The Girl of the Cloisters

CHAPTER XL
THE CLOSING SCENE.

It was a touching meeting, and for the first time the professor forgot his class, and sat, with tearful eyes, listening to the story of Clifford's villainy and Lela's sorrows and triumphs.

"And now, dear, that we are all happy, you will come back, will you not?" she whispered, while Lord Edgar discreetly drew away to the window.

But the professor looked unsettled and disturbed.

"My dear," he said, naively, "they would not be able to get on without me here; they would not, indeed; and I think you would," and he glanced rather archly at Lord Edgar's still figure.

"No, no, dear; you must come back!" she insisted.

"Well," he said, the professor, "and neither she nor Lord Edgar could draw or drive him further than that."

So, after staying a week with him in the quaint, old German town, where Lela was worshipped by the students and the masters, they left him and continued their wanderings. They were very happy, superlatively happy, living entirely in the present, and the future, and scarcely ever alluding to the past; indeed, Lord Edgar never mentioned Clifford Revel's name; and, at the end of the month, they reached Faneborough Abbey.

A surprise—a great surprise was in store for them. During their absence the marquis had been busy. Decorators and upholsterers had been at work, and the old Abbey was transformed into a magnificent country seat.

The marquis stood in the hall, leaning on his stick, waiting to receive them; and, as Lela entered, he drew her toward him and kissed her cheek.

It was a significant greeting, and the servants gathered around accepted it as a gentle hint that henceforth Viscountess Fane would rule at Faneborough Abbey.

"I am glad to see you, my dear," he said, when they were alone. "I hope you will be happy here. I have made some changes—have let the sunlight in. Do not expect to find much change in me. I am too old to be repainted and decorated. But I shall not interfere with you. I have kept my old rooms, and shall reserve to myself the liberty of shutting myself up when the mood takes me. As I feel rather better than usual, I hope you will let me dine with you to-night, and you must tell me all about your travels."

Was this the stern, unbending marquis whose presence a few months ago in the cloister garden filled Lela Temple with awe and trembling?

He was still less like his old self that evening, when, according to his promise, he dined with them; he talked freely, and with the grace and wit which had distinguished him in the bygone years, and, when Lela arose to say "good-night," he kissed her again, and held her hand as he looked up at her.

"You have improved, my dear," he said, scanning the lovely face and graceful figure affectionately. "I did you a great wrong; I don't think Edgar will grow tired of you."

And so the great marquis recanted, and made his retraction.

When she had gone, he sat in silence for a minute or two; then he said to Edgar:

"Yes, I do not think you will grow tired of her; she has become more beautiful than when I saw her in the garden yonder. Happiness, I suppose—there is nothing like it. Now, Edgar, I wish you to consider the Abbey as your own, barring my own den. You will not let it be dull for your wife; ask your friends, as many as you please, and do what you please. I have done what I could to make the house fit. Let there be no coldness between us for the future. You are married, and will have an heir, I trust; and—and that scoundrel, Clifford Revel!"

"Do not speak of him, sir, please," said Lord Edgar, with a frown.

"No! Well, good-night! Be happy, and I shall be content."

Lela, being particularly happy, would have been content, also, but Lord Edgar understood his father, and persuaded her to issue invitations, and the great place was soon filled.

The county people called, and were charmed with the young viscountess. The men raved of her beauty, and the women more calmly approved of her quiet, well-bred style. She became popular before three months had passed, and the marquis had the pleasure of seeing at the head of the county the girl to whom he had prophesied ruin and misfortune.

Lord Edgar became master of the hounds, added to the stables, and built a splendid kennel, the envy and admiration of all the other masters; and he rode his great chestnut twice a week with credit and renown, but with nothing of his old recklessness. He knew that every time he mounted his horse Lela was only kept from fretting by his promise to be very careful and circumspect; and, having discovered that life was worth living, he took special guard of it.

One day there was a grand hunt breakfast at the Abbey, and a big party gathered on the lawn—the men in their red coats, and the women in their Redfern habits. It was a pretty sight; and the marquis, tempted by a bit of sunshine, sallied out from his den and joined the group by which he was received with the most intense respect and cordiality.

Lela, who could not be persuaded to mount a horse—she had always had a horror of the animal since that awful morning on Badmore Hill—was to drive as far as she could after the hounds in her pony phaeton; and she was seated in it, with the reins in her hand, ready to start, but kept talking by Lord Combermere.

"Splendid morning, Lady Fane!" he said, with his old, courtly smile. "What fine form Lord Edgar appears to be in! Ah, he makes one respect one's lost youth!" and he looked across the lawn where Lord Edgar rode here and there, exchanging a word with this man and the other, and keeping an eye on his dogs and his huntsman the while.

CHAPTER I.

BEHIND THE FOOTLIGHTS.

"Good-night! Good night! Parting is such sweet sorrow That I shall say good-night till it be morrow!"

The speaker was a young girl, who stood in the middle of the room, her hands clasped, her head bent forward, her eyes fixed in a dreamy rapture, and the remark was addressed to no one.

She paused, sighed a little—not from impatience, but with a wistful dissatisfaction—and absently moved to the window, through which the last rays of the June sun was flickering redly.

She stood there for a moment or two, then began to pace the room with a lithe, undulating grace. It was a pity that she was alone, because such beauty and grace were wasted on the desert air of the rather grim and dingy room. It was a pity that Sir John Everett Millais or Mr. Edwin Long or some other of the great portrait painters were not present to transfer her beauty of face and form, for it was a loveliness of no common order.

No poet's pen had attempted to describe Doris Marlowe, but it may safely be said that not one had succeeded; and not even a great portrait painter could have depicted the mobility of her clear, oval face, and its dark eyes and sensitive lips—eyes and lips so full of expression that people were sometimes almost convinced that she had spoken before she had uttered a word.

This evening, and at this moment, her face was all alive, as it were, with expression, as she put up her hand to smooth back the thick tresses of dark brown hair—so dark that it was almost black—and, stopping, suddenly before a pier-glass which stood at the end of the room, repeated the familiar lines:

"Good-night! Good-night! Parting is such sweet sorrow That I shall say good-night till it be morrow!"

Ah, no! No, no, no! she exclaimed, stamping her foot and drawing her eyebrows together at the reflection in the glass. "That is not it, nor anything like it. I shall never get it! Never! Never!"

The door opened behind her, and she turned her wistful, dissatisfied face over her shoulder towards the new-comer. He was an old man, bent almost double, with a thin and haggard face, from which gleamed a pair of dark eyes so brilliant and piercing that they made the rest of the face look almost lifeless. He looked at her keenly, as he paused as if for breath, and, still looking at her, went to the table and laid a long roll of paper upon it; then he sank into a chair, and, leaning on his stick, said, in a hollow voice:

THORNDYKE 2% KEMPTON 2%
Particularly well adapted for wear with string bow

looked at her keenly, as he paused as if for breath, and, still looking at her, went to the table and laid a long roll of paper upon it; then he sank into a chair, and, leaning on his stick, said, in a hollow voice:

"Well?"

"But it isn't, Jeffrey. It's bad, as bad as could be!" and the mobile lips allowed a quick, impatient laugh to escape, then compressed themselves as if annoyed at their levity. "I cannot do it! I cannot! I have tried it a hundred times—a thousand times! And it sounds more like—oh, it sounds more like a servant-maid saying, 'Good-night, good-night, call me at seven to-morrow!' than Juliet's immortal adieu!"

"Does it?" said the old man, calmly.

"Yes, it does; very much!" she retorted, half-laughing again. "Oh, Jeffrey, I can't do it, and that is the simple truth! Tell them I cannot do it—and beg me off."

The old man stretched out his hand slowly, and taking the paper from the table, as slowly unfastened it and displayed it at full length.

It was a play-bill, printed in the usual style, in red and blue ink:

THEATRE ROYAL, BARTON
"Romeo and Juliet."
Miss DORIS MARLOWE as Juliet.

The girl looked at it, a faint colour coming into her face; then she raised her eyes to the glittering ones above the placard and shook her head.

"Miss Doris Marlowe will murder Juliet!" she said; "that is what it will be, Jeffrey—simple murder. You must prevent the perpetration of so hideous a crime!"

"Too late!" he said, in his hollow voice. "The bills are already out. The play is advertised in the papers. They were booked at the theatre when I left. You must play it. What is the matter?"

"The matter—" she began, then stopped abruptly, as if in despair. "I don't know what is the matter. I only feel as if—oh, as if I were anyone but Juliet. Why didn't you let me go on playing little comedy parts, Jeffrey? I could do those after a fashion; but Juliet! I ought to be flattered," and she looked at the bill, "but I am very frightened!" and she laughed again.

"Frightened!" he said, his thick white brows coming together. "Why should you be frightened? Have I not told you, you could do it, and do I not know? Am I ever wrong?"

"No, no," she hastened to reply. "You are always right, and it is I who am always wrong. And indeed, Jeffrey dear, I will try! I will try for your sake!" and she glided across to his chair and laid her hand—a long, white hand, soft and slim as a child's—upon his shoulder with tender docility.

"Try for your own," he said, not unkindly, but gravely. "Try for art's sake, and yet—yes, try for mine! You know how I have set my dream on your success—you know that it is the dream, the aim of my life! Even since you were a child and sat upon my knee looking up into my face with your great eyes, I have looked forward to the day when the world should acknowledge that Jeffrey Flint could make a great actor though he failed himself!"

New Relief For Constipation,
"LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

Their Majesties' youngest surviving son, Prince George, is now completing his course as a cadet at the Senior Division of the Royal Naval College at Dartmouth, and it is intended that he shall adopt the Royal Navy as his career. As soon as his present training comes to an end the young Prince—who will be seventeen in December next—is to go for a lengthy trip on board a training cruiser, and will be absent from this country for about a year. Upon his return he will be gazetted to the rank of midshipman, and will then start in earnest. He has a very great liking for the sea, and is extremely pleased at his father's decision to allow him to enter the Service.

They tell me from Paris that the Prime Minister is letting his hair grow very long again, and that he is now only second to M. Paderewski in length of locks. Long hair over the back of the collar is a mark of the bard, the emotional Nonconformist of Wales, and the Premier, who retained it up to the days when he saw the Welsh Church Bill through the House of Commons, trimmed his hair closer on going into Coalition with the Unionists. I wonder what we should infer from his reversion to the older habit. Certainly he is the most unconventional of the Big Four in dress, for he wears a light grey suit and a soft hat even to attend a full meeting of the Peace Conference. President Wilson occupies a position of "splendid isolation" at the Peace Conference in his diplomatic attire. At the last meeting of Allied plenipotentiaries at the Quai d'Orsay he alone conformed to the old convention that top hat and frock coat shall be worn at international congresses.

SCIENCE AND THE WAR.
Among the post-war revivals of distinctive social events is to be numbered the always-famous conversation of the Royal Society, to which scientists of all shades have gathered this week once more for the first time since 1914. There, as everyone just now, the influence of the great struggle was plainly discernible and the part played by science in connection with the events of the past four years was seen, indeed, in many directions. Among the more striking were Dr. J. S. Haldane's exhibit of an army form of apparatus for continuous oxygen administration; Joseph Barcroft's model displaying the treatment of oxygen; and the exhibit of the Meteorological Office showing the study of weather during the war. Constipation, FRUITS

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agree that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly requires a constantly increasing dose because the constant use of it goes up from the "we do?" It will be interesting to know that an ancient re-discovery of a fruit with great success by Arabia far back in the past is called "Les Fruits" entirely of figs, dates, and leaves of each with theandra leaf for the raisin, if not to say delicately preceding satisfactory.

Peace Congress in 1880. It was on his return to London from Berlin that Lord Beaconsfield proudly boasted that he had brought back with him peace with honor. But as events proved the peace contained the germ of future Balkan wars and "the honor rooted on dishonor stood."

LONDON'S THEATRICAL SLUMP.

The slump over which the managers are lamenting will not be a bad thing for the London theatres. It means the end of many of the long runs, which have a deadening effect, and there is now a chance of seeing new things tried. At the moment thirteen theatres are advertising a change of programme. During the latter part of the war, at any rate almost anything that was lively would fill the theatres every night. The long spell of fine weather is the chief cause of the empty seats at theatres. Even the West End dinner-out can find something else to do with these glorious nights than to sit in a stuffy atmosphere looking at study plays. Then, too, there is no longer the great crowds of soldiers on leave, who were the mainstay of the theatres, and the "demobbed" are now getting used to being demobbed and have given up joy parties. Managers will have to produce unusually attractive things if they wish to fill their pockets as they have been doing for four years.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SURVEY OF LONDON.

The war has changed the aspect of London perhaps to a larger extent than any other city in the kingdom. It has occurred to the members of the London Camera Club that it is quite possible the changing needs of peace and reconstruction may soon wipe out many of the most interesting features of war-time London, and that while there is yet time they may see a useful purpose in making a photographic survey of the capital as it now presents itself. Already I understand the idea has caught on, and the committee of the club have had numerous offers from competent photographers among their own membership and elsewhere to take part in the scheme. The idea is to divide the city up into districts, and to allot certain workers to each area. The work ought to be a record of great interest and value to future generations.

MUSIC HALL HONORS.

It is quite recently that the first Music Hall artists in this country received the honor of a knighthood at the hands of King George. This was, as we all know, Harry Lauder, the comedian. Indirectly the other perhaps most prominent star on the English Music Hall stage, Vesta Tilley, has now become Lady de Frece owing to the knighthood conferred upon her husband, Walter de Frece, for the services he has rendered in connection with the Pensions Ministry. Nobody who knows anything of the English vaudeville or variety stage will have been able to miss Vesta Tilley. She is one of the half dozen outstanding figures of the whole of the last 25 years, the others being Marie Lloyd, Albert Chevalier, Little Tich, George Robey, and of course Sir Harry Lauder. The honor of this kind have been confined to actors in the legitimate drama, but Sir Walter de Frece, like the also recently knighted Sir Oswald Stoll, are both predominantly "music-hall" magnates.

Brighter Prospects in Russia.

Hopeful news comes from Russia. General Denikin, with his Cossack Volunteer forces, has met and successfully countered a big Bolshevik offensive aimed at Rostoff. Admiral Kolchak has swept so far ahead, making big captures of prisoners and material, on the way to Moscow, which he announced as his objective, that the seat of the Siberian Government has been shifted from Omsk to Ekaterinburg; General Ironside has inflicted heavy punishment on the enemy on the Vaga and Dvina fronts, with the aid of British 60-pounder guns and British monitors, which the break-up of the ice permitted to be employed, and General Maynard reports an equally satisfactory engagement as far from the Murmansk base as the northern end of Lake Onega. Revolt against the Bolsheviks, actual or incipient, is in evidence in more than one direction. What part the British Government are taking in it is not divulged, and members of Parliament who want to know have been reminded by Mr. Bonar Law that he is debarred from imparting information precisely in proportion to the extent and character of steps that may have been taken or be in contemplation. All we know is that British volunteers have left for Russia, the first contingents sailing on transports named Tzar and Tzaritz. For the rest, Russia, with the assistance of British munitions, is working out her own salvation. Her efforts constitute a claim, not only on her late allies but on the whole of civilization. General Miller, the Governor-General of Archangel, foresees the end of the Bolshevik regime by the autumn.—United Empire Magazine.

Fortunes from Shipwrecks. In November last the French cargo steamer Tours went ashore on the rock-bound coast of Hunts Bay, ten miles from Swansea.

Only two years old, this fine ship ran hard aground in a fog, and so hopeless seemed her position that she was sold as old iron to a firm of metal merchants for £1,500.

That firm sold her the same day to a salvage company for £5,000. If the salvage company float her, as they hope to do, they will have a ship and cargo worth nearly £100,000. It's a great game—a great gamble, one should say—this dealing in derelict. Up at Scarborough the John Ray went ashore with a cargo of coal. The underwriters sold her hull for £88 and the coal for thirty-nine shillings. The man who bought the coal retrieved over 400 tons, and sold it at over a pound a ton.

A £25,000 Prize.

One of the strangest stories of the sea is that of the British barque Dumfrieshire. On her way to New Caledonia from New Zealand she struck a coral reef off the New Caledonia coast. Her crew abandoned her, and were rescued by a steamer and taken to Noumea. Next morning she had disappeared. She had apparently been swung over the reef by the tide and sunk. A few days later the underwriters received an offer by cable for the wreck. They laughed at any man being such a fool as to bid for a broken hull sunk in such a depth, but, of course, accepted.

After a while, they heard, to their amazement, that the ship had come safely into harbor.

She had not been sunk at all. True, the tide had swung her off the reef, but she had floated, and, drifting down the coast, had gone ashore on soft ground in a bay thirty miles away. There a settler found her and secured her. His bargain was worth £25,000.

When Ships are Overdue.

Another sort of dealing in derelicts goes on constantly at Lloyd's. Look at your newspaper, and you will see certain ships listed as being "on the overdue market."

A ship that is overdue is presumably in trouble, and the underwriters who have accepted the risk of insuring her now re-insure so as to save themselves from a total loss. They, of course, pay much higher rates, and the longer the ship is overdue the higher the rates rise. The premium may even reach 90 per cent, which was the case with the big liner Bulgaria, reported unmanageable and sinking off the Azores. Many thousands changed hands at the 90 per cent. rate, and that very evening came news that the ship was safe at the Azores. Fortunes had been made and lost that day.—Tit-Bits.

Changed Churches.

Churches are sometimes put to strange uses. The sixty-year old Bedford Chapel, at Somers Town, London, is to be converted into a laundry. Previous to this it was a gas-mask factory, and also manufactured artificial eyes. Probably some wash-tub may now mark the spot where Robert Browning once owned a pew, since the post was at one time a constant worshippier at Bedford Church.

Another church at Willesden is undetermined by cable connections laid down by Dora's decree, while Sherborne Church, in Hampshire, owns a thriving hive of bees. These animals have novel and cosy homes between the outer and the inner walls of the building, and stow a vast quantity of honey there each year.

Inhabitants have to punt or scull to church at Holme, near Peterborough. Here is found one of the most interesting floating churches, perhaps, in the world. The interior of this church-boat is 30ft. long by 9ft. wide and 7ft. in height. It is fitted in miniature, exactly like any other church, with a font, pews, prayer-desk, and the smallest of American organs.

Fashions and Fads.

Short, flaring sleeves are new. Skirts show deep, wide pockets. Sleeves and skirts end in fringe. The kimono sleeve is ever popular. The big suits have cuffed bloomers. Smocks are made of figured voiles. Bracelets are worn very high on the arms. The square neck is a relief from the round. The chemise gown is still strongly in evidence. Citron is the newest color for derwear.

A WARNING TO POP-FLIERS. When playing against the Irish, if you must hit up a fly, for the love of Mike don't put it within twenty yards of third base or you may just as well throw down your bat and walk back to the bench.

Efficiency experts declare that, if correctly applied, the hot air expended by Sue Heath and Billy Brown in a single game, would prove sufficient to inflate every catcher's wind-pad in the League.

There are strikes that make us happy. There are strikes that make us blue. There are strikes that steal away the tear-drops. As the sunbeams steal away the dew. There are strikes that give a tender "beating."

PEACE AT LAST.

PARIS, June 24. The long months of strain during the peace negotiations, and the weeks of doubt whether Germany would accept the conditions offered, or would invade by her refusal of them further invasion of her country, ended late this afternoon, when a note announcing Germany's unconditional acceptance, was delivered to the Supreme Council of the Conference.

The note was sent to M. Clemenceau and was signed by Dr. Haniel Von Haimausen. It follows: "The Minister of Foreign Affairs has instructed me to communicate to Your Excellency the following: It appears to the Government of the German Republic in consternation at the last communication of the Allied and Associated Governments, that those Governments have decided to reject from Germany by force the acceptance of peace conditions, even those which presenting any material significance, aim at divesting the German people of their honor. No act of violence can shake the honor of the German people. The German people after faithful suffering in these last years, have no means of defending themselves by external actions. Holding to superior force and without renouncing in the meantime their view of the unshaken justness of the peace conditions, the Government of the German Republic declares that it is ready to accept and sign the peace conditions imposed. Please accept, Mr. President, the assurances of my high consideration, signed, Von Haniel."

DELEGATES DUE THIS MORNING. German Mueller, the new German Foreign Secretary, will head the German delegation to sign the Peace Treaty, La Liberté says. The Germans probably will arrive at Versailles Wednesday morning.

AND WHY NOT?

LONDON, June 24. Profound distrust of Germany is the predominant note in the London press comments on the German Government's decision to sign the Treaty of Peace. It is contended the Germans proved themselves treacherous throughout the war, the latest instance being the sinking of their leg in Scapa Flow, and therefore it will be premature to celebrate peace until the Treaty is actually signed. Even, afterwards, it is said, the Allies must be continually on guard until the last penalty is paid.

SALVAGING GERMAN FLEET. LONDON, June 24. Three German warships which their crews attempted to sink at Scapa Flow on Saturday have been beached, and the Baden is moored in readiness for beaching, it was announced officially to-day. There is every prospect of salvaging the ships in good condition if the necessary apparatus arrives before bad weather sets in. The ships beached are the cruisers Emden, Frankfurt and Nürnberg. Two destroyers are afloat and eighteen have been beached.

FOR CONSIDERATION.

PARIS, June 24. The Council of Three has referred the question relative to the sinking of the German fleet in Scapa Flow to a commission of experts, which will determine whether the armistice conditions were violated.

GET SOMEONE ELSE.

WEIMAR, June 24. Von Haimausen, who was on Sunday designated as German representative to sign the Treaty of Peace, has telegraphed his resignation from Versailles, rather than attach his name to the instrument.

HOCK THE KAISER.

LONDON, June 24. News of the German Government's agreement to sign the peace terms has resulted in patriotic demonstrations throughout Germany, the Exchange Telegraph's Copenhagen correspondent reports. In Berlin, Munich and other cities, the despatch news processions formed and marched along the principal streets, the participants singing war songs and cheering the generals of the Empire. The Officers' Association, it is added, has asked the Dutch Government not to deliver the former Emperor to the Allies. In the telegram the Officers' Association said, "We can protect the Kaiser with our bodies, but we rely upon the generosity of the Dutch people."

ANOTHER COMMISSION.

PARIS, June 24. Word of the burning of certain French Battle Flags by the Germans has been received here. The Peace Conference opinion is inasmuch as the document stipulated that, the flags should be returned to France by Germany, it is probable that a commission will be appointed to consider taking action in the matter.

FOR AUSTRIA.

PARIS, June 24. Work on the Austrian Peace Treaty was resumed by the Three Council. The completion of the document to be presented to the Austrian delegates is desired as speedily as possible, and work on it is expected to be energetically pushed. In this process financial experts were called before the Council at to-day's session.

THE INTENTION IS OTHERWISE.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 24. Vice Admiral Kerr was invited to fly his machine in a non-stop flight to here in a telegram sent him to-day by Albert Bell, President of the Aero Club of Atlantic City.

A CANADIAN GIFT.

LONDON, June 24. The Salvation Army has received from the Canadian military stores 700 tons of frozen fish, for distribution among the poor of London.

TURKISH PLEAS.

PARIS, June 24. The Turkish delegation which appeared before the Council of Ten on June 17 sent the Council to-day a detailed memorandum which it promised at that time to draft. This memorandum gave at length the plea for the continuance of the Turkish Empire, which was made orally before the Council at the hearing last week. The memorandum states that the Turkish Government is prepared to recognize the independence of Armenia and to grant some form of autonomous government to Palestine and Arabia under the Turkish Government.

"A PERJURED RACE."

PARIS, June 24. Viscount Gustav De Kerzeuco, a member of the Naval Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, told the Budget Committee of the Chamber yesterday that he had warned the French Ministry of Marine previously that the German fleet interned in Scapa Flow was not being watched with sufficient care. The Budget Committee then decided to ask Premier Clemenceau for further information on the subject of the sinking of the ships and the step the French Government proposed to take to have the lost made good. Newspaper comment in some cases shows much bitterness over the acts of those whom the Figaro calls a "perjured race, with no respect for their plighted word." Some criticism is directed at the British Admiralty, the Journal saying no article in the armistice forbade the maintenance of British guards aboard the German ships. L'Ouvreur says the fate of the German ships was that proposed for them by the British Government. Germany, says the Action Française, may one day, if we are not careful, scuttle the League of Nations as she scuttled the fleet. Premier Lloyd George and Sir Robert Cecil will be as much responsible that day as are now the authorities at Scapa Flow. It is likely that the whole subject will come up for discussion in Parliament.

GREEKS HOLDING THEIR OWN.

PARIS, June 24. The Greek troops in Asia Minor are holding their own against superior Turkish forces, according to official Greek advices received here to-day. The Turks have entered Nasilie, east of Eslin, which the Greeks evacuated Saturday in the face of superior attacks.

FOREST FIRES.

FERNIE, June 24. After fighting twenty-four hours, forest fires which threatened to sweep the town, the inhabitants of Natal, B.C., were removed from the town in a special train early Sunday while a volunteer fire corps under Chief McDougall extinguished flames after some within the town itself until the fire in the immediate vicinity had spent itself.

CLEMENCEAU CONGRATULATED.

PARIS, June 24. Premier Clemenceau was congratulated on the result of the peace negotiations by his fellow Ministers at a meeting of the French Cabinet to-day. The acceptance of the Peace Treaty by Germany was discussed at the meeting which was presided over by President Poincaré. The cabinet also examined various political and parliamentary questions involved in the peace settlement.

TALKING MOCKERY.

PARIS, June 24. After expressing pleasure over the approaching signing of the Peace Treaty for the sake of humanity, France and Germany, L'Humanité, the official organ of the Socialist party, denounces the conditions of the treaty. "It is cynical and dangerous mockery," it says, "to give to what was called a war for right a conclusion of violence and iniquity. The nations, France above all, had believed in the grand promises with which the courage of the combatants was sustained for nearly five years. They believed especially in the words of President Wilson, who much more than Prussian imperialism, is the conqueror of to-day."

Archiepiscopal Visit.

It is expected that His Grace Archbishop Roche will visit Argentinia next month. The various church buildings in that Parish are now being painted by Mr. Clem Murphy, who has five men employed at this work.

Prospero at Fogo.

Captain A. Kean of the Prospero, which had been ice bound at Fogo since Monday morning, sent the following message to the Ministry of Shipping last night:—"Still ice bound here; favorable wind blowing." The probabilities are that the Prospero has a favourable chance of getting clear and continuing her voyage.

Landlord Explains.

The owner of the house in the West End from which a family was evicted, news of which was given in this paper yesterday, has called at this office and made the statement that he used no cruelty whatsoever in evicting the family in question, and states that he had several times previous and at this particular time told the head of the family, a young man, to remove his belongings and leave. As he declined to do this, the owner of the house acted as he considered circumstances warranted.

"Neptune" Clear.

A message to Messrs. Job Bros. & Co. this morning from Capt. Joyce, of the Neptune, stated that she was clear of the ice and that the Thetis was towing her toward Blanc Sablon. This bit of intelligence will be more than welcome to those who have friends on the disabled ship.

Shipping Notes.

The s.s. Digby leaves Halifax to-day for this port. The schr. Stanley Slater, which had been detained here owing to ice conditions in the north, left last evening for Botwood, where she will load pulp and paper for South America. The s.s. Indian sailed yesterday for North Sydney, where she will load coal for Botwood. She will take a pilot from here on her return from North Sydney to pilot her to Botwood. The s.s. Sachem is expected to leave Liverpool on Saturday for here. The s.s. Watuka, which landed a cargo of coal here, sailed yesterday for North Sydney, and will load coal again for this port. The Cabot left here yesterday for King's Cove to assist in towing the wrecked steamer Fiero to this port.

Open Letter

TO THE OFFICERS, W.O.'s, N.C.O.'s AND MEN OF THE ROYAL NFDL, REGIMENT AND ROYAL NAVAL RESERVE.

GENTLEMEN:—There is some misunderstanding in connection with the parade on Decoration Day, July 1st, and I have been asked by the Committee in charge to explain the purpose of the parade.

1st.—We want to make it clearly understood that this parade is not a celebration of any kind. It is a tribute from us as brother soldiers to those very gallant comrades who fell doing their duty—a tribute which we never had the opportunity of paying in France or Flanders.

Every Dominion has its Decoration Day. Australia and New Zealand keep Anzac Day, April 25th, the anniversary of the landing at Gallipoli, when so many brave men from these Dominions made the Supreme Sacrifice. South Africa remembers her fallen heroes on July 12th, the day the South African Brigade was cut to pieces in Delville Wood, just after the opening of the Battle of the Somme in 1916. Canada pays tribute to her gallant soldiers on Ypres day—a day which brings to the mind of all Canadians the sacrifices and hardships, the tortures, the agonies, the untold sufferings, but also the pluck, endurance and heroism that the word Ypres stands for in the annals of mankind. And it is our endeavour to make Newfoundlanders remember on July 1st, the men from this little rock-bound island, who gave their lives in Gallipoli, in Picardy, in Flanders and in the grey North Sea—men who won for our Regiment and Royal Naval Reserve a reputation equal to any in the Army or Navy of the Allies. And if we who know their sterling worth and what they have gone through do not pay them tribute on this day, how can we expect the general public to do so, and how can we expect the children of to-day and future generations to remember what they have done for Newfoundland and Empire?

The Parade is purely military. With the exception of the Brigades, none will be allowed in the parade except those who joined up. We fall in at the Rink (the wounded and cripples will be provided with motors), and march to the three city churches, after which we fall in the square in front of Synod Hall. From there we go to Government House and take our colours to a temporary monument in Bannerman Park. Here the Regiment places three wreaths. All the city societies pay tribute in the same way, also the various schools. While the wreaths are being placed at the foot of the cross the bands play the "Dead March in Saul" and "The Lament," after which the usual volleys are fired and the last post sounded. The colours are replaced in Government House, and the parade dismissed about 12.30. The public are then at liberty to pay their floral tribute at the cross which will be erected in the Park for the occasion.

Hoping you will all give your heartfelt co-operation to this, our first Decoration Day, I am, Yours sincerely, T. NANGLE, C.F. St. John's, June 24th, 1918.

Seaman Nearly Drowned

Yesterday evening, at six o'clock, Bowring Bros' North Side wharf was the exciting scene of what very nearly ended fatally for those concerned. Six nautical men, who had been celebrating the rumoured signing of the peace treaty, set out in a very small boat—which was never meant to hold more than two—to reach a schooner moored in the stream. When a few feet from the wharf the boat capsized, throwing the men into the water. The captain of a nearby vessel, seeing the accident, threw a rope to the struggling mariners, eventually succeeding in saving them all. One who had celebrated with, perhaps, the most enthusiasm, was nearly gone when rescued and will always regard the captain who threw the rope as his life saver. All's well, that ends well.

Latest From Diana.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries received the following message this morning from the s.s. Diana: "Position 15 miles S.E. of the Funks; solid jam to the eastward; now going south in water to get outside of the ice."

The Explanation.

Norway has made a contract to deliver to Germany seven hundred thousand barrels of herring within four months. This helps to explain Norway's unwillingness to recognize a renewal of the blockade. But the odds are she will not try to deliver the herring in face of an Allied prohibition, or at any rate not unless she is paid in advance.—Vancouver Sun.

Does the Work of 50 Typists.

In every office and factory there are hundreds of ways in which our ROTOSPEED duplicator can save time and money. The average office boy without previous experience can print 30 copies per minute of any form-letter, circular or price list, and the average cost is 50 cents per thousand copies.

There are only three simple operations—preparing the stencil, attaching stencil to machine, printing. Only one model—no extras to buy—no adjustments to make—no worry, no trouble, no fuss, no delay. PRICE completely equipped $55.

Commends Mr. Stone.

The following letter is one of many received by Hon. J. G. Stone, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, from his numerous friends and supporters in Catalina. For obvious reasons the signature of the writer is withheld: Hon. J. G. Stone, Minister Marine and Fisheries, St. John's.

Dear Sir,—I take this opportunity to congratulate you on the honor conferred on you and hope you will long enjoy same. Don't mind what the Advocate says. Even people who take that paper don't swallow all the matter it contains. You are one of our own, and quite a whole lot of your friends here still think well of you. Don't reply to Coaker at all, but let him carry on his abuse. The more he says the better it will be for you here, as well as everywhere else in the country. The people of Catalina got more respect for you to-day than they will ever have for Coaker unless he alters his way a great deal more than he has since he came here. What has Coaker done anyway any more than make trouble? "The true he has got a large premises built at Port Union but anybody could do that providing the fishermen would put up the money. I wonder how much would be built if he had to furnish the money himself. To give you a straightforward opinion, the only people here for the poor man, is Templeman, McCormack & Walsh and one or two others, because, Sir, when a poor man wishes to get supplies for the summer he must get it from the above firms. It is no use applying to Coaker, that's for sure, trusting that you will soon be down to see us, I am, Yours faithfully, Catalina, May 26, 1918.

The System is Poisoned.

By Failure of the Liver and Kidneys to Purify the Blood Relief Obtained by Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Too much eating of heavy, highly-seasoned foods and too little outdoor exercise are the most frequent causes. The liver is upset, becomes torpid and inactive, the bowels are constipated, the kidneys are overworked in an effort to get rid of the accumulating poisons and breakdown. Headache, backache, aching limbs sound a warning note, and when this is not heeded the natural development is rheumatism, lumbago, and painful and fatal forms of kidney disease. To best overcome this condition Dr. Chase worked out in his private practice a prescription which has come to be known as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their combined action on these filtering organs. No treatment has ever proven so successful in awakening the action of the kidneys, liver and bowels and thereby cleansing the system of all impurities. For this reason Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have a world-wide reputation as the most thorough cure for rheumatism, lumbago, chronic indigestion and constipation. Mrs. Alex. Gordon, Walkerton, Ont., writes: "A few years ago I suffered from kidney and liver trouble, with pains in my back. I had heard of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills being good for this, so I commenced taking them. I had only taken a couple of boxes when the trouble was all removed."

Mrs. M. Nickels, 192 Milton street, Sarnia, writes: "I have found Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills an excellent remedy. I suffered considerably with kidney trouble and backache, but after I had taken five boxes of the Kidney-Liver Pills they gave me relief. Since then, which was about five years ago, I keep them in my medicine chest whenever I feel the need of them."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Substitutes will only disappoint. Insist on getting what you ask for.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHAT IS YOUR FURNITURE WORTH

RUTH CAMERON

Did you ever make an inventory of your household goods? If you never did I think you would find it an interesting and eye opening exercise. Theoretically everyone is supposed to do that before putting a value on their furniture and clothing for insurance. Actually, I think, the majority of people name some lump sum which sounds fairly large to them and let it go at that.

What a surprise most of them would have if their houses should burn down (fortunately such complete losses are very rare) and they should start replacing what they had lost.

Double What I Had Thought Adequate Insurance.

Having occasion to shift some insurance to a summer camp and having previously insured only in the haphazard manner, I decided to take a pencil and go about the house figuring out what it would really cost me to replace furniture, clothes, jewelry, etc., in case of a complete loss.

When I had finally gotten my figures down and added them up I stared at them in amazement and then added again. But I had been right the first time. The total was more than double what I had thought was a generous insurance. Moreover I had deliberately left out some things which I would not want to replace and had made the values low on others. Furthermore, in the days that followed I kept discovering things that had been unintentionally left out, my bag and suit case, my trunk, a clothes' basket, (once such a humble thing that one would not bother to count it at all but nowadays there is practically nothing that is humble in price) the bathroom mirror, etc., etc.

Most People Are Vague in Their Estimates.

Since that experience I have inquired from several people about their insurance, and find the same vagueness and habit of underrating. I asked a woman who has a ten-room house, well furnished throughout what she had her furniture insured for. She said, "Two thousand dollars."

"It would come a good deal nearer six," I said. She laughed at me but when we fell to reckoning she stopped laughing. In her dining room, living room and kitchen alone (that took in silver and china of course) she soon had over two thousand dollars.

Take Just Blankets and Sheets.

The replacement value of such unconsidered items as sheet and pillow cases and blankets is simply enormous. Blankets and sheets in my simple summer camp could not be replaced under fifty dollars. Think what they would be in a large house.

"I wouldn't have believed we had spent all that money on our house. It's being done so gradually, I suppose, I haven't noticed it," said the woman with the inadequate two thousand dollars of insurance.

That is another interesting thing about such an inventory. It shows one where some of one's money has gone. Of course, that doesn't bring back any of it but it is interesting.

Take a block of paper and well sharpened pencil and try it some evening.

Incidentally the possession of such an inventory would make adjusting your insurance a much simpler thing if fire ever did come to your house.

Patrick Downey's Lucky Penny.

Union sheet metal workers, who have been on strike in Newburg, N. Y., and vicinity for four weeks, are at work. The ugly wage deadlock was settled this morning, and four hundred journeymen returned to their jobs this afternoon. Patrick J. Downey, Agent for the State Department of Labor, settled the strike. Conciliation had failed. The strikers insisted upon $5.40 and the bosses $5.25 per day. Downey tried a new line. He got representatives of both sides together, and, after they had grown tired of arguing, he made his proposition. It was accepted. Mr. Downey balanced a penny between his fingers and flipped it into the air. "Tail!" called the representatives of the employers. The coin rolled around the floor and finally turned up "Head." The men get the higher wage, while Mr. Downey maintains that sportsmanship is the best strike settler he knows.

GRADUATION TIME.

Graduation time again! Boys are changing into men, Stepping from the fields of play Where they romped but yesterday Into life's great rolling mill. Some important place to fill.

Once again the doors are swung To receive our sturdy young; Once again an eager class Waits the moment it may pass Out of boyhood into life Where the game is real strife.

Well we know what care awaits All who step beyond the gates Swinging open wide to-day! Long ago we trod the way. Well we know what they shall find Who are leaving youth behind.

Fame and fortune life will give To the men who rightly live; It will try with tests severe Every boy who passes here, But we wonder, as he goes, If life's secret now he knows.

Does he know that men must earn Every joy for which they yearn? Does he know that none but he Shapes the future that's to be And that he, not life, shall say What rewards shall crown his day?

Boy, now entering manhood's field, As you give so life shall yield. Life shall crown you if you stand Faithful to its least command: Give your best in service true. Life shall give its best to you.

Bluffing a Butcher.

A joker rushed into a butcher's shop which had a fine display of sheep's tongues for sale. "I say," he gasped, "there's a big black dog running down the street with a tongue in its mouth!" "Is there? The beast?" shouted the butcher.

Seizing a chopper, he rushed out of the shop after the thief. He caught a glimpse of a dog answering to the description at the corner and gave chase, but eventually lost sight of it. "Have you seen a big black dog with a tongue in his mouth?" he asked a group of lads.

"With a tongue in its mouth?" asked one, laughing. "Did you ever see one without?"

"Sold!" muttered the butcher when he returned and found the joker had departed.

Belgium Honors Her Edith Cavell.

The transfer of the body of Gabrielle Petit, a young Belgium woman, whom the Germans executed on a charge of treason, was carried out at Brussels on May 29, with impressive ceremonies. The streets were lined with thousands of spectators, and the city had the appearance of national mourning. Piles of flowers covered the coffin, and troops, patriotic societies and school children followed the cortege to the communal cemetery, where military honours were paid. Premier De La Croix, and other officials delivered eulogies before the coffin left the Town Hall for Schaerbeek, a suburb. Mile. Petit was put to death in 1916.

Grenades as Banks for Pennies.

Millions of hand grenades, manufactured for use against the German army by the allied fighting units, will be used to encourage thrift among the school children of the United States. These hand grenades, transformed into banks to hold the pennies and dimes which the school children are saving to buy thrift stamps and war saving stamps, will be distributed by the savings division directors of the twelve Federal Reserve Bank districts. The hand grenades are the highest development of the modern hand-to-hand fighting weapon. When the armistice was signed the War Department had on hand fifteen million of these grenades, ready to be loaded with explosives for shipment.

Why Do You Wait?

Why is there never a sane discussion of the question of confederation in the newspapers of this country? What are they afraid of? The country at large is no longer frightened by the "being sold to Canada" cry. Many of our young men who have worked in Canada have seen the benefits that would accrue to Newfoundland from such a Union. Why are the newspapers of St. John's silent on this question?

They don't believe that Newfoundland would suffer from Union with Canada; many of the editors are privately in favor of Confederation.

What is the stumbling block? As far as we can see it is that the business concerns who support the factories in the city fear the loss of the thirty to fifty percent profit which they obtain by reason of revenue tax on Canadian made goods imported into this country, a profit wrung from the taxpayers of this country. They also fear the establishment which would be morally certain—of large towns on the West Coast which would be dangerous rivals to St. John's.

Now St. John's has every right to its position as commercial capital of the country if it can maintain that position in fair competition; but we believe that the country as a whole is getting thoroughly tired of subsidizing St. John's industries through a protective tariff.

One would expect our friend of the Western Star to be an out-and-out Confederate yet it is largely silent. Does Doctor Campbell who resides in St. John's say nay? It is high time for the outcries to wake up. They have been "Rip-Van Winkling" long enough. The clothes of that only argument against Confederation—"maintaining our own identity" (we presume the identity of being the sport of historic misgovernment) are worn to tatters.

Wake up Newfoundland! Canada offers a decent education for your children, properly controlled Marine and Fisheries department, avenue of labour and a more democratic spirit and a more united one than we now possess.

What are you waiting for? Canada is not coming to gobble you up. When you say you wish Confederation she is ready to listen to your wishes—not before.

Why do we wait? If you expect St. John's to move you shall wait till Gabriel blows his bugle call.

Wake up.

—Twillingate Sun.

The Mystery Unsolved.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I have seen in your paper of the 21st inst. a reply to my letter of the 19th re dogs. The writer of that letter has, I think, himself shown some of the characteristics of the animals in question in shrinking off under cover of a non-de-plume. If "A Barrens Traveller" is not ashamed of his statements why does he not sign his name? "A Barrens Traveller" says that if dogs from Topsail had killed the sheep they would have been seen again on the barrens. I do not consider this argument convincing. If dogs from outside had done the mischief they would probably have remained in the neighbourhood and continued the slaughter; if on the other hand dogs from nearby villages (not necessarily Topsail) were responsible, news travels quickly and the owners would in all probability take good care that their dogs would not appear on the barrens while the sheep owners were on the alert. The destruction of sheep last year which "Barrens Traveller" refers to happened, I hear, at a place two or three miles nearer St. John's and among an entirely different flock. Also will "Barrens Traveller" explain why the injured sheep were found comparatively near the village, and the remainder, which escaped, two or three miles further away, supposing dogs from St. John's, for instance, were responsible? And even if we suppose that dogs of this district have never killed sheep, is that any reason why they should not be destroyed if they are kept in defiance of the law? "A Barrens Traveller" says "There are sheep along the roads but none have been destroyed." I wonder if his memory serves him; does he forget the time, not ten years ago, when a lamb, the property of a widow, was destroyed by a dog, the owner of which had to pay for the loss? It is true that dogs of this place have been seen to drive sheep out into the water from which the poor animals have had to be rescued. "A Barrens Traveller" is very anxious to have dogs licensed. Does he wish to pay a license and keep a dog to assist him in the pursuit of game this fall (a thing which our remarkable Topsail "Collie" dogs are said to have done in the past)? Surely there can be no other reason. He should remember that even if dogs were licensed he would probably get no compensation for any losses he might sustain, unless he could prove that a dog which was licensed was responsible.

Hoping I am not trespassing too much on your valuable space, I am,

Yours truly,

G. H. HALEY.

Topsail, June 21, 1919.

The Late Thos. Cahill.

It is with sentiments of sorrow that we chronicle the death of Thomas Cahill, one of our members. Last summer he was full of life and vigor, and now we count him in our memo for the dead. He was an ideal schoolboy; dutiful, regular, submissive and punctual, and these traits of character he bore with him and put in practice even when he had passed out of the schoolroom. He was as diligent at work as he was at school; certainly we may say of him that he endeavored "to do all things well." We miss him, not that he used to make himself felt, but his genial disposition and willing ways endeared him to us all. Young though we are, yet on every side we miss the familiar faces of those who began school-life with us, but we look for them where angel faces see them in the Better Land.

Last winter the dread disease of which he was a victim made inroads on his not too robust constitution. Hope promised health when spring would verge into summer, but the feeling of declining strength told Tom that the mist of time were clearing from life's hill, and he was already on the return journey. Medical skill availed nothing. Spiritual comfort was not wanting. All that the Catholic Church can do for the sick and dying was done for him. He felt that Heaven was luring him on to detach himself from earth and he awaited the summons with all the faith and happiness that are the adjuncts of a dutiful son and a practical Catholic.

On June 13th his spirit fled from earth and passed through the Eternal Gates to enter into "the joy of the Lord."

On Sunday, the 15th, all that was mortal of our comrade was consigned to mother earth to await the Great Archangel's call to reanimate once again with the soul that long since is throbbing in the bosom of God. To pay a last tribute to our departed chum the members attended the funeral and offered many a prayer that the Almighty may have mercy on the dear departed, and give His help and comfort to the grief-stricken parents, grandfather and sisters, to all of whom we sincerely offer our sympathy.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." — From "The Holy Cross Baseball Chronicle."

Secret Societies in Canada.

There are over 1,000,000 Bolshevik secret agents working in the United States and Canada, at the present time, according to General Dobrjansky, of the National Russian Army, who is in Boston on a mission for the Cmsy Government, to interest leaders of opinion in the movement to fight Bolshevism in America as well as Russia, and to help gain recognition for the Omsk Government by the allies. The Gen. was head of the technical department of the Russian Ministry of War before the Bolshevik Army of War before the Bolshevik revolution, and was very instrumental in saving the vast military stores of the allies collected at Vladivostok and elsewhere, valued at over $350,000,000. He fled from Russia, disguised as a workman, to Siberia, via Europe and the United States, when the Bolsheviks gained power, and thus was able to help the allies in Siberia. He declared that there is a world-wide menace from the Bolshevik doctrine which is being propagated with stolen Russian gold by means of secret agents in every manufacturing and mining city and town and seaport throughout the United States and Canada. He declares that these agents have divided the two countries into districts, in each of which a Soviet is to be established after existing Governments are overthrown. These agents have a number instead of a name, to France Preserves Monuments of the War.

The French Government has selected about 140 famous sites along the whole front, which will be preserved in their present state as monuments of the war. Care will be taken to select a large variety of points of interest. For example, famous battle fields, deep dugouts, long underground galleries, ruins, pill boxes observation points and several of the Verdun forts will be kept and extensive shelters carved in rock on the wooded heights of the Vosges will be preserved, as well as entrenchments on both sides of the Meuse and in the Champagne, Soissons and Noyon areas. Among the sites in the British sector will be the Butte de Warlencourt, ruins of Bapume, some destroyed monuments at Peronne, several completely devastated castle estates like the Chateau de Thiepval, the underground maze of Combes, tanks, buryard at Poziers, observation points on Hill 80, Ginchy battle field, and the famous slagheap and tower bridge at Loos.

Where Miners Go Up To Work.

Miners Working at a coal mine in the Cascade Mountains of Canada do not descend a shaft, but have to climb up a mountain to a height of nearly a mile.

The mine is rich in coal, which occurs in many seams, and five of these are now being worked at three different levels, the highest being 5,224 feet above sea level. The high altitude makes the means of approach a big item of expense, but it also makes the cost of transporting the coal correspondingly low, as each loaded truck runs down the incline from coal seam to ground level under its own weight, and at the same time pulls up an empty truck on the other side of the cable.

The coal obtained is anthracite, and this is the only anthracite located so far among the vast stores of coal in Canada.

The mine has an average yield of a thousand tons a day.

How to Fool Flies.

We can keep our houses free from flies by a very simple contrivance. This is to stretch nets of thread or string with meshes one inch wide over the open window or door of a room. It is, however, absolutely necessary that the rooms to which this is applied should have the light enter by one side only. But you will say the flies could easily get through such wide meshes. Of course they could. But—and this is the remarkable thing about it—they don't, and they won't!

This is not a new idea at all. In fact, it is over two thousand years old. Herodotus records that the Egyptian fishermen protected themselves from the attacks of mosquitoes by spreading their fishing nets over their beds. Americans often have mosquito nets with meshes an inch square put over their beds, and find them a perfect security, though, as is well known, mosquitoes will creep through any small hole in an ordinary gauze net.

"Save the surface and you save all" Paint & Varnish

Economical—
Because It Covers More

EVEN if this paint were sold at a price half as high as any other—it would still be the economical paint to use on your house. In sheer covering capacity it has no equal. A gallon of it goes so far that you'll buy less of it and yet do more with it.

B-H PAINT
"ENGLISH" 70% Pure White Lead (Dormer's Formula B-H)
30% Pure White Zinc
100% Pure Paint

This paint is guaranteed to possess as its important traits the above formula which we inscribe on every can. The result of such a formula is all that you could ask in brilliance of color and in proper "body"—a paint which gives a fine lasting finish, excelling all others in "covering capacity" and in durability. Paint with B-H "English" Paint—and your house is protected for years, where a coat of ordinary paint will last but a few months.

Dogs.

(Christian Science Monitor)

Dogs are a tremendous subject. To write their history would be very easy to write the history of the human race, for practically wherever the human race is or ever has been there are and ever have been dogs. All down the centuries, in every country of the world, the dog of man has followed at the heels of some master, has rejoiced exuberantly in his favor, has abased itself utterly under the cloud of displeasure, and ever ready and eager to forget all differences, has reckoned the maintenance of good relations as the greatest thing in the world.

And so, from far back in the past, when the dog had no real history, when he is known to have existed at all only because of the rude carving of some solid rock overlooking some old sea, from those dim times the characteristic of the dog that seems to have come down to the present along one wonderfully unbroken line is his faithfulness. Five thousand years before the Christian era, the Egyptian peasant, as he watched each year for the happening of the great miracle, the rising of the Nile, noticed that its gracious waters began to trickle over his parched land at the time that a certain glorious star appeared above the horizon. So inevitably did the rising of the Nile follow upon the rising of the star that, to the peasant, the dog's faithfulness could only be compared to the faithfulness of his star, and thus Sirius came to be called the Dog Star. Thus, even at that time, the dog had established himself firmly in the human mind, one whose changing that of a paragon for the eastern people, his devotion failed to make him still regarded for the most part amongst men, had no difficulty in maintaining its position as the faithful companion in the life of some famous and looked for and that any narrow almost to path afforded a subtle and again, a and a record down to the present.

And now, the dog of the century did the sentry duty of the No-Mans patches through tangles.

DON'T BUY SO MANY BOOTS

SINCE "Hi-Press" has come on the market fishermen are putting many a good dollar back into their pockets that used to go for footwear.

This wonderful boot actually gives two and three times the wear of the ordinary kind. And it's mighty good-looking and comfortable in the bargain.

Here's the idea—"Hi-Press" Rubber Boots are made in a new and vastly better way. They are molded—like an auto tire—INTO ONE SOLID PIECE! They CAN'T leak or peel and there seems no wear-out to them. Millions of fishermen, miners and farmers won't wear anything else. Try them yourself.

Whenever you buy an article of rubber see that it bears this trade-mark. The wreath and the "G" is the sign of Quality and assurance that the House of Goodrich stands solidly behind its products.

Dogs.

(Christian Science Monitor.)
Dogs are a tremendous subject. To write their history would be very easy to write the history of the human race, for practically wherever the human race is or ever has been there are and ever have been dogs. All down the centuries, in every country of the world, the dog of man has followed at the end of some master, has rejoiced exuberantly in his favor, has abased himself utterly under the cloud of displeasure, and, ever ready and ever eager to forget all differences, has reckoned the maintenance of relations as the greatest thing in the world.

And so, from far back in the past, when the dog had no real history, when he is known to have existed at only because of the rude carving of some solid rock overlooking some sea, from those dim times the characteristic of the dog that seems to have come down to the present along one wonderfully unbroken and his faithfulness. Five thousand years before the Christian era, the Egyptian peasant, as he watched each year for the happening of the Nile, and thus Sirius came to be called the Dog Star. Thus, even at that time, the dog had established himself firmly as the friend of man, one whose faithfulness was so unchanging that it formed a just comparison for the rising of a star. True, there were and are certain eastern peoples to whom the dog, all his devotion notwithstanding, has failed to make appeal, amongst whom he is still regarded as an outcast. For the most part, however, and amongst most people, the dog has had no difficulty in establishing his position as the friend of man, and in maintaining and adding to his reputation in this capacity. Instances are so famous and so many, so utterly looked for and taken for granted, that any narration of them amounts almost to pathos. Dog devotion has afforded a subject to the artist again and again, a story for the writer, and a record for the historian, right down to the present time.

And now, during the past four years, the dog has given such a proof of his faithfulness to the best traditions of the dog race that all over the world his praises are being sounded. The story of the war-dog and his doings is gradually being pieced together. From the very beginning of the war, as one writer has expressed it, dogs "had a paw in it." When the Germans invaded Belgium, the harness dogs, which up to that time had been used for hauling milk, vegetables, and other produce, began to assist the refugees in getting their children and household goods out of the invaded country. Later they hauled light artillery, and carts laden with blankets, bread, hay, and scores of other things for the comfort of the soldiers and their horses. Dogs did sentry duty in the trenches, patrolled No-Man's Land, carried dispatches through barbed wire entanglements, amid a hail of bullets, and, above all, added to the laurels of their ancestors through the ages by seeking out and helping the wounded everywhere, on the far-flung battle-fields of Europe and beyond. Never was there a time, so it would seem, when the place of the dog in the affections of the human race ought to have been more secure. And yet, side by side with all this recognition of what the dog is and deserves, there still stands and apparently easily maintains itself, the system of the vivisectionist. It is a system which must, of course, ultimately fail, because, amongst other reasons, of its simple depravity. But, for the present, this depravity is covered up for the multitude under the terrible plea of "progress"; whilst the devastating charge of "sentiment" is hurled at all and sundry which take exception to the practice. "There are many things worse than sentiment," said a famous English judge, not long ago, "and one of them is cruelty." Ingratitude is another.

Their Part.

"If the principles for which millions died had been adhered to we would be free," remarks Edmond de Valera, Sinn Fein leader. Without attempting a judgment on the merits of the main question, "may we not" suggest that there is something resembling a kick-back in Mr. de Valera's utterance? His reference to the millions who died for liberty is likely to revive recollection of the fact that while gallant Irishmen were so dying Sinn Fein leaders were engaged in plotting with the Germans who were seeking to wipe liberty from the earth.—New York Herald.

Mirrors Show Too Much.

Street cars in Los Angeles are equipped with safety mirrors so the motor-man can see the rear end of his car. Many women have made complaints to the traction officials that these tiny mirrors reveal more than they are intended to do. Fashion's decree of tight and short skirts is the real cause of the complaints. Women say they are embarrassed by the stares of the motormen as they climb aboard the cars. Officials of the company enter counter complaint that tight skirts delay the cars and sometimes cause accidents. In addition, the officials contend, the motormen are doing their duty when they watch the mirrors to see that passengers are on the cars before starting.

Cromwell's Red Coats.

The origin of the scarlet uniform that was so familiar in pre-war days appears to be somewhat obscure. The Yeoman of the Guard, who were the first to wear it in 1485, probably took the colour from the Red Dragon of Wales, though the true colours of the Tudors were green and white. The scarlet, however, appears suddenly as the uniform of the New Model Army of 1645—the army which won the battle of Naseby and finally overthrew the party of King Charles I. There is nothing to indicate why this hue was chosen. A contemporary manuscript says, tersely: "The men are red-coats all the whole army." And that is all.

There are several ironical features about this famous Parliamentary Army. Its place of rendezvous was Windsor, and its senior regiment was clad in scarlet with blue facings—for two centuries past the Royal colours.

It was raised to combat Royal tyranny (at least, such was its profession), and its ranks were filled mainly by impressment, or, in plain words, by conscription, which is not generally supposed to consort with liberty. One would have thought that at the Restoration it would have been swept away, together with everything that might recall it.

For the Good of the Public.

The French parliament lost no time in passing a law providing for a general eight-hour day for labor after the recommendations of the Labour Legislation Commission of the peace conference became known. The plan of the new French law is, broadly, to establish by legislation an eight-hour day for all workers, but to leave the date and conditions of its application to be fixed by industry, or district by district, under administrative orders.—Montreal Herald.

When you want something in a hurry for tea, go to ELLIS—Head Cheese, Ox Tongue, Boiled Ham, Cooked Corned Beef, Bologna Sausage.

The Penalty for Germany.

(The Sentinel.)
The German people are learning that "whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." They sowed the wind; they are reaping the whirlwind. That is in the course of Divine justice.

When the ruthless hordes of the Kaiser swept through Belgium and Northern France their only thought was to plunder their neighbors, and enslave them for their own enrichment. It was a barbarous design that only a race of barbarians could conceive and attempt to put into effect. To defeat them the resources of the world were staked, and their peaceable neighbors brought to the verge of ruin. For all this suffering and sorrow they must pay a heavy price, and they while about the terms of their punishment as if it were not richly deserved.

Unfortunately it is impossible to make them pay the full price. Their destructive energy was so great, and it was so efficiently used, that the material loss they occasioned is beyond their ability to make good. But so far as their resources for the next half century can pay the bill they will be called upon to do it. Anything less would be a monumental failure of justice. The Peace Conference would merit the condemnation of the world had the members of that body made the conditions any easier. The world can afford to do it. Indeed it must—disregard the outcry of the German leaders and show firmness and determination, if for no other reason, to teach the Hun that such attacks upon inoffensive people do not pay. When the German people for two generations labor to pay the penalty of the crimes of the Kaiser perhaps it may modify their brutal nature—but even that is not by any means certain.
