CHAPTER VIII.

The moonbeams of that soft summer night fell upon the stately hall of Lynnewoide, upon the dark masses of wood, the shining lake, the picturesque gardens; they bathed all in their sweet soft light. But there was one spot where they fell without healing or balm in their half-mourning light.

Never did "good and evil" fight for a human heart as they struggled that night for the heart of Inez Lynne. All the fire, the passion, the recklessness of that Southern nature were aroused. She had sworn that she would succeed; that by some means the love she longed for should be hers; and she was not one of those who esteem an oath as a "light burden," to be thrown off at will.

She sat now by the window of her room; her dark eyes resting upon the woods of Lynnewoide; her wealth of black hair falling round her shoulders. She was almost scarily beautiful to behold, as that "war of passion" raged within her.

It was a war; for there were times when a sadder look came to the exquisite face, and softer tears fell down the pale cheeks. Then a better and nobler impulse whispered to her to be patient, to submit, to leave her sister happy in her love, to conquer and trample upon the wild love that "wrought havoc" within. But the better impulse passed, and the proud, indomitable spirit woke up fiercer and stronger for its repulse.

"No mercy has ever been shown to me!" she murmured. "Years and years ago, if I had had the love that ought to have been mine—if my father had treated me as he did his other child—my life would have been different. Shall I lose the only love I ever asked for, the only blessing life has to give me? I cannot!"

So she watched and repeated wild words to herself, until the first faint dawn of the morning came into the sky. A thought had struck her;—in the first few minutes that it came to her, she seemed to shrink from it, for a crimson flush covered her face, and her eyes fell as though with a sense of shame. Yet it came again, and again, and again she played with it. She let herself think of all that might be, and then she yielded, and said it should be so.

Corns Go

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. Stop the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in clear liquid and in this plaster. The action is the same. At your druggist.

Blue-jay

He took the white hyacinth from her hand.

"Does she care for some one else?" he asked, hoarsely.

"Lord Lynne," was the calm reply, "you must not question the motive of her decision. Allan Leigh has loved her for many years. She has not told me if she loves him—"

"But she does," interrupted poor Philip. "Well, God bless her. Let her do as she will. I was mad to think myself worthy of her."

He did not see the scorn that rippled for one half moment over her beautiful face.

"Why," he asked, suddenly, "did she not give me the answer herself? It was from her own lips I asked to hear my fate."

The calm, proud face never quailed or faltered, the clear, musical voice never trembled, as she replied:

"Agatha is young. Perhaps she feared being persuaded against her will."

"She need not have feared me," he said, proudly. "She has the right to refuse me, if she will. I cannot understand it," he continued. "She seemed to like me, I thought."

"She is young," replied the clear voice, "and kind to every one."

Inez saw that her words touched him keenly. He was proud, and it was not pleasant to think that he had been vain enough to confound and mistake for love what was only kindness.

"The bearers of an unwelcome message often share the fate of the message they bring," said Inez, gently. "Do not let me be so unfortunate, Lord Lynne."

"No," he replied, kindly; "you can never be associated with anything unpleasant in my mind. I shall always remember how well and how gently you have fulfilled a painful mission."

No doubt, no suspicion ever crossed his mind; he was a Lynne, a gentleman, and a man of honor. Falsehood and treachery were unknown to him. How could he suspect? She brought him back the flower he had placed in Agatha's hand. She brought him the answer; and no one, as he thought, but Agatha had heard the question.

"My sister bade me ask two favors," she continued. "One is that you will never pain her by alluding to the subject again; the second, that you will so time your journey as to prevent—"

"To prevent her from seeing me again until my folly is forgotten. Yes—tell her in both wishes I will obey her punctually."

He did not notice the flush that seemed to scorch her face as she gave utterance to the false words; he did not notice how carefully she picked up the poor little flower that, in his hurry and agitation, he had dropped.

"I need not ask you to keep my secret, Inez," he said, calling her by the first time by her name. "You can be true, I know."

"Until death," was the reply.

"I shall not make much difference in my arrangements," he said. "I was going by the evening train; but now I shall leave at noon. Say adieu to your sister for me," he continued, taking her hand in his. "Tell her I shall hear the pain like a brave man, and that I will not seek her presence again until I am cured. Tell her I pray Heaven to bless her, and make her happy, and that we shall meet again as good and true friends."

Earth's Bullet-Proof Overcoat.

Those tiny visitors from space, generally known as shooting stars, are constantly falling upon the earth. So great, indeed, is their number that the dust that falls from them causes an actual increase in the earth's size as the centuries go by.

What are they, and from whence do they come? Astronomers believe they are minute fragments of a great planet which once circled round our sun many millions of miles outside our own path. According to all calculations there should be a world between Mars and Jupiter.

The others travel in paths at regular distances from the sun. Mercury is nearest, followed by Venus, our own earth, and Mars. Beyond this is a mighty gap which was believed in olden days to contain nothing.

Giant telescopes have shown that it is far from being unoccupied. It contains not one world but hundreds of tiny globes, some as large as the moon, and others only a mile or two in diameter.

These asteroids, as they are called, are believed to be the shattered remnants of the planet that once swung along the path they now occupy. At some time in the distant past there must have been an appalling catastrophe in the solar system. Some great visitor from outside—perhaps a giant comet, perhaps another world—struck this planet in a head-on collision.

Each was shattered into tiny pieces, which, owing to their small size, cooled rapidly. The larger ones became little worlds inhabited possibly by microscopic creatures; but the smaller, ranging in size from that of a haystack to that of a walnut, wandered through space, whirling always round the sun, but pulled out of their true courses by any great globe that came near them.

Let us see what happens to one of them. For millions of years it strays through space, pulled now this way, now that, but always managing to avoid destruction. Then one day its path comes near that of the earth. Slowly at first, then more rapidly, it is drawn towards our globe.

Twenty Miles a Second. Finally it feels the full force of the earth's mighty attraction. It rushes headlong towards us at perhaps twenty miles a second. Suddenly it is brought up short by hitting our atmosphere. Instead of the utterly empty realm of space, which offers no resistance to its passage, it encounters our envelopes of air. Its speed is slowed down, but it rushes towards the ground at about a mile a second.

So terrible is the friction that, in a fraction of a second the little stone, whose temperature a moment ago was 400 degrees below freezing point, becomes white hot. That is the moment when it is first visible to our eyes as a brilliant point of light.

The heat rises as it rushes towards the earth. In an instant it has been burnt up, leaving nothing but a trail of glowing dust, which falls slowly, cooling on its way.

If the earth had no atmosphere, life on its surface would be impossible, even if Nature designed beings that could live without air, for the constant fusillade of shooting stars, travelling thousands of times faster than rifle bullets, would soon wipe out every living thing. The atmosphere acts as a kind of bullet-proof overcoat. Owing to its presence meteors are burnt to harmless dust while they are still a hundred miles above our heads.

A few of very large size do occasionally manage to penetrate the air. The largest known weighed several tons, and there have been others of smaller size. These big fellows reach us because they are too large to be entirely burnt up as they pass through the air.

New Island Discovered.

As a result of volcanic eruption on the floor of the Pacific a new island fifty feet above sea level and about half a mile in circumference has been suddenly brought into existence off French Polynesia. The discovery of the island was made by the captain of the Japanese steamer Wakasa Maru while travelling between Singapore and Hong Kong. The report was confirmed by the British cruiser Carylo, which conducted an investigation. Notified of the discovery, members of the Faculty of Tokio University declared that the island was undoubtedly of volcanic origin. While there is no volcanic belt in that part of the sea, its locality is not very far from the volcanic belt in the neighbourhood of the Philippines. The question of territorial right has been raised. According to International law, any island newly discovered in the open sea outside the three-mile limit of any country belongs to the country of which the discoverer is a citizen or subject.

French and Belgians Seize Large German Dye Works.

Britain Extends Time in Russia's Ultimatum--Socialist Leaders in Glace Bay Arrested--Commons Pay Tribute to T. P. O'Connor.

FRANCE AND BELGIUM SEIZE GERMAN PLANTS.
DUSSELDORF, May 15. Four dye and chemical plants, one of them the largest in the world, were taken over by Belgian and the French occupational troops to-day. The largest plant is the Baden Aniline Works, near Ludwigschaven, employing forty thousand workers. French headquarters explained that occupation followed their failure to make deliveries of chemicals and dyes, undertaken in the Treaty of Versailles.

TIME EXTENDED.
It was announced in the House of Commons this evening that the British Government would reasonably extend the time limit set in the ultimatum to Russia, so as to permit further negotiations. Under Secretary Ronald McNeill said negotiations would be started through Leonid Krassin, the Russian envoy, who was in the gallery listening to the debate.

RAIDS AT WHITNEY PIER.
SYDNEY, May 15. Tranquility surrounds the Labor situation in Cape Breton to-day, following the raids by the Provincial police on the headquarters of the United Mine Workers last night, and on the homes of the executive officers where literature was seized for examination on suspicion of being of a seditious nature. Further raids were made this afternoon at Whitney Pier and some foreign language literature placed under inspection.

POLICE RAID ON GLACE BAY REDS.
GLACE BAY, May 15. A detachment of Provincial Police from their barracks at Sydney swooped down upon the headquarters of the United Mine Workers here last night, also visited the home of J. B. McLachlan, Alex. S. McIntyre and Dan Livingstone, also Tom Bell, Editor of the Maritime Labor Herald, and took away quantities of literature, which is now being examined to ascertain whether they form the basis of seditious charges against those from whom they were taken. There was no disorder. All the Union officers, except McLachlan, were away from home, and the raids were surprises in each case. McLachlan was at home, but made no resistance, beyond questioning the legality of the search. In addition to the literature seized the police took away from the United Mine Workers' headquarters the large red flag carried by miners in their May Day procession.

COMMONS' TRIBUTE TO T. P. O'CONNOR.
LONDON, May 15. Three hundred members of the House of Commons, representatives of all political factions joined in a great tribute to-day to T. P. O'Connor, father of the House, on the occasion of his seventy-fifth anniversary. Stanley Baldwin was toastmaster, and the speakers were leaders of the various wings of the House. T. P. O'Connor was presented with a gold snuff box, filled with snuff, of which the aged statesman is an inveterate user. Mr. O'Connor, in replying, said he owed his long life to his habit of retiring at four in the morning and arising at noon.

ENFORCING PROHIBITION.
NEW YORK, May 15. Assistant States Attorney General Herman L. Falk announced, this afternoon, that the Government would to-morrow, make an attempt to break up the ring of bootleggers operating the Maritime liquor market off the New Jersey three-mile limit, by filing a complaint in the Federal District Court against six men, believed to be the brains of the ring.

RUM RUNNERS MEET MISFORTUNE.
NEW YORK, May 15. The Customs authorities to-day to-day were advised that the British yacht Thelma Phoebe, alleged to have been laden with nearly three hundred and twenty thousand dollars worth of liquor, had sunk shortly after putting out from the Bahamas. The entire cargo was lost and one or two of the crew drowned, the report said.

RING ACTIVITIES.
NEW YORK, May 15. Jess Willard and Luis Angel Firpo to-day signed articles for a match to be held in the vicinity of New York not later than July 7th, according to an announcement to-day by Tex Rickard. The winner will be matched against Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight championship of the world.

TORNADO'S CASUALTY ROLL.
COLORADO CITY, May 15. Seventeen dead, one seriously injured, 100 injured to various extent, and from four to five hundred homeless was the result of the complete check-up at noon, after the tornado and flood had swept through Mitchell County yesterday. The path of the storm varied from a quarter to two miles wide, and about thirty miles long. Thousands of head of livestock were lost.

BANDITS TERRORIZING HANKOW.
HANKOW, China, May 15. Soldiers and bandits, a thousand strong, from Honan, incorporated into an army, are camped seven miles from Hankow demanding tribute of a hundred and fifty thousand dollars, and a quantity of ammunition as the price of their departure. The authorities have refused to comply with their request. Trains are carrying guards with machine guns.

SCHOONER RACING IN GULF OF MEXICO.
GALVESTON, May 15. Preliminary plans have been made for a big Gulf sailing classic, similar to the International Schooner Race event held annually off Nova Scotia and the New Brunswick Coast. The contest will be sailed off Galveston in August, and all deep sea fishing schooners in the Gulf of Mexico are invited to participate.

WICKLOW FREED OF REBELS.

Japanese Militarism is Dying.
PEKING--Japanese militarism is rapidly dying, having reached its peak of attainment during the European war, is the opinion of V. G. Antonov, unofficial representative of the Russian Soviet Government, now visiting here. The Man Who Fell Six Miles.

GRIPPING STORY OF AN INTERFID AVIATOR.

For a man to fall three miles in an unconscious state and live to tell the tale is a miracle that does not occur every day, and the average man would be inclined to say that such a thing could never happen again.

But for the same man to fall six miles a few days later and still survive is unique—so unique that it is taxing the credulity of the reader rather highly to ask him to believe it. Nevertheless it happened.

The hero of this remarkable adventure is Major R. W. Schroeder, a United States pilot. In January, 1920, with a passenger, he made a world's altitude record, and the following month set out to capture another world's record.

Eyes Frozen Solid.

When six miles above the earth, the life-giving oxygen which he was carrying to make breathing easy stopped, and in a few moments the pilot had lost consciousness. Man and machine fell towards the earth.

One, two, three, miles they fell, and slowly the difference in the air pressure made itself felt. The oxygen found its way into his lungs again and he regained consciousness in time to make a safe landing.

After such an experience one would not have been surprised had Major Schroeder decided to give up record-breaking; but he was made of different mettle, and a few weeks later he set out again with the object of reaching forty thousand feet.

This time he endeavored to make sure an accident with the oxygen would not happen again. The machine rose into the air mile after mile. Thirty thousand feet was reached. The temperature dropped lower and lower until it was fifty degrees below zero.

He was using his emergency supply of oxygen. Another hundred feet was climbed, and then the oxygen stopped. The pilot could not see very well, for a solid sheet of ice obstructed his vision. He was fighting for breath, and, unthinkingly, lifted his goggles to ascertain if the stopcock was open.

Instantly an appalling explosion took place inside his head. It seemed to him that his skull had burst, and everything went black. He could not think what had happened. He tried to open his eyes, but to his horror, found it impossible.

What had actually happened was this: the temperature had dropped to sixty-seven below zero, and directly Schroeder lifted his goggles, his eyes, suddenly coming into contact with the cold air, froze solid!

Blind and dazed, the unfortunate man could no longer control his machine. There came a tremendous rush of air, and the wind began to screech past as he drifted into unconsciousness.

One petrol tank collapsed, owing to

Household Notes.

If boiled eggs are left over from breakfast, cook them hard, chop the whites and to white sauce, pour over toast and sprinkle with the yolks put through a sieve.

It is an excellent plan to start housecleaning in the storeroom—then undusted things can be discarded or given away and room made for things to be stored.

Household Notes.

Before cooking greens, wash them well in cold water and then in hot water. Cover them with clean cold water to cook over night.

If fruit stains cannot be removed by means of cold water, try warm water and borax. This is a safe thing to try but not always successful.

Ice squares of chocolate cake with fudge frosting, split and insert a slice of vanilla or chocolate ice cream, and serve covered with marshmallow sauce.

Delicious canapes for luncheon are made as follows: Spread rounds of toast with anchovy paste, top with poached eggs and serve with tomato sauce.

Finely chopped ham, moistened with a little currant jelly and seasoned with paprika, makes an excellent filling for graham bread sandwiches.

If you cannot find the keys of the dresser drawers on "moving day" wedge a folded towel over front of each drawer and close as tightly as possible.

A good curtain stretcher may be made by covering a frame with wall board. Cover whole board with a good cotton bannel by tacking down over edges.

Arrange crisp lettuce leaves on salad plates. Remove all tough parts from the stalks of freshly cooked asparagus. Place pimentos—that have not been broken in canning—on board, and cut crosswise to form rings. Slip several stalks of asparagus through each ring, and place on lettuce. Then serve with French dressing.

Scientist to Assist Fish Syndicate -- Lieut. Col. Bernard Outlines Proposals.

Correspondence Between Trade Commissioner Bernard and Board of Trade.

NAPLES, March 24.

Secretary Board of Trade, St. John's, Nfld. I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 15th inst. relative to the necessary support of B. M. Consul General in Naples and the British Embassy at Rome after I had had various conversations and consultations with the former.

It will be noted that the pamphlet referred to is of a confidential nature and therefore cannot be passed on in the present pamphlet. The pamphlet contains all the points and clearly sets out the details of the formation of the Syndicate.

I may add that I have had interviews with most of the Importers on the subject, and that generally speaking they do not greatly favor the scheme; but it must be remembered that the Italian Government are making serious efforts to reduce the duties on foodstuffs, and with this in view they may give the necessary support to the Syndicate to the extent of its sales amounts to about one million dollars.

Further, it will be noted that the fishing plants, etc., will be managed from Germany on account of the fact that there are no expenses will be necessary.

I have the honor to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) A. E. BERNARD,
Lieut.-Col.

GERMAN FISHERY SYNDICATE.

British Consulate General, NAPLES, Feb. 27.

I have received your letter of the 15th inst. relative to a report that the Italian Government, in conjunction with Germany, were endeavoring to form a Syndicate to fish North of the German Government and dry fish for export, and that the fish was to be admitted into Italy free of duty.

I have the honor to report to you the kindness of Lt.-Col. Bernard, the representative of the Government of Newfoundland in Italy, in being able to peruse a confidential pamphlet printed by "Square" from which it appears clear that an endeavour is being made to form a Company called "Societa Italiana Industria Pesca," at the instance of H. R. H. Ferdinand of the Prince of Udine. The pamphlet states that a fleet of large trawlers will fish on the Company's account in the North Sea and on the coast of Iceland. Arrangements have been made to ensure the existence of a fishing base in Germany, and there will be wireless facilities for getting out the trawlers and dry fish establishments. Bonded warehouses will be provided at this German port which will enable the fish to be landed for preparation without duty, and will also provide space for the fitting out and repair of the vessels, and the provisions of the crew.

The Italian Government, as stated in the pamphlet, are being debarred from treating Italy from its dependence on foreign countries for its supply, has looked upon the plans here as between importer and retailer has had a disastrous effect on prices.

To the Secretary Board of Trade, St. John's, Nfld.

Dear Sirs.—Now that the importation of Codfish into this country has practically ceased for the season, I should like to draw your attention to certain facts which have come under my personal observation, and which in a small way may help to clear the present situation and improve matters next year.

CONSIGNMENTS.

Whatever may be said on this subject is between exporter and importer, and it seems to have been thoroughly thrashed out in Newfoundland—there is no doubt in my opinion that its universal application here as between importer and retailer has had a disastrous effect on prices.

Further, the Government has been and are actually engaged in finding ways and means of lowering the cost of living, and they mean business. For nearly a year, a Syndicate presided over by H.R.H. the Prince of Udine has been engaged in devising measures and forming plans which will enable the Italians to catch, cure and import all the codfish they require. Their "field of action" is to be the North Sea and Icelandic waters and the idea is that Germany by way of reparations should furnish a suitable base, trawlers, fishing-gear, etc., and Italy the necessary crews, 7200 tons of salt cod are to be delivered into this country free of duty, the price paid to be lire 270 per kilo, or Lire 135 per during the last four or five months, and will continue to do so unless shippers as a whole take drastic steps to put an end to it. At this present moment, except where outright sales were made in Newfoundland, we are indirectly in the hands of every small dealer in the land for it is he who, finding that he can get all the fresh fish he requires without drawing on his resources, if not from one merchant then from another, finally fixes the price the shipper is to receive. And however well organized the wholesale dealer's business may be, it is evident that he cannot control the hundreds of small shopkeepers who handle his fish, nor can he with any likelihood of success dictate his own terms and have them carried out. Under these circumstances, it was to be expected that no serious efforts would be made to keep up prices, except by the unfortunate few who bought outright and were powerless; and the result is that net returns for the best quality of shore now range round about 30%.

I venture to suggest that no other factor has had so much to do with bringing about the present ruinous state of the market, and to express my opinion that there will be no change for the better in the situation, unless shippers take the matter in hand and demand that Importers shall sell their fish on a cash basis.

QUALITY.

The percentage of "seconds" has been too great. The time has now passed when consumers were willing to accept any quality of fish almost at any price; they require their money's worth and feel bound to get it. The fact that there is practically no "prime" left in the market and that the stocks of No. 2 are sufficient to last out the season, speaks for itself, and it is possible that a better understanding between merchant and fisherman would go far to raise the standard of quality and to net better results. As far as I have been able to observe, a great deal of the fish has been too heavily salted, some very rough, and a fair amount skin-beated, while qualities have been so mixed in the same casks that buyers have been given many opportunities of avoiding what would otherwise have been heavy losses.

This last point is a serious matter for the shippers; for, when such a case occurs, it is no longer a question of the difference in price (two or three shillings) between "prime" and "seconds"; it is considered a breach of contract and the importer does one of three things:—

(a) Refuses to take delivery,
(b) Offers to sell for account of shipper,
(c) Takes legal proceedings against the shipper.

Which ever course of action is taken the shipper is bound to be the sufferer, and it has happened that, whereas the fish had been properly culled, packed and labelled a loss of half a crown per quintal might have been incurred, the exporter has had to refund as high a sum as 21. The remedy is obvious.

QUANTITY.

The quantity of shore imported has not been excessive; but unfortunately the amount sufficient for one year's consumption has been crowded into six months with the attendant result that prices have steadily declined and show no sign of recovery though there cannot be much more fish to come forward this season. A carefully planned system for the regulating of shipments, based upon the periodical requirements of the consumer, would appear to be a necessity if we are to get remunerative prices throughout the year.

PRICES.

Up to less than two years ago, Italy was in the hands of the communists; the whole economic system of the country was dislocated; farming was discouraged and even forbidden; cattle were left to die wholesale in the fields; crops lay rotting on the ground and no one dared raise a finger. Now, however, thanks to the strong measures taken by a business-like and popular government, communism has been crushed and comparative peace reigns in the land; the peasant is again hard at work in the fields and his home produce reaches town and village in abundance. At the beginning of the season he was actually able to place such foodstuffs as beef, mutton, pork, etc., on the market at a cheaper rate than the retailer could offer. Now, the consumer is as philanthropist, and however savoury a cod-stake may seem to him he will not hesitate to favor a joint of beef if it costs him a few lire less per kilo.

Further, the Government has been and are actually engaged in finding ways and means of lowering the cost of living, and they mean business. For nearly a year, a Syndicate presided over by H.R.H. the Prince of Udine has been engaged in devising measures and forming plans which will enable the Italians to catch, cure and import all the codfish they require. Their "field of action" is to be the North Sea and Icelandic waters and the idea is that Germany by way of reparations should furnish a suitable base, trawlers, fishing-gear, etc., and Italy the necessary crews, 7200 tons of salt cod are to be delivered into this country free of duty, the price paid to be lire 270 per kilo, or Lire 135 per quintal, which at present rate of exchange means about 20%. The directors of the Company call upon the public to subscribe to the amount of Lire 30,000,000, about £40,000, and estimate the profits to be about £25,000.

Although in my opinion the Italian fisherman will be found unamiable for the work, he will be called upon to do, the matter seems to me to be of sufficient seriousness to necessitate the attention of Newfoundland exporters.

Finally I should like to add that as far as I have been able to find out, the scheme is not receiving that whole-hearted support which was expected from the importers.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) A. E. BERNARD,
Lieut.-Col.

IN SALT LAKE.

Down the streets of Salt Lake City I went choosing in my car, and I hummed a joyous ditty as I smoked my rich cigar; for the town is hunky-dory, and true virtue is its glory, it is famed in song and story, as few modern cities are. Then two coppers jumped my Lizzie, and they dragged me from my seat, with and gaudy, all Havana was its body, their billies they got busy, and they it had nothing cheap or shoddy, and smote me on my feet; "You are it had a scarlet hand. If you pinch a man for puffing such a good cigar as mine, from him you knock the name of Pete. With blue laws I have no quarrel!" I informed the busy friendly strangers she is meeting is I even frown on hope, virtue is my one obsession, but you make a bum impression, and I hereby make confession that my zeal for virtue drops. Had you caught me smoking stogies of the common two-for brand, such as solace lightwad fogies, the arrest I'd understand; but my town was rich 20 cents.

THE UNWISE OLD LADY.

"I guess it would be better if I hadn't lived quite so long." That is what a certain old lady, who lives in the home of her daughter, says whenever she is asked to do her share in adjusting herself to the life of three generations as lived in one house.

She is a nice enough old lady, but she has her faults, like the rest of us, and one of them is that familiar one among older folks of interfering too much with the children. This makes her son-in-law very cross, and some times he will protest or sometimes her daughter will ask her to try to keep her hands (or rather her tongue) off.

A Grievance.

And then the old lady always folds her hands and says with an injured air, "I guess it would be better if I hadn't lived quite so long." There, upon she retires into a resentful silence and will not emerge from it until her daughter has humbled herself and reassured her.

In a child the silence would be called by a short name of four letters beginning with s and ending with k, but of course that would not be a word to use in connection with an old lady.

Poor little old lady, even though you know how wrong she is, and even though I am more sorry for her daughter, who is often distraught with the effort to keep things harmonious, I am sorry for her, too. Because she plainly does not realize that the weapon she is using is one that is pretty sure to lose its keenness with too much use.

It is a tragedy that old folks should be allowed to feel that they really have lived too long; it is a world and wearying thing that old folks should use that phrase or that thought as a club over the heads of children who really are kind to them, to protect themselves from reasonable criticism.

Not Fair.

Another old lady of whom I know, who has been in poor health for some years, thinks that her whole family ought to conduct themselves as if she were about to die at any time. True, she is very frail and might easily slip away; but, on the other hand, she has

Grooms Who Forgot Brides.

HUMOURS OF ABSENT-MINDED LOVERS.

A famous divine was engaged in his youth to the daughter of a bishop. All arrangements were made for the wedding. On the appointed day the prospective bridegroom went down to the river to enjoy an hour's fishing. He became so absorbed that he forgot all about the wedding, and when the bride arrived the groom was nowhere to be seen. The lady was annoyed, and promptly broke off the match.

A very forgetful bridegroom was John Kemble, the famous actor. After the ceremony he had to get back to the theatre. He became so absorbed in his part that he forgot that he was married, and when the show was over he went home to his bachelor lodgings.

Three friends who had been waiting for him to turn up at his new home were astonished at his non-appearance. They went to his rooms, and after knocking several times got an answer, Kemble looking out of a window and shouting, "Who is there?"

"Why, Kemble, what in the world are you doing here? We have been waiting at your new home for hours, and the bride is nearly distracted!"

"The bride, to be sure," said Kemble. "I'd forgotten all about her. I've been in bed for two hours!"

One day, Dr. Stukeley, the antiquarian, visiting Sir Isaac Newton, was shown into his rooms, where he waited for more than an hour without any sign of his friend.

He began to feel very hungry, and at last, not knowing how long Sir Isaac might be, sat down at the table and ate the best part of a chicken which the cook had set there for her master.

At last Newton came down. He was surprised on seeing the fowl half-eaten, and after thinking a moment exclaimed: "I declare, Stukeley, I've dined to-day without knowing it!"

They Knew.

The reading lesson was the story of a poor prisoner shut up in a narrow cell, and the teacher was trying to see if the children really understood what they were reading. "And through the small window," he read, "came a bar of sunlight, striking the wall, as if it wished to brighten the captive's dreary life. He reached up, trying to get a glimpse of the outer world."

Good Fertilizer properly used will convert poor ground into good ground.

Good Seed put into good ground will yield goodly crop of potatoes. A couple of extra barrels of potatoes will repay the cost of fertilizing.

Farmers, Read this Carefully!

This year, acting on the advice of Agricultural Experts, we have imported Fertilizers of higher grade and greater strength than were imported during the past decade of years.

The Fertilizers we now offer, are of more value than last year's importations and are guaranteed to give even better results.

Although our prices this year figure higher per pound, the cost per unit of fertilizing value is considerably less.

Putting Fertilizer into your ground is like putting money into savings bank.

You can rely on getting more out, than you put in.--it pays to fertilize.

NOTICE!--Our fertilizers are not adulterated with spentslag or rock dust.

CONTENTMENT.

A little house on a little street Where the children scamper on eager feet.

A friendly tree and a friendly door, Who is the man who would wish for more?

What have the palace or mansion fine That God has denied unto me and mine?

Laughter! Mine is as sweet and clear As ever things in a mortal's ear? Emiles! My babe's are as fair to see As ever a monarch's child's could be.

And the proud rich man who is riding by Shall come to no happier home than I.

Over my roof the blue sky bends, Under my roof the toiling ends, Shall be the house, but what care I, Rich with peace are the hours that fly.

What if he brightens his meal with wine? I shall have laughter and love with mine.

What has another that I must gain? The sunbeam's dance through my window pane.

The same rain falls on the friendly tree, The same joys comfort both him and me. Shall fond arms welcome him home to-day? I shall be met in the self-same way.

So I am as rich as a King, I say, Though I must trudge to my toll by day.

The Lighter Side.

Ima Nutt tells of one St. John's young man who contends it is better to be a friend to all the girls, for he says, "Why make all the girls sore just to make one happy?"

Some men blow their own horns so hard they blow up.

"I don't see how a man can put a nasty pipe in his mouth," exclaimed the sweet young St. John's girl, and then she leaned over and kissed her bulldog.

A young St. John's chap had proposed to a beautiful girl. The girl, blushing and weeping a little, had accepted him. He folded her in his arms, pressed his lips to hers and whispered "Dearest, is this the first time you have ever loved?" "Yes," the girl sighed, "but it's so nice that I hope it won't be the last."

There has always been a doubt as to whether clothes really make the man, and this has been strengthened by the present certainty that shells do not make the workman.

GIRLS. There are girls who shine in the sun, And who swing a wicked tune. There are girls who make things go, But none compare with me.

Water Trout Hatches Out.

By ALAN WARWICK.

At the bottom of the stream, and half a foot from the gravel, lay a ball of jelly, rather smaller than a pea, and a trout's egg. Together with hundreds of others, it has been deposited right up in the shallowest part of the little rivulet that runs from the big river. How the mother trout had got so far up the little stream was one of the wonders of nature. She had to pass a miniature waterfall and even, in one place, had to cross a road. The stream just trickled across the particular ball of jelly had separated from the others, and had rolled down stream some distance from them.

Several weeks the egg was just jelly, and then, gradually, two spots appeared underneath the shell. These were the first of the eyes and backbone of young trout.

By day they grew clearer and brighter, until at last a tiny creature was visible inside the skin of the egg. It began to form—muscles that stretched and were exerting their strength against the thin shell. The parent fishlet was trying to escape.

Free at Last.

Suddenly, one day, when the shell was nearly over, the coiled embryo stretched itself, the shell cracked and Master Troutlet was free—free for his head was still in the shell.

They body with the one big fin protruding down his back, over the tail, and underneath to the head again, he was violently and at last, with a great effort, the fish was free.

The exertion seemed to have exhausted him, and for a time he lay on his side, getting ready for the next move. The next move was an inching one. He went straight back to the security of the gravel and hid himself.

Building His Body.

Under the gravel and sand there he began to eat, but the new-born did not mind that, as at present he had not got a mouth that would be still unformed. So to develop he drew his rations from a mass of food under his body as a yolk-sac, which gradually grew smaller, until at last it disappeared.

As the dwindling of the yolk-sac the little creature grew more like the black eyes became more like the eyes of a fish and the fat fin gave place to the tail of a real trout. The mouth had begun to open and shut and the formation of the gills. He came by now a perfect trout—shapely and colored like his brown spots.

He was ready for the battle of life within six weeks of being hatched, and he struggled up through the water.

Nothing was very new and very strange to him, his mother had been his teacher, and he learned for himself. But he learned.

Breakfast.

Trout was lying under the protection of a large stone when a fat, white worm rolled down the side of the stream. It was a tiny worm, but it was the troutlet's breakfast.

Eight Indian Regiments to Have Native Officers.

DELHI, India.—The Government of India's plan for the trial "Indianization" of a section of the Indian army has been approved by the Legislative Assembly and is to be put into effect at once. This scheme, which represents a partial capitulation to demands made incessantly for several years in the Legislative Assembly and through other channels, calls for the "Indianization" of eight infantry regiments for the purpose of testing the ability of Indian officers. If the trial is found successful further concessions are to be made at a later date. The plan has been drawn up by Lord Rawlinson, Commander-in-Chief of the army. In explaining it he says: "The government considers a start should be made at once so as to give Indians a fair opportunity of proving that regiments officered by Indians will be efficient in every way. The eight units in question will be chosen judiciously so as to include as many representative types as possible. "I hope the people of India will realize the importance of this step, and that it now rests with them to justify the decision of the government. I hope no effort will be spared to make the measure a solid and conspicuous success. The responsibility which lies before the young men who will officer the 'Indianized' regiments is not light. They will have in their hands not only the lives of their men, but also the task of maintaining untarnished the high and ancient traditions of the regiments to which they are appointed. I can assure them that in the new and wider career which will now open to them, they will have the active and generous support of the government of India and of their British comrades in the army. Their success or failure will mean much to India. The initiation of this scheme constitutes an entirely new departure which, though limited in its scope, is one which may have far-reaching results."

Spring Greens.

Dandelions are considered a liver tonic. They contain valuable properties of potash and salts, and so are no longer neglected food products but have taken a position equal to spinach, chard and other vegetables in the cultivated gardens.

Dandelion greens should be thoroughly washed after detaching leaves are discarded, and then left standing in cold salted water for one hour to remove any possible insects. The leaves should be cooked in an uncovered vessel, and be sure the salted water is boiling before putting in the dandelion. To eliminate the objectionable bitter taste change the water once in the cooking and add a bit of baking soda to the first water. Dandelions require only ten or fifteen minutes' cooking and when tender should be drained.

After cooking and draining, chop dandelion fine.

RUSSIA'S BINS NOW BULGE WITH GRAIN.

Moscow.—Too much bread promises to be Russia's dilemma in 1923. From 1917 until 1922 bread was the most precious thing in Russia. A farmer could trade into Moscow with a small sack of grain and trade it for a grand piano or anything which the hungry city dweller had to offer. Now the same peasant could walk from one end of Russia to the other and, excepting in a few isolated famine districts, could not get a jack-knife for the same sack of grain.

If the harvest of this year turns out as expected, Russia will have a surplus of grain which could be sold abroad.

From a country which less than 18 months ago was clamoring for crusts Russia has changed into a nation which promises within a few months to be swamped with wheat and rye.

At Saratof, near certain communes that have been listed as famine-stricken, rye flour, the staple of bread, is quoted at less than 25 cents a pood, which is 36 pounds. At Samara, the district where even cannibalism occurred among the starving a year ago, rye goes begging at less than 40c. a bushel.

In Moscow, naturally, transportation costs have made prices somewhat higher, almost double the retailing prices in the great producing regions. Siberia, once the granary from which wheat poured into Western Europe, did not fare so well in last year's harvest, and there prices are higher, but in Odessa and at Kiev, in the southern wheat belt, recent official quotations show wheat costing under 70 cents a bushel.

The Soviet Government, through the collection of taxes, has rolled up a grain reserve amounting to nearly 200,000,000 bushels. Some of this is needed to feed the army, but as for the bulk of the grain, unless it can be exported, the Government does not know what to do with it.

The Swedish Florence Nightingale

Miss Elsa Brandstrom, daughter of General Brandstrom, once Swedish Minister in Petrograd, has been proposed for the Nobel Peace Prize this year, and certainly she seems to deserve such recognition of her noble work.

At an early age Miss Brandstrom began to work in Swedish hospitals at Petrograd, and when the war broke out she joined the Red Cross and worked among prisoners of war both in the Russian capital and in Siberia. Her work in Siberia was especially noble, for she worked difficult and dangerous places, and worked through epidemics of typhoid and other diseases. So devoted were her labors that the prisoners of war called her Queen of Siberia, Guardian Angel, and Swedish Nightingale.

Even after the revolution she persevered in her good work in Russia, and once when captured by the revolutionaries, she had to swallow pages of her diary to prevent valuable information falling into the hands of the enemy.

On one occasion she saved the lives of some prisoners by pleading for them before a military court.

Since the war she has lectured for philanthropic objects both in Sweden and the United States, and has published her nursing experiences in a book entitled "Among Prisoners of War in Siberia."

This plucky woman is also one of the founders of the International League of Peace and Freedom.

PLAYS PRETTY "VAMP" IN "IDOLS OF CLAY"

AT THE MAJESTIC TO-DAY. It is generally the custom with favorites of the screen to insist that they are perfectly delighted with the roles they are called upon to play. Dorothy Cummings, who has one of the chief parts in George Fitzmaurice's production, "Idols of Clay," featuring Mae Murray and David Powell, is an exception.

"I don't like to portray the unpleasant type of woman, even if it's just for a few weeks before the camera," protested Miss Cummings recently. "I came all the way from California to New York, at Mr. Fitzmaurice's special request to play in 'Idols of Clay,' and then discovered that I was the villainess of the piece! A Kipling-like sort of woman who wears clinging gowns and delights in upsetting things. People tell me I did it very naturally, but I'm not sure whether that's a compliment or not."

Miss Cummings, who is a native of Australia, is of English descent and was for some time on the English and American stage. Her previous screen appearances were with Geraldine Farrar and Bessie Barriscale. "Idols of Clay" is Miss Cummings' first picture for Paramount. It is an exciting romance, adapted from a story by Ouida Bergere.

by thousands are known to exist in this country because they have been relieved from pain and suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Science in surgery and electricity have advanced greatly during the past fifty years, but treatment of disease by old-fashioned root and herb medicines has never been improved upon. The leader of them all is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which after fifty years of success is to-day recognized as the standard remedy for female ills and sold everywhere for that purpose. Replies to a questionnaire recently sent out to 50,000 women by Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Cobourg, Ont., proved that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it. Isn't this a marvelous record for any medicine to hold?

At the Casino.

"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM" A DELIGHTFUL COMEDY.

Last night's performance in the Casino Theatre, "Up in Mabel's Room," was one continuous roar of laughter, and the crowded house went almost hysterical over a little rose colored piece of lingerie. Mr. James West, in the role of Garry Alsworth, was almost caught red-handed with the goods, and to off-set any detection that there might have been, he cleared it up by picking flies off the wall. About two years before the time of the play, Garry Alsworth, who had a great love for Mabel Essington, sent her from Paris, the article that caused the trouble, with the inscription "from Garry to Mabel," embroidered on it. Later on Garry breaks with Mabel and marries "Geraldine," played by Lottie Lee, who was young and foolishly jealous; while Garry, who was always the simple, happy-go-lucky type, feared that his wife would hear of the gift, he decided to get it. It was still in existence. Garry asked Mabel for it, but she urged him to tell his wife and cure her of her jealousy. Garry makes repeated attempts to recover the present, and gets himself in a muddle before the whole party. In the end matters are satisfactorily explained, but the play must be seen to be appreciated. The scene up in Mabel's bedroom in the second act, is a scream. Miss Dennis played Mabel in a real charming manner, and each member of the cast played his part exceptionally well. The entire troupe is to be congratulated in placing such an excellent show before the footlights. The play is well worth the price of admission, and no lover of real comedy should miss this show.

The programme was excellently arranged and the artists were heartily enjoyed. The novelty number "Little Peggy O'Neill's" by Misses. The Screen's Supreme Favorite.

"A Question of Honor," in which Anita Stewart plays her greatest role comes to the Nickel Theatre to-morrow and will remain for the remainder of the week. Miss Stewart needs no introduction to St. John's amusement lovers, she has been a popular favorite here for many years. The story of "A Question of Honor" is one that will appeal to everybody, and the following is the plot in brief: Bill Shannon is building a dam in the western mountains. Leon Morse, a Wall Street millionaire wants the site for the right-of-way for his railroad. He comes west to negotiate with Shannon, bringing with him a party in which is included Anne Wilmet, whom he hopes to marry. Anne Wilmet and Shannon meet, and then Morse's hope to have her as his wife goes a shimmering. Shannon also blocks Morse's efforts to obtain the site of the dam for a railroad right-of-way. What happens next? The balance of the story contains a beautiful ending, and a remarkable climax, which everybody will appreciate better if left untold here.

Hotel Charges Drive Tourists From Germany.

BERLIN.—Foreign tourists, especially those from North and South America, are so wearied and annoyed by the passport, police and housing regulations in Germany that only the most resolute are remaining in the German cities. The influx of outsiders is so slight that the German press, backed by complaining hotel-keepers, merchants, restaurant keepers and theatre managers, is criticizing the central government for the difficulties it has placed in the way of obtaining passport visas, and the municipal government for its heavy tax on foreigners and the enacting police regulations.

The simplest sort of single room in a Berlin hotel of the second class now costs the equivalent of $4 a day. This tax which the city of Berlin imposes on the room charges to foreigners. The result of this is hotels which are practically empty, and hotel men who are facing bankruptcy. Tourist agencies no longer refer visitors to hotels, but send them to boarding houses. Only wealthy visitors can afford to live in hotels.

In Hamburg and Bremen there is as much complaint about overcharges in hotels as there is in Berlin. During the recent Leipzig Fair American buyers were charged such extortionate hotel rates that many of them left in disgust without making any purchases.

The troubles of foreigners begin when they attempt to get visas to enter Germany. For a time only persons with documents proving they were coming for business reasons were granted permission. Students and tourists who desired to visit Germany were curiously refused. Complaints poured in from Americans in London, Paris, Rome and Vienna who had come to Europe with the intention of visiting Germany, but who had failed to get visas in New York before leaving.

There apparently has been some relaxation in the visa policy. Business men now realize that by requiring foreigners to limit their stay in German cities, and by preventing others from entering, the financial situation has been made worse than ever. Prices on practically all manufactured articles in Germany were up to the world level, so there was no reason to keep visitors out on the ground that they would profiteer if admitted.

The uncertainty about the status of foreigners in Germany, coupled with the difficulties of crossing the Rhine, and because of the train service interruptions incidental to the French occupation, has been widely heralded in Western Europe. France and Italy have used it to advantage in their efforts to attract and retain visitors as long as possible. Nevertheless the cities still collect their high taxes on foreigners, and hotels and shops continued to charge foreigners more than they do Germans.

One hotelkeeper defended the practice on the ground that the Germans must increase rates because their hotels are nearly empty.

Cairo Museum Will Keep all Treasure From Pharaoh Tomb.

VALLEY OF THE KINGS, Luxor, Egypt, April 2.—Members of the American Archaeological Mission who are assisting the discoverers of King Tutankhamun's tomb in identifying, preserving and packing the amazingly rich collection of antiquities removed from the burial chamber of the Pharaoh, are making rapid progress in their work and hope soon to leave on their annual visits to the United States. They will return to Luxor in the autumn when the tomb is reopened.

Most of the articles taken from the royal mortuary chamber are now ready for shipment to the Cairo Museum. There is little chance that any of these mementoes will find their way to America, or indeed British shores. For the Egyptian law prohibits that all objects found in royal tombs shall remain in the country as the property of the Egyptian government. The Britons who discovered the tomb must find their reward in the personal satisfaction of having added so signally to the world's know-

GAS SERVICE.

The S.S. "Nevarra" has brought us a large cargo of "Astoria" double-banded GAS COAL. This is mined in Pennsylvania, is unexcelled for Gas operations. It produces gas of the highest value, light, heat or power. It is superior to the imported article, as nothing is better from it. The coke is of high quality, and is a substitute for hard coal. Ammonium Sulphate is the best fertilizer extant. We are prepared for increased business, and cordially invite inquiries. Phone 81.

Europe Feverishly at Work on Aircraft.

The Governments of all the European powers are feverishly at work in an endeavor to improve their air forces. Since the war France has developed her air force to such an extent that for a time the British feared they would be badly outstripped. Not because of any war clouds but because of keen rivalry British officials are watching French developments with almost as much interest as they formerly had in the expansion of the Kaiser's fleet. All the experts are agreed that when the next European war takes place, the competing air forces will take a decisive part, especially as they will be in a position to harass the civilian populations to a much greater degree than hitherto.

Though the Germans have been laboring under handicaps, placed on them by the Treaty of Versailles, it is known that they have perfected several types of machines which they used during the war. To date the French have been credited with making the greatest progress in Europe, but if all the facts were published they would show the British scientists and mechanical experts have been far from idle during the last four years.

The British Air Ministry received recently a huge battle plane with Rolls Royce engines, capable of developing 3,000 horse-power. It overshadowed even the giant Handley-Page, which were used exclusively in bombing the Rhineland cities. It is an aeroplane which takes off the water with the grace and speed of a black duck.

Another type of plane designed to work in conjunction with battleships has been tested successfully recently. Performing the functions of a Zeppelin it can be used for bombing purposes as well. Much confidence is placed in this type and it has the full support of the Admiralty in preference to dirigibles.

Little attention is being given now to dirigibles, although the British Air Ministry has a number of experts working in this department of flying. The numerous disasters that have overtaken dirigibles on both sides of the Atlantic, have not discouraged their constructors, but very much important improvements have been made in the heavier than air machines and their construction is no much cheaper than experts are concentrating on the latter.

The Italians, however, are still building dirigibles and some long experimental flights will be made this year. The Dutchman, Fokker, has a new plane which offers much promise.

Some Englishmen have been competing with the Germans to start an extensive commercial-air service over the Continent this summer. The German plane which landed in London recently has received much favorable comment. Whether the subject is regarded from the commercial or fighting angle, it is plain that the Europeans are extremely active and that flying will have a big boom this year.

"Dead Man's Chest."

Few people who have read Robert Louis Stevenson's famous novel, "Treasure Island," with its "Fifteen Men on the Dead Man's Chest," are aware that there is actually a place known as Dead Man's Chest. Such a place, however, does exist, and it existed long before Stevenson ever thought of his novel.

"Dead Man's Chest" is the name of a small box-like island in the Virgin Islands (West Indies). It is 500 feet long and 200 feet high at its highest point, and, as shown by the accompanying photograph, it bears a considerable resemblance to the recumbent figure of a dead man floating in the sea.

It lies some five miles from Road Town, Tortola, the capital of the British West Indies, on the west side of Sir Francis Drake's Channel, and is uninhabited. The first settlers of the Virgin Islands were pirates, and this is doubtless the fact that gave R.L.S. his inspiration.

Not far from Dead Man's Chest is Norman Island, where there is a curious cavern, approachable only from the sea, and that at low tide, through a hole in the cliff just big enough for a ship's boat to pass. In this cavern the buried hoard of a pirate's treasure is supposed to have been found many years ago.

The name "Dead Man's Chest" is frequently abbreviated to "Dead Chest," and is marked in the Admiralty charts under the latter designation.

Try These Tennis Tricks

In the early weeks of the lawn tennis season you can have many points by using your brains and by being more fit than the majority of your opponents.

Before you play a match, practice a few strokes by serving the ball against a wall, and when taking it on the rebound, trying to drive to a marked point.

You will find that your opponents have to "make up" on the court the time you have spent in practice, so that if you can manage to infuse a certain amount of "devil" into your play right at the start, you will possibly put up some surprising performance.

Artful Tactics. When the standard of play in which you are engaged is not very high, you will usually find that the opponents you are called upon to meet are rather weak when "up" at the net. When this is the case, drop a few shots short of the half-way line in order to "draw" them up. If you succeed in doing this, do not go up too close yourself, for even a weak volleyer will give you difficult returns when you are quite near to the net.

You can often trick such a player by "spoiling" a ball high out of reach instead of making a more orthodox stroke.

In playing the "spoon" shot, wait until a weak volley has struck the ground. Then, bending well down, keep your wrist and racket under the ball and strike with a fair amount of "cut."

Often it will pay you to use one particular shot time after time during the first half of a set. Then, when your opponent imagines this is the only weapon you possess, you can change your tactics by producing quite another type of game.

Always watch the ball carefully. If you do this you will have plenty of time to place yourself in position for taking a return. Thus, if you make a good-length drive which bounces near the base-line on the other side of the net you will have every chance of making a "kill" with a volley at the net.

A Quick Return. If, on the other hand, your own stroke has been a weak one, and you have sent the ball somewhere near the middle of your opponents' court, you must keep on your own base-line, for you will almost certainly have to deal with a hard return.

With very little practice you can learn to serve with either hand. An ambidextrous player is disconcerting to face, and it may be well worth the while of many moderate performers to practice left-handed play. It will produce many points.

Cultivate the habit of sending over an occasional "half-volley"—a stroke played by striking the ball as soon as it has bounced. The quickness of your return will be very puzzling to opponents, and requires a slight "hit" of the racket at the moment of impact.

Tragic Story of a Forgotten Wedding Ring

A tragic story of a forgotten wedding ring is told in the "Lives of the Lindseys." When he should have been at church, Colin Lindsey, the young Earl of Balcarres, was quietly eating his breakfast in nightgown and slippers.

When reminded that Maurita of Nassau was waiting for him at the altar he hurried to church, but forgot the ring. He, without looking at, placed on the bride's finger.

After the ceremony was over, the Countess glanced at her hand, and beheld a grinning death's head on her hand. She fainted away, and the emen made such an impression on her that on recovering she declared that she was destined to die within a year; a prediction that probably brought about his own fulfillment, for in a few months, his careless Colin was a widower.

Silk underwear has also adopted pleats. Also, entirely pleated sleeves are half velled with wide cape sleeves of lace.

THE WORLD'S PRESS.

CRUELTY TO WORDS.

Springfield Republican: Now that "intrigue" is having a much-needed rest from overwork, "zealure" is being kept unduly busy.

IMMIGRATION.

Le Canada: If by a high birth rate, immigration and effective remedies against the present exodus, we can get our population to increase in the next decade in a manner conformable with the extent and ambitions of our vast country, we shall bring to our financial problems and the heavy taxation which follow in their train an effective solution, which will contribute to the betterment of all classes.

THE WHYNES OF WHAT.

Providence Journal: Prof. Dunlap, of the Department of Experimental Psychology at John Hopkins, has started something. On being asked what the psychology is of the men and women who take part in endurance dancing contests, he asks in return: "Why do fat men take part in races at all? Why do people hold pie-eating contests or go in for amateur theatricals or college athletics?" Well, now, it begins to look as if psychology were going to be really interesting.

POLITICS AT THE RED LION.

London Daily Telegraph: It will not be long before political speeches are put on the waves—even if it has not been done already—and the company at the Red Lion may well enjoy a little political propaganda. Our own experience—confessedly not very extensive—of public bar, and even private saloon, conversation is that it would gain rather than lose by being interspersed with song and music from without, and if any were not in a mood to listen, they could still talk, just as many concert-goers do when they are not enthralled by the performer on the platform.

TO THE GUILLOTINE!

Sydney (Australia) Bulletin: As a first essential to getting back to the pre-war attitude towards those great institutions on whose moral health and good repute the maintenance of law and order depends, it will be necessary to break away from the arrogant and unscrupulous war-time point of view. That is only to say, really, that we must get rid of our war-time leaders—not merely in politics, but in commerce, in the churches, in the Law and elsewhere. The jettisoning of Hughes is but the first move in a reform movement that should be as big as the pernicious system he created.

THE NEW POMPEII.

Boston Transcript: The cost of providing protection, both by a certain amount of new construction and by adding largely to the corps of guards who watch over visitors, is well worth the expense involved, so much more truly and vividly may the original aspect of Pompeii be preserved by this method. Of a surety, that is the right way to save the glory of Pompeii, increasing its human appeal many fold. The city, when shorn of its smaller treasures, lies dead. Preserved in the new manner, it glows with life; it telescopes time. To spectators in the twentieth century it reveals the players of the first as though still they walked the stage.

BLOOD-AND-THUNDER.

Cape Argus (South Africa): A good deal of chatter is often talked in regard to the pernicious influence (coupled with blood-and-thunder tales, and pictures too. Boys will be boys. A healthy-minded boy will take no harm from the wildest and most improbable tale of adventure, or even crime. The evil, if it exists, goes further back—in the earlier training of the child-mind. Still, it is in every way to be desired that due precautions should be taken to exclude from the pictures whatever is obviously objectionable or what may be calculated to do harm. Whenever vice is dressed up in false colors, there is a real danger of its inciting to evil.

THE SHRINKING DOLLAR.

Indianapolis News: There is no absolutely fixed measure of value—in the nature of things can be no such measure. But it does not seem fair to put all the blame on the standard and to acquit altogether the multitudinous commodities to which it is applied, which shift in their relations to one another quite as much as in their relations to the dollar. If trade were carried on by barter we should see the same phenomena, and would presumably be asked to believe that the bushel of wheat had shrunk, rather than that the pound of sugar had "swelled," though the bushel of wheat might at the same time exchange for more shoe value than ever before.

Cotton frocks are trimmed with Valenciennes lace. Organza dresses appear with appliqued cretonne flowers & trimming.
