Measles. (Issued by the Department of Public Health, Nova Scotia.) This common disease is not usually accorded the attention which it should receive. It is really a very serious disease, one which accounts for many deaths in our province, and one which is frequently followed by disabling after effects.

Measles. The most infectious period of the disease is that which precedes the eruption. The early symptoms are suggestive merely of an ordinary 'cold'. Consequently, when measles is prevalent in a community any case of 'cold' (except in a person who has already had measles) should be regarded with suspicion, and dealt with as a possible case of measles until the diagnosis is certain.

Measles. In order to prevent the spread of measles, therefore, an early diagnosis is of the utmost importance. Every patient should be isolated for at least five days after the rash appears. Those belonging to the household who have previously had the disease need not be restricted, but, as there is a slight possibility of a second attack, they should be kept under the physician's observation.

Measles. In order to avoid the dangerous pulmonary complications which account for practically all deaths from measles, it is most important that the room in which a patient suffering from this disease is being treated should be large and carefully ventilated.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS. It is a grave mistake for mothers to neglect their aches and pains and suffer in silence—this only leads to chronic sickness and often shortens life.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS. In the first place let me remind you of certain difficulties connected with the development of tidal power. For four periods in every twenty four hours the tidal flow stops, and these periods do not recur at the same time every day.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS. In the second place the flow is not entirely stopped for four periods in every twenty five hours, but the tidal height is constantly changing and the rate of flow varies considerably. It would be difficult to adjust any direct connected machinery depending on tidal height or rate except to the lowest efficiency.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS. In the third place, any scheme of tidal power development must not interfere with navigation. A power plant, then for even a favorable tide like the Bay of Fundy, must be so adjusted as to give continuous, regular, and sufficient power, with low cost of installation and operation, and at the same time not interfere with navigation.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS. What use has in the past been made of tidal power has been entirely through the means of large reservoirs, in which the water is held until it can be used for power.

Editorial Brevities.

Dr. Cutten's interesting paper on "Nova Scotia's Greatest and Best Water Power," which he gave last week before the Commercial Club of Halifax, is reproduced in full and will no doubt be read with close attention.

Estimates submitted to Parliament on Saturday show an increase of upwards of $16,000,000 for interest charges, a proof of what war means to Canada. This burden, and it will grow much heavier before peace comes, will remain a tax on the trade and industry of the country for many years, and should compel economy in every department of the public service.

An exchange very properly says: "No matter what the Germans may say to the United States about the Lusitania, as long as they keep dropping bombs on sleeping women and children the world will know what sort of people they are." The killing of women and children continues, and it is time the British air fleet took measure to retaliate. Only in that way will it be stopped.

The Parliament Buildings.

The destruction of the main parliament buildings at Ottawa by fire shocks the whole country. The fire started at a time when the loss of life might have been very great, and there appears to be a strong suspicion that it was of incendiary origin. Naturally such a suspicion will direct attention to the fact that men of German birth have been retained in office in some of the departments.

Canada has been proud of the splendid buildings, erected at an original cost of $5,000,000, the corner stone having been laid by the late King Edward. Their destruction, while parliament was in session, makes the public inconvenience all the greater. No doubt many valuable records were lost. The government will be somewhat handicapped by the disaster, but members of both parties will heartily join in an effort to make the best of the situation. There will first be a rigid enquiry into the cause of the fire and if it has been the work of an enemy the young men of Canada will have another reason for donning the King's uniform and aiding in the overthrow of the destroyers.

A very sad feature of the calamity is the loss of a number of lives. There were also many narrow escapes, and the remarkable rapidity with which the flames appear to have spread is a warning to the future.

Occurring at a time when Canada is at war, and when parliament was in session, the first thought in the public mind is, naturally, that the fire was not accidental, but until a full enquiry has been made judgment will be suspended. The country has reason to be thankful that the destruction did not include the lives of public men, assembled there to attend to the nation's business.

The death of Mr. B. B. Law, M. P. for Yarmouth county, who was in the house at the time and perished, has caused great sorrow in his native province. Mr. Law was a man of great popularity and will be very much missed.

The Appam Seizure.

Use of neutral flags by ships of the belligerent powers has been the subject of frequent press comment, much of it sarcastic in tone. Particularly has this been the attitude of the pro-German press in referring to the use of the American flag by an occasional British passenger ship; and even German officials have sought to make capital against Great Britain on this account. Now it develops that the escape from the North Sea of the commerce raider which captured the Appam and sank other ships was made under cover of the Swedish flag, and that the big liner with her human freight was lured to her waiting enemy by the sign none at sea disregard—a signal of distress. Trickery of this kind may be justifiable, but to praise the German use of a neutral flag as a brilliant achievement and to ridicule as an international outrage the same course when adopted by a British merchantman for the protection of neutral passengers, is hardly sportsmanlike. In sending the Appam to an American port, the German government evidently sought to secure a ruling which would be applicable in other cases. A decision to recognize the ship as a lawful prize of war opens the door for a new effort to cripple Allied shipping by getting a few raiders past the North Sea patrols. A captured ship, recognized as German and interned in a neutral port, would be a greater asset to Germany in bargaining for peace terms than a sunken ship, while the danger to British shipping must compel greater naval activity at the blocking point, with the consequent greater risk from submarines. Any agreement with the British contention that the fate of the ship must be settled by the Hague Convention could be made a German justification for refusing to abandon the submarine warfare on the ground that prizes must be sunk, as they could not be held in neutral ports.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Nova Scotia's Greatest and Best Water Power.

Perpendicular cliffs rise abruptly over three hundred feet. A detour of two miles is necessary before one can ascend the cliffs. Even one unacquainted with engineering easily recognizes that an ideal hydro-electric plant would be a reservoir containing an inexhaustible supply of water located at the top of this cliff and feeding to hydraulic turbines placed at the base of the cliff, these turbines discharging directly to the sea. This would be away with the flumes, penstocks, and tail races which are usually the most expensive part of a water power. Our problem is to supply this water.

The scheme arranged to overcome the difficulties above referred to is based on power generated by especially designed current motors in the swift currents at the foot of the cliff operating pumps to elevate sea water to reservoir places on the top of the cliffs. The water will then be conducted to the power house at the base of the cliff in the way common in hydro-electric plants. The whole stage of the process from pump to an electric light in a far-away town is simply a combination of the municipal pumping plants and industrial hydro-electric plants and these are in continuous operation in many places.

Whether or not the pumps were operating, the flow from the reservoir would be continuous and regular so that the irregularity of the tide would not affect the producing power. The novel features are, (1) The use of the rate of tidal flow instead of the head. (2) The general scheme for overcoming the irregularity of tidal flow and for solving the storage problem made possible by the contour of the land at this point, and (3) The specially designed and highly effective current motor for providing the power.

MADE SUCCESSFUL TESTS.

You say it's all right, and it all depends upon the motor. That is true. Current motors are not uncommon, our problem was to procure an efficient variety. Perhaps I cannot say more about the motor at present than to tell you that a large sized model has been constructed and tested with most satisfactory results. While it can be lifted by two men it is capable of developing 27 h. p. at Cape Split.

It is not necessary to say more about one further objection, interference with navigation, than this: the vessels entering Minas Channel keep as far away from Cape Split as possible, and consequently any power development there would not in the least interfere with navigation.

The simplicity of the scheme is apparent, for the motor while most effective is equally simple. Safety may also be guaranteed by two independent reservoirs of great reserve capacity; and by three units of power in the same place, any one of which would operate the plant, all of which are protected by novel means from conceivable dangers.

With the simplicity naturally goes the low cost of installation and operation and consequently low interest charges. This in turn means cheap power. In the preliminary estimates which have been made, it appears that by this means power could be sold throughout the Maritime Provinces, far cheaper than by any other contemplated development, as well as furnishing sufficient power to provide the Provinces with the required amount, and to provide for future expansion.

A CENTRAL POINT.

Cape Split is one of the most central points in the Maritime Provinces. Within a radius of 125 miles lie Antigonish, Yarmouth, Fredericton, New-Castle, and nearly all of Prince Edward Island. Transmission lines of about 85 miles each would reach Digby, Moncton, New Glasgow and Halifax. When we consider that in Ontario, electric power is being transmitted over 250 miles, these distances seem short.

It is also interesting to note that these four lines with a branch from Moncton to St. John touch large towns within 100 miles of Cape Split, having a combined population greater than that of any city in the Dominion except Montreal, and cover a territory having a greater population than either Montreal or Boston, and in fact, exceeding the combined populations of Toronto, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The advantages of this situation may be summed up as follows: 1. No obstruction to navigation; 2. Ideal location for power house; 3. The swift, east current; 4. The highest cliffs rising from the water; 5. The central position in relation to the needs of the Provinces; 6. Unlimited power and possibility of expansion; and combined with the advantages of this situation is a low cost of installation and operation on account of the simplicity of the scheme.

THE VALUE TO HALIFAX.

I have presented this scheme only in outline, but you can readily see its advantage. The value to Halifax would be two-fold. Cheap power for the City would be assured, for according to the preliminary estimate electric power could be delivered in Halifax for an average of 2c. per k.w.h. and return a splendid profit. That would mean that power in larger blocks for manufacturing industries, could be delivered for less than 1c. per k.w.h.

But more important than that to Halifax is the development of the whole Province and of the Maritime Provinces. Not a hamlet can flourish without helping Halifax and as this power could be delivered over the entire Maritime Provinces at a very cheap rate, Halifax would inevitably feel the reflex influence. This is an opportunity for us to get together for the development of the Provinces.

Tonic Treatment for the Stomach.

THE MODERN METHOD IS MOST SUCCESSFUL IN TREATING INDIGESTION. The old fashion methods of treating indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old-fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form. The modern method of curing indigestion and other stomach troubles is to tone up the stomach to its Nature's work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—are all steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blood-builder, tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. Thousands of cases like the following prove how successful this treatment is.—Miss Amy Browning, Cornish, Ont., says:—I have found such great benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I would be ungrateful if I did not publicly say a good word in their favor. I was badly run down and my stomach was in a very bad condition. All food distressed me, and left me dazed and dizzy, and I suffered from nausea and dizziness and frequent sick headaches, and this was aggravated by pain in the back and sides. I was in this condition for several years, and although I had got medicine from several doctors it did not help me. Then I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began taking them. I am glad to say that they soon helped me, and now I am as well as ever; can eat all kinds of food, with relish, and have not an ache or pain.

You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sing me to sleep in some old shed; The rats are running around my head; Stretched out on my waterproof, Dodging the raindrops through the roof. Sing me to sleep where camp-fires glow;

Beloved

The members of Wolfville Division, S. of T., had a very enjoyable time on Monday evening. Owing to the bad weather and, reads the members of Canning Division were prevented from paying their visit, but 'Evangelists' arrived in force. An excellent program in which both societies took part, was presented and at the close refreshments were served and a social hour was spent. Both societies appear to be in a prosperous condition and the manner in which the various numbers of the program were presented showed plenty of talent on the part of those who participated.

Girls' Hockey.

The first Girls' Hockey match of the season was played on Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in Evangelist rink between the town girls and the College girls. It was a good game to watch and both teams did well, showing some very fast work. The College girls got right to work and defended their goal well, but the faster skating of the town girls together with good combination work gave them the advantage. The score was 2-0 in favour of the town team. The first goal was made by Marie Wilson in first period. The second by Minnie Godfrey in second period. In the third period no score was secured. The line up was as follows:

- COLLEGE GIRLS TOWN GIRLS
CENTRE Helen Cushing Marguerite Caldwell ROVER Violet Thorpe Minnie Godfrey
WINGS Edna Pickles Marie Wilson Mildred Schurman Grace Shaw
COVER POINT Amy Kinnie Francis Stackhouse Elizabeth Starratt Gladys Elderkin
GOAL Paige Pines Clara Chisholm Brenton Eagles acted as referee throughout the game which was played in three ten minute periods.

Mid-winter Wedding.

A pretty house wedding in which many readers of THE ACADIAN will be interested was solemnized at the residence of Mr. Nathan O. Benjamin, Gasperau, Wednesday, February 9th, when his daughter, Miss Blanche Annie, was united in marriage to Mr. William E. Allen, of Melanson. The ceremony officiating was Rev. G. D. Millbury, pastor of the Baptist church, Gasperau, and the ceremony took place in the presence of only the most intimate friends. At 1 o'clock the bridal party entered the dining-room, the bride who was supported by her father, being charmingly gowned in white crepe-de-chine. At the conclusion of the impressive service an informal reception was held and luncheon served. The happy couple left on the afternoon express for a wedding trip through the Province. The young people of the valley, among whom the bride is a favorite, presented Mrs. Allen with a handsome oak writing desk. Mr. and Mrs. Allen will reside in Melanson, Mr. Allen being the merchant there.

I could feel at first the gravel passing through my bladder but now I am as strong as ever. I weigh about 20 lbs. more than when I started to take Gin Pills. I beg you to publish my letter so that people may know what Gin Pills had done for me. To the Saloon-Keeper.
If we be pronounced upon the man who gives his neighbor drink, how many woes must be hanging over the man who does this every day and every hour of the day! Do not think because human government may license you that therefore God licenses you. No enactment, national, State, or municipal, can give the right to carry on a business whose effect is destruction.
I tell you plainly that you will meet your customers one day when there will be no counter between you. When your work is done on earth, and you enter the reward of your business, all the souls of the men whom you have destroyed will, as it were, crowd around you, and pour their bitterness into your cup. They will show you their wounds and say, "You made them;" and point to their unquenched thirst and say, "You kindled it;" and rattle their chains and say, "You forged them." Then their united groans will smite your ear; and with the hands out of which you once pick and the shrapnel and dimes they will push you off the verge of great precipices; while rolling up from beneath, and breaking away among the crags of death, will thunder, "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbor drink!"

Pass on the Praise.
"You're a great little wife, and I don't know what I would do without you." And as he spoke he put his arms about her and kissed her, and she forgot all the care in that moment. And forgetting it all, she sang as she washed the dishes, and sang as she made the beds, and the song was heard next door, and the woman there caught up the refrain and sang also, and two homes were happier because he had told her that sweet old story—the story of the love of a husband for a wife. As she sang the butcher boy who called for the order heard it, and went out whistling on his journey, and the world heard the whistle, and one man hearing it thought, "Here is a lad who loves his work, a lad happy and contented."
And because she sang her heart was mellowed and as she swept about the back door the cool air kissed her on each cheek, and she thought of a poor old woman she knew, and a little basket went over to that home with a quarter for a crate or two of wood.
So, because he kissed her and praised her, the song came and the influence went out and out.
Pass on the praise.

SMART THIEVES BUSY
AT ENGLISH STATION

English Baggage "Crock" Evidently a Person of Great Ingenuity and Nerve
The railway platform thief has little to learn in artfulness from the "heathen Chinese." He is a man of infinite tricks and disguises, so skilful and daring that he can practise his arts almost under the noses of the detectives whose duty it is to trap him. He is almost invariably a well dressed man, with an air of prosperity calculated to deceive the most suspicious, and when he is not engaged in his employment he often leads a life of luxury.
One of his favorite and most successful methods is to walk on to a platform as a heavily laden passenger train steams into the station. In the bustle and confusion that follow, he slips a tip into the hand of a porter, rushes him up to the pile of luggage which is being shot out of the van, and, pointing to the most valuable looking batch, says, "That's mine, I'm in a great hurry. Just get it out for me, will you, and give it to my man?" At the moment a confederate, dressed in groom's livery, steps up and takes the baggage from the porter, and, presenting the brace of fowls have disappeared. Both the real owner discovers his loss his luggage is a good half-mile away, with its porters, in a swift taxi.

Carries Fake Labels
Another ingenious trick is for the thief to await the arrival of the train, with an addressed and moistened label in his hand. As the guard turns out the luggage, he selects a promising portmanteau, quietly affixes his label to it, and walks a few paces away. Then he summons a porter to bring his bag, labelled "Mr. Blank Daah," to a cab which he has already engaged.
On another occasion our ingenious thief will stroll on to a crowded platform, carrying a large dummy bag, which is a mere empty shell, with a bottom which opens on pressure. When he sees an unattended dressing case of suitable size, he seizes a favorable opportunity to slip his dummy bag over it. A touch of a spring in the handle releases a series of prongs, which grip the imprisoned bag securely, and, picking up his own bag, he walks off with its unsuspected contents.

The Carriage Thief
One enterprising thief reaped a large harvest by the following method before at last he was caught. Carrying a large violin case, he would look out for a first class compartment which was momentarily left by its occupants—preferably ladies. Entering, he would quietly slip into his case any small articles, with a special eye to jewel cases; and then, exclaiming for the benefit of any standing near, "This is the wrong carriage; I want a smoker," he would step hastily out, mix with the crowd, and vanish as rapidly as possible.
Another notorious thief was more daring in his method. Waiting until some passenger, having deposited his luggage in a compartment, stepped out again to buy a paper, he would quickly summon a porter, and ask if this was the train for "St. Andrews." On being told that it was not, and that the train he wanted was at a distant platform—he would seize one of the articles, and bidding the porter bring the rest, rush off to the proper platform, dismiss the porter, and, as soon as he was out of view, bundle his spoil into a cab and drive swiftly away.

The Useful Rug
Even an ordinary travelling rug has served to cover a multitude of profitable thefts. The thief, carrying a rug over his arm, walks on to a platform, and, having found a valuable looking piece of luggage, left unwatched for the moment by its owner, drops the rug over it, and walks away. The next moment a confederate appears, snatches up the rug and its contents, and rushes off, ostensibly in a hurry to catch his train.
In other cases an innocent looking umbrella answers equally well. By touching a spring in its handle, the tip of the umbrella opens out into a toothed catch, resembling a strong pair of pliers. The thief walks along the train, and, when he sees small articles lying on the seats or rack of a warty compartment, he inserts his umbrella, releases the pliers, and picks up anything valuable he can reach from the platform.
The peculiar construction of English trains with their compartments and the strange methods of handling luggage all assist him in his carefully-worked plans.

An adult man weighs on the average about 140 pounds, 6 ounces. Out of this weight, his bones, numbering 240, amount for about 14 pounds.
"P" is used more frequently than any other letter in the English alphabet.
In places the thickness of a whale's skin is two feet.
py and contented.

So, because he kissed her and praised her, the song came and the influence went out and out.

EVERY STAR HAS MADE
ONE "BONEHEAD" PLAY

Sad Record of Managers, Players, Fans, and Even Mathewson—The Merkle's Are Legion
They call Fred Merkle a "bone-head," but Merkle is one of the smartest players in baseball. After starting on first base for the Giants McGraw switched him to the outfield, and in the National league they claim that few of all the ball players in the major, could be classed with Merkle's for gardening ability. Merkle is not the only wise man in baseball; who has made what appeared as a serious blunder. "Bone" plays have been pulled by owners, managers and players and some of the biggest mistakes have been made by the recognized stars.
A fan in New York city has compiled a record of the leading "rock" play made in the last 15 years. Here is the record he furnishes:
"When Bill Deryver accomplished the release of George Stallings as manager of the Yanks.
"When Fred Merkle forgot to touch second and thereby robbed the Giants of a pennant.
"When Frank Chance traded Hal Chase for Ebbets and Billis Zolter.
"When 'Chubby' Charley Ebbets refused to pay Joe Tinker the salary demanded by the latter to play with Brooklyn, which resulted in the 'making' of the Federal league.
"When Cincinnati traded Mathewson for Amor Raskie.
"When Chief Bender refused to go to New York in 1914 to lead the Boston Braves to discover the latter's weak points.
"When Connie Mack and Organized Ball permitted Eddie Plank to join the Federal league.
"When Anderson stole second with the bases full.
"When Vincent Campbell and Harden of the Braves jumped to the Federal league and lost their share of the world series money.
"When Mathewson grooved a ball for 'Home Run' Baker to hit the series, which the latter knocked into the right field bleachers for a home run.
"When the Athletic management refused to permit the Philadelphia newspapers to place the scores on their bulletin board.
"When Jack Chesbro of the Yankees pitched a game in the rain and permanently disabled his pitching arm.
"When Cy Seymour ignored Mathewson's request to play 'for Joe Tinker and the latter knocked a three bagger over his head and won the deciding game for the National league pennant.
"When Jim Thorpe played professional ball as a minor league under an assumed name and was discovered and suspended for life.
"When Walter Johnson returned that $20,000 cheque to the Chicago Federals.
"When O'Mara, the Brooklyn shortstop, refused to play 'for Joe Tinker and three of his teammates tried to drag him down to first base.
"When Connie Mack refused to sell 'Home Run' Baker to the Yankees.
"When Charles Griffith refused to sign Eddie Collins for the Yankees.
"When Weeghtman, of Chicago, handed out free passes in his lunch rooms for admission to the Chicago grounds.

PHILLIES' SAD RECORD
Seldom in Long Career Have They Stayed Near the Top
The history of the Phillies clubs of bygone days is replete with shattered dreams. Time and again the Phillies have started off in the spring at a whitened clip and raised high the hopes of their adherents. And then came the inevitable crash. Then came a change after many years. The 1915 Phillies started along at the same clip—but it reversed things during the summer by maintaining that clip; by meeting every attack and beating it back; by playing better baseball day in and day out than was shown by any other club in the old league.
Bob Ferguson was the first manager of the Phillies. His 1883 club finished last. The next year he was supplanted by Harry Wright, who remained as manager until the 1893 season. Over his ten-year stretch the best any of Wright's teams did was to land in third place. Bob Allen finished out his 1895 season as manager but early in 1894 Wright came back. He lasted only half the season. Arthur Irwin succeeded him as manager and that 1894 outfit finished third. In 1895 Irwin again was manager. His team finished third. Billy Nash took up the job of managing the Phillies in 1896 and quit. Then in 1897 George Stallings took a whirl, finished tenth in his twelve-month league, and quit in the summer of 1898. William Shethen succeeded Stallings and lingered around as manager until 1902. In 1902 Shethen brought his club home in second place.
"Chief" Zimmer, the old catcher, was the Phillies manager in 1903, and Hugh Duffy in 1904-05-06. In 1907-08-09 Billy Murray was manager. He was succeeded in 1909 by Charley Doolin. The red-headed catcher was jugged in 1910 and Moran landed the job.

Hardening of the Arteries
An Interesting Explanation of How This Dreaded Condition is Brought About.

You take out the garden hose in the spring, turn on the water, and if the rubber has got hard and brittle the tubing bursts and water spurts out in all directions.
The arteries of the human body may be likened to small rubber pipes, which go everywhere through the body and carry blood to the hands and feet, as well as to the nerves, muscles and vital organs. They carry all the blood in the human system, and if this blood is burdened with the poisons left over when the liver and kidneys are not properly performing their filtering work, these poisons form a deposit on the inside walls of the arteries.
The deposit thus formed gradually thickens and hardens the walls of the arteries. The tiny blood vessels of the liver are affected, and thence comes that fatal disease—cirrhosis of the liver. The cells of the kidneys become starved for want of blood, and Bright's disease gets its start.
In health the arteries have the elasticity of rubber, and expand, contract or elongate, as required by the demands of the blood pressure. Hardened, the arteries are like so much brittle rubber tubing. The blood pressure comes on, the tubing bursts, and the resulting blood clot on the brain causes apoplexy.

The Last Resort.
Pat's one trouble was that he could not wake up in the morning. His landlady had tried every device she could think of, but even the most determined of alarm clocks had no effect on Pat's slumbers.
One day he returned home from his work with a larger paper print.
"There, now, Miss Jenny," said he triumphantly, "as I was unwrapped a huge bell, and what I've thought of that way!"
"Goodness, man!" exclaimed the surprised landlady. "What ever are you wanting with that great thing?"
As he tucked the bell under his arm and prepared to go upstairs, Pat replied, with a knowing grin:
"Sure, and I'm going to ring it at six o'clock every mornin', and wake myself up!"

Signs of Kidney Trouble.
In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders, later some dropsy, some rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these; Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the kidneys, liver and bowels will clear away the poisons and make you well again.
"I gave up smoking for you, said she. 'What did you give up for me?' 'Gave up the best fellows in the world,' said she. And thus silence reigned.
