We Have Just Opened OUR New Christmas Cards

Never did we have such a stock, and such a variety, and such value in Packets and Boxes of Christmas Cards. Most of the Packets and Boxes contain 12 Cards each and in each packet and box will be found one Card alone that will be worth all we charge for twelve. Come and see them or order now. You will be just in time to catch the Christmas mail for your friends on the other side. Send Christmas Greetings to the Boys at the Front, a card will convey your wish most appropriately. The need for immediate action will be apparent when we tell you that the end of November last year found us with our whole stock completely sold out, due to the fact that everybody has found that Dick's Christmas Cards are always the best value.

We would specially call your attention to our Autograph Greeting Cards. These are being sent this year instead of the Private Greeting Cards of former years. Most of them take the form of a deckled edge sheet of Note Paper, upon which is engraved or illuminated a Christmas wish. They are put up in boxes of six sheets or cards and six envelopes, of eight cards and eight envelopes, of ten cards and ten envelopes; and we have a range of 12 different designs at 20c., and a range of fifteen different designs at 40c. per box. We would advise you to see them at your earliest convenience, for although opened but a few days, they are selling rapidly.

You ought to see our Single Cards in Boxes. We have a wonderfully large stock of these, almost a thousand, and the variety is almost as great as the number. The prettiest Cards, the choicest designs, and the most appropriately expressed greetings, we have them at 10c., at 15c., at 20c., at 30c., at 40c., at 50c., at 60c., at 70c., at 80c., at $1.00, at $1.30, at $1.50 and at $2.00.

CHAPTER XXII.

"No, dearie. If I'd refused—and I did try to, God knows!—he'd have set the police on me. And there's no getting away nowadays without a fair start and wonderful luck. He'd only to drop a line to Scotland Yard, and the hue and cry would have been out; every port would have been watched, and I should have been lag-caught and sent back to finish my time. No; there was no help for it. But I made him swear that it was the only job he'd expect of me, that he'd let me go after it was done. I was afraid of him; but that wasn't all. As I said, I wanted to see my daughter. Why?—his hands clenched and his face worked—"I'd have gone through fire and water to see you. I did go through worse than that; I risked Portland and a life of hell in coming back."

He was silent for a moment or two, and sat gazing at the ground moodily, almost listlessly; then he lifted his great head.

"An' now I'll go again. I'll get out of the country. And I promise you, missie, you shan't see me any more. You're a great lady now. Was you visiting here, at this grand place, dearie?" he asked meekly, with a kind of wondering awe.

Diana was silent for a moment. She could not bring herself to tell him that she was—ah, no, she was not now!—had been engaged to marry Lord Dalesford.

"Yes," she said, her head bent. "That's all right; that's as it should be," he said with grotesque satisfaction. "You're a lady, every inch of you; you take after your mother, though, strange to say, you ain't like her in looks. You stay on here, just keep on as you've been going. There's plenty of money, and if there wasn't I could make some more. I've got the knack of it." He raised his head with a humble kind of pride. "I'll send you more, ever so much more—"

Diana turned to him with a gesture of despair.

"This money, ah, this money!" Suddenly: "Why did you not offer some to the man, the wretch—who who drove you back to crime?"

Garling shook his head. "It wouldn't have been of any use. He'd have bled me to death, and spent every penny. He'd have wanted to know how I got it, have learned where I'd been, have dug up the past, and found out about you. I'd rather work as his slave for the rest of my life than he should do that."

The simple statement went to Diana's heart; and she flung up her hands before her face, crying:

"Oh, what shall I do, what shall I do?"

"Just what I say, missie," he answered for her. "Go on as you've been going. No one will know. I'd rather have my tongue cut out—beg pardon, dearie; my rough way of speaking ain't fit for a lady to hear. No, no; don't you be afraid. I shall never ask to see you again—"

"But don't you see that—that," she said with suppressed anguish—"that my place is by your side? I am your daughter; and wherever her father is his child should be. I must go with you. Yes, I must go with you!"

He sprang to his feet, his arms outstretched, his rugged face working; then as, despite herself, she shrank back from him with a faint cry of terror, he stopped and let his arms fall, as he had let them fall once before.

"Don't you think that, Diana," he said quietly, "I'm an ignorant man, but I know better what's due to you than that. You come along and live with me! Why?—his voice grew hoarse—"you couldn't do it. It wouldn't be right. Why, I might be took at any moment. When I go to this man that's got the pull of me and tell him I've chucked the job—"

He stopped and shrugged his shoulders, significantly. "No, no! I'll go my way, and you'll go yours, missie. And if you give me a thought once and again, why, think of me as if I'd really died out there in the wilds. Think of me—not as you saw me last night, not as you see me now, but as the honest man as worked hard to scrape some money together for his little girl, to make a lady of her."

"Ah, don't you understand?" Diana cried with a choking sob. "It is because you worked for me, because you were driven to—to do this for my sake, that I cannot leave you."

He waved his hand and smiled grimly.

"It 'd break your heart," he said with the simplicity of insight and conviction. "You couldn't stand it. Every time you looked at me and heard me speak—no, no! From this moment we're standing here, I want to be as good as dead to you. That's just it—dead. As I ought to be. Why, I ain't fit to touch you; me drag you down to what I've sunk to! No, dearie, I'm bad, cruel bad, but I'm not as bad as that."

They stood in silence. During the whole, tragic interview he had been listening warily, and his eyes had scanned the wood with keen watchfulness. Now, as he heard a laborer whistling as he skirted the wood on his way to work, Garling drew himself up and looked at his watch.

"People beginning to get about," he said in a low voice. "I must be off. I'm going to walk through the lane to the junction. I can catch a train there. If no one goes to the safe or the window, nothing will be discovered till I'm clean out of the country. It's—its good-by, dearie. Good-by forever."

Duty called to Diana; but, as if he saw in her eyes the struggle that was going on within her, he shook his head.

"No, no; I go alone. I'm—I'm your father, and I tell you that—that I won't have you with me. Good-by!"

His hoarse voice broke as he turned away, and Diana went to him slowly, as if her limbs were leaden. "Good-by," she faltered. "If you wish—if you—"

"No," he said, understanding her. "No; I'm not fit to touch you, dearie, much less kiss you. Think—think—no, don't think of me. Try and forget!"

He was gone, and Diana sank down on the tree, overwhelmed with despair. What should she do? Whither should she turn to escape from—herself, from the self which had become loathsome, degraded?

To go back to the castle—to Vane—was impossible. Vane! She could think of him now. And the remembrance of his love, of his perfect, passionate love for her, his pride in her, was a torture almost too great to be borne.

He must never know the truth. The shame that made every vein in her body burn must not touch him. He must never see her again. Let him think what he would do of her, let him curse her as the most false, the most faithless of women; but he must not know how vile a creature he had nearly made his wife.

The daughter of a criminal! To think of it, to dwell upon it, meant madness. She must find relief in action or break down utterly, and so reveal the awful truth.

She looked at her watch. An hour, an hour of dreadful torture, had been spent; and time—time was so priceless. She tried to form some plan; but her only idea was one of instant flight; and, impelled by the terror of discovery, by the passionate desire to spare the man who loved her, she staggered to her feet and went gidily, uncertainly, through the wood toward the railway station.

As she went she tried to piece together the jumbled, hideous puzzle of her fate. She knew now the cause of her aunt's nervous apprehension, of her agitation when Mr. Fielding's first letter had come. She knew now why that astute lawyer had, with pitying consideration, slurred over the story of her father's career. Those remittances, the money that had come in the days of their poverty, had come from her father. And the vast fortune, some of which she had spent so lavishly, the immense sum which she knew the lawyers were settling upon Vane, all, all had come from that crime-stained hand, the hand of the common thief and burglar.

Her father! Half blinded she made her way, fighting, praying, for sufficient strength to carry her into hiding, to some place where she could be alone to cower under her shame and ease her broken heart.

There was no passenger at the little station; and the porter eyed her curiously as he touched his cap.

She turned away and bit her lip to bring back some color to it, and forced a smile, as she said:

"I am going to London on—on sudden business. Will you get me a ticket, please?"

The man got a ticket, told her that the train was overdue, and, looking round, asked for the luggage.

She told him that it would follow; and when the train drew up he put her in a first-class compartment, shut the door quietly and respectfully and stood by the window, in case she should have any further use for him.

It seemed to her as if the train would never move; but at last it left the station, and, leaning back, she shut her eyes that she might not see the turrets of the castle, the house which held the man she loved better than life itself; the man she was leaving forever.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Dalesford happened to breakfast alone that morning. Lady Selina always partook of an apology for that meal in bed, and Mabel and Bertie had scrambled through a hasty repast of fish, ham, and eggs, and the Scotchest of Scotch marmalade at eight o'clock, and had gone off fishing; fishing, because Lady Selina, while laying an embargo on the two young people walking or riding alone together, had forgotten to include angling!

Dalesford looked wistfully at the empty chair beside him as he took up his letters, then sighed with a thrill of satisfaction as he reflected that in a little while, a few short days, he would be entitled to take up his darling's breakfast, if she desired to have it in her room. A few short days! He looked before him musingly, his heart glowing within him at the thought. To have the right to be with her always; never to part again; to be able to call her whenever it pleased him, to gratify her every wish, to be able to say "my wife!"

And he had laughed at matrimony, had pitied the amorous husband! But then he had so much greater an excuse than most men; she was so beautiful, so sweet, so altogether to be desired. Why, there was not a man who did not envy him, not a man who knew him who did not consider him the luckiest man on earth. His pearl among women! He was glad she was resting; but he wondered whether she would be late in coming down, and he felt particularly lonely.

He had arranged to drive her to a distant part of the estate, to meet the factor and discuss with him a proposal to cut down some trees, and she was looking forward to a long morning with his beloved. Not many months ago Dalesford would not have dreamed of meeting the factor on business; but, as Mabel had said, love had wrought a marvelous change in him; he had caught from Diana a novel and surprising regard for small details, and the people on the estate were delighted at the interest which the young laird was showing in his future property.

When he had finished his breakfast, he lit a cigar and went down to the stables and ordered a dog-cart with Diana's favorite horse; a dog-cart, because it did not necessitate a groom; and he and Diana would be alone. He remained at the stables, looking at the horses and talking to the head man, for half-an-hour; as he returned to the house he met Janet coming down the stairs into the smaller hall. She had some lace, which she was going to clean, in her hands, and she dropped his lordship a little morning curtsy.

"Good morning, Janet," said Dalesford. "Is your mistress in her room still?"

Janet hesitated a moment, then she replied directly to the question. It was not her place to explain that Diana had been out, but had, as Janet thought, returned.

"Yes, my lord. She is asleep. That is, I knocked at the door and got no answer. My mistress did not have a very good night."

Dalesford looked anxiously into Janet's face.

The Second Son of the Kaiser.
Eitel Fritz, the second son of Kaiser Bill, on the day his elder brother got his first uniform, became particularly envious of it, and during breakfast he kept on saying that he too wanted a pretty suit of clothes. When the Emperor would not listen, the little fellow became obstreperous, shouting, "But I want a uniform."
To cure him of this, the Emperor sent him in "arrest," the only convenient place at the moment being the large dining-room table, under which he was told to crawl. After a time, he was bidden to come out again, which he did, but with all his clothes removed excepting his under garments.
To the question what he meant by such conduct, he made reply: "If I can't have a uniform, I don't want any other clothes either."
There is no disputing the fact there is something fascinating about a military uniform, especially if it has just been Dry Cleaned at Kelly and Mack.

Last night there was a capital house at Rossley's. Kelly and Mack, as usual had the house in roars. Their sketch is more than funny. The pictures were very fine and up to the high class shown at Rossley's. Mrs. Rossley is rehearsing her pantomime troupe twice daily and has quite a few of our best dress and costume makers at work on the wardrobe. The story of the pantomime is written entirely by Mrs. Rossley. It is very ingenious, pretty and novel and altogether different to any of the other pantomimes. The special songs were written for this production, and are all grand and never heard anywhere else before.

THIRD ANNUAL CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME.

An Opportunity for Household Economy

The great advance in price of cream of tartar—which is derived from grapes—due to inability to care for and market the grape crop in the European countries now at war, can be made advantageous to housewives.

Housekeepers will find it more economical and much more satisfactory to use Royal Baking Powder, which is made from highly refined, pure cream of tartar. First, because the price of Royal has not been changed and it will do perfect work; second, because food made with Royal Baking Powder will be finer and more palatable; and finally, because it insures the absence of all danger from alum or similar unwholesome products.

The old-fashioned custom of buying cream of tartar and mixing it with soda, or using sour milk, may be discarded with profit. The high cost and scarcity of cream of tartar furnishes a temptation to unscrupulous dealers to substitute an adulterated product, which may be either lime phosphates or alum, that will change the baking strength and may spoil the food.

Sealing Commission.

(Thursday, Dec. 3.)

Proceedings before the Commission were resumed at 3 o'clock yesterday, when Capt. A. Kean, who commanded the Stephano at the ice last spring, was examined. The purpose of Capt. Kean's evidence at this sitting was to explain the chart that had formed part of the evidence taken before the Seward Commission. Capt. Kean being sworn and examined by the Minister of Justice, said he had prepared a plan showing the position of the ships on March 31st last. Witness then explained that the chart was not critically correct, but rather a sketch to be used for purposes of illustration. The position of the Newfoundland was not correctly indicated by the chart. Capt. Kean then pointed out to the commission the correct position of the Newfoundland from the Stephano, when he dropped her crew. Witness also indicated the position of other ships at the same time. The Newfoundland bore about S.E. by S. from the Stephano. The Newfoundland's crew boarded the Stephano about 11.20 on the morning of March 31st. The Newfoundland was jammed, and to the knowledge of witness, the ice was not moving. After getting the Newfoundland's crew on board, witness directed his ship to a point about south, during which time the Newfoundland was visible, and George Tuff was directed to set his course accordingly. Witness judged his ship had gone two miles, and thought the Newfoundland was about three and one-half miles from where her crew was dropped. Capt. Kean's evidence in chief will be taken at a later date.

George Tuff (continued), examined by Dr. Lloyd, detailed his conversation with Capt. Kean when the Newfoundland's crew were dropped. Witness was directed to go in a S.W. direction, passed carcasses, and judged by the wind that he was going S.W. Asked as to suggestions for averting a future similar disaster, witness said better protection was needed for the men, who might run less risk. Witness would first do away with panning as conducted at present. Seals should be hauled to the ship from say, half a mile. Four master watches might afterwards be allowed to go with their men 2 1/4 miles from the ship and haul seals to one flag if it was closer than their ship. Panning must be done, but under modified conditions, as any other course will be more than the men can stand. Witness thought men should not be permitted to go more than 2 1/4 miles from the ship to haul or pan seals. Witness had no suggestion as to provision for food when on ice, except that he usually provided himself with sufficient food in case he was kept out over night, and an extra pair of socks. He thought the men should look after themselves better than they do. Crews can get all the food they want, and if it is their own fault if they don't have it. Witness thought tents or kettles and such like were cumbersome and impracticable. The duties of master watches were fully outlined to the commission, as known by the witness. As to lifeboats, in the past, witness regarded the provision absolutely useless, the boats were unfit. He thought sufficient lifeboats in good condition should be carried, but did not profess to have expert knowledge. Dories were better than the punts used. Witness had been out on ice by orders of the captain when men were frostbitten and suffered severely. He thought something should be done to prevent this, but could offer no practical suggestions. He thought there was danger in overloading ships, especially in bringing seals on deck. In his experience, proper precaution is to take care as to stowing the seals on board. Witness thought men should undergo medical examination before proceeding to the sealfishery, as many went who were physically unfit for such work. The men who were most active were those who came out of the disaster best. In answer to Mr. Justice Johnson, witness did not know how to improve the condition of the men in the wooden ships; he had never been on the steel ships. While there were many discomforts, he did not think the health of the men was endangered. The men get as good food or better on board as at home, and it is their own fault if they go short, in most cases.

Sidney Jones, sworn, examined by Dr. Lloyd, deposed that he was a master watch on the Newfoundland last spring. Had been 13 springs to the ice. On Monday, March 30th, heard the Stephano signalled to the Newfoundland that there were seals about. Next morning it was fine, our ship was jammed, and our crew left about 7 a.m. The ice was bad for travelling. On the way to the Stephano about 30 of our men went back to our ship, saying it was a long walk with nothing ahead. He heard no talk about bad weather at this time, 10 o'clock, but he expected it. Reaching the Stephano it was pecking snow and getting worse all the time. Was on the Stephano about 15 minutes; the ship was moving while they were on board, he heard S.W., but did not know. About 1 p.m. it was decided to travel towards the Newfoundland, as it was snowing fast, and witness set the course E.S.E., which took them to the path they came out over in the morning. The path was recognized by flag poles, and could have been no other. This was near about 3 p.m. The path was kept until nearly dark when it was lost, covered over with snow. Witness heard a whistle at 4.30 and again at 4.45, travelling along the path all the while, the course was set and the whistle bore about S.S.E. When the men stopped, witness estimated the Newfoundland was about a mile away. The wind was blowing strong, increasing all the time, but not enough to deaden the whistle. When the men went to the Stephano, witness thought they would stay there all night, as if any work was to be done, they could not get back to their own ship. No objections were heard from anyone as to leaving the Stephano because of storm. Throughout Tuesday night the weather grew continually colder, with wind veering round to westward. In the morning the storm was furious, until towards the afternoon the weather cleared, but it was intensely cold. Saw the Newfoundland late in the evening of Wednesday, and judged her to be over five miles away. The wheeling ice may account for her being so much further away on Wednesday than on Tuesday. Witness was of opinion that panning seals was more dangerous for the men than hauling. He thought 3 miles was far enough for men to be sent from a ship on the ice, though the condition of the ice would of course, make a difference. He regarded dependence upon other ships as a dangerous practice. The crew of the Newfoundland seemed to be fairly well clothed. The boats for the most part are not fit to go any distance in. The lifeboats were fairly good; dories were much better than punts. He thought four lifeboats might be easily carried.

The Commission meets again this afternoon.

FRIDAY, Dec. 4th, 1914.

"Hurrah, Belgium."

With such a greeting to the brave Belgians, the Italian Commons closed their first sitting. It was a gallant greeting to a people with whom they are in hearty sympathy. Some of them earlier in the sitting when reference was made to the aspiration of Italy, pointed the reference by cries of Triente and Trieste, the unredeemed part of Italy which Austria still holds. These are strong indications of the feelings which move the Italian people. They have not forgotten the days of Austrian domination, nor do they forget that part of old Italy is still held by Austria, and when it became a question of Germany waging war against England and making an aggressive and utterly unjustifiable attack on the Belgians, with whom Germany had not a shadow of a quarrel, they declined to be parties to an aggressive war, although they were parties with Germany and Austria to the Triple Alliance. They stated that that Alliance placed them under no obligation to wage an aggressive war, and they refused to do so. The invasion of Belgium was the biggest blunder of the Kaiser, as it brought Britain into the war and kept Italy out of it. The Mediterranean in a short time became a safe sea for the transport of French Colonial troops to the Western front, and thereby enabled France to put up a better fight. Italy assumed an attitude of neutrality, but began immediately to strengthen her forces and to put herself on a war footing, and her neutrality has become one of armed neutrality. She is armed to protect her new possession in Tripoli against the possibility of a Holy War called by the Sultan of Turkey. Her interest are at one with those of Britain in Egypt. Moreover, she has not forgotten the coup which enabled Austria to take over Bosnia and Herzegovina, and she is jealous of an extension of the power of Austria in the Balkan peninsula. The arming of Italy has only the meaning of being in a position to insist on respect for Italian interest against Austria and Turkey, but she has no wish to be involved in a costly war, if she can protect her interests without war. But her sympathies are not with Austria. They are not with Turkey. They are not with Prussian militarism which is waging a lun-like war in Belgium and France. But these sympathies are not sufficient it appears to induce her to declare war in their aid. She apparently will not declare war unless Germany, Austria or Turkey take some hostile step against her.

AUSTRALIA'S WAR EXPENSES.
SYDNEY, Australia, To-day.
In a budget speech, the Governor estimates Australia's expenses in connection with war at $58,000,000 for the present year. The speech expresses the hope that the day is not far distant when the sister Dominion of New Zealand, while maintaining her identity unimpaired, will be more closely associated with Australia.

RUSSIANS NEAR CRACOW.
LONDON, To-day.
Petrograd despatch to the Morning Post says, the news that Russian troops have taken Wieliczka, only 3 miles from the outer fortifications of Cracow, seems to indicate that there is something wrong with the defence of that fortress as Wieliczka (correct) should be well within range of the smaller armaments of a first class fortress. Forty prisoners, among others taken by the Cossacks at Czestochowa, were found to be women in soldiers uniform.

ITALIAN PARLIAMENT GREETES GALLANT BELGIUM.
ROME, To-day.
The Italian Parliament opened yesterday. The Premier made a statement in which he explained the situation of Italy and advised that she maintain her attitude of loyal but watchful and armed neutrality. When the Premier alluded to what he termed the just aspirations of Italy, the whole extreme Left arose crying: "Viva Trent, Viva Trieste." Spectators in the Tribunes joined in the demonstration. As the session was about to adjourn, Deputy Commandant said that he wished to ask the Chamber to send greetings to heroic and unfortunate Belgium. The whole Chamber including President, Ministers and people in the tribunes arose and shouted: "Hurrah Belgium."

Patriotic Concert at Colliers.

On Friday night, Nov. 27th, a concert was held at Colliers, under the auspices of Mr. James P. Carroll, Principal of the High School. The troupe, beside Mr. Carroll, consisted of Mr. Charles Poole, teacher of Colliers, Riverhead school; Misses Nellie Flynn, Maud Ryan and Mary Cole; Masters Laurence Whelan and Richard Conway, and the advanced pupils of Collier's School. Perhaps the most fascinating part was the rendition of the farce, "Difficulties in Courtship" in which Mr. Carroll played the role of "Snobby" to the intense amusement of his listeners, and in which Mr. Poole was equally effective in the part of "Jones." Masters Whelan and Conway, and the Misses Glaneys were accomplished in the gestures and recitations necessary for their difficult selections. Miss Maud Ryan sang "On the Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and "Nora McNamara" in each of which she surpassed her former efforts. The singing of Miss Flynn was worthy of special praise. The entertainment netted the sum of fifty dollars which will be forwarded to the Patriotic Fund in due time. The teachers Messrs. Carroll, Poole and the troupe deserve congratulations.—C.

OF BRITISH SOLDIER IN A LETTER FROM THE FRONT.

Manchester, Eng., Nov. 18.—The Manchester Guardian quotes the following passage from a soldier's letter as "another evidence of the cheerful fatalism of the Britisher":

Little Things and Big Results.

The disproportionate bigness of little things is a fact which every now and then strikes me with new interest. A few weeks ago I went house hunting with some friends. We traversed many miles of country with our eyes keen to observe houses of all kinds. We constantly commented on various styles of architecture and pointed out attractive places to each other. As the day wore on I was struck with the fact that the majority of places which attracted us, the places which stood out from the rest, did so not by reason of expense or striking architecture, but simply because they had certain little touches.

For instance, two white houses stood side by side. They were very similar in their general lines, but one had a little arch of green lattice work at the side door with a rambler rose climbing over it. I don't see how it could have cost more than $25, yet it gave the house a pretty little air of distinction, and while its neighbour went entirely unnoticed, that house was immediately pointed out as an attractive residence.

Again, someone said, "What a darling little place." I looked and saw a little green house, not a bit more striking in itself than dozens we had passed without comment, but at each window was a window box filled with bright colored flowers and gracefully pendant green things.

Not many of us can afford to build houses that will be distinctive in a large way, but there are few of us who cannot, if we take thought and time, make our homes attractive and appealing by the little individual touches.

Tastefully filled window boxes, a pretty group of shrubbery, a rose vine clambering over a porch, a simply but tastefully furnished verandah with a bowl of fresh flowers on a low table, these are the things that make one turn to look again at a house just as often as beautiful architecture.

Again, painstaking care to keep a place trim and in reasonably good condition, is a very big little factor in the impression it gives. It is almost impossible for a freshly painted house, with well trimmed lawns and neatly kept flower garden to look wholly unattractive.

I have been speaking mostly of small places. The large place is by no means independent of the big little things. There is a country place near the town where I spent my summer which is known all over the country for one distinctive little feature which its owner has played up. The whole place is enclosed in a white fence of a peculiar pattern, and on every foot of these white fences grow crimson ramblers. The picture produced in the rose season is one which no one who sees it will easily forget. There may be many finer larger estates in the country than this, but this one little idea of its owner has given it a distinction that has helped to make it famous.

Great Record of Belgian Soldier.

Paris, Nov. 23.—No Belgian soldier is receiving more acclaim in the French press than Emile Sapin, who at the age of 22, has received the decoration of the Order of Leopold and the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

LeMartin confessed it could not believe all the brilliant exploits attributed to the young man, who was a private when war was declared, and who was made a corporal only a month ago, but that it has investigated through inquiries not only of Sapin himself, who is now in a Cherbourg Hospital, but also of many others.

First—During the siege of Liege, Sapin was in the fort of Loncin. Climbing a tree, and concealed by its leaves, he killed an entire battery of heavy artillery, said to number forty-two men. It is claimed that the commanding officer of this battery reached the foot of the tree revolver in hand, only to fall, as the rest had fallen, from a bullet sent out of Sapin's rifle.

Second—Two weeks later, he personally captured the flag of a regiment of Hussars, whose Colonel he also shot.

Third—Near Louvain, sent out in a company of six other men, Sapin succeeded in capturing forty soldiers, including one officer.

Just how it has proof of such achievements LeMartin does not say but it adds that General Loe, of the Belgian army, and two Cabinet Ministers have personally gone to Cherbourg to congratulate Sapin, who is not dangerously wounded.

Germans Terrorized

By New British Gun, which creates great havoc.

London, Nov. 21.—The Germans have lately stumbled across a new weapon, which has terrorized their rank and file and non-plussed their generals. It is a new British gun. These guns have razed whole forests to the ground, and the Germans have, therefore, shown a disposition not to trench themselves too systematically in the thick woods around Epreux Lille and Labassee.

In places where the troops have advanced, corpses, battered and mangled by fallen trees and branches have been found in the German trenches. So terrific have the shells been that over a score of the 5,000 prisoners captured in a week have been almost insane. An officer declared that they were paralyzed with fright and were glad to surrender.

The Germans have no effective counter weapon to this big new English gun.

A Spinner of Yarns.

My heart is sore when Binks, the bore, sits down beside my table, and hems and haws, and wags his jaws, and starts to tell a fable. His yarns are old and blue with mould—old Father Noah span them, till Ham and Shem got tired of them, and told their dad to can them. Old Binks comes in, with sickly grin, when I have tasks unending, and spels and yawns and never stops till night's shades are descending. No sort of hint will make him sprint, or quit his dreamy drooling; and when I say, "Oh, chee, go 'way," he thinks I'm only fooling. The laws correct—they don't protect the busy, hustling fellows, who have to stand, all o'er the land, this plague of story tellers. If one should balk, and kick and knock in righteous ire and 'dudgeon, he'll gain repute as early brute, as cranky, sour curmudgeon. It is a crime to waste the time of busy friends and neighbours, to seek the tents of tolling gents and interrupt their labors. When you begin a yarn to spin, you'll see the folks snort and snifle; the newest tale is old and stale, and all your yarns are piffle.

Winter Quarters.

By GEORGE FITCH,

Author of "At Good Old Swash."

The armies of Europe are now preparing for the tedious job of waiting for the spring campaigns.

War campaigns do not thrive in the winter. Either the ground is too soft to hold up the forty-five ton firearms or it is too hard to allow graves to be dug in it with the necessary ease and haste. It is also hard to keep the attention of the soldier on the enemy when he is suffering from frostbite, chilblains and influenza. For these reasons hostilities diminish as cold weather sets in and the soldiers settle down comfortably in winter quarters.

Winter quarters consist of tents, caves, tin houses, log huts, trenches with roofs over them, straw piles hollowed out and, in fact, anything that will turn a north wind slightly aside. Living in army quarters during the winter is as big a feat as keeping house in a Nebraska corn crib in January. When an army has had to retreat a few times during the winter and has had to waste bullets, the cold weather does its work for it very effectively. Doing sentry duty half a mile from a stove during a February night on the Russian frontier is about as fatal as charging a machine gun. Many an angry corporal will try to awaken a motionless sentry this winter in order to shoot him, only to discover that the said sentry is not sleeping, but has been frozen stiff at his post of duty.

However, commerce must thrive and national jealousies and ambitions must be preserved.

The winter quarters did more damage in the American revolution than the British army did during the famous season at Valley Forge, where the American patriots lived on parched corn and warmed themselves by kicking trees with their bare feet, the spark of American independence flickered down so low that one good charge of canister would have blown it out. However, the American republic was saved by another set of winter quarters. These were in Philadelphia and were so comfortable that the British army could not tear itself away from them long enough to do a little winter campaigning.

Thus we should give all honor to Philadelphia. She is slow, but she saved the nation by keeping the British soldier warm.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS TO GARRI-SON AT FORT GEORGE, SCOT-LAND.
SALISBURY PLAINS, To-day.
 Newfoundland Contingent has been ordered to Fort George, Inverness,
 Scotland, to do garrison duty there.
 Two hundred Canadian horses have been stolen from the lines. Twenty thousand Canadian troops are still under canvas, but it is expected that all will be housed in huts by Christmas. One thousand men are engaged daily in the construction of a railway to serve the needs of the camps. In the severe gale of Wednesday night that swept over the greater part of the country, hundreds of tents of the Canadian contingent were blown down.

Cabman Sues Agent.
SCENE AT THE CLOSE.
 The attention of the Magistrate's Court was occupied the greater part of this forenoon in the hearing of a case between a cabman named Crotty,
 the plaintiff, and a motor engine agent, the defendant. The former sued the latter for more than $4 for driving him to Torbay as he was engaged from ten o'clock in the morning till eleven at night though the defendant, who was represented by a K.C., gave evidence showing that a contract had been entered into whereby he was to drive the defendant and his assistant for as long as they wished to keep him each day. The plaintiff was not represented and did not make his position explained, except emphasizing the impossibility of having a horse and Victoria on the go constantly morning, noon and night, all for $4, owing to the recent advance in the price of horse food. However, His Honor
 Judge Knight gave judgment for $4.
 When the court adjourned a scene was created. When the defendant went to pay the cabman the $4 he added "It's sending you to the Penitentiary I should be doing, for obtaining money under false pretences. One who heard the remark, retorted,
 "Say, old man, when were you initiated as Judge around here?" At this juncture the motor man became furious and the interference of Sergeant O'Riordan put an end to the proceedings.

Xmas Comforts
for our Soldiers.
 Christmas comforts for our soldiers
 The first thought of each of us when Christmas is considered this year must be for our soldiers and sailors, both those who have been wounded in the cause of the British Empire and of freedom; and those who are still bearing the burden and heat of the day.
 Many people have been led to believe that the extraordinary rush of help given in the early days of the war led to a surfeit, and that efforts can be relaxed or diverted to other channels. Indeed, this must be a prevailing notion, and a very erroneous one, in many quarters, or it could hardly happen that to-day the store of absolutely necessary garments held by the St. John Ambulance Society is so sorely depleted as to amount almost to emptiness where some most needed garments are concerned. Yet such is the case, so that individual workers or the organizers of working parties can rest assured that all the efforts they can make between now and Christmas will be meeting, not an indefinite and illusive idea, but a very pressing need.

THE CARDIGAN FUND.
 A committee of gentlemen has been formed in England consisting of Colonel Sir Edward Ward, Sir William MacGregor and Hon. Edgar Bowring, to look after the welfare of our First Newfoundland Regiment. These gentlemen went down to Salisbury Plain the other day to pay him a visit and see if they were in need of anything; and they reported to us that the Regiment was badly in need of socks and other warm woollen comforts, mentioning Cardigan Jackets, Mufflers, Mittens and Helmets. We at once cabled to the St. John Ambulance requesting them to forward at once to Salisbury Plain, from our first shipment, any articles required by the Regiment and we have received an answer to say they had received all that they required.
 It is not generally known in Newfoundland that the Army Council at Home has undertaken to provide all the Regulation requirements of our men from the date of their landing in England, except their pay which is still provided by the Newfoundland Government. The Regulation clothing is accordingly provided by the War Department but the men look to us to keep them in comforts which are not included in the Regulation equipment.
 Thus, they wear out socks more rapidly than the Regulations provide for,
 and we ought therefore to provide them with extra pairs from time to time according as the committee in England may think necessary; and this is especially desirable during the wet season so that the men may have a dry pair to change into when off duty. Moreover, the Regulations do not include warm woollen underclothing which is provided for all the battalions by Committees of the ladies interested in each Regiment.
 Our Association have thought that Cardigan Jackets would make a nice
 Christmas Gift to send from the old Colony, so we are having them made at the factory and we now invite all interested in this movement to assist the Cardigan Fund. Any relative or friend may have a Cardigan sent in their own name on payment of $2.00 enclosed, with a card or letter to be attached with the name of the man it is for.

Drill Commences
At the Armouries.
 The Volunteers presented themselves at the Armouries for drill last night, Capt. R. Goodridge and Lieut.
 Ayre being in charge at the C. L. B.
 Armoury, Capt. O'Grady at the C. C.
 C. Armoury and Capt. McKay and Instructor Moore at the Highlanders.
 The preliminary physical exercises were gone through. Instructor Moore who has had over twenty years experience in the army, speaks highly of the new volunteers, and says that on the whole they are as robust
 as those of the First Contingent.
 At the different armouries the units were divided into sections according to their knowledge of drill. Much valuable assistance was given by the officers of the Brigades, who put the recruits through suitable exercises.

Reserve Force
Committee.
INTERVIEW PREMIER.
 Sir Joseph Outerbridge and Mr. W.
 J. Higgins, representing the Reserve Force Committee as Chairman and Secretary respectively, waited on the Premier yesterday afternoon. Having informed him of the decision arrived at on Wednesday night, they requested that the Government sanction the enlistment of 500 men, who are to be placed under pay as soon as they pass
 the necessary medical examinations and begin drill immediately, continuing steadily until ready to leave for England. In reply the Premier stated he would convene a meeting of the Executive as soon as possible and lay the proposal before them, and that he hoped to give them a reply at an early date. It is thought that the matter of placing the volunteers under pay upon enlistment would encourage recruiting for the outposts.

Won't Make
Another Trip.
 Messrs. Harvey and Company have received word that the S. S. Morwen-na left Charlottetown at nine o'clock
 last night for this port via Sydney, bringing a full cargo of produce principally a stock of poultry for the Christmas season. So far as is known now the Morwenna will not make another trip to the Islands this year.

The Ventures.
 The S. S. Adventure was supposed to leave Sydney last night for here.
 She is returning from the Mediterranean.
 No word of the Bonaventure leaving Naples for this port has yet been received, though she arrived there on Monday last.
 The S. S. Bellaventure is at Lewisporte discharging coal. It is likely she will be engaged with the Dominion Coal Company until the end of the year.

Russian Official.
PETROGRAD, Dec. 3.—(Official.)
 Fighting continues in certain districts along the front, in the region of Lowitz. Important forces of the enemy, chiefly troops transported in November from the German west front, opened the offensive on Dec. 2 in the region of Lontomerak and Szeserow. On the rest of the front on the left bank of the Vistula there is no modification in the situation.
 Beyond the Carpathians our troops have captured 8 officers, 1,200 men
 and six machine guns.

Got Leg Crushed.
 While engaged discharging coal from the s.s. Bellaventure at Bell Island on Tuesday last, a man named Michael Dwyer got his leg caught between two loaded cars and badly crushed. The member was almost torn from the man's body, the flesh being lacerated. Dwyer has been in a weak condition since the accident and is being attended by Dr. Lynch.

1,600,000 Russians

Are Proceeding Unmolested Towards Cracow—Russian Officer Explains German Success in Poland.

The Hague, November 19.—A Russian staff officer, passing through here has this to say as to the cause of the present German success in Poland:

"The Russian army in Poland maintains three times as many cavalrymen as the Germans. This cavalry swarmed after the retreating Germans and when the Germans suddenly stopped to pieces like migrating birds flying against a rock.

Meanwhile the main body of the Russians, 1,600,000 men, whose absolute purpose is to beat the Austrians decisively, is proceeding unmolested to attack Cracow, leaving a smaller detachment to besiege Przemysl. "Thereafter," the officer concluded, "the Russians do not intend to attempt to cross the Carpathians, but following the Oder River will make their main attack on Germany by way of Oppeln, Breslau and Glogau."

Too Much Hospitality.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Too much British hospitality and too much the water taken by some of the Canadian troops while on leave from camp in London or elsewhere has resulted in fifteen privates being dismissed from the ranks. Word to this effect was received at Ottawa yesterday and the pay of the men has been stopped by the Militia Department. It is also stated that in a few cases Lieutenants have been reduced in rank to Sergeants for the same cause.

General Alderson gives the following message to London Journalists:

"Ask the public to stop treating the Canadian soldiers, or I must stop giving them passes. This is the sequel to certain unpleasant scenes in London streets, one or two of which ended in the police courts."

Have You an Itchy Spot?

Somewhere on your body? If so, attend to it at once. In Eczema—and itchy spots, whether dry and scurfy, or moist and inclined to "weep," are generally eczematous—delays are foolish, allowing the disease to spread and affect more of the good skin. Your best chance for a cure is to use Zylex, which will give almost instant relief, and if used in the earlier stages of the trouble will almost certainly bring a cure, and in any event will greatly ameliorate the trouble. Ask your druggist about it. Price 50c a box. Zylex Soap, 25c a cake. ZYLEX, London.

Explains Report of Big Russian Warship Mined.

New York, Nov. 28.—Trapped by a "planted" fake story stating that the Russian battleship Flaba has been "blown up" with a loss of about 450 lives," H. L. Linder, a telegraph operator in the office of the New York Globe, was arrested yesterday on the complaint of the Associated Press.

It was charged that Linder sent the fake bulletin to the New York News Bureau, a ticker agency. This agency delivers its service to other newspapers and press association offices in New York.

When Linder was arraigned before Magistrate House, the case was continued until December 1, and Linder's bail was fixed at $5,000. Attorney John K. Clark, for the complainant, said: "I suggest that $5,000 is not a bit too much bail. This is a serious case. It is unique. Linder may not be the chief culprit. He has made a full statement but he may have more to tell us later."

L. O. A. Meeting.

Last night the annual meeting of Leeming Lodge, No. 54, L. O. A., took place at Victoria Hall. Major Cave, W.M., presided, and there was a large attendance, including several Grand Masters. The reports submitted showed that the finances of the institution were in a healthy state, the lodge, including the hall and effects, having large assets and practically no liabilities. The report of the Trustees showed that after paying for extensive repairs effected, there was a large balance on hand. Equally favourable was the benevolent report.

Provincial Grand Master Bro. Hon. R. A. Squires then conducted the election of officers, which resulted as follows:— W.M.—Bro. W. H. Cave. D.M.—Bro. H. V. Hutchings. Chaplain—Bro. Rev. H. Royle. Rec. Sec.—Bro. Geo. Rabbitts. Fin. Sec.—Bro. W. K. Mercer. Treasurer—Bro. J. C. Puddister. 1st Lecturer—Bro. T. Noseworthy. 2nd Lecturer—Bro. O. Spence. D. of C.—Bro. John Snelgrove. Committeemen—Bro. Geo. Reid, Herbert Fry, Az. Piercey, Fred Noseworthy, Stephen Thisle.

The Benevolent and Trustee Committees were re-elected while Bro. M. Puddister was added to the Trustee Board. Bro. Dr. W. Roberts was elected as Hon. Surgeon.

On next Thursday night the installation of officers will be held. Recently the members of the lodge had the pleasure of listening to some excellent and interesting addresses on the war situation, which subject the members are becoming so much concerned over that it was decided to have a series of patriotic meetings with special speakers. The first meeting will be held next Thursday evening and all Orange brethren will be invited. The speakers will be Bro. Rev. H. Royle and Bro. H. E. Cowan. A great many members of the Lodge went with the First Newfoundland Regiment and some are in the Naval Reserve, while a goodly number have also signified their intention of going with the Second Contingent. The Lodge is giving all these members a Christmas gift as a memento.

Doctors and Gas Fires

In an article which recently appeared in the London "Evening News," Mr. W. G. Faulkner stated: "In making my inquiries I discovered one significant fact. This was that one company—the Gas Light and Coke Company—had among their consumers 2,500 doctors who had gas fires installed in their houses, some as many as ten or a dozen; that 1,500 of these doctors had become users of gas during the past three years; and that not one had ever given them up." Professor C. V. Boys, F.R.S., says, in the "Standard": "Sentiment and inertia are the only obstacles against the general adoption of gas fires and cooking appliances. Wonderful strides have been made, in spite of deep-rooted prejudice. A gas fire, burning with a blue, is an admirable agent for heating a room; and as a scientist, I fail to understand how such a gas fire dries the air in a room more than any other fire."—Nov 17, 14

To-day's Show at the Crescent.

"The Evil Power" is a wonderful gripping drama in a class by itself. It is produced by the Rex Photo Play Company and shows what power a man can wield by using hypnotism. Robert Leonard to-day's greatest movie actor features in this great two reel production.

"Slim Gets the Reward" is one of the Slim Comedy series, a lively western story with all the Frontier Comedy Company.

"The Great Jewel 'Robbery'" is a big comedy hit; the Powers Company who produce this are favourites in subjects of this kind.

The usual extra pictures at the Saturday Matinee. The Crescent will open next week with the biggest and best two reel feature they have ever shown, "A Stolen Identity," Edwin August, the great actor, features in this drama.

That Terrible Fatigue Can Be Overcome

A Simple Home Remedy Now Cures Lack of Energy Loss of Ambition and a Feeling of "Don't-Care."

Successful in Nearly Every Case. That miserable nervousness and half-sick tired-all-the-time condition is due nine cases in ten to a clogged-up system. You grow irritable and despondent you lack ambition, energy seems all gone. Surest road to health is by the frequent use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they will make you feel like new all over in a short time. Writing from his home in Barcelona, Mr. Frederick G. Mayer states: "I think no one ever suffered as severely as I did for nearly six months. So many serious symptoms were developing as a consequence of this evil condition of my system that I realized I must find a remedy. The strong pills of various kinds I tried seemed after their first effects were over to make me far worse and I did not know which way to turn for relief. I saw Dr. Hamilton's Pills advertised and the first box used satisfied me. I found a true remedy. Instead of griping with undue activity, Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted as naturally as if physic had not been taken. I never had to increase the dose and, indeed, within a month I reduced it, and when the system finally acted of its own accord as a result of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I took a dose twice a week only, just to make sure the old conditions would not come back." No other remedy cures constipation and biliousness so easily or safely as Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are an ideal family remedy for all diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels. Sold in 25c. boxes, five for $1.00, all druggists and storekeepers or The Carrarozzo Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

BOTHA CAPTURED DE WET.
LONDON, Dec. 3.
The Governor, Newfoundland; The French Government reports progress in several directions. The Russian General Staff reports comparatively calm on all fronts, but that violent German attacks upon positions, north of Lodz, had been repulsed. The Russians have entered Wlitzka, eight miles from Cracow. General Christian De Wet has been taken prisoner with the balance of his force. The Australian and New Zealand contingents have disembarked in Egypt to assist in defence and to complete their training there. When the training is completed, they will proceed direct to the front, to fight alongside of the other British troops in Europe.

KRUPP WORKS BOMBARDED.
LONDON, Dec. 3.
A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company quotes a message from Berlin, to the effect that the Krupp factory at Essen, Germany, was bombarded yesterday by an aeroplane. It is said that bombs were dropped from the aeroplane on guns in half of the buildings. The airmen escaped uninjured. The extent of the damage has not been ascertained.

AT DEATH GRIPS IN THE EAST.
LONDON, Dec. 3.
With a lull in the battle in the West, which as assumed, the proportions of heavy cannonading at widely separated points, with only occasional infantry attacks, interest is now almost entirely centred in the struggle between Russian and German armies in the East. At last the Russians have approached within firing distance from Przemyśl having proceeded without any real check. They were reported to-day to be mounting heavy batteries around the town of Wlitzka, which they occupied yesterday; from which the outer forts of Cracow can be reached. Important as this is, for the fall of Cracow would lay open the roads to Vienna, Breslau and Berlin, the main interest in the East continues to rest with operations on the irregular line from Czenstochowa, through Lodz and Lowicz on the East Prussian border. Official pronouncements of the progress here are guarded, and it is thus difficult to arrive at a conclusion with regard to the course of events. It is apparent, however, that a new battle has developed southwest of Lodz, where the Germans have formed a new line with fresh forces brought from Kalisz, and are again trying to penetrate the Russian centre. The Russians, too, have had time to straighten out their line, and in the eyes of the Allies, another battle is following closely on the one just concluded in this region, which must help them in the long run, for it is argued to win or lose, the Germans must be further weakened, and in addition will soon have to turn their attention to the Russian offensive against Silesia, around Cracow. On the other hand, German experts believe that a defeat for the Russians would enable German Generals to unite all their forces for another blow against the Allies in the West.

However the battle must last for some days, as the opposing troops may be counted upon to fight with the same intensity as they did in the previous conflict, when losses in killed, wounded and prisoners reached enormous numbers. There has been no news for some days of the fighting in the Caucasus or Egypt, but throughout the whole of Africa more liveliness is anticipated, now that General Christian De Wet has been captured, and General Botha can carry out his original plans of moving against the Germans in Southwest Africa. The first Australian and New Zealand contingents have been landed at Egypt, for operations against the Turks, and Portuguese reinforcements have reached Angola to take offensive against the Germans on their African borders. The chief political event is the announcement by the Premier of Italy that nothing had intervened to prompt Italy to alter her policy of neutrality.

FOOTBALL MATCHES ABANDONED.
