A QUEEN UNCROWNED

THE STORY IN THE LONE INN.

CHAPTER VI.

"I remember, now, that about eight months ago there was a rumor of a missing Frenchman—a stranger here—and of whom no tidings could ever be discovered. He must have been the one the little girl spoke to you of. I shall have the old witch and her two recalcitrant sons arrested before another sun sets."

"Not quite so fast, my good sir; I will have to be consulted about that!" said a loud, harsh voice, as the door was flung violently open, and Grizzle Howlet herself stood before them.

"Well, most potent, grave and reverend seignors, and ladies too," she said, "so you had it all settled to arrest old Grizzle Howlet and her sons, land clap them into prison, and then hang them for robbery and murder? What a pity so elaborate a scheme should end in smoke, as so many other schemes have done before! What would you say to me, if I were to tell you that you will not only let me go forth free, but safe from your interference from henceforth?"

"You will soon have my answer," said Mr. De Vere, setting the bell rope and ringing a violent peal.

"Call your servants as fast as you like!" said the woman, with a look of contempt; "but, before they, or you, lay a finger on me, I must and will have a word with that young lady there!" And she pointed to Augusta, who stood regarding her with mingled horror and loathing.

"We will see about that," said Mr. De Vere, calmly.

"I tell you," said the woman, raising her arm and speaking with a sort of passionate earnestness, "it will be better for you if you do—until the very day of your death, you, and all who bear your proud name, will rue it if you do not! Listen to me, lady—you who stand there so queenly in your haughty pride and scorn—it will be better for you to hear what I have to say; for I have your secret and another besides, that you ought to have known long before this." A frightful paleness overspread the haughty face of Augusta, and, with a faint cry, she caught and steadied herself by a chair.

"Oh, I must hear her! I must, papa!" she cried, gasping for breath, and looking ready to faint.

It was strange to see the calm, the stately, the haughty Augusta De Vere moved like this. In all his life her father had never seen anything like it before; and now he gazed upon her thunderstruck.

"In Heaven's name, what is the meaning of this, Augusta? What secret is this wretched old woman talking about?"

"Oh, I cannot tell you! I dare not tell you! but I must hear her!" exclaimed Augusta, distractedly, as she went over and stood close beside the woman.

"I must tell you in private," said Grizzle, looking around.

"You must not leave the room!" said Mr. De Vere, sternly. "Jacquetta, tell the servants to wait, and turn the key of the door and let this farce end!"

Jacquetta, looking astonished and bewildered, obeyed.

"Don't listen, then! Stand off!" said Grizzle, with an angry wave of her hand. "A De Vere should not be an eavesdropper. Come over here, young lady," she said, taking Augusta by the arm, and leading her to the remotest corner. Captain Disbrow walked to the window and looked out. Jacquetta bent over the table, with her back toward them; and Mr. De Vere, looking angry, astonished, and half alarmed, stood, with a frowning brow, regarding them.

So nearly ten minutes passed—during which Grizzle talked in a fierce, rapid, hissing whisper, without once stopping, and grasping Lady Augusta's arm in a viselike grip. As she went on, a frightful change passed over the young girl. One arm was half raised, her branched lips sprung, quivering, apart, her eyes strained and staring, an awful darkness, as if she were strangling, settling on her face, and with it a look of horror—of wildest, most unspeakable horror—fell.

Suddenly there was the sound of a heavy fall, followed by a cry from Grizzle—a sharp, quick cry of alarm, echoed by one longer and more passionate from Mr. De Vere. Disbrow and Jacquetta faced around in terror to behold Augusta lying on the floor, and a dark stream of blood slowly oozing from her mouth.

"Lift her up," said the loud, harsh voice of Grizzle; "she has ruptured an artery—that is all."

She attempted to lift her herself, as she spoke, but she was furiously hurried back by Mr. De Vere.

"Woman, begone! touch her not!" he cried, in a tone of mingled rage and anguish. "You have slain my child!"

"She is not dead, I tell you," said Grizzle, coolly. "Rupturing an artery is a small affair."

"Peace, you old hag!" said Disbrow, fiercely. "You have done mischief enough now! How dare you speak, after what you have done?"

"Dare!" said Grizzle, with a short laugh; "I would dare as much as any De Vere among you; and verily, you come of a daring race. If haughty ladies," she said pointing to the still insensible Augusta, "will commit crimes! I repeat it; so never start, and look fierce, my young soldier crimes that even I, murderer and all as I am, shudder to think of; they must suffer the consequences."

"You shall suffer the consequences, you old murderer!" shouted Mr. De Vere, furiously, as he laid Augusta on the sofa, and turned toward the door. "By the heavens above us! you shall never go free another hour, for this!"

But the tall form of Grizzle interposed between him and the door, and her long, commanding arm waved him back.

"No," she said, resolutely, fixing her eyes sternly on his face; "you shall not go—for your own sake, you shall not go. It is not that I bear any regard for you—it is not that I bear any love for one of your proud name—it is not that I do not hate, from the very depths of my soul, one who bears it"—and her fierce eyes seemed, for an instant, to blaze with a red, lurid fire, as they fixed themselves on Jacquetta, who knelt beside her sister—but for a reason of my own, you shall not bring disgrace on yourself, disgrace on your house, disgrace on all the name of De Vere, as yet. For I tell you, Robert De Vere, uncle of an English peer, as you are—the haughtiest among England's haughty sons—if this were known, the whole world would spurn your daughter—spurn her in loathing and horror; the very children in the street would shrink in terror and affright from her wherever she would appear. Recall as you will, grow white as you listen, yet I tell you, man, as God hears me, I speak the truth."

"It is false, you miserable hag!—you second Jezebel!" he said, furiously. "Dare to mention my daughter's name in association with any crime again, and by all the saints! I will be tempted to forget you are a woman, and strangle you on the spot!"

"That is easier said than done," said Grizzle, folding her arms, with a short laugh. "Two could play at that game, and, as a friend, I wouldn't advise you to try it with me."

"Shan't I go for a doctor, uncle?" said Frank, looking daggers at Grizzle.

"And I can bring a constable up from Green Creek at the same time, and fix this old witch's flint for her."

"No, wait, Frank; don't go," said the voice of Jacquetta. "Don't go yet. Augusta is recovering. We must hear what she says before you go for any one."

Her words banished everything from the minds of all but anxiety for Augusta. All gathered around her sofa as she slowly opened her heavy, dark eyes, and looked dimly around.

Once or twice she essayed to speak, but only a choking, dying sound came forth from her blanched lips; and in the glazing eyes and colorless face, over every other feeling, came a dreadful look of unutterable horror.

"Augusta, dearest! Oh, heavens! Augusta, what is the meaning of this?" gasped Jacquetta, in terror.

"Oh, my God! what have I done?" came in a low, wailing, passionate cry of utter despair, from the white lips of Lady Augusta.

"Oh, my sister! my darling sister!" cried Jacquetta, "what is this? Oh, Augusta, what does this mean?"

"What it would strike you dead with horror to hear! What I would sooner be bound at the stake than reveal! What will blight my life, lose my soul, consume my heart, make every moment of my life a torture such as you cannot even conceive of! May God grant me a speedy death!" she cried, passionately; and then, dropping her upraised arm, she sank back, deathlike, and collapsed.

"Oh, Heaven help us! she has gone crazy!" said Jacquetta.

At the Wheel of a "Wind Jammer."

There is real weight in the wind, for it is almost a gas that is blowing, and some sail has been taken in. Every few minutes stronger blasts come to lay the ship over sharply, till her deck is as steep as the roof of a house. They impress terrific energy on the vessel, causing her to force her way through the white torrent of racing, foaming water with violent speed.

Standing on a raised wooden grating right aft, the helmsman controls the ship's wild course with difficulty. With her towering masts and her lengthy yards spreading great spaces of canvas to the wind, the ship is a handful for the strongest of men.

The feel of her under his feet tells the helmsman that she is going to swoop to windward. And for her to fly too far to windward under her press of sail would be fatal to the masts; they would never stand the sudden tremendous increase of strain.

The heavy teak-wood wheel is hard to hold. It kicks viciously and nearly lifts the steersman off his feet. It is towards the end of his "trick" and his muscles have become tired.

Practically he tries to put his wheel up, but the weight of the rushing water on the rudder is too much for him. There are ominous sounds from the steering gear, and the officer on the poop suddenly hurries to the wheel. No word is said, but, between them, the officer and the helmsman get the wheel hard up.

The swing of the ship is checked, but she obstinately holds her ground for some moments. Then, slowly and reluctantly, she acknowledges the mastery of the helm and falls off to her course again.

It is when a ship is running before a gale that she tries the helmsman to the utmost. The huge following seas assume a most menacing appearance, and threaten to engulf the feeble vessel. Nerves as well as physical strength come into the steering of a "windjammer" then.

The helmsman is usually warned not to look behind him. Because any man might well lose his head at the sight of the onrush of some particularly terrifying wave, and panic-stricken, desert his wheel. Sometimes canvas screens are rigged up behind the wheel to cut off the view astern. And sometimes at night the blue haze lamp will be suddenly blown out by a gust of extra violence. Then the helmsman has to steer by the feel of the wind on the back of his neck instead of by an illuminated compass.

Confusing? In the Roaring Forties I have seen a confused helmsman spinning the wheel with all his might in the wrong direction.

Just Folks.

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE FIGHTER.

Well, it may be the game is lost and it may be that hope is gone. But there is left a round of play, and there is time for keeping on. Keep on until the whistle blows, good fortune yet may come our way. A fighter sometimes turns the tide, a quitter never saves the day.

The odds are all against us now, but let's go fighting to defeat. And should we snatch the prize away the victory were doubly sweet; There still is time for bluff and grit, we may not win and yet we may. Sometimes a fighter turns the tide, a quitter never saves the day.

The game is lost? Not so, until the whistle blows and all is done. While still there lives a fighting chance let us be fighters every one; We'll be defeated if we must, but in the battle let us stay; The brave heart struggles to the end, the quitter throws his chance away.

'Tis no disgrace to lose a bout; if we go down as fighting men; If we keep trying to the last fortune But there is still a round to play, still time for victory and fame, Sometimes the fighter turns the tide, the quitter never saves the game.

LETTING IT SLIDE.

I find that someone stole my pump, while I was busy sleeping; some vicious fellow now has it in his keeping. My neighbors say, "Invoke the law! Set sleuths and peepers a questing, and on the prison's moldy straw we'll see the villain resting! The penalties the laws provide will make the rascal rue it; but I remark, 'Till it slide, for peace beats pumps, beshrew it! My credit at the hardware store like yonder stars is glowing, and I could buy ten pumps or more, and still have coin for blowing. If I invoked the well known law and set its wheels in motion, no breath in comfort could I draw, my grief would be an ocean. I'd have to talk with bonehead cops and hear attorneys pleading, and spend in law and justice shops the time I want for reading. Another pump will be supplied when I have phoned the dealer, and so I'll let the burglar slide, and call no sleuth or peeper." My neighbors their conclusions draw, concerning law and booty; they tell me to invoke the law becomes my public duty. Their logic cannot be denied, and much applause I lend them; but I have always let things slide when fussing would not mend them. And so I journey to and fro, all minor ills forgetting, and I avoid a lot of woe that keeps my neighbors sweating.

If they charged you a dollar a cake the makers could not give you a better soap than Ivory.—adv.t.

U.S. Aviators Reach Labrador Base

Soviet Expedition Reported on way to Seize Wrangle Island --- Transfer of French From Ruhr Requires Weeks to Complete---Prince of Wales Lunches With President Coolidge.

U. S. FLIERS REACH LABRADOR.

On Board U.S.S. Richmond, Aug. 31. The U.S. round the world fliers have arrived in Labrador. They left New York, N.Y., at 6:29 o'clock, eastern standard time. The fliers made the 570 miles without a mishap or delay, in six hours and forty-nine minutes, in a N.W. wind, varying from 20 to 40 miles an hour. At times the speed of the planes reached as high as 125 miles an hour.

PRINCE AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30. The Prince of Wales arrived in Washington shortly after one o'clock this afternoon, and was driven immediately to the White House for an informal luncheon with President Coolidge.

EVACUATING THE RUHR.

PARIS, Aug. 30. Economic withdrawal from the Ruhr is beginning immediately. In fact preliminary steps are being taken to-day throughout the Ruhr; but though the order for military evacuation will be issued to-morrow the troops will not be withdrawn until the economic evacuation is nearly completed. Several weeks will be required for orderly retirement of the French economic organization, including railway employees and a great variety of civilian functionaries. It took the French Government several months to form this administrative force, and it is considered probable that complete transfer of this work cannot be made until well in October.

EXPEDITION TO SEIZE WRANGLE ISLAND.

SEATTLE, Aug. 30. A vessel named Red October, flying the Russian flag, armed with a six pound cannon and carrying a company of infantry, is bound through the ice from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka Peninsula, for Wrangle Island, off the southern coast of Siberia, with orders to take all the inhabitants prisoners, seize all shipping and establish Russian ownership of the island in the name of the Soviet Government. Lt. Col. L. E. Boone, flight advancement officer for the abandoned British world encircling expedition declared here to-day: "He gave this information to U.S. naval officers, in command of the battle fleet here. Wrangle Island is claimed as American territory and at least one American, Charles Wells, is reported marooned there with a party of 13 Eskimos. Col. Boone also said that the American schooner Herman, of San Francisco, with Capt. Louis Vance and crew of American sailors, going to the rescue of Wells, may be taken prisoners by the Soviet forces on their arrival. Wells was left on Wrangle Island by Harold Noice when the latter went last year to rescue the survivors of the ill-fated Stefansson expedition and found only one, known as Ada Black Jack, whom he brought back to Seattle.

VICTIMS OF THE STORM.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 30. Three more names were added to the list of dead from the storm last Thursday when the battered hull of the Alice and Wilson, a fishing schooner, was towed into her home port last night by the schooner Mary of New Bedford. Nine survivors of the crew told a story of the miraculous escape of Capt. Hall, of the terrific onslaught of the storm, of crashing masts and spars, and of long and aimless drifting until rescued yesterday morning. The schooner, they said, had been fishing about five miles southwest of Nantucket lightship, on South Shoals. Without warning the storm burst upon them, stripping the ship of masts, bowsprit, boats, deck gear and forecabin. With the gear went overboard Captain Hall, James Holland of Prince Edward Island, Jos. King of Gloucester, and Manuel Marks, also of Gloucester. Capt. Hall grasped the corner of the hatch, the other three, bruised and battered, had no time to recover before a second storm burst upon them, and they were again washed away. This time they did not come back. Helpless in the derelict ship, the nine rode out the fury of the storm. When it abated, Captain Hall ordered a spar fastened to a stump of the mainmast and from it flew the flag upside down. Sixty-two hours later Ambrose Smith, of the Mary, sighted the distress signal of the Alice and Wilson. She was then forty miles off Sankey Head, Nantucket.

Corrects Misleading Message

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—We would appreciate very much if you would kindly publish the following message, which we received from Messrs. Wilson & Co., of Chicago, yesterday:

CHICAGO, Aug. 28, 1924.

Messrs. J. B. Mitchell & Son, Ltd., St. John's, Newfoundland.

Federal Courts appointed friendly receivership for parent company under receivership. Domestic and international business of the company will be continued without interruption and the work in the plan of reorganization will go forward to a conclusion as rapidly as possible. There will be absolutely no interference with normal business.

WILSON & CO.

We ask you to do this in view of the fact that the public message contained reference to their being placed in the hands of a receiver and that their liabilities amounted to seventy-seven million. This of course is a little misleading to the outsider, when you consider it was only a matter of further money required for their colossal undertaking. Their output is practically two million of dollars daily and they employ roughly thirty two thousand people.

Yours very truly,

J. B. MITCHELL & SON, LTD., per Harold Mitchell.

Have you a Suit or Overcoat to make? We make a specialty of making up customers' own goods at prices that are absolutely the lowest for first class work. FARELL THE TAILOR, 310 Water Street—nov17,19

What Do You Think of a Fluid

That will draw roaches and ants out of every hole, crack, or crevice before killing them and not poison food?

That will kill bugs instantly and not leave an unpleasant odor?

That will knock flies off the wall and not harm paint or paper?

That will keep the bedroom, kitchen, or verandah clear of flies, mosquitoes, etc., for several hours after a few sprays?

That will take fleas off a dog and not harm the dog?

That will destroy chicken lice without any injury to your stock?

That applied in small quantities to the exposed parts of the body will insure you from Mosquito bites?

That as a general disinfectant is stronger than the ordinary carbolic solution.

THAT FLUID IS SAN-O-SPRAY.

No insect can live where San-O-Spray is used. Yet San-O-Spray is non-poisonous to human beings and can be used with perfect safety in pantry, kitchen, dining room, and cellars, moreover San-O-Spray has an agreeable and delightful odor, removing all fetid or unpleasant odors. In addition San-O-Spray is a disinfectant and germicide. Keeps the home sanitary and free from infectious diseases.

How Paris Keeps so Clean

By ST. JOHN E. DOWLING.
Mayhap, being astir at 6 a.m., you have seen a fleet of metal motor-tanks with strange, mechanical fittings, bearing on their bonnets the legend "Sita." Two men will be standing aloft on each one and a chain of runners will await them. Their mission is one of life's most important factors—none less than the cleaning up of the city.

These old monsters are the efficient motor-dustbins of Paris. Daily they operate throughout the year; in the space of some ninety minutes they will have covered the whole of Paris, collected 2,500 tons of garbage and refuse from house and office and shop, and transported it without the city gates for treatment and destruction.

Before 1921 it was the custom for dustbins to be put out on the front pavement last thing at night, and they were only emptied the following morning by old lumbering horse-carts—a sequel was the tremendous rat plague which began to upset the whole of Paris.

The animals found food easy to get and plentiful, for Paris may be said to have a restaurant in every street; the result was that notices were placarded everywhere offering a reward of 25 centimes a tail, each on delivery, at any municipal office. This extermination campaign was not successful, so the whole question was taken in hand seriously, scientific measures were studied, and the present efficient system was evolved.

The Paris authorities now have more than 500 of the huge motor-dustbins, run and managed by the Societe Industrielle de Transports Automobiles (S.I.T.A.) under a hire-purchase arrangement. The "Sita" is merely a sectional tank on wheels with sliding covers, permitting the filled portion to be covered over.

Leaving their garages at 6 a.m., they proceed to their areas, where a gang will be awaiting. The dustbins are now put out just before 6 in the morning. The Sitas are on the move all the time; the chain of men snatch up a dustbin, quickly pass it up to one of the men aloft on the car, who empties it out and passes it back to another pair of hands for return to the house. The men run ahead of one another to be in readiness, and thus at a fair pace street after street is dealt with in surprisingly few minutes.

The "Sita" then proceeds to a yard fitted with furnaces and other machinery for destroying the refuse and winning from it heat and power and clinker for road material.

Storrington Wonder

Man Without Hands Who Writes and Paints.

In a tiny cottage at the foot of a winding lane at Storrington, Sussex, lives a cripple whose astonishing accomplishments have earned for him the reputation of a "wonder." He is Mr. Frank Knight, who is married and has two children aged five years and nine months. Mr. Knight was born without hands, and, through contraction of the muscles of the legs, has never been able to use them. He walks in specially made boots, fitted to his knees, can climb ladders, write, paint delightful pictures, and is a first class carpenter. For a number of years he carried on business at Dunstable as a nurseryman and married a local girl. "About seven years ago," he explained, "I disposed of the nursery business and came to Worthing. While there I built several houses, doing all the carpentry work. I lost all my money over them, and two years ago we came to Storrington, where I have put up two houses and have just finished a bungalow. If I can sell that, I shall be all right. I can do anything and go anywhere." That remark was no idle boast, as Mr. Knight quickly proved. He left the room to get his pony and trap ready, whilst his wife displayed a collection of water colour paintings that he had executed. One represented "a little bit of Whithy," and was beautifully finished. On the walls of the sitting-room were several oil paintings, and a large one depicted a number of sheep on the South Downs. Asked how her husband did them, Mrs. Knight explained that he put the paint brush between his teeth, and rested it on one arm. He was awarded first prize at Northampton Fine Art Exhibition for a water colour painting, and a bronze medal at Bedford Art Exhibition for colouring lantern slides. Just inside the cottage door was a well-made oak hat and coat stand, also the work of Mr. Knight. When the trap was ready Mr. Knight sat in it, and, holding the reins quite easily with one arm, drove over to the bungalow, where he gave a further display of his activity. There was a ladder leaning against the bungalow, and he astonished his visitor by ascending it and pointing out how he put the battens on the roof. Unfortunately, his infirmity prevents him from applying for employment like other men. He is a good scholar, can write well, and, as indicated, is an excellent carpenter.—News of the World.

Cleanliness is one of the chief secrets of charm, and perfect cleanliness results from the use of Ivory Soap.—adv.t.

An Old Weed in a New Industry

In the sober columns of the English Board of Trade Journal, giving an account of the enormous business success of the Empire Exhibition at Wembley, near London—something which has been called by the Prince of Wales the shop window of the Empire—appears the following remarkable paragraph:—

"As an oddity, Newfoundland brought over a small crate of eel grass, merely as a floral exhibit. The modest floral exhibit, since it was shown at Wembley, has developed into a great industry for Newfoundland, and buyers from eastern Europe, Gt. Britain and western Europe have ordered it in immense quantities to use for mattresses and packing. It has greater reliance, and is superior to straw and hay. It is estimated that Newfoundland will export 100,000 tons of this weed in a year, whereas before Wembley it was merely an example of curious flora."

Before the exhibition opened not many weeks ago eel grass was a weed and in some localities a nuisance, remarks the New York, Wall Street Journal, it is now an established article of commerce.—Western Star.

Commenting on the above article, the Minister of Agriculture and Mines, Mr. W. J. Walsh, says, "It is absolutely misleading and positively unfair to Mr. Downey, the ex-Minister, and the present Deputy Minister, Mr. Turner, who were principally responsible for sending the samples to the Empire Exhibition, but not as floral exhibits as the article states, but rather for the purpose of trying to interest capitalists in the development of an old industry on a larger scale than heretofore." According to advice received by the Minister from Mr. Downey, a mattress made of eel grass, by the well known firm of J. J. Henley, which was forwarded with the other exhibits, has received the approbation of dealers and a large market for the product is anticipated. The Department of Agriculture has arranged for a survey of the various bays and inlets and sufficient information is now at hand to show that we can prepare for export a very large quantity of this material.

The Minister expresses the hope that in the near future this industry will give employment, at profitable wages, to a large number of our people.

Viewing Alaska From Clouds

BECOMES POPULAR WITH TOURISTS.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 16 (A.P.)—Viewing Alaska from the clouds has become since the introduction of passenger planes, the first of which made its appearance here July 4. This method is operating from 15 to 20 hours a day to accommodate the large number of tourists wanting to see Mount McKinley from altitudes of from 5,000 to 10,000 feet.

The peak, about 20,000 feet high, often is obscured to surface-gazers by haze or clouds, but usually stands out unobscured a few thousand feet above the clouds.

Messenger Leaves a Fortune

The fortune of $40,000 accumulated by Arthur Fowler in the fifteen years he was a messenger and clerk in the drug store on the 33rd Street side of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was distributed recently to two-score of his friends in the employ of the hotel. This carries out a will left by Fowler last October.

John Killacher, the cashier, handed out the checks of $300 and $500 to employees, ranging from the "captain of the dumb waiter" to a floor clerk of twenty-five years' standing. He said one of the first acts of the beneficiaries, who were Catholics, was to use part of their legacies in offering prayers for the repose of their old friend's soul.

To a sister of Louis Trosier, who runs the drug store, Fowler left the charge of keeping flowers on his grave in Cypress Hills, a fund being set aside from the savings for this purpose. It was specified in his will—and is being carried out—that "a solid blanket of holly and fir" shall cover him at Christmas, "pansies at Easter and geraniums and begonias through the year." Fowler was born in Clapham Commons, London.

Russo-Chinese Poet Held Lightly by Berlin Press

BERLIN, Aug. 14 (A.P.)—German newspapers, especially financial journals, are devoting much space to the Russo-Chinese treaty recently signed in Peking, but are inclined to regard the treaty rather lightly. The Berlin Boersen Courier emphasizes the fact that Russia is supposed to have received back its rights to the Chinese Eastern Railway which were forfeited during the revolution, but says the signing of an agreement between Russia and China is quite different from getting back the rights. Chang So-Lin, the military governor of Manchuria, who has refused to approve the Russo-Chinese treaty negotiated by the Peking government under the direction of his rival Yu Peifu, is regarded by the German press as the representative of American objections to the agreement as the chief objector to the execution of the agreement is commented upon as the greatest achievement of American diplomacy in the Far East.

Giant California Dam to Cost 25 Millions

GLENDORA, Cal., Aug. 16.—Construction of America's largest dam is under way here. The $25,000,000 San Gabriel dam and reservoir, the cost of which is to be borne by the county of Los Angeles, will take some four years to build. The dam itself is to tower some 425 feet above the stream bed of the San Gabriel River and will impound 240,000 acre feet of water. It serves a double purpose for a populous valley, conserving water for use during dry periods and preventing floods during storm months. It is but one dam in a program of twelve to cost a total of $38,300,000 which the people of this country overwhelmingly voted in favor of last May.

Pigeon Chased by Hawk

TAKES REFUGE WITH MAN.

EDMONTON, Canada, Aug. 16.—Chased by hawks and wounded on the breast, a carrier pigeon took refuge on the shoulder of George Armstrong, a farmer.

On one leg of the pigeon is a rubber band with the inscription on the outside "5194—Ardor." On the inner side of the band is the inscription "American Racing Pigeon Union." On the other leg is a silver band. Only part of the description is decipherable. It reads, "A123M9281."

Olympic Games Financial Failure

By VINCENT RICHARDS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The greatest disappointment on record. That's the way the Olympic committee unofficially sums up the 1924 Olympic games.

Not for the athletic part of it, for more records were broken than in any previous Olympiad; nor because of the weather, which was generally very fine, but because the receipts are some eight million francs less than were expected.

For the heavyweight lifting, for instance, the committee had hired the winter Velodrome, which seats 28,000 people. Only eighty people turned up the first day. The record attendance was 175, and half of them were newspaper reporters.

Tennis Best Draw.

The tennis tournament, which was the best draw of the entire Olympic games, was only fully attended on two days of the meeting. The semifinal and final rounds filled the tennis stadium with some 10,000 people. On other days the attendance was meager.

In the big stadium there was never a day when double the number present could not have been comfortably seated.

Observers blame the losses on the lack of interest in the games by the French themselves. The foreign attendance was near expectations.

Lack of Organization.

There was apparently no head to any of the committees in charge of the various events and nothing had been accomplished in advance of the man of second, the other runner arrival of the athletes from foreign countries. The tennis courts, for instance, on which the Olympic championship was played, were finished just one day before the start of the tournament. This meant the players had one day's practice for one of the most important tennis events in the history of the game. The Olympic committee, however, is not worrying about the severe losses in francs. The gate receipts were insured for $12,000,000 francs, or approximately the total expenses.

Boy Surprises His Own Funeral Party

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 16.—John W. Hinton, fifteen-year-old boy of Atlanta, was mourned as dead by his father, who thought he had been killed by a freight train near Cartersville, Ga., being identified by the father, relatives and friends, none of whom entertained any doubt as to the body being that of young Hinton. Accordingly the body was buried in the family plot and the mourners were returning home when they discovered their mistake.

It developed that the Hinton youth had run away from home and had not been heard of since. He was found at the home of his grandparents at Smithton, Ga., by a cousin, who had just returned from the funeral, who immediately rushed the lad back in an automobile and met the funeral party just as it was boarding the train for Atlanta. It is needless to say there was great rejoicing and the young man was almost overcome when told that he had been mourned as dead.

Cave in Texas Holds Underground Room

HALF A MILE LONG.

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 29 (A.P.)—Dangling at the end of a wire rope 170 feet into the underground home of many thousands of bats, the governor of the largest state in the Union and the governor of an adjoining state recently explored the great Carlsbad cavern, discovered not long ago in the Guadalupe mountains of southeastern New Mexico. The only means of ingress is in a steel bucket, which holds two persons if they are not too large. The two governors, Pat M. Neff, of Texas and J. F. Hinkle, went down separately.

The less scenic part of Carlsbad Cavern has been known for many years as a bat cave. Recently explorers traversed several miles of its halls and chambers, and some parts of it were found to have such startling magnificence that President Coolidge by proclamation set it aside as the Carlsbad National Monument. This cave is among the largest in the world and presents many marvels. From prehistoric times it seems the bats have made their homes here amid the striking underground scenery. For several years large quantities of guano have been shipped from the cave.

At dusk the bats begin to leave the cave for their night of foraging. For about three hours the winged stream resembles smoke pouring from a smokestack. In the early morning they return, each holding its wings when in mid-air above the opening of the cave and dropping down into the shaft like a plummet.

The opening of the cavern is in New Mexico but the cave itself extends into Texas. The cave has not been fully Valuable Roman Armor UNCOVERED BY PLOWMAN.

KARAGATCH, Bulgaria, Aug. 9 (A.P.)—A peasant plowing near this village turned up one of the most interesting archaeological finds made in recent years. When the plow struck it was a slab of marble. Lifting this a Roman knight, together with shield, sword, spear and several utensils, including an exquisite vase.

Director Velkoff, of the National Museum, and Mr. Popoff, an expert on Greek antiquities, estimate that the find dates back to the pre-Alexandrine period. They surmise that he may have been a dweller of a Hellenic colony on the Black Sea coast.

Fortunes Made in Bonds

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—(By Canadian Press)—Traders' fortunes have been made in Wall Street by investors who purchased German bonds at phenomenally low figures months ago and then reaped a heavy financial harvest through the recent "skyrocketing" of these bonds, says the New York World. One instance cited is that of a former saloon keeper who paid $375 for 50,000 marks' worth of 5 per cent. Imperial German war bonds several months ago to find after the favorable turn of the market that his $375 investment had risen in value to $87,500.

Another investor, this time an Italian, bought $700 worth of the same bonds and sold them on the rise for $170,000, more than two-hundred fold the price paid, says the newspaper. A group of six Boston men invested $8,000 and reaped a profit of $200,000, it is related. The speculative craze arising from the situation has been described as the most amazing since investors of the United States put almost $1,000,000,000 into German markets after the war, only to see them sink to a valueless level in this country, says the World.

200 Locomotives Scrapped

Hagenau, Alsace—A "bonyard" of 200 heavy-duty locomotives of the latest type has been installed here by French authorities. These engines, delivered by Germany to France on account of the Versailles treaty, can be run only on Alsatian tracks, built by the Germans, because French superstructures are not strong enough to stand the Teutonic strain. To handle the traffic in Alsace only a score of them were needed.

Athletic Meet at Park Playground

On Saturday afternoon a final Athletic Meet was held for the boys of the Bannerman Park Playground. Much interest was shown and the events closely contested. Ran White was easily the star of the day winning six first places in the Junior events. Ran is only 13 years old, but an excellent runner and jumper as well as being a clever in apparatus work. There are many sports days in St. John's but none are essentially for the boys and girls. We hope to make this playground athletic meet an annual event for when boys are busy trying to improve in their running record or their jumping record they are well occupied. The winners of the events were as follows:—

50 YARDS DASH.

Midgets—1st, Leo Hayes; 2nd, Gus Edwards; 3rd, Mike Atkinson.
Juniors—1st, Ran White; 2nd, Will Power; 3rd, Ed. Healey.

100 YARDS DASH.

Juniors—1st, Ran White; 2nd, (tied) Calvert Reid and Edward Healey; 3rd, Tim Broderick.

Juniors—1st, Ran White; 2nd, Lester Hickey; 3rd, Tim Broderick.
Senior—1st, Leslie Cantwell.

Football Relay Race—Won by Gold-finch team, Jim Pike, Arthur Boone, Herbert Pike, Gerald O'Mara, and Tim Broderick.

Fries were then given to the championship football team for the summer in each group. In awarding the championship prizes such things were considered as the team work and team spirit shown in their games as well as the number of games played and the number won. The winning teams were:—

Midgets—The Bullfrog team, Richard Power, captain; Billy Walsh, Geo. Curtis, Graham Hierlihy, Andy Boone, George Moore.

Junior—The Canaries, Herbert Clark, Tom Malone, Dick English, Andy Coder, Jess Lucas, Cyril Cook, Willie Quick, Lester Hickey, Will Power and Jack Conway.

Seniors—The Panthers, Clarence LeGrow, captain; Alex Aitken, Chas. Noseworthy, Robert Barrett, Norman Littlejohn, Ron Eddy, Victor Noseworthy, Harry Small, Joseph Goobie, and Stevens Soper.

NOTICE.

There will be Community Staging in Bannerman Park during the intermission of the Band Concert on Tuesday evening. Everyone is welcome to come and sing.

A Narrow Escape

While the cross-country express was pulling out of the Railway Depot at 1 p.m. yesterday an elderly man had a narrow escape from being seriously injured. The man it appears was late in boarding the train, and running to catch it he missed his footing and fell between the platform and moving cars. Sergt. O'Keefe who noticed the man's predicament rushed to his aid and dragged him out in the nick of time. But for the prompt action of Sergt. O'Keefe a serious accident would have followed.

The picture was adapted by WILLIS GOLDBECK from RAFAEL SABATINI's thrilling novel of the French Revolution and the photography was by JOHN F. SEITZ, who was camera man for Mr. Ingram's production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Ten thousand persons appear in scenes showing the storming of the Bastille; and there are 30 leading players, who include George Seismann, Lloyd Ingraham, Julia Swayne Gordon, Edith Allen, Lydia Yamans Titus, Clotilde Delano, Edward Connelly and Rose Dione.

Stupendous Photoplay Now at the Nickel

"SCARAMOUCHE" THE GREATEST AND MOST WONDERFUL OF ALL FILMS.

Stupendous in pageantry, staggering in the mighty scope of its sweeping action and tense drama. "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's Metro masterpiece from Rafael Sabatini's famous romance, will come with all its throbs and thrills and tears and laughter, to the Nickel Theatre beginning to-day.

In New York, where its phenomenal run at the 44th Street Theatre attracted national notice, critics hailed it as the greatest demonstration of Rex Ingram's genius, and a crowning colossal achievement of motion pictures. Head and shoulders is stands above every other version of the momentous French revolution, for Ingram has not only given it heart and soul, but he has given it brain, and fashioned "Scaramouche" with the deft hands of a master who was inspired with original vision.

Patrons are asked to attend at 7.15 owing to the length of this wonderful picture.

DEAD CATS OR SUNSETS.

My neighbor ran her machine into her garage the other day and instead of going into the house came over to my porch with an expression on her face that made me suspect she had something she wanted to get off her mind.

I suspected right. She came into a porch chair, picked up a magazine from the table to fan herself, uttered the customary comment on the weather and then went on to say:

It Seemed Likely.

"The next time I take Mr. C. to the car," she said, "I shall know it." I intimated that this was probable, but she paid no attention to my attempt at humor.

"I took Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick over to the Corners this afternoon," she went on, "it was his vacation and he didn't much to do and Mrs. C. had told me that they were anxious to go over there because they had some friends who lived there. She said she wondered if sometime when I was going over to the antique shop it would be too much to ask if I would take them along. I wasn't going just now at all, but I made a special errand and went. And, my dear, I never saw anyone who could make you feel so uncomfortable as Mr. Chadwick can. He's so—so—"

So Disgruntled.

My neighbor paused to hunt for an adjective and finally produced one. "He's so disgruntled acting all the time. You know what a pretty ride it is over to the Corners. I never took anyone there who didn't seem to enjoy it. But all the time he kept saying little fault-finding things. We started on the state road and there were quite a few machines out, and he said: 'Well, they say there's twice as many licenses this year as last, and I guess they're all out this afternoon.'"

"I thought if he felt that way I'd turn off onto one of the back roads, and I did and we got rid of most of the traffic, and all he said was when we went over a rough place: 'Guess you won't be troubled with many machines on this road.'"

"We came back by the brook road. You know that's very smooth, though it is a dirt surface, and everyone loves it because the trees arch so beautifully and the brook is so pretty. But Mr. C. never said one thing about the road being pretty, he just commented two or three times about the dust."

"Then he asked me if I had all the windows open that I could, and said he should think they'd manage to find some way to have them all open full width. He guessed the people who made the bodies didn't ride in the machines."

"Of course when we got home he thanked me and told me how much he enjoyed it. He needn't have bothered."

I don't believe he ever has a nice time. I'll bet he never sees anything but the disagreeable things. Hateful old thing! Poor Mrs. Chadwick. I know now why she looks depressed all the time. He's enough to depress anyone."

A Dead Cat Finder.

"He's what I call a dead cat finder," I contributed. And when she asked what that meant I told her the story that I think I have told you before. But it's good enough to repeat.

Ralph Waldo Emerson was visiting his friend Thomas Carlyle. Emerson had been out on the Thames and had seen a wonderful sunset. He told Carlyle about it with some enthusiasm to which Carlyle's sole response was: "Did you see the dead cats, Ralph?" And Emerson answered, "No, Thomas, I did not see the dead cats."

Carlyle was one of the most miserable men living and Emerson one of the most serene and happy.

Which do you see, dead cats or beautiful sunsets?

Market News

(Trade Review.)

Codfish.—The recent sailing of the S. S. Urter and S. S. Trudvag direct for Mediterranean markets has given a slight breathing spell. Some sales were effected and it is reported some still better promises were made by agents on the other side. A "bird in the hand is worth two in the bush" is an old saying and generally comes true. It is reported that one large shipper has accepted a much lower price than others as he got panicky and feared a drop in prices. This caused further reductions, but a stronger feeling is now very prevalent. The damp weather last week has prevented the curing of further quantities and only small lots are now offering, all of which are quickly absorbed. The rivalry between the two shipping companies for direct shipments to the Mediterranean markets is likely to do good. There is plenty of room for two companies and competition is certainly the life of trade. There is an easier feeling in price on the local market until actual sales are known of recent shipments. Enquiries have been received from Labrador as to the current price for shipments off the coast, but as any price named now is only an indication and never binding until accepted by the fishermen and placed on their receipts, the best way is to let this price stand open until the fishermen return home and then everyone has the best information of actual value.

Cod Liver Oil.—There was a stronger tone last week in the London market that had the appearance of a healthy feeling but unfortunately there has been a relapse into a state of apathy. Prices have declined to their lowest point during the season with a clear indication that the supply of Norway oil is too heavy for the demand. The excitement caused by the revelations in scientific circles has had no effect on the producers of Norway oil. There is no doubt whatever that the Newfoundland oil is coming into great prominence, which gathers greater weight every day.

Common Cod Oil.—A somewhat better enquiry is noted but actual business is very restricted. Consumers show no disposition to purchase more than actual requirements. Offerings generally are very light and there is every appearance that the fishermen are keeping back what they hold until the last moment. It is certainly a problem as to whether there will be any revival whatever in trade for this article this season.

Pork & Beef.—The provision market stands very firm. The corn crop is abnormally short and the consequent increase in prices affects the cost of raising pigs; added to this an increasing export demand. Further advances in prices are probable. Local prices wholesale are Ham Butt, $31.00; Fat Back, $31.00; Spare Ribs, $23.50; Extra Family Beef, $24.00; Family Special, $22.00.

Flour.—There has been considerable rainfall in the west recently with noticeable improvements in crops. It is feared, however, that the rain appeared too late to do very much good. A slight decline in price at Winnipeg is reported but as frosts have already occurred in one or two districts of the northwest it does not seem that there will be any decline in the near future. Local prices range from

It is certainly a problem as to whether there will be any revival whatever in trade for this article this season.

Hay and Oats.—The hay crop this year has been good and estimates from Quebec and Ontario place the yield above that of last year. The local crop has also been up to the average. Very little is being imported as the home grown is now coming into market and selling at around $30.00 per ton. The oats market keeps strong. No. 2 feed white oats sell at $3.80 for a 4 bushel sack.

The proof of the quality is in the smoking

Read this letter

"Four months of trekking, made exceptionally strenuous and exhausting through bad weather increasing the usual difficulties of travel in the rugged, tangled 'Labrador' interior, has given me an appreciation of your ANCHOR tobacco which I would like to record.

"The cut tobacco which I had included in my stores for the trip, proving unsatisfactory in its keeping and smoking qualities, I was forced to try ANCHOR. Before I had finished the plug given me by a fisherman, I'd bought all the ANCHOR tobacco they could spare me from a schooner.

"I found it a great tobacco for the open. A tobacco for hard smoking at hard work during the week days, soothing and satisfactory on Sundays.

"In fact about the only living things in my experience on the Labrador, which did not appreciate and enjoy ANCHOR, were the ubiquitous, iniquitous black flies."

TRACK AND FIELD RULES AMATEUR ATHLETIC UNION.

For A.A.A. Championship Sports Day.

Officials.

No official shall act in a dual capacity, nor shall any track team or club team manager, act as an official at a track and field championship meet.

Judges At Finish.

There shall be four or more judges at finish, who shall decide the order in which the competitors finish in the competition. In case of a disagreement, the majority shall decide. Their decision as to the order in which the men finish shall be final and without appeal. When possible, judges shall stand at least six feet back from, and in line with the finish.

Field Judges.

1. The chief field judge shall see that all implements and equipments are in accordance with these rules and that the field events are conducted expeditiously.
2. The field judges shall measure, judge and record each trial of each competitor in all games whose record is of distance or height. Their decision as to the performance of each man shall be final and without appeal.
3. In the javelin, hammer, and discus competitions, a distinctive flag shall be provided with which to mark the throw of each competitor, and a special flag to mark the existing world's record.

Timekeepers.

1. Each of the three timekeepers shall time every event. In case two of their watches agree, and the third disagrees, the time marked by the two shall be official time. If all watches disagree, the time marked by the watch giving the middle time shall be the official time. Time shall be taken from the flash of the pistol.

2. Should assistants to the timekeepers be provided, they shall perform like duties, but the time recorded by their watches shall not be accepted in the event of one or more watches held by the other timekeepers failing to mark the time, in which case they shall be called upon in such order as may be previously decided upon. So that on all races, where possible, three watches shall record the time.

3. If, for any reason, only two watches record the time of an event, and they fail to agree, the longest time of the two shall be accepted as the official time.

Judge Of Walking.

The judge of walking shall have sole power to determine the fairness of walking, and his ruling thereon shall be final and without appeal. He shall caution any competitor whenever walking unfairly, the third caution to disqualify, except that he shall immediately disqualify any competitor when walking unfairly during the last 220 yards of a race. He shall control his assistants, and assign to them such of his duties as he may deem proper.

1. The starter shall have entire control of the competitors at marks, and shall be the sole judge of fact as to whether or not any man has gone over his mark.
2. All races shall be started by the report of a pistol.

3. All questions concerning the start shall be decided by the starter.
4. When any part of the body of the competitor shall touch the ground in front of his mark before the starting signal is given, it shall be considered a false start.
5. If, in the opinion of the starter, a false start has been made, he can recall the competitors by a second pistol shot, and penalize the offender or the offenders.

6. For all races up to and including 125 yards, the competitor shall be put back one yard for the first and another yard for the second attempt. In all cases the third false start shall disqualify the competitor from the event. In relay races the penalty shall be according to the distance the offender is to run in the race.

7. The starter shall also rule out of that even any competitor who attempts to advance himself from his mark, as prescribed in the official programme, after the starter has given the warning to "get ready."

8. The starter must have at least two good cartridges in his pistol before starting a heat.

9. Should the starter have occasion to warn the competitors on any point, he shall order the competitors to "stand up."

Marshal.

1. The marshal shall have full police charge of the enclosure and shall prevent any but officials and actual competitors from entering or remaining therein. He shall control his assistants and assign to them their duties.

Attendants.

1. Except in distance races of five miles or over, no attendant or competitor who is not actually taking part in the race shall accompany any competitor on the mark or in the race, nor shall any competitor be allowed, without the permission of the referee or judges, to receive assistance or refreshment from anyone during the progress of the race.

Weight Events.

1. In all weight events from the circle, except throwing the heavy weight for height, the competitor must stay in the circle until his attempt is marked by an official.

2. In all weight events from the circle, the competitor may touch the inside of the circle.
3. The circle shall be 7 feet in diameter for all weight events except throwing the discus, which shall be thrown from a circle 8 feet 2 1/2 inches in diameter. The circle shall be measured from the inside, and in outdoor competitions shall be sunk almost flush with the ground, and lined.

composed of earth or clay, firmly packed.

The finish.

1.—The finish line shall be a line on the ground drawn across the track from finish post to finish post and the men shall be placed in the order in which any part of their bodies (i.e., "toes"), as distinguished from the head, arms, feet or hands) crosses such line.

2.—For the purpose of aiding the judges, but not as a finish line, there shall be stretched across the track at the finish 4 feet above the ground, a worsted string which shall not be held by the judges, but fastened to the finish post at either side, so it will always be at right angles to the course and parallel to the ground.

3.—No competitor shall be considered to have finished unless his entire body shall have crossed the finish line.

Ties and Dead Heats.

1.—(a)—If two or more competitors tie at any height in the standing or running high jump, or pole vault, an additional jump or vault at such height shall be allowed, and, if the tie is still unbroken, the bar shall be lowered to the previous height cleared and one more jump or vault allowed.

(b)—The bar shall then be raised or lowered until the tie is decided, allowing one jump or vault at each said height.

(c)—In case of a tie in any field event for distance, an additional jump or vault shall be given to decide the ties.

2.—In case of a dead heat in any scratch track event the competitors shall not be allowed to divide the prize or points, or to toss for them, but must compete again at a time and place appointed by the referee.

3.—In handicap contests, in both track and field events, the award shall be given to the competitor who received the least allowance. In case of a tie or dead heat between two or more competitors who received the same allowance, the decision shall be made as in scratch contests.

Running High Jumps.

1.—The Field Judges shall decide the height at which the jump shall commence, and shall regulate the succeeding elevations.

2.—Three jumps are allowed at each height, and a failure at the third attempt shall disqualify.

3.—A competitor may commence at any height above the minimum height.

4.—At each successive height, each competitor shall take one jump in his proper turn, then those failing, if any, shall have their second jump in like order, after which those having failed twice shall make their third jump.

5.—A competitor may decline to jump at any height in his turn, and by so doing, forfeits his right to again jump at the height declined.

6.—A fair jump is one where the head of the contestant does not go over the bar before the feet and is not below the buttocks in clearing the bar.

7.—The jump shall be made over a bar resting on pegs projecting from the uprights, and when this bar is removed from its place it shall be counted as a jump. Neither diving nor somersaulting over the bar shall be permitted.

8.—A line shall be drawn 3 feet in front of the bar and parallel therewith, to be known as a balk line, and stepping over such line, in any attempt, shall be counted as a "balk," and two successive "balks" shall be counted as a jump.

9.—As soon as a competitor makes a spring in order to jump, this shall be counted as a trial jump.

10.—The distance of the run before the jump shall be unlimited.

11.—All measurements shall be made perpendicularly from the ground to the upper side of the bar where it is lowest.

12.—The employment of weights or grips of any kind is forbidden.

13.—A competitor may place a mark for his take-off in running broad or running high jumps.

14.—The uprights shall not be moved during the competition unless the judges consider the take-off has become unsuitable. Such change, however, shall be made only after a round has been completed.

15.—The uprights shall be at least 12 feet apart.

16.—The take-off ground about the jump must be level.

DAVIS, THE BOXER, KNOCKED OUT IN MONTREAL.

QUEBEC, Aug. 20.—Bing Conley, of Lewiston, Maine, knocked out Alf Davis, of H.M.S. Constance, in the last round of their 10-round battle last night at the Arena, after the sailor had put up a game display against his heavier opponent. Davis was felled a number of times, but always got up for more, until the tenth, when he was sent down for keeps.

It was reported that Davis fought with a broken hand from the second round on.

Kid Dube, also of Lewiston, fought a ten round draw with Vandersteen, billed as the Army and Navy light-heavyweight champion of the West Indies, in a fast semi-final.

In one of the six round preliminaries, of which there were four, Ralph McNaughton, champion of the bantamweight championship of the Province of Quebec, knocked out 7.55%.

Stoker Jeal, of H.M.S. Repulse in the second round.

Sailors engaged in the other scraps, which were all witnessed by a large crowd, and were for the benefit of the orphans of the city.

GREAT INTEREST IN "TELEGRAM" ROAD RACE.

It is generally believed that the 10 mile Telegram Road Race, on Wednesday, Sept. 10th, which is being run in conjunction with the A. A. A. Sports, will not only be the best, but the most gruelling event to take place here. Ron O'Toole, who won this race in record time last year, is out to defend his title against Tommy Linagar, who is considered to be his most dangerous opponent, and other good boys, such as Gower Stone, Jake Ralph, Graham Kelly, Russell, Dodd, Williams, Halliburton and Elwin Rusted of Carbonear. All of the above runners are now practicing hard for the long grind. With the addition of several other good boys who are trying out the long distance stant for a first time, but prefer at present to keep their names from being known, it is quite possible that a big surprise will take place, and a dark horse romp home with the bacon. O'Toole's time as he passed the various mile posts in his triumphant run last year was as follows:—

1 Mile 5.08
2 " 5.32 10.40
3 " 5.16% 15.56
4 " 5.33 21.19
5 " 5.28% 26.47
6 " 5.28 32.15
7 " 5.53 38.05
8 " 5.57 44.05
9 " 5.40 49.45
10 " 5.55

ENTRIES.

Those who intend competing in the A.A.A. Championships on Wednesday, Sept. 10th, are reminded that entries will close on Saturday, Sept. 6th, at the office of Mr. J. A. MacKenzie, Imperial Life Assurance Company, Law Chambers. Entries for the Telegram Road Race can be made at this office. Who will be the first to enter?

Mary Miles Minter at the Majestic

Lifting two acres of land bodily out of the valleys of the Cumberland mountains and planting it in the foothills surrounding Hollywood, Calif., is literally what was done by the Paramount company producing "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," a picture starring Mary Miles Minter, with Antonio Moreno, featured as leading man, which comes to the Majestic Theatre to-day.

A cabin home of three rooms, with several coon dogs, a couple of horses, scores of chickens and ducks, two donkeys and other common natives of the Cumberland barnyard, stand demurely in the centre of the two acres. Even a barn, with a hay loft and cackling hens, with stalls and cows and a nearby pen of hogs, adds color to a scene beautifully reminiscent of the Cumberland mountains of East Tennessee and Kentucky during the past Civil War period.

The story of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," written by the late John Fox, Jr., deals with a family feud in the Cumberland mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee. Miss Minter is seen as June Tolliver, a sprightly mountain girl, who meets and loves John Hale, a coal mining engineer and head of a local law and order organization. He sends June to school, and within two years she is educated and civilized, as it were.

On her return home her uncle kills a policeman, and Hale is obliged to arrest him for murder. Then the feud breaks out afresh, and many dramatic incidents follow. There are many thrills in the subsequent scenes, all of which contribute to make this picture one of the most entertaining seen here during the current season. Ernest Torrence, a noted screen player, is featured in the cast.

completed by Marani and Falcley, Architects of Toronto—the latter a St.

Andrew's Old Boy. St. Andrew's College is almost the youngest of the leading boys' residential and day schools of Canada, though this year it celebrates the 25th anniversary of its establishment. It was founded in 1899, largely through Presbyterian effort and its Headmaster from the outset has been Rev. D. Bruce MacDonald, M.A., LL.D. Nevertheless it has never been a sectarian institution and in 1911 it was incorporated by the Ontario Legislature and under this statute is maintained as an Educational Trust founded by private effort. Its first quarters were in Chestnut Park, the former home of the late Sir David Macpherson of Toronto, but on the opening up of the Chestnut Park estate as a new residential section it was removed to North Rosedale. During the later stages of the war its trustees turned over its buildings to the government as a base hospital and conducted the school in Knox College.

During the course of 25 years it has developed a large and growing graduate body who occupy prominent positions in many parts of Canada and the United States.

The new property comprises 218 acres and is situated on the west side of Yonge Street, about a quarter of a mile north of the town of Aurora.
The ground is level for about a quarter of a mile from Yonge Street and then rises sharply to a plateau about 40 feet higher which in its turn runs back for another quarter of a mile to another hill rising 60 or 80 feet again.
It is proposed to group the buildings on top of the first rise, having eventually as a central motive a Chapel whose spire will be seen for miles around.

The building programme calls for five buildings and a central heating plant. Dunlap Hall, which includes the class rooms, the assembly hall, the administrative offices, the gymnasium, swimming bath and dressing rooms, is the main building of the group and is the gift of the well known mining capitalist, D. A. Dunlap. It will be one of the most complete buildings of its kind in the country.
To the right of this building is the Lower School House and to the left of it are the two Upper School Houses, with the dining room building placed between them and connected to them by covered-in corridors. Above the dining rooms will be the quarters of the Matron and Nurse and the infirmary which will be accessible by the covered-in corridors from both the Upper School Houses. Dr. MacDonald's residence will be at the extreme left or Southern end and attached to the South House.

In a school of this type situated in the country away from the distractions of the city, it is essential to provide ample activities in the school itself. To this end each house has been provided with a large Boys' Common Room or Lounge Room and also a spacious library. In Dunlap Hall there will be a gymnasium 450 by 75 feet all above grade and top lighted.
Connected with this will be separate dressing rooms for the Upper and Lower Schools with their own wash rooms and showers. The swimming pool, the gift of the late Sir John Es-ton, is of regulation size and will have a glass roof for sunlight which is an important adjunct.

The Chapel, which is not included in the present programme but which it is hoped will be built in the near future, will be placed on the edge of the hill and with Dunlap Hall and the Upper School House will form a sort of a quadrangle with one side mostly open looking out over the playing fields and the valley to the East.

Undoubtedly the spirit of the architecture of such buildings must have a subtle influence on the minds of the boys as they progress through the school. In this connection it is rather interesting to note that the late Georgian style of architecture was chosen for this group of buildings.
Heretofore most of the fine school work that has been done in this country has been Collegiate Gothic but with its stone mullioned windows and heavy walls this style was considered unduly expensive. The late Georgian style relies chiefly on its scale, its proportions, its simplicity and its color for effect and as there is a great deal of repetition it is inexpensive to construct and yet has a strength and a dignity which is very attractive. It is intended to use brick of an autumn tint with a certain amount of stone trimming and a green slate roof. The building will be of fireproof structure throughout. The building have been grouped so as to form many interesting vistas both among the buildings themselves and also of the surrounding country. The view to the East is particularly fine and can be seen from the windows of all the Common Rooms and Libraries. The Lower School has been planned to accommodate 60 boys and the Upper School has been planned to accommodate 120 boys. There will be practically no day boys.

Buoys to Guide World Flight

BOB PEACEFULLY IN HAWKES BAY.

Newfoundlanders Have Many Ties With Boston.
(Special Correspondence of the Transcript.)

Hawkes Bay, Nfld., Aug. 31.—Few understand the geography of Newfoundland. Its outline and size it is not unlike England and Wales. St. John's, the capital, stands as it were at the mouth of the Thames; Cape Race, with its great warning light flashing out across the Grand Banks, is where the Dover guards the English Channel. The only landing place in Newfoundland for the American world fliers is, positionally, the Liverpool of this country.

The U.S. Cruiser Milwaukee came unexpectedly into Hawkes Bay, unceremoniously placed two buoys carrying small yellow flags just inside the bay, stayed forty-eight hours, just time enough for a few public courtesies, and then steamed off for the lonely Labrador Coast to organize the Naval watch for the world-fliers. The buoys, two tiny bobbing specks in a sheltered cove, are the mooring marks for the flying machines and denote the only place where they will descend in Newfoundland. These two lonely buoys in British waters are significant anticipatory features of the world's greatest aerial odyssey and the people of the place are on tip-toes of expectation for a first sight of the famous flying representatives of America. A destroyer is expected to come in the bay first and then, fast on her heels, the seaplanes will pitch in the quiet corner selected for the mooring.

Although a seafaring people, the Newfoundlanders have seldom seen a larger warship than the four-funnelled Milwaukee and never one of equal speed, and for them the arrival of the seaplane from the northern home of the icebergs promises to be a thrilling event.

Hawkes Bay and the Navy.
Hawkes Bay is the "Admiral's Bay" of this country. Its naval associations are centuries old. Named after Admiral Hawke, the island at the entrance, which carries the light-house, is called Keppell Island, after another famous admiral of post-Armada days. This bay—a recuperating point for the West India and North Atlantic squadrons—is frequently visited by ships of the British Navy and two of these—the early Lily and the modern Raleigh—left Hawkes Bay in the morning to finish their careers in the night on the same treacherous rocks at Forteau, St. John's. The French Navy has also Hawkes Bay connections. These were important in the days of the French Treaty, under which they had controversial fishery rights and innumerable disputes with the fishermen. These were settled some twelve years ago and to-day few French men-of-war come to these waters, but older residents still remember how oppressive the Frenchmen were in the case of early settlers on this part of the coast, that time known as the French shore. These settlers mostly came from the west and southwest of England but some of the families to-day carry the names and characteristics of French ancestry.

This part of Newfoundland is a hard coast for navigators. Bluff and rock-bound, it has few safe harbors for steamers and casualties amongst coastal passenger vessels have been frequent during recent years. The S.S. Echlin made one of the most thrilling wrecks in Newfoundland history in one of the most terrific gales in living memory in December 1913. Almost the next week the S.S. Sagana, which replaced her, struck the rock bottom nine miles south of Hawkes Bay, and this summer two steamers of the same line—the Home and the Glencoe—have made dangerous groundings on rocky points.

Hawkes Bay had its first industrial family fifteen years ago when the Reid of Reid-Newfoundland Railway fame, went into the whaling business and erected buildings and machinery half-way up the bay. For two or three seasons, when whales were plentiful, the industry flourished, but in the end it collapsed with the disappearance of the whales. This same site, two years ago, became Newfoundland's only aerial base on the west coast and it was from this bay that the first attempts were made to organize the Newfoundland-Labrador winter aerial mail service and whence also the seaplanes started in the abortive gold rush to the Labrador last year. Hawkes Bay will this month add an eventful American chapter to its flying history.

The Grenfell Association.
Hawkes Bay has numerous interesting links with Boston. There are four small settlements at the mouth of the bay—Port Saunders, Spirit Cove, King's Cove and River of Ponds—and the inhabitants of these places share the common benefits bestowed by the world-famous Grenfell Association, with headquarters at Boston. This association may have its critics and even enemies in other parts of Newfoundland, but the men who earn their living on this hard, lean coast feel only love and gratitude for the doctor-philanthropist and his army of faithful workers who have done so much for them as well as for the Association which regularly sends them much-needed help. This summer four Grenfell workers are making Hawkes Bay a local centre of skilled and philanthropic operations, which cover medical, dental, nursing, child welfare and educational work. Every year sees a change in the personnel of the visitors but the good work goes on continuously with lasting results. Those who are locally known as "carrying on" for Dr. Grenfell in the first year of his absence from active control are Dr. F. A. Schroeder (New York), Dr. W. H. Putney (Boston), Miss Criswell, Miss Hurd and a lady teacher at River of Ponds.

The Episcopal Mission.
Another Boston institution with a Newfoundland link is the Society of St. John the Evangelist. Active religious and missionary work is difficult in these remote parts, and when appeals reached the Boston branch of the society two years ago the Father Superior sent Fr. Palmer and Bro. Edward on an Anglican mission to the west coast. The work of these splendid men, so earnest in their service and tireless as travellers, left a never-fading impression on the minds of all who came under their teaching. While working on the coast they conducted service in Newfoundland's only oil field at Parson's Pond. During their visit a new well was named after Fr. Palmer, who, at a public christening, encouraged the drillers with advice and counsel and wished them success in their work. Father Palmer's photograph was hung in the derrick by the drillers and last October the well struck oil—a unique example of crude oil religion.

Boston has also many literary and scientific links with this part of the world and particularly with what Dr. Grenfell calls "the rugged fastnesses of my beloved country (Labrador)." Amongst the writers and travellers who have "explained the meaning of Labrador, the land and the people," are Dr. Reginald A. Daly, professor of geology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston; Dr. C. W. Townsend, an ornithologist; Mr. Charles W. Johnson, curator of the Boston Society of Natural History; and Mr. William B. Cabot, Indian linguist.

Labor is the great problem of the moment. It is deplorably scarce; fish are scarce again this year and the sensational Government graft revelations threaten to speed up emigration to America and Canada. It is on such a coast—bluff and hard on the seafarer and amongst such a people—generous, warm-hearted and hard-working—that the American fliers will pitch in a few days. Champion Cows

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—Now records for production by Rhode Island and Connecticut cows are announced by the advanced registry department of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. In Rhode Island the state's leading cow of the Holstein breed for production in ten months as a Junior four-year-old is now Andy Bag Apple Pontiac, with a record of 21,463 lbs. of milk and 702.34 pounds of butterfat, equivalent to 877.8 pounds of butter. She is owned by J. E. Singleton of Wallum Lake. For seven days' production as a Junior four-year-old Wallum Collette Belle, from the same herd, holds the state's record with 406.5 pounds of milk and 28.57 pounds of butter. Connecticut's new champion Holstein cow for ten months' production as a Junior four-year-old is Nutmeg Elsie Kibba, owned by F. M. Peaseley of Cheshire. In 305 consecutive days she produced 16,839.5 pounds of milk containing 615.32 pounds of butterfat, equivalent to 759.1 pounds of butter.

"BEHOLD THIS WOMAN"
The New York Critics Did—Here's What They Said:

New York Times: . . . It is good hot weather entertainment. . . the best picture Mr. Blackton has made.
New York Evening Journal: I like Post in a leading role. . . and Miss Rich is animatedly attractive; there are back set scenes of Hollywood; glided cafes; melodramatic situations, and a heart breaking sacrifice on the part of Marguerite de la Motte.

New York Daily News: Another film about Hollywood, by Hollywood, for Hollywood. And a good film at that. There is no propaganda, no white washing to detract from the story. . . in the hands of the director it becomes vastly interesting. The picture taken from "The Hillman" by E. Phillips Oppenheim will please everybody.

New York American: I must hand Mr. Blackton a few bouquets on some of his characterization. Marguerite de la Motte as Sophia, the little merry sunshine and cut-up of the studio, is very good, as is Anders Randolf, the woman-hater. "Behold This Woman" has many points in its favor.

New York Tribune: Marguerite de la Motte is better than we have ever seen her before and even that doesn't seem strong enough.

Pleasing Presentation

Mr. Leo J. Carew, of the Commercial Cable Co.'s Office, who was recently transferred to the office at Canoe, N.S., left for that place by the express yesterday. He was given a good send off by the members of the Company's staff here, who assembled at the station and presented him with a handsome pipe and fountain pen as a testimony of the regard in which he was held by all.

Mr. Dan Moskier, in a few fluent words, made the presentation and assured the recipient that his fellow officials would follow his future career with sympathetic interest, and wished him all success and happiness in his new sphere of activity with the company. Mr. Carew heartily thanked the kind donors for their very tangible evidence of the cordial relations that always existed between them and thoroughly reciprocated the kindly sentiments tendered by Mr. Moskier on behalf of the men of the St. John's office.

Football Sixes—Married vs. Single. Won by Married, 4 goals and 2 corners to 2 goals.

C.O.E. vs. All Comers—Won by C.O.E. 2 goals and 1 corner to 1 goal and 1 corner.

Mrs. J. S. Rowell, wife of our Magistrate, distributed the prizes. The Magistrate and Dr. Forbes were the official starters. The judges were, Messrs. W. Brown, T. Joy, Arthur Harris and Beniah Abbott.

A side show throwing balls at cocoa nuts, managed by John Rolfe and Silas Sweetland proved attractive, amusing and remunerative. A great many "thank you's" are due especially to the ladies who made it possible to have such a delightful day, to the gentlemen who organized the sports, and to those who helped in every way in the building of the camps and clearing the grounds afterwards; but nobody will begrudge a special word of recognition to Arthur Miles, Arthur Lawrence, and Joseph Templeman in this connection, nor to the Executive of the Sports Committee, Harold Rowell, John Bishop and Ernest Hall, who inspired the original idea.

The proceeds, which amounted to about $400.00, have been voted by the ladies to the fund to provide an assistant for the Rector, who is not in the best of health.

Ruined Russia

BOLSHIEVISTS UNMASKED BY A SOCIALIST—FAMINE, PRISON, AND DEATH.

A complete exposure of the Bolshevism that has ruined Russia was made recently by a Russian delegate to the second conference of the Social Democratic Federation at the Manchester Hotel, Aldergate-street, E.C.

Mr. A. Baikaloff, the delegate, declared that, contrary to the general belief, conditions in Russia had not improved during the last year. Fifty-five per cent. of the workshops and factories remained closed. Wages were low and were rendered worse by the high cost of commodities.

The housing and sanitary conditions, he added, were more horrible than ever and unemployment was worse. He believed that they would soon read in the papers of the horrors of another Russian famine.

People were deprived of the rights which were essential for a civilized country. The Socialists were being more bitterly persecuted under the Soviet Government than they had been under the worst rule of Czarism. Thousands of Socialists were in prisons and concentration camps, and the Soviet seemed determined to exterminate Russian Socialism.

The Bolsheviks, he said, were selling the resources of Russia to the highest bidder. They were not only a danger to Russia but also to the whole of Europe.

50,000 in Prison.

In June 59 persons were sentenced to death, and in 17 days of July 35 people were similarly sentenced. There were 50,000 Socialists in Russian prisons and 200,000 had been deported.

The people who were being executed were intellectuals, business people and workers, and few of them belonged to the old possessing classes. The Bolsheviks had invented a new crime—economic espionage. "The number of people who cannot read or write has increased enormously," he declared. "The works of Tolstol and other great writers are taken out of the libraries and burned, and only Communist literature is allowed."

No British Help.
Councillor Killip (West Ham) said Bolshevism was not an experiment; it was an imposition. (Cheers.) These people were only hindering the cause of the workers.

It should go forth from that meeting that the Social Democratic Federation had no liking for and no desire to be associated in any possible way, political or social, with the Communist Party in Great Britain or to be associated with the Soviet Republic. (Cheers.)

Mr. E. J. Hay, national organizer, said that that conference had not a shred of sympathy with Bolshevist methods.

Mr. Baikaloff in reply to questions, said that the Socialist Press was being "doped" by Bolshevist propaganda. "They have plenty of money to do it with," he said, "while we are as poor as church mice."

The chairman, Mr. W. S. Cluse, M.P., said that the Social Democratic Federation would continue to carry on its propaganda against Bolshevism, which had been their policy since the war.—Daily Mail, Aug. 5.

A REQUEST TO MOTORISTSFOR KIND CONSIDERATION.

It has been brought to the attention of the Newfoundland Motor Association that there are several thousand people in the city who do not own motor cars and who walk to Bowring Park on Sunday and holiday afternoons.

It is a well-known fact that these citizens are deluged with mud in the fine weather and often splattered with mud in wet weather, as however careful a driver may be, it is usually impossible not to raise dust and sometimes it is impossible to prevent splashing when driving through the mud.

The Association has therefore decided to issue a personal request to Motorists generally not to use the Southside Road on Sunday, Holiday and Half Holiday afternoons, thereby affording the many people in the city who do not own cars an opportunity to walk to the Park in some degree of comfort on Sundays and holidays. (This request, of course, does not apply to motorists living on the Southside nor motorists wishing to call at houses on the Southside on these afternoons.) This is an appeal to Motorists, not an order nor a demand. A little consideration is all that is asked and the Association believes that Motorists, generally, are considerate.

Issued by the Executive and Road Committee.
THE NEWFOUNDLAND MOTOR ASSOCIATION,
P. E. OUTERBRIDGE, Sec'y-Treas.

Breaking Up The Home!

You can hardly blame this man for what he is doing, as he is evidently suffering from an attack of indigestion. It would be much cheaper for him to purchase a bottle of some good Stomach Mixture.

Stafford's Prescription A

would certainly help this man, and any other who would feel like doing the same thing.

The usual symptoms of Indigestion or Nervous Dyspepsia are as follows: Uncomfortable feeling about Stomach after eating, Headache, Nausea, Acid and Bitter Eructations, Langour and Depression of spirits, Irritability of Temper, Tenderness over Pit of Stomach, Bad Taste, Loss of Appetite, Constipation, etc. If you have any of the above symptoms try a Bottle of STAFFORD'S PRESCRIPTION A, and we are certain it will cure you. You can purchase a trial bottle for 30 Cents—5 cents extra for postage.

or large bottle (about three times as large) for 60 Cents—10 cents extra for postage.
