DOMINION ELECTIONS

The fight is on—elections Nov. 3rd. With the conservative leader touring the country, with the end of a bountiful harvest in sight, with the mails and party papers filled with campaign literature, and by scores of other indications it was evident that an election was imminent, so that the announcement of polling day could hardly be called a surprise. The campaign will be brief, as has been the fashion lately, and there will be lively hustling all over the Dominion for the next month.

Considering the situation nearer home, we have a contest on hand that should prove sufficiently interesting to bring out every available vote on both sides. This is one of the constituencies affected by the redistribution measure, its boundaries being now the same as for Ontario elections. In provincial affairs, the constituency is Liberal by a comfortable majority. In 1898, Mr. Graham defeated Mr. Culbert by a majority of 188, the only majorities obtained by the latter being 76 in Elizabethtown and 1 in Rear Yonge & Escott. In 1902, Mr. Graham defeated Mr. O'Brien by a majority of 376, having a large majority in every polling division.

At present Mr. Culbert, Conservative, represents the greater part of the constituency in the Dominion House, and he will oppose Mr. Derbyshire, the Liberal nominee, in this election.

A GREAT FAIR

If the managers of Delta Fair had been given the privilege of ordering the weather for their exhibition they could not have improved on the degree of warmth and brightness that was served up on Tuesday and Wednesday last. Suitable weather is the first requisite for the success of a fall fair, and in this respect Delta was indeed highly favored.

On Tuesday there was placed on the ground and in their fine main building one of the finest displays in all departments ever shown in the county. It was equal, if not superior, to the best seen at Unionville in the palmiest days of that Fair. It was a busy day for the superintendents of departments, for the officers and staff of directors, and especially for Secretary Phelps, to whose office all roads lead from every department. The advantageous placing of the exhibits in the halls is a work that requires both tact and good judgment, but it was at length satisfactorily performed, and as closing time drew near all felt that another top-notch had been out in their tally of progress, that they had placed on view the finest exhibit the hall had ever contained.

Out on the grounds the live stock and other exhibits were more speedily disposed of, so that both exhibitors and visitors were enabled to enjoy the programme of sports presented. Chief among these were the trials of speed. It would not perhaps be quite right to say that everybody likes to see a horse-race, but it is safe to state that everybody loves a good horse; anyway, a lively interest was taken in the trials, and unquestionably the best horses won.

The morning of the second day broke clear and cloudless and those who had labored so assiduously for many weeks felt assured their labors were to be crowned with success; and so it proved. As the forenoon advanced long processions of vehicles streamed into the village from all directions, filled with happy, well-dressed, prosperous people, and drawn by fine horses, many of which were fit for competition in the ring. The train from the west brought a goodly number from Westport and intermediate points. On reaching Athens, the Brockville train was pretty well loaded. Here over eighty boarded the train and many had to be contented with standing room.

Arrived in the village, there was the usual rush for the dining room door of the hotel. A very large number were served with dinner expeditiously and in good style by the well organized staff of the hotel. Meals were served, too, at several other places.

After dinner, the Newboro brass band led the way to the grounds. Already a large crowd had assembled on the grounds, and the main hall was packed with eager sight-seers.

The poultry department first claimed attention. The birds were neatly housed in a well-lighted building, and in number they exceeded any previous year. There were 150 chicks alone, and a good showing of other poultry, besides pigeons and Belgians.

The main hall contained a grand display. The first flat showed grain vegetables, dairy and apary products, manufactures, etc. The honey exhibit of Mr. A. G. Lee of Addison was greatly admired. The showing of fruit and pastry was good and of excellent quality. There was a large exhibit of grain, roots and vegetables. The fine showing of potatoes attracted more than the usual attention, farmers exchanging opinions constantly while admiring the exhibit as to the probable duration and the best means of overcoming the blight and rot now so prevalent. Mr. Thos. Hazleton was, as usual, a winner in the boot and shoe department. But little harness was shown. Messrs. Horton of Delta and A. L. Cambell of Elgin made splendid displays of fine furniture. At Delta, the Karn was King in the music line. Mr. G. L. Biches, proprietor of the Island City Music Store, Brockville, showed four beautiful Karn pianos and an organ, and a number of bright young lady pianists discoursed sweet music during the day. Messrs. O. M. Quinn and A. James, assisted by Mrs. and Miss Horton exhibited the merits of the Newboro pianos. Mr. Nelson Earl of Athens had a fine exhibit of singer sewing machines. The famous "Earl Acetylene Gas Generator" attracted a great deal of attention, and the maker, W. F. Earl was kept busy answering questions.

The ladies' work on the second flat converted it into a perfect bower of beauty. Wonderful creations of art and needle-work were shown, many ladies coming long distances to compete. The chief prize, a drop-head sewing machine, offered by Mr. G. L. Biches of Brockville, was won by Mrs. G. Wing of Athens. Among the new lines in art work was a fine display of painting on china made by Mrs. Wilcox of Gananoque.

On this flat Messrs. Pierce & Wilcox of Athens had a $2,000 exhibit of fashionable furs that received a great deal of attention.

There was a fine display of cattle; all the stalls were filled and many animals were tied outside. The total was 114 head, composed of Holstein, Ayrshire, Jerseys, and their grades. The sheep numbered 75 and the swine 47, the latter including D. N. Glazier's fine Yorkshires.

But few implements were shown. Mr. McNish of Lyn showed an egyptian, feed cooker, and one of his popular low-down farm wagons. Alex. Stevens, Delta, showed two cutters, two buggies and a wagon. Mr. Stevens' manufactures have the confidence of the people of that district to a high degree, and his exhibit was greatly admired. Mr. F. B. McNamee of Warburton showed a pair of bobleighs of novel construction. Setto Bros. and Prof. Riley gave an entertaining acrobatic performance on a platform occupied by the Newboro band. There was a good showing of fine horses in all classes; in fact, Delta fair excelled in this respect. The speeding contests were keenly contested.

NOTES

The attendance on Wednesday approximated 6,000.

President Morris seemed to know everybody, and he hustled in the interest of the fair all day long.

There was not a faker of any kind nor an intoxicated man on the ground; and the general public stand ready to excuse omissions of this kind.

The employment of expert judges was a success, and the practice will be continued.

The universal verdict was that Delta Fair is alright. Its managers are building on a good foundation, and its future looks bright indeed.

FIRST DOSE WENT RIGHT TO SPOT

Commercial Traveller Talks of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Gives Valuable Advice to Those who use the Railway Train Frequently. Toronto, Ont., Sept. 26.—(Special.)—Mr. J. H. Ireland, one of the oldest and best known commercial travellers on the road, has come out with a statement for the benefit of his fellow travellers. "It is with pleasure," says Mr. Ireland, "that I endorse Dodd's Kidney Pills. While on a trip through the Maritime Provinces Dodd's Kidney Pills completely cured me of a severe pain in my back that had bedeviled me for some time. The first dose seemed to go right to the spot and removed the trouble so effectually that it has not, and is not likely to, return. "Dodd's Kidney Pills are just as advertised," Mr. Ireland concludes. "They cure to stay cured." Travellers, railroad men and others who ride on the railway a great deal are subject to Kidney Troubles. They will find Mr. Ireland's statement valuable reading.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Five Different Varieties of Peers—The Oldest Legislative Body.

It may be stated that there are five different varieties of peers—those of England, of Scotland, of Great Britain, of Ireland, and of the United Kingdom. The creation of the peers of England and of Scotland was brought to an end by the Act of Union between the northern and southern kingdoms in 1707, while the creation of peers of Great Britain came to an end in 1801, when the union of Great Britain and Ireland was consummated. Since that time all peers created have been either peers of the United Kingdom or peers of Ireland. At the present moment the members of the House of Lords who are indebted for their seats in the gilded chamber to inheritance amount to about 380. That is to say, about two-thirds of the upper house of the imperial legislature of Great Britain can be described as hereditary legislators. The representative peers of Scotland and Ireland who owe their seats in the House of Lords to election number forty-four. There are about ninety members of the House of Lords who owe their seats in that chamber to the fact that they have been raised to the peerage. Besides, there are five Lords of Appeal, and ex-Lords of Appeal, whose honors are merely for life, and then there are twenty-six Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of England, who, while they sit and vote as peers, enjoy none of the prerogatives of the latter, are in the eyes of the law merely Lords Spiritual, and of Parliament are amenable to the ordinary courts of justice.

From this it will be seen that fully one-third of the British House of Lords—the oldest legislative body in the world in existence at the present day, a body to which Great Britain owes its Magna Charta, the basis of the British constitution and the foundation of all the prerogatives and rights of the people—has at least one-third of its members who are indebted for their seats and for their rights to vote to other causes than those of hereditary descent. Ex-Attache in New York Tribune.

Duchess Cecilia of Mecklenburg.

The Duchess Cecilia is the future Empress who will set the pace for every woman in Germany, and hold all social values in her hands. It is here that the German woman, the average good lady of the better class with her every day interest in the Kaiser's ideas of what is fit and proper, ceases to be a frank and smiling matchmaker, and permits herself to look critically into the affair. But with puerile and the best will in the world, there is nothing to be heard of the little lady to which any German woman can take exception. The truth, the real truth, uncalced by expedient reports, is that the Kaiser's son has found his wife in a very pretty and very sweet child, who has not even yet emerged from the nursery cocoon to the dazzle of royal life.

The fact that hardly anybody has seen her, that there are no anecdotes to quote, only proves that her seclusion up to the present has been a very real one; her life has been limited by the school-room and the scope of her rides in the woods. It is in these woods about her father's great, ill-built house that the Crown Prince rode with her every day. That the foundations of this engagement were laid. She rides well, they say. She came to a State ball and two in Berlin quite recently, and there she was noticed because of the marked attention which the Prince conferred on her. She was pretty, girlish, charmingly colored and very timid; danced little, and blushed a good deal. There can be no doubt that the women of Germany are willing to welcome her, to approve of her, and to become her loyal and enthusiastic supporters. In Hanover and Brunswick just now, people are squabbling very actively about the political significance of the business, saying that the reconciliation of the Duke of Cumberland and the Kaiser means that it is all up with the Guelphs. But the women are absorbed in the far more weighty aspect of the betrotthal, which arise out of the fact that little Cecilia was courted and won as any of them might be.—London Daily Mail.

MULE BREEDING.

A Boom Expected When Work Begins on the Canal.

Livestock experts are predicting that the big money of the next few years to be made in stock will be gathered in by the breeders of mules. When construction work on the Panama Canal begins in earnest, they say the price of mules is bound to jump, because these are the only animals that can stand the intense heat of that section and keep on working. The West Indies, Africa and the Philippine Islands have also been drawing heavily upon this country for mules, and the American mule is increasing in favor as a part of the equipment of European armies.

As a matter of fact mules have been steadily rising in value. In Texas, Kentucky, Tennessee and Missouri there are big mule farms which have enriched their owners in the last ten years. Yet, for some reason or another, the former mule breeding sections are not producing mules fast enough to supply the demand and their production is declining. Not many years ago Kentucky had 35,000 jennets, while now there are not more than 2,500. The same decline is noted in Texas, Missouri and Tennessee.

The mule has been the standard work animal of the Southern States for many years. It is there, of course, that he flourishes most. Texas tops the list with 407,000, with Missouri next with 209,000. Of all the Southern States Virginia boasts of the smallest number, 42,000. The average value of the mule in these States runs from $70 to $85. In the United States the mule averages $10 more a head in value than the horse—$72.49 to $82.25. There are nearly 3,000,000 mules as compared with 16,000,000 horses. On the big southern plantations mules in immense numbers are used. On the biggest one in Louisiana, that of the Leon Godichaux Company, from 1,000 to 1,500 mules are worked the year round. Climatic conditions make the mule more to be relied on than the horse in the rice, cane and cotton districts, and as these are being better and more intelligently worked, the demand for the mules increases.

The mule has advantages over the horse which have come to be recognized by men who work the two side by side. In the first place he pays the breeder better because he can be put on the market a year or two sooner. He is not as expensive to raise as the horse, because he is in condition to good work long before the horse can be broken to harness. At two years old, the mule can be put in the field and kept there until old age overtakes him. The mule is also healthier than the horse.

Musical in a Maine Cemetery.

That was a unique social function held in the beautiful cemetery of the town of Appleton, Sunday, Sept. 11. Its nature may be judged from the following invitation, which was sent to friends of the deceased residing outside Appleton and immediate vicinity: "Friends of Mr. William H. Sumner, are invited to attend a musicale, to be given in Pine Grove Cemetery, Appleton, Me., Sunday, Sept. 11, 1904, at 2 o'clock p.m., in honor of his beloved wife, Carrie Stanton Sumner, nee Goddard, who died at her home in Paradise, Sunday, May 31, 1903." Mrs. Sumner was a native and former resident of Appleton, as was Mr. Sumner; but after their marriage they resided for some years in Boston, where Mr. Sumner is a man of prominence. The music for the memorial service was furnished by the Farwell Opera House orchestra of Rockland, and the soloist was Miss Lottie McLaughlin, one of Rockland's talented and popular young vocalists.—Kennebec Journal.

So-Called Prophecies.

Any man of a lively fancy, who knows enough of human nature to realize its abiding needs, can enumerate future discoveries by the dozen with a fair chance that perhaps one in a thousand may be realized within a century. To the same class belong the curious anticipations of native tribes, which generally take the form of news known, when by no conceivable means could information have reached them by ordinary channels. The present writer believes that this phenomenon, which some have explained by telepathy, is simply a form of anticipation. The native is an inveterate guesser, and since his tongue never ceases and his invention is active, he makes enough attempts to be fairly certain of stumbling now and then on the truth.—London Spectator.

- The use of hot water. To relieve bruises with hot water. To fight a headache with hot water. To reduce inflammation with hot water. To relieve a dyspeptic feeling with hot water. To rally from a nervous attack by a hot-water sponge. To pour boiling water through fruit stains before putting soap on. To place very hot water in the hot-water bag as a remedy for cramps or chills. To heat gasoline for cleaning small articles. Place the corked bottle of this dangerous stuff in a bucket of hot water out of doors. Not a falling boiling water as the water cools. Hot gasoline will clean laces speedily and thoroughly.

Chamberlain as a Dancing Man.

That the ex-Colonial Secretary can waltz, says the London Tatler, will be a surprise to most people, as one would fancy dancing is an accomplishment altogether too frivolous for Mr. Chamberlain to shine in. Two years ago, however, Mr. Chamberlain when staying with Lord and Lady Beauchamp attended a ball given by the then mayor of Birmingham. Mr. Chamberlain danced several items on the program, including three waltzes and a set of lancers, but did not attempt the polka. This is probably the only occasion in the past 20 years that Mr. Chamberlain has taken an active part in the ballroom.

Unconscious Absurdity.

We owe a great debt to the unconscious humorists of everyday life. It was one of these humorists who delighted a New York woman, the guest of an out-of-town relative, on a recent night. The small boy of the family, protesting, had been despatched to his room on an upper floor, and was supposed to have gone to bed. Mother (half an hour later, calling at foot of stairs)—Aren't you undressed yet? Small boy—Nope. Mother—Well, as soon as you are undressed enough for me to come up and spank you, you whistle for me!—New York Sun.

British Army Rations.

An emergency ration packed in a small two compartment cylinder of tin is carried in the haversack of every British soldier. As its name suggests, the ration is not to be used except in cases of the direst necessity. One compartment holds four ounces of cocoa paste and the other a similar quantity of concentrated beef. If consumed in small quantities it will maintain strength for many hours.

CREATING A DEMAND.

An unknown breakfast food was introduced to the public through the newspapers. The first effort was a page advertisement in each of the leading Sunday newspapers for four successive Sundays, at a cost of $25,000. After that nearly 1,000 daily newspapers were used regularly. A demand had to be created, and the newspaper advertising did it.

Thousands of protests have been forwarded to the Government, which, however, is deaf to all remonstrances. The experiment will be an interesting one to watch.

His Wedding Expenses.

Example for Labor Union.

The high esteem in which the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has long been held will be enhanced by the action which this order has taken on the question of the "open shop." The point came up at a recent meeting of the brotherhood in New York, at which fifteen hundred delegates were present, one object of the gathering being to discuss the troubles of the motormen on the Manhattan elevated system. The engineers thus assembled were unanimous in the stand that non-union men have as good a right to work as union men, and that they are perfectly willing to work with non-union men, their only stipulation being that non-union men shall receive the same wages as members of the union.—Leslies Weekly.

FEWER THAN NEEDED.

Airbrakes, Block System, and Return to Normal Traffic.

Extraordinary retrenchment on railroads commenced a few months ago, and continues. Annual reports for the fiscal year ending July 31st show no material reduction in gross earnings, but net earnings are not proportionately satisfactory.

Traffic officials insist that prospects are bright for business during the coming fall and winter.

"Why does retrenchment on railroads continue?" asks one of the division superintendents here. He replied: "You must go back thirty years for one cause. At that time a certain element that loves to have a mission clamored for better protection for brakemen. Some of the clergy preached about it from their pulpits. The result is compulsory use of airbrakes and a rapidly lessening need for brakemen."

"Another cause for retrenchment is the rapid extension of the block system. With the main line completely equipped with blocks any road can operate trains with smaller crews than the former system, and reduced to a minimum."

"Another cause for retrenchment is the development of the clerical department. Work is simplified and lessened and fewer employees are required."

"The cause for retrenchment is the change from abnormal to normal conditions in traffic. Each month employees are instructed to make expenses proportionate to earnings. When he has to reduce expense he must reduce the number of employees, and ever they can be got along without. It is no longer good policy to attempt to reduce rather than dismiss employees. Such retrenchment affects shopten, yardmen, etc."

"About six months ago was the beginning of abnormal traffic. All the business of the country was pushed to the greatest possible extent. Each railway business could not be kept up. There is necessarily a limit to business energy in any country. Content and consequently fewer employees are required on the railroads."

Mr. Carnegie's Religion.

It is a fact now generally known that Andrew Carnegie has the organ played every morning in his fifth avenue mansion when he is in town. This practice of the Ironmaster has given his servants the impression that their master is a churchgoing Christian, more especially as he insists on his help—who, by the way, are all Scotch,—going to church every Sunday.

This belief of the Carnegie servants gave a newspaper man a great deal of work and led to his being rebuked by Mr. Carl Schurz, neighbor of Mr. Carnegie, recently. The library giver had been reported as saying that he had ceased to pray twenty years ago, and the scribe was sent out to ascertain Mr. Carnegie's religious proclivities if possible. Mr. Carnegie himself was away.

"Sure he goes to church," said the man who answered the reporter's ring. "He's a brow religious man, he is, and will have me around him who isn't a guid Christian."

AN EXPERT'S OPINION.

An advertising periodical, which has no more interest in one form of advertising than in another, makes these statements to its public: "Every dollar spent would buy a dollar's worth of advertising. More for the money can be obtained in the best daily newspapers than in any other way." Those who rely on the lungs of the great daily papers to do the "hollering" for their goods have nothing but commendation for the service rendered.

The King's Tuesday.

Tuesday has always been an eventful day in the life of King Edward VII. On Tuesday, November 9, 1841, His Majesty was born; on Tuesday, January 25, 1842, he was baptized; on Tuesday, March 10, 1863, he was married; on Tuesday, November 21, 1871, it was found that he had contracted typhoid fever; on Tuesday, February 27, 1872, he attended the public thanksgiving service for his recovery; on Tuesday, January 22, he succeeded to the throne, and on Tuesday, January 24, 1902, he underwent an operation for perityphlitis.

Stansated Junction, P. Q., 12th Aug., 1902.

Gentlemen,—I fell from the bridge leading from a platform to a loaded car while assisting in unloading a load of iron. The bridge went down, as well as the load, on my back, and I sustained a serious injury to my leg. Only for its being very fleshy would have public thanksgiving service for his recovery; on Tuesday, January 22, he succeeded to the throne, and on Tuesday, January 24, 1902, he underwent an operation for perityphlitis.

First Direction Impossible.

The old man sat alone in his cabin, where the hand of woman had never been known and dirt reigned triumphant. The conversation turned upon cooking. "Yas," drawled the old man, "I got me one o' them three cookbooks wunst, but I never could do nothin' with 'em. 'What was the trouble?" asked the visitor persistently. "Why, every one o' them blamed receipts starts off with 'Take a clean dish.'"

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

The high esteem in which the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has long been held will be enhanced by the action which this order has taken on the question of the "open shop." The point came up at a recent meeting of the brotherhood in New York, at which fifteen hundred delegates were present, one object of the gathering being to discuss the troubles of the motormen on the Manhattan elevated system. The engineers thus assembled were unanimous in the stand that non-union men have as good a right to work as union men, and that they are perfectly willing to work with non-union men, their only stipulation being that non-union men shall receive the same wages as members of the union.—Leslies Weekly.

Myers' Royal Spice.

The Spice of Life for sheep and hogs. Not a food itself—but helps them to get all the nourishment possible out of their food. It coaxes the appetite—sweetens the stomach—helps digestion—regulates the bowels—and prevents colic. It keeps sheep strong and sturdy—makes them grow more wool—and keeps down the feed bills. It prevents brood sows from becoming constipated—helps them safely through farrowing—keeps young pigs in good health—and fattens pigs for market quickly. Every farmer and stockman, who uses Myers' Royal Spice, says it is worth ten times the cost—and the cost is small for such a big package. MYERS ROYAL SPICE CO. Niagara Falls, Ont. and N.Y. Things for Breakfast. This morning about 7 o'clock I was in a grocery store near my house and there were a number of people there waiting anxiously to be waked up on the counter and called out: "Say, mister, hurry up and wait on me, will yer, 'cause me mudder wants de 'fings fur breakfast." "Well, my little man," said the kindly storekeeper, "what do you want?" "A bar of soap, a wooden pail and a broom," yelled the urchin.—Albany Journal.

Stopping Bleeding by Music.

Perhaps the strangest use to which music can be put is to stop the flow of blood from a wound. An army doctor noticed that when a wounded soldier was taken to within an easy hearing distance of music hemorrhage was greatly reduced or stopped. Neither he nor others who confirmed his observations could understand how this phenomenon was brought about, but it is now believed that the vibration of the air produced by music causes the patient to become faint, in which case the action of the heart is so considerably lessened that the flow of blood is reduced.

Under the Nerve Lash.

The torture and torment of the victim of nervous prostration and nervous debility no one can rightly estimate who has not been under the ruthless lash of these relentless human foes. M. THE WIDOW NEWMAN'S BOY

He was not considered clever when he went to school with me, Nor no smarter than the rest of us as far as we could see; Nor he wasn't much to do to when he used to live out there, With his homely face all freckles and his carrot-colored hair, Which was always somewhat jagged in the matter of its trim, And whether combed or uncombed it was all the same to him. No, he wasn't much to look at, not a thing of pride and joy, He was just a common green-horn, just the Widow Newman's Boy.

He never took to classics or to history or such, And folks around the village said he'd never 'mount to much. He always held possession of the foot in every class, Was proclaimed the chief of block-heads, he was called "A stupid ass"; All his schoolmates graduated, other younger pupils came, But Jim still held possession with his position much the same. Just drawing pictures on his slate or playing with some toy Seemed to be the high ambition of the Widow Newman's Boy.

The widow Newman moved away and took her stupid Jim, And in just a little season we had all forgotten him. Years passed, and it was rumored that a man of great renown, Was going to build a railroad which was running through the town; He a man of vast influence, a man of worth and rank, Whose checks were good for thousands, at any chartered bank, A citizen of prominence, a leader born to lead. And one we didn't laugh at when we knew him—no, indeed, For the dunces who drew the pictures and trifled with his toy, Was the man who owned the railroad, and the Widow Newman's Boy.

WEDDED AT JUNETOWN

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 14th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bigford was the scene of a pretty wedding, when their eldest daughter, E. Carrie, was united in marriage to Mr. Herbert Brown, a prosperous young farmer of Addison. The Rev. Mr. Philp of Escott performed the ceremony.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, many of the bride's immediate friends and relatives were present to do them honor. The parlor was tastefully decorated with evergreens, sprinkled with white phlox. A beautiful arch, suspending a white bell, marked the place of the nuptial altar. Miss Mary Brown, sister of the groom, was flower girl. She wore a white cashmere, with vine extending from head and over the shoulders. Mendelssohn's wedding march was very sweetly played by Miss Edith, sister of the bride, who entered the parlor on the arm of her father. Miss E. Carrie was charmingly attired in cream cashmere with white silk and lace trimmings. She wore a white tulle veil and carried a bouquet of white asters. Her bridesmaid, Miss Luella, the bride's sister, also wore white with trimmings of white ribbon and silk lace. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Maurice Armstrong performed the duties of best man.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Rev. Mr. Philp presented Mr. and Mrs. Brown with a large, neatly bound Bible, the gift of Mr and Mrs. H. Bigford. After receiving the hearty congratulations of the assembled guests, all partook of a dainty wedding feast in the spacious dining room, which was becomingly decorated for the occasion. Singing and recitations were among the features of a pleasantly spent evening.

The groom presented to the bride a gold ring with pearl and ruby settings and a gold watch, and chain; to the bridesmaid, a heart-shaped brooch set with brilliants, and to Miss Edith, the organist, a circular brooch set with brilliants. To the groomsmen he presented a handsome pearl pin. The bride's going-away gown was navy blue with silk blouse trimmed with white applique. The many gifts to the bride and groom attested the high esteem in which they were held. The following is a list:— Mr. H. Bigford, bedroom suit; Mrs. H. Bigford, china tea set of dishes; Mr. N. Brown, bedroom suit; Mrs. N. Brown, pair blankets; Annie and Mable Brown, rocking chair; Miss Amelia Russell, oil painting; Mr. and Mrs. Brown, table linen; Edith Bigford, three pair lace curtains; Luella Bigford, one dozen bread and butter plates. Mr. and Mrs. E. Cooper, half dozen table napkins. Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Brown, china berry set. Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Gardner, table linen. Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Brown, marulade jar. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lee, coffee set. Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Brown, half dozen silver spoons. Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Brown, crumb tray and brush. Mr. and Mrs. Munson Bates, china cake plates. Mr. and Mrs. G. McLean, separable glass. Mr. and Mrs. Ford Wiltse, fruit dish. Mr. and Mrs. D. Armstrong and Bessie, bedroom toilet set. Maurice Armstrong, china tea set. Mr. and Mrs. V. McDonald, glass water set and out glass tea set. Mr. and Mrs. V. Booth, glass berry set and parlor lamp. Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McDonald, bed-spread. Howard and Ida McDonald, silver berry spoon. Byron McDonald, silver fruit spoon. Miss Lena Tennant, silver meat fork. Misses Addie and Annie Brile, glass water set. Messrs. Ben and Norris Ferguson, parlor lamp. Dr. and Mrs. Judson, cheese dish. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gotth, silver bed-spread. J. B. Ferguson and sisters, set of separating glasses. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Somers, china berry set. Joe and Lephia Slack, glass water set. Mr. and Mrs. James Loucks, bed-spread. Mr. and Mrs. F. McCrady, silver meat fork. Mrs. Quinsey and Eliza, fancy knit quilt. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bennett, tray cloths. Mr. and Mrs. S. Quinsey, parlor lamp. A friend, bed-spread. Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Franklin, $2. H. Franklin, silk handkerchief. A friend, silver sugarbowl and butter knife. Miss L. Coleman, biscuit jar. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Russell, hanging lamp. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schriber, dozen silver teaspoons. Raymond Brewer, china berry set. Richard Ferguson, silver butter knife.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Brown left on following day for Brockville and Ottawa. On Sept. 22nd, Mr. and Mrs. N. Brown opened their house to receive the newly married couple on their return from their honeymoon. About forty assembled and enjoyed an excellent tea, after which singing and recitations were much appreciated. Mr. and Mrs. Brown will reside at Addison. All join in wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

A GREAT DAY AT ADDISON The Old People's Anniversary, which was held at Addison last Sunday, was a great success. The congregations at all the services were very large. At the afternoon and evening services many could not be accommodated. The Sabbath school, which was in charge of the old people, was well attended, and was a delight to both teachers and scholars. The Old People's Banquet, in charge of Bro. Wm. Robins of Glen Buell, was a great inspiration to all. As one after another of the old settlers testified of the saving and sustaining grace of God, many hearts were made glad and spiritually renewed.

The services continued at 1.30 in the afternoon with an old fashioned altar service, followed by a preaching service in charge of Rev. S. J. Hughes, M.A., of Athens. His sermon was both appropriate and inspiring. Then came the presentation of a morocco bound Bible (large print) to Mr. Richard Arnold of Athens, he being the oldest person attending the services. The presentation was made by Mr. F. L. Moore, to which Mr. Arnold made fitting reply. Immediately after the presentation, with Bro. Arnold in the altar, the large congregation arose and sang with great fervor, many of the congregation with tears in their eyes, the old chorus, "We'll all gather home in the morning." Following the presentation was the memorial service, in which fitting reference was made to the following persons who have passed away in the neighborhood during the year: Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw, Mrs. (Rev.) Burnett, Mrs. George Charlton, and Wm. Hall. The choir and congregation sang during the service appropriate selections, making the service both impressive and interesting.

The evening devotions opened with a song service, followed by a service of great spiritual power, conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. W. Burnett, B.D., who made Heb. VIII.: 10 the basis of an inspiring sermon. Then came a short fellowship service, followed by the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in which a large number participated. And thus ended one of the most inspiring day's services in the history of the Addison circuit.

"The Princess at Work" The above is the title of the new premium picture to be given with that great paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star, of Montreal this season. It is said to be a gem, by far the most expensive and beautiful they have ever issued. All who pay a year's subscription ($1.00), to the Family Herald and Weekly Star, get a copy of the picture free. Family Herald subscribers are this year in greater luck than ever. "The Princess at work," alone is worth a good deal more than what is asked for the year's subscription and the picture.

W. C. T. U. Convention

The 18th Annual Convention of Leeds County Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Athens Methodist church on Friday, Oct. 7th. The morning will be devoted chiefly to the routine work of business; reports from the superintendents of the various departments will then be read, and will be continued in the afternoon session, at which will take place a parliamentary drill, and interesting discussions. An excellent programme has been prepared for the evening meeting, including the County President's annual address, vocal solos, anthems and recitations, besides addresses from resident ministers and the Rev. Mr. Emmett of Brockville. It is expected that Mrs. Emmett will contribute several numbers. A silver collection to aid in the work of the County Union will be taken. All are cordially invited.

Freedom at Last for the Woman

Bound by the Fetters of Disease or that Tired Feeling

Her deliverer is Dr. Hugo, of Paris, a great and good physician, and one of the world's greatest specialists in diseases of women. The means of her deliverance is the remedy, embodying the skill and experience coming from his forty years' practice as a specialist, and which he always prescribes for sick, tired and run down women. The prescription is now put up in tablet form, under the name of

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women

This remedy has delivered from disease and suffering thousands of women in Europe and America. Until two years ago, it could only be obtained in Paris, from the doctor himself, and the prescription and a consultation cost $50. Now the same remedy is available for the poor as well as the rich, and considering the strength of each tablet, and that there are 75 tablets in every box, (the usual number is 48) it is the cheapest remedy in the world.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women are not like the common-place remedies. One box always proves the difference. The special ingredients for women recently discovered, which these tablets alone contain, make them a remarkable remedy, compelling the endorsement of physicians and the praise of women. Containing as they do every ingredient a sick, tired, or run down woman needs, and embodying the skill and experience that come from Dr. Hugo's forty years' practice as a specialist in diseases of women, they are absolutely better than the old time preparations now on the market. With this knowledge we declare most positively, that no matter how much good other remedies may have done you, Dr. Hugo's remedy will do you more. No matter if other remedies have done you no good at all, we still persist that these Tablets will immediately start you on the road to health, and in the end make you a healthy woman.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets For WOMEN Make HEALTHY WOMEN

If you are in a run down condition, feel tired, nervous, irritable or melancholy. If you have any menstruation trouble, whites or other uterine disorder, which backache, bearing down pains, and bloating and coldness of the feet are symptoms. In a word, if you do not feel as well as you would like to, do not delay one moment in taking Dr. Hugo's remedy. 50c. per box at dealers, or by mail post paid, B. N. Robinson & Co., Coaticook, Que.

STRICTURES Cured To Stay Cured

Strictures, no matter where located, are apt to involve the surrounding structures. If neglected or improperly treated, structural stricture will produce distressing symptoms. Cutting, stretching and tearing are the old barbarous methods of treating this disease. The strictly modern and original methods employed by us are free from the horrors of surgery and are absolutely safe and harmless. The abnormal stricture tissue is dissolved and leaves the channel free and clear. All urine is dissolved and leaves the channel free and clear. All surrounding organs are strengthened and the bliss of manhood returns. Our ABSORPTIVE TREATMENT will positively cure you. YOU CAN PAY WHEN CURED.

THE EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW

The question of the legality and effectiveness of Athens' early closing by law has now reached a crucial point, and we shall probably know this week just how the matter stands. The law became operative on Sept. 26, but Messrs. Pierce & Wilton, general merchants, declined to comply with its requirements; so on Friday last Mr. Wilton and three witnesses went to Brookville in response to summonses issued by Joseph Deacon, P.M., Chief Hillis being complainant in behalf of Athens' council. Messrs. T.R. Beale and H.A. Stewart appeared for the defence and Messrs. Hutcheson & Fisher for the prosecution. No evidence was taken, the council for prosecution not being ready to proceed, and at their request the case was adjourned until Thursday of this week.

While this is a matter that affects primarily the class of merchants directly concerned, the people of the village generally are taking an active interest in it, and the whole subject is being eagerly discussed.

Several other business centres, including Cobourg, Renfrew and Montreal, have been greatly agitated over this matter. In the latter place the power of the city council to pass a by-law "regulating trade" has been raised and referred to the city attorney for opinion.

While litigation over such a matter may disturb local harmony, the final settlement of the whole question is desirable both in the interests of the merchants and their customers.

VILLAGE COUNCIL

The municipal council of Athens met, pursuant to adjournment, on Friday evening, Sept. 30th. All present. Minutes of several special meetings were read and confirmed.

The clerk reported to the council that he did, on the 20th Sept., at the council chamber, sum up the votes for and against the by-law to raise $5,000 for completion of town hall and found that there were 82 votes cast for the by-law and 17 against, making a majority of 65 in favor of the by-law.

The council then proceeded to read a third time and finally pass the debenture by-law, and it was signed by the reverend and clerk and the corporate seal attached.

A by-law to fix and levy rates for 1904 was then read three times and finally passed, the different amounts to be levied being as follows:—county purposes $262.91; village purposes $1204.52; village share of B.W. & N.W. railway debenture $575.55; town hall debenture rates $809.40; public school rate $1211.00; high school rate $389.50, a total of $4,250.88.

A by-law to appoint a collector of rates was then introduced. Applications of the collector were read from Joseph Kerr and Jas. H. Ackland. The blanks in by-law was filled in with the name of Jas. H. Ackland at a salary of $20 and the by-law read three times and passed.

The following bills were read and ordered paid: Reporter office, supplies, $3.85; Recorder Printing Co., advertising for tenders, $3.52; Times (same) $3.74; the clerk for supplies for municipal election, 1903, $2.55, and for debenture by-law election, $2.85; Jas. Ross, D.R.O. debenture election, $8.00; H. C. Phillips, D.R.O. $8.00.

On motion, the clerk was given leave of absence until Nov. 20th and Geo. E. Judson appointed clerk pro tem during his absence.

OPEN LETTER

To the Conservative Electors of Leeds Riding
ATHENS, Oct. 4, 1904
Gentlemen,—
It was my intention to hold a series of meetings throughout the riding for the purpose of discussing the general political issues, which the people of this country are called upon to give an expression for or against on the 3rd of November next. I also intended at these meetings to discuss my political relations with you, as well my claims for your support in the coming convention, which will be held in Delta on Tuesday next, 11th inst., but I find the time is too short and that I will not be able to carry out this programme; and in order that I may reach you I concluded my best plan would be to address an open letter through the press to the Conservative Electors.

was very anxious that I should not oppose him in the 1896 convention, as his political stock had gone down below par; however, I could not do otherwise than stand a ballot, as I had promised my friends I would do so. At the same time I told my supporters I would be defeated, but realized it was a grand opportunity of getting a public introduction to my friends in the riding.

On May 22nd, 1895, Mr. Taylor wrote me "that this is the last time I will ever, if I run this time." Of course, having this written promise, I again prepared myself to allow my name to go to a ballot in the convention in 1900, but on my arrival at Delta, I found my old friend Mr. Taylor more active than ever in his exertions to carry the Convention; but through the influence of a number of Mr. Taylor's friends I was prevailed upon not to go into convention against Mr. Taylor, but allow him to be selected unopposed. This I did with the promise from these gentlemen that they would give me their influence and support in the next convention, which would be the coming convention next Tuesday, and I feel confident that all of these gentlemen will carry out their promise to me.

As well I am fully aware that there has been, and is, a growing feeling that it is not fair that one person should always be the Thunder and Lightning, and the other fellow get all the rain. On the 20th January last, you electors were called together. Hand bills stating, if deemed advisable, a candidate will be selected; but, for certain reasons no selections were made, viz.: Donovan's stock was too high and the danger signal was near at hand.

You will remember I said to you that day, a story was being circulated throughout the riding that Mr. Borden had said that he preferred that you select Mr. Taylor in preference to any one else. I stated to you, gentlemen, that I knew Mr. Borden long before Mr. Taylor ever saw him, and that I knew he was too wise a man to make any such statement. Mr. Taylor rose at once and said he would be willing for the President, Mr. Dargavel, to wire Mr. Borden, and that he would guarantee he would telegraph back at once, stating he would prefer Mr. Taylor, his old whip, in preference to any other gentleman in the riding. As soon as possible I wrote Mr. Borden, giving him a detailed statement of what was said. You will remember, I published my letter to Mr. Borden and his reply, which stated he had given no expression and that anyone you selected would be welcomed by him.

I knew at the time Mr. Taylor's statement was only one of his old time bluffs. Only last week I discussed this question with Mr. Borden, and I give you my word upon my honor that whoever you select in convention will meet with his warm approval and will be received with open arms on his arrival at Ottawa. I have many other thoughts which are exceedingly important in connection with this situation and will state them to you in convention, where you will occupy the position of a jury, believing I have a very strong case.

Another story is going that I am to be the Liberal candidate in Leeds. I euphemistically deny this statement; it has been told to hurt my chances against Mr. Taylor. Now, gentlemen, believe me, if I am ever sent to Parliament to represent you, you never sent a more loyal Conservative from Leeds Riding. With best wishes for the Conservative party, not only in Leeds, but from the Atlantic washed shores of Nova Scotia to the golden province of British Columbia,

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
A. E. DONOVAN.

The Wisdom of Babies.
A lady and her little daughter were walking through Grosvenor square when they came to a portion of the road strewn with straw. "What's that for, ma?" said the child, to which the mother replied, "The lady who lives in that house, my dear, has had a little baby girl sent to her." The child walked along for a few yards and then, turning and nodding at the straw, said, "Awfully well packed, ma!"

Sympathetic or Otherwise.
"Oh, just listen to me," finally exclaimed Mrs. Chatters self reproachfully, "annoying you with all this talk about Mrs. Nextdoor's shameful treatment of me and all my other troubles!"
"Not at all, my dear," replied the man rather ambiguously. "I'm glad to hear it."

Imposing.
"I'll have you know that I belong to Chicago," said the stranger.
"Deed, an' wha'd has thocht it?" quoth the skeptic Scot. "Frae the way ye've been speaking I thocht Chicago belonged tae you."

Fattening Him Right.
"Next time I marry," said the widow, "I'll get a wife I can make shut up."
"You don't want a wife," replied his friend. "What you want is a folding bed."

Offering Her a Hand.
The Poet—When would you consider is the best time to offer a girl your hand? Practical Cuss—When she's getting out of a bus, I should say.

THE ENGINEER'S STORY.

Why He Had a Craving Fit When He Was Even Hurt.

"Yes, indeed, we have some queer little incidents happen to us," said the fat engineer. "Queer things happened to me about a year ago. You'd think it queer for a rough man like me to cry for ten minutes, and nobody hurt either, wouldn't you? Well, I did, and I can cry almost every time I think of it. "I was running along one afternoon pretty lively when I approached a little village where the track cuts through the streets. I slacked up a little, but was still making good speed, when suddenly, about twenty rods ahead of me, a little girl not more than three years old toddled on to the track. You can't even imagine my feelings. There was no way to save her. It was impossible to stop or even slack much at that distance, as the train was heavy and the grade descending. In ten seconds it would have been all over, and after reversing and applying the brake I shut my eyes. I didn't want to see any more.

"As we slowed down my fireman stuck his head out of the cab window to see what I'd stopped for, when he laughed and shouted at me, 'Jim, look here!' I looked, and there was a big Newfoundland dog holding the little girl in his mouth, leisurely walking toward the house where she evidently belonged. She was kicking and crying, so that I knew she wasn't hurt, and the dog had saved her. My fireman thought it funny and kept laughing, but I cried like a woman. I just couldn't help it. I had a little girl of my own at home."

COOKING A CAT.

Northern Italy Would Rather Have Pass Roasted Than Boiled.
In northern Italy the cat is a favorite and growing article of food. In Azeigio, in Venice, in Verona, butchers sell cats and call them rabbits, for the state forbids the eating of cats, but the poor people who have become the chief buyers of the inferior kinds of cats are not deceived by their cheap rabbits.

The proper way to cook a cat is to toast it in an oven until brown, with onions, garlic, parsley, bay leaf, red wine and some herbs peculiar to Italy. When boiled, it is not so satisfactory. Just before Christmas it is customary for a group of young men in northern Italy to kill some cats, skin them and soak them in water for two or three days. They are then cooked with great care on Christmas day and served up hot about 1:30 p. m. after mass.

Italy cultivates the cat for home consumption, as English people raise rabbits. It is to be done on the quiet, however, for in spite of the profit in the business and the demand for the delicacy the law has to be looked out for, and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Cats is vigilant. Offences against the law are visited with imprisonment. Cats are raised for the market none the less. Fattened on the finest of milk, a choice specimen will attain the weight of fifteen pounds.

Alexander's Horse.
Bucephalus, the horse of Alexander the Great, was in all probability the most celebrated horse of which we have any knowledge. He was bought for the sum of 16 talents from Philonous out of his breeding pastures of Pharsalis, and it is known that he was skewbald, or, in other words, white clouded with large deep bay spots, this peculiar breed being valued by the Parthians above all others, but being disliked by the Romans because so easily seen in the dark.

Bucephalus was ridden by Alexander at the battle of the Hydaspes and there received his death wound. Disobedient for once, to the command of his master, he galloped from the heat of the battle, brought Alexander to a place of safety, knelt, as was his custom, for him to alight and, having thus performed his duty, trembled, dropped down and died.

A Good Rule of Life.
A man cannot afford to have an enemy, even a humble enemy. The shabby fellow who storms your office today may be a power in the community next year. Therefore speak to him gently, send him away with a smile. Never affect a contemptuous manner. That is the way of the fool. In the day of small things plan patiently for the day of great things. A polite word costs nothing. It may turn out to be a good investment. As a spark of fire may turn a city into ashes, so an impatient gesture or irritable word may kindle a hatred great enough to destroy a career.

The Giant Petrel.
The giant petrel of the arctic regions will feed on offal until it is so absolutely gorged as to be unable to rise off the ice in flight. Then it runs along the ice if chased, spreading its wings out as sails. Before being captured, however, the petrel will suddenly stop and discharge a quantity of semidigested food and then go off on a run again. If overtaken a second time it will repeat the performance and when once it has got rid of its dinner flies away.

He Began to Talk Business.
"I shall make you love me yet," declared Mr. Stinjay determinedly. "I shall leave no stone unturned."
"Ah, that sounds something like!" exclaimed the fair girl. "If the stone weighs not less than a carat and is pure white you may interest me."—Exchange.

It doesn't take a man very long to become wise, but getting other people to recognize your wisdom after you have it is a long and tedious job.

INTELLIGENT LESSON NO. 11. OCTOBER 9, 1904.

The Widow's Oil Increased—2 Kings 4:1-7.

COMMENTARY.—1. A widow in trouble (v. 1). A certain woman—Josephus says this woman was the widow of Obadiah, Ahab's steward, and that the borrowed money mentioned in the text had been expended on the support of the hundred prophets whom he hid and supported (1 Kings 18, 5).

II. The woman's poverty (v. 2). 2. How shall I do—How shall I relieve you? "The sons of the prophets were poor, and it would signify little to make a collection for her among them." Elisha was also a poor man, what hast thou?

III. The prophets' advice (vs. 3, 4). 3. Borrow—empty vessels—but why did not the Lord supply the vessels as he did the oil? Simply because she had the ability to supply the vessels.

4. Shut the door—So as not to draw a crowd of curious spectators around, or make a display of the vessels. Those who think it cripples their faith to help themselves should remember that the exact opposite is the case.

5. The supply of oil (vs. 5, 7). 5. So she went—The widow might well have been astonished at such a peculiar command; "but as the wife of a prophet who had been a servant of the Lord she had learned whence he had the oil."

6. Woe full—Out of one small jar was poured out so much oil as by a miraculous multiplication filled the empty vessels. Even so the bounty of our God gives grace and glory according to the capacity of the receiver.

7. Came and told—Feeling that the disposal of the oil should be made according to the direction of the Lord, she went to the direction of the Lord, she went to her that the unexpected supply could not be regarded as her own property.

8. The great value of Old Testament incidents lies not in their historical correctness, nor in the comprehensive and far-reaching principles of perennial application in the succeeding generations of human history.

9. Small possessions enlarged. The method of divine operation has always been to secure increase by the investment of capital already possessed, rather than by a direct and miraculous bestowment.

10. "What hast thou in the house?" We are reminded of a later inquiry from a higher source under a suggestively similar circumstance. "How many loaves have ye?"

11. The reply in both cases was hopelessly discouraging in the presence of the demand—a great debt, and, but "a pot of oil," a great multitude, weary and famishing, and "five loaves and two small fishes," but "what are they among so many?"

paration to receive commanded. "Borrow abroad of all thy neighbors." "Bring me yet a vessel, and he said unto her, 'There is not a vessel more.' Had there been a larger preparation there would have been more oil."

12. The woman's poverty (v. 2). 2. How shall I do—How shall I relieve you? "The sons of the prophets were poor, and it would signify little to make a collection for her among them."

FATAL RAILWAY WRECK AT EASTWOOD STATION.

Freight Train Crashed Into an Extra on Siding.

Three Hamilton Railway Men Were Instantly Killed.

(From Hamilton Times.) In a wreck that occurred this morning four men were killed outright, a fifth so badly injured that he will die, and thousands of dollars' damage done to rolling stock.

Eastbound extra freight 723, with orders to stop at Eastwood, ran in on the siding there to wait for eastbound freight train No. 94, engine 975, to pass. A few minutes after it had cleared the main line and come to a standstill No. 94 came flying along at a high rate of speed.

The operator notified the railway authorities as soon as possible, and telegraphed for medical assistance. Physicians responded as soon as possible, and did what they could for the injured. It is understood that all the bodies were recovered from the wreck before the flames reached them.

Further particulars of the fatal wreck at Eastwood station early yesterday morning in which three Hamilton men were killed, confirm the report that an open switch caused the accident. One report says: The conclusion reached is that the crew of the freight No. 723, left the switch open after taking the siding, with the result that the incoming freight No. 94, engine 975, running 45 miles an hour, crashed into the siding.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a headache, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful, I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, Mrs. MAY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." PARLIAMENT DISSOLVED

Nominations October 23rd and Elections November 3rd. Ottawa, Sept. 29.—The flag has dropped and the horses are off. The ninth Parliament of Canada was this afternoon formally dissolved.

Market Reports

The Week. British Cattle Market. London, Oct. 1.—Cattle are steady at 8 1/2 to 12 1/2 per lb.; refrigerator beef, 9 1/2 to 12 1/2 per lb. Sheep, 10 1/2 to 11 1/2, dressed weight.

The Cheese Markets. Cornwall, Oct. 1.—To-day 13 creameries offered 1,430 boxes butter and 28 factories offered 764 boxes cheese. Cheese, 1,033 boxes at 8 1/2 to 9 1/2; butter, 1,430 boxes at 13 1/2 to 14 1/2.

Toronto Farmers' Market. Business was quite active on the street market to-day. The movement of grain is more liberal, and prices well maintained. Wheat is easier, with sales of 200 bushels of white at $1.04 to $1.05, 500 bushels of red at $1.01, and 1,000 bushels of yellow at $1.02.

Receipts of live stock on the city market were 2,229 lbs. of cattle, 2,229 lbs. of sheep, 523 sheep and 1 calf. Besides the above, there were eight carloads, comprising 128 Chicago cattle, received on stock lots in transit for W. H. Dean.

Table with market prices for various goods like wheat, corn, and other commodities.

Toronto Live Stock.

Receipts of live stock on the city market were 2,229 lbs. of cattle, 2,229 lbs. of sheep, 523 sheep and 1 calf. Besides the above, there were eight carloads, comprising 128 Chicago cattle, received on stock lots in transit for W. H. Dean.

Prices were unchanged, but firm for hogs. Selects, $5.15; lights and fats, $4.90 per cwt. Maybee & Wilson, commission salesmen, sold as follows: 2,229 lbs. of cattle, 2,229 lbs. of sheep, 523 sheep and 1 calf.

Leading Wheat Markets.

Table with wheat market prices for New York, Duluth, Toledo, and Detroit.

Toronto Fruit Market.

The receipts are moderate and the demand continues good. Peaches, white, basket, 50 to 60; yellow, 50 to 55; pears, 50 to 55; plums, basket, 75 to 80; grapes, 10 to 15; apples, basket, 15 to 20; strawberries, 70 to 75; tomatoes, basket, 25 to 30; green peppers, basket, 25 to 30; musk melons, basket, 20 to 25; Spanish onions, 10 to 15; sweet potatoes, per bush, $1.25 to $1.50.

Bradstreet's on Trade.

Wholesale trade at Montreal continues in a satisfactory condition, according to reports received by Bradstreet's. The fall sorting business is now in full swing, and orders during the month just closed were, generally speaking, most satisfactory. Toronto business conditions are satisfactory. There has been a marked development in a good assortment of goods for fall goods. Retailers are sending in good assorting orders. Business conditions are sound.

MOPE ABOUT T. N. M'CAULEY.

Lawyer Made Accusation That Caused Sensation.

Said McCauley Had Been Hiding in His Counsel's House.

Raised $134,000 on His Property in Chicago.

New York, Oct. 3.—There was a stir in the Special Sessions Court yesterday when Thomas N. McCauley's bail was forfeited and the Central Office detectives were called on to find him in this country or out of it. McCauley was president of the International Mercantile Agency, now in a receiver's hands, and was to have appeared yesterday to answer the charge that he had embezzled $5,000, which Frank Wood, a Boston printer, had invested in the stock.

When it became apparent yesterday that McCauley did not intend to appear, his counsel, E. B. House, with ex-assistant District Attorney Schurman, said he could not understand his action. Mr. Garvin said: "I would recall to your Honor in asking for forfeiture of this bail that McCauley is accused of having stolen $700,000. I felt that no amount of bail could hold the defendant, in the consciousness of his guilt, within the jurisdiction of this court. But I did rely on the promise of his counsel, Messrs. House and Schurman and Baldwin, that they would produce him in court. This promise I considered infinitely better than any amount of bail."

It was informed that on last Thursday, when this case was adjourned, and McCauley was not in court, his counsel knew then that he had disappeared. It was their duty to bring these facts to the attention of the District Attorney and not let this criminal escape. Within the last week, I was informed that McCauley has raised $134,000 in cash on his property in Chicago. "I am informed," Mr. Garvin continued, "that McCauley had been living in disguise in the house of one of his counsel." "Which?" asked the court. "John W. Griggs," he replied. "In your house," said Mr. Garvin, "justifying a point at him."

Justice Wyatt said he would have to forfeit McCauley's bail, but that if McCauley appeared he would arrange to have the bond continued. The bond is for $5,000. Mr. Garvin was asked where he got the information that McCauley had been living at Mr. Baldwin's house. "From the detectives of this office," he said. "Mr. House told me to-day, before the case came on, that McCauley had left the Hotel Majestic, where he had been living, because he wanted to keep under cover for fear of probable Federal warrants on complaints from Canadian stockholders this month. Mr. Garvin said that McCauley got the $134,000 cash from trust companies in Chicago on property in Chicago and in the West. McCauley is said to be the largest holder of bank stock in Chicago. The District Attorney's office believes that he has left the country and may have gone to Mexico, where he is said to own considerable property. Inspector McCluskey has been supplied with photographs of him and directed to use all means to find him."

THE EVIL OF DIVORCE.

A Vigorous Condemnation of it by Bishop Potter.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Archbishop of Canterbury was the central figure to-day at the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York. The delegates in number, assembled in the crypts of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, and prayer was offered and Holy Communion administered. The Archbishop of Canterbury occupied the throne and conducted the services. Leading men of the church were present. Bishop Potter, in his report to the convention, attacked with vigorous language the evil of divorce, and urged the clergy to set their faces against the spread of the evil, society would relapse into a state of practical barbarism. HIGH HEELED SHOES

Caused Amputation of Leg a Then Death.

New York, Oct. 3.—A despatch from the Herald, from Louisville, Ky., says that Mrs. William A. Hunter, daughter of Representative W. Godfrey Hunter, died last night from diffuse cancer, caused by a cancerous growth on her foot, due to wearing high-heeled shoes. The growth appeared about a month ago and was spreading rapidly, necessitating amputation of the right leg, low the knee about a year ago. It proved of no avail, as the poison affected the whole body. Mrs. Hunter gradually grew weaker and death was expected for some time. She was only 24 years of age.

The Unknown Bridegroom.

CHAPTER XI.

The next moment the young man turned to Florence with the old luminous smile, which she remembered so well, and as calm and serene as if he had just shined some light inanimate obstacle from his path.

"I hope he did not hurt you," she said, trembling out his hand to clasp the trembling one which she expected to find cold, while his heart leaped with secret joy at the smiling look which she flashed at him.

"No; but oh, I am so glad that you came to my assistance," she responded, somewhat nervously and still clinging to his hand as if fearful of being spirited away from him.

"Have you any idea who the villain is?" he questioned, drawing her aside, for the attention of people around them had been attracted to the stunned and prostrate figure on the ground.

"Not the slightest," the fair girl returned, with the shiver of a left auntie at Madam Joy's furnishing store, opposite, while I ran across here to get a book that I very much wanted. Just as I stepped outside he accosted me, talking as if he knew me, and insisting that I must go with him. What should I have done if you had not come to my rescue?"

"Why, someone else would have done," he said, smiling down into her troubled eyes.

"Ah, but I am very glad it wasn't someone else, because—because I know you," she confessed naively and shyly; then she added, "and you will you take me back to auntie?"

"Certainly, I was just on my way to call upon you," he explained.

Florence, anxious to get out of sight, hurried her companion across the street and into Madam Joy's, where she found Mrs. Seaver awaiting her return.

That lady greeted Mr. Carroll most cordially, at which Florence explained how she happened to meet him.

Mrs. Seaver was inclined to be alarmed over what had occurred, but Mr. Carroll made light of the incident.

Then they fell to chatting about more interesting subjects, until Florence mentioned that Mr. Carroll had been on his way to call upon them, when he so opportunely came to her rescue, whereupon Mrs. Seaver insisted that he must come home to lunch with them in a few minutes later, they were all rolling on their way toward Portland Square, where the Seaver's apartments were located.

Here they found Sir Seaver, who was heartily glad to meet the young man, and in whose estimation he rose higher than ever when he learned of the efficient service which he had rendered his ward the morning before.

"They passed a very pleasant hour over their meal, and after smoking a fine Havana with his host, Mr. Carroll took leave of his friends, promising to call again in a few days on some of their fellow-voyagers, which had been arranged for the next evening.

On his way Mr. Carroll purchased the flowers he had intended to take to Florence, and ordered them sent to her with a note of explanation.

The next evening when he presented himself at the rooms in Portland Square he found a number of people present whose acquaintance he had made on the steamer, and conspicuous among them Mr. Wright.

A crowd of excited onlookers contracted that excellent bow as our hero entered the pretty drawing room looking the manly man, every line a firm.

"Blast him," he muttered under his breath, "the beggar hasn't lost any of his good looks getting over his accident. What an earth is he here for, and how can he get along with our party?"

This reunion had been arranged chiefly for the purpose of making Mr. Carroll a free man, and consequently was obliged to decline the kind offer.

The next morning the "Seaver" left on his trip to Swaziland, and the following week Mr. Carroll closed his last business transaction, connected with the settling of his father's estate with his creditors, and found himself a free man, although an almost penniless one.

His first act after this was to write to the head nurse of the hospital, where "Crazy Moll" had so long had a home, and beg her to use her influence with the authorities to induce them to allow the woman to receive scientific treatment for the restoration of her mental faculties.

Two days later he was somewhat dismayed to receive a reply stating that the woman had disappeared in the most mysterious manner, some two weeks previous.

Mr. Carroll deeply regretted thus losing sight entirely of the woman, or upon her and the restoration of her faculties, had rested his only hope of ever being able to discover the parentage of his protegee.

But this perplexity was soon swayed up by new interests, for some articles which he had come in contact with while settling his father's business, impressed by his unimpeachable honesty and manliness, together with the thorough knowledge which he had manifested relative to the business, they proposed to reorganize a new company, giving him a third interest for his knowledge and services.

This was a very flattering and promising offer, and he immediately through the arrangement would necessitate repeated absences from London, and the leaving of James behind.

This he regretted, for he was becoming very fond of the boy, who, in return, fairly idolized him; but the opportunity was one not to be slighted, as it was sure to lead him to even better things, and the separation, though trying, would have to be borne.

Therefore, he put James into a fine boarding school for boys, and, obtaining from Dr. Field, who was also deeply interested in him, a promise to look in upon him occasionally, he was ready for his first trip, which would take him from London for three to six months at a time.

Before leaving, however, he made an effort to look up his mother's relatives; but on paying a visit to their estate, he found it deserted and no evidence that the place had been occupied for some time.

This was a keen disappointment to him, for he was so alone, he had hoped to establish some tie of kinship; but thinking the family might be traveling abroad, he tried to comfort himself with the promise of seeking them again upon his return from his trip.

Nearly two months have elapsed since the Seavers, with their ward, called for Europe, and we now find Walter Leighton located in New York City, whither he had returned about the first of September.

He had been in anything but an enjoyable frame of mind since the departure of Florence, for her quiet and decided repudiation of their previous relations had warned him that the girl had more strength of purpose than he had ever given her credit for, and it also enraged him beyond measure to have been so balked in his plans.

Another circumstance had served to greatly augment his irritation and annoyance.

It will be remembered that on his return from his last interview with Florence he had found a visitor in his rooms—a man whom he both hated and feared, and one whom he had believed to be dead and thus helpless ever to rise in the judgment against him.

A stormy scene had ensued; but, although the man had finally departed without having accomplished the object for which he had come, the knowledge that he was still living and might rise again in his path, seeking redress for the wrongs he had suffered, was a constant source of annoyance to him.

He also hated the ceaseless routine of his life, with its limited remuneration, and it was maddening to think how near he had come to securing a handsome fortune, only to have it slip from his grasp at the last moment.

Two weeks passed thus, every day only serving to make him more and more dissatisfied with his life of drudgery and monotony. One evening, after returning late from his seeking redress for the wrongs he had suffered, was a constant source of annoyance to him.

suggestive emphasis, accompanied by a frown.

"Yes, I am in need of some money, and I thought you would be obliging enough to help me," the girl returned, with a confidential wink.

Her companion flushed with annoyance, and, with a angry rebuff sprang to his lips, but he checked it. "Hum!" said Leighton, thoughtfully, as he drew forth his wallet and began to look over the bills in it. "Rather than let you have a trifle, Anna, and," he added, looking her steadily in the eye, "provided I should be able to do something handsome for you later on, I suppose could depend upon you to swear to a story which you saw performed a few weeks ago, eh?"

"What good would that do you?" curiously demanded Anna. "It wasn't you who was married to Miss Florence."

"What do you mean, Anna?" sharply demanded the young man, who had taken this way to find out how much the girl really knew.

She laughed at him anxiously. "Oh, you can't play that game on me, Mr. Leighton," she observed, happily. "Of course, I thought it was you who was being married to her—I believed the knot was tied far and square, and I should never have known any different if Miss Florence hadn't told me that a strange man had taken your place, and the shock it gave her when she found it out was what made her faint."

"Yes, I know that is what she claimed," Leighton returned, still holding the girl's gaze with his magnetic eyes, but she was tired under great mental excitement, as we all know, and so, liable to be mistaken. Now, if I with my two friends and you—which would be four against one—should swear to me that night—and I have the certificate as additional evidence—it would be very difficult for her to prove the contrary, wouldn't it?"

"Yes, I see," replied Anna, hesitatingly, "and—I shouldn't wonder if it could be done, provided the returns were satisfactory," she concluded, with a sly smile.

"Well, here is something to tide over your present necessities," her companion observed, as he slipped a folded bill into her hand. "I hope that no witnesses will ever be required to swear to anything of the kind, but if they do, you will be from me again. One thing more, Anna—don't ever go to the bank again to inquire for me. I am going away, and shall not be there any more."

CHAPTER XII.

On the very day of his arrival in London Walter Leighton proceeded directly to the office of Messrs. Wellington & Engles, to whom he presented his letter of introduction from the banker and other papers, to prove his close relationship to the late Lady Laura Vincent Page.

To his exceeding joy, it was an easy task to make clear to them beyond question, that his mother, Emily Athorp Vincent, had been the aunt of the late Lady Page, and this of course, established his kinship. Six first cousins and next of kin to her. No other applicants had presented themselves, although the attorneys had been advertising for many months, and had almost despaired of finding a heir to the Page estate, which, in that case, would lapse to the crown.

Leighton had learned Sir Julien Page had died a year and a half previous, and his only survivor him only a few months.

"It is a great pity that there is no direct heir to perpetuate the name," Mr. Wellington observed, while explaining the situation to the newly discovered heir. "The thing towers, which is located in Sussex County, is a grand estate, with its magnificent rent roll, to say nothing about a handsome bank account and other well-paying investments."

"Ah!" exclaimed Leighton, his heart throbbing heavily with inward excitement, in view of his prospective wealth, "I had no idea that Sir Julien was so rich!"

"It is a fine inheritance," young man, a very fine inheritance, and you are to be congratulated upon coming into it," the attorney replied; but, as Sir Julien and Lady Page were dear personal friends, as well as clients, it is but natural that I should regret there is no son to reign in his father's place."

"Yes, of course," said the young man, somewhat coldly, "but were there never any children?"

"Yes, there were three born to them, but they are all dead—at least, it is supposed that such is the fact."

"Suppose! Is there any doubt about it?" abruptly demanded the would-be heir, a sudden blur obscuring his sight, every atom of color forsaking his face.

To have so nearly attained the summit of his ambition, and then lose all by the possible appearance of some missing heir, would be more than he could endure.

"No—do not be alarmed, my friend; there can be no doubt at this late date, and Sir Julien and Lady Page gave up all hope years ago. They were very unfortunate, with their children," the lawyer observed with a regretful sigh. "It is a sad story—do you care to listen to it?" he questioned, bending a searching look upon the young man's face.

"Certainly—of course I am deeply interested," he tried to say in a proper tone.

"Well, they lost their eldest child, a boy, when he was only three months old, and nearly thirty years ago," Mr. Wellington resumed. "This was a terrible blow to them, but they were somewhat comforted when a year later a daughter was born to them, and then she looked very bright to them again. When this last child was about a year and a half old, Lady Page's health began to fail, and her physicians ordered her to the south of France for a few months. The little girl was allowed to accompany her parents, but the boy, who was a robust and very noisy little fellow, was forbidden to go, lest he worry his mother, and was left behind with a trusty nurse who had been in the family for many years. They were sent to Brighton—which is not very far from Worthing Towers—to board with a good woman who had once been housekeeper for Lady Page, but who had married and located in that place. Lady Page improved rapidly, and in a few months was pronounced able to return. As they wished to spend a little time in London before returning to the Towers, Sir Julien, who was eager for a sight of his boy, wrote to the nurse to join them on a stated day at the Aronda, a hotel where they were accustomed to sojourn during their visits there.

On the same day he also wrote to the proprietor of his house, bespeaking a suite of rooms for himself and family. But, as it happened, and it was an unusual circumstance—the house was so full they could not be accommodated, and the proprietor was obliged to telegraph him to that effect. Sir Julien immediately telegraphed to another house and secured a suite, then wrote to the nurse at Brighton, telling her of the change he had made. It appears, however, that she did not receive this last communication, but, according to the statement of the woman with whom she and her charges had been residing, she left Brighton on the specified date to obey the instructions of Sir Julien's first letter, and that was the either nurse or baby, by any of their friends."

"How strange!" exclaimed Walter Leighton, as the man paused.

He had been told with almost breathless attention the story; but a feeling of excessive uneasiness—a secret fear—expressed him, in view of the mystery which appeared to envelop the fate of the little heir of Worthing Towers.

TIRED AND DEPRESSED.

The Condition of Many Young Women in Shops and Offices.

Thousands of young women have to depend upon their own efforts to gain a livelihood, and to these, whether behind the counter, in the office, the factory or the home, work means close confinement—often in badly ventilated rooms. There is a strain on the nerves; the blood becomes impoverished; the cheeks pale; there are frequent headaches; palpitation of the heart and a constant tiredness. If the first symptoms are neglected it may lead to a complete breakdown—perhaps consumption.

What is the remedy? To restore vitality and energy is a tonic, and absolutely the best tonic in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make new blood, and bring health and cheerfulness to tired and depressed girls and women. Miss Richardson, 105 West Corners, N. S., says: "I was a great sufferer from headaches, heart palpitation, and troubles that afflict my sex. My blood seemed almost to have turned to water, and the least exertion left me weak and depressed. I used several boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they made a remarkable change in my condition. I can truly say that I feel like a new person, and I strongly recommend these pills to all weak, ailing girls."

These pills cure all forms of blood and nerve troubles, but you must get the genuine, with the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, on the wrapper around each box. Ask your druggist for them, or you can get them by mail at 20 cents a box or six boxes for $1.00 by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COOL CURED CHEESE.

Demand for It Increasing—Building New Curing Rooms.

Judging from the greater demand for cool cured cheese which exists this season, the old country merchants are beginning to realize more fully the advantage there is in handling cheese which has not been exposed during the process of curing to a temperature higher than 60 degrees. Cheese factories that are able to offer strictly cool cured cheese are deriving so much benefit that it must be only a question of time, a short time, in fact, until all factories are equipped with proper cool curing rooms.

The experience gained at the Government cool curing rooms has demonstrated that while the first requisite is to control the temperature, it is also necessary to provide for some circulation of the air to carry off the moisture which escapes from the cheese, and which comes from the increased relative humidity due to the reduction of temperature. If the relative humidity is too high the cheese will have soft skins and develop a tendency to mould badly.

The system adopted at the Government curing room has worked admirably, and it can be employed without difficulty and at a moderate cost in connection with any cheese factory. Indeed, a large number of factory curing rooms have already been remodelled on this system, the necessary alterations and additions involve the putting in of an existing curing room, some extra insulation, and the erection of an ice chamber. Mr. J. A. Riddick, Chief of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, who has this system in mind, has put in a large amount of the existing curing rooms at large enough to allow of an ice chamber being constructed in one end, and still leave sufficient room for cheese. This applies more particularly to the older factories in Western Ontario.

Where improvements are proposed for next season, the work should be undertaken this fall, in order to have the ice chamber ready for filling during the winter. Mr. Riddick has prepared plans showing his system of cooling for all classes of cheese factory and creamery buildings, and he invites those who contemplate improving old buildings or erecting new ones to communicate with him, if they desire to have the benefit of his experience in these matters.

This question of the cool curing of cheese is one in which the patrons of cheese factories should take the keenest interest, because they will gain more through its adoption than any other section of the trade. They should be willing to bear a share at least of the expense of refitting the factory. The present scale of charges for manufacturing cheese is based on the old plan, and it is too low to secure a good service.

Some of the factories which have been getting one-fourth of a cent above the highest price paid for the ordinary cured article, and there is not the slightest doubt but the difference will be greater as cool cured cheese becomes better known. In addition to the increased price there is a saving in shrinkage of about 1 and a half per cent.

FARM HYGIENE.

Unsanitary Closets and the Dry Earth System.

Department of Agriculture, Commissioner's Branch.

Attention was recently called to the fact that out of some 100 to 200 samples of water from farm wells analyzed annually by Prof. Shutt, chemist of the Dominion experimental farms, not one-fifth are found safe and wholesome. By far the greater number have to be unfavourably condemned, and it seems very evident that a great improvement in our water supplies is necessary. This dangerous condition of many farm wells is undoubtedly due to pollution by unsanitary closets. There is no reason why we should have our farmhouses in the same unhygienic condition in which so many of them are, with their closets and privies a menace to public health. We may talk about bacteriology, sanitation, and so on, but all that and a great deal more is included in what we understand by cleanliness. The lack of cleanliness is primarily a matter of ignorance, and secondarily a matter of laziness.

Ordinary shallow wells in the vicinity of the old fashioned privy pits are almost certain to be contaminated by seepage. The soil is an excellent filtering and cleansing agent, oxidizing organic matter rapidly, and tending to check the development of many of the common putrefactive bacteria. But the soil is only liable to dispose of a certain amount of contaminating material, and such disposal takes time, so that by heavy rains the contaminating matter may be carried far into the earth below the true purifying layer, and thus soak up into the wells. An old privy which has been closed and covered with earth is almost equally dangerous, as the decomposition of the large mass of excreta contained therein is a matter of years, unless hastened by the proximity of trees whose roots reach the pits. The contents should be removed and spread upon a field, and the pit left open long enough to permit the decomposition of any organic matter remaining.

When farmers once took time to think of these matters there would undoubtedly be a great improvement. Windmills are now both cheap and common, and there is no reason why well-to-do farmers should not have a water system in their houses, with all the conveniences and advantages which residents in the cities enjoy from their waterworks systems there established.

Though not quite so convenient, the dry earth closet is so cheap and so satisfactory from the sanitary point of view that no farmer can discover a reasonable excuse for refusing to adopt it. A well laid cement concrete floor will be found by far the easiest to keep in a clean and wholesome condition. A stout box of suitable size, mounted on runners and with a strong hook at one end to which a horse may be attached, makes a receptacle that can be conveniently drawn to the field or barnyard to be emptied. This box may be made wholly or in part of sheet iron, and if the bottom be semi-circular in form a kettle of hot water will be found sufficient to loosen the frozen contents in winter. Galvanized iron buckets, larger at the top than at the bottom, are also easy to empty in winter. The nature of the receptacle is largely a matter of convenience; the essential features of the system are the storing and the plentiful supply of dry earth and the emptying of the receptacle regularly. If the contents be spread thinly over the surface of a field they will be decomposed in a very few days with no danger to the public health.

Ashes should not be used as a substitute for earth, and road dust is very little better. The surface soil of a field or garden that has been frequently cultivated will be found just the thing. A little coarse or lumpy it may be run through a gravel screen. It is always advisable to keep a good supply on hand, as it becomes drier and better with age when stored in a bin.

If a man who has hitherto been careless in this particular will adopt and maintain a proper sanitary system in connection with his closet, he will find himself gaining largely, not only in self-respect, but in the respect of his family and of the strangers within his gates. Furthermore, he may thereby escape the ravages of such diseases as typhoid fever, which are so frequently traced to the use of contaminated water. Yours very truly,

W. A. CLEMONS,
Publication Clerk.

WESTINGHOUSE.

The Pittsburg Inventor Has Millions, but Works.

It is seldom that an inventor and the son of an inventor makes a complete success of an idea and an addition accumulated at fortune estimated in various sources all the way from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000. And it is exceedingly rare that such an exceptional inventor continues to choose the life of ceaseless activity, to brace his mind to the greatest effort, to take a remarkable character to do such things, but George Westinghouse, jun., is just such a rare genius. Of course, every Pittsburg is expected to be a workaday man, and it is not surprising that the great industrial life, but for a man who has accumulated such worldwide property interests it is very pleasant, even for a Pittsburg resident, to see a man who has done more probably than any other living person in the world to improve the human race in every clime and with every class of people in the civilized world.

Westinghouse is fast approaching the three-score mark, but he does not look it, and he is scarcely any doubt but that he feels no such younger —Mrs. M. Livingston, an aged and esteemed resident of Athens, died at the home of her son, Ernestus, at Wight's Corners on Thursday last, aged 86 years. A large family of sons and daughters are left to mourn her loss.

The High School Commencement management have secured the eminent Toronto divine, Rev. Dr. J. H. Cody, professor of Wycliffe College, for Nov.
16. Mr. Cody enjoys the distinction of having been honored with a D. D.
degree by Queen's University.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Mills of Elora were last Thursday guests of Mr.
and Mrs. G. F. Donnelley. Mr. Mills will be remembered as one who took a prominent part in the debating circle that flourished here about seven years ago. As proprietor of the Elora Express, he is meeting with deserved success, and in the lately attained state of double blessedness both he and his bride have the best wishes of their Athenian friends.

In reporting the services in St.
Paul's, Brockville, on Sunday last, the Recorder says: Rev. R. B. Patterson,
B.A., rector of Lansdowne Rear, preached a very powerful sermon in the morning. It was the first time the rector of Athens has been heard before a Brockville congregation, and his earnest words were much appreciated. Mr. Patterson was curate to Canon Cody, Toronto, before coming east, and is one of the most promising of recent graduates of Wycliffe College, Toronto.

Dr. J. Wright of Plevna is visiting his mother in Athens this week.

Miss Mary Livingston returned home this week from Detroit, where she has spent the summer. Her niece, Mrs. Gardiner of that city, will not visit Athens until next spring.

This district failed to furnish a single case for the Division Court here last week. Delta had no less than 27 cases on the docket, and the litigants, the host of witnesses and the lawyers taxed the accommodation of the village.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, Ontario Good Roads Commissioner, says that sixty miles of road will be built in the Temiskaming district this year, at a cost of $40,000. There are now two hundred miles of wagon road open in the Temiskaming valley.

The Temiskaming railroad is now graded past New Liskeard and work is being continued to the north. The town has given the railway twenty acres of land for the construction of round house, sidings, etc. The first train is expected early in October.

Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Slack, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Blanchard, Mrs. Wm.
Mott, Mrs. Tribute, Mr. and Mrs.
Lewis King, Mr. Alex. Compo and Mr. Horace Booth went to New York this week. Horace just went along to see that Alex. doesn't get lost.

—While driving on Main street last Saturday, Wm. Halliday's buggy collided with another rig and he was thrown out. His head was cut quite badly and at Dr. Hart's surgery several stitches were taken to close the wound. He is now progressing favorably.

Recorder (Saturday): Mr. and Mrs.
H. Taplin left this afternoon for Ottawa, where they will reside for the winter. Their daughter, Miss Margaret Taplin, will remain here for a few days and then go to Ottawa where she will spend a couple of weeks before leaving for Boston to take a course in voice culture.

—A new advertisement of the Brockville Business College appears in another column. This is one of the best Business colleges in Ontario. Without doubt, a larger number of graduates find positions than any other College.
Among the latest to secure positions are Miss Mary Code and Mr. Clarence Mahoney.

tion.

R. D. JUDSON
Athens, Sept. 27, 1904.

The Presbyterian church was filled to the doors on Sunday evening by a congregation representative of all denominations to hear a sermon by the Rev. W. W. Giles of Summit, N. J.
The address was a powerful declaration and delineation of divine truth, and all were deeply impressed with the speaker's eloquence and earnestness.

Mr. E. Loverin left on Monday for a visit with friends in Toronto and Markdale. In the latter place he will be the guest of Mr. John Davis.
About the first of November he will join the Reporter Hunt Club at Allandale and go with them to their game preserve on the Magnetawan.

Frankville Fair was simply drowned out on Thursday last, and it was postponed until Monday and Tuesday of this week. This was admittedly a risky course, but the friends of the fair rallied loyally to its support and the result was highly satisfactory. Our report of the fair will have to be deferred until next week.

Mr. Duncan, one of the proprietors of the Campbellford Herald, spent a few days in Athens last week, the guest of Rev. S. J. Hughes, M.A.
Mr. Duncan speaks hopefully of the mineral development of that district, and says that several corundum propositions in the vicinity of Campbellford are now being considered by capitalists.

LEE—WILTSE

At the home of Mrs. Arza Wiltse on Wednesday evening last, the marriage took place of her daughter, Miss Angelina, and Mr. Wm. Lee.
The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Beckett in the presence of about sixty guests. The contracting parties were unattended. The bride looked charming in a costume of cream voile, and carried a shower bouquet of roses. Following the hearty congratulations extended to the happy couple, a most elaborate repast was served, at which congratulatory addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Beckett and others. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts. After a short time spent in pleasant converse, Mr. and Mrs. Lee took leave of their friends and left for a trip through
New York state.

The Reporter joins with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

George Wiltse farm of 75 acres a mile south of Athens. Sale at the Gamble House, Athens, at two p.m.
A. M. Eaton, auctioneer.

Thanksgiving Day

Thursday, November 17th has been proclaimed as Thanksgiving day. Last year it was in October and was very satisfactory as the weather was better than it is likely to be in the middle of November. It has usually been in November and for some reason the Government have gone back to that date. The lovely turkey will play a more prominent part in a November thanksgiving than in an October one and perhaps the ministers had this in mind when they fixed the date.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial.
It causes bunces in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"Two of my children had scrofula sores which kept growing deeper and kept them from going to school for three months.
Ointments and medicines did no good until
I began giving them Hood's Sarsaparilla.
This medicine caused the sores to heal, and the children have shown no signs of scrofula since." J. W. McGraw, Woodstock, Ont.

ing thoroughly checked by him. Likewise the drugs prescribed are always of the best, in fact of standard quality and purity. Greater care, better drugs, more skilled knowledge could not possibly be employed.

This, no doubt, accounts for the large increase in our Prescription Department, and the confidence which the public place in us.
