CHINA BORROWING.
BERLIN, April 23.—The Cologne Gazette says that the Chinese loan of 30,000,000 marks at 6 per cent, which has been concluded with a syndicate of German bankers, is merely a provisional transaction which was arranged some time ago by the Viceroy of Nankin. The Chinese Government has opened negotiations for an indemnity loan of $15,000,000 with a syndicate of British, German and French bankers.

LONDON, April 23.—In the suit of the Countess Russell for the restoration of her conjugal rights, Sir Henry James, on behalf of Earl Russell, contended in court today that the Countess was personally answerable for the foul suggestions made against her husband's character, and, therefore, not entitled to immunity from the consequences of her acts, upon the grounds that she had been ill-advised.

THE NEW SPEAKER.
LONDON, April 23.—Speaker Gully made an excellent impression in the House of Commons. He has a fine bearing, a stately manner and a good voice. He has, however, a good deal to learn in regard to his position, as was evidenced by his tripping up at the very outset. When Home Secretary Asquith moved the second reading of the Factory Bill in the usual dumb show way, by merely rising and putting his hat, the Speaker omitted to put the question, "Shall the bill be read?" until he was prompted by the clerk.

SKIN GRAFTING EXTRAORDINARY.

Over 16,000 Pieces of Cuticle Have Been Grown on a Montclair Boy's Body.

MONTCLAIR, April 23.—The case of Fred Griffith, the 12-year-old son of John Griffith, who was badly burned by firecrackers taking fire in his trousers pocket on July 4 last, is the subject of considerable interest here. The left leg was frightfully burned, and the left foot and skin grafting was resorted to. The cuticle that has been placed on the boy has been placed on over 200 persons, principally men. Mr. Gibson, who has taken a great interest in the case, has contributed 1,000 grafts. Up to the present time 16,000 pieces of skin have been placed on the burned surface, and it is said by the doctors that it will take upward of 15,000 more. Three 500 pieces were taken from three persons and grafted. The grafts are hardly perceptible, each being about the size of a pin head.

CORNER IN CRUDE.

How the Oil Boom Was Worked—Russian and American Operators Combine.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 22.—The recent rise in oil, which is now generally attributed to speculation, began in the Orient. Japanese papers just received throw a curious light on the matter. They show that the whole movement was simply a speculative deal engineered by the Standard managers after they had made a compact with the Russian Oil Company. The proof of this is found in the fact that on March 23 the Japan Gazette records an advance in the price of oil from 190 yen to 225 yen per case, and it says that the rise took place after a cablegram was received at the Standard Company's office in Yokohama. It also states that many traders in Yokohama believe that the rival Russian and American companies have arrived at an agreement.

A NEW ELECTION.

Justice Falconbridge Declares Ald. McCallum's Seat Vacant.

The Effort to Oust Ald. O'Meara Fails—The Judgment in Detail.

A dispatch from Toronto received last night says:
Mr. Justice Falconbridge today gave judgment in the case of Douglas vs. O'Meara, and Shaw vs. McCallum, on quo warranto applications to void the election of respondents as aldermen for the city of London. In O'Meara's case, the motion to unseat was dismissed with costs. In the case of McCallum, and order was made declaring the election void; respondent to pay the costs. ALDERMANIC CASES.
In the motions to unseat Ald. O'Meara and Ald. McCallum the decisions of Justice Falconbridge are in detail as follows:

O'MEARA'S CASE.
In the case of O'Meara it is claimed that the respondent had before polling day ceased to be a candidate by resigning his nomination in writing to the returning officer, and (2) that he was disqualified because the council of 1894, of which he was a member, had not raised the sinking funds required by section 373 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, as amended by 55 Vic., chap. 33, sec. 9.

The respondent, it appears, withdrew his resignation on the same day on which he resigned. The relator knew the facts the same evening, and took steps to notify the electors that they were throwing away their votes, and in canvassing electors whom he knew to be favorable to the respondent he made no qualification or want of qualification. Held, that the relator was so concerned in the irregularity of which he complained as to prevent him taking any steps to rectify it, even though it constituted a valid objection to the respondent's title.

Held, as to the second ground, that the complete case required where a penal clause is invoked was not made out, and also that as the relator did not show that at the time of the nomination and polling he was ignorant of the objection, he was prevented from making a relator and impeaching the title of the respondent.

Motion dismissed with costs. Holmuth for the relator; Gibbons, Q.C., for the respondent.

McCALLUM'S CASE.
In the case of McCallum it was alleged that he had not the requisite property qualification.
Held, overruling a preliminary objection to positions may be taken under rule 378, for use of the proceedings in the nature of quo warranto.
Held as to the merits that the assessment commissioner had no right to make an alteration in the roll of 1895 after the final revision by the county judge by striking out the name of one Spence and writing that of the respondent; and as the respondent had not the property qualification outside of the property for which Spence was assessed, his election was void.

Order made declaring accordingly with costs, and that a new election be held. Essery for the relator; McKillop for the respondent.

The odor of apple blossoms is not more delicate than pastry into which Dr. Price's Baking Powder enters.

Their New Church.

Complete Description of the Proposed Dundas Center Building.

The Sabbath School Will Be Completed by September and the Church by New Years.

The trustee board of the Dundas Center Methodist Church met last night at the parsonage and decided to call for tenders at once for the erection of the new church. The school room must be ready for occupancy by September, and the church by New Year's. Mr. G. W. King, the Toronto architect whose plans were accepted, was present at the meeting. In a midnight interview at his hotel afterwards he kindly gave a thorough description of the new building. It will have a frontage on Dundas street of 80 feet and a depth on Maitland street of 144 feet. The auditorium is practically square, and will measure 76x76 inside. The school house will be 70x32 feet. The building will be of Romanesque style of architecture, and the interior will be treated in a semi-classic manner. The foundation walls will be of rubble stone to the ground line. For the first six feet above that it will be a crossing of Cleveland and red Credit Valley stone. Above this the building will be faced with mottled purple brick, set in colored mortar and trimmed with buff Ohio stone. The roof will be of slate, and the largest tower will be 112 feet high.

The basement, which will be excavated over the whole, will contain a practically fire-proof furnace room, off this will be a large kitchen, china closet, etc. On the east side will be the ladies' toilet, on the west side the gentlemen's toilet, with separate staircases leading to each. There will be a large coal room off the furnace, and the height of the ceiling will be eight feet six inches.

The ground floor will contain the church, 76 feet square inside, brought up in octagonal form at the ceiling. The ceiling will be grained, and there will be four large arches, with four inside arches, heavily enriched, starting from a five-foot ornamental frieze with corbels and caps. The arches will be heavily enriched, and the main ones will have grained soffits. In the center of the ceiling will be a large stained glass dome, lit from the four sides by dormers. The entrance to the church is in the center and one in each tower. They lead into a vestibule the whole width of the church, and will have lobbies formed so as to stop the draughts. The entrance into the church from these lobbies will be by curtain arches. In each tower there will be a staircase running to the gallery. The choir gallery, running to about five feet above the floor of the sittings, with ample space left for the organ, which will have a frontage of 26 feet, and be about the same height.

The gallery of the church will be carried on cantilevers, and the whole church will be entirely free from columns. There will also be an entrance leading up to the gallery at the corner of the gallery, making four staircases from the gallery.

The main entrance to the Sabbath school is also on Maitland street. It leads into a vestibule and thence into a hall twelve feet wide, from which the staircases run to the side to the gallery of the school. The school will contain a ladies' parlor and seven classrooms on the ground floor, the rooms being of an average size of 12x15 feet. These will be divided off by doors so that the whole ground floor can be thrown into one at any time. The gallery will be divided up into nine classrooms, radiating from an imaginary center, and a perfect view can be obtained from the speaker's platform. There are also two rooms on the first floor which can be used as extra classrooms and choir vestry.

The roof of the church will be carried on four steel trusses, each weighing about twelve tons. From these the ceiling will be hung and the roof supported. Provision is made for the top of the glass dome will be 48 feet. The height of the Sabbath school dome from the floor will be 33 feet.

The finish of the church will be in oak, with quarter cut oak panels. The gallery will have ornamental cast iron railings, and the walls of the church up to the height of the frieze will be in stucco. Ornamental plastering throughout will be of staff and fibrous plastering. The plain surface of the groined ceiling will be of adamant.

Ample summer ventilation is already provided for, but the method of heating is not yet decided.

The walls of the Sabbath school will also be of stucco, with adamant ceiling. Provision is made for two large vent stacks, 72 feet in height, to which four air ducts will be run.

The church will cost 1,200 or 1,300, and the Sabbath school over 1,000 persons.

Another Dundas Center will have a building second to none in Ontario.

HEREDITY HUMBUG.

Some people ascribe all their transgressions to heredity, and a right handy theory it is.

Carried only to its legitimate length, there is something in it, but it must not be carried too far.

Environment is often an equally powerful influence.

Besides, if people should be excused for being bad because of some bad heredity influence, they should be expected to be good because of all good hereditary influences.

THE NEW ENGLISH POET.

We say the new English poet, rather than a new English poet, because we think Mr. William Watson likely to climb to higher heights than any other of the contemporary toilers up the steep of poetical fame. Take these lines from his "First Skylark of Spring":

Two worlds hast thou to dwell in,
 Sweet,

The virgin untroubled sky,
 And this vexed region at my feet—Alas, but one have I!

To all my songs there clings the shade,
 The dulling shade of mundane care;
 They amid mortal mists are made,
 Thine, in immortal air.

My heart is dashed with grief and fears, My song comes fluttering and is gone;
 O, high above the home of tears, Eternal Joy, sing on!

Or, note the tone of this, from the "Sovereign Poet":

He sits above the clang and dust of Time,
 With the world's secret trembling on his lip,

He asks not converse nor companionship In the cold starlight where thou canst not climb.

The undelivered tidings in his breast Suffer him not to rest;
 He sees afar the immemorable throng, And binds the scattered ages with a song.

The glorious riddle of his rhythmic breath,
 His might, his spell, we know not what they be:

We only feel what he uttereth This savors not of death, This hath a relish of eternity.

What is the mark of true poetry? A difficult question. It is easier for even the elect to recognize true poetry than to describe or analyze it. But who would deny the poetic power of an "Ode" like the following:

The poet wins in hours benign,
 At older than the Delphic shrine, Those intimations, faint and fine,
 To which belongs
 Whatever character divine Invests his songs.

And could we live more near allied
 To cloud and mountain, wind and tide, Cast this unmeaning coil aside,
 And go forth free,
 The World our goal, Desire our guide—We then might see

Those master moments grow less rare,
 And oftener feel that nameless air Come rumoring from we know not where.

And touch at whiles Fantastic shores, the fringes fair
 Of fairy isles;

And hail the mystic bird that brings News from the inner courts of things, The eternal courier-dove, whose wings Are never furled;
 And hear the bubbling of the springs
 That feed the world.

BISMARCK PICTURES.
 McClure's Magazine for May gives a baker's dozen of photos of Bismarck, from the age of 19 years down to the present year of grace.

The student in the University of Göttingen is rather a dude, somewhat after the youthful Disraelian style, but from 36 years of age onwards "the man of blood and iron" impresses his characteristics upon each successive picture.

Bismarck does not go much on Parliamentary institutions of the British pattern, but he is one of the occasional men who make history.

ENGLAND UNDER "PROTECTION."
 Lord Macaulay, in a speech at Edinburgh in 1845 said: "In 1841 the capitalist was, doubtless, distressed. But will anybody tell me that the capitalist was the only sufferer or the chief sufferer? Have we forgotten what was the condition of the working people of that unhappy year? So visible was the misery of the manufacturing towns that a man of sensibility could hardly bear to pass through them. Everywhere he found filth and nakedness, and plaintive voices, and wasted forms, and haggard faces. Politicians who have never been thought alarmists began to tremble for the very foundation of society. First, the mills were put on short time; then they ceased to work at all. Then went to pledge the scanty property of the artisan; first his luxuries, then his comforts, then his necessities. The hovels were stripped until they were as bare as the wigwam of a dog-ribbed Indian. Alone amidst the general misery the shop with the three golden balls prospered, and was crammed from cellar to garret with the clocks and the tables, and the kettles, and the blankets, and the Bibles of the poor.

 I remember well the effect which was produced in London by the unwanted sight of the huge pieces of cannon which were going northward to overawe the starving population."

EDITORIAL POINTS.

Spring is making up for lost time.

—Influenza is ceasing to be fashionable.

—The Berlin Daily Record says "The Record is acceded to be Berlin's leading newspaper." Who "accedes" it?

—Keep an eye on your unoccupied cot-tagers. A spirit of spontaneous combustion appears to prevail in such places.

—The Toronto World is still crying for an increased duty on bicycles. Purchasers of wheels say they pay quite enough for them already.

—The claim of the Conservatives that the burden of taxation has been lightened by reductions in duty is only valuable as a confession that the tariff is a tax.

A United States exchange calls for the extermination of the professional lobbyist. Better do away with the tariff favoritism that gives the professional lobbyist his opportunity.

—The Windsor Record has a department, "The Editor's Easy Chair." Don't make it too easy. Remember the old saying, that easy writing is apt to be blanketty blank reading.

—Necessity finds new ways. As the supply of ivory is becoming short, billiard balls of cast steel are being used.
 By making them hollow the weight is made to correspond with that of ivory balls.

—The results of the bye-elections indicate clearly that the Government has lost the confidence of the majority of the people. Every sign points to the defeat of protection and of the Government at the general elections whenever they are held.—Montreal Witness.

—"Vercheres and Quebec West do not enter into account. It is Haldimand that has given the true signal. Let them be war-e."—Free Press. Both Vercheres and Quebec West will enter into the account all right in the division list, but not for the Government. It is agreeable sometimes not to take certain things into account.

—It seems plainly evident that Japan intends to take the leadership in Asiatic affairs, and that Asia is to be awakened from her century-long slumber. A new epoch, whose significance cannot yet be wholly realized, may now be dawning in the east. No single nation will ever become a world ruler again. But the great powers of the world are beginning to recognize the truth that another member has been added to their number.—Boston Globe.

—McMaster University Monthly, Toronto, is a creditable publication. In the April number we observe a well-written sketch by Rev. Ira Smith, of this city, of the life and career of the late Rev. Dr. Cooper, from 1865 to 1879 pastor of the principal Baptist congregation of London. Dr. Cooper was a good pastor, a strong teacher, a scholar.

"He extracted sweet and healing juices from Greek roots and found deep meanings in Hebrew suffixes and affixes." He was a good man.

"Christ's lore, and his apostles twelve He taught, but first he folwede it himselfe."

—I believe within two years from the adoption of the National Policy—not a policy of hostility to the United States, but one of following the system they had adopted to foster their industries—they will give us a free market for coal in the United States. While adopting measures to meet the Government of the United States by a tariff somewhat analogous to their own, and to protect the mining, manufacturing and agricultural interests of Canada against the unfair competition of our neighbors across the line, my honorable friend the Finance Minister also proposes to insert in the bill the statement that when the Americans shall reduce the tariff on these natural products we will reduce ours to the same extent, and that when they wipe out their duties altogether we will admit their products free. At no distant day we shall enjoy the advantages which we possessed under the reciprocity treaty.—Sir Chas.
 Tupper in 1878.

George F. Rock, agent in Buffalo of the National and Canadian Express Company, died on Sunday.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 22.—The entire central business section of Duquesne was destroyed by fire this morning.
 Loss, $100,000. Twenty buildings were destroyed.

Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when by the timely use of Bickel's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the pain can be allayed and the danger avoided? This syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc.

House and Lobby

Lively Times in the Commons Last Night—Mr. Mills on the New Baby—Mr. Casey Sets Out Mr. Davin—More Cheap Wine To Be Imported—Protest from Cattlemen—Speech by the Premier—Gossip in the Corridors.

[Specially Telegraphed by Our Own Representative.]

OTTAWA, April 22.—Hon. David Mills continued the debate on the address this afternoon in a speech couched in a happy vein. He asserted that the excuses for unduly delaying the meeting of Parliament were decidedly thin, and hinted that if the Clerk of the Crown were called to the bar he could prove that the Government had really ordered him to prepare for an immediate election. Reverting to Mr.
 C. H. Tupper's attack on the Liberal leader, Mr. Mills pointed out that it was not the duty of Mr. Laurier to help the Government out of the dilemma in which their management of the Manitoba school case had placed them.
 Sir Charles in Antigonish said the school case was the great issue; here Sir Charles said the question should not be discussed till Manitoba was heard from.
 While Mr. Foster urged Mr. Laurier to pronounce upon it now, Sir Robert Peel, under like circumstances, refused to prescribe till he was called in. Mr.
 Laurier rightly follows his example.
 Mr. Mills, in a facetious strain, which caused sallies of laughter, spoke of the reported squabbles in the Cabinet over the remedial order baby—a foundling that one section of the Cabinet hugged, while the other professed desire to have it cast forth.

Clarke Wallace winced when Mr.
 Mills next pointed out that the Comptroller of Customs was ready to prevent home rule in opposition to the law in Ireland, while now he is said to stand up for home rule, law or no law, in Manitoba. "Perhaps he can explain," it had been said, as showing how united the Cabinet was, that Sir Charles Tupper threatened his colleagues with the wrath of his father if they did not treat him properly, and it is also remarked that the Government leader addressed an interesting letter to him, which brought him to time. What about that letter? Mr. Mills caused much fun by referring to Mr. Foster as objecting to the Scriptural injunction not to put his trust in kings. Mr. Foster had gone to the temple to worship, and it would require something more than a turtle dove to secure an answer to his desires. In conclusion Mr. Mills urged the Ministers to get away from the disastrous era of encouragement of speculative crazes of every kind at the taxpayers' expense, and to avoid the fate of the Argentine Republic. Mr.
 Mills urged that the French Government's claim on Newfoundland should be got rid of before confederation.

Sir James Grant, who has failed to get a renomination for Ottawa and is anxious to get a Senatorship, eulogized the M. P. who had died in the past year, defended the N. P., and wound up with a dissertation on Canada's resources.

Mr. Paterson (Brant) followed, arraiguing the Government for its sacrifice of public interests. The men in power left their offices, waited to prepare their reports, failed to call Parliament together, and got ready for an immediate general election, though now they say they never had any intention to do so. Mr. Paterson said that the Government was a Parliament.
 Even Mr. Foster hastened to leave his old constituency because it was unhealthy and took another. Why that haste? Mr. Foster really was anxious to postpone facing the deficit, and no wonder, when he has been piling up the debt, till it is now $50 for each man, woman and child in the country. In a voice of thunder, Mr. Paterson said he would do it, and he did it. He said that the robbery of the public under the present regime was villainous. He further asserted that the gerrymander was un-British and unworthy of any statesman, while the Dominion Franchise Act was a most willful waste of public money.

Mr. Davin (N. W. T.) delivered one of his characteristic speeches, embracing many serio-comic sayings. The main thread of his discourse was that Mr. Laurier was not serious or definite enough in his discussion of public affairs. He described Mr. Laurier's addresses as "winding phrases of calculating inanity." On the school question Mr. Davin began by promising to give an opinion on the Manitoba school case, and upbraided Mr. Laurier for his attitude. Mr. Davin said that he had an alleged interview with him in the Montreal Witness, but failed to say what his own position was on the matter.

This opened up a chance for the hit of the evening, made by Mr. Casey, the member for West Elgin, who said he understood that Mr. Sifton said the interview was not entirely correct. Mr.
 Davin surely could not trust these reports. Some time ago a speech by Mr.
 Davin at Stratford appeared in the Ottawa Citizen with "cheers," "applause," and interruptions by small boys and clever remarks by Mr. Davin. The only trouble was that Mr. Davin was prevented by Providence from getting to Stratford to deliver it. Mr. Davin, said Mr. Casey, asserts that Mr. Laurier has a course open to him—he must oppose it, or he must see them and "go one better," whatever that means in prairie language. But Mr. Davin has Mr. Casey named, and he can do as he did before, he can speak on one side of the question and vote on the other. This reference to the Northwest M. P.'s well known eccentricity caused roars of laughter.

Mr. Casey strongly condemned the manner in which the farmers of Canada had been injured by the policy of high taxation. He read from the newspaper of the combines to show that the tariff was fixed, not by the Finance Minister, but by the combine managers, who had been rejoiced that so far they had been able to keep the Liberals out and to control tariff making. Mr. Casey's speech was a most effective presentation of the farmers' side of the taxation question. On motion of Mr. McMullen the debate was adjourned.

Mr. Laurier brought under the notice of the Government tonight a serious grievance of Canadian shippers of cattle. For several years the regulation space for cattle on board ocean steamers has been two feet eight inches. This regulation, the cattle men informed Mr.
 Laurier, has been reduced to two feet six inches, which is wholly insufficient.
 Mr. Foster replied that the reduction of space only applied to the upper deck and was the same as on United States vessels.

Your representative interviewed Mr.
 Featherston, M. P. for Peel, who has recently bought many cattle around London. He says that it is most important that there should be two feet eight inches on the upper deck. It is needed, because cattle dealers wish the best cattle to be shipped on it to get superior ventilation.

The House adjourned at 9:40.

It is proposed to give another representative to Alberta, N. W. T., which is now alleged to have 50,000 inhabitants. This may open up the way to another Quebec gerrymander. Minister Outmet is urging it strongly since the defeat in Vercheres.

Today it was divulged that the Government issued a special warrant for $25,000 to be spent on Sir John Thompson's funeral. Details are not given.
 Lord and Lady Aberdeen went to Toronto today. Lady Thompson, who has taken a residence in Toronto, went with them.

Sir Charles Tupper has been sick since Friday. He was not in the House today.

Western grape growers will be interested to know that during this session it is intended to pass a measure to admit cheap Australian wines at a low rate of duty, as is the case with French wines under the new treaty.

In the Commons today Mr. Foster, in reply to Mr. Edgar, said that the British Government had not given its assent to the bringing into force of the Canadian Copyright Act, but had asked that a delegate should be sent to Britain to talk the matter over. To Mr.
 McMullen, the same Minister said the diplomas and medals awarded to Canadian exhibitors at Chicago would be ready for distribution from Washington about June next. In reply to Mr. Casey, Mr. Foster said the final report of the commission on prohibition had been presented to the Governor in Council. It is not yet printed, but will be laid before the House.

There was a laugh on both sides of the House when a message was read from the Governor-General today transmitting a dispatch thanking the House for congratulating him on the birth of a son to the Duke and Duchess of York.
 Mr. McNeill, of Bruce, alone seemed shocked at what he must have regarded as levity bordering on disloyalty.

Mr. McMullen and Sir Richard Cartwright complained strongly today that the Auditor-General's report for 1894-95 was not down yet. It is now nine months and a half since the year closed.
 Mr. Foster promised to see about it soon.

No more funeral spot exists in Ottawa than the Senate chamber. I visited it today, and found it unusually sleepy, despite the fact that the Premier was explaining the address from the throne without divulging the future policy of the Government. The debate poses interest to the public, because no one cares what senators say. They meet and talk a little, adjourn, draw their pay, and that is all.

In the Senate today Premier Bowell said he was opposed to separate schools per se, but in favor of maintaining compacts entered into. He hoped Manitoba would settle the question, but if it came back unsettled the Government would do its duty constitutionally.
 What that duty would be he does not explain. It was told tonight by one high in authority that no matter how Manitoba acts, it is not probable that Dominion legislation on the subject will be passed this session.

Mr. McGee, clerk of the Privy Council, stated today that the original papers connected with the Quebec conference in 1864—the meeting that led to Confederation—and forming the basis of the Canadian constitution, cannot be found. They should be on file with the Secretary of State.

Among the notable arrivals today was D'Alton McCarthy, M.P. He sat on the front bench of the Conservative side for some time and assumed a most jaunty air.

Hon. Clifford Sifton and Hon. Robt.
 Watson, of the Manitoba Government, arrived here today.

Madame Laurier will begin her weekly receptions at the Russell House on Thursday evening next; after that they will be on Saturday evenings.

Sir William C. Van Horne was here today. He went west on a tour of inspection.

THE WHEEL.FRANK LENZ'S FATE.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 22.—Mr. T. B. Lenz was murdered by Kurds in Armenia about 150 miles from Constantinople on the 10th of May last. The letter is dated March 27, and says: "Two days ago an Armenian from Karakalisse, where Mr. Lenz made a short stay, tells me that the people of Cedekin, the last village of the Akash-kird Plain, and just at the mouth of the pass over the mountains, told him that some of their people saw the body of a man on the road between Koor Ali and Dhar, and near Koor Ali. The latter understood that it was the body of the foreigner who was riding the "two-wheeled cart."

This is hearsay evidence, but it harmonizes with reports from other sources.

MR. AND MRS. BOWSER.

He Initiates the Better Side of the House into the Mysteries of Parlor Athletics.

"Mrs. Bowser," said Mr. Bowser after dinner the other evening, "I have been puzzling over your case for some time, and I believe I have at last struck the keynote."

"My case? What do you mean?" she asked.

"Why, your being all run down in flesh, despondent of mind, not able to sleep nights, and so on."

"But I have not lost an ounce of flesh and am not despondent or troubled with insomnia!" she protested in great surprise.

"Mrs. Bowser, the loving eyes of a husband cannot be deceived. The change has come so gradual that you have not felt it, but I have been worried for weeks. I have found the remedy, however, and I have faith that it will build you right up."

"What is your remedy?"

"He went out into the hall and returned with a paper box. On opening the box a toy balloon floated to the ceiling."

"Do not think I need any exercise of the kind," she quietly observed.

"But you certainly do. If you run down hill for another month, you will be booked for the graveyard."

"I cannot believe that chasing around the room after a balloon is going to help anybody's health. Mr. Bowser, I wish you would drop all these queer notions."

"Queer notions!" he shouted as he turned on her. "Because I see you galloping to the grave and want to save you it's a queer notion, is it?"

"It is very good and kind of you, Mr. Bowser, to be so concerned about my health, but I assure you that I am feeling perfectly well and do not need any such exercise."

"That's you to a dot. Always opposed to anything I suggest! Mrs. Bowser, if you want to be a mule and go to the grave, I've nothing more to say! Here are life, health, strength and happiness, but you refuse them. Don't blame me when too late!"

"I shan't, and if I were you I wouldn't go prancing around after that ball and beat yourself up."

"Of course not! Because you can't live a month you don't want me to! Mrs. Bowser, I will now give you a practical illustration of the health-giving qualities of parlor calisthenics."

"I wish you wouldn't," she said as he removed coat, vest and collar and dropped his suspenders off his shoulders.

"But I will! A half an hour of this is better than half a dozen prescriptions."

"Then you mustn't blame me."

"Blame you for what? Blame you because I'm going to wear off this dullness and feel as if I could lift a ton! Now you watch my smoke! There is a touch of neuralgia in my left shoulder. I shoot out my left hand—thus—follow it with my right—left again—expand my lungs—left—right—see the play of the muscles! It's the most beautiful exercise in the world. I already feel as if I had taken a drink of wine."

"All, don't smash anything!"

"Smash nothing! By striking the ball you work every muscle in the back and shoulders. By following it up you bring into play every muscle of—"

In dodging around the center table Mr. Bowser struck a chair and went down and rolled over on his back.

"That is a part of the exercise, I suppose," queried Mrs. Bowser from the corner to which she had retreated.

"It is, or it is not," replied Mr. Bowser as he slowly got up. "That is what is called a stage fall, and the idea is to make the figure more supple. You needn't be surprised if I fall several times like that."

"Would you please stop? See how you are shaking the chandelier and everything else in the room. The people next door will think you are having a war dance in here."

"The people next door can think what they please. I don't propose to go into quick consumption to accommodate the people next door. Watch that ball! See there! And there! And there! Mrs. Bowser, if you want robust health, if you want to feel—"

Mr. Bowser accomplished two things at once—he missed the ball and struck the chandelier and knocked off two globes, and in springing back, he struck the big family rocking chair and went clean over it and lay in a heap on the floor. Mrs. Bowser gathered up the shattered globes, carried the balloon to the window and sent it sailing into the night and then advanced to Mr. Bowser, who lay on his back glaring at the ceiling, and said:

"That was another stage fall, I suppose and your figure certainly appears more supple!"

Mr. Bowser turned over, got up with a painful effort, and after feeling of his neck to see if it was broken, he hoarsely exclaimed:

"If you want to kill me why don't you do it with bullet or poison?"

"Why, Mr. Bowser, but what can you mean?"

"Never you mind! I understand! Should you wish to go home to your mother until your lawyer can arrange matters, let me know in the morning! You may also give me your idea as to alimony! Good night, Mrs. Bowser, good night! I would suggest that you resume your maiden name, and I trust you may have better success in killing your next husband."

INGERSOLL.

"Advertiser" Agent, W. H. Manning. April 22.—Yesterday was what might almost be termed societies' day here, two of them having attended divine service. In the morning the Catholic Order of Foresters assembled at their hall and marched to the Church of the Sacred Heart, where they listened to an appropriate discourse from Rev. Father Connolly. In the afternoon the Sons of England celebrated St. George's Day and the second anniversary of the order here by attending divine service at the Baptist Tabernacle, where the pastor, who is grand chaplain of the order, delivered a very interesting and patriotic sermon. The brethren marched from their hall in a body, headed by the I. O. O. F. Band, quite a number of visiting brethren being in line, in addition to the members of the home lodge.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon at the residence of Mr. Thomas Seldin.

A Lost Gem

She overheard a scrap of conversation which confirmed her secret suspicions in a rather curious way. She wanted to talk to Bertie—who had not yet made his appearance in public after his escape—and Mr. Moncrieff had told her that she would probably find him in the Octagon Room, where he generally pursued his studies under Kingscot's superintendence. Thither Stella betook herself about six o'clock one evening. Two days had elapsed since her arrival at Torrensuir, and she had not yet seen the boy, over whom her heart yearned with a sensation of intolerable grief and pain. She came quietly through the long gallery—so quietly that her footsteps made no sound upon the polished floor—and paused for a moment before she drew the portiere before the entrance to the Octagon Room. She paused simply to collect her thoughts, to renew her courage; but in that pause voices fell upon her ear.

"You'll do nothing of the kind," Ralph Kingscot was saying coolly. "If you say one word about it, I'll tell your father the whole of that little transaction of yours with Vinner, and then—"

"No, oh, no!" Bertie's voice, full of agitation and appeal, was heard to say, "Oh, don't tell him that. He would never forgive me. I will do anything you like—I won't say a word."

And then Stella drew the curtain aside, and found, as she had already divined, that the door was open. Bertie was lying on a sofa, his head half buried in the cushions; Mr. Kingscot was lounging in an arm-chair, with his arms behind his head. He cast a look of positive hatred at Stella as she came in; a look in which malignity and cunning were so blended that she did not like to remember it afterwards, although at the time itself it produced little impression upon her.

"Mrs. Moncrieff!" he exclaimed, starting to his feet, with a sort of disagreeably exaggerated politeness. "We never expected this honor; did we, Bertie? My young pupil and I seem to have had a prescriptive right to this part of the house for so long that we are quite unused to visitors. But of course we must look for changes now."

There was a subtle sting in this remark which was not lost upon Stella's perceptions but she did not choose to attend to Mr. Kingscot's insinuations at that moment. She turned at once towards Bertie, who did not raise his face from the pillow against which it was pressed. She could read shame in the boy's very attitude, and she hastened to lay her hand gently on his head; without heeding Mr. Kingscot's presence.

"Bertie!" she said, softly, "Bertie! have you no word for me?"

She felt her hand taken and carried to the boy's lips, but he did not say a word. Moved by a sudden impatience, she looked round at Mr. Kingscot. "I should like to speak to him alone for a few minutes," she said. "You will excuse me if I ask—"

"Oh, certainly. You have every right to command," said Kingscot, bowing with the ironical politeness which he had already shown to her. "I will leave you with your stepson by all means, Mrs. Moncrieff."

Stella felt that there was something unpleasant—something even vaguely insulting—in his manner, but she did not choose to resent it. She waited, with her hand in Bertie's grasp, until his uncle had retired. Mr. Kingscot went into his own room, and closed the door of communication. "Not till then did Stella feel free to sink down on her knees beside Bertie's sofa and speak to him in soft, caressing tones.

"Dear Bertie, we are all so sorry. And you are sorry, too."

Then the boy's grief broke forth. He burst into a storm of sobbing, overpowering sobs, in which all his attempts at speech were lost. It was some time before the words became articulate.

"I didn't mean it—I never thought you were doing—I shall never be able to look you in the face again!" These were the first words that became audible.

"I know, dear, I understand. Just when you came home—just when you expected a welcome—for me to disgrace you so! And my father—he'll never forgive me!"

"Oh yes he will, Bertie. If you are sure that you have told him everything that he ought to know—and if for the future you do right."

Bertie did not speak. From the tremor that ran through his whole frame, Stella felt that her words had gone home.

"Is there nothing that you have kept from your father, Bertie? Is there not something that he ought to know?"

"You—you heard me speaking—as you saw me!"

"Yes, dear."

"Oh, don't tell, don't say anything to my father," said the boy, raising himself for the first time, and turning an anguished face upon her. "It is not my secret—at least, it is nothing much—"

"Then why are you so much afraid of his knowing?"

"I should like him to know! Oh, I wish I could tell him everything!"

"You mean," said Stella, slowly, "that your uncle, Mr. Kingscot, will not allow you to speak?"

The boy cowered down, with his face in the cushion again. Stella grew a little impatient.

"Why are you afraid of him?" she said.

"Why do you not throw off his bondage, and be perfectly frank and open? You think he will tell your father of things that you want hidden, but why do you hide them? why not make a full confession of everything wrong, and start afresh? Be brave, and tell your father all."

But Bertie only groaned and muttered. "You don't know. You would not say so if you knew everything."

"Then tell me, everything, and let me judge."

"No, no; I can't."

"Then, Bertie, I think I must tell your father what I heard as I came in, and let him question you."

But at this Bertie fell into such a paroxysm of terror, and yet so emphatic in his assertions that there was nothing to tell—nothing to conceal—that Stella was fairly bewildered. And when the boy added the most earnest assurances that he was resolved to give up his bad companions and to lead a steady and honorable course for the future, she felt that she was unable to do more for him, and could only hope that he would keep his word. Her late failure to impress Mr. Moncrieff with doubt of Ralph Kingscot added to her reluctance to accuse that gentleman. She made up her mind, therefore, to wait for a time and see what happened; for Bertie seemed sincerely repentant, and had promised to amend his ways, and if he did as he had promised there would surely be no need to say anything. She wondered afterwards whether a little cowardice had not prompted this decision; but she was not actually conscious of it at the time.

Alan Moncrieff was only too glad to be able to accord a free pardon to his boy, and Stella felt that her intercession had not been unavailing in bringing a reconciliation about at an earlier date than Bertie had expected. The boy was very much humbled by his disgrace; for it could not be denied that every one in the neighborhood was aware of the fact that he had been seen under the influence of drink outside the railway station on the evening of his stepmother's arrival; and it was the publicity of the incident which added poignancy to his father's grief, as well as his own humiliation. It was decided that he should be sent to a tutor's at the New Year; and in the meantime he was to remain under Mr. Kingscot's tuition and guardianship. Stella would have been better satisfied if he had gone at once; but, as she soon found, her husband did not precipitate action, and it was useless to urge him to do what he did not like. It was easy to perceive that although he was always kind and courteous and considerate towards her, it was not she who had influence with him in practical matters, but his first wife's brother, Ralph Kingscot. He was supreme, and Mrs. Moncrieff—although she sat at the head of the table and ordered the dinner and supervised Molly's studies and received visitors—Mrs. Moncrieff was a cipher in the house.

One of Stella's first visitors was Lady Valencia Gildroy. Lady Val lived with a widowed sister at a pretty little house about five miles from Torrensuir, and she had known the Moncrieffs for many years. The sister, Lady Mary Lennox, had laid aside all outward signs of widowhood, received a good deal of company, and was one of the most popular women in the country-side. Lady Val was popular also, but in a different way. She was reputed to be the most skillful and shameless flirt in the county, and Stella liked the reports she heard of her so little that she, half-involuntarily, received Lady Val with much stiffness, and showed by her manner that she had no great desire to be a friend of hers. But Lady Val was undismayed. "I like the little thing, and I'm going to be friends with her," she remarked to her sister, as they drove home together after their first call; "so she needn't put on her company-manners for me. I'll soon get rid of that."

PARMELEE'S PILLS possess the power of acting specifically upon the diseased organs, stimulating the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease. In fact, so great is the power of this medicine to cleanse and purify, that diseases of almost every name and nature are driven from the body. Mr. D. Carswell, of Carswell postoffice, Ont., writes: "I have used Parmelee's Pills, and find them an excellent medicine, and one that will sell well."

The great lung healer is found in the excellent medicine sold as Bickel's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It softens and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

The emigration from Ireland last year is the lowest recorded since the collection of returns commenced in 1851.

In his VEGETABLE PILLS Dr. Parmelee has given to the world the fruits of long scientific research in the whole realm of medical science, combined with new and valuable discoveries never before known to men. For delicate and debilitated constitutions Parmelee's Pills act like charm. Taken in small doses the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the secretions of the body, giving tone and vigor.

SEVERAL CONUNDRUMS

That Puzzle Latin-American Diplomats and United States Citizens as Well.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22.—The diplomatic representatives from Central and South America, and in a certain sense those from the continent of Europe as well, are watching with no little interest the development of the strained relations between Nicaragua and Great Britain, growing out of the expulsion of Pro-Consul Hatch and other English subjects from Bluefields last summer.

The Nicaraguan minister to the United States, Dr. Guzman, frankly says he has no information from his Government as to the course it will pursue in the matter, nor has he any idea what the result will be.

Some of the other diplomats representing Latin-American countries are hoping that Nicaragua will decline to pay the indemnity until forced to do so at the cannon's mouth. A gentleman who has lived in those countries for many years, and who is entirely familiar with the sentiment of the people, in conversation upon the subject today said:

"All the Spanish Americans are curious to know what position the United States will take in this affair."

"Will she permit British ironclads to shell Greytown?"

"Will she allow British marines to take possession of the custom house at Corinto and collect the revenues to an amount equal to the indemnity?"

"These are the questions that fall from the lips of all the Central and South American when Nicaragua's trouble with Great Britain is discussed. No one seems able to answer them, and I doubt if Secretary Gresham himself has fully decided upon his policy. What will be the effect in those countries should the United States remain passive and allow Great Britain to collect the money after her own fashion, provided she does not seize any part of Nicaragua's territory? Such indifference would greatly injure the prestige of the United States in all the countries to the south of us. The Latin-American countries do not desire to drag the United States into a war with Great Britain or any other country unnecessarily. What they do expect, and they will be bitterly disappointed if their expectation is not realized, is that the United States will use its good offices to have the difficulty amicably settled."

A DREADFUL DEED.

Resulting from Despondency Caused by Strong Drink.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 22.—Geo. H. Riecker, aged 22, editor of the Bristol Herald and Bristol correspondent for the New Britain Herald, committed suicide today at the home of his brother-in-law, John Whitmore, in New Britain, by cutting his throat with a knife in the presence of his wife and his sister. The deed was done in a fit of despondency resulting from drink. Riecker's wife seized the knife, but he drew it through her hand, cutting her badly. His sister also seized the knife with a like result.

VICTORIAN SARDON

The Great Dramatist.

The mobile features of this great man are seen above. Sardou is the great wizard of the stage, clothing his characters in flesh and blood, and making them live. He makes, not mummies, but men and women, as witness the realistic portrayals of Bernhardt, — chiefly the master's thought. When body and brain are weary with work, anything that will drive away the blues must possess a great value. It is the verdict of Sardou that "Vin Mariani," the great tonic stimulant, possesses this subtle power. This is what the great man says: "Vin Mariani" is perfect, gives health, drives away the blues, and is of such excellent quality that whoever tastes it might almost desire to be forever debilitated and depressed, thus to have a pretext to drink it. Celebrated men and women, the world over, have spoken similarly of the stimulating, nourishing effects of "Vin Mariani" upon body and brain. A preparation from pure grapes and carefully selected coconuts. "Vin Mariani" is more tonic than quinine, and yet it never constipates. For the convalescent it is invaluable; for all enfeebled people, it has a magic restorative property. Send your name to Lawrence A. Wilson & Co., Montreal, the Canadian Agents, and you will receive an album containing the portraits of a large number of celebrated people, who have used "Vin Mariani" with wonderful results, and who speak highly of it.

OUR MODERN ENEMY

Should be Banished
in Spring Time.Paine's Celery Compound Overcomes the Foe.The Great Spring Medicine Cures After All Other Means Fail.

It Works Like a Charm for All Sufferers.

In every Province of our Dominion there are thousands of men and women who have cause for joy and gladness. They have, by the use of Paine's Celery Compound, banished forever the man's worst enemy—rheumatism and sciatica. Every sufferer should get rid of the torturing agonies of these terrible troubles before the end of the spring season.

Mr. G. J. McDonald, merchant tailor, Cornwall, Ont., who was a martyr to rheumatism for three years, writes as follows: "After having given your Paine's Celery Compound a thorough testing, I am pleased to say a few words in its favor. For three years I suffered terribly from rheumatism. It seemed to me that I was forced to endure all the agonies and pains that mortal could possibly experience from the dreadful disease. While suffering I tried many of the advertised medicines, and also doctors' prescriptions; but never found a cure until I procured a supply of Paine's Celery Compound from McHaffie & Elvidge, druggists, of this town. Paine's Celery Compound worked like a charm—it seemed to strike at the very root of my trouble. I am now cured; every pain is banished, and in every respect I am a new man. I shall always consider it a pleasure and a duty to strongly recommend Paine's Celery Compound to all who are afflicted with rheumatism."

were also withdrawn at $960 and $500 respectively.

—The local Christian Endeavor Union has secured Rev. Capt. C. H. Kimball late of New York, to address their meeting in St. Andrew's Church Thursday evening, May 2. The citizens generally will remember Mr. Kimball well, as the speaker at the last meeting of the Y. M. C. A. in the Opera House.

—John Quinn, of Du Quoin, Ill., has communicated with the police authorities here asking for information regarding an Italian girl named Julietta Ru-mana. The girl is about 20 years of age, and according to Quinn has lived here for eight or ten years. They are cousins.
The police have not found Julietta.

—The King Street Methodist Church is to have a concert and lecture under the auspices of its trust board on Monday evening, April 23. The subject of the lecture was announced from the pulpit on Sunday as "Kodaks of Laziness." The kodak and lecture were gaged for the occasion is the pastor, Rev. Charles Smith. See advertisement later.

—The Barbers' Association met last night. President Wilkins in the chair.
Messrs. Sharkey, Frizzell and Donohoe were appointed representatives to the Labor Day demonstration committee of the Trades and Labor Council. The proposition of the journeymen to form a separate organization from the employers appears to have fallen through, and all are working harmoniously together again.

—A lad named Early Higgins, son of the city mail collector, John Higgins, was painfully injured in a runaway accident on Dundas street yesterday afternoon. The horse, which was attached to a light collecting cart, ran off at English street, going west. Young Higgins did his best to stop the animal, and a block or so further on the boy's father met the runaway while driving east. He turned and followed at breakneck speed. At Maitland street the runaway turned and came sharply, and the horse went completely over, landing on its back. The boy went with the wreckage, and there was an indicinate entanglement of horse, cart and boy.

—Dr. MacArthur's office, where it was found that the principal injuries were about the legs. But so far as the swelling would permit of an examination, no bones were found to have been broken. The horse, which is making quite a record for running off, was uninjured.

—Mr. T. Herbert Taylor, Warehouse road, South London, left yesterday for Detroit.

—The body of the late Zach Jarvis, the ill-fated young lumberman who lost his life in the factory sound district on Sunday, arrived on the accommodation train from east last night. The remains were removed to Stephenson's morgue, and will be taken to the mother's home in Byron today. The funeral takes place this afternoon at Brick Street Cemetery.

—The first club run of the season of the London Bicycle Club last night will not haunt the participants as a thing of unalloyed pleasure. About fifteen wheelmen started, and the route taken was north to the kennels. The roads were in bad shape after yesterday's showers, and to make matters worse it began to rain when the lights of London were yet afar off. At the club house, however, a pleasant evening was spent after the run. Capt. Beltz was in command.

IN THE INTEREST OF BOYS.

The "Advertiser" cheerfully gives place to the following communication "to the Mayor of the City of London:
"Your Worship.—At a joint meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Ministerial Association, the London and Western Ontario Prohibition Union and the Royal Templars, held yesterday, it was decided to send to your Worship a written communication in reference to the unlawful sale of cigarettes and tobacco to minors.
"As secretary of the joint committee, I am therefore directed to express to you our increasing alarm at the growing evils arising from this practice, and also our sympathy with those who have recently endeavored to check the violation of the law in this respect. There are many cases known to us of boys whose health is being undermined from the use of cigarettes and tobacco, and we have reason to believe that their morals are being corrupted. We trust that the necessary steps may be taken by the police authorities for enforcing the law, as we do not think that this should be left to the efforts of private citizens. Your obedient servant
"F. W. DALY.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

When Mr. E. B. Leach, grocer, was turning the corner of Cartwright street and Princess avenue yesterday afternoon, his horse became frightened and steered for a nearby telephone post. The post was a great deal stronger than the rig, but the horse was master of its harness, and dashed homewards to its stable only a block away.
Mr. Leach took an aerial journey after the horse, and came in contact with the sidewalk. He alighted on his shoulder, but was badly shaken up, and was driven to his home. The contents and cover of the wagon were thrown completely over the boulevard.
"It was the narrowest shave I ever saw," said Ald. Parnell, who was on the street corner at the time. If the driver had struck on his head he would certainly have broken his neck.

BAINE DISCHARGED.

The police magistrate had an unusually long docket to dispose of at the Carling street reception-room this morning. J. J. Baine, charged by Engineer John Plaxton and George Dowling, of the C. P. R., with false pretenses in a shoddy goods transaction, was discharged, the assistant crown attorney offering no evidence. Ed. Sheldrick, Fred Maul, Edward Fletcher, George Loughrey and George Walker, five south end boys, were charged with assaulting George Carter, of 83 Waterloo street. The case arose through stone-throwing. Carter was going home on Wednesday night, he said, when he was struck in the head with a rock. Sheldrick and Maul were identified as being among the crowd, and the former was recognized as the offender. Carter could not positively identify the other three and they were discharged. Sheldrick and Maul had figured in the police court before for disorderly conduct, and the magistrate told Sheldrick he could send him to the Central Prison. He was balled to keep the peace, and Chief Williams went security for Maul's future good conduct. Walker's father interrupted the court after Carter had given his evidence, and was threatened with ejection by the police magistrate. James Herron, a cigarmaker, was charged by Georgina Herron, his wife, with being drunk and dangerous. While his little 4-year-old girl clung to his hand, Herron acknowledged being drunk, but denied ever having raised his hand to his wife.
They had come to an understanding, and Herron appeared very penitent, the magistrate discharged him. A number of carters paid their licenses and were discharged.
