ORCHARD WAS HUMAN BUTCHER

The Paid Assassin Continues His Revolting Tale

Defense Tries to Discredit The Evidence Against Haywood

Boise, Idaho, June 8.—Counsel for Wm. D. Haywood continued their attack on the testimony of Harry Orchard at both sessions of the trial yesterday. They made their strongest assault on the witness' connection with events beginning with the explosion in the Vindicator mine and ending with the earlier meetings between him and the leaders of the Western Federation of Miners in Denver. To the extent that traffic with "the other side" in the war between labor and capital in Colorado was discredited, they succeeded in discrediting the witness.

Taking up the admission that Orchard made in direct examination that he was treacherous to his comrades in Cripple Creek by disclosing a train-wrecking plot, they developed that Orchard entered the employ of D. C. Scott, who had charge of the railway detectives. Orchard said that, with Scott, he met K. C. Sterling, a detective in the employ of the Mine Owners' Association, and that Scott paid his expenses and accompanied him to Denver on the trip when he first met Moyer and Haywood. He said that he had agreed to report to Scott, but that he lied to him, never intended to report to him, and never did report. The defense also tried to show that, because he stood well with the mine owners, Orchard was never molested by the militia or people Creek during the strike. Orchard admitted that Scott had told him that if the militia interfered with him he was to send for him, and that the militia did not interfere with him nor search his house.

Orchard became jealous. Orchard said he went to Scott first because he had not been paid for his work at the Vindicator mine, and he was jealous because he was given hard work, like the Vindicator mine job, whereas other men were assigned the simple job of train-wrecking by displacing rails. More crimes, great and small, were added to Orchard's record yesterday. The Cripple Creek woman with whom he committed bigamy had three sons; Orchard stole big game ore from a mine; he stole two cases of powder from the Vindicator mine; he stole powder to make one of the bombs thrown into the Vindicator coal pile, and he lied.

The defense endeavored in various ways to throw doubt and improbability around Orchard's whole Vindicator mine story, and the alleged connection of W. F. Davis and William Easterly with the affair, and the circumstances under which Orchard testified that he met Moyer and Haywood, and was paid for the commission of the crime. It also tried to discredit Orchard's story, that he was sent back to Cripple Creek with unlimited credit and orders to commit any act of violence that he cared to. They confronted Orchard with Easterly and Owen Barnes and paved the way for the contradiction by them of the story told by Orchard.

Counsel flared up several times during the day, and in the last passage-at-arms Mr. Haywood said that Mr. Richardson told a falsehood when he intimated that Orchard was a fixed witness.

The trial will go on to-day, and cross-examination of Orchard, who has been on the stand three days, will be concluded.

When Orchard again took the stand yesterday he said he had neglected to give the name of his sixth sister, Minnie Horsley, who married a man named Rogers and who lived in New York State. Orchard also said that he stated Thursday he had no partners in the wood business in Burke, Idaho. He remembered yesterday that there were two men to whom he owed money and to whom he had promised an interest in the business.

Orchard admitted that while he was in Idaho he became quite a gambler, playing poker most of the time. He was asked how he voted the day the unions decided to go down to Wardner and blow the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills, and said he didn't remember.

E. F. Richardson, for the defense, took the witness through a description of the make-up of the train which took the rioting miners to Wardner. Orchard said it was composed of 13 cars, some being freight and others passenger coaches.

"I am sure," he said, "I lit one of the fuses which fired powder under the train."

Went of Own Accord.

"Did you know Haywood, Moyer or Pettibone at this time?"
"No, sir."
"They were not with you at Wardner when the mill was blown up, were they?"
"No, sir; not that I know of."
Orchard said he left Idaho after the blowing up of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills to avoid arrest. He was taken over the years from 1899 to 1903 in detail, explaining where he worked, where he got his money and where he went from time to time. Orchard

A BIG FIRE AT ELMVALE

Hampton N. B. Also Visited By Disastrous Blaze

Half Business Section Of Thriving Village Wiped Out

Barrie, Ont., June 8.—A disastrous fire visited the village of Elmvalle yesterday morning, causing damage to the extent of about $45,000 and wiping out about half of the business section of the village.

The blaze started in Vance's tailor shop, but before it was noticed it had such a good start that the bucket brigade was unable to stay its progress. The fire gradually spread and before it could be got under control the following places of business were destroyed.

M. J. Lawson's harness shop.
W. G. Vance's tailor shop.
H. J. Greenwood's jewelry store.
S. J. Manning's grocery store, with boots and shoes.
S. Draper's grocery.
W. T. Stewart's general store.
R. H. Middleton's insurance office.
At T. Coper's store, in which the postoffice is situated, and the Queen's Hotel were badly scorched and had a lot of glass broken. The Bank of Toronto building was badly damaged.

W. T. Stewart is the heaviest loser, $1,800 on stock and $300 on building. The total loss will be about $45,000 and incendiarianism is suspected.

Hampton, N.B., June 8.—The most disastrous fire that ever occurred here broke out yesterday, and threatened at one time to sweep the entire village. After a hard battle by bucket brigades and hand pumps, the flames were stayed, but not until the Canada Wooden Ware plant was entirely destroyed. Their loss is thirty thousand dollars, with eighteen thousand dollars' insurance in the Western, Queen, Sun, Northern, Equity and British-American Companies. G. Barnes & Son lost a warehouse and contents, with $2,000 insurance in the Royal. Large piles of lumber, awaiting shipment by the I.C.R., were destroyed, and the total loss is estimated at $50,000.

Mills Destroyed by Fire.

Ottawa, June 8.—The grist and lumber mills of Jule P. Roy, near Paspéauville, were destroyed by fire after an explosion of a tank of gasoline.

DEATH PASSED HIM BY.

Fell Out of One Train, Run Over By Another.

London, June 8.—A five-year-old boy fell yesterday from a train that was running near Twynford. He was hurt and ran to the tracks, where, which his father, in the meantime, had stopped.

Before the boy reached the train an express passed along the parallel track, upon which the youngster was running, and knocked him down, passing over him. The boy immediately rose and continued running to meet his father.

His head was cut and streaming blood, but he was not seriously hurt.

A Slaughter of Innocents.

New York, June 8.—John Spargo, the author, and Rev. Alexander Irvine told of the cruelties of child labor in New York, Pennsylvania and the Southern States before an audience in the North Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Spargo estimated that there were fully 2,250,000 children under 16 now employed in various capacities in the United States, and urged all present to use their influence with their friends to force the authorities to put a stop to this "slaughter of the innocents."

France Willing to Help.

Paris, June 8.—One of the immediate results of the Franco-Japanese entente, which is on the point of being signed, has been the tender by France of her good offices in the United States in case she can be of service in promoting a complete understanding between the United States and Japan, covering their respective interests in the far east.

Chaplain For Petawawa.

Ottawa, June 8.—The Bishop of Ottawa has appointed Rev. E. H. Capp, curate of St. John's Church here, as brigade chaplain for the Petawawa camp. He will be there until the fall. His regiment is the 97th of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Mr. Capp distinguished himself in South Africa.

Irish Government.

London, June 8.—The foremost Liberal principle of the Government, in the administration of Irish affairs, is that they should be conducted in accordance with Irish ideas," said the Marquis of Ripon, Lord Privy Seal, and Liberal leader in the House of Lords, speaking before the Eighty Club at the Hotel Cecil.

Off For the Pole.

Seattle, Wash., June 8.—Backed by San Francisco capitalists and under general instructions from the Geological Society of London, Capt. William Moog sailed from Port Townsend yesterday on a cruise that carries every detail of a search for the North Pole.

WAS TASHWAR MURDERED?

Inquest On South Mountain Farmer Opened Yesterday

Conflict Of Evidence In Mysterious Case—Suicide Suspected

Southampton, June 8.—The inquest on the death of the late James Tashway was begun yesterday in the town hall here. A tremendous crowd was in attendance and in their efforts to get in the hall almost mobbed the officials.

W. C. Whittaker, M.D., of North Will, inquest, coroner, had charge of the inquest, and Crown Attorney James Dingwall of Cornwall acted for the crown. Provincial Detective Reburn of Toronto is assisting the case.

Mrs. William Major, a niece, heard Tashway say he was a disgrace to his friends and always would be so. These words appeared to her to mean that he had committed suicide.

Albert Tashway swore positively that the quilts were drawn up over the shoulders, and thought that his brother had met foul play.

Thomas Tashway, another brother, told his story, and was pretty well questioned by Crown Attorney Dingwall. He told about the same story as the others, except that he had seen Tashway drawing a large amount of money in bills. He thought that it was suicide, because deceased had told him that he would like to show the people that he had courage enough to blow out his brains.

Dr. Porter created a sensation by swearing that it was impossible, as far as he knew, for deceased to kill himself in the position found. He had performed the post-mortem, and thought death was instantaneous.

Therefore, it was impossible for Tashway to pull the quilts up over his shoulder after the shot. The bullet found in Tashway's brain was placed in evidence.

Dr. Ferrier was a little more emphatic in his opinion regarding the case as murder.

That said James E. Tashway came to his death by a bullet through his head from a revolver in the hands of some unknown person or persons.

Jury was not unanimous. The vote was 14 in favor of a verdict of murder, and one opposed.

MAY BE FOUL PLAY.

Prominent Murray Bay Merchant Found In Water.

Charlotte, P.E.I., June 8.—The body of J. Macdonald, aged 39, a prominent merchant of Murray River, was found Thursday night about 20 yards from the bridge. He was last seen at ten o'clock on Wednesday night, when he left Ross' drug store, saying he was going home.

The doctor who performed the autopsy says Macdonald did not drown, as there was no water in the lungs.

The bridge has a low railing, and it is thought that as the night was dark he may have made a misstep and fallen over, but some fear that there has been foul play, although there is no evidence that there had been robbery committed. An inquest is being held.

Too Many Electrocuted.

Buffalo, June 8.—District Attorney Abbott has begun an investigation into the death of Warner Houck, a telephone lineman, who was electrocuted yesterday. Houck was splicing the loose ends of a telephone wire, which came in contact with an electric light line. He was instantly killed.

District Attorney Abbott said that accidental electrocutions are becoming too frequent, and that he is considering the beginning of criminal action against corporations whose overhead wires are dangerous.

Arrests May Reveal Thefts.

New York, June 8.—An investigation which will follow the arrest yesterday of August Dohn and Lillie French, former confidential employees of the furniture house of S. Bauman & Co., is expected to reveal thefts to the aggregate of more than $35,000. They previously had been discharged by their employers. Dohn, who is married, tried to kill himself when arrested.

Disgrace, Then Death.

San Antonio, Tex., June 8.—Lieut. Mack Richardson, whose resignation was accepted Thursday by President Roosevelt, was found unconscious in his room yesterday at Fort Sam Houston. Examination disclosed that he used morphine and prussic acid.

Wabash Engineer Out on Bail.

St. Thomas, Ont., June 8.—Murray Stevens, the Wabash engineer who was Thursday committed for trial on the charge of manslaughter, as being responsible for the fatal accident near here on Aug. 24 last, was yesterday released on $2,000 bail.

Hurt At Barn-Raising.

Strathroy, June 8.—Westly Eastman of 40th line, Adelaide, while assisting in a barn-raising yesterday afternoon, was seriously injured. He was underneath the barn, when it slid away, pinning him to the ground.

A bean in liberty is better than a confit in prison.

We lose something with everything we gain.

WHITNEY IS PROGRESSIVE

Is Watching The Agricultural Classes In High Schools

He Will Extend The Idea If The Results Warrant It

Toronto, June 8.—Premier Whitney announced at a conference yesterday of representatives of high schools of six towns, in which agricultural classes are to be established, that if the experiment proves a success, the idea would be extended.

Premier Whitney said he was satisfied the classes would prove a success, and would lead to the establishment of agricultural schools as advocated by him in opposition. He hoped the schools all over the province would take advantage of the experiment now being launched, and he promised the Government grant would be continued and extended. If additional grants were needed the Government would be generous.

DR. JERROLD WADDELL

A wire received this morning from Jerrold Waddell, of the Medical Department of McGill University, Montreal, to his father, Mr. John Waddell, of this city, states that he had been successful in passing his graduation examinations. Jerrold will now be known as Dr. Waddell, and he is expected home some time next week.

Dr. Waddell has many friends in this city who are all proud of him, and who join in the heartiest of congratulations.

THE MOTHERS' CLUB

An excellent meeting of the Mothers' Club of McKenough school was held yesterday afternoon. Dr. Duncan gave a very practical and entertaining talk on the food and clothing of the child. In caring for the child, the object should be to make him capable of resistance rather than protection. A solo was sung by Miss Brackin and a piano duet, given by Misses McVean and Laird. Arrangements were made for the first meeting, which will be held on June 28, and will be of a social character.

WOLVERINE BRASS CO. WILL BUILD AT ONCE

Ald. W. H. Westman, chairman of the Industrial committee of the City Council, has received a letter from the Wolverine Brass Manufacturing Company, of Grand Rapids, acknowledging his telegram, sent two days ago, telling them that the by-law had carried.

The letter stated that President Cornelius, of the Wolverine Company, is at present in California, but is expected to return early next week, when he will immediately leave for Chatham to select a site for their new factory, and commence building operations at once.

ALD. WESTMAN BUYS G. T. R. AGENT'S RESIDENCE

The G. T. R. Station Agent's residence, situated at the junction of Queen and William Streets, which for years has been a bone of contention between the city and the railway company, is at last to be removed.

The Planet understands that the house has been purchased by Ald. Westman, from the G. T. R. Company, and that it is his intention to remove it to a new site. The removal of this house will add much to the safety of this crossing, which is soon to be a union crossing for the Radial Company and the G. T. R. The residence not only obstructed the view as crossing, but, from the peculiar location, was an eye-sore to the vicinity.

MR. WIGLE WAS TOO CLEVER FOR FISHERMEN

Fish and Game Inspector Wigle was in the city last evening. The Inspector was a busy man last week. Through a clever piece of detective work he got next to the fact that Canadian bass were still being shipped on a shipment of fish near Windsor and commenced an investigation.

The skipper claimed that there were no bass in the barrels under suspicion, and he himself offered to open a barrel to prove it. When the head of the barrel was opened it was seen that the fish on top were all soft fish. The Inspector was on to the game, however, and tipped the barrel. It was found that the top and bottom of the barrel were filled with soft fish and the centre was all bass. The shipment was confiscated.

FRED W. TOBEY TELLS ABOUT TOWN OF NORTH BATTLEFORD

An Interesting Letter From An Old Chatham Boy Who is Making Things Hustle in The West—Remarkable Growth Of A Young Town

To the Editor of The Planet:

Dear Sir,—As a number of Chatham parties are now interested in North Battleford, and a great number of these are anxious to hear about this thriving town, I shall undertake in a general way to give some information about this place.

Four years ago we came to the west, drove 100 miles across country. On May 4th we crossed the river, drove near where our office now stands, passed this now valuable property, with no thought of homesteading. This many others followed, and for another year, the land near where the town now stands, was passed by all eyes, and interest was centered in Jack Fish. As homesteaders, we hoped for a railroad, and looked forward to some busy towns along its route.

For two years we hoped, when at last our hopes and fears were set at rest by the knowledge that the leading gang had crossed the Saskatchewan at the elbow. You can imagine our feelings, when we were all hoping for it to pass our very doors. Of course, we all could not be pleased, but we all were pleased from necessity.

As the gang worked their way westward, they came upon a group some find. Stretched on the open prairie, a few hundred feet from the survey stakes, lay the body of a man. He was a surveyor, who had been lost, had died, and the prairie wolves had finished him. That spot was the scene of death, and on that spot was built another scene of death, the Saskatchewan Hotel. "But why," you will ask, "do you call that a scene of death?" Because if one but reflects, there dies daily, hope, love, family ties and human feelings.

The hotels started first, as in all western towns. The church followed. The lumber yards opened, a grocery store in tents, then the real estate office, and soon the chosen town site, took on the form and appearance of business activity. Some one had to show his confidence in the future of the town. That confidence had inspired others, and the so-called spirit of the west began to effect all. The easterner cannot realize the spirit of adventure, enterprise and hustle of the new and old westerners. Something in the atmosphere or the environment of the west seems to inspire one to plunge. For an easterner to see an opportunity, is to sit and think over it, to weigh it and dream over it, and then act. For a westerner to see it is to act and to act to-day. There used to be failures, bubble towns, etc., in western towns, but that day is past. The progress, the growth, the future of the west is past the experimental stage. At one time Manitoba, and but a small part of that province represented the west. A failure there meant a slump in the whole west. The immigration of these years doubling all past records, and will continue to do so. Each district gets its settlers, and with them come money, settlers' effects, new life, new energy, new enterprises, and new spirits to encourage others. Each settler brings at least $400 with him, and the most of that is left in the town. What made Saskatchewan? It was the confidence and energy of such men as J. F. Cairns. New railroads as a rule avoid old towns that are dead, and look for the new ones that are alive.

North Battleford is showing the same energy that prevails in Saskatchewan, and as a result it is growing. There is a vast area of agricultural ground north of here, and new districts are opening up all the time. The Dominion Land Surveyors passed the office this morning bound for 30 miles north of Jack Fish Lake, where they will mark out new townships. They will be busy until fall at this work. This country will be homesteaded next spring. Those people will have to all come to North Battleford. You can imagine what this means. Never yet did a number of homesteaders arrive in any town but a good percentage of them changed their minds and never went farther than the town. These are the men who make the towns and who help the real estate men. When the real estate business is good, common sense will tell the biggest fool that the investors are making money. No man has lost money in North Battleford in real estate, and no one will for some time to come.

Possible you readers of The Planet thought that I put it on when I wrote about North Battleford, but I conscientiously wrote what I believed to be the truth, and the truth of those statements was verified when Dave Smith, Charlie Smith, Mr. Sawyer, and Mr. Woolworth came out here and told me that the town was larger than they imagined. I am an optimist, and I have good grounds for being one. I back it by putting every dollar I make into it, and intend to hold as long as I can meet the next payments.

Battleford is about half way between Dauphin, Manitoba, and Edmonton, Alberta. It is the geographical centre of the Battleford district. It is by far the most important divisional point between Winnipeg and Edmonton. It is on the main line of the C. N. R. It has the assurance of at least two new railroads—one from Prince Albert, and the other from Calgary. It has no competition as a distributing centre for freight, passengers or merchandise as yet, and is enterprising. In every town one finds a few wind bags and over-confident people, but few towns are there where all are fools. Saturday the tender was let for a $32,000 school of eight rooms, to be completed by December 1st, and four rooms to be ready by September 1st. The tender was let Saturday; on Monday the contractor was at work on the foundation. The lack of material is the only detriment to very active building operations here. There are six important permanent blocks being built. These blocks are, the new hotel, Gregory's block, Dr. Sparling's block, Chisholm's $40,000 block of three stores, the new school and the new brick works. The sash and door factory is almost ready to begin operations and the flour mill, in all probability, will be doing business by fall.

What gives me more confidence in this town, than any thing I ever heard or saw, is the new brick plant. If same business men like the Outknife Trading & Realty Co. see a market for the output of that plant, the machinery alone costing $35,000, then they must see a large local market for the 20,000 bricks a day. I have been backward about writing any more to The Planet since I have gone into the real estate business, but have complied with the requests of Chatham parties. What I wrote, have written or will write is what I conscientiously believe to be true, and it is not with the wish of conveying or exciting false hopes in my friends or acquaintances.

The mere fact that we bought lots three and four from Lawyer Kerr for $1,500 when I had bought them for him at $1,100 not more than two months ago, is proof enough along that way. The lot four was sold when we bought them. The lot three we wanted for ourselves as a good investment, and mark my word when I say that that property will make more money by fall than it made Lawyer Kerr.

In less than two years the citizens of this place saw fit to support the building of a $6,000 rink and a $2,000 water works and electric light and sewage systems, to be installed here at once.

J. A. Gregory is mayor. I did my part to elect him. Gregory has nearly $200,000 at stake in this town, and outside of any public spiritedness, and he is a public spirited man, his own holdings will insure his best efforts on behalf of this town. He has more power at Ottawa and Regina than any dozen men in this town, and he will make use of that influence as the political boss of the Battleford district. He was elected on a Monday and on the following Thursday he was in Regina pulling the wires for a government-built post office and customs house, and letters were on the way to Ottawa—letters that are headed. You will see North Battleford advertised as she never was before, and this fall and next spring will see a boom here which will make this winter's and last year's boom look small.

This is not a business letter nor yet an advertisement, it is the simple truthful thoughts and observations of your friend, Fred Tobey. What I write I believe and know to be true, and if anyone loses in this town Fred Tobey will go with the bunch, but honestly, that thought never so much as takes up an idle second of my time.

Hoping this is fit for publication and thanking you in anticipation, I am,

Yours truly,

FRED.

SOCIETY

The following interesting piece of poetry was composed by one of the clever young Chatham girls who attended the Tennis Tea on Monday afternoon. The theme was suggested by a number of incidents which are said to have happened at this pleasant social event:

LOST AND WON.

A tennis court,
Some pretty sport,
The lawn is bright with gauze,
And pouring tea,
So daintily,
Are pretty girls in blazers.

Battling volley,
This is jolly,
Good playing at the net;
No cream for you!
One lump or two!
For really I forget.

Yes; she is pretty;
What a pity,
She hasn't any sense;
The men don't care—
O see! look there,
That really was immense.

Can Dupuy play?
Well, in a way—
Too short to have much reach,
You think my gown,
A poem in brown,
Thanks for that pretty speech.

— you here too!
So nice of you,
To stroll in for our tea;
Please drop my hand;
They'll understand;
Don't look that way at me.

'Tis game and set,
You won't forget;
Her eyes seek his above;
He's won the game,
Though all the same,
His only score is "love."

The young man's name which fills in the space left vacant in the fifth verse, is purposely omitted, in view of the fact that the young lady in question has not as yet seen fit to announce anything definite in connection with the glad event.

Miss Helen J. Carter will be at Home on Tuesday evening, June 25th only. She then will be pleased to see her many friends and wish them adieu before leaving for her trip to England. Miss Carter intends to leave our city on the 3rd of July, and to sail on the 19th. In the meantime she will visit with her friends in Brantford, Hamilton, Burford and Toronto.

A wedding of considerable local interest took place in St. Simon's Church, Toronto, when Miss Edythe Alice Moulson became the bride of Mr. George Moray Anderson. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Violet Moulson, who was the guest of Miss Helen Rispin, of this city, last winter. The wedding was a very fashionable one. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore white liberty satin, made in princess fashion with an empire train. The bodice had some lovely rose point lace and yoke studded with seed pearl. Her tulle veil was arranged about a chaplet of orange blossoms, and she held a bouquet of white heather, lilies of the valley and orchids.

The bridesmaid wore a very pretty empire frock of white silk mull, stamped with violets, and trimmed elaborately with ruffles and insertions of Valenciennes lace.

The Tennis Tea, which was given on the grounds on King St. West last Monday afternoon, was a great success. The affair was managed by Miss Helen Rispin, assisted by Miss Belle Smith, Miss Jessie Wilson, Mrs. J. Taylor, Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Rispin, and Messrs. Dickson, Fraser, Lawson and Bonedict. There were about 100 present. The grounds were beautifully decorated for the occasion with the club colors, pale blue and white. Miss Rispin was dressed in blue and white, Miss Smith in white, Miss Wilson in white, Mrs. Taylor in a white linen suit, Mrs. Montgomery in a blue linen suit, and Mrs. Rispin in white and mauve. Several games were played. Messrs. Lawson and Dupuy played against Messrs. Rispin and Dickson, the game ending in a tie.

Miss Winnifred Gray gave a pleasant tea on Thursday for Miss Weir, of Hamilton, who is visiting her.

Miss Rutledge entertained a number of her friends last Monday evening. Games were enjoyed until a late hour, after which dainty refreshments were served. A new feature was introduced during the evening. The party started out in couples to promenade certain city streets, interchanging their partners whenever they met. A fine musical program was also provided for the entertainment of her guests. Miss Rutledge leaves shortly for London. She has many friends in this city who will be sorry to see her go.

What Flour Makes The Best Bread?

SOME claim that all Manitoba Flour makes the best bread, but those who have tried "Kent Mills" Gold Medal Flour know better.

It's the perfect flour—makes the best bread.

Don't confuse this blend with ordinary blends. It's different —as a trial will prove to your entire satisfaction.

It took us years of patient study and experimenting to discover the exact proportions of best Red Winter Wheat to blend with the finest Manitoba Wheat to assure the most triumphant results on baking day.

In "Kent Mills" Gold Medal
Flour we've retained the phosphates, gluten and other food elements which make Manitoba

Wheat flour so valuable as a tissue and muscle-builder, and secured from the Red Winter Wheat the delicious, delicate flavor which is entirely lacking in Manitoba wheat flour.

By our method of blending we produce a flour so perfectly balanced that "good luck" is certain on baking day.

It's entirely free from the uncertain tendencies common to Manitoba flours.

It's the flour that makes the best bread—the most nutritious, delicious bread.

Order from your grocer today.

Every bag or barrel "Kent Mills" Flour guaranteed by both the manufacturer and dealer.

GLENWOOD.

About 2.30 Saturday morning the residents of the village were aroused by the cry of "fire," and found the old mill in flames. The wind was blowing a gale and carried bits of the burning building across to the Gilbert and Mrs. Newham lots, destroying the stables and outbuildings on both places. The neighbors worked hard and kept the fire from spreading to Mrs. Newham's house.
Mr. J. N. Halliday, who owned the mill, lost considerable farm machinery, which was stored in a building adjoining. No insurance.

Mr. W. C. Estabrook left on Monday for Sarnia, and Manitoulin Island, on a business trip.

Mrs. P. J. McGee was in Windsor on Thursday attending the funeral of her niece.

Miss E. Estabrook is home, after spending a month with friends in Woodville.

Mr. Wm. Connor, Chicago, was the guest of his brother-in-law, J.
P. McGee, several days last week.

Mrs. John Brown, Wheatley, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Vipond, this week.

Mr. Geo. P. Estabrook, of the Mol-sons Bank staff, Toronto, is spending his holidays at his home here.

It generally takes a woman hours to assume a negligee appearance.

JAP PRESS OUTSPOKEN.

San Francisco Outrages May Cause
Rupture of Traditional Friendship.

Tokio, June 7.—The Nichi-Nichi, commenting on Japanese and American relations yesterday, says:

"Even traditional friendship will not escape a rupture should incidents like these that have occurred in San Francisco be repeated. Whether the sufferers are school children or restaurants and the objects of persecution be limited to California, it does not alter the fact that our compatriots are victims of anti-Japanese outrages.

"Japanese go there under treaty protection.
"President Roosevelt's enlightened message to the last Congress was received here with eminent satisfaction, but actual developments since are a total failure.

"What we want are not so many expressions of civilized sentiments, but one act of efficient protection of the rights of Japanese.

"The waste paper box is no destination for a treaty between Japan and the United States."

The general tone of the Japanese press is becoming outspoken, and unless an assurance in some form is made to ensure the safety of Japanese in San Francisco, it is feared that the friendly relations between both nations will be endangered.

Count Okuma, leader of the Progressives, is outspoken as usual, but it should be remembered that, while deserving of consideration, his being out of office permits him a free expression of his opinions. Count Okuma generally occupies the position of critic. When in power his Cabinet lived only a few months.

CHARGES AGAINST SCHMITZ.

Investigation Started Into Charges Against San Francisco's Mayor.

San Francisco, June 7.—The opening address for the prosecution by Assistant District Attorney Heney,
the partial examination of ex-Police Commissioner Thomas Regan,
the introduction as evidence of much data from the minute books of the Police Commission, for the years 1904 and 1905, and the questioning in relation thereto of the secretary of the commission, Officer Charles F.
Skull, were the proceedings in the first day of the trial of Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz for alleged extortion of money from keepers of French restaurants.

Attorney Heney, in his statement to the jury, charged the Mayor and Abraham Ruef, jointly indicted with Schmitz on this charge, with plotting to "carrying on a systematic scheme of blackmail" through the Police Commission.

POPE RECEIVES LAURIER.

Premier, Brodeur and Families Given Private Audience.

Rome, June 7.—The Pope yesterday received in private audience Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Canadian Premier, and L. P. Brodeur, the Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and their families.

The Pontiff informed his visitors that he followed with affectionate interest the progress made by the Dominion.

Sir Wilfrid afterwards had two private interviews with Cardinal Merry del Val.

May Be Girl Who Elope.

New York, June 7.—The body of a girl, which the police believe may be that of Floretta Whaley, who eloped from Hempstead L.I., with Rev. Jere K. Coke, a former minister in that town, on April 30, was found in the Harlem River, near 182nd street yesterday. The body had been in the water about ten days. It was that of a girl about 16 years old, 130 pounds in weight, with blue eyes and brown hair. The police of Hempstead have been asked to come here to view the body.

Gets Government Position.

Halifax, June 7.—A. J. Boyd of River Bourgeoisie, Cape Breton, has been appointed superintendent of Indian agencies for Nova Scotia by the Dominion Government. The position is a newly-created one. The salary is $2,000 a year.

Boyd was a successful Liberal candidate in a local bye-election in December, 1904.

Tried to Kill Grand Duke.

St. Petersburg, June 7.—An attempt to kill Grand Duke Michael Alexan-drovitch, younger brother of Emperor
Nicholas, was made yesterday.

Piles of stones blocking the highway were placed on the road leading to Tsarskoe-Selo, on which the grand duke was automobiling. The obstruction was noticed in the nick of time.

Woman Is Asphyxiated.

Hamilton, Ont., June 7.—Mrs. Samuel Walmsley, who resided with her husband and four children in a shack on the farm of James L. Taylor, a couple of miles from the city, was asphyxiated Wednesday night by coke
gas. The other members of the family had a close call and the oldest daughter is not yet out of danger.

Mad Dog Causes Panic.

Welland, June 7.—A mad dog caused a panic in the Village of Port Robinson by running through the town and biting a number of other dogs.

William Hanna was severely bitten on the hand. The dog also attacked
Mr. Hanna's cow. A bullet finally put an end to the dog.

Suicide by Hanging.

Brookville, June 7.—In a fit of despondency Charles Fournier of Brasher falls committed suicide by hanging in a barn.

He was missing several days before his body was found suspended from a beam. He was 55 years old.

Exciting New York Fire.

New York, June 7.—The third fire within two months occurred yesterday at the Hotel Saranac, largely patronized by theatrical people. Many of the guests were carried from the escapes to the street by firemen. The fire was not serious.

A CANADIAN CLUB.

For some years The Planet has from time to time expressed the opinion that a Canadian Club should be formed in Chatham. This Great Home Journal is still of that opinion, and in this connection the speech delivered by Mr. Justice Russell, of Nova Scotia before the Canadian Club of Halifax, and reported in the Toronto News, may prove interesting and profitable reading for Chathamites. The club at Halifax has been just recently formed and Judge Russell commends its formation by expressing the firm belief that Canadian clubs are the hope of Canada. During the course of his remarks he said:

"Now, the Canadian Club, as I understand, is instituted mainly for the purpose of talk—of talking and listening to talk—for the purpose of frank and free interchange of opinions on all matters that affect the interest of the Canadian people, and no subject that affects the interests of the Canadian people comes amiss upon its program. It has done an immense amount of good in this way, in other parts of the Dominion, and for this reason, in common with every intelligent member of the community, I was greatly pleased that it had entered into the mind of our enterprising fellow-citizen, Mr. McGillivray, to promote its establishment here."

But the question is asked, are there not enough opportunities for talking already, and this Judge Russell answers in the negative as follows:

"First, then, as to our churches. There was a time when the voice of the church was puissant in the government of the State and in the regulation of all manner of public questions. To go no further back than the days of Cotton Mather, in the New England and Puritan times, the clergyman was a power that could make and unmake governments. But those days have passed away, and nobody that I know of would be willing to have them return. For my own part I think the pulpit has gone too far in the opposite direction of effacing itself as a factor in the making of public opinion. Whenever a question of public interest presents a clear and undoubted issue of public morality, I do not see how the pulpit can discharge its duty as a preacher of righteousness if it fails to find voice in the expression of its convictions."

"Neither is Parliament likely to serve the purpose of an arena for the adequate discussion of topics of public interest. There was a time, I think, when the Parliament of Canada was a more commanding organ of opinion than it is to-day, and therefore more influential as a factor in the making of opinion."

"I think that no one who looks back to the days of Blake, and Brown, and Huntington, of MacKenzie and Cartwright, of Macdonald and Tupper, will say that there are as many men of the rank of these giants in the House of Commons to-day as in those earlier days of the Union. It has not fared so badly with us, it is true, as with our neighbors below the boundary line, of whose representative bodies the great authority to which I have already referred, could say with perfect truthfulness as far back as 1896, that no contemporary observer could fail to be struck with the disappearance from Congress and the State Legislatures of men prominent for eloquence, character or the weight of their opinions."

The same tendencies are observable in Canada as in the United States, and if these are arrested it will be through the agency of such institutions as the Canadian Club, where questions of importance will be discussed until the public mind is enlightened and the public conscience aroused. No cause is likely to find effective advocacy in Parliament until it has become a popular cause. The men who create public opinion are not usually to be found in Parliament—they are outside of Parliament, and always have been there."

Having thus considered the Pulpit and Parliament, and found them all wanting, Dr. Russell returns to his contention that it is in the full, free and patriotic discussion in such broad-based, and non-partisan institutions as the Canadian Club that political improvement is to be expected and sought.

WEIRD MYSTERY OF TECUMSEH.

In some remarks before the London Methodist conference at Goderich a few days ago, Mr. Albert Tobias, an Indian lay delegate, referred to the mystery surrounding the death and burial of the great chief, Tecumseh. He said, "for years white men have sought to ferret out the graves" of the distinguished warrior who fought for Canada, but in vain.

It is a curious statement, yet absolutely true. It is in authentic history that Tecumseh led his men from old Malden (Amherstburg) to the point where the famous battle of the Longwoods took place. He fell in that engagement from a bullet wound. But in the confusion his body, alive or dead, disappeared as completely as if engulfed in the sea. No trace of it has been ever found. Silence and mystery have always surrounded his end. His tribe and friends were unwilling to admit that he had been slain by the white man. Their pride prevented them giving any replies to questions on the subject.

This is shown in Hatch's chapter on the war of 1812:

"What has become of Tecumseh?" was asked of his friends.

Raising the right hand to heaven, with an expression of deep sorrow, "Gone!"

"Did you see him on the day of the battle?"

"Yes."

"When did you see him for the last time?"

"Just as the Americans came in sight he, with his young braves, passed rapidly up and down the line, spoke to every old warrior; saw every one; said, 'Be brave; stand firm; about certain.'"

"Did you hear after the battle that he was killed or badly wounded?"

No answer.

Shall the mystery never be cleared up? Is there not some tradition among the Indians of the Moravian settlement which might be properly revealed at this late day, touching the resting place of Tecumseh?

The "Battle of the Thames" is an historic incident of Western Ontario. The three gunboats that were carrying the remnant of supplies up the river were recovered after the lapse of over eighty years. Their secrets were given up.

The heroism of Tecumseh has been extolled in prose and verse. Canada owes him a debt of gratitude for the part he played as the ally of General Brock. He was a great man to whose memory a monument has been often proposed for erection. But the profound mystery of his burial place remains. Tourists visit the scene of his last exploits, a few miles west of London. But no one can be found to explain where his bones were laid.—London Free Press.

Latest Fashion Hints

This pattern shows the semi-fitted pony jacket, especially suited for development in cloth, silk or linen for wear with semi-tailored costumes. Very often this pattern made up in veiling and lined with light weight silk is trimmed with silk cording, applied in a somewhat heavy design, the silk matching the cloth in tone. As illustrated it is made of pongee in a very beautiful shade of blue and is trimmed with plain and fancy Oriental applique, but braiding executed over a stamped design is greatly in vogue and the coat lends itself to such treatment with singular success. Lace applique is well liked for the dressier linen suits and there are a whole host of braids and braidings that can be utilized while bands of the material piped with contrasting color must not be omitted from the list of available trimmings. For the vest almost anything in contrast can be used or the material itself braided or trimmed. The jacket is made with fronts, side-fronts, back and side-backs. The vest portions are faced onto the fronts and their edges are concealed by the trimming. The fronts also are cut to give the drooping shoulder line and there is a becoming little flat collar at the back. The sleeves of moderate size are finished with roll-over cuffs. The quantity of material required for the medium size is 4 5-8 yards 21, 3 3-4 yards 27, or 1 7-8 yards 44 inches wide with 1 1-2 yards of applique for the vest, 6 1-2 yards each of plain and fancy braid.

At about eleven o'clock this forenoon the different bells were heard to sound the alarm of fire, which appeared to be at a considerable distance. Both engines at once started out and soon discovered that the premises of David Wilson, Esq., on the Creek Road and about two miles from town, were in a blaze.

On reaching the place the firemen found that the fire had got too strong a hold to admit of their extinguishing it. The buildings destroyed were two large barns, one large stable, several sheds and a granary. There were also burnt 90 tons of hay, 300 barrels of beans, several hundred bushels of barley, an immense stack of straw and some farm implements. The total loss amounted to $2,500, and it is partly covered by an insurance of $900.

London, June 6.—Richard Croker yesterday won the Derby at Epsom and gained the ambition of his life, his colt Orby, bred from an American dam, ridden by Johnny Reiff, having beaten all the British cracks and captured the blue ribbon of the world's turf by two lengths.

The enthusiasm of the Americans can be easily imagined than described, and Mr. Croker, his white-bearded face beaming with happiness, was congratulated on all sides.

The Derby stakes amount to $5,000 sovereigns ($82,500), and the distance is a little over a mile and a half.

THE TUB GOWN.

Snuggles and Trigness Hall Marks of Wash Frocks.

A noticeable snuggles and tightness is the hall mark of many of the smartest tub gowns. The skirts are simply treated, and their length widths are unbroken except for a band of needlework above the hem or a few tucks in a group. The top of the skirt is mounted with a slight gathering frontward, something more across the back, says a writer in Vogue. The bodice, while gathered, admits of no outward fullness, because the material is drawn into the figure lines so snugly and belted. A bolero of the same fabric, short and very close fitting, embraces the bust and gives an excellent effect upon the figure, simple as it is.

There is a tailor suggestion about all this, but the handwork in finish takes away the severity somewhat, as the edge of the entire bolero is embroidered by hand. So are the high chemise and stock and the turnover flat cuffs of the elbow sleeve. It requires little imagination to fancy how becoming such a gown may be with a bodice belted in with rose pink ribbon and a single pink rose of great beauty fastened to the corsage just where the bolero meets.

A straw hat, a cluster of roses and some tulle, fresh white gloves and shoes and a white embroidered parasol, coupled with youth and beauty, make as captivating a picture.

FOR THE SMALL GIRL.

Four-in-hand Ties Smart on Sailor Suits.

The little tailored linen and duck dresses in variations of the Russian blouse and sailor style to be worn by small girls this spring and summer display an added charm in the effective disposition of the colored collar, cuffs, belts or strappings in combination with the white material of which the dress is made. Hand embroideries in blind effects are another feature of this type of dress, while the narrow, stiff linen collars to be worn with long and narrow four-in-hand ties are by far the smartest trimmings in the new season's models.

A New Skirt Hanger.

A skirt does not always keep its shape when an ordinary hanger is used, and so one ingenious woman has evolved the following simple arrangement for accommodating a considerable number of skirts in the smallest possible space.

First she screwed in a few inches from the back of the closet on each side a small brass hook such as is used in china closets.

The next step was to get a piece of strong but slender cord long enough to extend across the closet from hook to hook.

On this cord she strung a dozen or more large safety pins by running the cord through the opening in the clasp of the pin.

She folds her skirts exactly in half, sticks the point of a pin through the waistband at back, front and halfway between these two points; then she fastens the safety pins, and her skirts hang in their natural folds, with little strain and away from the wall.

The pins slide freely up and down the cord, and skirts may be hung three deep and not get crushed or wrinkled.

Amusement For the Tots.

However soon children tire of playing with toys, they always find endless amusement in making new playthings for themselves. The fabrication of paper dolls out of colored fashion plates is a work which will easily serve to pass away a wet afternoon in the nursery. The figures should be cut neatly round, pasted on to cardboard and this in turn cut out, so as to stiffen the figures, says Woman's Life.

The arms and legs can be made to move if these are divided in the first instance, mounted separately on cardboard and attached to the dolls by means of small paper fasteners, the heads being treated in like manner.

Use For Daily Papers.

The careful housewife has a use for everything, and the daily papers are by no means an inconsiderable factor toward insuring a clean kitchen. For instance, a supply of paper folded in eight and hung up over the kitchen sink will be found most convenient to wipe under a hot kettle that has just been lifted from the stove, says Woman's Life. A store of full sized sheets should likewise be kept in the kitchen table drawer, so that there is always one handy to spread over the table if necessary during work, which can be afterward burned.

AFTER DOCTORS FAILED

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured a Severe Case of Anemia and Weakness.

Anemia—poor watery blood—is the cause of most of the misery which afflicts mankind. The housewife especially, falls an easy prey to it. The long hours and close confinement necessary in performing her household duties sap her strength. She becomes run down and often suffers extreme misery. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the housewife's friend. They make new blood—lots of it—and pure blood banishes all women's ailments. Mrs. E. St. Germain, wife of a well known farmer of St. John des Chailions, Que., found new strength through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:—"A year ago I was extremely weak. I could not attend to my work; I suffered from dizzy spells; my head ached; my blood was poor; I had a bad cough and the doctors feared I was going into consumption. I followed their treatment for some time but without relief. I grew discouraged and finally gave it up in despair. I was strongly advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so procured six boxes. Before they were all gone I felt relief. The headaches and dizziness became less frequent and I felt a little stronger. I continued the pill for a couple of months at the end of which time I had gained in weight; the pains had left me, my appetite was good and I felt as strong and well as even I did. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I certainly owe my good health to them."

The woman in the house, the man in the office, the boy or girl in the school will always find a friend in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich red blood and good blood banishes rheumatism, general debility, kidney troubles and those aches and pains caused by overwork or overstudy; good blood builds up the tired, unstrung nerves and makes pale, thin cheeks rosy and healthy. The pills are sold at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by all medicine dealers or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LIQUOR LAWS IN NORWAY.

Private Profit Eliminated—Consumption of Alcohol Decreased.

New Norwegian liquor laws are successful. The Sondag system gives power to municipalities to grant all the retail spirit licenses which they deem necessary to a company which would bind itself to carry on the traffic in the interests of the community, with a fixed annual return of not more than 5 per cent. on its paid up capital.

In establishing the system the question of compensation does not appear to have presented much difficulty. The allotments of the profits are as follows: To the state, 65 per cent.; to the municipality, in lieu of license duties, now abolished, 15 per cent., and to object of public utility operating as counter attractions to the public houses in towns, 10 per cent. and in the surrounding districts, 10 per cent.

The profits of the trade under these regulations have contributed $7,000,000 for objects of public interest since the founding of the system. During the last eight years the proportion accruing to the state has been increased and set apart till 1910 to form the nucleus of an old age pension fund, which now amounts to $2,000,000.

The most remarkable fact in the history of Norway sobriety is that the consumption of alcohol per inhabitant has decreased about 45 per cent. in the last fifty years. The decrease has been most marked since the establishment of the Sondag system.

The aims and principles of the Sondag system are these: The elimination of private profit and securing the monopoly value for the public; insuring highest quality of liquors sold; the reduction of the number of saloons; the easy enforcement of the law; the destruction of the power of the spirit trade; and the furtherance of all progressive measures of reform.

IMPOSSIBLE TO STOOP OR BEND

SEVERAL DOCTORS COULD DO NO GOOD.

PAIN IN BACK AND KIDNEYS.

People often say, "How are you to know when the kidneys are out of order?"

The location of the kidneys, close as it is to the small of the back, which is not affected materially by other organs, renders the detection of kidney trouble a simple matter.

The note of warning comes from the back. Backache is the signal sent out by the kidneys the minute they become overtaxed. Those who heed the warning when it first comes, usually have but little trouble. The danger lies in delay. A few doses of taken in time, often saves years of suffering, and in many cases life itself.

They stimulate the action of the kidneys, enabling them to perform their duty perfectly.

Miss S. C. P. from Boston, N.S., writes: "For the past three years I have been troubled with a very bad pain in the small of my back. It was so bad it was impossible for me to stoop or bend. I had several doctors attend me, but found no relief until I picked up one of your Egyptian Dream Books, and found out about your remarkable remedy, Dean's Kidney Pills. I procured two boxes and immediately started on them, for they completely cured me. I don't think they have an equal for kidney trouble."

Dean's Kidney Pills are 25 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.50 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of the Dr. Dean's Kidney Pills Co., Toronto, Ont.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Cattle Firms and Hogs Lower at American Points.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, June 6.—Receipts of live stock at the city market since last Tuesday, as reported by the railways, were 116 cars, consisting of 1490 cattle, 2892 hogs, 382 sheep, and 363 calves. Besides the above there were 61 car loads, or 2107 hogs that went direct to other dealers outside the market sales.

Exporters.

Not many straight loads were on sale, as will be seen by the sales reported the past week of 24 car loads being shipped.
Exporters ranged from $5.40 to $5.80. Export bulls sold at $4.25 to $4.75 per cwt.

Butchers.

Prime picked butchers' sold at $5.50 to $5.70; good, at $5.25 to $5.50; medium, at $5 to $5.25; common and mixed, $4.75 to $5.00; culls, $3.50 to $4.50.

Stocks and Feeds.

Harry Murry reports nothing doing in short-keep or heavy feeders, as all heavy cattle, with a fat on them are taken for beef. Prices of calves for high feeding purposes, Mr. Murry bought 150 cattle during the week, mostly stockers and light feeders, 600 to 800 lbs. each, at prices ranging from $3.35 to $4.25 per
cwt. for good quality, common at $2.75 to $3 per cwt.

Milk Cows.

There was a fair trade in good to choice
milkers, and forward springers, at $35 to $65 each, the bulk going at $40 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Deliveries of veal calves were large, but prices held steady to firm, owing to beef prices being high. Quotations ranged from $3 for inferior, $4.50 for common, and $5 to $6 for good, and $6.50 to $7 for a very few prime new milk-fed calves.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts light, prices firm all round for all of good quality. Export ewes at $5.50 to $6 per cwt.; yearlings, $5 to $7 per cwt.;
lamb at $5 to $6 each, and a few extra heavy lambs brought as high as $7 each.

Hogs.

Receipts this week were the largest of the season. Mr. Harris got 2885 on Wednesday, and Thursday, and reports prices 35¢ per cwt. lower, or selects $6.35 and lights and fats at $6.00, with prospects still lower.

Our Bodies Are Machines.

How many people, I wonder, ever pause to consider that their bodies are merely machines to do work, furnaces
in which necessary fuel is burned, workshops in which without parts are supplied and stored in which fuel and food are laid away for use when needed? Further, like any other piece of apparatus, body works better under certain circumstances. Its fires burn better with fuels of certain sorts, mixed in certain proportions, and it cannot keep in perfect condition unless furnished with proper materials. Man thinks he eats because he is hungry;
he really eats because his body is crying out for building materials with which to repair the waste that is always going on and for fuel to keep it self warm, and it is rather "finicky" as to the supply it wants for each of these purposes. At a pinch it can use almost anything digestible for either,
but it groans and complains and punishes its unfortunate possessor if it is not properly treated.—Crittenden Marriott in St. Nicholas.

Words of Praise

For the several ingredients of which Dr.
Pierce's medicines are composed, as given by leaders in all the several schools of medicine, should have far more weight than any amount of non-professional testimony. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has the badge of respect on every bottle-wrapper, in a full list of all its ingredients printed in plain English.

If you are an invalid woman and suffer from frequent headache, backache, gnawing distress in stomach, periodical pains, disordered, catarrhal, pelvic organs,
dragging down distress in lower abdomen,
or pelvic, perhaps dark spots or specks dancing before the eyes, faint spells and kindred symptoms caused by female weakness, or the derangement of the feminine organs, you can do no better than take
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

The best, surgeon's knife and operating table may be avoided by the timely use of "Favorite Prescription" in such cases. Thereby the obnoxious examinations and local treatments of the family physician can be avoided and a thorough course of successful treatment carried out in the privacy of the home. "Favorite Prescription" is composed of the very best native medicinal roots known to medical science for the cure of women's peculiar ailments, contains no alcohol and no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Do not expect too much from "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; it will not dissolve or cure tumors.
No medicine will. It will do as much to establish vigorous health in most weaknesses and ailments as any remedy known to women as any medicine can. It must be given a fair chance by perseverance in its use for a reasonable length of time.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a safe and reliable substitute for this remedy of known composition.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr.
Pierce, by letter, free. A correspondence once is guarded as secretly as possible, and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V.
Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best laxative and regulator of the bowels.
They invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One a laxative; two or three a cathartic. Easy to take as candy.

Fisherman's Luck.

Speaking of fishing, "fishermen's luck," "lucky fishermen," etc., what does it all mean anyhow? To say a man is a lucky fisherman is merely to admit his superiority as a fisherman over other fishermen. The fish are in the water. We all have the same chance to get them, yet some "lucky fishermen" always come home with their fish boxes full and the other fellow goes nothing. In the parlance of the fisherman, the word "luck" really means "knowledge." The "lucky fisherman," you will find, knows the rock holes where the grouper lurks; he knows the channels in and about the patches and passes where the amber-jacks and barracuda live; he knows where and how to find and capture the silver mullet for bait; he knows how to bait his hooks for different fish as occasion may require; he knows the style of hook to use for every kind of fish; he is a judge of what style of fishing to do under certain conditions of wind and weather, and, above all,
he is untiring in his efforts to use all of his knowledge when he is out for fish.

Say what you mean even if the other fellow insists on misunderstanding it.

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSON
FOR TO-MORROW.
(By Dr. R. A. Torrey.)
The Passover.—Ex. 12, 21-30. Read
Exodus 7-12.

Golden Text—"When I see the blood, I will pass over you."

Long before the days of Moses,
the crossing, or passing over blood
on the threshold of a house doorway, was a mode of a sacred covenant between the in-comer—the dwellers within. This would be understood by the Hebrews, when Moses was instituting the arrangements for Jehovah's visit to the home of His people, as God had directed him. As an Oriental ruler, accompanied by his executioner, so God would visit Egypt. In this welcome with a blood covenant there was perfect safety for every home, for its use signified obedience and loyalty to the ruler, but its absence and neglect meant open defiance of the monarch. The blood of the executioner, to be followed by the entrance of the executioner of the first born.

The common understanding of the word "passover" in connection with the Hebrew exodus from Egypt, is that it was on the Lord's part, a passing by those homes where the doorways were blood stained, without entering them. Yet this meaning is not justified by the term itself, nor by the significance of the primitive rite.

Jehovah did not merely spare His people when He visited judgment on the Egyptians. He covenanted anew with them by passing over or crossing over through the blood-stains into their homes, while His messenger of death went into the houses of the Lord's enemies, and claimed the first born as belonging to Jehovah.
When modern Jews observe this feast the outer door is opened, a chair and cup set for God's messenger should he appear, to welcome him as a guest, which signifies an in-coming and not a passing-by.

The precious truthverse 33—that Jehovah's entering the homes of His people through the shed blood, and was welcomed there, garnished them against the death angel by His sacred presence and grace, has often been overlooked. Jesus said, when instituting this event and instituting the Lord's Supper, "If ye man love me he will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him—John 14, 23,
and Rev. 3, 20—I will sup with him.

LOCAL

A. H. White is not so well to-day. Mrs. Milton Johnston is visiting friends in London.

Fire Chief Richard Pritchard is confined to his home on Grand Ave. through illness.

Mrs. John Morley has returned to her home on Adelaide St., after visiting friends in Ottawa.

Mrs. (Dr.) Mustard, of Toledo, is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. J. Char-teris, Beach Wood Villa, Chatham Township.

V. J. Bosworth carries a large stock of foods, made at the Battle Creek Sanitarium, and recommended by Dr. Kellogg for weak stomachs.

Mr. Herbert G. Macpherson, who was in town first part of the week on business, leaves Toronto to-night on an extended business and pleasure trip through the Yukon Territory.

The painting from the brush of Miss Katie Kwys, of this city, is being shown in Bailey's art window. The painting depicts an Irish scene, and has been most favorably commented upon.

His many friends will be pleased to learn that Joseph Barassin, Duluth street, is somewhat recovered from his recent severe illness. It is hoped that he will soon be able to be around again.

The Health Department have ordered the new instruments for testing milk, and they are expected here in a few days. Henceforth the M. H. O. will make regular monthly tests of samples taken from all milk delivered in this city.

The firemen were called out at 10:55 last night to James Martin's paint shop, William St., where a fire had broken out in a rear room.

After forty minutes' hard work, the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze, but not before three joists and a portion of the flooring had burned away. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The gate at the junction of Wellington, Second and Third streets, is sadly in need of immediate attention from a strong man and a lawn mower. Nearly all the boulevards and lawns along Wellington St. W. are now in beautiful shape, and the gate, with its tufts of half-grown hay, dandelion tassels and other weeds, is becoming an eye-sore to the vicinity. The Board of Works should attend to this matter at once.

It has been suggested that steps should be taken to have the portion of Fourth street between the Rankin Dock and King street, properly paved. It would much improve the appearance of the city to visitors coming here by water during the summer months. It is also a useful improvement from the fact that during rainy weather the mud nuisance is greatly in evidence at this point. As there is a steep incline to this portion of the street the pavement could be put down the full width of the street, and there would be no necessity for putting down a granolithic walk.

Fred. Stone is somewhat improved to-day.

Wm. Hickey, of Merlin, was in the city to-day.

Miss Ethel Kelly, of Glencoe, is in the city visiting friends.

Edward Kelly, of Wallaceburg, was a city visitor yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd, of Toronto, are visiting Mrs. Armstrong, King street west.

Mrs. R. Kimmerly, of Dresden, is spending the day with her son Earl, of this city.

Mrs. Henry Derbyshire, Wheatley, is progressing favorably at the General Hospital.

To-day is the first anniversary of the big wind and rain storm that swept over the Maple City last year.

The 24th Regiment will attend divine service at Victoria avenue Methodist church to-morrow morning.

MINISTERS' INCOME

General Assembly Discusses Question of Providing Adequate Incomes.

Montreal, June 8.—The temper of the general assembly so far has been directed towards a practical effort to deal with pressing administrative questions, and to bring the church into line with changing social conditions. The morning was spent on thoroughly up-to-date matter of employing women in the work of the church.

Principal Patrick said the employment of women had excited the attention of the whole Christian world, and their services had returned a thousand fold. The Church of Scotland had employed deaconesses for years.

A motion approving the principle of the employment of women in church work was adopted, and a committee appointed to report at next assembly.

Ministerial Hardships.

Dr. Lyle pressed the necessity of making the minimum stipend $1,000. The great heresy of the church in the twentieth century was in having one standard for the minister and another for the laity. Principal Patrick pleaded earnestly for adequate incomes.

The children of ministers were driven from the church by the treatment accorded their parents.

Rev. A. J. McGillivray, Vancouver, compared the wages paid to artisans with what was paid to ministers in the west. He found men in the Yukon pitying the condition of the men in augmented charges.

Principal Springer moved that the minimum be fixed at $900 for all augmented charges, and this was finally carried.

Sir Thomas Taylor in seconding Dr. Springer's motion, declared it was a matter the elders should take up.

A Sociological Exhibit.

By MARTHA McCULLOCH-WILLIAMS.

Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

If Josefa had not had the Morris nose, things might have happened. The Morris nose, understand, was more than a feature—rather a hall mark of sorts throughout Rabun county. Whoever owned it was held bound not only to follow it, but to keep it going in the social lines marked out by Great-grandfather Morris, a gentleman whose spirit it had been as high as his nose.

She was not high spirited, but instead meek and lowly in mind, as became her very moderate fortune. Her mother, a born Morris, had married badly. At least the family thought so and had never scrupled to say that poor Billy Clayton never did but one sensible thing—namely, dying before he had quite wasted his wife's dowry. She had brought him land and money—and the land remained, only a little farm, to be sure, but big enough to maintain the widow and her child.

It would take managing, of course, but the widow Clayton, she that was Anne Morris, was a born manager. That was exact truth. In proof that the fact that when Josefa was eighteen she had been fairly educated, kept always in wholesome comfort and had had all along clothes quite as good as any of her richer cousins. Moreover, the house was trim and tidy and the small farm shipshape—in much better condition than the shiftless master had left it.

What wonder then that Cousin Anne, who never whined or asked for anything—advice least of all—was well liked and wholly respected throughout the whole family connection.

What wonder either that Cousin Maria Dalton, also a born Morris, who, having no children, was a chronic joiner and daughter of whatever came along, took a violent fancy to Josefa. Maria Dalton was mighty proud of the Morris blood and doted especially upon great-grandfather. She had a copy of his portrait over the mantel in her front parlor and had coaxed Lemuel Morris, his eldest grandson, into giving her his commission in the Continental army. That, too, of course, was framed and hung up beside the portrait. Inevitably the next thing was to entertain her fellow daughters upon the occasion when state chapters foregather, and that meant having Cousin Anne and Josefa help in the entertaining, notwithstanding neither of them belonged to so much as one chapter. There were reasons, Mrs. Dalton was careful to explain to the visitors—Cousin Anne was the greatest home-body, and Josefa, staying with her dutifully, had no need of belonging.

"Yes; Josefa is going to be my heir-ess. I believe so in blood," she confided to the lady president. That person pricked up her ears. Mrs. Dalton was rich, and the lady president had a son, a lawyer, just starting to practice in the county town. He needed a wife badly, especially one with expectations and family influence, and he was right on the spot, having come along with the chapter, not only by way of escort, but as speaker of the occasion. He had seized upon it as a chance to show his enthusiasm for local history. His mother, Mrs. Melvin, was inclined to regard the fact in the light of a special providence. She managed to speak with him quietly a little apart, before he read his paper and was delighted to hear him throw into the reading solid chunks of enthusiasm for Rabun county and its glorious past.

Before the assembly broke he had met Josefa and talked with her a good half hour. Next week he called on her, and the next, and the next. Mrs. Dalton was early taken into his confidence and of course was his warm advocate.

"Yes, as you say, Josefa is a Morris, out and out, all but the name, and we'll change that," she said, smiling at him. "And, remember, you are going into politics. I want you to be senator at the very least. No matter how high you go, Josefa'll do you credit. She's going to make the finest sort of woman, if she is so quiet. But don't you fool yourself thinking you can get her just for asking. That is not the way with girls of the Morris blood. Court her like a man, and don't take 'No' if she gives it to you the first time."

Jack Melvin listened, yearning to get his teeth. He was not the least bit in love. Josefa was not pretty for all she was so fresh and wholesome, and he craved beauty above everything. Besides, there was Amelia Ware, but he dared not let himself think of her. Since they could not marry he meant to marry this Josefa. It made him laugh only to think of her saying "No" to him. How could she when she knew nobody else save a few awkward country fellows?

Imagine his state of mind when Josefa did say "No" the first time, the second, the third, and each time more and more as though she meant it. After the third rejection he went to Mrs. Dalton. She laughed a laugh of indulgent pride when he had finished, but said emphatically: "I don't blame Josefa a bit. You've got the name of being a dreadful flirt. Whether or no you deserve it I am not saying. Other folks are saying Judge Ware's girl is crying her eyes out about you, and she isn't the only one, but that doesn't matter. I'll go over and stay all night with Cousin Anne tomorrow. You come out the next day. I think you'll find things changed a bit."

Woman disposes; man proposes; sometimes fate intervenes. Josefa stood with fate in this particular wrestle. She said "No" again and in a way that told Jack Melvin at least the game was up. But Mrs. Dalton held on stoutly to her plan. Cousin Anne had fallen in with it ardently. For all her thrift she had a whole lot of family pride. Moreover, she wanted Josefa to get the Dalton money. So she joined forces with her cousin, and between them they gave the prospective heirless small peace.

Obstinacy, pure and simple—that was what allied Josefa. So said her two elders in conclave. There could not possibly be anybody in Melvin's way. Josefa had been sent to school, the strictest possible boarding school, when she was barely thirteen. Since she came back from it none of the youngsters roundabout had done more than speak civilly to her. Not one had so much as come to the house, except Clayton Trigg, who was a faroff cousin and had come to buy yearlings and fat lambs. In virtue equally of his kinship and a sudden shower he had stayed to dinner and after it had shaken hands cordially with both the ladies of the house. All he had said to Josefa was that if she happened to be at the county fair next fall he hoped she would look at his saddle horses, Muggins and Mill Boy, as he was sure they would win the blue ribbon.

At fair time, with Josefa still obstinate, Mrs. Clayton had doubts as to going, but Mrs. Dalton overruled the doubts. Thus the three went together in the Dalton barouche, and for the best part of the day Josefa was handed over to Melvin. Just how she managed it she never knew, but toward 4 o'clock she slipped away from him and lost herself in the crowd. It was a delicious sensation. All the late summer she had been telling herself she would run away if she had a chance, but how could she when she had not so much as a dollar of her own? She almost ran until she came to the farther side of the amphitheater. At the foot of the stairs she found herself stopped, her hand strongly gripped and a frank, unburned face with honest blue eyes, smiling down at her, but flushing in spite of its sunburn.

Mrs. Dalton was off with a knot of the daughters. Mrs. Clayton stood rapt in contemplation of prize patchwork. Each, believed Josefa safe with the other; also that Melvin was a further guard. Therefore they smiled amiably when the ringmaster shouted that there was a new feature, a wedding in the exhibit of Scrolisaw, Varnish & Co., the enterprising furnishing men. A popular young couple had agreed to be married in the parlor arranged by the firm, who meant to show their appreciation by making the newly wed a present of the suit. Mrs. Dalton said to her next neighbor: "Oh, I reckon it's somebody from the back country. It must be. Only bumpkins and their sweethearts still tolerate parlor suits."

The neighbor nodded, but added: "Let's go and see. I come to fair mostly to see that sort of people. They are sociological exhibits, you know—better worth while than anything in the ring."

"Do you think so? Then let's hurry." Mrs. Dalton agreed, but somehow in spite of hurrying their progress was slow. They came close enough at last to hear without seeing. After the benediction the crowd drew its breath, and women in it whispered: "Why, did you ever! The girl looks radiant and quite the lady. And the fellow didn't kiss her, although the squire bade him do it."

"Here they come!" said others, falling apart to make way. Mrs. Clayton had somehow met them—Melvin was across the way, with Amelia Ware, her eyes downcast, clinging to his arm. Between them, bright eyed, head up, walked Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Trigg. Josefa went straight to her mother, saying demurely, but with the least hard drawn breath: "We're going on a little trip, mother, but it won't be extravagant. The money for the parlor suit—we sold it before we earned it—will more than pay expenses. You stay with Aunt Ria, please, till we get back."

"And then we're going to take care of you always," Clayton Trigg interrupted.

Mrs. Dalton was too stunned to speak, but Mrs. Clayton said composedly: "Well, Joe, I suppose you had to follow your nose. The Morrises always did have their own way."

How to Tell Good Salt.

The good housekeeper will growl at the flour, scold the yeast cake, sniff at the butter, turn up her nose at the lard, inspect the meat with greatest care, yet all her life wonder why she often over or under salts her dishes when she knows that she salted them just right, as she always did, and as the recipes call for. The reason is simple—the seasoning value of different brands of salt varies widely. This statement is easily proved. Take five slices of ripe tomatoes. Apply equal parts of five makes of salt upon the separate slices. Eat as soon as salted. The differences in flavor, permeation, rapidity and equality of dissolution, seasoning value, are readily detected. A table salt should be fine, the crystals of equal size, quickly soluble and free from ingredients which absorb moisture from the air. Large and small crystals will not dissolve uniformly, consequently the full salting effect is not obtained until the large crystals are dissolved. The quickly soluble salt diffuses itself through the food at once and gives an equality of savor. Sticky salt is an intrusive nuisance. Failures in salting are largely due to changing from one make of salt to another. Get the best grade, grow accustomed to its use and stick to it.

Cost Less than Stoves

A Hecla Furnace, installed on Hecla principles, will keep your house comfortable throughout the winter at less fuel expense than it would cost you for stoves. It is the old story, of course, of concentration meaning power. In a Hecla, you get all the heat from the coal you burn and where you want it. The whole house is comfortably, and evenly heated and ventilated.

Hecla Furnaces

BABY WASTED TO MERE SKELETON

In Torments a Year and a Half with Terrible Sores on Face and Body
—Hands Tied to Stop Scratching
and Tearing at Flesh—But

CURE BY CUTICURA COMPLETE AND SPEEDY

"My little son, when about a year and a half old began to have sores come out on his face. I had a physician treat him, but the sores grew worse. Then they began to come on his arms, then on other parts of his body, and when one came on his chest, it resembled the others. Then I called another physician. Still he grew worse. At the end of about a year and a half of suffering he grew so bad I had to tie his hands in cloths at night to keep him from scratching the sores and tearing the flesh. He got to be a mere skeleton, and was hardly able to walk. My aunt advised me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. So great was her faith in it that she used only one cake of Cuticura Soap to try and a little Cuticura Ointment. I took it home without any faith, but to please her I tried it, and it seemed to do some good. I sent to the drug store and got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment and followed the directions, and at the end of about two months the sores were all well. He has never had any more of any kind since. He is now strong and healthy, and I can sincerely say that only Cuticura's most wonderful remedies my precious child would have died from those terrible sores. I used only one cake of Soap and about three boxes of Ointment. Mrs. Egbert Sheldon, R. F. D. No. 1, Woodville, Conn., April 22, 1906."

AUTO DASHES INTO TEAM.

One Killed, One Injured — Wreckage Carried 200 Feet.

Buffalo, June 4.—Harry Hamlin, one of Buffalo's best known and wealthiest citizens, was killed in an automobile accident on the Williamsville road, a mile north of the city line, late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Hamlin's automobile collided with a light wagon driven by Jacob Schaller, a retired butcher of Buffalo. Hamlin was hurled to the roadside and instantly killed. Schaller was badly hurt, but will recover. John Neckel, a 12-year-old boy, who was in Schaller's rig, was fatally injured. Both his legs were broken, and his skull fractured.

In the automobile with Mr. Hamlin were Anthony Gavin, a member of the Buffalo police force, and two of Hamlin's employees, one of them acting as chauffeur. Opposite the Country Club two automobiles going in the same direction passed the Hamlin party. The road was covered with a heavy coating of dust, and the two rapidly-moving machines left a dense cloud of dust in their trail.

Schaller and the boy were driving toward Buffalo, and the automobiles were going in the opposite direction toward Williamsville.

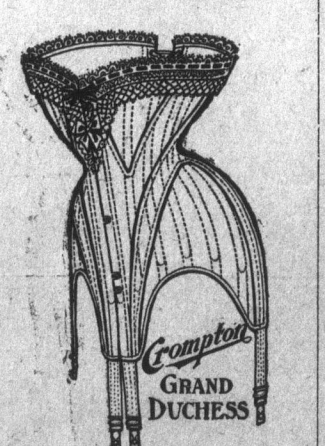

The first two machines passed them well to the right, and Schaller was peering ahead through the dust cloud when Hamlin's machine flashed directly in front of him. There was no time to turn out. The automobile struck the horse, tearing off its front legs and carrying the wreckage of the wagon 200 feet down the road. Schaller was tossed to one side, but the boy was jammed into the wreckage of the rig and the front of the automobile.

There is no logic so powerful as necessity.

It's the man who is in dead earnest who is alive to things.

SPIDER TEACHES LESSONS OF PATIENCE AND WISDOM.

IS A PATTERN OF INDUSTRY

Her Web a Model of Architectural Skill, and Delicate Design — King Solomon's Reflections—Queens the Needle—Reproduction in the Realm of Grace—Spiritual Renewal—Potency of Love.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1907, by Frederick Diver, Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., June 2.—In his sermon the preacher draws from the matchless architectural skill, the patience, industry and wisdom of the spider a material as well as a spiritual lesson. The text is Proverbs xxx, 28, "The spider taketh hold with her hands and is in kings' palaces."

Have you ever been through any of the famous royal palaces of Europe? Have you ever had a guide take you through Windsor castle, where the English King and Queen live, or through the Tuileries and Versailles, where the French rulers have lived, or through Peterhof, built by Peter the Great, where the Russian crowned heads lived, or through the Quirinal, where the Italian rulers live, or through the imperial palaces flanking "Unter den Linden," where the Emperor of Germany and the members of the Hohenzollern family live? These palaces are something more than domiciles for kings and queens and princes and princesses. They are treasuries of art and literature. They contain great art galleries and museums. They are great libraries. They are filled with priceless historical relics. And they are built in the midst of beautiful gardens, where the fountains, tumbling fountains have, in the rain, reflected from their falling waters by day and where the statues carved by the greatest of sculptors and the most exquisite of flowers are revealed to the guests by the many lights by night, make the midnight as light as the midday.

King Solomon's palaces were the best examples of architectural beauty of his time. Thus when Solomon was using in my text the symbol of the king's palace is a treasure house. There come the greatest of architects and the most wonderful of sculptors to work their skill in stone. There come the finest artists to paint their pictures. There come the magicians of the loom to bring their offerings of Damascus rugs and their most exquisite tapestries. There come the most wonderful horticulturists to lay out their gardens. All that wealth and beauty and human power can give is to be found in the king's palaces.

One morning early King Solomon is walking through the rooms of his palace. Suddenly he stops and begins to study something very carefully. It is a spider's web. During the night the spider has crawled into the house and swung a suspension bridge and there gone to work. Up and down the web he crawled. He lowered himself from the ceiling and climbed up from the window sills. He knotted his thread here and spun his network there. Then a servant comes into the room and with a broom he is about to brush the spider's web away. "Leave it alone," Solomon says. "I never studied one before. How marvelous is the workmanship of this silken web! Why, in all the splendours of my palace there is not a greater wonder than this spider web." Then King Solomon takes out his notebook and writes down the words of my text. "The spider taketh hold with her hands and is in kings' palaces." If the wisest of all men could afford to study the spider building her web, surely we have a right to make a sermon upon the life's work of a royal spider.

In the first place, the spider has a royal occupation. She is a threadmaker, a weaver, a spinner. She has the faculty of producing a thread inside of her own body and drawing it out, the only living creature that has the ability to construct with that thread those wonderfully designed webs which are seen in the houses and barns, on the roads, in the grasses and trees, every summer morning before the dew has evaporated under the rising sun. The silkworm may be able to spin a cocoon, but the spider does more than that. The spider has the power to stand upon the branch of a tree and emit from her body a thread; then this thread grows longer and longer it is carried backward and forward by the winds until it touches another branch, where it is anchored. Then the spider, having connected the two branches by this single thread, as an architect bridges the sides of a river by a cable strand, goes above that strand and drops down and goes below that strand and climbs up and winds around and around and around in circles after she has united her main threads until she finishes the web. Never did a human weaver do such symmetrical and delicately designed work as does the spider.

This work of the spider in King Solomon's time was the more marvelous because it was like the human weaving of that time, only more rapid. Then all the weaving was done by hand and in the most primitive style. If a woman wished to make a garment, in the beginning she had to make her own thread. She would take a handful of wool and stretch it out into a strand about two yards long. Then she would attach a bobbin to that strand and spin it round and round. Then, after she had twisted that strand into a thread, she would wind it up and stretch out another strand of wool and spin it into a thread. She made each thread alone. It took the woman in olden times a long time to make one thread as it does now for a bobbin boy in one of our factories to make 400 threads. Then she would stretch the warp threads perpendicularly up and down. Then with her own hands she would put in the fillings, winding them horizontally in and out until the cloth was made. Thus it was a weary, tedious task to make a piece of cloth in olden times. While the woman's work would occupy days and weeks, it would take a spider only a few hours to spin her web. Thus King Solomon was comparing the making of a spider's web to the old fashioned, primitive ways in which the women of his time wove the garments for their husbands and brothers and sons and fathers.

But, though the weaving of the garments in olden times was considered one of the most tedious of tasks, yet it was looked upon by all true women as one of the noblest of occupations. No true princess, no true queen in a royal palace, was too high or too rich to perform this duty for her men folk. In the last chapter of Proverbs an oriental queen gives a description of a perfect woman. I have always believed that description was a filial picture of her own mother. What does the royal author say? "She seeketh wool and flax and worketh diligently with her hands." This means that the queen and her women were weaving garments that her husband wore to battle and to his kingly receptions. And she was not the only royal personage who boasted that the women who wore the royal purple were the same women who wove their royal garments. Alexander the Great never put a coat about his shoulders that was not made by his own mother. With pride he showed the Persian princes who came to visit his court the many beautiful robes which were the result of the skill of Olympians, who were the daughters of the king, the wife of a sovereign and the mother of a conqueror. When the Egyptian queen desired to make a present to the Spartan princess Helen, on whose account the Trojan war was waged, she sent to her a piece of her own embroidery. Ah, do not tell me that the spider that is a strand maker, a spinner, a weaver, has not a royal occupation. If the queens and princesses of old, with all the wealth of the royal palaces, thought it not beneath their dignity to work with their fingers for their loved ones, surely it is as royal an occupation for the wise and good mothers and daughters and sisters of to-day to care for the temporal wants of their dear ones in the modern homes.

I wish that the royal occupations of Queen Olympias might be in vogue among our women of to-day. I wish that the needle might continue to be one of the scepters of female influence, because it is the type of female industry, like the spinning wheel and the ancient distaff and spindle. I would that the wives and the mothers and the daughters of our time, in their intellectual advancement raises them above the duty of looking after the temporal welfare of their homes. Our picture galleries and popular books contain portraits of women in gorgeous attire, but I think that if we had an artist to paint the portrait that is dearest to our memory we would not ask him to find the most flattering colors he had, but to paint the quiet, dull dress that was worn in our nurseries in which mother used to put her baby to bed. We can have a lamp by a table on which was placed a lamp. In her hand would be a needle and a darning good and a stocking with a big hole in it. By our mother's side would be a big pile of clothes which she was mending, and as we would look at that father of the great world, we would say, "Yes, she was always sewing for us. She was always working for us. She was always living for us." May God continue to make our wives and our daughters like our mothers and grandmothers of old, queens of the home, with the royal scepter of a needle.

But the spiders are more than mere weavers. They not only set the example of industry to man and woman and child, but they are to be recorded among the greatest benefactors of the human race. They are the greatest of all destroyers of insect life. They are the mortal foe of the fly, the locust and the grasshopper. If it were not for the destroying work of the spider in all probability most of the labors of the farmer and the husbandman would go for naught. Then the plagues of Egypt would be here. The locusts and the grasshoppers would literally destroy all the crops. The work of checking or keeping down the dangerous increase of insect life by the spider is simply infinite in its importance.

During the darkest days of Robert Bruce's life, after the King of Scotland had been defeated in five different battles and deserted by all his followers and while he himself was a fugitive chased by the English soldiers, he lay down one night in a little cave. You all remember the legendary story as printed in your childhood primer. During the night by the campfire's light the noblest of all Scotchmen watched a little spider spin his web over a purring cat. A squad of English soldiers passed that way. They were hunting for the fugitive king. When one of the soldiers came up to the entrance of that cave and was about to enter another soldier called: "No need of going in there. Don't you see a spider has spun his web over the entrance to that cave? No man would go in there without breaking it down." Thus Robert Bruce's life was saved by a spider's web. But I want to tell you that the spider is just as much the savior and protector of man to-day as he was supposed to be in times of old in Scottish history. Over every tree branch, in every flower garden, about every field of grass and crop of wheat, the spider every night and day are spinning their protecting webs. They say to the insect hordes which are trying to destroy them: "Stay out! I will stay you. Stay out! God has sent me to protect the grass and protect the crops and protect the flowers. Stay out! I am God's sentinel and man's guardian. Stay out! Stay out! Stay out!"

A spider's web is nothing more or less than a net set to catch the flies and the locusts and the grasshoppers, as the fisherman by use of another kind of net is able to bring his food to land. These spiders' nests are constructed in the air. An insect starts to fly or jump. The wing or leg of this insect touches one of the threads of the web, which has an adhesive quality. Immediately that wing or leg, by being jerked or pulled, brings other threads of the web into touch with other parts of the body. Similarly a human being sinks deeper and deeper into the quicksands with every frantic struggle to escape. The more the insect tries to get away the more helpless he becomes. Then the spider, which has hitherto been concealed, hurries forth and deftly reaches out with one of her silken threads. She winds the insect round and round until he cannot move if he would. Then when the insect is utterly helpless she gives her victim a fatal poisonous bite and slays it as quickly as the fang of a rattlesnake can kill the trembling rabbit. Thus God places the protecting spider web over the crops and the trees. Thus God expects man to place his protecting webs over the home and the church and the schoolhouse and society at large. There are great multitudes of satanic destroyers ready to pounce upon them. God says: "Man, you must guard these treasure houses of virtue and purity and truth. You must guard them. You must not only bow the knee and worship me, but you must also fight my satanic foes as well. By the myriads of protecting spider webs I would teach you this lesson."

But I was very much surprised as I began to study this subject to learn that the spider and the schoolhouse and the influence of love. An ancient tradition states that when St. Felix of Nolan was being pursued by the pagans who wished to put him to death he fled into a cave, and the spiders came and covered the entrance of the cave with a spider web. There he lived for six long months, safely protected from his would-be destroyers. That is a mere legend. But history is full of incidents where men have made pets out of spiders. When Pelisson was confined for many months in the Bastille, the famous French prison, his only companion was a spider which he domesticated. When Pelisson played on a musical instrument the spider would come regularly to eat flies out of his hand.

But there is still a more wonderful fact about these spiders than any I have as yet mentioned. It is the most wonderful symbol of gospel restoration which is to be found in the spider reproducing one of its broken limbs injured in battle. It is the gospel symbol which says: "Though a man has sinned seventy times seven, though he may have sinned seven hundred times seven hundred and he has seemed to smash all his earthly gospel usefulness forever—yet by the grace of God that sinner may be spiritually renewed and do valiant service for the Master before he dies."

Now, a spider has a marvelous power of recreation in many ways. Wonderful is the spider's ability to fix a broken web. If on account of the rain a falling stone snaps some of the threads and entangles them like a snarled mass of twine, the spider waits patiently until the storm is over and fair weather is at hand. The spider cannot afford to waste any of her precious thread, but she always has enough thread to do her legitimate work. Like the manna in the wilderness, there is always enough food for each day, but not enough food for two days in the one gathering, so as soon as the clear weather comes the spider gets to work to repair the broken web, and one of the housewives does not wonder that it is important to keep herself clean as well as a clean home. With all her hideousness she is as particular about her looks and as neat as a kitten which is continually washing the fur with her tongue as she purrs by the fire. The spider is a wonderful creature, but more wonderful than all is the spider's ability to reproduce an injured member of her body. If one of her legs is snapped off in battle she immediately proceeds to grow another leg. The new leg may not be as long and as strong as the lost leg, but it is a leg, and with it she is able to go on and live her life and do her life work. Oh, that men and women who have been worsted in the battle of sin could realize that when they are saved by the grace of God Christ will recreate their bodies and renew their souls and they can and must go forth into the Master's service and do something for him.

The Arachnid group, to which the spiders belong, can be traced back as to their name to a Grecian mythological maiden Arachne. She was of mortal birth and was known far and wide for her wonderful skill in weaving and embroidery. One day she challenged Minerva, the goddess of wisdom, to a trial of the liberal arts. Minerva, in the guise of an old woman, tried to dissuade her. She said: "The goddess then threw off her disguise and the competition began. Faster and faster went the fingers. Arachne, in her pride, wove in her cloth a picture of the failures and helplessness and the sins of the gods, as some of us try to justify our sin by complaining of the injustices of our hard lot. Minerva, angered by Arachne's presumption, changed the taunting maiden into the form of a spider, so that, despised of all mankind, she might go on spinning and weaving forever."

Oh, is that to be our fate? Shall we blaspheme against and turn our backs upon the Saviour's pleadings for the higher life and have him say, "Depart from me, for I know you not?" Or shall we be like a spider which taketh hold with her hands, and is in kings' palaces? Shall we not dwell in the king's palaces of God's love? Shall we not stop living in the dark caverns of sin? Shall we dwell in the king's palaces of a Saviour's atonement where he will guard us and bless us and keep us forever with him? It rests entirely with us where we shall dwell through eternity. For to-day the Divine King bids us come and dwell with him in his earthly and heavenly palaces.

Belief.
"Do you believe in luck?"
"Yes," answered young Mrs. Perkins, "It's something that the other man always has."

SUNSHINE FURNACE

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE WATER-PAN

is not appreciated by many furnace manufacturers or the general public as much as it should be.

Without the moisture evaporated from the water in the pan, the hot air distributed throughout the house is dry and dusty. Cracks and opens up the furniture—is not fit to breathe into the lungs.

Yet, mind you, some furnace makers place this important water-pan where there is often not enough heat to evaporate the water. Put it out of sight in an awkward position at the side or back, where it cannot readily be filled without being removed—and when filled it would take a juggler to replace it without spilling a big share over himself.

Note the convenient location of the large water-pan of the Sunshine—just above the fuel door. Takes but a moment or two to fill it.

THE AWKWARD COMMON WAY

THE EASY SUNSHINE METHOD

It is placed right in the path of the hot air as it circulates around the dome of the furnace. It is impossible for any heated air to pass out of the registers before extracting its due share of moisture from the water-pan. That means you breathe healthful, clarified air, free from dust and dryness.

For the sake of your furniture, your own health and peace of mind, you should decide on the Sunshine.

If your local dealer does not handle the Sunshine write direct to us for FREE BOOKLET.

Small Catch This Year.

Halifax, June 7.—A wireless telegram from Prospect, near the mouth of Halifax harbor, last night, says:

It begins to look now as if the American mackerel fleet would have a very small catch this year. So far, no fish has been taken and the season is two weeks behind. A southwest storm has driven 30 fishing vessels in here for shelter, and many others are in different harbors along the coast.

The cruiser Canada, which has been watching Americans, to prevent them trespassing within territorial waters, is also lying here.

The Nordheimer Permanency of Tone

As a rule when a person buys a piano it is not with the intention of replacing it with a new one next month, next year or within five years. It is regarded as a permanent fixture in the home, and the most important feature next to the owners themselves.

It is evident that great care should be taken to select a piano which will retain its original brilliancy, power and quality of tone for years and years and years. And such a piano is the "Nordheimer."

It has a lasting, permanent tone, as you can prove for yourself if you play on one which has been in the home of a friend for ten, fifteen, twenty years or more.

The "Nordheimer" is perfectly constructed by experts from the finest grade of materials procurable. It is built with the idea of not only satisfying the most critical ear for tone-quality when new, but for retaining its original superb tone, so that it will still satisfy the critical ear in years to come.

Those who own a "Nordheimer" are the only ones who can really appreciate to the fullest sense the wonderful, pure, sweet, brilliant, yet powerful tone of the peerless "Nordheimer" piano. May we not have the pleasure of a talk with you, with the object in view of placing "Nordheimer" in your home?

Our Mr. R. V. Carter will visit Chatham frequently in our interest and will be pleased to furnish you with any information you may desire. Correspondence addressed to him in care of the Garner House will receive careful attention.

One of the prettiest and most fashionable church weddings ever held in Windsor, was that of Miss Ida Ellis, eldest daughter of Mr. Henry T. Waring Ellis, barrister, of that city, and Mr. Walter John Hayes, of Detroit. The ceremony was performed last Saturday evening at All Saints' Church, at half after eight. Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick, rural dean, officiated.

The bride wore an exquisite gown of Limerick lace over Duchess satin, entrain, with a lace veil of Brussels tulle, caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Mary Bartlett, of Windsor, acted as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Merle Brock, of Windsor, and Miss Edith Sweetman, of Toronto.

Miss Ellis is well known and very popular among Chatham Society circles. She has often visited here, the last time being the guest of Miss Helen Thomas.

A young lady in St. Thomas received a postal card from a girl friend announcing her engagement. All the card said was: "See Solomon six times." When she hunted up the passage in the Bible she understood. For those unfamiliar with that volume, it may be translated as: "I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine."

Mrs. A. Steinhoff gave a five o'clock tea Wednesday evening to a number of her friends.—Wallaceburg News.

A very delightful tea was given last Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. J. Haynes Dobson, Alexander Block. The charming hostess, dressed in a handsome gown of pale blue silk with trimmings of cream lace, received her guests in the drawing room, which was made unusually pretty with quantities of pink carnations. Her sisters, Mrs. Slagg and Mrs. Wangerheim, assisted in the tea room. The hostess sweet singing and her daughter's clever playing on the piano, and all absence of formality, made a most enjoyable afternoon for her guests.

Miss Tena McDougall, Queen street, provided a very pleasant entertainment for a number of her young friends last evening. Miss McDougall is a clever young hostess, and a very enjoyable evening was spent by all.

Miss Catharine Atkinson, of Detroit, who has been the popular and charming guest of Mrs. Gertie Eberts, William street, for the past two weeks, bade farewell on Thursday to the many friends she has made during her visit here. Miss Atkinson is a most accomplished young lady and makes an attractive and pleasant visitor. She left on Thursday for Port Huron, where she will join her mother at their summer home.

McLEAN-WHITECOMB.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Whitcomb, of Pontiac, Mich., Wednesday, June 5th, when their youngest daughter, B. Eunice, was united in marriage to Mr. John M. McLean, of Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. McLean arrived in this city Wednesday and were met at the home of their reception at the home of their uncle, Mr. John Hamlett, of Lansdowne avenue. Mrs. McLean was one of Pontiac's leading young ladies, and Mr. McLean was formerly of this city, but now of Detroit, where he is in the employ of the D. U. R. Mr. and Mrs. McLean will be at home to their many friends in Detroit after July 1st.

Mrs. M. Houston, Victoria avenue, gave a very enjoyable At Home yesterday. Mrs. Houston leaves shortly for Prince Albert, where she will visit her daughter, Mrs. John W. Young.

The many friends of Miss Lucy McKellar will be pleased to learn that she will return home on Monday from St. Joseph's Hospital, London, very much improved in health. She has been away almost seven weeks.
