With an honor roll of 32 members in the ranks it was not thought that the Carleton Place Canoe Club could muster up a war canoe crew this season, but they did, and sent down about twenty juniors to take part in the Northern Division meet on the Rideau, and the boys did well, too, leading in the quarter mile race to the finish when the New Edinburgh-Ottawas nosed by them and won by perhaps a yard. It was a great race the Brits and Rideaus all coming in within the boat length. In the minor events the Carleton Place juniors were too new at the business to get a look at the premier positions, and in the half mile war canoe race they kept in it to the last, although finishing in fourth place. The boys had a good afternoon's sport and gained some experiences that will stand to their credit in the future. The combination club won most of the events, the Brits and Rideaus dividing the others between them.

Bonfire Concert at Lake Park.

The bonfire concert gotten up by the ladies at Lake Park and given last Tuesday evening in aid of the Red Cross Society, proved an unique success in every respect. The bonfire was built in the open near the Point whilst the evergreen hedge between Mrs. Murphy's and Mr. McRostie's formed the background for the stage, which was decorated with Chinese lanterns, as were the grounds about, a row of candles on the ground making footlights. There were tables for ice cream, cold drinks and candy, whilst music in abundance was supplied by no less than three machines. The programme proper opened with a children's chorus, "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall." The chairman, Mr. J. M. Brown, then introduced the "Summer Girl Minstrels," a company of young ladies who were most appropriately attired for the occasion, and their opening number was "God Save the King." There were choruses, part songs, stories and recitations. The Centre of Attraction being Miss Kathleen Salter, the First and Second End Men being Miss Fluffy and Miss Boardwalk (Queen Allen and Mary McNeely), and Miss Swat-the-Fly (Madeline Murphy) and Mrs. Votes-for-Women (Miss Standen). There were jokes and sallies, and many good old songs. Besides which there were solos by Miss Jessie Simpson, Miss Queenie Allen and Mr. C. C. Brown, and recitations by Miss Jeffers (Aunt Lou), Miss Mary McNeely and Miss Standen. Mr. Chairman read a very interesting letter from Miss Eva Wilson, one of our girls at present nursing in France, telling of the great work of the Red Cross and the need for it all. The net receipts amounted to $70, a nice little contribution to the Red Cross funds. There was quite a large audience, gathered from all sides by vehicles and craft of all descriptions on land and water.

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN

Pleasant Evening Reveries dedicated to tired Mothers as they Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

WOMAN'S WORK

The quiet faithful way in which a woman often of superior intellect, and decided talent for higher things, will dish-wash her life away for her husband and children, is a marvel of patient endurance. Here the servitude of women is the heaviest. No sooner is her work done that it requires to be done over again. Men take contracts of work on them, finish them, and they are over for all time. The prospect of ending them and drawing pay for the labor is alluring. And woman's work holds no such promise. She washes on Monday after Monday the same garments until there is no more of them to wash; then they are replenished by new ones like old, and the rubbing and wringing goes on until the worn-out hands are folded for their eternal and only rest. She mends stockings with tireless fidelity, week after week, and year after year. Every morning the same rooms are to be put in order, only to be in the wildest disorder by evening. The same stockings, the same washing, the same cleaning and cooking in endless rotation, which, if done promptly and properly, leaves no time for reading and self-culture which, aside from the pleasure it affords the woman, is the only means of fitting one-self for the intellectual culture of children.

What wonder that women are not thinkers, or that the daughters of successive generations are rapid, uncultured creatures, incapable of forming an opinion on the most important subjects of human consideration.

There is too little brightness in the lives of women. They have too little help in their domestic occupations.

The crowing grace of home is cheerfulness.

In nine cases out of ten, man's life will not be a success if he does not bear burdens in his childhood. If the fondness or vanity of father or mother has kept him from hard work; if another always helped him out at the end of his row; if instead of taking his turn at pitching off he stowed away all the time—in short, if what was light about fell to him, and what was heavy about the same work to someone else if he has been permitted to shirk, until shirking has become a habit, unless a miracle has been wrought his life will be a failure and the blame will not be so much his as that of his weak and foolish parents.

Invite your friend to church. You invite him to your home, you invite him to your lodge, you invite him to your political meetings, your parties, your lecture courses and your entertainments, why not invite him to your church? Tell your pastor to preach a little better and the choir to sing a little more sweetly next Sunday and then invite

IMPORTANT TO WHEAT GROWERS.

This is important to you because it means dollars to you.

In a short time you will be preparing for the seeding of your fall wheat, and it is necessary to keep in mind the danger of loss from smut. Especially last year, smut was very general in Ontario. Grain dealers advise me that it has meant a difference of as much as 10c. per bushel for the grain delivered at elevators, aside altogether from making some of the wheat unmarketable. This means a loss of $3 to $5 per acre, while the cost of treating to prevent smut and prevent this loss is only a few cents per acre. Be sure this year and

TREAT YOUR SEED FOR SMUT.

The method usually adopted is as follows:—

Mix one pint of Formalin with 40 gallons of water, or two tablespoonfuls to one pint of water. Place the grain to be treated in a heap on clean canvas or floor. Sprinkle the formalin solution over the grain, then shovel. Repeat this until every grain is moistened by the solution; then cover the pile with sack and leave for three or four hours. At the end of this time spread the grain out thinly to dry; shovelling it over three or four times will hasten the drying. Forty gallons of the formalin solution is sufficient to sprinkle thirty or forty bushels of grain; smaller amounts in proportion. Bags, machinery, or anything with which grain comes in contact before being put in the ground should be thoroughly treated.

Immersing the grain in a bag is sometimes practised and is equally effective. Of course smut is not as prevalent some years as others, being influenced to some extent by weather conditions. Treatment, however, is a form of insurance. You do not expect to have your barn burned down every year because you pay the insurance every year, and it is equally important to keep up your insurance on your wheat crop. This is important at the present time, not only on your own account, but on account of the Empire, which requires the maximum supply of high quality foodstuffs. The shipping of smutty wheat not only gives this Province a bad name but reduces the price you receive for your wheat.

Further information on the subject may be secured for the asking, either from the local office of this Department in your County or from the undersigned.

Hon. Jas. S. Duff,
Minister of Agriculture,
Toronto.

your friend to your church home to worship with you.

The life of the world is strenuous, and the door of the home should shut out the storms and stress but should not shut out new and wholesome inspiring influences. It should stand wide in hospitable welcome to friends. The home life that is narrow and selfish is dull and enervating.

Why should hearts spend years on earth growing into one, knitting life into life, blending soul into soul, for a union that is not to reach beyond the valley of shadows? Husbands, you are the head of the home, why not be the head of the home for eternity?

As king over the stalwart oak and lofty pine, the fig tree would have been a dead failure and as much out of place as some of our politicians are in congress; but for bearing figs the oak and pine are its inferiors. Bearing figs is the grandest thing in the world for a fig tree. It shines in its own sphere, but stripped of its fig-bearing power it has no excuse for existence. Sometimes a mother, who reigns a magic queen in her own household, forsakes her quiet sweetness of home rule for a noisy, rough, public career, for which she has not the slightest qualification. Of course there are no such mothers who are readers of this paper, but we have seen them and so have you.

On the shores of the Adriatic sea the fishermen's wives come down at sunset and sing to guide their loved ones home. On the mountains of Tyrol hundreds of women and children go out nightly and sing their native songs until fathers, husbands, brothers and sons answer on their return home. What a beautiful home-coming. Is it not worthy of imitation by our most polished citizens? A type of that welcome we hope every reader of this department will receive when they reach the golden gates of Eden.

"The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world." This is a saying as old as the hills, but were it true our great men in our great cities would not be on trial and sent to prison pens for "boodle" and "graft." When the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world there will be "a school house on every hill top and no saloon in the valley."

In the race of life, in the contest of physical endurance, in the moral tests that come, that child has not a fair chance who has sprung out of the mud of the streets. To know the breath of lilacs and the rustle of autumn leaves, to be up with the lark, to bathe one's feet in the dew of the pasture, to go to bed with the song of the whip-poor-will—these memories are like guardian angels.

Fresh Air Needed.

The process of re-breathing air that has already been used, if long continued, leads to asphyxiation and death. Much of the so-called "delicacy," susceptibility to cold, languor, headache, and nervous depression are due to the same cause. The secret of ventilation is to renew the air in a room at least three times each hour, day and night, without creating a draught.

A Very Ancient Pension Case.

It is reputed that the Swiss Government is trying to find the living descendants, if any exist, of Hans Roth, of Rumsberg, who was granted a pension by Switzerland in 1382. Hans was a farmer who overheard enemy soldiers talking of a plan to sack the city of Soleure. He gave information and saved the town. Thereupon the canton voted a perpetual fund to provide an honorary robe and an annual pension to Hans, and, after him, to the eldest of his descendants. The last Hans Roth, of Rumsberg, died recently.

Most Costly War in History.

Never before were British soldiers so liberally paid as in this war. Never before was such provision made for the dependents of fighting men. In the Napoleonic war press gangs took men by force to fight on Nelson's ships, and the dependents of those taken were left to starve at home. In the present war the British Government is paying a million dollars a day to the wives and other dependents of soldiers serving in the army. This amount is entirely independent of the regular pay allotted to the soldier himself, the cost of his equipment and all other expenses incidental to his support. Enormous as it is, this amount represents merely a fraction of what the British Government is actually doing for those who have joined the colors, and it is safe to say that in the history of the world no army has ever been raised on so expensive a basis.

Pte. John Farrell, who spent the winter with the 59th Battalion, returned to Perth from England where he contracted fever and rheumatism which rendered him unfit for further service.

Scientific Farming

BEFORE SPRING WORK BEGINS

It Is Wise to Scatter Barnyard Manure Over the Fields.

It is a wise practice to scatter barnyard manure over the fields before spring work on the land begins. If this is done little plant food will be lost either as the result of washing or of fermentation.

Greater returns per ton are secured by light, evenly scattered applications over a large area instead of heavy, irregular scattering over a smaller acreage. For this reason the spreader will soon pay for itself on farms of 100 acres or more simply by increasing the returns per ton from the manure, to say nothing of the saving in labor.

If possible it is better to use the spreader because, first, it saves work; second, it makes it more likely the manure will be saved and scattered promptly, and, third, most important of all, it makes possible the even scattering which is so desirable if the full value of its plant food is to be secured at this time of the high cost of commercial fertilizers.

The loss is not very great if stock is fed in barns, sheds, or lots and the manure hauled every day or even every week. If this plan cannot be followed the stock may be fed in an open shed and the manure allowed to accumulate on the floor where it will be trampled down and kept compact and moist enough to prevent fire fanning or rapid fermentation. Even in the open shed a great deal of the fertilizing value will be lost through leaching into the ground unless the floor is of concrete or similar material. Entirely aside from the fact that it helps to insure a dry sleeping or feeding place, the concrete floor helps to pay for itself by the saving of manure which results.

Probably the least possible loss in manure value results if the animals can be allowed to run upon the fields which need the applications. If the feed lot is located on a hillside the value of the manure may be largely lost through washing, but if it is located on more level ground and moved from time to time better results will be obtained. Fields that are too far from the barn or feeding headquarters can hardly be handled in this way, and long winters or continued bad weather make it much more difficult, but if the ground remains frozen so that it is not injured by tramping and the weather is not too severe it is usually possible to take advantage of this plan, and every effort should be made to conserve the valuable soil fertility in barnyard manure.

SOME POULTRY NOTES.

The wing feathers of young chicks frequently grow so fast as to weaken them. Particularly is this so with the smaller breeds of fowl. Some poultrymen pluck out these long feathers, but there is danger of weakening the chick by this method, for they are apt to bleed. The better way is to clip the tips of the wing feathers when the chicks are about ten days old. This will send the strength back to the body.

Variety of feed always brings the best results, and if the hens are not doing what they should toward filling the egg basket a change of food will remind them of their duty.

Make the pens as early as convenient will permit in order that the birds may get acquainted with each other, all "scrapping" be over, and the eggs be fertile when wanted.

Thousands of young chicks are killed by the mistaken kindness of poultrymen who insist upon feeding them during the first few hours after they break from the shell. Do not feed until they are from seventy to seventy-two hours old. Keep them in their brooders until that time, and let them remain there for at least another day after the first feeding.

Weeds should not be permitted to grow in the poultry yard. If there are weeds the young fowls get wet from the morning dew and after showers. It is important to keep the fowls dry.

Profitless Potato-Growing.

A year ago the Brighton Town Council planted ten acres of potatoes. The expenditure was $232 10s. 6d., and the return only $29 3s. 7½d.

TOO MUCH FERTILIZER.

When fertilizer was first used farmers got wonderfully increased yields even from very light applications. Each succeeding year the soil requires more fertilizer to produce the same results until after awhile the soil becomes worn out.

Malnutrition is the name applied when the crop is abundantly supplied with plant food, yet in reality is poorly nourished. Every farmer has seen crops which were heavily fertilized and yet didn't grow. This result is due to several conditions which may result from constant use of commercial fertilizers. The soil may become sour, residual salts may have accumulated or the humus supply may have been neglected.—American Agriculturist.

SPRING CARE OF BEES.

There Should Be Strong Colonies at Beginning of Honey Flow.

The duty of the beekeeper in the spring is to get plenty of bees in time for the honey flow. If this is not done his work is a failure. The population of the colony is reduced during the winter, especially where wintering conditions are not the best, and this must be corrected if the colony is to get the full honey crop. It is poor beekeeping to have weak colonies at the beginning of the honey flow from which the surplus crop is obtained.

After brood rearing gets under way bees need three things—room for heavy brood rearing, an abundance of stores and protection. A common error is to cram the colony by failing to provide empty cells for the reception of eggs.

If in early spring the weather is suitable and if nectar is available the bees will add considerably to their hoards of honey, but they use it so rapidly that it is seldom that any gain in the stores occurs even during fruit bloom. However, since the weather is uncertain at this season the beekeeper should not depend too much on incoming nectar to supply the needs of his bees. If they are short of stores feed a warm thick syrup made of granulated sugar and feed lavishly.

On some warm day the hives should be opened and given a spring house-cleaning. At this time one wing of the queen should be clipped so that when swarming time comes she cannot fly to the woods with the swarm. If any queenless colonies are discovered (having no brood) they should be united with colonies having queens. This can be done simply by setting the queenless colony on top.

The stimulation to heavy brood rearing should occupy six to eight weeks previous to the surplus honey flow, and every beekeeper should know when that comes in his locality. If he is a beginner any beekeeper who is older in the work can give him that information. If a colony has a good queen and plenty of empty cells for egg laying, is well supplied with stores, and is protected from cold and wind one may expect a colony which is capable of storing the maximum crop.

Having gone to all this trouble to get plenty of bees in the hive, the beekeeper will readily see that he should do everything in his power to prevent swarming. Swarming just before or during the honey flow is the greatest drawback to a good crop. Experienced beekeepers have worked out methods by which this can largely be prevented, and every beekeeper should study these methods.

THE CROP PROSPECT.

Ottawa, August 12.—The Census and Statistics Office issued to-day a preliminary estimate of the yield of fall wheat, of hay and clover and of alfalfa, based upon appearances at the end of July, as estimated by correspondents, and also a report on the condition of other field crops at the same date. The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of fall wheat in Canada for 1915 is 25.76 bushels as compared with 29.41 bushels last year, 21.41 bushels in 1914 and 23.26 bushels, the average of the six years 1910 to 1915. The harvested area of fall wheat in the five provinces of Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia amounts in 1916 to 1,042,200 acres, as compared with 1,205,700 acres in 1915, and the total estimated yield for this year is 26,850,000 bushels as compared with 35,551,600 bushels last year and 20,837,000 bushels in 1914. In Ontario the total estimated yield for 1916 is 18,773,000 bushels from 774,800 acres, an average yield per acre of 24.23 bushels, and in Alberta, the other large fall wheat growing province, the total yield is estimated at 7,520,000 bushels from 247,700 acres, an average of 30.36 bushels per acre. The estimated yield of hay and clover in 1916 is 14,941,000 tons from 7,974,000 acres, as compared with 10,953,000 tons from 7,875,000 acres in 1915 and 10,259,000 tons from 7,997,000 acres in 1914. The average yield per acre works out in 1916 to 1.88 ton, which is the largest on record for Canada. The total yield of 14,941,000 tons is also the largest hay harvest gathered in Canada, as well as one of the best in quality. Alfalfa shows a total yield of 166,000 tons from 89,900 acres, as compared with 261,955 tons in 1915, the average yield per acre being 1.85 ton against 2.83 tons.

CONDITION OF SPRING-SOWN CROPS.

The condition of spring-sown grain is about equal to last month being over 80 p.c. of the standard representing a full crop. On July 31st, 1915, the figures were exceptionally high, being over 90 per cent, but in 1914 they were below 80 per cent. The respective percentages are as follows: Fall wheat 82, compared with 80 on June 30, spring wheat 89 both dates, all wheat 87 both dates, oats 83 and 86, barley 83 and 88, rye 87 and 91, peas 75 and 82. The condition of other crops on July 31 was as follows: Beans 82, Buckwheat and mixed grains 83, flax 86, corn for husking 74, potatoes 84, turnips 87, manure 85, hay and clover 100, alfalfa 95, corn for fodder 79, sugar beets 82 and pastures 95. Converted into a standard wherein 100 represents the average yield per acre of the eight years 1908 to 1915 the condition of the principal grain crops at July 31, 1916, was as follows: Fall wheat 102.5, spring wheat 105, all wheat 105, rye 103.5, barley 101.2, oats 105, flax 105. That is to say the yields per acre of these crops according to their appearance on July 31 are expected to be above the average yields of the previous eight years, 2 1/2 per cent for fall wheat, 6 per cent for spring wheat, 5 per cent for all wheat, 3 1/2 per cent for rye, 1.2 per cent for barley, 5 per cent for flax. Many correspondents in Manitoba report the appearance in the wheat crops of rust due to murky atmosphere and extreme heat. They were not able to estimate the extent of the damage beyond stating that this would be serious if not checked by a change of weather.

Corsets 4,000 Years Old.

Recent archaeological investigations in the Island of Crete revealed that women of 4,000 years ago wore corsets to make their waists slender. Mrs. Joseph M. Dolan, assistant curator of the Mediterranean section of the University of Pennsylvania Museum, brought from Crete this information proving that the corset wearer is engaged in no new practice. She said also that the Grecian men of forty centuries ago wore waist cloths to support their bodies.

SAVE THE CROP OF WESTERN CANADA

(1) Threshing Wheat, Carman, Man.
(2) Loading Wheat in Manitoba.
(3) Reaping at Carberry, Man.

STATISTICS from the Government authorities show that the wheat crop this year promises to be greater than ever but the problem that is troubling the minds of the farmers in Western Canada is how can the crop be harvested? That is the predominant problem of to-day in Canada apart from recruiting for overseas. The railways are providing special excursions to carry the men to their destinations but the effort will almost be fruitless if the labor does not come forward for the work in view. There is no disguising the seriousness of the situation this year so many men having gone to the front or are on their way. Despite this fact, however, there should be no lack of men to gather in Canada's greatest asset if the country is to still continue the good work of the past two years in helping the Mother Country in the greatest war the world has ever known. While Canada has sent some hundred thousand men to the war there are still hundreds of thousands more left who have not enlisted and who are not assisting in the making of munitions. These have now an excellent opportunity of doing a little bit at home to help the war abroad. Canada's crop is of vital necessity to Great Britain and her Allies so that everyone who helps in gathering in the harvest will in some measure be assisting in carrying on the war to a successful issue. The effort will not only be a health giver but give excellent remuneration.

You who are not helping your country directly are invited to take the trip West for a couple of months and not only earn three dollars a day and board but also feel that you are helping the powers to end the war successfully for our side. Any railway agent will furnish you with all the information to enable you to go to Western Canada and do your little "bit" by helping the farmers to harvest the great crop on which so much depends.

LANARK.

FROM THE PRESS.

Mr. Gladstone McIntyre, of Chicago, is visiting his uncle, Mr. J. N. Dobbie, at the Clyde Hotel.

Misses Mabel and Lillie Sheppard of Hamilton, are spending their vacation at the home of the former's brother, Mr. Alex. Sheppard, Ferguson Falls.

Misses Edith Robertson and Louise Smith, of Toronto, are holidaying at Dalhousie Lake, guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Robertson.

Provost Marshal Thos. A. Mason, of the 240th Batt., is off on a few days' leave of absence which he is spending with his wife and family among relatives at LaVefield.

Captain James L. P. McLaren, son of Senator McLaren, was in town yesterday clad in the uniform of the king. He is recruiting for the 238th Forestry Battalion. Capt. James looks well as a military officer.

Relatives here received word last week of the death of Mr. James A. Crawford, which occurred at Brockville on Monday, Aug. 7th. Deceased was a native of Lanark, born here 68 years ago.

Sad news came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Wright last Saturday when a telegram was received from Port Arthur stating that their son Charles had been drowned at Silver Islet.

Clyde Hall was open to all Lanark friends last Saturday afternoon, on the occasion of an At Home held by Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Caldwell, to meet Captain "Tom" Caldwell, home on leave from the front. From four until seven streams of visitors made way to the Hall, where Mr. and Mrs. and Captain "Tom," assisted by a number of lady friends, received. The day was perfect, bright sunshine tempered by a light breeze illustrating Canadian weather in its most happy state. The avenue leading to the Hall displayed along its entire length a profusion of decoration, mostly patriotic in its offering, and contrasting pleasantly in its richness and variety of coloring with the deep olive green of the trees and the shrubbery. The compelling natural beauty of the surroundings, trained into almost tropical fashion by the hand of a master florist, seemed to look more charming than ever and gave rise to a remark that it was a perfect place for a perfect day. Groups of children made merry over the lawns and ventured near the spraying fountain which played upon the green. What a great contrast this summer picture of a lovely country home seemed to the picture that arose in one's imagination of the trenches whence had come the one in whose honor the occasion was being held? All was laughter and gladness here and over there—well, what's the gain in making a harrowing tale over the hardships of the boys. In addition to Captain Tom, a sprinkling of khaki gave point to the gathering—Colonel A. Clyde Caldwell, Captain William R. Caldwell, Lieutenant Lloyd Affleck, and a number of young recruits representing Queen's Field Ambulance Corps. There was much handshaking and well-wishing, and chatting and feasting, and the unanimous sentiment of the day was of rejoicing at the meeting of friend with friend. In a few days Captain Caldwell sails from Halifax for England to report for duty. His furlough has been a short one, and among the very many happy recollections of his stay none will be more vivid or more enduring than the memory of meeting all his home friends at Clyde Hall.

Pte. J. M. McElquham, who was with the Queen's General Hospital in Egypt and later in France, is now at Shorncliffe Camp, England, qualifying for a commission in the Canadian Expeditionary Force. Seven other arts students of Queen's are also qualifying for commissions. "Max" has been hoping for some time to get into the firing line and now his wish will likely soon be granted.

A new continental "shelf" was reported discovered in the Arctic Ocean.

The Kaiser has called out all miners from the coal mines to serve with the army.

Belgian troops completed the occupation of the northwest part of German East Africa.

Twelve men are missing, all believed killed, in a terrific explosion at the new No. 3 mine at Michel, B.C.

The Government by order in council has removed the name of J. Wesley Allison from the list of honorary colonels.

The British authorities advise that parcels for prisoners of war in Germany must not be wrapped in linen, canvas or any other textile materials.

David Craig will be joined in the milling business at Arnprior by his son, Barclay, who is to resign from the Bank of Ottawa service, Montreal.

General Victor A. S. Williams, wounded and made a prisoner at the battle of Hooze, appears in the casualty report as having been discharged from hospital and transferred to Husaren-casern, Crefeld.

A Berlin report states that Germany is making every preparation for another winter campaign. In large storehouses in Berlin thousands of army overcoats, fresh from the manufacturer, are being packed away, ready for shipment to the front. Several thousand auto trucks are also being prepared for winter fighting.

Milton: "Gibson doesn't seem to be getting rich at poultry raising."

Bilton: "No; but he says his hens have taken to eating their own eggs, and he has hopes that they'll become self-supporting."—Farn and Home (British).

Mrs. Green: "They seem to think the war will be over very soon now, Mrs. Harris."

Mrs. Harris: "I shouldn't be surprised, Mrs. Green; twenty-five shillings a week and me 'usband away—I always said it was too good to last."

LIBERAL ELECTED IN TORONTO.

The by-election in south west Toronto yesterday, resulted in the election of Hartley Dewart, K. C., Liberal, by a majority of 643 over Norris, Conservative, and also by a majority over all three candidates combined. In the last general election the late Hon. J. J. Foy had a majority of 3,000. It is 27 years since a Liberal was elected in Toronto before, and the result is a serious rebuke to the present Ontario Government. The hydro-electric development and the nickel question were the chief factors in the campaign, the government's prohibition stand absolving a factor.

MR. ROWELL'S MOVEMENTS.

Toronto, August 21.—Mr. Rowell's return from Europe gives promise of a revivifying of interest in the outstanding issue which confronts each component part of our Empire during the stupendous trouble in which we are engaged—the winning of war.

The Liberal Leader's unmatched qualities in quickly and decisively seizing on the essentials of an intricate situation and applying the principles of such methods as have been elsewhere employed, to meet the peculiar conditions existing in his own country and province, are now being devoted to the service of his country in the same unstinted manner as he used his eloquence and mastery of fact in the matter of recruiting up to the moment of his leaving for the Old Country.

Mr. Rowell reached London on July 10th, and drove straight to the House of Commons where he was given a seat in The Distinguished Stranger's Gallery. Mr. Asquith was in the course of a delivery on the Home Rule question; and the Ontario Liberal Leader was much impressed by what he was privileged to hear on this occasion.

The object of Mr. Rowell's visit, as given to the Canadian Press Service, is to study the general situation as between military industrial and agricultural demands, with a view to assisting in the work of the Ontario Committee for the Organization of the Resources of the province. Mr. Rowell also expressed his intention of looking after the interests of the Canadian soldiers in the hospitals and training camps in England, and, if possible, in France; and to gather information on recruiting, labor and the organization of industries, which may be of value to Canadians in connection with war organization here.

Interviewed by the representative of the Globe in London, on July 14th, Mr. Rowell said, "the general impression I have formed during the few days since I arrived in London is the lack of outward evidence of war, except for the presence of men in khaki." Mr. Rowell was touched by the sight of the recipient given him by the populace to the returned wounded and the marvellous cheerfulness of the men. He has visited most of the hospitals where Canadian soldiers are housed, and brought them a message of good cheer from their homes across the sea. He reports that he found them "in the best of good spirits, bearing their wounds with great cheerfulness, their animation being most remarkable."

On July 22nd he was reported in Paris, and on July 26th a cable despatch conveyed the news that he was back in Paris after four days spent at the Canadian front. Whilst in Paris he attended the French Senate; and, under the authorization of General Zubele, (the Military Governor) Mr. Rowell inspected the aerial defences of the city, and visited the munition factories and workshops, where he said women are mostly employed. The Canadian Statesman also had an interview with the Minister of Labor and learned much from him about social and industrial conditions in France and the Minister's plans for the future. Mr. Rowell also interviewed M. Ribot, the French Minister of Finance, and Louis Martin, the Director General of Indirect Taxation, regarding legislation against alcohol and further proposed reforms.

On his return to London, Mr. Rowell informed the Canadian Associated Press correspondent that he was profoundly impressed by his visit to France and Flanders. Regarding his visit to the trenches he said, "I have always had the greatest respect and admiration for our soldiers, but these feelings were never so great as after spending four days going in and about among them and seeing the conditions under which they are fighting. I found them all in excellent spirits, ready for any task that may be committed to them."

Before leaving Paris, Premier Briand sent Mr. Rowell a message expressing great admiration for the Canadian troops.

Mr. Rowell states that the organization of the transport and feeding and arming of Britain's immense forces and the hospital service provided are a marvel of efficiency.

On August the 8th, Mr. Rowell addressed the summer meeting of the Workers' Educational Association at Oxford on "Canada, the War and Immigration."

Having been accorded a courteous reception by both British and French Ministers, and being imbued with the patriotic desire to utilize his privileged position in gathering data of benefit to Canada in the war, Mr. Rowell's return in September is looked forward to with much eagerness. Parents with boys wounded in the hospitals have received cheering messages from the Liberal Leader, who has paid special visits in order to relieve the anxiety of those at home.

ATTACKS ARE REPULSED

German Counter-Offensive Fails of Results.

Sunday Sees Terrific Assaults on the New British Front West of Delville Wood.—General Foch's Troops Resume Their Drive and Capture a Strongly Fortified Wood Near Guillemont.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Both on the Somme and before Verdun fighting of the most desperate character continued Sunday, marking the fourth day of the renewed grapple in the former theatre and the second day of terrific clashes in the new Meuse action.

In both regions the day for the most part was marked by heavy German counter-attacks. According to late reports from the British and French War Offices these were uniformly unsuccessful.

A slight lull during the late hours of Saturday and through Saturday night in Picardy was broken Sunday by a series of terrific attacks on the new British front west of the Delville wood. The Germans swept forward in the first assault just about the noon hour, and succeeded in breaking into the newly-consolidated British trenches. They were immediately taken under a heavy fire and beset by infantry attacks with the result that they were driven from the positions.

Meanwhile, to the south, the British and French, in hard-fought actions, scored local successes on short fronts. The British pushed forward for some distance north of Bazentin-le-Petit, further increasing the menace to Martinpuich, which is now under the continuous fire of their guns.

Gen. Foch's French troops also were busy. Quickly recuperating in the short respite granted them following their stupendous efforts of the previous two days, they resumed Sunday afternoon their campaign to isolate Guillemont. Their success was marked by the capture of a strongly-fortified wood between that village and Maupas, together with a great quantity of war material which it contained.

The German artillery fire is increasing in intensity all along the front between the Ancre and the Somme and the British positions, especially, are under almost continuous bombardments. From all indications the Germans have greatly strengthened this army by new batteries, and are replying in almost even ratio to the British.

A War Office statement from there Sunday brought out the fact that the great effort of the French and British on Friday was launched with fully 200,000 men, more than 15,000 men to each mile of the front of attack—a soldier to every yard. The statement, covering the comparative lull of Saturday afternoon and Sunday night, had little to report on the present fighting, making mention only of the repulse of isolated British attacks.

At Verdun the battle reached a high pitch of fury during Sunday night, with both armies alternately launching great attacks on the shell-swept Thiaumont-Floury front. Berlin admits that the French "penetrated" Floury. The French War Office had already reported the complete capture of the town and Sunday announced the repulse of terrific attacks directed against it by the German Crown Prince. Neither side gained on the rest of this front, although thousands of men met in continuous hand-to-hand clashes throughout the hours of darkness.

TO ATTACK VIA GREECE?

Teutons Will Violate Neutrality of Constantine's Country.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—That it is the intention of Bulgaria to launch a general attack against the Entente armies on Greek soil is the information conveyed to Premier Zaimis of Greece by the Bulgarian Minister at Athens, M. Passaroff, according to a Central News despatch from the Greek capital.

Another despatch received by way of Copenhagen quotes the official Bulgarian newspaper as saying that Bulgaria expects the same treatment at the hands of Greece as that accorded the Entente.

"Our troops must fight on Greek soil, taking the offensive now, in order to forestall Serbia," the newspaper adds.

Bulgarian troops have occupied considerable sections of Greek territory for months without serious protest from Athens, and the opinion is expressed that Greece has a secret agreement with Germany whereby the invasion will be tolerated in return for the Greek occupation of Southern Albania, the annexation of which was announced at Athens some months ago.

In order to allay fear among the Greek populace, however, Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria is reported in a Central News despatch from Sofia to have advised the Sobranje, the Bulgarian Parliament, that the Bulgarian advance is being made in order to ensure better position and a stronger line. He expressed the Government's hope that it would not cause fresh complications.

Found Dead in Chair.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—Sitting in a chair in a room at 167 1/2 Richmond street west, a man whose identity is unknown was found dead Sunday morning. The discovery was made by Henry LeBeau, who keeps the rooming house. LeBeau told the police that the dead man had been rooming there for about a week, but that he never volunteered any information regarding himself. Nothing was found in the dead man's effects which gave any clue to his identity beyond a Prudential insurance policy, numbered 39,522,317, which was made out to Mrs. Susan J. May, and dated November 8th, 1915. The body was removed to the City Morgue.

WEDGE IN ENEMY LINE

Russians Endeavoring to Widen Breach at Toboly.

Capture of Cherwische Farm and Village of Toboly on the Western Bank of the Stokhod River Gives Big Advantage to Russian Forces.—Hard Fighting in Carpathian Passes.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Both Petrograd and Berlin in Sunday's official statement regarding the eastern front claim successes in the fighting that has been raging without pause for the last 24 hours on the Stokhod sector between Rudka and Cherwische, about 40 miles north-east of Kovel. The Russian War Office reports the capture of the Cherwische farm and of the village of Toboly, three miles to the west and on the western bank of the Stokhod. This village was officially reported in Russian hands in Saturday's Petrograd statement, but since has changed several times. "It finally remained in our possession," says Sunday's report, adding that six officers and 600 men were made prisoners.

Berlin, on the other hand, reports a successful Teuton counter-attack in this region, and the capture of six officers and 367 men. The German War Office statement adds that the "combat still continues," and indirectly admits Russian progress by referring to Russian troops "which pushed forward on the western bank," though it is asserted that Muscovite attacks here were repulsed.

By the capture of Toboly the Russians have driven a three-mile deep wedge into Gen. von Linsingen's front on this line, and are now endeavoring to widen the breach.

Indirect admission that the town of Jablonica, east of the Carpathian pass of the same name, has been retaken by the Teutons since its capture by the Russians several days ago, is contained in Sunday's Petrograd report, which says that the Teutons were "driven back to Jablonica and Voronka (Woronienka), three miles to the south-east."

A slight Russian advance is claimed by Petrograd 29 miles to the east, on the River Bialy-Cseremoss, near the town of Dol-Hopole.

Berlin reports the capture by German troops of the Kreta Heights, south of Zabis, in the foothills of the Carpathians, and the repulse of Russian counter-attacks at Magura Height, to the south-east.

Russian troops were driven from advanced trenches east of Kiselin, in Volhynia, south-east of Kovel, according to the German statement.

A battle rages on the north-eastern slope of the Czerna-Hora ridge, where the Russians are trying to break through to open their road to the Hungarian plains. Their attacks from due east of Tartar, or Jablonica Pass, temporarily abandoned because of the stubborn Teuton resistance, the Muscovites now are trying to force the pass by swooping down upon the defenders from the north. Vienna Sunday night asserted that "strong attacks" broke down under the Teuton barrier fire. The Austrian War Office also claims the repulse of a Russian attack south of Horonoka, where the Russians are endeavoring to pierce Count von Bothmer's front east of Halex.

DEMANDS EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

President Wilson Sends a Note to Railroad Executives.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—President Wilson indirectly served notice on the railroad executives Sunday that he had no intention of yielding in his demand for an eight-hour day as a means of averting the threatened strike. He also made clear his position on arbitration. He said: "What I am proposing does not weaken or discredit the principle of arbitration. It strengthens it, rather."

"It proposes that nothing be conceded except the eight-hour day, to which the whole economic movement of the time seems to point, and the immediate creation of an agency for determining all arbitrable elements in this case in the light, not of predictions nor forecasts, but of established and ascertained facts."

The direct effect of this strategic move from the White House was somewhat bewildering to the railway executives. They had heard from leaders of the brotherhoods and Congressional sources that as a last resort the President will appeal to Congress for temporary Federal receiverships.

Lloyd George Says All is Well.

CRICCIETH, Wales, Aug. 21.—In a speech Saturday night to his fellow townsmen here, David Lloyd George, Minister of War, said:

"I am satisfied with the way things are going. I feel for the first time in two years that the nippers are gripping, and before long we will hear them crack. Then we will be able to extract the kernel."

"I say at once that we shall see that there will not be another war in our day. The British people have made greater sacrifices than we ever thought possible. Three years ago nobody dreamed that Great Britain would pour millions of young manhood into the battlefield. The vigor of our demand must be according to the measure of our sacrifices."

Jumped Into Niagara and to Death.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 20.—Edward McQuade, who resides in Bridge street, employed by McRae and Campaigne, contractors, committed suicide early Sunday afternoon by jumping from the lower steel arch bridge into the Niagara River. He made the jump from the north side of the American portion of the bridge. McQuade left his coat and hat on the bridge. These articles of clothing established the identity of the suicide.

Amazing, indeed, is the speech of the British Chancellor of the Exchequer giving in detail the financial measures which have enabled Great Britain to shoulder the colossal monetary burdens of the war with such miraculous ease. Great Britain's expenditure amounts to about $25,000,000 for each day that the war continues, yet not only is the Mother Country able to continue this expenditure with comparative ease, but Mr. McKenna declares that the country's finances are so sound that if the war continue until the end of March next, the present scale of taxation would provide for the whole of the peace expenditure and interest on the national debt, would give a sinking fund calculated to redeem the debt in less than forty years, and would still leave a surplus which would allow the abolition of the excess profits tax and the reduction of other taxes. Not the most extravagant dreamer could have imagined any country in the world capable of such a financial mobilization. When the history of the war comes to be written, says the Montreal Herald, it will be found that the wealth of Great Britain, and the genius of her financial men, coupled with the great resources of the Empire, have been predominant factors in defeating the aims of Germany.

Blake, the coalition candidate, was elected to represent Berwick in the British Commons, in succession to Viscount Grey.

Slates may be brought back into schools in the United States on account of the shortage of paper. Cheap paper writing tablets now used in schools may disappear, or what is more likely, become prohibitive in price. Common five-cent tablets now contain little more than one-half the sheets they did before the beginning of the war, and paper firms say they are being furnished at an effort.

This Thursday at noon the fire alarm rang for a fire at Capt. J. M. Bell's. The blaze started in the garage and this building, with the automobile, was soon destroyed. It then spread to a small building nearby, in which were stored many articles of value used by Capt. Bell in his former work, and this also, with most of the contents, soon proved a prey to the flames.

After an illness which manifested itself about four years ago and which necessitated cessation from work several months ago, Mr. S. L. Ramsay passed quietly over the bourne which separates the life here from that beyond, on Tuesday evening, August 15th, in his 63rd year. The late Sidney Lawrence Ramsay was born at Aylmer, Que., and when about sixteen years of age he came to Almonte, where he entered the Rosamond Woolen Co's. employ, and gradually advanced until at 18 years of age he became the head of the carding room.

About thirty-six years ago he was married to Miss Prudence Thoburn, sister of Wm. Thoburn, M.P., and to them six children were born. Of these, Frank, the only son, died on April 6th, 1909. Those living are Miss Emeline, professional nurse of New York, (who was with her father for some weeks before his demise); Mrs. Murphy and Miss Eva of Ottawa, and Miss Ella and Mrs. Joss of Almonte. Mrs. Ramsay also survives her husband, and one brother, Silas, in the west and one sister, Mrs. Stephens, in Chicago, also survive.

Mr. Ramsay was identified with several of the fraternal organizations in the town, among these the Masons, under whose auspices he desired to be buried. The funeral took place on Thursday afternoon and was attended by many who thus showed their respect for the deceased. The floral offerings were profuse, among them being magnificent offerings from Alpha Lodge I.O.O.F. and Mississippi Lodge A.F. & A.M.

The pallbearers were Bros. A. Dunlop, W. Oxford, N. Washburn, W. S. Boyd, S. Davis and Jas. McLeod. Services at the house and grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. Stevens and the Masonic service by Bro. E. W. Oliver.

Mr. R. G. Entwistle, principal of the public school, obtained leave of absence from the Board of Education, and has enlisted with the 240th Battalion, with the rank of Lieutenant. He expected to remain in Almonte for several months, to help in recruiting, but on Tuesday he received word to report at Kingston for special bayonet instruction. This will occupy about three weeks, after which Mr. Entwistle's movements are uncertain.

INNISVILLE.

Under the auspices of the Women's Institute, assisted by others, a most successful Lawn Social was held on Monday evening, Aug. 14th, in the Pine Grove, Innisville. A large crowd was in attendance, and the Perth Band furnished the music throughout the evening, which was much enjoyed. Mr. R. J. Dial very ably filled the chair, and Messrs. J. Hands, J. H. Echlin, Perth, and Joseph Ebbs, Drummond, gave excellent addresses. A fish pond and guessing contest were among the attractions of the evening and furnished much amusement for both old and young.

The winners in the guessing contest were 1st, Jardiniere Stand, Cecil Ruttle; 2nd, Jardiniere, Beatrice Bowland; 3rd, Box of Candy, James Sheppard. The refreshment tables and booth did a big business. A total of $102.61 was taken in, and after paying expenses the ladies have the sum of $77 to their credit.

The ladies wish to thank the Band, the Speakers and all others who in any way assisted to make this Social a success.

The Maids Organize.

Exchange: Out in Calgary domestic servants have formed a union. Rules have been adopted touching wages, time for recreation, and so forth, and it is decreed that the use of Christian names by the employers must cease and instead the surname prefixed by "Miss" must be employed. The maids are to have a suitable room once a week in which to entertain. On the other hand, they agree to master a course in domestic sciences and wear a uniform. The principle of union does not seem to cause the girls to be exorbitant in their demands either in money or otherwise, the strange thing about the whole situation being that there are enough domestic servants in Calgary or any other Canadian city to form a union.

FIGHTING IN BALKANS

Enemy Trying to Anticipate the Big Allied Advance.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Reports received here from Salonica show that the general engagement which began on Friday is continuing with intensity over an extended front, running from Florina, near Monastir, to the River Struma. This represents an irregular line measuring upwards of 150 miles.

Gen. Sarrajl is directing the united operations of the Allies, with Gen. Cordonnier commanding the French troops. The operations have been long expected as a part of the co-ordinated offensive of the Allies on all fronts. Its opening follows the arrival of General Cordonnier after extended conferences with officials here.

The advices received in Paris indicate that the Germans and Bulgarians are seeking to anticipate the movement by taking the offensive on the left, where the Serbians had moved up to within 25 miles of Monastir, holding Florina as an observation post. Their orders were not to attempt to retain Florina if they were attacked. The Serbian War Office says the Bulgarians were repulsed and thrown back on their old positions, but that later the Serbians, following their instructions, evacuated Florina. Thereupon the town and the station of Florina were occupied by the Bulgarians.

The Serbians retired slowly, and later delivered a heavy counter-attack against a large Bulgarian force which was debouching from Florina toward Banica. Fighting continues in this region.

In the centre French and British forces near Lake Dolran followed an intense bombardment with infantry attacks, in which the British contingent occupied the strategic point of Dolzeil. Further east the French right pushed a series of small villages in much the same manner as the French right carried the villages on the Somme front.

Reports in general show a condition of affairs along the whole line which is regarded here as satisfactory for the Allies. There is every indication that the preliminary operations are extending rapidly.

LIGHT CRUISERS SUNK.

Nottingham and Falmouth Come to Grief on Scouting Expedition.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Two British light cruisers, the Nottingham and Falmouth, were sunk on Saturday in the North Sea by German submarines while the vessels were searching for the German high seas fleet, said to comprise fifteen warships, including large cruisers. One German submarine was destroyed by the British, while another was rammed and possibly sunk, according to the Admiralty statement, which follows:

Reports from our lookout squadrons and other units showed that there was considerable activity on the part of the enemy in the North Sea Saturday, the 19th.

"The German high seas fleet came out, but learning from their scouts that the British forces were in considerable strength, the enemy avoided an engagement and returned to port."

"In searching for the enemy we lost two cruisers by submarine attacks—H.M.S. Nottingham, Captain C. B. Miller, and H.M.S. Falmouth, Captain John Edwards."

"All the officers of the former were saved, but 38 of the crew are missing. All the officers and men of the Falmouth were saved, but one leading stoker, Norman Fry, died of injuries."

"An enemy submarine was destroyed and another was rammed and possibly sunk."

"There is no truth in the German statement that a British destroyer was sunk and a British battleship damaged."

ALBANIA IN REVOLT.

Inhabitants Have Organized Bands Against the Austrians.

ROME, Aug. 21.—Information from Albania is to the effect that the whole country is in a state of revolt. Taking advantage of the weakness of the Austrian garrisons the Albanians have formed numerous bands, which overrun the country, robbing and killing and laying waste.

The Austrian garrisons are in a critical condition, all communication being broken, and help by sea being difficult on account of the watch kept by the allied fleets in the Adriatic. Sanguinary fighting is continually taking place between Austrians and Albanians. The Austrian commander in Albania has asked for reinforcements.

The situation is equally grave in Montenegro.

Rowboat Upset by Steamer.

SARNIA, Aug. 20.—Rowing across the lower end of Lake Huron just above the mouth of the river here early Sunday morning, three Detroit young men named Albert Falkner, James Shankland, and John Wilson, had a narrow escape from death when their boat was run down by an up-bound steamer. The men had just rowed out of the path of a boat coming into the river and did not notice the other boat until it was too late to get out of the way. The steamer stopped as soon as possible and put out a lifeboat, which picked up Wilson and Falkner, who were swimming feebly. Shouts from shoreward drew their attention, and there they found Shankland, who was a good swimmer. Wilson's home is in Strathroy, but he is working in Detroit. The boat was totally destroyed.

Will Withdraw Troops from Mexico. WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—President Wilson has taken the first steps towards withdrawing General Pershing's expeditionary force from Mexico. High army officials predicted Saturday that all American troops would be out of Mexico by September 15th.

Trouble was found in the wires along the Waddington road, and upon investigation it was found that the wires were simply laden down with blackbirds and swallows, to such an extent that in many cases they were sagging several feet. The fires in Ontario, the telephone men say, have driven the birds south in immense numbers.

Poincaré Addresses the French People on Second Anniversary of the War

FOR the second time, my friends, we have to commemorate together a soul-stirring anniversary. Two years ago we lived hours that are not to be forgotten. Since then, two sections of mankind have been grappling with one another and are fighting amid streams of blood. The nations who have let loose that stupendous catastrophe have not yet completely expiated their act. But justice is on its way." In these words President Poincaré a few days ago addressed the armies of France on the occasion of the second anniversary of the war. The President recalls the events which preceded the declaration of war. He relates how the German troops entered French territory, and continues:

"Two years have passed, but amid the fatigues and perils these recollections, my friends, have remained vivid in your souls. Do not let them become obliterated, because it is they which give to this war its clear significance and bring to light the beauty of your task."

"Instinctively, mutilated France, which, during 44 years, had imposed silence on her sorrow, understood in 1914 that the foe who was attacking her, blinded by pride and made fanatical by hatred, had no grievance to plead, no right to defend, no menace to ward off. It is in vain that today the aggressors are attempting to falsify history.

"They were at first less knavish and more cynical, when they flattered themselves, in seeing in the treaties granted by them nothing but common scraps of paper. With insolent frankness they accepted the responsibility of their crime. The French people were not deceived. The nation was conscious that theirs was a case of legitimate defence; it realized spontaneously that sacred union which is the main condition of victory, and which found in the memorable sitting of the Parliament on the 4th of August, 1914, an imposing consecration.

"The war became immediately, in the whole force of the term, a national war. There is not a Frenchman who remained deaf to the call of his country. When you were called upon to protect our frontiers and save our natal soil, you were not only conscious that your material interests were at stake; you knew also that you were going to defend your hearth, thus you were going to defend all which constitutes France—traditions, ideals, moral forces, preserved and developed by a nation which will not die.

"Among these French ideas one of the oldest and most deep rooted is the horror and injustice. The violence meted out to Serbia and the invasion of Belgium still further enhanced the outburst of your patriotism and fortified your resolution to be victorious. You perceived that the cause of which you had become the champion, outmeasured your lives, that it was greater than France herself, that it embraced in reality civilization and humanity.

"It is a new crusade that you have undertaken, a crusade for the law of nations and for the liberty of peoples. The grandeur of your mission has exalted your courage and you have revealed to the world the true France, that France whose disappearance or humiliation would be a universal calamity and an eternal loss to mankind.

"Your patience and gallantry during long months have restrained the pressure of the German army. The battlefields where you have repulsed the enemy—the Marne, the Yser, Champagne, Arras, the Meuse, and the Somme—mark so many stages of victory. It is you who have enabled France to organize her equipment, and Belgium and Serbia to reconstruct their armies. It is you who have given to England the time to form the admirable divisions which are fighting now at your side. It is you who have given to Russia the means to supply rifles and guns, ear-ridges and shells to her heroic troops.

"To-day, as you see, the Allies are beginning to gather the fruits of your perseverance. The Russian army is pursuing the Austrian army in flight. The Germans, attacked at the same time on the eastern and western fronts, are engaging everywhere their reserves. British, Russian, and French Battalions are co-operating in the liberation of our soil. The struggle, alas, is not yet ended. It will still be hard, and all of us must continue working and working unrelentingly and with fervor. But the superiority of the Allies is already apparent to everyone. The scales of fate had protracted oscillations. Now, one of the trays keeps on the ascent; the other is lowering under a burden, which nothing will lighten.

"Immortal glory is due to Verdun, which has prepared the combined action of the allied armies. Glory be with you, my friends, who have saved France, and avenged insulted right."

WHY RUSSIA HAS COME BACK. Empire is Now Being Well Supplied With Ammunition.

The whole world realizes now that the retreat of Russia's unbeaten armies, in the spring and summer of last year, was due to failure of ammunition. The Russian armies lacked cannon, machine guns, rifles, ammunition. Against the greatest artillery attack the world has ever seen, they had only cold steel. Has Russia been able, in the year since Mackensen stormed the Dunajets and advanced through Galicia, to make up her deficiency?

During this year Russia has drawn enormous supplies from four separate sources: From her allies, and, in particular, from England, through the White Sea; from Japan, along the line of the Siberian railroad; from the United States, both by the White Sea and by Vladivostok; and, finally, from her own arsenals and factories, as a result of the great movement called "the mobilization of the Russian people."

To speak only of the fourth source, Russia has, in the valley of the Donets—which joins the Don and flows into the Sea of Azov, a "black country" abundantly supplied with iron and coal. This region produces 3,500,000 tons of steel annually; enough for cannon and shrapnel. Russia, like both England and France, miscalculated the length and rigor of the war, and, losing sight of the fact that even new resources would be needed, sent her miners and metal workers to the front. After long months, this initial mistake has been repaired and more than repaired. The metallurgists and miners are back at work in the Donets region, with many Belgian workmen—who will not fail in zeal—to help them. Workmen have been brought from China and Manchuria to supplement these Europeans.

The Putiloff works at Petrograd have been rebuilt and enlarged and are turning out large supplies. As early as October, 1915, at the time of the great Champagne initiative, Russia was manufacturing four times as many shells as six months earlier; since then the rate of output has steadily increased. And this is not at one point alone. "All Russia," said Prince Lvoff, president of the Union of Zemstvos—local self-governments—"all Russia must become a military organization"; and his words have been vigorously applied. Every form of war material is being produced in huge quantities.—North American Review.

Coffee Speckled Rubber.

An ingenious conceit, by which an attempt was made to smuggle rubber and coffee into Germany has been revealed by the British Foreign Office. Alert British officials inspecting the Norwegian steamer Lyngsfjord, which sailed from New York for Christiania, found hidden among its cargo of seventeen tons of coffee some 250 sacks which at first appeared to be perfectly innocent. The officials thought they contained coffee like the other sacks, until opening some of them they discovered tucked away small chunks of rubber some four inches square by an inch thick dotted all over with coffee beans which had been stuck in. The officials wondered at first if some new-fangled food was working its way into Norway, but close inspection showed unmistakably raw rubber and equally raw green coffee beans. The entire cargo was put into the Prize Court and every bag opened, with the result that immense stacks of a mixture of rubber and coffee beans were piled up. The whole cargo was billed, by L. T. Nainetty, New York, to H. C. A. Milbrey at Christiania, but Milbrey will have to wait until the war is over for the coffee-speckled rubber stuff, and probably for the rest of the cargo. The Germans have practised many tricks to get contraband cargoes past the watchful British Admiralty, but nothing up to now like the funny-looking blocks of rubber sprinkled with green coffee beans.

Irishwoman in Serbian Army.

Miss Flora Sandes, an Irish woman, who is a sergeant in the Serbian army, has arrived at Toulon on her way to rejoin her regiment after a holiday in Ireland, according to The Mail. Miss Sandes was in Serbia when the war broke out and joined a hospital as a nurse. Later on she enlisted as a regular soldier, taking part in the disastrous retreat to Durazzo.

Advice.

During a recent air-raid scare the order was received in a Yorkshire town to extinguish all lights. The trains came to a dead stop in utter darkness, and through the din of many voices sounded a shrill, impatient one "Mummy, do be quick and put a penny in!"—Manchester Guardian.

REVELSTOKE and its BEAUTIES

- (1) Alfred Lake, Mt. Revelstoke Park, B.C.
- (2) Silver Tip Falls, on Eight Mile Creek, eight miles north of Revelstoke.
- (3) Revelstoke, B.C., in Summer, Showing Snow-Capped Mt. Begbie.

REVELSTOKE is situated on the Canadian Pacific Railway about half way between Sicamous and Glacier. It is a town of about 1,500 people, having altogether nine hotels, the leading hotel being the "Revelstoke," situated right at the Depot. Revelstoke is most picturesquely situated in the Valley of the Columbia River, and practically surrounded by mountains. Mount Begbie is always an interesting sight, and the Glacier on Mount Begbie can always be seen from Revelstoke. The view from the hotel on a summer evening is magnificent. There are two trips from this place which are absolutely unique in the whole Canadian Pacific Rockies. One trip is nine miles north of Revelstoke, along the Columbia River to Silver Tip Falls, through the famous Columbia Canyon, which for scenic beauty and thrills is unsurpassed on the American Continent; and the other is up Mount Revelstoke. The Dominion Government is now building an automobile road from Revelstoke to the top of this mountain, and has recently expended $200,000.00 on this road, which is now ten miles up the mountain. The road zig-zags up the mountain, having an excellent grade. A high-powered automobile being able to go up this road on high gear. Tourists who have made this trip as far as the road is completed, claim that there is no trip on the American continent that can compare with it.

Should tourists be desirous, arrangements can be made to have saddle horses awaiting them at the end of the automobile road, so that they can continue to the top of Mount Revelstoke where a most beautiful natural park is situated.

In the months of July and August, this park is a most brilliant panorama of color, being covered with the most beautiful of wild flowers, which give the appearance of "the whole mountain top being one glorious mass of red, yellow, and green, in the centre of which are Lakes Eva, Millar, and Prospect, the background being the famous Revelstoke glacier. The lakes are about five miles from the end of the automobile road.

The Spinning Mule.

Samuel Crompton, a boy of sixteen, copied the best features of the spinning machine invented by Hargreaves and Arkwright, added to them some of his own and, after three months of anxious and secret experimenting, produced the first spinning mule, so called because it was a kind of hybrid between Hargreaves' jenny and Arkwright's water frame. The raw apprentice lad was, however, no match in cunning for the cotton lords, who soon found out the secret of his new machine and shamelessly robbed him of the fruits of his ingenuity. Many years afterward, it is true, they used their influence to secure for him a parliamentary grant of £5,000, but he was then a broken hearted and disappointed man, to whom the money came too late to be of any real service.

Home Difficulties.

"Now, then," said the teacher of arithmetic, "what is above par?" "I think I know," ventured a small boy. "Well?" asked the teacher. "It's ma."—London Telegraph.

Pretty Much Alone.

In a rather rabid discussion in parliament a member of doubtful ability and power twitted Disraeli for having deserted his camp. "I did not know that the honorable gentleman had a camp," Disraeli replied in a tone of mock surprise. "I have always looked upon him as the solitary sentinel of a deserted fortress."

TAMENESS.

There are a vast number of people who think they are virtuous merely because they are tame and inoffensive. Tame-ness is not a virtue; it is merely the absence of vice.—John Stuart Blackie.

Evidence of Genius.

"He started life with a shoestring, and now he has $1,000,000. Seems incredible, eh?" "Not at all. I should consider that a man who could get anybody to buy one shoestring was inevitably bound to succeed."—Judge.

Entitled to Charge.

"A professional man is paid for what he knows, not for what he does." "Then that young lawyer ought to get some tremendous fees." "Why?" "He knows it all."

The Two Versions.

The editor was trying to placate an indignant statesman. "All we said about you in the paper, Mr. Krakjack," he assured him, "was that you seemed to have an inadequate sense of proportion." "Not by a blamed sight!" roared the caller. "What you said about me was that I seemed to have an inadequate proportion of sense!"—Chicago Tribune.

Essad Pasha.

Essad Pasha, provisional President of Albania, has led an adventurous life and was at one time regarded as an outlaw. He is a member of the old Albanian family of Toptan, and claims descent from a natural son of a Crusader. At one time he was commander of the gendarmes at Constantinople, where he was well known for his daring. When Prince William of Wied was made Mpret of Albania, Essad Pasha became Minister of War. Later, fearing the Austrian influence in Albania would result in complete domination over Albania, he organized a Moslem revolt. Later he was expelled from Durazzo by Prince William. The Mpret was finally forced to leave Albania, whereupon, in October, 1914, he returned, collected an army of 10,000 men, and was proclaimed Provisional President of Albania. When Austria invaded Montenegro, Essad declared war on that country and assisted the Serbian army to escape from the Austrian forces, having to flee the country himself.

Fewer Double Chins.

The Daily Mail quotes the Cologne Gazette of August 4 as saying that the food restrictions in Germany have brought many benefits in their train; that double chins and "corporations" have disappeared from Germany, and it has been noticed that the popular health is rapidly improving.

A well known surgeon, Prof. Kuttner, writes in the German review that appendicitis is disappearing as a result of the severe plainness of German's war diet, and other ailments and ills are also decreasing as a result of abstinence from rich food:

of the German Central Railway, which resulted in a British advance to and occupation of the lines at Kilimatinde and other points. Meanwhile, with the occupation of Ujiji by the Belgians, and of Sadani and other coast ports by the British, the Germans apparently are afforded only the opportunity of retreating into the south-eastern corner of the colony, where the Portuguese, in their East African possessions, are awaiting them.

Soldier Turned Grey.

A phenomenon that has always aroused curiosity is the sudden turning gray of the hair under the influence of great emotion. Several historical instances are open to doubt, such as the case of Marie Antoinette, who is said to have become gray in the night before her execution, but there are several well authenticated cases vouched for by medical observers. One of these refers to a young soldier in the present war.

He was in a trench in the Argonne district which was blown up by a mine. He was projected into the air and then fell beneath a pile of debris. When he was extricated he was found to be deaf, and a few days later in an English hospital he noticed to his great surprise that there were tufts of white hair on the left side of his head. The loss of color was complete from the roots to the ends of the hairs and the longest hairs were just as white as the shortest. There was not a brown hair amidst them. The gray hairs were solidly implanted and could be pulled out only by considerable force.

Subsequently investigation brought out the fact that the patients' left side of the head and face was most injured by the explosion and the fall of earth. He also suffered from an incessant twitching of the left eyelid. As his hair was whitened solely on the left side the physicians came to the conclusion that the injuries sustained were directly responsible, but they arrived at no definite conclusion. In fact, science has yet to find a cause for the sudden turning gray of the hair.

A TALE of RED ROSES

By
GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER

PROLOGUE.

"A Tale of Red Roses," by George Randolph Chester, is one of that author's best stories. It introduces a typical red blooded boss politician of the type found in many American cities and a beautiful girl, with whom the boss is in love. Incidents of political intrigue and high finance are fascinatingly told. The author relates, as only he can, stirring incidents in ward, city and state politics. In his strenuous, spectacular wooing the politician makes the girl the favorite at a governor's ball. He has diplomats, artists and notables of every description pay her homage. He lavishes presents on her. He anticipates her every wish. His love is overpowering, all consuming. "A Tale of Red Roses" holds the interest of the reader from start to finish. Once begun it must be finished.

CHAPTER I.

The Dawning of a Tender Passion.

A COAL wagon, naturally choosing the rush hour for the performance, broke down in front of an extra crowded car, and traffic was promptly knotted for three blocks. A shining big automobile, following up the hill, came so close behind that the glare of the street car shone with unpleasant brightness on the occupants—a smiling red cheeked girl at the wheel; by her side a gray vandyked man with sinister lines running sharply downward from his down pointed nose; in the tonneau a plainly dressed and modestly pretty black haired girl with large and rather timid eyes and a slender golden haired girl whose chief mission in life, from her expression, would have been taken to be mischievous fun.

"Hello, Bert!" called the girl at the wheel. "Can you uncross yourself?" The rather large young man in the neatly fitting blue suit who had been jammed against the rail of the rear platform had already begun to worm his way out of the ill humored throng on the street car.

"I'll try it," he laughed, "although I don't expect to have a button left." The crowd, its clothing still clammy from the recent rain, made way for him reluctantly, even though it needed the space he occupied, for the pompous looking, vandyked man in the car was Frank Marley, by all odds the most unpopular man in the city. He was the president of the street car company.

The young man in the neat blue suit, whose cheeks were flawlessly pink and whose luxuriant black mustache was curled in two amazingly perfect ringlets, picked his way daintily through the slush.

"Bert, this is the treat I promised you," said the girl at the wheel. "Miss Fern Burbank," he guessed, clasping the blond visitor's hand, and at the same time he gave his left hand condescendingly to little Jessie Peters. "Welcome to our muddy city."

"Thank you," smiled the golden haired young lady. "Of course this is handsome Bert Glider."

"Molly's been telling on me," he lightly answered as he took the folding seat just behind Mr. Marley, sitting sideways so that he could address the two girls in the tonneau and still enjoy the clean cut profile of Ethelyn Marley, known to her intimates as Molly, for no better reason than that it was a handier name.

The lights in the car ahead suddenly went out, and a groan arose from the miserable passengers on that suffocating vehicle. A roughly breathed man, who had been resting his elbow in the wishbone of gray whiskered little Henry Peters, reached the point of heroic defiance.

He cursed the street car company and demanded, "Why don't they put on more cars?"

Little Henry Peters, who admitted he was a stockholder, took the company's part.

The conductor crowded back through the solidly packed aisle and the squirming platform to jerk hopefully at the trolley rope, and little Henry Peters, squeezed between his opponent and the fat butcher until bones could stand no more, popped from between their peripheries like the inside of a grape, landing in the solar plexus of a tired Hibernian, who had endured more than enough.

"Get out of my stomach, stockholder," he gruffly ordered and pushed little Henry's derby tightly down over his ears just as another machine drew out of the fretting rearward line and, stopped by the ragged gutter, rested abreast of Marley's machine. The conductor having restored the lights, the attention of the uncomfortable passengers was now directed to the newcomer, a heavy jawed man of middle age, who sat as stolidly in his runabout by the side of his driver as if he had been at home dining.

"It's Sledge," said the man with the frayed cigar. "He gets his little old rakeoff, too, from jamming sixty people into a forty passenger car. While he's running the town this rotten old line won't have any competition."

"Mr. Sledge is a good customer of mine," observed the fat butcher.

"There's one thing about Ben Sledge—he always keeps some big city improvement going on," announced the Irishman who had extinguished little Henry Peters.

Little Henry pulled his derby audibly off his head and rubbed the red circle it had left.

"Mr. Sledge is the workman's friend," he declared.

"Aw, shut up!" ordered the gaunt Celtic laborer and kicked his ankle by way of accidental emphasis.

It was strange that, while everybody on the car kept the name of Frank Marley sacred to their hatred, the name of Sledge, who was notorious throughout the United States for his utterly conscienceless methods of public theft, was received with equanimity.

Meanwhile Sledge, turning to see who his neighbors might be, met the eye of Frank Marley and nodded perfunctorily and then bent his entire attention on Molly, gazing at her in stolid concentration, with no more change of expression on his heavy features than if he had been reading a timetable. Bert Glider noticed his rudeness and tried in a mood of intense aggravation to catch Sledge's eye and reprove him with a savage frown, but he might as well have tried to catch the eye of an oyster. Sledge, perfectly contented with the pleasing picture which sat before him, continued to stare calmly until Molly, discerning from Bert's countenance that something was wrong, turned to meet the small gray eyes of Sledge fixed thoughtfully upon her. She wheeled abruptly to her father.

"Isn't that the scandalous Sledge?" she asked, annoyed and still amused. Her father nodded his head and smiled, his nose becoming still more pointed in the process.

"Well, introduce him. I can make him stop staring, then," she ordered. "He can't drive on."

"I say, Sledge," called Marley, leaning forward. "This is my daughter, Molly."

Sledge tugged at his hat and smiled his acknowledgment of the introduction.

"Glad to meet you," he told Molly. "I didn't know you had such a fine looking girl, Marley. She's a corker," and once more he viewed Miss Molly with quiet approbation, in which there was a dawning glimmer of quite unsledge-like enthusiasm.

"I think so myself," laughed Marley. "First thing I know she'll be getting married."

"Sure!" agreed Sledge, contemplating her earnestly in this new light. "I'd marry her myself."

The street car ahead gave a forward lurch, and the flamingly indignant Molly darted into the opening.

"The ugly brute!" she gasped.

There arrived on the morning train, escorted to the platform by a distinctly worshipful porter, a tall, big boned gentleman in a light gray suit of fine texture, a plump, careless man to whom one would instinctively turn for a tedious funny story, and a hard faced man of a most forbidding expression, who looked about as communicative as a cabbage. This gentleman loafed about the hotel with his mouth shut, while the other two "scouted." Promptly at 11 o'clock they returned from their various directions and gathered in the room of the smiling tall one in the gray suit.

"Well, Timbers, is it as cheerful as we thought?" asked the host, settling himself in the most comfortable chair.

"Looks gray and merry to me, Bozzam," replied Mr. Timbers, folding his hands on his fat knee and frowning intently at a little slip of paper he held between his thumb and forefinger.

"Sledge is, of course, the whole works."

"What's the approach to Sledge?"

"Tom Bendix," returned Timbers promptly, consulting his slip of paper. "He shifts everything before it gets to the big boy, and you don't need any introductions. The best plan is to go right to his office and give him the straight story."

"How about Marley?"

"A bull," returned Timbers contemptuously. "Because he's the president of the street car company he thinks he invented electricity, and his noodle is swelled so that it cracks his scalp."

"You'd better lead me to this Bendix person," suggested Bozzam, rising. "Come on, Moodson."

Very automatically the silent man arose and accompanied Bozzam from the room with the air of being just as willing to do that as anything else. Just as automatically he followed into the office of Tom Bendix five minutes later and stood silently by, so oppressive in his inertia that he removed to himself all speculation about any one who was in his company.

"I want to talk electrical transportation with you," began Mr. Bozzam cheerily as he laid the cards of Mr. Moodson and himself on the desk. "I am Charles W. Bozzam of New York, and this is Mr. Alvin Moodson of Philadelphia."

Bendix shook hands noncommittally with the two gentlemen and invited them to have seats.

"I don't know that I care to talk electrical transportation, but I'm willing to listen," he smiled.

"There isn't much to say," Bozzam stated. "We think your city needs new and better street car facilities, and we are here to give them to you if you will let us. The company I propose to form will be bona fide and will be incorporated for a million dollars in regular money. Mr. Moodson will take a quarter of a million of the stock himself. It might be some satisfaction to you to secure a report on Mr. Moodson from Dunn or Bradstreet."

Mr. Bendix grinned.

"It sounds like a high grade proposition," he acknowledged. "I'll speak to some friends of mine about it this noon."

When Tom Bendix walked into the Occident saloon he paused a moment at the bar, but even though his wishes were as potent here as those of omnipotence, since he represented the omnipotent Sledge, he had to wait, for both the choice bartenders were in delighted attendance on a careless fat man.

"Who's the entertainment committee?" asked Bendix, a trifle sharply.

"A total stranger by the name of Timbers," rejoined Phil, vigorously mopping up an almost imaginary splash. "He's so full of new ones that every time he opens his mouth he spills a good laugh."

"What's his business?" demanded Bendix, who was an earnest collector of definite information.

"Carrying hot ones, as far as I can get it," answered Phil, laughing reminiscently. "Say, this guy tells 'em so fast you can't remember 'em. Blondy just asked him to stop so he could write 'em down. He slipped in a funny knock or two about the street car service here."

Bendix walked thoughtfully into the little back room, the bareness of which, kept to its former crudeness by the wish of the boss, was in strange contrast to the elaborately mirrored and mahogany carved Occident. Here, at an extremely plain round table, he found the huge and impassive Sledge gazing moodily out the dusty window, while Frank Marley, with a half emptied whisky glass in his hand, sat regarding him with a puzzled expression. Marley turned with relief when he saw Bendix.

"I've just been suggesting that we build the proposed Ridgewood avenue extension out of the company funds, rather than make a new issue of stock," he explained. "By adding slightly to our bonded indebtedness we can do this and keep the additional net earnings among the present stockholders," and he stroked his neatly cropped gray vandyke, with the almost smirking complacency of a man who is sure he is earning a reputation for superior judgment.

Bendix looked at him a moment in aggrieved wonder.

"I don't suppose you remember that we first decided on the Ridgewood avenue extension for the express purpose of reorganization, new issue of stock and readjustment of shares," he chillingly reminded Marley.

"I know," persisted Marley. "But, after mature deliberation, it seems that to make the extension from the company's earnings is the more legitimate business method. I am not in favor of the modern practice of watering stock. The earnings, after all, are not increased by stock juggling."

Sledge turned ponderously from his inspection of the dingy little areaway as Bendix left the room.

"Your girl's a peach," he delicately hinted.

"Molly?" smiled Marley's nose. "She is a beauty, isn't she? The boys are crazy about her. It looks like a college convention out at my house all the time."

"I want to get acquainted with her," ordered Sledge, much as if he had been sending the happy word to some rising new politician.

A shade of annoyance passed over Marley's brow.

"That is a matter which is entirely up to Molly," he stated, with a trace of stiffness.

"All right. Put it up to Molly," said Sledge and looked out of the window again.

Marley hesitated and half arose. He knew that his call was over, and yet he had something else on his mind.

"By the way, Sledge," he observed, trying to speak as if the matter had just occurred to him, "that note of mine at the First National—it falls due next week. I am afraid I shall have to have an extension."

Sledge nodded imperceptibly.

"Tell Davis I said it was all right," he directed.

Bendix returned, and with him was Bert Glider, redolent of the odor of barber shop and with his curly black mustache waxed and brilliant until it was filled with almost painful reflections. He greeted Mr. Marley with much more effusiveness than that gentleman did him.

"Hello, Marley," he said, grasping the street car magnate's hand with tremendous man to man heartiness. "You are just the one I want to see. I've been trying to get Molly on the phone, and they tell me she'll be in at your office some time this afternoon. Will you carry her the happy news that Dicky Reynolds is in town and that I invited him to her taffy pulling tomorrow night? Tell her to invite Jessie Peters."

Sledge turned slow questioning eyes on Marley.

"You going to be home tonight?" he inquired.

"Well, yes, I rather think so," faltered Marley.

"I'm coming out to see you," decided Sledge.

"I'll be glad to have you," admitted Marley. "I suppose I may see Davis tomorrow?"

Sledge nodded assent, looking stonily out meanwhile at the hand hole in the high board gate at the end of the areaway.

Waterspouts.

A waterspout is constantly spinning. The moment it ceases it collapses. At the distance of about a quarter of a mile above the sea level its spinning speed has been estimated at six miles a minute.

An Indian Custom.

A social custom of the Crow Indian, which is often encountered among other Indian tribes and also among the natives of Australia and Africa, is the mother-in-law taboo. A man and his wife's mother never talk with each other, not from any motives of hostility, but rather as a token of mutual respect.—Southern Workman.

MR. G. A. BURGESS TALKS ON THE HYDRO.

Mr. G. A. Burgess was a delegate to the recent hydro electric meeting at Smiths Falls, and rather electrified the proceedings with a speech that he made. The News reports as follows:—

Mr. Burgess referred to the statements made by the representatives of the Ontario government, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and Hon. R. F. Preston. "It appears to me," said Mr. Burgess, "that from the manner in which Hon. Mr. Ferguson and Hon. R. F. Preston discussed the subject and the pessimistic remarks they made, that they are trying to throw cold water on the scheme to secure cheap power for this and other towns of this part of the province. Mr. Ferguson first gave an estimate of $10,000 per mile at the cost of building transmission lines, but came down to $5,000 and then to $2,500, proving that he did not appear to know what he was talking about. I know and have figures to prove that a transmission line to serve the requirements in this district can be completed at the present time for $1,500 a mile. Dr. Preston particularly appeared to take a very pessimistic view of the situation and there was not much encouragement to be taken from his word picture of pole lines all over the country with wires hanging idle. He apparently did not realize that Brockville is already asking for 3000 h.p. that farmers all along the lines would take power for lighting, and they should have it for they have lived in darkness long enough, and that Smiths Falls and other towns require and will take large blocks of power as soon as it is available at a reasonable price."

Continuing Mr. Burgess made this statement and did so very emphatically: "There are several water powers running unharnessed that may be easily developed and that will furnish at least 10,000 horse power which can be transmitted to Brockville at not over $12.50 per horse power per annum, and to Smiths Falls and Perth at not over $10.00 per horse power. It would be available to farmers at proportionate rates and available to power users in Smiths Falls and at $12.00 or less and certainly not more than $25.00 is charged to-day. I know what I am talking about and will stake my reputation that I am right. Why, with a little backing from the government I will develop these powers and sell electrical energy at the rates I have quoted."

Pruning Grapevines.

It is very important that vines be trained in some definite form, and this should begin the first season after planting. Experimenters recommend a trellis with the posts sixteen feet apart, four and one-half feet high, and having two strands of wire. No. 9 telephone wire will make a good trellis. During the second year the canes are cut back and tied to the wire as shown in A. The pruning of the second and all later years is shown in B. Leave four of the most vigorous canes as the foundation for future growth. Never permit the cane of one vine to overlap those on the vine next to it.

Spring Hints.

Begin now to feed up the prospective work-horses. Let them go into the spring drudgery well and strong. Curry better than usual and provoke an early shedding. Oats are good for this and should always form a part of the vernal horse ration; also a little of the oil meals.

If you have any old wheat stubble plough it under before April and thus bury any Hessian fly there may be in it.

If you wish to grow something to can grow asparagus. A bed of it lasts 25 years if put in right, and it is one of those crops that the drouth never affects. It beats the drouth. Put in half an acre, get a canning plant and be through with your work and worry by the first of May.

Grow some big gourds for the houses. Wrens like them better than those made ornately. If the hole does not exceed an inch the sparrow cannot enter it. Put up a new gourd every year or two, and this form of cleanliness will keep the birds. A bluebird likes a tomato can on the shady side of a tree. Punch a nail hole on the lower side.

Take the dead wood and a portion of the old large green wood out of your current bushes. Keep new wood coming up and every few years have new clumps coming on. Sufficient shoots from buried lower branches will be furnished for renewal, otherwise plant tips in the fall. Cut off all dead or withered tips or branches and burn. Use Bordeaux for molds, etc., and white hellebore tea for the currant worm. It will not poison the fruit. Do not depend on birds, no matter how many you have.

The Police System.

The police system, being almost entirely municipal in its character, has gradually developed with the growth of cities. In London a night watch was appointed in 1253 to proclaim the hour with a bell before the introduction of clocks. The old watch system was discontinued and a new police on duty day and night commenced Sept. 28, 1829.

An agreement has been reached between the British-Canadian Nickel Company and the Government for the company to develop its own supply of power in connection with its new refining plant to be established near Copper Cliff, Ont.

BABY'S GREAT DANGER DURING HOT WEATHER.

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in homes where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly, the prompt use of the Tablets will cure the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
