At Brookville yesterday morning, our reporter boarded the stout steamer "Spartan." on which was the Emperor of Brazil, Empress and suite. The day was a beautiful one, the boat well filled with sight-seers and men on business, and everything indicated a pleasant trip. Those who had seen the portraite of THE EMPEROR

in the Wilness a few weeks ago, could easily point him out amongst the crowd on the boat, but unless with some such knowledge he could not have been distinguished. He was in a group of men chatting freely with them, answering enquiries about his travels, and asking many questions about Canada, its soil, climate. government, &c. He is a very tall man, but his stature is somewhat lessened by all sides. It was evident that the Emperor, though taking a deep interest in the as indicates a close student; his face is movements of the boat through the intriwell marked and bronzed; his whiskers long, curling and gray; and his body inclines towards corpulency, but not sufficient to prevent him from quick, active arteries for the commerce of his vast emmovement. In fact, he was all life, energy pire. As the boat shot out form the and enthusiasm. Now he would be on conversing with the ladies and gentlemen | scene, leaned over the rail and expressed in the saloon, rapidly writing in a blank | deck below in the words : " It is grand! These, of health. For the benefit of the ladies, we edge and shrewdness. He was the centre of attraction; but still there was doubt in the minds of some that he was really the Emperor, and many and ingenious were the arguments pro and contra. where it was so extremely cold, many people did not freeze. The reply was, "There are very few such cases, and all of them may be attributed to the use of intoxicants.' The Emperor, with a twinkle in his eye, quickly responded, "Then this must be the temperate zone." Those who overheard this hit were much amused. Besides this temperance question others were brought to him pretty forcibly a good many times during the voyage, which, perhaps, may have been attributable to the fact that there were a number of ministers on board. In referring to the marriage of ministers, he appeared to regard their connubial unions with approval as tending to increase the population of the country, and appeared to be surprised on asking a delegate to the Congregational Union in regard to the number of his family, to receive the answer, " have a family of thirteen, and the best of it is, not one of them has ever yet smoked a pipe or drank a glass of liquor." "Blessed is he who has his quiver full of children," responded a clerical gentleman. Conversation such as this beguired the time, until the Long Sault Rapids were reached, when the Emperor mounted to

As the steamer approached the first foaming ridge of the Long Sault, and the green banks began to glide more swiftly past, the Emperor in his prominent position about equally divided the attention of the passengers with the rapids. "Will the 'Spartan' run the Lachine Rapids?" is the question, and some who lugubriously say to all they meet that not once this year has those rapids been run by one of this line of steamers appear to believe that this will not be an exception. But Lachine is passed and the whistle blows, and a canoe is seen swiftly carting out from the Caughnawaga shore. The celebrated is in the stern, and he is now the centre of attraction, that side of the vessel being crowded by curious gazers. In a moment he is in the pilot-house, and, aided by three men at the wheel and two at the tiller, he is ready to descend the most dangerous rapids of the chain, the dangers being the greater because at this season they are hidden under water. He is for a time the principal man on board, and is a marvel of alertness and strength. Large, tall, muscular, with face strongly marked and furrowed, eyes flashing beneath slouched hat, but ever fixed on what is before him, his face changing with the speed of lightning every moment, at one time knitted together as if in anxiety, and at another covered with a widespread smile, he is quite a a picturesque object as he stands at the wheel giving his commands almost in a whisper, at the same time with the strength of a giant giving the first turn to the wheel. There is no laziness in the wheelsmen in descending these rapids, and their wheel is now spinning one way and then another like the spinning-wheels of olden time, and as the vessel careens at each sharp, short turn, we know that we have passed some danger hidden to us but well known to the pilot. But we have watched him so long that the rapids are passed, and is fairly in view. At first it appears as if the sun is setting, and many are the expressions of admiration at the mellowed tints reflected in the clouds; but in a moment we find that it has not set, and we see it above the mountain. As the vessel passes on it is again eclipsed, and under different phases. The city is a been lowering the flagstaff, and no sooner

Thus the Church is under perpetual pressure to seize all advantages and make the most of every opportunity. The press and the pulpit are parallel barrels on the same stock. They are under the same sights, and, loaded alike they will carry to the same mark. The Church must see to it that neither is loaded with blanks.

All the enterprises of the church come to the paper having on the wedding garment, and may not be cast out. What a vigilant secular press is constantly doing for secular life the religious press must do for religious life. Set for the defense of the faith, it can never be off duty. Under orders for the capture of the world, it can never go into winter quarters. Commissioned for the edification, the upbuilding of believers, it cannot neglect the costly Success consists in making Methodism do its best for the Saviour. This reduces to the axiom, "The whole is equal to all the parts." We—you, reader, and I—have this paper. If you can get either an idea or the name of a new subscriber, send it on immediately; the first I will use if I want it, the second I will use anyway.

TEMPERANCE-The people of Ontario find it no easy matter to execute the new law in its letter and spirit, but they are trying it, and that is a step ahead. They drink more distilled liquors than any other section of the Dominion,-a fact by no means creditable to them. Sir A. T. Galt in his lecture the other day at Toronto made a note of the fact that they pay which, after a lorg retrograde course, more excise than any other province, in proportion to population,-which being interpreted means that they drink more whisky. But alas this is a matter in which no province can afford to fling stones at another. Ontarious a reforming Province and having started in the right direction, she will soon shoot ahead of us

WESLEYAN MEMBERSHIP RE-TURNS.

These are not yet complete. Some district committees have to be held. But sufficient is known to show that the Connexional year, now at its close, has in this respect been one of the most successful in the history of our church. The increase will probably be between 13,000 and 14,000 members, while considerably above 30,000 are returned as on trial for membership. Many of these blossoms, we know, fall before they ripen into fruit, and therefore we would not count too much on them; but there can be no legitimate churchgrowth in Methodism without a fair proportion, of members on trial.

Examination of the district returns shows that the great centres of population have this year furnished a due proportion of the increase. That districts where population is declining should exhibit small increase can be satisfactorily explained; but that amongst the masses of manufacturing and commercial districts. where Methodist agencies are found in full operation and on the largest scale, decreases should continuously occur, must be most unsatisfactory. Leeds with 1,715 increase, Halifax and Brandford with 1,663. Liverpool with 1,557. Birmingham with 1,005, and the two London Districts with 1,102, show substantial progress. Bolton, Manchester, Macclesfield, Bristol, Sheffield, and Hull follow next. In Bath and Norwich, present respectable increases, we think we discern the stirring of a new life under the influence of the district missionaries appointed at the last Conference. The increase in the Bristol District favours a similar conclusion, as also that in the Lincoln District. We trust the Conference will be induced to apply the same

"THE CROSS OF OUR LORD JE. SUS CHRIST."

Morally and physically, no less than spiritual the faith of Christ came like the dawn of a new spring to nations effete with the drunkenness of crime. The struggle was long and hard, but from the hour when Christ died began the death knell to every Satanic tyranny and every tolerated abomination. From that hour holiness became the ideal of all who name the name of Christ as their Lord, and the attainment souls in which His Spirit dwells.

The effects then, of the work of Christ are even to the unbelievers indisputable and historical. It expelled cruelty; it curbed passion; it branded suicide; it punished and repressed an execrable infanticide; it drove thee shameless impurities of heathendom into a congen-There was hardly a class whose wrongs it did not remedy. It ennobled labour from a vulgarity into a dignity and a duty. It sanctified marriage from a little less than a blessed sacrament. It rewarded for the first time the angelic beauty of a purity of which men had despaired, and of a meekness at which they had utterly scoffed. It created the very conception of charity and burdened the limits of its obligation from the narrow circle of a neighborhood to the widest horizons of the race. And while it thus evolved the ilea of humanity as a common brotherhood, even where its tidings were not believed, it cleansed the life, and elevated the soul of each individual man. A BROKEN REVERIE.

The week had been a busy one, but I had found time to attend a number of meetings at the Hippodrome, and some of the truths that lay so near the looking into my face, and I-tell him the speaker's heart, had found their way to story of the Cross, of the Saviour's love mine. At first I had rather shrunk and death, and I feel my own love from the question, so often asked with kindling anew, while I lead him to an emphasis upon the personal pronoun, Calvary. He teaches me while I am only."

but I gradually acquired moral courage out of the darkeness. Every hour I necessary. Our only purpose is to ask, to reply "Yes, and I er j by the meetings learn some sweet lessons of faith and if this idea of giving a "double soul" is my courage rose to such a height that when a friend complacently remarked "I have no doubt certain classes of people will be benefited," I replied "Mr. Moody's exposition of the Bible cannot fail to do good to every class that listen to him," and then with a feeling of self-satisfaction I mentally thanked God "I was not as others."

The more I heard, the more I wanted to hear; but the truth that had found its way into my heart, instead of bringing the peace of which Mr. Moody loves to tell, seemed to rankle and fester there, and I was like a "wave of the sea driven about and tossed." A little light had found its way into my soul, but only enough to show the surrounding darkness.

After a sleepless night, I rose one morning dispirited and discouraged; everything was wrong, and what could I do to stem the tide of sin and wretchedness? I could not live in the world without being part of it. I wanted to do right, but the right seemed as hard to know as to do. Where should I begin? When you want to do any. thing, some one says "begin at the beginning." While I was wondering where to find the beginning, my reverie was interrupted by the entrance of a little three-year-old boy. He was talking earnestly to his older brother, who followed him. "Yes, Lilla," he said, with an important air, "I've plenty to

The bright faces and happy voices were a pleasant interruption, and watched them as they opened a closet where the young merchant kept his treasures. I could not resist the temptation of giving the little fellow some advice. "Charley," said I, "come here. I've something to tell that will help you." He hesitated a moment, but was soon standing with his sweet earnest face turned toward me, and his loving trusting eyes fixed upon mine. of that ideal the common heritage of "Are you ready to listen?" He nodded his head, and his eyes grew larger and darker as he caught some of the interest I tried to communicate. "Willie is a large boy," said I, "and he's pretty sharp; now when you sell make a good bargain; take care what you do, and don't let him get the better of you." I spoke strongly and emphatically, while I watched with loving hand and brought it down with start!one penny."

I listened while the boys targained together; Charley was an apt scholar, and had profited by my teaching. ly at him, and congratulated myself upon his being the brightest boy of his age in the city. He closed the door with a boyish bang, and I returned to Ev reverie; but that sweet trusting face was still looking up into mine. I could not get rid of it, and like a "sharp arrow" from the "bow of the mighty," the question forced itself upon me "What have you taught that boy?" I had been looking for the beginning, and I had found it in that little child, whose faith in me had never known a doubt. What had I been teaching him? What seed had I been sowing? Humbled in the dust, as I looked into the past, I opened my Bible and read "And these words which I command thee-thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in try house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down. I turned over leaf after leaf and read each verse that I could find upon the subject, and while the bitter cry arose—Can I undo what I have already done? Can I erase what I have engraven on that young heart? Can I blot out what I have written? Mothers, ask yourselves what impressions you are making upon those fresh tablets God has placed in your hands.

Again the little boy stands beside me, with his hands in mine, and his eyes "Do you go to the Hippodrome?" teaching him, and God is leading me love and believe.

Mothers, fathers, you can learn sweet lessons of faith and love from your little child; but while he teaches you, what are you teaching him? Are you willing to reap the harvest that will spring from the seed that you are sowing? You cannot erase what you are daily and hourly engraving on that young heart.—N. Y. Evangelist.

I MADE HIM WHAT HE WAS.

A few weeks ago a saloon-keeper in Dover Delaware, who patronized his his own bar very liberally, stepped into a back room, where men were at work about a pump in a well. The covering had been removed, and he approached to look down, but, being very drunk, he pitched in head-foremost. He had become so much of a bloat by the use of strong drink that it was impossible to extricate him in time to save his life.

There was great excitement in the town. Men and women who had never teen inside of his saloon before were the first to rush to the rescue, and to offer sympathy to the bereaved family. As he was being dragged from the well and stretched out dead upon the saloon floor, a wholesale liquor-dealer from Philadelphia stepped in. After the first shock of thus finding one of his good customers dead, he turned to a prominent lady, a crusader, and said. pointing to the wrecked victim, "I made that man what he was. I lent him his first dollar, and set him up with his first stock of liquors, and he's now worth $10,000 or $15,000."

Looking him full in the face, she responded:

"You made that man what he wasa drunkard, a bloat, a stench in the nostrils of society, and sent him headlong into eternity, and to a drunkard's hell? What is $15,000 weighed against a lost soul; a waste ! life, a wife a widow, and and children orphans?"

He turned deadly pale, and without a word left the house.

And so we ask; "What is all the business and all the revenue to the millions whose homes are dispoiled: whose children are beggared, and whose loved ones are sent headlong to a drunk- glittering stud in his shirt-bosom. He ard's grave and a drunkard's hell? Put | sucks a sugar plum while the collection is yourself in the place of that mother whose son is pursued day and night by this demon, till the hairs of his head become serpents, and live coals burn into his flesh to the very bone, and fighting devils, he leaps out into eternity; and then ask, 'Are my hands clean? Do I love my neighbour as myself? Am I doing all I can to stay the tide that is bearing so many down and may yet bear me down?"-Christian Woman.

A DOUBLE SOUL.

BY A. B. C.

In that remarkable book of Arthur Helps, "Realmah," the following conversation occurs between some of the leading characters:

MILVESTON.-Well, I have a fanciful idea which indeed has been in my mind for many years.

Ellesmere.—Let us guess. The philosopher's stone? The power of always reasoning rightly? Long life? SIR ARTHUR.—Is it the power of seeing clearly into other men's mind's? MILVEETON, -- No, you will never guess it. I shall have some difficulty in explaining. I mean that there should be a double soul, taking the word "soul" to include all powers, both of thought and feeling, so that you should be able to give one of these souls perfect rest. They should be so intimately in unison that what one thinks or feels, or says, or does, should be admitted to be thought, and felt, and said. and done by the other which is absent. Think of the advantages of my fancy if it were realized-all the regrets, and vexations, and remorses being partaken by another soul which would occasionally come fresh to the work, and bear the burden which its exhausted compeer and partner was almost fainting under. Have you not known occasions in which you have said to yourself, "I would give anything to have another me-to take up the burden for this day

We cannot quote it entire, nor is it and believes, I am trying to trust and gospel of Jesus Christ proposes to do for us? Looking at the ills of life through Christian eyes may not all our regrets and vexations" be shared by our Redeemer? Is not this one reason why he gave himself to us? Does he not again and again offer to take up the burden for us, nay, does he not urge us and with all loving, earnest words beseech us to drop our burdens at his feet? "Come unto me, all ye that are heavy laden. I will be your rest. will never leave thee nor forsake thee. Lo, I am with you alway. Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world."

Oh the pity of it—that we so almost never get down into the depth and wonder of these words! The Bible is full of them, but for the most part they have but little meaning for us. Our eves are holden. What need of a little ones laugh the better; the faster 'double soul" in any other sense than this one, that of a mighty Comforter, strong enough, and great enough, and loving enough to lift us over all life's hard places.

Such a one is offered to every human soul.—Christian Weekly

THE FOPPISH PREACHER.

Recently, in addressing a class of theological graduates, the Rev. Dewit Talmage thus described the foppish and frivolous preacher:

He has a handsome foot or hand, or thinks he has. It is evident from his gait and appearance that he has received most of his inspiration from the tailor. His glove fits so well that it seems to have grown on; his boot, as if made on a last of the latest fashion. His hair twists as though it had been under curling-irons. From his gesticulations you know he has practiced them before the n.irror. He bring with them a sweetness of emotion prides himself on being a lady's man, and looks so sweet (laughter), and has the appearance of one of Godey's fashion-plates. As he takes out his handkerchief to wipe away a tear in the midst of his sermon the fabric drops musk and patchouly, and "Balm of a thousand flowers," and " Newmown hay," and "Kiss me quick." (Laughter.) He is a stick of ecclesiastical candy -a moral peppermint-a religious chocolate drop. (Laughter.) He takes his text from the most luscious part of Solomon's Song, and lithps in a manner thweet beyond dethcription! (Loud laughter.) He has a diamond ring on two fingers, and a being taken up (laughter), and though not short-sighted at all, has his glasses astride his nose, lifts the hymn-book fantastically,

There is a land of pu-ah delight, Where saints immawtal reign.

(Laughter.) It would take about sixty of tity, was always a welcome home for the minister them to equal one decent doll-baby. After hearing such a young man preach, an old clergyman arose in the pulpit to make the closing prayer, and said: "O Lord, Hess this young man, and make his heart as soft as his head." (Laughter.)

THE EMPEROR AT MOODY'S SER-

At the evening service at the Hippodrome Mr. Moody's text was, "What shall I do with Jesus, which is called Christ?" At Mr. Moody's right hand sat Dom Pedro and his suite, Mr. Christine Tomsen, and a number of other gentlemen. The Emperor had a small umbrella between his knees, on the top of which swung his high silk hat. He paid the closest attention to Mr. Sankey's singing, shaking his head in the British Islands, they possessed patriotic and religious principles; these early exhibited themselves in Nothan approval, and when "The Ninety-and-Nine" was sung he held a hymn-book in his hand and traced the words as Mr. Sankey sang them.

Mr. Moody, after giving out his t xt said: "I do not care so much about the your hearts. I do not care what denomithings and persons of the past, and the zest with sermon if L could impress the text upon nation a man may belong to, nor would I go across the street to change his denomination, but I would go around the world to bring one single soul to Jesus. (The Emperor shook his head and muttered, Yes.) Men mean to decide some day what they will do with Christ, but worldly interest stands in the way. If it were not for this lack of decision hundreds of young men in this city would be Christians." As the speaker became excited, large drops of perspiration stood upon the Emperor's forehead, and he leaned forward on the edge of his chair, endeavoring to catch every word, not once removing his eyes from Mr. Moody's face. Mr. Moody spoke with unusual distinctness. "If you wish true liberty and peace," he said, "accept Christ and you will sajoy it." (" Very true," said Dom Pedro, turning to his Secretary.) "A kingdom will not buy Christ or a place in heaven beside him. Even a great Emperor cannot save his soul with all his wealth and power unless he bows himself at Christ's feet and accepts of him." The Emperor bowed his very mu h." Indeed upon one occasion hope and love. As he trusts, and loves not in one sense precisely what the head, and turning to his Secretary bade pay particular attention to M him Moody's remarks. At the conclusion of the service, which was very effective, the Emperor shook hands with Mr. Moody and Mr. Sankey, and a place being cleared through the crowd by the police, the royal party passed out the Twenty-Seventh street floor, entered their carriage and were driven away .- New York World.

TALKING AT TABLE is one of the very best digesters; there is no tonic known to equal it, as it is of the kind known to promote hilarity and good feeling generally. Most parents are prone to prohibit their children from laughing and talking at the table; it is unphysiclogical; it is cruelty. Joyousness promotes the circu. lation of the blood, enlivens it, invigorates it, sends its tingling to the remotest parts of the system, carrying with it animation, viger and life. The louder the they talk the better, for then they eat less in a given time, consequently chew their their food more thoroughly.

Discard controversy from the dining table. Discourage all subjects which invite political or religious rancor. Let every topic introduced be calculated to instruct. to interest, or amuse. Do not let the mind run on business or previous mishaps or past disappointments. Never tell bad news at the table, nor for an hour before. Let everything you have to communicate be, if possible, of a gladsome, joyous, hilarious character calculated to bring out pleasant remarks or agreeable associations On the other hand, never administer a reproof at the social board to either servant or child; find fault with nothing; speak unkindly to no one. If remarks are made of the absent let them contain some word of commendation, which, if repeated in their hearing afterward, will kindle kindly feelings, and thus will thoughts of the family table come across the memory in after years, when we have been scattered and some laid in their final resting place, which makes it a pleasure to dwell upon them .- Halls' Journal of Health.

Awake, my soul, in joyful lavs, And sing thy great Redeemer's praise; He justly claims a song from me: His loving kindness, O, how free!

He saw me ruined by the fall,

Yet loved me, notwithstanding all; He saved me from my lost estate: His loving kindness, O, how great! Though numerous hosts of mighty fees, Though earth and hell my way oppose,

He safely leads my soul along, His loving kindness, O, how strong! When trouble, like a gloomy cloud, Has gathered thick and thundered loud.

He near my soul has always stood: His loving kindness, O, how good! 8. PRACTICAL ADDRESS .- On the practical teachings of the twelve lessons.

THE ELDER'S TWELVE PRAYERS. Elder S-was a distiller, carried on the business largely, and supplied his neighbor's with the good creature. At length one and another and another became drunkards, squandered away their property, and reduced their families to beggary and wretchedness. Nevertheless, the elder continued to supply them, "for the public good." and being a sober man, did it "very regularly." By-and-by one of his customers came to settle with him; and on settlement owed him twenty dollars, and yet had nothing to pay, and nothing with which to supply his family with a rag of clothing or a morsel of bread. He and they were literally destitute. And the elder enquired of himself, "What has made this man a drunkard, and brought his family to poverty and wretchedness?" Conscience answered, "Your whiskey." And who must answer in the day of judgment?" said the elder. Conscience replied "You;" and spoke with a voice which the elder could not but hear. He went away heavyhearted, and sorely pressed, as Conscience continued to echo, "You must answer at the day of judgment for making that man a drunkard." He retired to bed but not to rest or to sleep. He got up, kneeled down, prayed, and went again to bed, but obtained no relief. He got up, kneeled down and prayed again, till he had gotten up, prayed, confessed his sins, implored merey, prayed for the man and his faur. ily whom he had ruined, and lay down no less than eleven times. And his distress grew greater and greater. Not only that man, but one and another and another-great numbers whom he had made drunkards, and for whose ruin he must answer at the day of judgment, rose up to his view, and he was wellnigh overwhelmed with the conviction of his guilt. He rose, and kneeled down the twelfth time before God, and not only confessed his sin, but now, for the first time, resolved without delay to forsake it. He promised before the Lord, that no portion of his time or property should again be employed in making that which tends to destroy the bodies and the souls of men. And he meant what he said. Next morning he rose, cleared out his distillery, and said that no whiskey should ever be made there again. He made known his determination to his children and his neighbors. One of them thought he was too superstitious, and offered him for the use of his distillery 500 dollars a year. But he utterly refused, saying that none of his property should ever again be employed by any one in that way. He held to his resolution till his death and tried to induce all to follow his example. With his children he was

To Seth S. Hange: A person in my employ had the sofficied with First, or Epilepsy, for thirteen years, it had those attacks at intervals of two to four weeks, and effortimes several in quiek succession, sometimes continuing for two or three days. On several occasions they lested until his mind appeared totally deranged, in which state he would continue for a day or two after the fits cened. It ried several remedies prescribed by our resident physicians, but without success. Having seen your advertisement I concluded to try your remedy. I obtained two boxes of your Pilis, gave them according to directions, and they effected a permanent cure. The person is now a stout, healthy man, about 39 years of age, and has not had a fit since he commenced taking your medicine, ten years since. He was my principal wagoner, and has, since that time, been exposed to the severect of weather. I have great confidence in your remedy, and would like every one who has fits to give it a trial.

SETR S. HANCE, Baltimore, Md. — Dear Str. I take great pleasure in relating a case of Spasns, or Fits, cured by your invaluable Pills. My brother, J. J. Ligon, has long been afflicted with this awful disease. He was first attacked while quite young. He would have one or two spasms at one attack at first, but as he grew older they seemed to increase. Up to the time he commenced taking your Pills he had them very often and quite severe, prestrating him, body and mind. His mind had suffered serieusly, but now. I am happy to say, he is cured of those fits. He has enjoyed fine health for the last five months. His mind has also returned to its original brightness. All this I take great pleasure in communicating, as it may be this I take great pleasure in communicating as it may be the means of directing others to the remedy that will care them. A WORD OF WARNING TO THE CONFERENCES.

Growing out of our recent union of Methodist forces in Canada, there is a new danger which now threatens us. Preparatory to, and as a necessity of, union, large Conferences, East and West, were divided into several smaller bodies. While the General Conference, as a central body, draws us together, the Annual, or Provincial, Conferences, have, a tendency to separate us-to isolate us from each other. Thus both centripetal and centrifugal forces are at work, which, though suitable in nature, are not so here. It appears to us at this moment that this is our greatest danger. Against this we are called upon as "members one of another" to watch and strive. If it be possible so to promote the growth of this great Church of Canada, that each and every branch of it, receiving life from a common source, shall bloom and bear fruit with beautiful uniformity our experiment of ecclesiastical construction will be successful. There are some indications already that wisdom will be required to secure these most desirable results. It is necessary, perhaps, principally in the matter of transfers,-so that each Annual Conference shall study its neighbours necessities as well as its own, both having equal claims upon our affections and judgment, as parts of "the body of Christ." Interchange of courtesies and brotherly messages would be of vast advantage in aiding this object. As it is at present, whatever inclination there may be, there is little opportunity for such relations. Our Conferences appoint their times of considerations. To see one or two good Brunswick to the Nota Scotia Confermen from the West conveying greetings | ence, is resisted, evidently with deterannually, would do us in the East great | mination, on the ground of injustice to good. Similar visits to the West, as the person transferred. We take the eccasion might offer, would do them choice of concluding that the trouble no harm. The Maritime Conferences has arisen from misunderstanding beparticularly, till recently a unit, can tween the parties interested in this scarcely afford to bid each other adieu painful case. The aggrieved asserts at this juncture. But they are as most positively that he gave no assent effectually separated to-day as they to being transfered; that he has an official possibly can be. With the energy of a living faith, such warfare has been maintained against it in its own Canadian stronghold-Montreal-that it is found necessary to start a daily Romish paper, and devote to it the very best talent of the Church. Will this save it? If it have principles and practice capable of bearing the light--yes; if not woe to it. Thousands have forsaken the Mass in Montreal already-partly through the agency of the press, chiefly through the power of the Gospel of Christ. If that Church can meet the opposing current with a faith as pure and a Gospel as potent, it will regain its influence. Otherwise the triumph will be won by

There is no apology for the intention just announced of introducing a Roman Catholic paper into Newfoundland, except that of political ambition. No daily or weekly sheet on that ground seeks to make a crusade against the Ro man Catholic religion. Matters there are about as thoroughly separated already as they can well be. In churches, schools, social institutions, Protestants and Roman Catholics have nothing in common. There is but one arena into which the curse of religious agitation does not enter; that is the political If the Bishop is disposed to try his hand at building up a partition there, he may succeed; but if we have learned anything of Newfoundland politics, it does seem to us but wise at least that Roman Catholic potentates there should study their own colonial history before challenging this new enemy to combat There are dead issues which ought to have no resurrection. In politics as in tragedy, it is far easier to raise ghosts than to lay them.

TRANSFERS.

Several communications, bearing upon recent action of the Transfer Committee, have reached us. Among the number are two or three which seem to demand attention, as our own official connection with said Committee might make silence appear cowardly, or be construed into an admission of fault.

cording to the shape they have taken before our own mind, and not as an official explanation, which, under present circumstances, would be altogether beyond our province.

"OUTSIDE IMPRESSIONS."-An article in the Presbyterian Witness of last week, under the caption with which we head this paragraph, expresses a warning to the churches, based upon certain letters which have appeared in American Methodist papers. It is assumed that outsiders look carefully at the conduct of ministerial assemblies, and consequently every weakness liable to be reported, should be carefully avoided. In fact, the remarks quoted by our neighbor are anything but "outside impressions." They are reflections from Methodists-Methodist ministers- upon the most glaring defects in the General Conference. That there are spots on this ecclesiastical sun, is known to every one, and to none more positively But of all carpers he is generally the most keen-scented who, smarting under some real or imaginary wrong, looks upon his own more favoured brethren. We imagine these "outside impressions" have come from precisely this source. Methodism in America is controlled much-too much, we regret to say-by King Caucas; but, that the evil will bring its speedy remedy we have no doubt. This "ring" and "monopoly" influence in any religious body is a miserable policy, sure to bring its own punishment. Yet, let us not forget that the General Conference rejoiced over great accessions of members from sin to religious life-an average addition during the year of over 2000 communicants each week. Then, its bishops are mighty men-not less devoted than mighty. Nor are its general forces less honourable than most of Christian mankind.

An obituary of Mr. ELIJAH TUTTLE, of Pugwash, and other communications, came too late for this week.

> AS TO THE EUROPEAN WAR QUESTION but little, at this date, can be said. Telegrams of one day are flatly contradicted the next. But England has ordered a kind of stock-taking as regards her navy and naval facilities, and taken other active measures, which mean vigilance and a purpose not to be caught napping. In commercial phrase there is "a run on the bank;" if the directors can meet the demands, the bank may tide over its difficulties; otherwise-disaster. Turkey, old, effete Turkey, can stand but little strain, save as other nations may support it. It would not be surprizing to hear of war at any moment.

"An Outline of the Historical Evidence of the truth of the Christian News. than those taking part in its exercises. Revelation," is the title of a pamphlet, a copy of which has been sent to us by Rev. Professor MacKnight, of the Presbyterian Theological Hall, Halifax. One of the noticeable and interesting features of the "Presbyterian Witness," for several months back, was the publication of Prof. MacKnight's scholarly prelections, here supplied to the public. Many of our ministers present at the Halifax Conference some years ago, will remember the admiration with which they listened to a discussion delivered and every minister has some question in the Presbyterian Synod then in session, upon the question of marriage to a deceased wife's sister. Mr. MacKnight ship, an commended himself at that time by his argument, so indicative of close research, clear apprehension of ancient oriental customs, and great energy of thought and language. HISTORY OF P. E. I.—As will be seen by a letter elsewhere, Mr. Campbell devoted two years to preparing and writing his History of P. E. From an author of Mr. Campbell's proved ability, with a subject so profoundly interesting as that of P. E. Island's history, we naturally expected a larger work, including, of course, the treatment of sub. jects usually coming within the scope of the historian's observation. We can only regret-and the regret is shared we are quite sure, by the author as well -that the financial question compelled the omission of much matter which otherwise would have been embodied in edition may bring to us what is wanting in this. We see that the Rev. Wm. The resignation was accepted and the application was favorably entertained and referred to a Committee to report upon. It is to be presumed that Mr. Stephenson's sentiments have lately undergone a change on the questions invvolved in the famous "five points." THE NEXT STAGE of the contest will be in London early in June, where the laymen elected by the District meetings will meet with the ministerial body by which the proposals were drafted, and the whole pro-ject will undergo revision at the hands of a mixed and influential body of men, fully competent to prepare a report for the discussion of Conference. The disapproval of the majority of the ministers does not in the least bar the way for future discussion or arrangement. It is fairly launched and will not be allowed to rest again.

THE STATUS OF LOCAL PREACHERS was another subject remitted for consideration, and included various proposals for their reading and examinations, their relations to their own Quarterly meetings, and also their standing in any Local Preacher's meeting, and Circuit to which they may remove. Some of the proposals are excellent and worthy of wide adoption, but others appear unfair and unwise. Some circuits have but little work for the Local preachers. and can afford to set up a standard of proficiency for themselves, which is impossible of attainment in vast numbers of circuits where the Local brethren are compelled to undertake a large proportion of the Sabbath work. Before the new scheme becomes Connexional law it will be considerably modified, and its ly beneficial, and assist in raising the standard of lay ministerial labour.

THE LATE REV. W. EDWARDS senior chapel secretary, has toiled hard at the onerous work, and has suddenly been stricken down in the midst of his usefulness and days. He was highly esteemed by his brethren-had won a good renown as an earnest and devoted minister of the Gospel in some of the best circuits of the Connexion, and during the twelve years of his official life in Manchester, was ever anxious to assist in every possible way the highest interests of the Church. The Master's final call came to him, while opening Divine service in one of the London chapels, and after serveral days of unconscious suffering, he was released from this mortal life, to be forever with the Lord.

THE HISTORY OF P. E. ISLAND.

To the Editor of the Wesleyan. DEAR SIR,-In your notice of my History of Prince Edward Island you complain of its being "a little book, written in a little while, and christened with the name of history." When I undertook to write a history of the Island I published a prospectus, in which the size of the prooperation will on the whole be decided- posed work, as well as the price at which it was to be sold, was specified. The book exceeds by a score of pages the number promised, and it has been sold at the price advertised-and moreover in points of typography, quality of paper and binding it is acknowledged to be superior to the sample. If a contractor undertakes to build a cottage he ought not to be blamed for not making it a castle.

As to whether it was "written in a little while," let the following facts testify. I spent at least one full year on the Island, my time being devoted exclusively to the work, and the whole of the winter before last was spent in my own house in exhuming from files of old newspapers, and manuscripts the matter of which the work is composed. It cost me a far greater amount of labour than my larger history of Nova Scotia which you were pleased to notice so very favorably in the WESLEYAN. A large work might have been produced with less labour, but a larger at a higher price would not pay, and that is a consideration which every honest author who cannot afford to love money must considsider. The notices of the Canadian Monthly and the newspapers of the Island. eight in number, have all, with one exception, been too favorable, and I have sent this note so that the impression regarding my work which your notice is calculated to produce, may to some extent be counteracted, until at least it is perused.

I am, respectfully yours. DUNCAN CAMPBELL, 14 Pleasant et., Haličax, June 16, 1876.

"Why do you call it Little Charley's Chapel? Was it because the honourable member for Salford laid the foundation. stone?" "No, but little Charlie laid the foundation-stone. The fact is, Sir, a few years ago we wanted a new chapel, and we thought a good deal about how the money , at times were very bad and the people were very poor, and labour, and materials were very dear, so we resolved to give it up. About a day or two after the meeting a little boy about nine years old came to the minister's door and rang the bell. The minister came out himself, and found the little fellow with his face all flushed, and the perspiration standing on his forehead, and his little toy wheelbarrow in which there were six new bricks. He had wheeled his load up a long steep hill, and was so out of breath that he could hardly speak. At last he found breath to answer the minister's wondering question, 'Well, Charley, what is it?' 'Oh, please, sir,' said Charley, 'I heard you wanted a new chapel, and were thinking of giving it up; so I begged these few bricks from some builders who are building a house down the village, and I thought they would do to begin with. The minister called the committe together again, and Charley's little barrowful of bricks was brought before them. The child's enthusiasm was contagious, and the desponding committee plucked up heart; and little Charley laid the first stone of the big chapel, which will hold 1.000 people, and cost £6,000; and now it is out of debt." (Cheers.) " And what has become of little Charley?" The old man's voice grew huskey. "If you'll let me pull up at the churchyard, Sir, I'll show you Charley's grave. There's many graves there, but you may always tell Charley's by the bright fresh flowers. He was the pet of the Sunday school, and the children never let a day go by without putting fresh flowers on his grave. He used to live close by the school, and he died the very day the last pound of the chapel debt was paid. It was a summer's day, and he made them set his window open that he might hear the children sing. He would have them sing a happy tune, and he died trying to join them in it from his little bed; but though he could hardly begin the hymn on earth, we all believe he finished it in heaven.'

which is too good not to be true : Some time ago there was in London for the season a lady who is very well known in the French fashionable world. One day she happened to see in the streets a monkey begging pence from the public in the prettiest manner for the benefit of his master, an organ-grinder. The lady the other day had in Paris a fashionable reception for the benefit of the Inondes, and, of course, her pet was the wonder of the room. In the course of the evening a young lady sat down at the piano, and, accompanying herself, sang with exquisite taste a little drawing-room song. As soon as the lady had finished, 'em. the monkey, who, though now partially civilized, had not forgotten his former duties, seized a hat, and holding it before each guest, according to his custom, com- spread your wings out and fly! A PLEASANT STORY.

The following admirable little story is published on trustworthy authority. A little boy, eleven years of age, residing in a small village in Bohemia, wrote, without the knowledge of his parents, to the Emperor of Austria, a letter, of which the following is a translation: "Mr. Emperor, at Vienna: I should like to become a priest or a teacher. My father is a poor weaver, and has no money. Have the kindness, Mr. Emperor, to send me some money, that I may learn to be a pile t or a teacher, just as you wish. I salute you, the Mrs. Emperor, and the children. (Signed) Joseph Bennesch." This letter duly reached the private secretary, and was forwarded to the emperor in Hungary. The innocent style of it found instant favor, and shortly afterword the burgomaster of the village in which the lad resided received an official telegram to inquire and report on the case. All turned out satisfactorily, and the school inspector of the neighboring town Zwittan was instructed to give the boy board and lodging, and every needful facility for his education. So little Joseph's ambition, thanks to imperial kindness, is likely to be satisfied.—Christian Globe.

BROTHER DANIEL QUORUM, ON "SLOW AND SURE."

There, inside the door of Thomas Toms parlor, sat Jim Tregoning-who was a well meaning kind of a man, and generally spoken of as "poor fellow," and of whom the people said how unfortunate he was. He had tried everything, from driving a van to selling of patent medicine,' and the hawking of books. There he sat with an unmeaning smile upon his face, and large eyes looking on one place all through the hour, but never seeming to see anything. He was perpetually folding his red cotton handkerchief upon a large pad, with which he stroked his hair down over his forehead, and then began to remake the pad. When his turn came he spoke, with a

"How was he gettin' on. Well, he feared he was only a slow traveler heavenward. But there, he had had many troubles and trials-fightin's without and fears within-and he hoped that his motto was slow an' sure, slow an' sure, for the race was not to the wise, nor yet to the strong, but it were to the sure. If he could not fly he must walk, and if he could not walk he must creep; and if he was not so fast a traveller as some people, he hoped he were just as sure."

The little eye twinkled-and yet there | the sky, even the "King in his beauty." was a tone of pain and grief in the reply. "La. Jim. whatever do 'e mean! 'Slow 'an sure, slow 'an sure.' Always the same. Never no forwarder, never no backwarder but always a stickin' in the same place. I'll tell 'e what, Jim. 'You 'slow and sure' folks be just like a fagot 'o green furze 'pon the fire. You don't blaze nor burn; you do nothing but only steam, and fizz, and to fillin' the house with smeach and smoke. Do 'e get out of this here way. Strive to enter in at the straight gate; but goin, along so slow you'll be sure not to get through un. Slow an' sure. Yes, sure to be too late. 'Tis what the folks said when they was a coming' to the ark, but the floods came quick sure 'pon them before they got to the ark, and slow an' sure was drowned. Serve him right, too. The virgins were slow an' sure when they were agone to buy oil for their lamps, and when they came back the door was shut. Slow an' sure! 'Tis damp powder that do burn like that there. Jim-it'll choke 'e all with smoke. but it won't ever heave a rock in two, or do anybody a morsel o' good.

" I've heard em' say that stumblers be a most sure to come down if you let 'em go along with a creepin' kind of a jog trot. And that's how Christian folks fall in general; going along so slow and sleepy, down they come all of a heap, knockin' theirselves all to bits a'most before they know where they are.

"An' then troubles an' trials-of course took a fancy to it, bought it, dressed it in you do have 'em-heaps of 'em. What else can anybody expect? Slow an' sure Why, 'tis 'zactly like when I be walkin' to Redburn on a fair-day, and every van, and cart, and lumberin' wagon, and don eys, and all the riff aff an' sharpersthey all do overtake me. But when you get in the train you go whizzing over their heads, and leave 'em behind, every one of

"Go creepin' along!" Why of course there's never a trouble or trial, but it comes up to you. Spread your wings, Jim.

"My dear Jim, there ben't no such thing as this slow an' sure o' yours. When the top do spin slow he's sure to come down. 'Tisn't the way the angels told Lot. Escape for thy life; tarry not in all the plain: and I don't think we shall get off easier than he did. And 'tisn't the way Paul knew anything about; for says he, 'Run the race set before you.' He don't say anything about creepin,' and it be best to stick to the word, Jim.

"Slow an' sure!—seem to me that everything be the other way about. The old tempter, whatever other failin's he've got, ha'nt got that there—He do go about like a great roarin' lion, seekin who he may devour an' if we go creepin' along he's sure to come springin' out 'pon us all unawaresan' serve us right, for we tempt him even if he could have had enough afore we come by. Time is swift an' sure, Jim: and death is swift and sure. And then the love of Jesus is swift an' sure. Ah! bless the Lord, how swift and sure that is you know, Jim, as well as the rest! "When he was yet a great way off his father

Dr. Samuel Sebastin Wesley, the wellknown organist and composer, is dead. He was the son of a musical composer, and inherited his fathers genius. He was the great nephew of the founder of Methodism. Very early he became a chorister in the chapel Royal, and visited Brighton every Saturday to sing before that "most religious" sovereign, George IV., who presented him with a gold watch. When 22 years of age he became organist to Hereford Cathedral, and afterward filled similar positions at the cathedrals of Exeter, Winchester and Gloucester. Two of his sons are clergymen of the Established Church. The family has occupied a distinguished place since 1172, and is not likely to die out soon. The last words of the Doctor, which were addresed to his sister, were: "Let me see the sky." He has, no doubt, seen a grander sight than

REV. MR. CHINIQUY ARRESTED. A NOVEL AND INTERESTING EPISODE. Early this morning Rev. Mr. Chiniquy was surprised by the appearance at his door of two bailiffs, who under the impression that he was about to run away took the first opportunity to effect his arrest at the instance of Mr. Le Mettayer Masselin Baron de Guichainville, on a copias. The officers found Mr. Chiniquy quite composed and ready to go with them. He informed them that as this was the thirtyfourth time of his arrest he had become quite used to it; and regretting the early hour at which they had required to perform their important business, invited them to partake with him the morning meal. They consented and a few brief but pleasant moments were passed in cheerful conversation. At the conclusion of the breakfast Mr. Chiniquy stated that it was is usual custom to begin the day's work with reading the Scriptures and prayer, and requested to be allowed to perform family worship as usual; consent was given. The chapter which came in course in the morning's reading was Acts vii, which recounts the stoning of Stephen Each one was given a Bible-the bailiffs were not neglected-and the chapter was read verse by verse. Mr. Chiniquy then explained the chapter, showing how the world had not changed from the early days of the Christian Church. He himself for example was subject to arrest, and only last week he had been stoned. One of the stones cast at him he had in the house yet and could be seen. It would probably be so from the same cause till the end of the world. The whole party then knelt and prayer, in which the French-Canadian, were especially remembered, was offered to God, and Mr. Chiniquy accompanied the gentlemanly and obliging officers to the office of Mr. Thilbault, the attorney for prosecution. There he was the centre of attraction; around the door and in the hall were many curious people ready to catch a sight of "Chiniquy." At the sheriff's office when giving bail the hall was also crowded, and and the door was constantly being opened can only escape cuin by a special interpoto admit the head of a gazer, while now sition of Providence.—Christian Union. and then a bolder spirit would walk in on some presumably important business, va-

The Great Northern Railway Company of France has undertaken a series of experiments which seem to indicate the approach of a great revolution in the mode of lighting public buildings and thoroughfares. To judge from the reports recent-ly published, electricity seems destined to eclipse gas altogether. A few weeks ago a three-horse power Gamme machine was employed to light the luggage department of the Paris Great Northern Railway station. The room or hall measures 20,000 cubic feet, and is generally illuminated by twenty-five gas burners. The new electric light was placed at a distance of ten metres from the ground, and gave a derness that brought the tears to every quite unnecessary—a fact of some import- the muslin of the pocket. The other facrealized by the new system. The light continued to burn the whole evening with great regularity, excepting, of course, when it was purposely lowered. The success attained was so conclusive, if we believe accounts, that the company intend illuminating the vast structure, containing 300,000,000 cubic metres of space. where the trains arrive, by the same process. For this purpose electric lanterns, if we may so call them, of exceptional power will be placed at the height of 20 metres. They will be placed at the four summits of a rectangle, so there will be no not com; together—as the two heavy shade or dark corner in the whole edifice. The goods station at La Chapelle will also be lighted in a similar manner. M. Tresca, an energetic advocate of the electric system, has been able at last to estimate the amount of power required to produce a given quantity of light by the magneto-electric machines. In this respect former experiments had been eminently unsatisfactory, and M. Tresca gives an exhaustive description of all the difficulties that had to be surmounted, in a report which is inserted in the minutes of the Academy of Science. The results have been obtained chiefly from two machines -the first giving a light equivalent to 1,850 carcel-burners, that consume forty grammes of oil per hour, and the second equal to 302 similar burners. With the former it is easy to read at a distance of 21.50 m., and with the latter at 7.70 m. for button holes, as these pantaloons are The reflection, also, from the walls is so strong that persons can read at these distances even when holding the book with its back to the light. From a lamp equal io a hundred burners the same result can be obtained at a distance of five metres. Four electric lamps of this power have been in use during the last year in the factory of Messrs Heilmann, Ducommon & Steinlen, of Mulhouse, and give a satisfactory light over an area of 1,850 square metres. The most important and crowning fact, however, is the assertion that the electric light is a hundred times less expensive than oil, and fifty times cheaper than gass. Should a prolonged and practical application of the new system prove this startling comparison to be correct, we may look forward to a great change, which will ultimately compet the gas-makers to, at any rate, make a great alteration in their scale of charges, if it should not interfere even more seriously with their interests.

THE rules of health should be earnestly studied, applied, and taught by every work. er in the causes of morality and religion. There are congregations which need to be taught that tightly-closed windows may keep out a revival, and that a defective furnace may account for spiritual lifelessness. Parents should be taught that almost the exact effect which poisoned li quor has upon the brain of a rowdy may be produced upon well-born, well-bred children by the gases which find their way into houses from sewers and drains. Sun day-school workers should be made to comorehend the fact that the moral sense of child is almost impenetrable when the child is one of a hundred or more who have sat for half an hour in a crowded room. Teachers should be referred to their own physiological text-books for proof that when a child is forced to study hard immediately after eating, its digestion (which means its entire constitution)

FEW DIRECTIONS FOR MAK-ING BOYS' CLOTHES.

An article entitled "Hints on Boys" Clothing," in Harpers' Bazaar for April 1st, gives some of the most practical and simple directions for making small boys' garments at home that we have ever met with. We would gladly copy the article entire in this department for the benefit of young mothers struggling over the perplexieies of their first boys' suit; but its extreme length—nearly four Bazaar columns-forbids this; we therefore condense it, choosing some of the most valuable suggestions, and may, if space permit continue it another month.

The first grand foundation for a good pair of pantaloons for a boy is the pattern. Nearly every village has agents now for one or more of the large pattern houses. The pattern can be purchased here, or ordered from Catalogues directly from the houses. The best patterns even for the first pants are without plaits or waistbands.

The first thing after cutting the pants to face the pocket hole. Cut two pieces of the material the length of the pocket hole, beginning two linches below the top of the pants. Baste one of those pieces saw him, and had compassion, and ran—ing is laid on the outside of the pocket sewed on with a seam, turned over on the inside and the raw edge fastened the same as before. Now to sew the pocket in, lay the side that has the facing only laid next on to the right side of the pantaloons. take a small seam, turn over and baste down neatly. Now lay the side of the pocket that is not fastened on already quarter of an inch back of the other, so the two seams made by the facing may seams would be bulky for the machine then sew up the pockets and overcast the Next sew up the inside of both legs and press open the seams neatly. If braid is is to be used for trimmings, it should be put on now. This done sew up the inside seams, and press open. Then sew that back and front seams. In hemming the pantaloons it is best merely to overcast the raw edges. Then finish the pants around back and front with a silesia fac. ing two inches in depth cutting the lower edge in points as a finish. This laps over the edge of the pocket. Next bind around the top. Now an inside band is needed not made to wear with suspenders. Make this of stout double drilling. This comes within an inch of the ends of the front and is a quarter of an inch shorter than the back is wide. The back band has five buttonholes, the front one three. These bands are set on so as to come a quarter of an inch below the top of the pantaloons A button is now set on each side of the backs for the button holes which are in the fronts. These button holes are cut parrallel with the band, while those in the drilling are cut up and down.

This band should be fastened on very strongly. The pantaloon may be lined or not, according to the season. If they are not lined, the backs where the pocket hole is must be faced neatly before the seams are sewed. A very sensible custom is that of wearing wool pants the year around for every day.

These directions, it seems to us, are so simple that the most awkward and inexperenced mother cannot fail to be benefitted by them.

The pantaloons are worn with a simple white or colored shirt waist, and in cool weather with blouses .- Progressive Far-

ABOUT SCARECROWS.

Now that the planting season is at hand we have no doubt out that many a farme will rummage through his garret to find the cast-off garments, which stuffed with straw, are to be set up in the corn field to warn off the marauding crow. We have never had much faith in this artifice. Crows are possessed of much more wisdom than is generally credited to them; and while an immovable bundle of rage may drive them away for a short time, we believe that eventually they discover the humbug, as we have seen the birds complacently picking up the young corn almost within the shadow of as elaborate a stuffed searecrow as ever was erected We, however, have heard snggested & couple of plans which are calculated to intimidate even the boldest of these birds; and as they are easily carried out, perhaps our farmer readers may make use of them. The first and best is a suspended looking glass. Take two small cheap mirrors, fasten them back to back, attach a cord to one angle, and fasten them from an elastic pole. When the glass swings in the wind the sun's rays are reflected all over the field even if it is a large one; and even the oldest and bravest of crows will depart precipitately should one of its lightening flashes fall on him. The second plan although a terror to crows, is generally well suited to fields subjected to the inroads of small birds and even chickens It involves an artificial hawk made from a big potato and long goose and turkey feathers. The maker can exercise his imitative skill in sticking the feathers into the potato so that they resemble the spread wings and tail of the hawk. It is astonishing what a ferocious looking bird of prey can be constructed from the above simple materials. It only remains to hang the object from a tall bent pole, and the wind will do the rest. The bird makes swoops and dashes in the most headlong and threatening manner. Even the most inquisitive of venerable hens has been known to hurry rapidly from its dangerous vicinity, while to small birds it carries unmixed dismay.

The heading of the Reform, an illustrated paper presented by Mr. Remington, of Illion, N. Y., to the Women's National Temperance Union, and published monthly by them, is composed of three pictures. The first represents a drunkard staggering home to his family. In his hand he holds a bottle; his wife with her babe in her arms, and her little boy clinging to her dress, is shrinking from him. Terror and fear are depicted upon the countenance of the three. The second picture represents the same man, standing at a table, a woman holding out a pen to him with one hand, and with the other a paper, upon which are seen the words, "Temperance TO FINE WATER

In the third picture we see the same man, well clothed, walking erectly, with a cane in his hand, and leading a little boy up a flight of steps to a nice house, in the door of which stands the wife, with a beaming smile upon her face. and hardly able to hold the babe, who is overioved at seeing the father.

A bundle of these papers was sent to one of the ladies of Cincinnati, who distributed them in the market, at the hospital, and at the jail.

Two months afterwards she was stopped on the street by a German woman, who told her the following story: "You shoost stop von minute vile I tells vou vot is in mine heart. You comes von day to my stall in de market, and you gives mine old man a paper, and you

METHODIST TABLE TALK

(London Methodist.)

The President of the Conference is seriously unwell. On his return from Belfast last week it was found necessary to call in medical aid, and he was prohibited from attending the district meeting, held at Cambridge. Sir James Paget was in consultation on the case on Wednesday, and ordered complete rest. We regret to say that the President is not likely to leave his bedroom for more than a month. This is most unfortunate at the present moment. Important committees, relating to lay representation and other subjects, will meet shortly, and the presence, counsel, tact, and guidance of the first officer of the church would have been of great value. Let us hope Mr. Smith will speedily recover his health. It is said he is suffering from the plugging of a blood vessel

(The President was recovering by latest accounts.—ED. WESLEYAN.

An interesting question arose in our First London District Committee as to the chairmanship. It seems generally admitted that the ex-president could not claim the chair in the absence of the President, but Dr. Punshon was nevertheless unanimously elected to the position. We are also interested to note the reception given on Thursday morning to Mr. Bowman Stephenson, who put in an appearance for the first time. He missed the conversation on the pressing question that he has more than once introduced to the Conference, and of course was not present when the vote was taken. That is to be regretted, as there might have been another ripple in the stream.

Mr. Rattenbury's name has to be added to the sick list. He is suffering again from a severe bronchial attack.

Mr. Bowden has left town for Oban, where he can secure entire rest. It is to be hoped he will there renew his power, and then return quite well and able to do good service again in his circuit. There never was a more disastrous year forfailure of health among the preachers. At least three of our ministers are contemplating applying for foreign appointments, hoping to save themselves by removal to a more genial

We have there a fine opening for sowing the seed and performing evangelistic work, among the soldiers. Thos. Fox, to meet the exigencies of the then new mission. Owing to lack of funds and other difficulties the erection was but temporary-the roof not being properly secured against wind and weather. The church has therefore to the present remained unfinished. About two years ago a meeting was convened to consider what could be done to put the old structure into a proper state of repair and give it an air of comfort and respectability, when some of the leading members of the congregation suggested that the better plan would be to erect a new church in a more central part of the harbour than where the old one stands. This being approved by the majority present, | weighed in the balances, and found wanta site was secured and subscriptions to the | ing." After the congregation had listened amount of £140 cy. given or promised. about an hour, some of them began to get By various circumstances further progress was delayed until Thursday, May 18th, when the corner stone was laid by Jas. Fitzgerald, Esq., Stipendiary Magistrate. A gathering was convened at the site where service according to the appropriate and beautiful form contained in the Discipline was conducted, the 738th hymn sung and an address delivered by the writer. A document containing the date of the event, the names of the President and Secretary of the General Conference, the President and Secretary of the Newfoundland Conference, the ministers of the circuit, the building committee, and the architect and builder, was read by T. C. Deeder, J. P., and placed in one of the cells. The building is 30x40 and 14 feet post-intended to have an end gallery the cost will be about £400 cy .- £250 of which remains to be raised, if completed free of debt, which is desirable. GREEN'S HARBOR, NEWFOUNDLAND .-DEAR MR. EDITOR .- On the eve of departure for District Meeting, I pen a few lines in reference to this isolated mission. that your readers may know that here too we have seen the Lord's work abundantly revived.

As this is one of the youngest, so it has been one of the most difficult missions in the Conference to work successfully. These difficulties have arisen not so much from the extent of ground covered (from 30 to 40 miles) as lack of roads, fewness of Methodists in each settlement, and the very marked presence everywhere of "Old Bigotry," by no means a sociable being to be centinually meeting. During the last two years, however, his power has been very considerably curtailed, much to his friends' chagrin, and his voice, which I at first heard loud and threatening, is now only known by its low mutterings, cran occasional growl. Would he were dead and buried beyond the possibility of a resurrection!

The religious co dition of the various harbours was most deplorable. Here, however, for several years, Mr. S. Read had regularly conducted divine worship from Rheumatism.

on the Sabbath and also met a small Methodist class. He is deserving of much praise for this "work of faith and labour of love," but for which the whole population would have been without the means of grace, except at a very rare visit from one of our ministers. This class consisted of 13 members; during the few months that elapsed previous to the district meeting several were brought to Christ, so that we returned 15 members with five on trial. The next year was one of incressed labour, crowned with glorious success, for at our last District Session we were enabled to return 27 members and 47 on trial. Praise the Lord O my soul!"

The year now closing has in many respects been a memorable one. On the part of the members it has, I have every reason to believe, been one of steady growth in grace; this has been very visible in the lives of the young men especially. Gradually but surely the work of God has been advancing and Methodism taking a firmer hold on the hearts of the people. Towards the close of the winter we were blessed with a gracious outpouring of the Spirit. Sinners of all ages have been enabled to rejoice in a sin pardoning God. Fathers and children have wept together on ac-count of sins. Our people have been saved by families. Many cases of conversion are very interesting and encouraging, to those who have long prayed for unsaved members of their households.

The present religious state of this rhabour is very cheering, but still there is a grand work to do for God. Out of a congregation of about one hundred adults. nearly 90 are members of the church, out of which number only eight are under 16 years of age. Our Sabbath School too is in a very healthy condition; our teachers are all members of society and several of the scholars (33) are meeting in class.

Our Schedule of membership for coming Conference shows 73 members with 29 on trial. Bless the Lord, he hath won a glorious victory here!

Financially this mission has not come up to the expectations of its friends, arising not from unwillingness to give, but sheer inability. The fishery for several years in succession has been a failure. This Spring has been the most trying one every known here, and not only here but in neighboring settlements. Hunger has been keenly felt by many, In the working of this station I have, as a matter of course, had many hardships and privations, have been in perils oft by sea and land; but still the years here have been very happy ones, my great regret being that I have not done more for Christ. Praying that yet greater prosperity may be given to this field of glorious toil, Yours sincerely.

A Real Christian, while on earth, has his affections much in heaven; but were it possible for an unconverted man to be in heaven, his affections would be still set

A Lincolshire clergyman lately preached a long sermon from the text, "Thou are weary, and went out; others soon followed, greatly to the minister's annoyance. Another person started, whereupon the person suddenly stopped, and said, "That's right, gentlemen; as soon as you are weighed pass out." He continued his sermon some time after that, but no one disturbed him
