AUSTRIA ALARMED OVER FLU.
VIENNA, Jan. 28.
The spread of epidemics in eastern Europe is gravely alarming Austria. Influenza in virulent form is increasing in Vienna and Budapest. Spotted fever is spreading in Ukraine, Rumania and Poland.

INFLUENZA BAD IN HUNGARY.
BUDAPEST, Jan. 28.
Influenza victims are increasing in city, many dropping in the streets. Government is requisitioning medicines because of present scarcity. Hungarian frontiers are tightly closed as a barrier against the disease, as well as to prevent the export of food and valuables.

CHILD MORTALITY AMONG CHILDREN IN EUROPE.
GENOA, Jan. 28.
Disaster threatens Europe through increasing mortality among children. There will be a rapid spread of disease unless help is available, especially from Great Britain and the United States, according to reports of delegating delegates to the recent "save children" conference held here.

DEFEAT FOR SOCIALISTS.
BUDAPEST, Jan. 28.
Returns of elections to the National Assembly held this week, show a crushing defeat for Socialist elements. Monarchists and the peasant party bring the great majority of members.

HUNGARY VOTES FOR MONARCHY.
BUDAPEST, Jan. 28.

WATCHING ASQUITH.
LONDON, Jan. 28.
The intensity of the interest in the Paisley election may be gathered from the perfect army of newspaper correspondents who have gone north to follow former Premier Asquith's campaign. Evidently Mr. Asquith intends dealing with general political principles and present day aspects of national affairs step by step.

BARNES' RESIGNATION REGRETTED.
LONDON, Jan. 28.
The announcement of the resignation of Hon. George Barnes from the Government produces from the journals supporting the Ministry expressions of whole-hearted regret. There is no reason to believe that his resignation will produce any immediate cleavage in the present ministry.

JUGO-SLAVS REFUSE COMPROMISE.
PARIS, Jan. 28.
The Jugo-Slav reply to the Allied ultimatum regarding the Adriatic question, received in Paris this afternoon, amounts to a virtual refusal of the compromise offered by the Italians. It is believed to suggest a new basis of compromise along the lines of President Wilson's proposal.

MAYNOOTH, Ireland, Jan. 28.
Strong condemnation of the proposed Irish education bill was expressed to-day at the assembly here of Cardinal Archbishop and Bishops. The speakers described the measure as the most demoralizing scheme put forward for Ireland since the Act of Union. They declared that until Ireland was governing herself any attempt to abolish existing boards of Education as proposed by the bill would be resisted as a measure to deprive the clergy of control. The Dutch Press is beginning to show some signs of alarm in consequence of Holland's refusal to grant the extradition of the former ruler, but it is learned that the Government is "tranquil and determined to stick to its attitude."

ST. JOHN'S — N. F. —

Dissolution of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association.

Department of the Colonial Secretary,
January 27, 1920.
Editor Evening Telegram
Sir,—The Colonial Secretary has received from the High Commissioner, London, a short account of the Proceedings at the Final Meeting of the Newfoundland War Contingent Association, which was held at the Colonial Office on the 31st October last. It has been thought that as the work done by the Members of the Association during the years of the war, especially in connection with the Royal Newfoundland Regiment, has been so invaluable that the people of the country would be interested in reading this short resume of the proceedings. The enclosed copy is therefore forwarded to you in the hope that you may think it worthy a space in your columns.

The Prime Minister has, on behalf of the Government and of the people sent an expression of the highest appreciation of the helpful and sympathetic services rendered to our boys by the Association, as well as the notable generosity of the Members in many other ways.
I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,
ARTHUR MEWS,
Deputy Colonial Secretary.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE FINAL MEETING OF THE NEWFOUNDLAND WAR CONTINGENT ASSOCIATION.
There was a full attendance of the members of the Newfoundland War

Contingent Association at its Final Meeting, which was held in the Council Chamber of the Colonial Office on the 31st October, 1919. Some of the original members have passed away, notably, Lady Louisa Fielding, Sir William MacGregor, Lord Brassey, with others who took up the duty and have faithfully worked for the good and well being of the men of Newfoundland since the formation of the Association in September 1915. There are still eight wounded men in Hospital who require the care of the Association, and other matters requiring to be completed, but it became necessary to close the accounts of the Association in order to render an account of the Fund to the War Charity Commissioners. The accounts were therefore closed and the Association dissolved, and in order to deal with any outstanding questions the balance of £1584 was transferred to the High Commissioner, and two or three members were nominated to give Sir Edgar Bowring any assistance he might require in these matters. Besides the remaining men in Hospital, there is the Final Report which has been compiled by the Hon. Secretary and is to be printed in book form for distribution to the members of the Association and to the Government of Newfoundland, and to all others that have been interested in the work of the Association in England.

Soldiers Memorial in England.
Another duty that falls to the care of the High Commissioner and the members nominated to assist him is the erection of the memorial over the graves of those soldiers of the Dominion that are buried at Wandsworth. It has been agreed that the form of the memorial should be a replica of the Cenotaph at Whitehall built of Newfoundland granite but reduced in size to suit the plot purchased by the Association at Wandsworth. Built of Newfoundland stone, hewn out of the hills of their Homeland, and representing the monument to the "Glorious Dead" already hallowed by the March Past in reverence of thousands of their comrades on the field of battle and the continuous use of the memorial as an Altar, our memorial to our own men should be a fitting tribute to those who were in the field were second to none, and of whom Sir Douglas Haig wrote "Their bravery has never been surpassed." At this Final Meeting of the Association the members were unanimous in their expressions of thanks to the Government of Newfoundland for their promise to present the necessary blocks of granite, and it is hoped that by next spring, when the ground is thoroughly consolidated to carry the weight, the monument will be completed.

Lady Morris expressed the appreciation of the members of the Executive Committee of the work of the Hon. Secretary Mr. Henry Reeve, and of Miss Knox the Secretary, both of whom had worked for the Association since its inception. Mrs. Green supported Lady Morris's expression.
Lord Morris moved a resolution on behalf of the General Committee: "That this Association shall be hereby dissolved" and spoke a few words in appreciation of its work, which he said had been felt by the soldiers from the time they left their own shores, and in every theatre of the War in which they had served. The High Commissioner in seconding the motion, extended his thanks on behalf of Newfoundland, to all the members who had done such good work for the fighting men, the sick and wounded, and the prisoners of war from the Dominion. Sir Edgar recalled the beginnings of the effort, when he and Sir Edward Ward and Sir William Macgregor met to discuss what could be done for the comfort of the Contingent when it was coming over, and added he considered the Association would be well advised to have the record of its work clearly set out in a full report, to be published in Newfoundland, but if it were published over there it would be of great interest and would ensure that everyone in the Dominion should know the splendid way in which our soldiers have been looked after.

The meeting closed by a Resolution of Thanks to the Chairman for the admirable way in which he had conducted the affairs of the Association, proposed by Dr. Crowdy and seconded by Dr. Green.

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Aspirin—No others!

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.
There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations. Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute.
Aspirin is not German but is made in America, and is owned by an American Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.
Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis.
Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had at any drug store.
Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A WAY TO MAKE FOLKS HAPPY.

Find a person who senses instinctively when people want to talk about some particular subject that is dear to their hearts, and tries to give them the chance to do it, and you have found a popular woman or man (I put the sexes in that revolutionary order because the chances of its being a woman are ten to one against the chances of its being a man).

Here's the sort of thing I mean: He Wants to Tell About His Grandson.

A group of people were standing in a hotel lobby, talking about such impersonal subjects as the weather, the C. of L., etcetera. One of the group, an elderly man, carefully brought the conversation around to a point where he could say "My grandson, who was in the service, thinks—" The rest of the group would have passed this by with a comment on what the young man thought, but one woman adroitly picked it up with "Is that that fine looking young man who dined with you the other day? What branch of the service was he in?" The eager pride with which the old man seized upon this opening must have been repaid for any effort required. But do not think it took any great effort, for she is the sort of person who has trained herself to see when people are aching for a chance to talk about something. And she is also the sort of person who is in demand for social gatherings of every sort.

He Was Kindly Disposed But Not Tactful.

Sometimes people who are most kindly in intent are not adroit in their line. They are thinking too intently about other things, or they lack the sympathetic imagination which could show them in just what direction the response would be most welcome. Some people I know were talking about big snow storms they had seen. One man was telling about the storm of '88. He started to tell how the snow from the streets was piled on the college grounds (he lived in a college town) and an eager, well-intentioned listener broke in with "It does make a lot of work for the poor people—that's one good thing about snow." The man assented, but there was a bereft expression on his face as the conversation followed this new course, and the reason for it was plain when, a minute or two later, another woman tactfully brought the conversation back to him by saying, "That snow must have made a tremendous heap on the college grounds." He brightened up instantly and went on to tell what he had plainly wanted to tell—that the snow did not entirely melt until Decoration Day.

The Ten to One Man.

A man (the rare exception) once told me that he made it a special business to watch for times like this—when someone had been interrupted, either by a swing in the conversation or by a mechanical interruption, in an attempt to tell some anecdote—and to bring the conversation back so that the anecdote could be told. He said you couldn't give so much pleasure so easily in any other way.

Try it and see.

Important!

Every man starting out in business will have to go over a hard road and find out its turnings for himself. But he need not go over his road in the dark if he can take with him the light of other men's experience.

Airship Service for the Seafishing.

Major K. E. Clayton-Kennedy, of the Aircraft Manufacturing Company, of London, England, has just returned from Newfoundland, where he has inaugurated the first airship service in connection with the seal fisheries. The entire question of seal-fishery observation by aeroplane seems most feasible, and its practical application will be watched with interest by all those interested both in sealing and in aviation. Major Kennedy spent two days in Truro in connection with the organization of the Eastern Canada Air Lines with which the De Vere Aviation Company has been amalgamated. The amalgamated companies are being financed through the Aircraft Manufacturing Company of London, England, of which Mr. G. Holt Thomas, the greatest authority on aeronautics in the world to-day, is president and Managing Director. There will be a small amount of stock placed on the local market and will be available at an early date. — Morning Chronicle, Halifax, N.S.

Just Folks by Edgar A. Guest

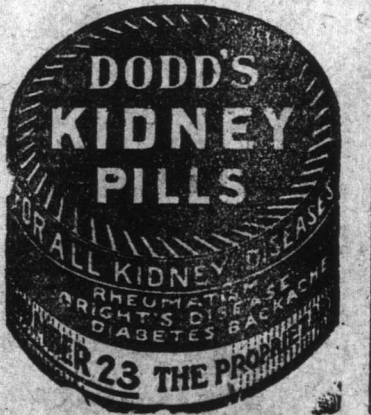

I'VE BEEN DOWN TO THE BARBER SHOP.

I've been down to the barber shop. An' I got my hair all trimmed on top. An' I smell as nice as my Ma when she is all fixed up for some company. I sat in the chair that the men sit in. An' I wore a sheet up to my chin. An' the barber said in a real nice way, "Well, how'll you have it trimmed to-day?"

I've been down to the barber shop. An' Ma she didn't have time to stop. So she left me alone, coz she couldn't wait. To see that the barber cut it straight. He rigged up a seat like a little shelf. An' I climbed right up in the chair myself. An' the barber said, as he got shears, "Will you have it clipped behind the ears?"

"It looks like snow," said the barber then. Just the way that he talks to men. "The winter's long an' the weather's rough. An' I feel almost like I'd had enough." An' I talked to him in his barber chair. Got hair in my eyes, but I didn't care. Then he said: "Will you try my dandruff cure?" An' showed me a bottle, an' I said, "Sure!"

He rubbed some in an' it burned a lot. For I didn't know that the stuff was hot. But I didn't cry—I was sittin' there. Just like my Pa in a barber's chair. Then I gave him the money when he was through. An' I got my change, an' I tipped him, too. I gave him a dime for himself, becuz I've watched my Pa, an' he always does.

Sir John Alcock.

(From the Manchester Guardian.)
The news of Sir John Alcock's death underlines with tragic emphasis the risks that still attach to man's mastery of the air. Few details of the accident that caused it have yet arrived, but enough is known to point the obvious irony of an historic flight across the Atlantic followed by a fatal disaster in the course of a few miles' flight in France. Such ironies have been often and lamentably illustrated in the brief history of flying by machines that are heavier than air. It would be a bold man who would deny that in the end they will not be eliminated and—in view of the fact that it is scarcely more than ten years since Bleriot's flight of the Channel was a nine days' wonder—it would be a still bolder one who would put any great length of time between flying as we now know it and flying when it will be as safe as motoring. But for the present its tragic hazards are very obvious indeed, and its pioneers, from C. R. Rolls onwards, who have paid the price of their great adventure, have risked as much on behalf of progress as any hero that time can show. When Sir John Alcock and his companion in the great Atlantic flight were in Manchester—which has a special interest in Sir John's achievement—Sir Arthur Brown quoted, as a comment on their joint feat, the lines of Kipling:

After me cometh a builder;
Tell him I, too, have built.

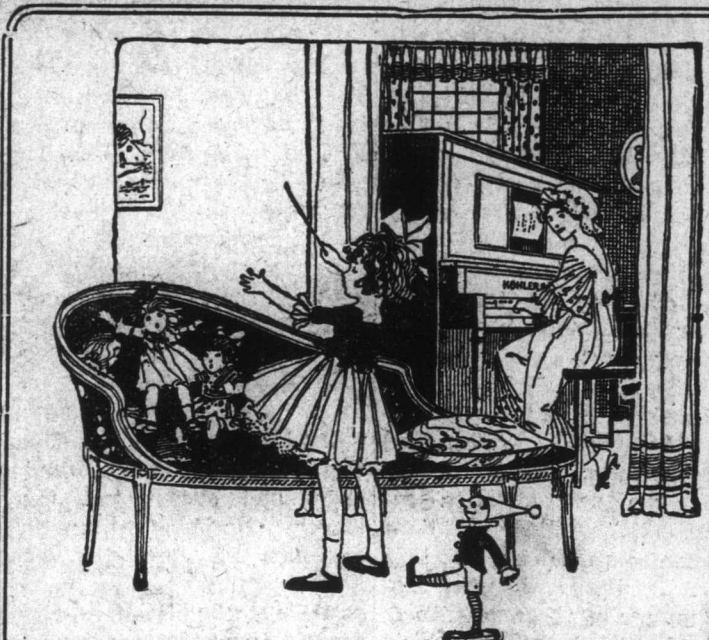

By the side of the long death-roll of British airmen one might very well amend another verse from the same writer. If blood be the price of airmanship, in these last ten years, we have paid it from our best.

Very Determined.

A young Scottish solicitor, Mr. A. R. Duncan, who is getting £2,500 a year as Coal Controller, is one of the men who have made good in the last half-dozen years. He is a hard worker, with the saving grace of humour.

His favorite story concerns an Irish barrister, who, addressing the Bench, said:—

"Your honour, I shall first absolutely prove to the jury that the prisoner could not have committed the crime with which he is charged. If that does not convince the jury, I shall show that he was insane when he committed it. If that fails I shall prove an alibi."

The Best Seller.

(From the Haverhill Gazette.)

The American Bible Society reports the biggest year in history for the Bible. Last year thirty-five million copies were sold and distributed in the United States, and this year's circulation will exceed that number. A Bible can be bought for twenty-five cents. We know no better bargain. In its three or four thousandth year it is still the most popular book. When we were a boy we lived in a house with a wonderful old attic in which were stored old toys and old books and old letters. And when we had explored the place time and again we always surprised ourselves by finding some forgotten thing, so that the old attic always seemed new to us. So with the Bible. You think you have read it all. Go through its pages again this evening and find some new consolation, some new term, some new wisdom, some new example of matchless English. Thus, the other day a friend of ours wandering through his Bible discovered a rich treasure of wisdom in Ecclesiastes. Like the boy, searching among treasures in the old attic, he had overlooked it on previous explorations. Suppose you treat yourself to a chapter of Ecclesiastes before you go to bed to-night. It is well worth while.

Inadequate Transportation.

The transportation problem becomes more difficult of solution as time advances, but that something must be done, without delay, to serve the thousands of people in the external portions of the Dominion who are entirely dependent for supplies on the movements of trains and steamboats from St. John's and Port aux Basques, is fast becoming the general opinion. So imperative is the necessity for a resumption of the tramped railway service that the Board of Trade has taken the matter up, though beyond adopting a resolution showing the "shocking lack of facilities," and urging "upon the Government the necessity of creating a commission, forthwith, to study the transportation requirements," nothing was done at Tuesday's meeting of that body. Doubtless when the subject matter of the resolution is again discussed, remedies may be suggested, but by that time, unless a drastic change takes place meanwhile, the situation may bristle with far greater and more numerous difficulties than are presented at the moment, which will only have the effect of adding to the trouble of solution and increasing the complexities of an already involved internal domestic trouble.

That there exists a shocking lack of adequate transportation facilities requires no Sherlock Holmes to deduce, therefore the question arises how and in what way can prevailing conditions be remedied. The answer, of course, is obvious. Increase the number of carriers by water and add to the equipment of the railway. But how may those extra effects be obtained? Upon the answer to that depends the solution of the problem confronting the whole country. It is easy to say get, but not quite so easy to get. Nevertheless the matter of affording relief to places in the interior must be taken up promptly. Making every allowance for the abnormal weather conditions with which the land-carrying concerns have to contend, is there any real reason why some kind of service should not be maintained at least once a week with settlements along the railway line. That the company operating the train service is endeavouring to do the very best at its command no one doubts, yet advice coming in from all quarters North, complain of settlements being isolated through the collapse of the cross-country train service, and people are imploring that something be done to get them in communication as speedily as possible.

Difficulties exist everywhere, and to overcome them neither effort nor money must be spared. With supplies low at such important centres as Grand Falls, Bishop's Falls, Botwood and other places connected only by rail, there is urgent necessity for relief, which the clearing of the railway track alone can bring. Beside the settled population of these places, there is always an influx from other points, particularly at the present time when additional men are coming in to engage in the winter's logging. These mean extra camps and more food supplies, which latter must be provided. Already stocks held by the companies are becoming depleted, and several private stores are without the smaller—but no less vital—necessaries of life. The position is a grave one unless communication is shortly established. The contemplation of what might ensue should the necessary supplies be delayed much longer, is not pleasant. So critical is the situation about the settlements previously named, that there is fear of famine, as the stores of food are now practically exhausted, and with the daily arrivals of loggers for camp it is imperative that a supreme effort be made to get supplies along. The shortage is real. The people sending in "rush food" messages are not exaggerating the perilous situation, and the outcome now depends on speedy action and prompt measures.

Since 1920 opened, Grand Falls has had but three mails, two inward, one outward. Freight trains have been unable to get through and orders for provisions have been delayed in consequence. The daily consumption has increased because of the extra men coming in to engage in the logging industry. What is true of Grand Falls, is equally true of Bishop's Falls, Badger, Botwood and the other logging camp headquarters. Supplies are running short and cannot last much longer. Beside feeding their own men the companies have helped out the settlers, so far as their stocks permitted, which created an unexpected drain on not over large supplies on hand. With these exhausted and no prospect of relief, the outlook is anything but cheerful, therefore there should be no hesitation in using every means at the disposal of both railway company and Government to get the line cleared and the long overdue supplies rushed to those who are standing on the verge of hunger.

Grand Falls.
Last year the exports of the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. totalled five million dollars or practically one-sixth of the value of the amount of the Dominion's shipments to outside countries for the past twelve months ending December 31st, 1919. Local business done by the company during the same period reached the half million figure.
For the winter of 1920 the loggers' monthly pay roll for Grand Falls only will reach the handsome sum of $60,000.
But two inward mails have been received at the Paper City since the year opened, and only one was dispatched. Such a condition handicaps business in the extreme. The conduct of commercial transactions by wire and cable entail many delays and inconveniences.
Considering that the Company rendered valuable assistance to Newfoundland during the progress of the late war by placing its shipping at the disposal of the Government, it would be but a repayment in kind if the transportation facilities between the Falls and the Capital were speeded up and made better and more regular. No concern can conduct business under the present-day conditions, more especially one cut off altogether from direct communication, excepting by telegraph, which, as mentioned before, cannot take the place of regular and voluminous correspondence.—Com.

Here's good news for the thirsty! Your over popular favorite Coca-Cola has just been tapped, and awaits your pleasure. It is remarkable how many people say about Coca-Cola, like Katharine in "The Taming of the Shrew"—"and it I will have, or I will have none"; but those who are devotees of this drink are quite as much surprised when anybody displays a liking for any other flavor than Coca-Cola. But that is where tastes differ. At any rate, here is Coca-Cola full and plenty.
Also, just opened: Danderine, the famous hair tonic.

EDUCATIONAL PRIZE COMPETITION.
The club rooms of the C.C.C. Old Comrades will be formally opened on the night of March 16th. A dinner will be served and a concert held. On the afternoon of St. Patrick's Day the boys of the C.C.C. will be treated to dinner and a musical and minstrel entertainment. It was decided at last evening's meeting of the Executive of the Old Comrades, that the boy bringing in the largest number of recruits from March 1st up to the summer holidays, would be given five years' tuition at St. Bon's College, the prize to be continued indefinitely. It is probable, also, that the conclusion of the five years' study, arrangements will be made to offer him and his successors free study abroad for any profession he might choose. This is a most commendable offer and deserves great praise.

Comparative Food Value of Milk in the Diet.

Milk is seven-eighths water and one-eighth milk solids. If the milk solids are separated from the water of milk, the food value of milk may be conserved in a dry powder form which will keep without spoiling, weigh only one-eighth as much as fresh liquid milk, and overcomes all milk-bottle troubles. Note the analyses of liquid milk and KLIM below:—

LIQUID WHOLE MILK.

Water	87.5%
Fat	3.5%
Protein	3.5%
Milk Sugar	4.7%
Ash	0.8
	100%

"KLIM"

Water	1.7%
Fat	3%
Protein	38.6%
Milk Sugar	59.9%
Ash	0.5
	100%

KLIM is powdered separated milk containing no free water, KLIM contains all the bodybuilding proteins and heat-producing carbohydrates of the fresh milk from which it is made. The bodybuilding content of a pound of KLIM is nearly ten times that of a pound of liquid milk. The small amount of fat in KLIM is little disadvantage from a food point of view in the ordinary home, because enough fat is obtained in the usual way in meats, butter, and other foods.
55 cents buys you a gallon of milk in the powdered form at all grocers, whereas the liquid milk is seven-eighths water costs 95 cents. Your grocer can heartily recommend it.

ONLY HOPE IS LABOR.

BELFAST, Jan. 28. The official report of the Parliamentary Labor Party delegates, which has been investigating conditions in Ireland, declines an alliance with the Nationalist Party. It declared that the fact that the Nationalists recently addressed Irish supporters in Great Britain to vote for Labor candidates, means only that the Nationalist Party is convinced that the only party ready to give justice to Ireland is that of Labor.

TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. RATE.

BOSTON, Jan. 28. For Government accounting purposes the pound sterling will be figured at $3.65, beginning February 1, according to Treasury Department announcement sent by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, to all naval stations to-day.

EXPRESSING DISAPPROVAL.

LONDON, Jan. 28. The Russian section of the London Chamber of Commerce has passed a resolution to the effect that the Government proposals regarding trade with Russia, are inadequate and unsatisfactory, and suggesting that the Government make a definite and not an indefinite arrangement for trade relationships.

EVADED THE AUTHORITIES.

LONDON, Jan. 28. News that George Lansbury, former Socialist member of the House of Commons, had arrived in Stockholm, on his way to Soviet Russia, caused considerable surprise in official circles, where there had been no previous intimation that he intended to make such a trip. The purpose of his trip to Soviet Russia is a matter for speculation, although his extremist views are well known.

POWHATAN INVESTIGATION.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Jan. 28. Investigation of the cause of the disabling of the American transport Powhatan at sea, being made by an official board sitting at New York. In announcing this to-day the War Department said that reports regarding Bolshevik activities by members of the transport crew, or others on board, had thus far been proven to be without foundation.

GERMANY'S CONDITION.

BERLIN, Jan. 28. "We have only arrived at a vale of tears, through which we are forced to pass," said the Minister of Agriculture, Herr Dreyer, in the Prussian Diet to-day, in connection with the food debate, "and worse times are coming. The masses must be told that our only hope is in increased work." The announcement that Germany would soon arrive at a point where she would be unable to buy anything.

Wedding Bells.

MAHAR-QUIGLEY.

A very pretty wedding took place at Torbay on the 6th inst., when Miss Margaret Quigley, of St. John's, and Mr. Patrick Mahar of Flatrock, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Fr. Ashley, P.P. The bride was daintily attired in a dress of white satin, with a large picture hat, and was assisted by her cousin, Miss Agnes Parsons, and the groom was ably supported by his cousin, Mr. John Mahar. After the nuptial knot was tied the bridal party drove to the groom's home, where some seventy sat down to a sumptuous repast, after which dancing was begun and kept up until the small hours. The bride and groom were the recipients of many valuable presents, including one from the patients of the Etesason Hospital. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Mahar wish them every success in their future life.—Com.

"Golden" Weddings.

How Money is Spent When a Millionaire's Daughter Marries.

If many an American millionaire has not been able to spend the equivalent of a $5 note on his own wedding, he is ready to squander a million dollars on his daughter's nuptials; and, in addition, to provide her with a dowry few queens have taken to their husbands.

When, for example, Miss Morgan, daughter of the multi-millionaire banker, was wedded to Mr. Satterlee, the ceremony was over in a quarter of an hour, but every minute of the fifteen cost many thousands of dollars; while the guests, who witnessed it represented at least $200,000,000 of the world's wealth.

The orchids, roses, and tropical flowers which made St. George's Church a "bower of Eden," cost $2,000; $1,000 was the price of the bridal gown of heavy white satin, trimmed with point-lace; the bride's trousseau was valued at $10,000; and the officiating clergyman received a fee of a thousand dollars. For the reception Mr. Pierpont Morgan's house in Madison Square was transformed into a veritable Aladdin's Palace, the tapestries alone which decorated the walls being worth $100,000.

When Miss Elsie French wore a bridal veil for Mr. Alfred Vanderbilt some years ago, we are told the wedding was a dream of such splendor that it recalled the most extravagantly lawless description of the "Arabian Nights." The cost of the social side of the ceremony was $20,000, while the groom settled three-quarters of a million pounds on the fortunate bride. The presents were estimated to have cost $100,000, and were of the most varied and the richest character imaginable.

Even more fortunate was Miss Alice Roosevelt when, a few years ago, she was married to Mr. Longworth, a wealthy member of Congress. From kings and cowboys, millionaires, and rough-riders, the presents poured into the White House until their number rose to 4,000, and their value to a million dollars; while they ranged from gorgeously-gemmed tiaras and necklaces to mammoth turkeys and pumpkins, potatoes and apples. The tribute of her father's humble admirers in the Far West.

German Perfidy.

In spite of the solemn affirmation made by the German Government several weeks ago to the effect that there were no more French prisoners of war in Germany, seven soldiers were found a few weeks ago in German jails, says a Paris despatch. One young soldier named Louis Boucher, aged 20, returned to his home at Dijon after being a prisoner in Germany since June 6, 1918. In a Danish fortress he was imprisoned in a dark underground cell, when he saw nothing and heard nothing from the day he entered the cell up to some weeks ago, when his captivity came to an end by the arrival of French officers at the prison. These officers visited all the cells of the fortress, and to their amazement, they discovered seven French soldiers, including Boucher. Not one of them knew anything of the conclusion of peace. These seven soldiers were immediately set free, and they have been repatriated.

ICE HARVESTING.—A number of men started harvesting ice from Long Pond yesterday. Owing to a heavy coating of snow the work is slow as all the covering for a considerable space has to be cleared away before a hole can be opened. The ice is said to be 22 inches thick.

There is no use in keeping the draught on the kitchen range after the pots have started to boil. The boiling will continue and coal will be saved if the draught is checked at this point.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, &c.

St. John's Municipal Council. Tenders for Houses.

TENDERS for the purchase of Twelve Houses, erected by the Municipal Council on Quidi Vidi Road will be received at the Office of the Secretary-Treasurer at the City Hall by February 4th, 1920.

Two houses are ready for immediate delivery; two more will be ready within two weeks, and the others during the following two months.

The Houses will be sold at the cost price, which cannot yet be accurately ascertained, but it is calculated will be approximately $2,000 each.

As it is the intention of the Council to continue to erect houses until the demand is satisfied, and to turn over the money used as rapidly as possible, the order of preference will be according to the offers made by intending purchasers:

- (1) As to the amount of cash to be paid against the purchase.
- (2) The length of time required in which to pay off the balance.

The ground rent of each lot will be $20.00 per annum, and the term of the lease will be for 99 years. As the land is Imperial property, it is impossible at present to sell the freehold, but the Council has applied for the full release of the land, and if obtained, will sell the freehold at any time during the term of the lease by the payment of twenty years' ground rent. Interest on the unpaid balance will be charged at the current rate.

As an instance: Presuming the cost of the House to be $2,000 and the purchaser desires to pay $1,000 in cash, and $1,000 in equal yearly payments, the amount to be paid annually, including interest at 5 1/2 p.c., for terms from 3 to 12 years, would be as follows:—

- To pay $1,000 in 3 years, $370.65 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 4 years, $285.30 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 5 years, $234.18 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 6 years, $200.17 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 7 years, $175.96 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 8 years, $157.86 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 9 years, $143.84 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 10 yrs., $132.67 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 11 yrs., $123.57 yearly.
- To pay $1,000 in 12 yrs., $116.03 yearly.

Big Audience at Star Hall.

Liberal-Labor Supporters Thanked, Speeches by Leader of Party and Candidates. A New Political Association Proposed.

The Liberal-Labor Party filled the Star Hall last night, and were addressed by the candidates in the late bye-election and also by Sir M. P. Cashin, Sir J. C. Crosbie, C. J. Fox, J. G. Stone, W. J. Higgins, W. J. Walsh, J. MacDonald, J. R. Bennett, N. J. Vinicombe and Chairman Cadwell. It was a real enthusiastic meeting, and the men who fought against Coaker rule in St. John's were in fact more pronounced than ever. The tone of the meeting was that full organization should be brought about, and that Liberal and Labor units should work hand in hand with the one object of defeating the oppressors of labor now in control of affairs. Before the meeting closed, action was decided upon, and in very short time one of the biggest organizations in the interests of the laborers, clerks, accountants, longshoremen or anything else, will have its origin in St. John's West, and that there are men to lead such an association to success was very much in evidence from the addresses given by the various speakers.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Cadwell a few minutes after eight o'clock, the first speaker being Sir M. P. Cashin. Sir Michael, after sincerely thanking the workmen for their hearty support on the 22nd inst., and particularly the committee for their active campaign, assured the meeting that the fight was not over, but only begun. The magnificent vote polled by Messrs. Martin and Linegar was to their credit, and though beaten they were not defeated and had nothing to be ashamed of. Continuing, he offered a caustic criticism on the misdoings and mismanagement of the Government, and the consequent result on the whole community. He said that though Messrs. Martin and Linegar had been defeated at the polls, the workmen could still count on a solid party in the House, and when any matters appertaining to their interests came before the Legislature, the Opposition would line up in force and see that the interests of the laborers, mechanics and clerks were fairly and honestly dealt with.

Sir John Crosbie followed, and in a splendid speech scored the Government. He was glad to be associated with the workmen of St. John's West in the late fight, and though their candidates were defeated they took their medicine like gentlemen. Like good Britons they would come back, and when another opportunity arose they would go right into the thickest of the fray and win out. A lot of promises had been made by the Government candidates during the election, but none of them would ever be carried out. While the election was on, some of the merchants supporting Mr. Squires and Mr. Brownrigg agreed to put flour at $15.00 a barrel, but he understood that it "jumped" in price since the election returns came in, and now it was a case of pay what we ask for it. Neither himself nor any of those associated with the Liberal-Labor Party had made any promises during the election, but now that it was over, he (Sir John Crosbie) had 1,000 barrels of flour in his store and he was going to sell it to the workmen at $15.00 a barrel, as long as it lasted, and no matter how high the others raised the price. He had not been associated with the elections in St. John's until during the last few weeks, being outside the city when elections were on, but having met such a true and trusted body as he did in the West End fight, he was going to stand by them through thick and thin, and if anything was in his power to help them, all they had to do was to call on him. "But," said Sir John, "I fear there are dark days coming for St. John's, and we will have to prepare to meet them. There never yet was a Tory Government but we met with hard times and it is certain we are going to meet them again." Dealing with the export regulations, Sir John reiterated what he had said at previous meetings.

Mr. Linegar was the next speaker, and heartily thanked the Committee and those who voted for him for their support. The votes received came from honest, intelligent and sincere men, who had no promises made to them, and he felt proud of their support. He felt sure that Sir Michael Cashin and his following would look after the interests of Labor in the House of Assembly, and he intended to keep them to their promise. He asked the workmen to lay their grievances before the Opposition party either directly or through himself, and he had no doubt they would be attended to.

Mr. Martin followed, and in voicing the sentiments of Mr. Linegar, thanked St. John's West for the very loyal support given. He and Mr. Linegar had fought a clean fight, and though defeated they were not ashamed of the vote polled. He asked the Committee to keep together and work for their own interests as they did during the bye-election.

Mr. J. MacDonnell being called to speak from the audience, most interestingly pointed out to the workmen the great victory they had accomplished. In November, 1919, Mr. Linegar, their leader, obtained 1025 votes. This was the first step. In January, 1920, he more than doubled that vote, which was the second step. The third was to hold together, prove that they were united, and now that the fight was over to get other men into the camp, to submerge party feeling and make ready for the big rally when Labor would come in its own, and the Liberal Labor Party sweep the country. So far as he was concerned, he was willing to lend his humble aid in organization of labor, and if wanted at any time, he was at the disposal of the workmen.

Mr. J. G. Stone was also called on to speak. He characterized the export regulations as the greatest obstacle ever put up against Newfoundland trade in the foreign markets, and worse. It was killing out competition in the local markets, and at no late date the price of fish would go so low that it would not be worth catching. Mr. Stone, before concluding, said though defeated in Trinity Bay, under extraordinary circumstances, felt he was not yet beaten, and was far from giving up the fight. The speeches of Messrs. Fox, Bennett, Walsh, Higgins and Vinicombe were also of a very high order and were punctuated with cheers by the vast concourse of Labor present. We regret that space is not available to-day to even give a brief synopsis of their addresses.

After a vote of thanks, proposed by Sir M. P. Cashin and seconded by Mr. J. T. Martin, to Chairman Cadwell and organizer Spratt, Mr. Linegar asked the audience if they intended to organize and stand by the Liberal-Labor Party, and every man in the hall rose to his feet, which was surely an evidence that the Liberal-Labor Party is preparing for a great big victory in the future. The singing of the National Anthem at 10.45 brought to a close a very successful meeting.

The Farmer's Lament.

The winter's rough and dreary
The snow piles on the land
Not green, nor scenes so cheery
Are seen on any hand.

The snow has topped the railings
The garden walls' interred;
And many plums are waiting
From cooped up goats are heard.

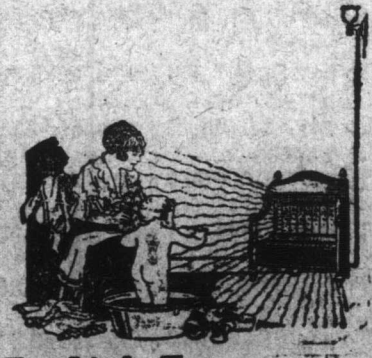

The stately dame no "longer"
Can stand their walling loud;
To raise the baring "longer"
She dons her heavy "cloud."

And now the "rovers" heave in sight,
I strain my eyes to see
Which one is at their mercy's plight
The apple or plum tree?

For hours full long and frosty
I've shovelled snow to save,
Those trees both dear and costly,
For sweet things which they gave.

And now those pesky critters
With horns and whickers brave
Have turned my works to bitterness
And I for vengeance crave.

I'll shoot your beastly monsters!
I'll slay them at my will!
Unless within a pound sir,
You'll keep your "Nan" and "Bill."

This Veteran Was Unable to Work for Year

Was All Run Down After Leaving Trenches—Gains Fifteen Pounds Taking Tanlac.

"For one year before I began taking Tanlac I was so weak I could not do a lick of work but now I have gained fifteen pounds in weight and am in the very best of health," said Arthur F. Ingram, of 4 George St., Halifax, N.S., a few days ago. Mr. Ingram saw four years of service in France with the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, being attached to the Fifth Artillery. He was engaged in some of the heaviest fighting of the whole war, including the battles of the Somme and Cambrai.

"I have been in miserable health ever since I got out of the Army, late last spring. In fact, my troubles started when I was gassed in France just before the armistice was signed," continued Mr. Ingram. "In six months' time I lost forty pounds in weight and some days I was so weak that I came near collapsing. My appetite was so poor that I had to force myself to eat enough to keep alive. Sometimes just the smell of food would nauseate me so that I had to get out of the house. You can imagine how weak I was when I tell you I went for days at a time without eating a bite. I could hardly keep a thing on my stomach, why, sometimes I would become so nauseated while sitting at the table that I would have to get up and leave. The cramps and pains in my stomach would nearly draw me double, and at times the agony was almost more than I could bear. I was so nervous and restless that I got but little sleep and some nights I lay awake the whole night through.

"My brother-in-law had been taking Tanlac and it had done him so much good that he advised me to try it, too. I had taken so many medicines that I had about lost faith in them, but I made up my mind to give it a trial. Well, sir, I was so surprised when I began to improve that I could hardly believe it. That gave me encouragement and I kept right on taking it without missing a dose until now I have finished my fourth bottle. And to-day it seems almost too good to be true but it is a fact just the same—I am in perfect health and am still gaining right along. In my opinion, Tanlac is no equal as a medicine, and I recommend it in the very highest terms."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors, and in the personal dispensary of a special Tanlac representative; in Harbor Buffet, by Thomas Wakely & Sons; in Placentia, by James Murphy & Son, and in Topsail by J. K. Bursell.—adv.

New Boys' Club Formed.

The Boys' Club, which is affiliated with the Dunfield Boys' Bible Class, was formally opened last night in Canon Wood Hall, where a nice club room has been fitted up. Some sixty lads sat down to a high tea prepared by several ladies of St. Thomas's congregation. The Rector of the Parish, Rev. Dr. Jones, formally opened the club and complimented Mr. Geo. Cook and his associates by whose energy the rooms were completed. Mr. Cook was the recipient of a handsome pipe at the hands of the President of the club, Mr. J. J. Ricketts. Mr. Ricketts was among the guests. Songs were sung by Rev. Mr. Moulton, Messrs. C. Hammond, Chalke and Seymour. Rev. A. E. Legge and Mr. H. Y. Mott addressed the gathering, after which a game of billiards was played between Mr. Cook, Sergt. Ricketts and the President and Vice-President of the club. To Rev. Mr. Moulton belongs much of the credit of the club's formation.

Outerbridge, Miss Mary Ryan and Messrs. Commander Penn, Capt. J. O'Grady and Mr. Herbert Ryan the public are assured of an excellent performance. Mrs. J. Baxter has been working hard directing the production, and it is hoped that crowded houses will be the reward. The proceeds are in aid of Mount Cashel Orphanage.

Dwelling House Destroyed by Fire.

Last evening, at 6 o'clock, a fire occurred in a double tenement house, 83 King's Road, occupied by Mrs. J. Power, and Mr. Jas. Abbott. The Central and East End fire companies responded to a telephone call from the Water store on King's Road. Arriving on the scene they found the upper portion of the house in flames. The fire was confined to the upstairs, but the ground floor with its contents was practically ruined by water. Two streams were used on the building, and inside of 45 minutes the "all out" was sounded. There was no insurance carried by either of the tenants. The house is owned by Mr. J. McGrath, Solicitor. Mrs. Abbott, who lived up stairs, has a husband away on the dredge Priestman.

An Historic Tour.

The Prince of Wales in Canada.

(L. SAXON MILLS, in "United Empire.")

It was the custom of kings in England in the early days of our history to make "progress" through the realm in order to give their lieges an opportunity of looking in the face of royalty and uttering their complaints and desires. To-day a royal progress through the dominions of their successors is a very different enterprise. To vast numbers of British subjects the Supreme Head of the Empire must remain an abstraction and a mystery. Whatever mechanical science may do for us in developing communications, in the Empire there must be millions whom the King will never be able to visit in their own home. Nevertheless, since the middle of the last century, British kings and princes have from time to time made Empire progresses and have actually come face to face and hand in hand with large numbers of the British people carrying on the great tradition over the water. Amid all the festive ceremonies of the Prince of Wales' recent visit to Canada, nothing was more impressive and delightful than the story of his informal call at a lonely farm-house, where no such with great affection and conscious national pride." Strangely enlightened words in those dark ages of the Empire sentiment! The Prince was received with unbounded enthusiasm not only in Canada, but also in the United States where Buchanan was President.

Since that date there have been many of these Royal pilgrimages. In 1875 the same Prince visited India, where he made the acquaintance of the great native chiefs, and left behind him a happy and imperishable memory, which was revived by the visit of his present Majesty in 1911. King George has indeed eclipsed all his predecessors in his personal knowledge of his vast realm. In 1879, in company with his brother the Duke of Clarence, he visited, in the Bacchante (to which the Princes were gazetted), the West Indies, South America, the Cape, Australia, Ceylon, Singapore, and other parts. Eleven years later, when in command of the Thrush, and on service on the West India station, he represented Queen Victoria at the opening of an exhibition in Jamaica.

Still very memorable, too, is the voyage he took, as Duke of York, in company with the Duchess, to open the first Parliament of the Australian Commonwealth in 1901. In the course of his journey he called at many Colonies and Dominions, including the Cape and Canada, and on his return concentrated his impressions in that ringing phrase, "Wake up, England!" which was worth many speeches and disquisitions. Then came two visits he paid to India, in 1905 and 1911: the first as Prince of Wales, and the second as King-Emperor of the Imperial Durbar at Delhi. And in this record, I must not forget the conspicuously successful and memorable Governor-Generalship of the Duke of Connaught, the President of the Royal Colonial Institute, in Canada.

The British Crown is the sign and symbol of Imperial unity. It is the common allegiance to an idea embodied in a House and a Person that furnishes the strongest and most enduring of the bonds holding together our vast Oceanic Empire. And as a reigning Sovereign is less free to undertake these distant journeys, the Empire is happy at this time in having as a royal representative a young Prince of great and attractive charm, who carries with him everywhere the glamour of hope and youth, and the assurance of bright and happy days for himself and the great Commonwealth, with whose fortunes he and the whole Royal Family are so closely linked. And when to those personal attributes are added political sense and knowledge, tact, sympathy, and a happy gift of speech, we have indeed an ideal "Missionary of Empire."

It is difficult to make the record so extended a tour other than a mere catalogue of names. The Prince left England on August 5 (1919), and made his first "landfall" in Newfoundland. It is interesting to note that before reaching St. John's, His Royal Highness called past the little village of Cupids (?) said to be England's oldest over-seas settlement. The landing was made at King's Wharf, the exact spot where his grandfather stepped ashore in 1860. Here, as wherever the Prince went, the loyal enthusiasm was unbounded. The dozen of British possessions has reason to be proud of her record in the War. The Prince, in his speech at the official luncheon, referred to these services. "You have sent over 2,000 men," he said, "to the Royal Navy during the last five years. Then I knew your splendid Newfoundland Regiment on the Western front, particularly on the Somme at the end of 1916, and at Ypres during the summer of 1917, where it was for so long a unit of the famous 29th Division, with which it first saw service in Gallipoli. Over 5,000 of your best served in that regiment, which has established a glorious record." Nor was a tribute wanting to those merchant mariners from this "nursery of seamanship," who faced the perils of mine and submarine with a courage so unquenchable. We can understand the poignant delight with which this brief rehearsal of war service and sacrifice was heard from the lips of a Prince who had himself served with the Canadian and other Dominion troops at the front.

From St. John's in Newfoundland the Prince sailed to St. John in New Brunswick, that prosperous maritime province of whose people and politics we hear comparatively little in this country, perhaps for the happy reason that New Brunswick is a prosperous and contented community. "Happy is the land," said the wise man, "that has no history." But New Brunswick has played her part, during the war, as the Prince took care to remind the world. Here, on entering the Dominion, he struck the keynote of all his many speeches. "I do not feel that I can come to this great Dominion as a stranger, since I have been so closely associated with the Dominion troops throughout the War and have made so many friends among them. I want Canada to look on me as a Canadian, if not actually by birth, yet certainly in mind and spirit, for this, as the eldest son of the ruler of the Great British Empire, I can assure you I am." And here we are assured, as elsewhere, the manner of the royal speeches was as attractive as their matter.

The Winter of '75.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—It is now generally admitted, by many of the old residents, and truly, too, that the present winter is certainly an old-time one. Consequently I thought I would try and recall to some of their minds a similar winter. It was that of 1875. That year tempestuous weather set in about the first week in January, and continued almost uninterruptedly, till the incoming of March. The prevailing winds were mostly strong Northwest and Northeast, coupled with severe frost, heavy snow falls, and the thermometer registering on or about zero, and sometimes six and seven below. The snow on the centre of Water Street was close on six feet deep, and formed a highway for horses and trucks, from one end of the town to the other. The snow shovelled from off the side walks in those days, was generally dumped in the centre of the street, where it remained till rain and sun finally disposed of it in mid-spring. The ice on the harbor, too, which had been making for a considerable time, was found to be from ten to twelve inches thick. When the sealers' row occurred at Fox's wharf, that spring—to suppress which the authorities were obliged to call out the whole police force—an unique scene, not to be forgotten, was witnessed by many on-lookers from the waterfront. It was the prancing steeds of the Mounted Police, during the disturbance, as they "galavanted" up and down the Harbor, dispersing the hostile crowds, here and there, on the frozen surface. The crews of the different sealing steamers, while preparing for the voyage, had also to saw out 2 channels, to allow them to sail. One extended from J. & W. Stewart's to the Narrows, the other from Bowring Brothers.

Another incident worth relating was that of the brigantine Florence, Capt. Dutton, belonging to Harvey & Co. This vessel arrived off the Narrows from a West Indian port about the 20th January. She was signalled from the Block-house, and her houseflag duly shown. In the meantime the tugboat Cabot (the last of our Clyde-built side-wheel tugs) was hastily despatched to render assistance, but unfortunately, failed in locating her; the wind at the time blowing a heavy gale from the Northwest, with severe frost. For two weeks, however, grave fears were entertained for the vessel's safety, when, happily at about the expiration of the time referred to, news was received that the Florence had arrived at Lisbon, all well. Some of the old sailors of that day were heard to remark that she was blown across.

A fact also worth noting was that nearly every man one met on the street, during the stormy period, invariably wore an "Elsinore" with its flaps tied down.

In the early days of March news reached St. John's from St. Mary's of a very sad happening that occurred there. It was to the effect that some forty men, who had gone from the shore on drift ice, to board an abandoned French vessel, were missing.

While engaged in their precarious undertaking it appears a snow storm came on, causing the ice to open up and move off the shore—an unfortunate happening that made it difficult for them to either see or reach the land. For a considerable time, however, with stout hearts, they battled on the dangerous floe, in an effort to save their lives, but, ultimately, many of the number succumbed. Twenty-eight of the missing men were picked up and brought on shore, while the remaining twelve, poor fellows, were either drowned or perished on the ice. The abandoned vessel was the Violetta, from France, bound to St. Pierre with a general cargo.

The next hardest winter was in 1883, historically known as the year of the Wool Factory Fire, when every person who came from their homes to witness the blaze, was frost-bitten more or less. The thermometer on that night marked 9 below zero and the weather was exceptionally severe.

Yours truly,

M. J. O'M.

Tony Weller in Real Life.

The originals of many Dickens' characters have been traced and it is now thought the original of Tony Weller has been discovered. In 1820, the "Granby Head," Chatham, an old-fashioned inn on the site now occupied by Barnard's Music Hall, was kept by a Thomas Waller, and with Dickens's associations with Chatham in his early days there is little doubt the "Granby Head" and its landlord were known to the author. This theory is put forward by Mr. Edwin Harris, the local guide to the Rochester Dickens Fellowship.

The Failure of the Tyre Guarantee

The only outstanding and unalterable fact about the definite mileage guarantee is that it must be paid for even by the careful driver who does not need it—like yourself.

The Good Year Service Station Dealers know this well as you tyre users should know it.

The cost of such a guarantee, like every other cost of production and marketing, is included in the selling price of the tyre.

Thus the presence of such a guarantee in a tyre of normal price can mean only that some other quality has been slighted or sacrificed.

If you drive with reasonable care, almost any standard make of tyre will deliver you mileage above the average guaranteed figure.

The premium you pay for the guarantee does you no good at all, and by paying it you deny yourself such additional mileage as uncompromised quality could give.

It is only the reckless driver—the man abusive of his tyres—who can expect to profit regularly from the definite mileage guarantee.

It is wise to remember that you are paying for his neglect and helping to buy his tyres the next time you are offered such a guarantee as an inducement to purchase.

The History of Sneezes.

A joke is a joke and a sneeze is a sneeze but a sneeze is not a joke, as a rule, though the dictionary, somewhat mechanically and facetiously, says that it is "the convulsive motion and explosive sound attendant upon the ejection of air through the nose or mouth." This may be true, though I have little faith in dictionaries, says La Touche Hancock in the New York Post.

A great many people, when they sneeze, are like Mrs. Sparrit. You have forgotten who Mrs. Sparrit was? Tut, tut! turn to your "Hard Times" by a somewhat celebrated author, Charles Dickens, and read: "Mrs. Sparrit with a violent cold upon her, and her stately frame so racked by continual sneezes that it seemed in danger of dismemberment." Mrs. Sparrit's condition at the moment was certainly no joke, and we have all probably been in the same condition at some time or other.

The sneeze is an interesting history. From the time of Adam to the days of Jacob sneezing was a Divine sign of death, but Jacob, by making sacrifice and prayers, succeeded in changing it to a sign of life. From Jacob's day you may have noticed that all babies have sneezed on coming into the world.

The first man that sneezed was so surprised that he couldn't understand what was happening, and straightway went and insured his life. Our ancestors were equally alarmed and astonished by their sneezes, and when gradually the idea of spirits and gods and devils developed to account for mysteries, naturally the sneeze came in for its share of superstitious explanation.

One of the loudest sneezes recorded by history was delivered by Themistocles the Athenian. He and his fleet were just putting out to sea on a hazardous expedition when he sneezed so heartily and loudly that it startled the entire fleet. The sailors took the sneeze as a bad omen and demanded that he instantly return to port. Themistocles, however, rose up and spoke thusly: "And do you wonder, O Athenians, that amongst so many there should be one with a cold in his head?" These brave words restored the shattered confidence of the sailors and they sailed off to victory without more ado.

Then there is the famous sneeze of Zenophon. This sneeze decided the fate of Athens. There came a moment in one of his wars when his soldiers were wavering. Suddenly one of his soldiers sneezed loudly—extremely loudly. The idea was promptly spread by some ingenious officer that the gods had employed the sneezing soldier's nose as a trumpet wherewith to sound the blast of victory. Inspired by the idea, the army made up its mind to do or die, and to save Athens.

Eastern legends would have us believe that in the place of everlasting fire sits a judge who keeps a book in which the names of all mortals are written. Every day he turns one page and this settles what mortals are to come into his presence for judgment. As the leaf is turned each of the chosen ones sneezes.

In ancient Greece the sneeze was greeted with "Joy preserve thee!" In Italy with "Felicitè!" In Germany with "Gesundheit!" In France with "Bonne Sante!" In England with "God bless you!" and in this country generally with "Oh, stop it!"

In England the North country folks have a rhyme which runs:

Sneeze on a Monday, sneeze for danger!
Sneeze on a Tuesday, kiss a stranger!
Sneeze on a Wednesday, sneeze for a letter!
Sneeze on Thursday, you get something better!
Sneeze on a Friday, you sneeze for sorrow!
Sneeze on a Saturday, loves comes on the morrow!
Sneeze on a Sunday, you'd best satisfy seek.

The devil will have you the rest of the week!

This little ditty has not yet been set to music, although a sneezing sard-band might well be developed out of the interesting lyric.

There are times to sneeze and times not to sneeze. Aristotle believed that a sneeze in the morning was a good augury, but in the afternoon a bad augury. If the ancients sneezed when they were going on a fasting journey they promptly went back to bed. They considered the moment was not propitious for rising. If a Hindu sneezes while he is bathing in the Ganges and before his prayers are finished he begins say them all over again from the beginning. Some people say that one sneeze brings good luck, and a double or treble sneeze bad luck. But there is certainly a time to sneeze and a time not to sneeze. The most awful time to sneeze is when making a proposal of marriage to a lady. A whole volume of fiction was once fashioned out of the idea that the hero sneezed half way through his proposal. In consequence he lost his opportunity and never recovered it.

I have said that a sneeze is no joke. It isn't, but it may lead to hilarity. Such occasions do occur. It was only the other day that some one said to me in an extremely rude tone of voice, "Oh, I can keep my eyes open." At that moment he sneezed. This gave me my opportunity for a splendid repartee. I replied on the instant, "Yes, and if at the same time you kept your mouth shut you'd be perfect!"

WINTER WINDS.

The winter, slow dragging, is spilling our lives the wild winds are nagging like Billings-gate wives; all day they are rapping, they give us a pain; all night they are chanting a dippy refrain. The wild winds are bolder than wild winds should be, and keener and colder than bergs in the sea; they come and deliver a smart, and a sting, and sufferers shiver and clamor for spring. And spring will be slippin' along pretty soon, and spring is a pipkin, with roses of June. And how we will love her, the garlanded spring, when mockingbirds hover around us and sing! If winter were banished, to come back no more, we'd find, when it vanished, that spring is a bore. We wouldn't be grateful for breezes of May, if winter, the hateful, were out of the way. The long night is chilly, and plastered with snow; the mercury's silly, its fourteen below; and thus we're in training the spring to enjoy; so cut out complaining, and cheer up my boy.

achieving of the goal. (From the Boston Transcript.) The Treaty of Versailles goes into effect in a Europe that is still shaken to its foundations by the havoc and the destruction of the last five years. It will be many years before economic and social conditions become even approximately normal again, and the currents of national life resume their customary channels. But the Treaty of Versailles marks the achieving of the goal which Europe has been looking forward to with anxious hope ever since the cataclysm of 1914—peace and a reasonable permanence in the relations between nations. Europe to-day has been delivered from the nightmare of a German hegemony. The problems of peace and reconstruction which face the statesmen of the nations of Europe are certainly no greater than the problem so successfully met by overcoming the German attempt at a mastery of the world. How quickly and satisfactorily they can be met depends ultimately on the willingness of the peoples of Europe to take up again the humble duties of peace, and their determination to set going again at full speed the machinery of national production so long arrested.

Everywoman.

(By Nina Murdock.)

I have quiet eyes of chaste Penelope And all her healthful ways, As with a simple song I move dispassionately Through the persistent days, Soft as a summer breeze that winnows the sun's gold With breath not hot nor cold.

And yet I know that I am Cleopatra, too! With mouth for love as keen; With leaping pulse and blood as warm and rich in hue As that that Eastern queen. I could be wanton, too, in conquest, fierce as she Who gladdened Antony.

So I that am two women so disguised as one All my life long! And witness men who mark some strange thing said or done, Some discord in my song, Dream of no cause, but cry: "All women are wrought so!" Which is the most men know! —Sydney "Bulletin."

Getting Rid of William Shakespeare.

If William Shakespeare could come back to earth he would probably learn something about literary ethics that would cause him to hang his head in shame. At last he is being exposed in his true colors as a bigoted and insular Englishman, incapable of doing justice to other races. For some years past he has been denounced by persons of advanced thought as a Tory reactionary who dearly loved a lord and was entirely out of touch with modern political ideas. Now an even worse crime than the failure to sympathize with the aspirations of democracy is charged against him. He never rose to President Wilson's conception of the rights of small nationalities, and wantonly trampled on racial susceptibilities. As a result, he is receiving some hard knocks in the United States. Recently the Board of Education of Newark, N. J., struck "The Merchant of Venice" off the list of works for literary study in local schools, because the role of Shylock is regarded as a slander on the race of which Leon Trotsky is so distinguished an ornament. In justice to Shakespeare it must be said, however, that all Hebrews do not take his sins so much to heart. The finest performance of Shylock that has been seen since the days of Irving is now being given in London by an actor of Russian-Jewish origin, whose name we shall not attempt to spell from memory; while Jacob Adler, the leading light of the Yiddish theatre in America, used to play "the Jew that Shakespeare drew" very skilfully indeed. This, however, was prior to the time when people were thinking of the rights of small nationalities.

The example of the Newark school authorities in purging the school curriculum of the offence, has but added to Shakespeare's troubles. Acting on this precedent, a New York organization, known as the League of Scottish Veterans of the World War (your Scotsman is great at forming societies) has demanded the suppression of "Macbeth" because in that tragedy a Scottish king is presented as a traitor and a murderer. It has forwarded a copy of its resolution to the Newark Board of Education, but we are left in doubt whether this was intended as an expression of sympathy or not. If it was, this revival of fraternal feeling is touching and recalls the old legend that the lost ten tribes emigrated to Aberdeen.

If various other organizations will keep up the good work, we shall probably get rid of Shakespeare altogether. The Sons of England have good grounds for pointing out that in "Richard III" and many of the other historical plays English monarchs are held up to opprobrium. Welsh susceptibilities are trampled on in the characters of Fluellen and Sir Hugh Evans. The dramas of "King Lear" and "Cymbeline" deal with the villainies of the ancient Britons, who were probably of the same blood as the modern Irish. These dramas certainly constitute an affront to all persons of Celtic blood. A few of the comedies might survive; but a little research would probably reveal many causes of offence. There are several Italian and Spanish villains who figure in them, while from another point of view, that of general desirability, many characters (Falstaff, for instance) are unsuitable acquaintances on a continent which is now staging a spiritual awakening with the assistance of the press.—Saturday Night.

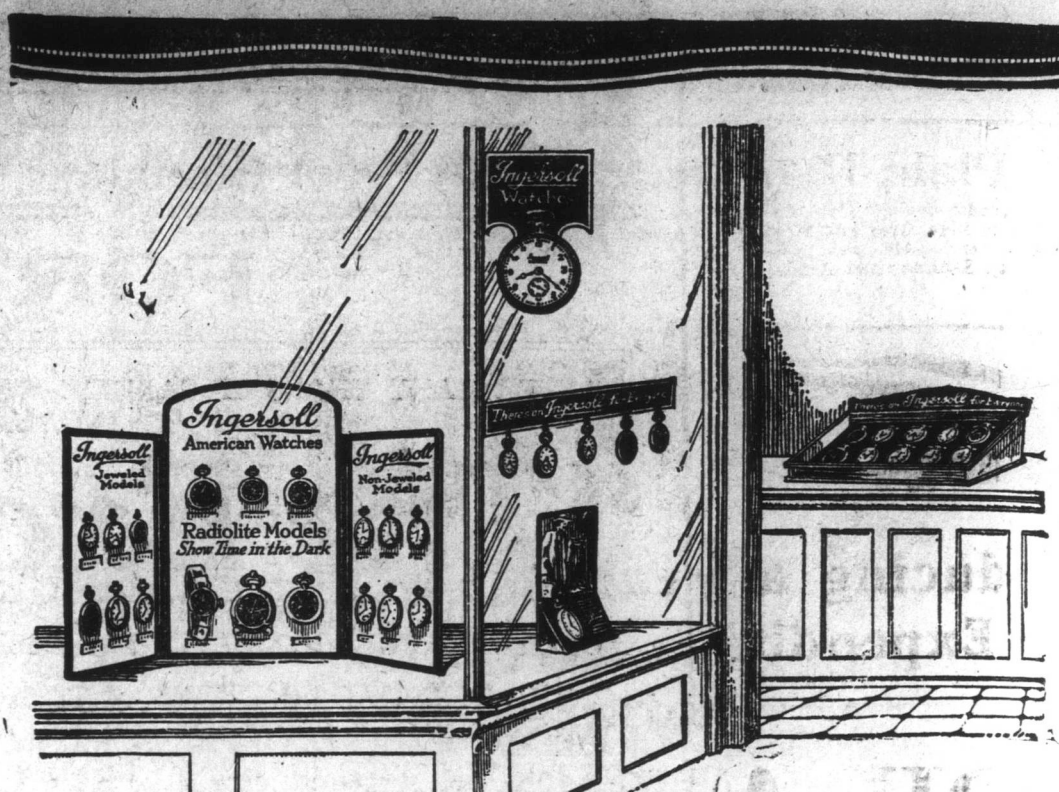

Saving the Boy.

We have heard a lot of talk lately about "saving the boy," and hysterical women rushed around soliciting votes for the destruction of the "demon rum." But what is the use of saving the boy from rum, if he is to be taught the instincts of sin and crime and passion in the movies? Lawless passions running rife, divorce, attempted assaults, etc., etc., are amongst the bill-of-fare in some of the latest most popular "films." The youth of the present day are having a riotous feast of their most susceptible age. When they get through with the lessons of the movies it will not much matter whether they drink rum or not.—Catholic Register.

"SKIN THE CAT"

But if you won't exercise vigorously you must take "Cascarets."

There is nothing like bending exercises, taking long walks, or chopping wood to keep the liver and bowels active, but most folks take their exercise in an easy chair. Such folks need Cascarets, else they suffer from sick headache, sour, acid stomach, indigestion, colds and are miserable. But don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without gripping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil, or nasty, harsh Pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep.

Religion and Happiness.

(By Mr. J. E. Middleton.)

Goethe said that Christianity was a religion of sorrow. Another writer less eminent, but, in this case, more just, expressed the opposite view in a rhetorical question. "Why should the children of a King, Go mourning all their days?" In our time, men are beginning to realize that happiness comes from the greatest measure of self-realization. The young man rejoices in his physical strength. The intellectual rejoices in his power of thought. It is only reasonable that the man who has trained his spiritual nature to larger vision and greater activity should rejoice in his spiritual strength. There is no trace of egotism in such enjoyment. A trained musician hears the C. Minor Symphony by Beethoven with ecstasy. He is not admiring his own power of appreciation, but rather the genius of the composer. Similarly, as soon as any natural gift is enlarged by exercise, the pleasure of the man is increased.

The early Puritans who groaned at their work and at their worship, the men who libelled themselves and their Maker by calling one another "poor worms," were extremists, with a distorted view of life and its privileges. They were the men who denounced laughter and frowned on the play of children. Some of them were great and notable figures who served their generation well, but it is probable that less whining if the nose would have improved them materially and would have given them a greater influence. One wonders what they thought of praising the Lord "with the high sounding cymbals." King David's touches of "triviality" must have been distressing to them.

There is no aid to happiness so effective as a good conscience. The man who disciplines himself by doing his best in all activities; the man who moulds his daily life after the highest pattern; the man who has complete confidence in the Divine governance of this world; the man who is "mourner here below." He thrills to every stimulus. He lives the fullest, the most satisfying and the most joyous of lives. Christianity is not a religion of sorrow. It is rather the road to happiness.

Feildians Defeat St. Bon's

Over twelve hundred people saw last evening's hockey game between the Feildians and St. Bon's teams. The ice was in good condition and fast play resulted. Both teams were composed of light-weights, but a splendid, fast game was played. While the St. Bon's team gave a good exhibition of combination and team work, the Feildians worked more as individuals and some pretty "sashes" resulted. Tait, Ewing, Rendell, Winter, Payne and Alderdice were in good form, while Hunt, to goal, was at his best. Tait scored two goals by long-distance shots. In the St. Bon's team Jack Higgins and Callahan were the star-players. Although there is a disparity between the scores—9 to 3, in Feildians favor—the same cannot be said of the play, for both teams were good. The line-up was:—

ST. BON'S—Goal, Dr. Power; defence, Higgins, Callahan; left wing, M. Power; centre, J. Murphy; right wing, F. Brien; subs, Kelly, Crawford. The score:—

- 1st Period.
1. Payne, (Feildians) 2 mins.
2. Higgins, (St. Bon's) 9 mins.
3. Ewing, (Feildians) 11 mins.
4. Tait, (Feildians) 16 mins.
2nd Period.

Bell Island Star of the Sea Association

HOLDS ENTHUSIASTIC ANNUAL MEETING.
The annual meeting of the Bell Island Star of the Sea Association was held on last Sunday the 25th inst., despite the zero weather prevailing, and a very large and enthusiastic gathering of members attended to finalize the business of last year and to elect the Officers and Committees for the coming year. After the usual reports had been received showing the Society to be in a flourishing condition, Mr. J. P. Burke was moved to the chair to conduct the election of officers which resulted as follows:—

- EXECUTIVE.

Vice-Pres.—Mr. David J. Jackman.
Chancellor—Mr. R. Rivlyn Costigan.
1st Asst. V.P.—Mr. Daniel Steale.
2nd Asst. V.P.—Mr. William J. Power.
Secretary—Mr. Ronald J. Jackman.
Fin. Secty.—Mr. J. Frank McEvoy.
Treasurer—Mr. Richard D. Walsh.
Asst. Treas.—Mr. Patrick J. Murphy.
Grand Marshal—Mr. John J. Murphy.
Deputy G.M.—Mr. James Flynn.
Medical Adviser—Dr. H. A. Giovanni, J.P.

COMMITTEES.
Chairman Building Co.—Mrs. James Hammond.
Chairman Amusement Com.—Mr. Thomas Sweeney.
Chairman House Com.—Mr. Michael A. Dunne.
Trustees—Mr. J. M. Greene and Mr. R. D. Walsh.
Upon the new officers assuming office they were heartily greeted by the body. The newly-elected President, Mr. J. M. Greene, in a fluent address thanked the Association for the trust reposed in him; as did also the rest of the Executive. The retiring President, Mr. P. F. Power, was, on the suggestion of the President and Chancellor, unanimously elected Honorary President for life; while the retiring Secretary, Mr. Joseph E. Burke, was elected an Honorary member for life. After the plans of the new Executive were outlined for this year, the meeting adjourned amidst much enthusiasm, which speaks well for the future of the Bell Island Star of the Sea Association.

During the evening the Rev. Fr. McGrath, Spiritual Director, attended and in an eloquent address exhorted the members to be true to the ideals of their Society and to continue their great interest in it. He exhorted the members to use their Club Rooms more for social purposes, and with this end in view, he presented the Society, as a New Year's gift, with a Billiard Table, which announcement was received with loud applause.
