Select Poetry.

The End of the Way.

My life is a long and weary journey,
In strife with the dust and the heat,
The rays of the sun beat upon me,
The briars are wounding my feet;
But the city to which I am going
Will more than my trials repay,
All the toil of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

There are so many hills to climb upward,
I often am longing to rest;
But he who appoints me my pathway Knows just what is useful and best.
I know in his word his promise is true,
That my strength shall be as my day,
And the tolls of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

When the last feeble step has been taken
And the gates of the city appear,
And the beautiful songs of the angels Float on in my listening ear;
When all that now seems so mysterious
Will be plain and clear as the day, Yes, the tolls of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

Though now I am footsore and weary,
I shall rest when I'm safely at home;
I know I'll receive a glad welcome,
For the Saviour Himself has said, Come!
So when I am weary in body
And sinking in spirit I say,
All the tolls of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

Cooling fountains are these for the thirsty;
Faint are cordials for those who are faint;
There are robes that are whiter and purer
Than any that fancy can paint;
Then I'll try to press hopefully onward, Thinking often through each weary day,
When I get to the end of the way.

When I get to the end of the way,
I shall rest when I'm safely at home;
I know I'll receive a glad welcome,
For the Saviour Himself has said, Come!
So when I am weary in body
And sinking in spirit I say,
All the tolls of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

When I get to the end of the way,
I shall rest when I'm safely at home;
I know I'll receive a glad welcome,
For the Saviour Himself has said, Come!
So when I am weary in body
And sinking in spirit I say,
All the tolls of the road will seem nothing
When I get to the end of the way.

Interesting Story.

Jennie's Mission.

"Oh, this dull round of small duties, How tired I am of them all, how I wish some great mission in life would come to me!"

Jennie Orson, the pretty little school mistress, leaned her chin upon her hand, and gazed out over gray fields, where dusty plowed furrows were turning their rugged faces up through the rapidly-disappearing snow-drifts.

"Why, how the snow has gone today," she added mentally, as the appearance of the fields struck her eye.
It was the last day of March, and all winter long the snow had been heaped in miniature mountain ranges by the road-side, and on the fields and meadows. During the last week warm weather had set in, making rapid inroads upon snow and ice.

The children came running under the window where Jennie stood, playing at "round the house." Then they flopped off together towards the brook that rippled by the schoolhouse a few rods distant. Jennie watched them absently. Her mind was not upon her duties that day. Her plodding round in a school-room seemed very dull and mean to her.

She sighed for some great and lofty mission.

"I could do some one great act, noble and noble," she sighed to herself, "I would be willing to die then. What is life worth if I plod on forever like this? I am no more than an ant, or a spider, or a squirrel, with the life I live! How gladly would I give up the monotony of years of this routine for one hour of sacrifice, heroism, and then welcome death."

How she hated her homely life as she looked back over her nineteen unconquered years. She had always lived in this dull country place, ever since she was a wee child and her parents had emigrated to the West.
She had received her education in this same little schoolhouse, attended divine services there—as the place boasted no church edifice—and her knowledge of the outside world was obtained by a early visit to the city, fifty miles distant, where the yearly supplies were purchased, and from a few books and newspapers. Now she was very tired of it all—tired of her dull past, her duller present, and her doubtless dull future. Even the dull thought of her fond true lover, Jack Kellog, who was building the house where she was to live, annoyed her to-day. How much better it would be to perform one grand act and die, than to live on to old age in this dreary fashion. It was a very romantic girl who stood there in the little school-room dreaming her disconsoled dreams, you see.

"Sudden as she saw by the noon mark that it was time to call in her scholars.
She had no bell—this was in the early days of Wisconsin history, before the railroads had spread their great iron spider-webs all over the State, and Jennie's school was conducted on a very primitive plan. She took the great ruler, with which she inflicted punishment on the palms of unruly boys, and rapped loudly on the window. Then she opened the door and for her pupils to come trooping in, not with the regulation and order which govern school-rooms in these days, but helter-skelter, hurry-scurry, laughing, pushing each other, and playing tag on their benches.

"Oh, teacher, the creek is getting awful high!" said Tommy Smith, as he plunged into his seat. And Jennie did not correct him for the improper use of "awful," which proved in this case to be more appropriate than teacher or scholar supposed.

"I suppose the snows are melting and running into it," she answered absently as she took her place at her desk, and by another tap of her ruler, indicated that the afternoon session was now in order.

Then she ran her eye over the room to see that no pupils were missing.
"Where is Ted Brown?" she asked.
"I do not see him here."

Ted was the smallest child in the school, a little boy scarcely five years old, who was placed in her charge, not so much to learn his primer, as to keep him out of his mother's way.
She was burdened with two smaller than he, besides a babe in the cradle.

"I left him down by the creek," answered Tommy Smith, "playin' throwing pebbles into the water. I told him school was called."

"You should have brought him along. Ted is only a child," Jennie said reproachfully to Tommy. "He is him now; and hurry, for your lesson in arithmetic comes on directly."

Tommy came back in a brief space of time white and frightened.

"Ted is standin' on a stone and cryin', and the water's all round him," he said. "I couldn't get near him at all."

The whole school arose en masse, and Jennie at the head of a small army led to the rescue of Ted.

Yes, there he stood on the stone which a little time before had been on the shore, but now, alas, was in the midst of the rapidly-swelling stream beyond the reach of any of that little group.

"Mamma! mamma!" he called in piteous tones, "come and take Ted.
Ted is 'raid. Come, mamma, come!"

Jennie looked over her little flock of people who crowded about her. Not one of them was large enough to wade out and rescue Ted. The only boy in her school who might have safely attempted this had remained at home that day to assist his father.

The water was rising higher every moment. What was to be done was to be done quickly, for the angry waves would seize poor little Ted and sweep him away down the swelling stream.

"John," cried Jennie, speaking to the largest boy in the flock, "you stand here on the bank while I wade out to Ted. I shall want you to take him out of my arms as soon as I have him safe. Some of the larger girls must hold fast hold fast to your coat so that you need not fall into the stream."

Then Jennie plunged bravely into the cold water, sinking almost at the first step.

Slowly, slowly, she made her way toward the crying child, the waves rushing up higher over his feet every moment.

The little flock on the shore huddled together like frightened lambs, watching their teacher with wide distended eyes and sobbing out their fear and terror, as she slowly forced her way against the huge waves.

Character.

Brigham Young's Miracle.

The high priest of the Mormons often had to exert the whole of his wonderfully quiet wit in order to preserve the faith that his followers had in him, but he was generally equal to the occasion. A certain elder, while chopping wood, had cut his leg so badly that it had to be amputated. As soon as he was able he came to Young and stated his case to him somewhat as follows: "I have always been a good Mormon; I have several wives and a good many children, and in my present maimed condition I do not know how to provide for them. I believe truly that you are Christ's representative on earth, and that you have all the power of heaven."

Young listened to all the propositions as they were laid down, and when the elder had finished speaking he said: "I can give you a new leg, and I will, but I want you to think a little about it first. When the day of judgement comes, wherever you are buried, your old leg will find you out and join itself to you, but if I give you a new one, that will rise with you, too, and the question is, whether you would rather suffer the inconvenience of getting along with one for a few years or go through all eternity on three legs."

The choice was quickly made and Brigham Young's reputation as a miracle-worker was saved.

Where Does the Sin Commence?

To drink deeply—to be drunk—is a sin; this is not denied. At what point does the taking of strong drink become a sin? The state in which the body is when not excited by intoxicating drink in its proper and natural state; drunkenness is a state of sin.

At what stage does it become a sin?
We suppose a man perfectly sober who has not tasted anything which can intoxicate; one glass excites him and to some extent disturbs the state of sobriety, and so far destroys it; another glass excites him still more; a third fires his eye, loosens his tongue, inflames his passions; a fourth increases all this; a fifth makes him foolish and partially insane; a sixth makes him savage; a seventh or an eighth makes him stupid—a senseless, degraded mass; his reason is quenched, his faculties are for the time destroyed.

Every noble and generous and holy principle within him withers, and the image of God is polluted and defiled!

This is sin; awful sin; for "drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of God." But where does the sin begin? At the first glass, at the first step towards complete intoxication, or at the sixth, or seventh, or eighth? Is not every step from the natural state of the symptom towards the state of stupid intoxication an advance in sin, and a yielding to the unwearied tempter of the soul?

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., NOV. 2, 1888.

Our Offer.

We have just made arrangements with the great agricultural weekly, Farm and Fireside, by which we have secured a real bargain for our readers, and we want every person in the county to have the benefit of it.

Our readers must not confound this offer with those sometimes made of cheap American premium papers which sometimes succumb after a few months' publication.

The Main Street Alteration.

We have repeatedly referred to the unsightly bend in Main street just east of the Wolfville Hotel and had hoped that ere this some attempt would have been made to straighten it.

Almost an Accident.

Had it not been for the lightning-like presence of mind and tremendous will power of Miss Jennie Bagley, her sister-in-law, Mrs. Capt. Clarence Bagley would have been killed and mangled by the express train for Halifax on Tuesday last.

Letter From North Dakota.

The failures of men who go into new countries to try their fortunes are rarely reported in their old homes; but if they achieve success they are glad to have their former friends know of their prosperity.

The story of another Nova Scotian's experience may prove interesting. This man is a farmer. He fled on land in North Dakota, and in the early days of hope and "boom" supposed that his possessions were worth four thousand dollars.

The foregoing cases are not fairly representative of the country as a whole. Not every merchant has fared as badly as the one referred to above, and not every farmer is as hardy as the one whose situation I have described.

Handbook Items.

Municipal council is what's agitating us at present. It's got a firm hold on the public mind out here, so far as the leading men of Handcock are spoken of as candidates, but I guess no more'n half of them will get in, all right.

Probably no drama of modern times has been so successful as Uncle Tom's Cabin; and when performed by a competent company the beautiful story is brought out with telling effect.

Probably no drama of modern times has been so successful as Uncle Tom's Cabin; and when performed by a competent company the beautiful story is brought out with telling effect.

Requisition.

To J. W. Hamilton, Esq.: We, the undersigned, electors of Ward 8, solicit you to allow yourself to be placed in nomination as a candidate, in the approaching Municipal election, to represent us in the Municipal Council of King's County; and hereby pledge ourselves to give you our support.

Whereas, at a very representative meeting held at Witter's Hall on the evening of the 23rd inst., I had the honor to be chosen as a candidate to represent this ward; and whereas a requisition numerously signed has been placed in my hand, I deem it a duty as well as a pleasure to accept the nomination tendered me as a candidate for the Municipal Council, and if elected by you I will endeavor to the best of my ability to carry out the well-understood wishes of a majority of the electors in all matters pertaining to the common welfare of the county.

I have been sick with Liver and Kidney Complaint and night sweat, for over two years, most of the time confined to my bed. A doctor attended me who failed to cure me; and after trying many patent medicines that were recommended for the above complaints, which failed also, I was advised to try Doctor Norton's Dock Blood Purifier; three bottles has entirely cured me, and I now enjoy the best health I have for twenty years.

Kentville Letter.

News in this locality is rather slim at present. We have been favored with our share of rain for some time past and perhaps more than our share. Anyway we might have done with less, as we are favored and have an artificial way provided for our supply when necessity demands it. We have the water works here, you know, and really there has been very little occasion for so much rain fall with us. I think our City Fathers would have it otherwise, as the number of applications for water supply has not come up to their expectations. Consequently income from this source not so great as expected. Another season may show an improvement in this line.

Building and repairing are the order of the day. Plenty of work for good mechanics. Mr W. Chipman has nine carpenters employed on his new house. Mr William Yould has his cellar in readiness for a new house, which is being framed in Berwick, and in a few days another new cottage will be added to the numerous ones already built within the town limits of Kentville these two years past. Mr J. W. Margeson has the frame standing for a large institution of some kind near the Cornwallis bridge.

A great deal of work is being done by the street commissioners this season. At present they are lowering the street running from the railway station to Cornwallis bridge some four or five feet and the material so excavated has been removed across the bridge on Cornwallis side and there dumped, making the road in this locality some five or six feet higher to the foot of the Joe Bell hill. This is certainly a great improvement for no one having to cross this piece of road in early spring at freshet time will fear being carried down the river by force of water over the road.

Monday evening, Oct. 22d, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., Miss Sterling of Hillfoot Farm, Aylesford, gave an interesting and instructive lecture, subject, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" This lecture was appreciated by all.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week our town was alive. Our streets were lined most all day with carriages and heavy teams. The occupants of the carriages visiting the many different stores. Visits at the dry goods stores seemed to predominate. Farmers with their teams bringing in their apples and potatoes to the station for shipment, and which there seems to be quite a demand just now. Potatoes are worth thirty cents per bushel.

There seems to be a necessity for stricter vigilance on the part of somebody, for last week there was hardly a night passed but what a deprecation of some kind was performed upon some one of our quiet citizens. The last that has been made public was the raid made on Mr McLeod, proprietor of the Lyons Hotel. A pane of glass was broken, the fastening of the window removed, and the rascal was supposed in taking brandy, whiskey and about five dollars in money. But somebody will be brought to a quietness of these times, for revolvers are in demand and many a man now only carries a case when his firearm is carefully examined and placed under his pillow. Burglars had better look out.

We had a visit on Tuesday evening by "Uncle Tom's Cabin Company." This company was superior to any of the same kind that have visited Kentville for many a day; and evidently Kentville people are fond of such amusements. Scotia Hall was filled to its utmost. Probably five hundred people present. It certainly was a great success to the company. The play was fairly good.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The entertainment given on Friday evening last by the members of Acadia Lodge, was in every degree a success. The hall was well filled with a select audience, which listened attentively to the following programme, which was announced by Dr R. V. Jones, who presided:

- Chorus. Songs of Seven. Solo, Daisy Song.....Miss Vaughan. Tableau....."Blue Monday." Five Minutes' Intermittence. Solo, Should He Uphold? Miss Brown. Tableau.....Bridal Wine Cup. Solo.....P. C. L. Harris. Reading.....The Greatest Sorrow, Miss Chipman. Tableau.....Coming Storm. Duet.....Williams and Vaughan. Tableau.....Merchant of Venice.

Our space will not allow us to particularize, but we cannot help mentioning especially the recitation, "Seven Times One," by little Evelyn Keirstead. The whole programme was splendidly rendered and reflected the greatest credit on the performers.

FOR SALE.—A "Silver Cloud" Base-burner, in good order; also one heifer calf, eight months old, half Jersey. D. B. SHAW, Wolfville.

ELECTION NEWS.

Intense interest is being manifested over the coming election. The great question is, Who will you vote for? Another great question is, Where are you going to buy your Boots and Shoes, Hats, Caps, Gents' Furnishings? We would suggest to go to Borden's, where the largest assortment is kept, where prices are the lowest, where stylish goods are kept—and vote for who you like.

C. H. BORDEN. Wolfville.

Lower Horton Letter.

Evangeline Division celebrated her tenth anniversary Monday evening last. The original charter dates back about a quarter of a century, but that charter was surrendered, and the Division as at present constituted can claim only a decade of history. Our anniversaries have always been a success, and this one was no exception to the rule. There was a literary and a dietary programme. The former was left almost entirely in the hands of the young members and they made it very enjoyable. Both old and young, I need scarcely say, took an active part in the latter. There were oysters, fowls, ham, hot coffee, rolls and all other graces and good things for which Evangeline is celebrated. There was a boiler on the stove as large as a "witch's coul-dron" and over this a beneficent widow bowed, dropping in this and that and stirring away until the "spell had worked," and then, though she was neither fat nor forty, she appeared "exceeding fair" when she came towards you with a delicious oyster stew. Later in the evening a reference to a wedding in a piece read from the Division paper seemed to evolve another sort of a stew and our sister looked more formidable than fair as she threw a billet-(deux?) at the reader. The good things disappeared as if by magic, and gradually a very contented, smiling, happy sort of feeling settled down upon and shone out from the faces around the table, and then they found their way back up-stairs to the Division room, and there was a charade, the parts taken by the Misses Patterson, Miss Allison and Messrs Parsons and McLatchy. Miss Hattie Patterson in the role of Grandmother was excellent and Mr Parsons in his double character, Auburn hair, and white hat was fully up to the occasion. There were songs and a trio, Misses Parsons, Woodman and Harvey, on violin, bass viol and organ. The last song "Old Uncle Joe," was sung in character by young Burrill, son of the late Mr Burrill of Yarmouth, the great temperance worker and not long since our G. W. P. The programme was so good that "few and short" were the speeches made. Brother Johnson was called on and said his name was not on the programme and he was not prepared, but nevertheless a happy inspiration seemed to seize upon him and he made some happy hits, so much so, that some young sisters said it was the best speech he ever made. Bro. Johnson's wife was not present I regret to say, but Councillor Curry was next called up, but excused himself as he had been making speeches at an auction in Gasperau. Last but not least your W. A. Bro. Patriquin, was trotted out and congratulated the Division on the improved appearance of the room and the pleasure of the occasion, and wished Evangeline great prosperity in the future. After singing the closing ode, a rush was made for baskets, but there is a little cloud to be seen in our horizon, and the same little spot in a far sky casts a shade on sister Divisions I have no doubt—it is a failure to realize the binding nature of the pledge, its sacredness and solemnity. Our pledge is little less binding and sacred than an oath, and to take it lightly and break it lightly is worse than folly. It is a disgrace to break a promise to a friend or fail to keep a business obligation, it is no less a disgrace to break the pledge, and every time it is broken it loosens one's hold upon truth and honor and the power to resist temptation. The pledge should not be taken for the fun of the thing, nor for a quarter of a year, but for life, and the young man who takes the pledge from principle and sticks to it strengthens and ennobles his character not in the principles of temperance alone but in all good. Let us try to impress our members with the sacredness of the pledge, and guard it from common use.

A. W. Phinney, Esq., of Middleton, has rented J. M. Parker's store and will in a few days open a branch grocery store in Berwick.

The first sociable of the season in the interests of the Baptist church, Berwick, was given by Mrs E. C. Banks last Tuesday evening.

Mr Parker has a fine show of furniture in his new warehouses. He represents this paper in Berwick and takes subscriptions for it and orders for advertisements and job printing.

H. S. Shaw, B. A., left Tuesday for Amherst to teach in the Academy in that place. He leaves a most satisfactory record as a thorough and efficient teacher and faithful Christian worker.

BAPTIST APPOINTMENTS.—Preaching, at Berwick at 11 a. m., at Weston at 3 p. m. Prayer meeting Sabbath and Thursday evenings at 7. Attentive users will see that all strangers have seats.

E. O. READ, Pastor.—APPLES—A very good beginning—Up to Wednesday Oct. 31st, twenty-seven car loads of apples containing four thousand one hundred and eighty three barrels had been shipped from Berwick station, beside several hundred barrels as local freight.

Mr Kirkpatrick's new hotel at the station presents a very creditable appearance, and is a valuable acquisition to the business interests of that vicinity. A strictly temperance house well conducted will secure a liberal patronage and have the best wishes of the entire community. Mr Wm Clark, of Middleton, has the contract to do the wood work inside and it is to be completed about the middle of December.

Principal Oakes.

We notice by our contemporary, the Woodstock Press, that at the eleventh annual session of the Carleton county (N. B.) Teachers' Institute, recently held a high tribute was paid to Mr I. B. Oakes, who resigned the position of Inspector of schools for that district to accept the principality of Horton Collegiate Academy. The following address was adopted and placed on the minutes of the Institute:—

ADDRESS TO I. B. OAKES. At this meeting of the Carleton Co. Teachers' Institute, by I. B. Oakes, A. M., of the Inspectorship of the schools in this district, the teachers assembled desire to express their appreciation of the manner in which he discharged his exacting and responsible duties. He manifested an eminent degree of patient care, untiring industry, and a thorough knowledge of sound educational principles in his school visitations. In his addresses to the schools the teacher's work was greatly aided by the encouragement given the pupils to attain excellence. Especially worthy of recognition is his work as an educator, in the beautifying of school grounds. Highly esteeming his worth as an educationist, the institute most heartily expresses the hope that he may be eminently successful in his new sphere of labor.

Signed CHAS. McLEAN. W. T. KERR. BESSIE M. GOOD.

Mr Oakes has now entered on his duties here and we believe is very popular. We congratulate the management of the academy on their good fortune in securing a successor to Prof. Tutts, who is so well qualified to fill the position as head of the academy.

The Town Talk.

"Good afternoon, Mrs Runaround, I am so glad to see you, walk right in and spend the afternoon with me. I was thinking of you to-day, and coming events cast their shadows before. How's baby and hubby, all well? I'm so glad to hear it. I was out shopping yesterday and I heard that they were unwell. Do you go shopping any Mrs Runaround? I do so like to go shopping and price goods. I suppose that the clerks get vexed with me, but I flatter them a little and make it all right. Speaking of shopping, have you ever seen B. G. Bishop's new store, No. 999, Main St., Wolfville? I was in his place yesterday. He has just opened the most beautiful lot of Tea Sets, Vases, Fancy Goods, Crockery and Glass I ever saw—and so cheap; and such pretty lamps, it is worth your while to see them. And a beautiful stock of Tinware! He sells a large Wash Boiler for $1.25, and a nice Coal Scuttle for 35 cents. His Tinware is dirt cheap, just think of a one-gallon Oil Can for 30 cents! I never heard the beat of it, and such an endless variety! My hubby says that he gets the best satisfaction in Paints and Hardware from Mr Bishop as he is bound to sell cheap and keep good stock only. Yes, we will go in and see his store. Oh, must you be going? Well, call again and bring baby with you. Good-bye. Oh, yes, I shall go and see you soon. Good-bye, and come again. Oh my, yes, I guess I will. Good-bye! Good-bye!"
