

I have given one instance in illustration of the general course from the start. I selected another from the life of a man who had not been educated at a theological school, and, on the trial of the case, he, during his examination, was a witness to the chief cause of that action under oath: "The priest put on a black dress, and then quenched all the candles but one, and then said the priest put out, saying, 'So the Lord has given me a new heart; therefore will I give you a spirit of knowledge and of understanding.' Then said the priest, 'The gates of heaven are now opened; and here comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from our sins.' His neighbor immediately withdrew all intercourse from him. Shopkeepers refused to sell him meat; and his wife and ten children left the house of a kind Protestant, that must have passed over the day of his birth to a child which the priest had also cursed for he cursed the woman that bore him."

Such is the record of that infidel character.

"I have a few words to say to those who deserve our pity and commiseration; and the scorn and contempt with which they are often visited, which have been and are, the chief causes of their rejection under oath: 'The priest put on a black dress, and then quenched all the candles but one, and then said the priest put out, saying, 'So the Lord has given me a new heart; therefore will I give you a spirit of knowledge and of understanding.' Then said the priest, 'The gates of heaven are now opened; and here comes my master,

Jesus Christ, to save us from our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

our sins.'

He then turned round and said, 'The

whole world is against me; and every man

wishes to slay me; so low is the state of

infidelity among the people; but, nevertheless,

the gates of heaven are now opened; and here

comes my master, Jesus Christ, to save us from

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

STANTON'S BUILDINGS, DOCK STREET,
LONDON, E.C.

Capital, £2,000,000 Sterling.

John Shaw, Agent, and M. & T. M. Marshall, Esqrs.
Directors of the Liverpool Charles Turner, Esq., Chairman, John Marshall, Esq., and J. B. Marshall, Esq., Deputy Chairmen.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

SHAW'S CELEBRATED BAKING POWDERS AND PREPARATIONS.

Shaw's Baking Powder, a new and superior article, has been made by the subscriber, under the direction of the best English Chemists, and is now in full sale throughout the United Kingdom, and abroad.

SHAW'S BAKING POWDER, 1 lb. 10 oz.

SHAW'S BAKING POWDER, 1 lb.

SHAW'S BAKING POWDER, 1 lb.