, the turbulent fad just now is the care of the hair. For many years the clever women of Paris have been famed for the magnificent beauty of their hair.
"Glorious hair," a Virginian calls "so radiant and luxuriant that it not only attracts but fascinates and compels unstinted admiration." PLAYGROUNDS ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting Will Be Held on Tuesday Evening.

The annual meeting of the Playgrounds Association will be held in the city hall committee room tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, when a report of the year's operations will be received, and a programme outlined for the summer months.

It is suggested that the sulphur baths be rented for each afternoon in the week during July and August, instead of two days a week, as was the case last year. The cost in that event is estimated at $350. An offer has also been received for the opening of the clay banks in the east end of the city under the asors, and the cost may be found too heavy. The Park flats playgrounds will like

Terms of Edward's Wise

Eloquent tributes to the character of he late King Edward VII. as a monirch and man were delivered in the Roman Catholic churches of the city on Sunday. In St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Father Aylward preached a warm eulogy of his majesty, referring particularly to his great influence in the cause of peace, and his religious toleration. The coronation oath, which is so obnoxious to Catholics was also denounced In St. Mary's Church, Rev. Father Tobin spoke in glowing terms of the brilliant reign of King Edward the

"He stood for peace and advance-ment," said Father Tobin, "and he left the greatest empire the world has ever seen greater and better than when he commenced his rule. His people loved him, and none were more loyal to him than his Catholic subjects. "He had a proper conception of religious liberty, and for his Catholic subjects, and especially for the Irish people, he did a great deal. His memory will always be lovingly cherished by the Roman Catholics of the empire, for in him they had a noble and honest

"A touching incident occurred only a few days before his majesty's death. When returning from Biarritz, he stopped at Lourdes, in the south of France, and reverently visited the famous shrine, with its holy relics and mementoes of wonderful cures. While there, the King noticed a procession file slowly toward the cathedral, and the greatest monarch in the world bowed his uncovered head in rever-ence as the priests and others marched by. Contrast his conduct with that of the infidel rulers of France, who present would be ready to revile the rish in every detail. The scene is laid faith of those taking part in the procession!

"In the death of King Edward VII.

the Roman Catholics of the empire have two great sorrows. One is caused by the passing of so good a ruler, and the other by the fact that his successor, King George V. must take an oath which is an outrageous insult to his millions of Catholic subjects in the law he was compelled to take it. And King George will be compelled to take it for the same reason. This oath calls upon the King to publicly proclaim his disbelief in certain articles of them as idolatrous, especially the holy sacrifice of the mass. This gratuitous insult to Catholics is a relic of the unreasoning bigotry of other days, and it should not be perpetuated."
