

MURRELL'S FATE MAY REST WITH JURY TONIGHT

Crown to Conclude Case By Calling Thirteen Witnesses

NEW CROWN WITNESS SWEARS SIDNEY MURRELL CONFESSED FIRING FIVE SHOTS FROM GUN

Robert E. Campbell and John Little Also State Bandit Admitted Firing.

GOES TO JURY TONIGHT

Evidence Is Expected To Be Completed Late This Afternoon.

CALLED "FOOL" BY BILL.

Witness Relates Conversation of Bandits While Tied to Post.

Sidney Murrell, alleged murderer, who sat smiling and gay in the prisoner's box at the court house this morning, will probably know whether the clock strikes midnight when the jury sitting on his case considers him guilty of shooting and killing Russell Campbell in a lane-way next the Home Bank in Melbourne, April, 1921.

The case for the crown will be closed this afternoon (unless unforeseen developments occur), with the examination of three witnesses, namely the two brothers of Russell Campbell, and Mr. Theaker, manager of the Home Bank, Melbourne.

It is not likely that J. M. Donahue, counsel for Murrell, will call any witnesses in defence.

Few, if any people, in the crowded court room realize that the noon adjournment that the case for the crown was drawing swiftly to a close. At the last trial, when "Slim" Williams, a companion party joined in the murder, 33 witnesses were called to give evidence, the trial lasting four days.

If the crown calls but three more witnesses it will mean a total of 13. Is thirteen Murrell's lucky number? Sid will know tonight.

Not Nervous.

Although officers stated Murrell was nervous as he made his way up the jail stairs to the courtroom, he showed no nervousness in court beyond occasionally wiping the perspiration from his hands. He beamed at his companions and seemed to thoroughly enjoy the evidence. Every once in a while he would whisper comments to Provincial Constable T. Y. Stratton who was guarding him.

Murrell almost laughed out loud when John E. Little one of the witnesses stated he wasn't going to keep on looking at Murrell when a man had a revolver in his hand. There were other bits of evidence that also seemed to tickle Sid's sense of humor.

Seven witnesses gave testimony on behalf of the crown this morning. They were: Roy McCandless, manager of the Home Bank, Melbourne in 1921; John E. Little, mail carrier who watched Murrell and the late Russell Campbell tussle in the lane-way; Mrs. Elizabeth Maylor, who told of the conversation between Murrell and Robert Campbell, when Murrell is alleged to have admitted he shot Russell Campbell; Mervin E. McCallum, tire salesman, who picked up Murrell's gun in front of the Home Bank; Detectives Thomas Nickle and Harry Down told of arresting the Murrell brothers and Williams and also gave evidence regarding Sid's revolver. Robert E. Campbell gave the most damaging evidence against Murrell during the morning session.

First Witness.

Roy E. McCandless was the first witness called. He was manager of the Home Bank in 1921.

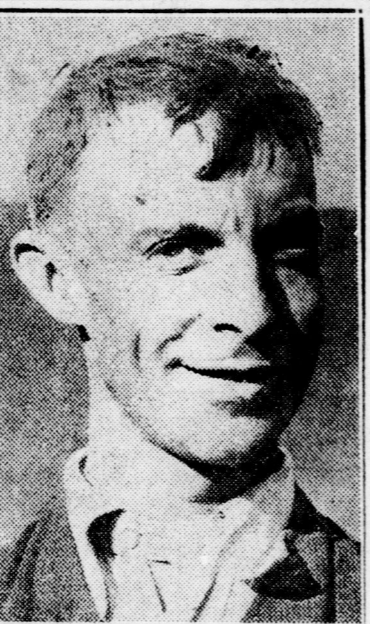

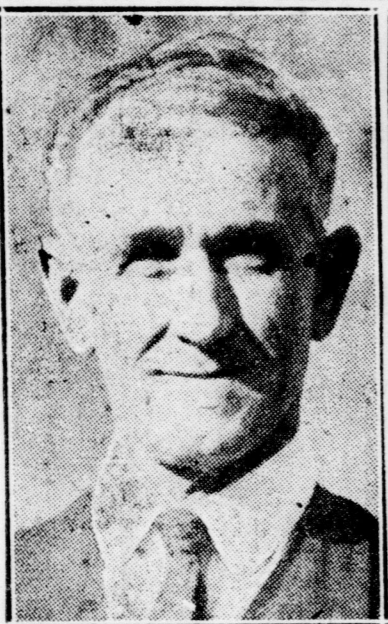

Q—What occurred on that April morning, 1921?

A—Four men came into the bank and I walked to my own office. They came down the public space. The first man had his hand in his pocket and the second man pointed a revolver over his shoulder towards me. They ordered me to throw up my hands.

His Lordship—What did they say?

A—Continue, please.

Q—Where were they fired?

STATE MURRELL ADMITTED SHOOTING. Above are Robert E. Campbell and John Little, both of whom, in giving evidence this morning, swore that Sidney Murrell admitted firing five shots. Miss Elizabeth Maylor, a new witness, also gave similar testimony, declaring that Murrell made this statement while tied to the post at Melbourne.

SUMMARY OF TRIAL

Justice Lennox grants separate trials for Murrell and Williams. Murrell is charged with the murder of Russell Campbell.

Fifty-two men called in choosing the jury. Ten farmers on the jury, one carpenter and one painter.

Trial opened late yesterday with evidence of three crown witnesses—Dr. Dewar, Dr. Freele and H. C. McBride, architect.

Seven witnesses called this morning—R. S. McCandless, John Little, Elizabeth Mahler, Mervin McCallum, Detective Down, Detective Nickle and Robert E. Campbell.

Three more crown witnesses to be heard. Case may go to the jury this evening.

Crown witnesses have sworn that Sidney Murrell did not deny the murder when questioned on the day of the tragedy.

got to my feet and found I was alone.

Q—What do you mean by that?

A—No one was holding me down. I saw Stuart Campbell coming through the manager's office.

Q—Where was Robert Campbell?

A—I'm not sure.

Q—Where did they go?

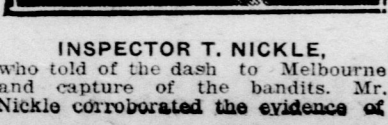

A—They both went through the office, but I don't know how far apart. I went to the side door and glanced at the alleyway. I saw a man lying in the alleyway on his face. I did not know who he was at the time. His head was lying toward the side door. Just over the street were two or three men. They were struggling.

Saw Struggle.

Q—One with the other?

A—It appeared that way. I went back into the office and obtained my revolver from my drawer. I went out into the street. I saw one of the men implicated in the holdup in the center of the road, with villagers about him. I saw another man farther west on the north side of the road. He was running westerly and two or three.

HENRY SAYS NO CHANGE OF ISSUER IS LIKELY

Minister of Highways Has Received No Official Protests.

INCIDENT IS CLOSED

Intimates London Motor Club Not Apt To Have Privilege Restored.

By WILLIAM SHARMAN, Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Hon. G. S. Henry, minister of highways, stated today that he "had heard something about protests in London regarding the appointment of H. J. Childs to the position of issuer of auto licenses."

But, he added, for general information, that he "had heard nothing from any one of any authority that would prompt him to move for a reconsideration of the appointment."

As far as he is concerned at this moment, the incident is closed, and from this it can be gathered that Sir Adam Beck has yet to submit his communication of protest from Col. W. G. Coles, on behalf of the London Command of the G. W. V. A.

Reviewing the situation briefly, Mr. Henry stated that unfortunately the London Motor Club, issuer of licenses, last year, has assumed without any official justification, that the responsibility was permanent, and had undertaken to expend about $1,500 for special office equipment and facilities.

The club had not just cause to jump to the conclusion that there would be no change, he stated.

The new government found, the minister stated, that conditions were such that a change of policy was absolutely imperative. There were far too many issuers of licenses, while many of them did not make prompt returns, and the department was put to much expense and time seeking what was due.

This did not apply, of course, to the London Motor Club, he said.

SLEET MAKES TRAVELLING PRECARIOUS

Many Auto Mishaps Caused by Weather Change in Last Two Days.

DARKNESS DEPRESSING

Rain followed by sleet, which finally transformed itself into snow, has been the order of the weather since the beginning of the week in London.

This morning the mercury dropped to 17 above zero, and by noon it had crept up several degrees. Hovering clouds indicate sleet or rain will be the portion of Londoners by night-fall.

Transportation has not been of the best, owing to the icy condition of the tracks of the London Street Railway, but no tie-ups of a serious nature have occurred. The greatest sufferers from the prevailing brand of weather are automobile owners, and numerous slight accidents testify to the rutty and frequently hazardous condition of the roads. The strain on hydro power continues, and lights were unusually dim last evening and this morning as a result of the increased load.

While the depth of the snow does not constitute a great menace to motor cars, the soggy nature of the ground underneath has been responsible for many an abandoned car and much inconvenience. Heavy cars that get in these drifts sink quickly into the soft under-layer of mud, and shovels must be used to extricate the wheels.

SECONDARY SCHOOL PARLEY TOMORROW

Provincial Supervision of Education To Make Survey of Local Situation.

Dr. F. W. Merchant, provincial supervisor of education, is expected to spend tomorrow in London. He will make a survey of the secondary schools with a view to advising the board of education concerning the matter of greater accommodation in the London collegiates.

During the day a meeting of the special committee appointed to look into the matter of converting the Technical school into a technical collegiate will be held.

It is understood that Dr. Merchant will address this meeting and give his findings on the situation. The meeting is regarded by the local board of education as the best method of settling this vexatious question.

FERGUSON PROMISES FISHERMEN FAIR PLAY

Strong Deputation From Lake Erie Ports Wait on Ontario Premier.

BUSINESS IN DANGER

Standardization of Fishing Regulations Is Urged by Men in Trade.

By WILLIAM SHARMAN, Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Reporter.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—A strong deputation of Lake Erie fishermen were told today by Premier Howard Ferguson that they would receive "fair play" in their competition with the American fishermen.

Headed by A. S. Brown of Kingsville, fishermen from Port Stanley, Port Colborne, Port Burwell, Port Dover, Kingsville and other ports along the north shore of the lake, petitioned the government for a standardized interpretation of the regulations governing the use of nets.

The Lake Erie men fear that their business will be endangered if there is not a standardization of the regulations and an agreement between the American and Canadian authorities as to the interpretation of the word "extension" as it applies to the mesh.

Premier Ferguson was entirely sympathetic in his attitude to the deputation and will arrange a conference between the representatives of the fisheries departments of the States of Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania. Fishermen on both sides of the lake, the manufacturers of twine netting and the Canadian authorities. The premier expects that entire satisfaction will be derived from the conference and that a standardization of the interpretation will follow.

The law calls for a three-inch net but the Canadians fear that the Americans will be able by the latest interpretation to use three-and-one-quarter inch. This would depreciate if not entirely ruin their business, they asserted.

Among the delegates today were: Reeve Dr. Jackson and W. T. Bell of Port Stanley, Frank Reid of Simcoe and a local capacity for the fishermen.

Offer of Extra Votes Proves Big Attraction

Seven Enter Contest Monday—One Candidate Gets Two Million Votes.

CASH PRIZES, TOO

The list of candidates in The Advertiser Cash and Automobile Prize Contest was increased by seven yesterday.

Three of these were attracted by the extra votes offered for every two subscriptions sent in by Feb. 25.

They realized that by jumping in now, they could pile up a considerable vote during the next three weeks, and thus place themselves in a fairly safe position for at least one of the eleven automobiles.

Then again the chance of winning $200 in cash made a strong appeal to many.

One contestant earned over 2,000,000 extra votes over the week-end by securing fourteen yearly subscriptions.

Remember, anyone wishing to subscribe regularly to The Advertiser may do so, and still have the services of the guy carrying for him now. The only difference will be that instead of paying the carrier boy 15c each week the subscriber will be furnished with a book of coupons for the number of weeks for which he has paid.

The carrier boy will collect a coupon each week and will receive his commission direct from The Advertiser or from an agent.

Do not hesitate. Plunge right into the game. Do not think that someone else has a better chance than you have of winning one of the eleven automobiles.

Members of the Legislature Arriving in Toronto For Tomorrow's Ceremony.

AWAIT ANNOUNCEMENT

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Feb. 5.—Members of the Ontario Legislature started to arrive this morning to get their bearings in the parliament buildings before the formal opening tomorrow. The government is very busy with the reception of deputations requesting changes in legislation. The renovation of the chamber has been completed, and the new legislature will go into a much brighter home.

There has been no announcement as to legislation as the government intends that its proposals in this regard should become known through the speech from the throne. Tonight at Ottawa, it is said that W. E. S. Sinclair, Liberal leader, will lay down the course to be pursued by the Liberals in a speech to a party gathering there. It is stated that he will emphasize six planks in a Liberal platform that are to guide the actions of himself as leader and of his party. With this speech tonight and the speech from the throne tomorrow there will be indications of the attitude to be taken by both old parties.

LABOR LEADER REPLIES TO THREATS OF ATTACK

Right Hon. J. H. Thomas Urges Fair Play in Attitude Toward Government.

CALL OUT GUARDS

Sir Frederick Banbury Stated He Was Prepared to Use Soldiers.

RT. HON. J. H. THOMAS, Colonial secretary in the British Labor Government.

As a result of the unexpected defeat of the Conservative party, and the return of the Labor party to parliament as the alternative government, Great Britain is confronted with a momentous constitutional situation presented by the English political history. The circumstances are such as will demand from party leaders the exercise of some of the highest qualities of statesmanship, and in that respect the English society and from the public press, as a reasonable measure of tolerance and fair play.

It may be true that a Labor government in this country would be an innovation, and that consequently there is some apprehension on the matter. But I feel compelled to issue the warning that any conspiracy on the part of our opponents of society, whether prompted by fear or prejudice, to deprive Labor of its rightful place in parliament, as warranted by past constitutional practice and tradition, would be bound to lead to widespread distrust in the efficacy of the ballot box, and would drive our men and women, who have been taught so laboriously to believe in constitutional methods, to resort to other means, and indeed they would be driven into the camp of that otherwise small group of people who never hesitate to preach revolution as the shortest cut to the millennium.

We were asked the other day to explain why so many people got such quick relief through the use of the vegetable syrup prescribed by Dr. Thacher—why it so often gave relief after harsh drugs and medicines had failed.

Why You Feel Badly

Dr. Thacher found that the majority who called on him with various ailments were suffering because one vital organ was out of order. This organ is the liver. It aids digestion, helps prevent constipation and purifies your blood. But when it becomes clogged and sluggish it cannot do these three things. Consequently you often wake up mornings feeling dull and tired and frequently suffer from indigestion, coated tongue, faulty movement of the bowels, colds and a

DIABETIC PATIENTS WARNED AGAINST IMPURE INSULIN

Local Health Officials Declare That Imitations of Drug Are Doing Harm.

USE IS INCREASING

Diabetic patients are warned to avoid imitations and substitutes for insulin in combating their disease, public health officials said this morning. It is learned, they added, that a number of useless, and sometimes, harmless drugs purporting to be as good as insulin have been put on the market. All of these have proven worthless.

Dr. Albert Slack of the Institute of Public Health, stated the consumption of insulin within the past three months has almost doubled so far as indigent patients are concerned. In December last the monthly average was about 14,000 units. Last month's was 25,000 units. This indicates, Dr. Slack said, the widespread use of insulin all over the country.

PRINCIPAL DENIES STAFF FAVORS CLOSING SCHOOL

300 COLLEGIATE STUDENTS HAVE BEEN VACCINATED

Principal Miller Proves That There Are Few Absentees Due to Order.

CLASSES CONTINUE

The reports which have been circulated to the effect that the teaching staff of the central colleges were in favor of closing down that institution until such time as the smallpox epidemic had subsided received an emphatic denial by Principal E. A. Miller this morning.

In an interview with The Advertiser, Mr. Miller stated that the report that over half of the students had absented themselves rather than submit to vaccination is entirely false. In substantiation of this remark, Principal Miller gave some figures on the collegiate attendance which bear him out.

The approximate attendance of the collegiate is normally 800. Of this number, 600 have been vaccinated, while cases of conscientious objection to vaccination are very few.

Today's attendance numbers 564, an increase of 47 over yesterday's list, and more students are returning as the first pain of vaccination passes.

Mr. Miller admits quite frankly that there are exceptional cases of a flat refusal against the vaccine ordinance, but states that these are so few as to be negligible.

After stating that the teachers will be sounded out further on their attitude in the matter, Mr. Miller said: "Any statement to the effect that a refusal to obey the order of the medical health officer was seriously interfering with the collegiate curriculum is not only untrue, but in the case, there is some interference, as could be expected from any epidemic, but the classes will continue, and they will fall on the students who refuse to attend."

First Case Involves the Grain Futures Act—Mr. Justice Malouin Presides.

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Feb. 5.—The winter session of the supreme court of Canada opened this morning, the full bench sitting in scarlet and ermine, according to the custom of opening day.

Mr. Justice Malouin took his seat on the bench after being sworn in by the chief justice in private and hearing his commission read out in court by the registrar.

The first case before the court was the decision of whether or not the grain futures act, passed last year by the Manitoba legislature, is ultra vires of the legislature. The act is attacked by the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan, represented by Eugene Lafleur, K.C., while Manitoba is represented by Hon. A. B. Ryan, and E. L. Newcombe, K.C., represents the Dominion government. Argument in this case will probably take several days.

Prejudice Will Cause 30,000 To Forsake Canada, Claims Official of Doukhobor Sect

Anton Mezakas, Secretary of Saskatchewan "Fellowship" Branch, Now in City.

WILL LEAVE IN SPRING

Religious Intolerance and Persecution Cause of Trouble, He Declares.

What he terms "religious intolerance" will lose to Canada as many as 30,000 good citizens, Anton Mezakas, secretary of the "fellowship" branch of Saskatchewan Doukhobors, who is staying at the Teumseh House, claimed this morning.

With the coming of spring 20,000 Doukhobors will leave Saskatchewan and Manitoba for the United States, taking with them $15,000,000 worth of equipment, household effects and cash. The estimate of the Grain Growers' Associations in the west of the wealth of the Doukhobors is only $8,000,000, but Mr. Mezakas disputes this.

Mr. Mezakas is a comparatively young man of Russian and Polish parentage. He declared "conditions in the west made them intolerable for his sect. Because they were in a hopeless minority they could make no headway against the "judicial" and "persecution" to which his people have been subjected for years.

"The poor opinion of the Doukhobors was originally obtained as a result of the tricks in which Doukhobor men and women walked in parade without clothes," Mr. Mezakas said. "The average orthodox Canadian or American could not understand this, so Doukhobors have been vilified ever since."

"Yet our people make the finest farmers in the world. They are thrifty and industrious. The percentage of crime among them is the lowest of any other element in North America. In Kamtsack, where the largest colony lived for years, there was no crime, no theft, no robbery. Mezakas denies that the Doukhobor women are unhappy. Subjugation of women in Doukhobor circles is no greater than it is in any other religion."

"We have purchased great tracts of land in the United States, where we believe the government will not readily refuse us," Mr. Mezakas concluded. "Of course, if things do not prove as advantageous as they have been reported it is possible a percentage will return to Canada. This is unlikely though."

Sylvan Scenes Now Suggested For City Square

Civic Employees Take Objection to Display of Advertising Signs.

SOMETHING AESTHETIC

"Why make the vacant property on the city hall square even uglier than it is?" is a pertinent question that is being asked by the city employees. They call it a very considerable strain to have to look out at the advertising signs that decorate the back of the lot opposite, and they suggest that a sylvan scene to cheer them up in the cold and heartless winter time would be both appropriate and aesthetic. They claim that the city which boasts of its beauty and proclaims itself all over the Dominion as the Forest City should be above allowing its own property to become such an eyesore.

They add that on a day like this, with a cold wind blowing, the sight of autos, ice cream, furniture and colored writing, as it is, as employees of the city, they think they should be afforded some protection in this way. "Wouldn't it be nice," said one of the city hall prisoners today, "if we had a series of scenes painted on those boards every week? Now, on a day like this, we could have something like a steamship ad of the Southern Pacific. There would be blue seas and palm trees and golden sands, and so on. We could have a series of views of the world's great cities as well, and I would love to see Old London or little old New York out there once in a while."

"There is no need to get into a rut in the way of illustrating that back fence either. In the summer time we could have all this snow and ice and the rest of it, and in the winter time the city could run an educational civic series of movies in the evenings."

There were plenty of suggestions for the use of this vacant lot. But it was a universal feeling that the present arrangement whereby a heterogeneous conglomeration of advertising posters affords the only view from the front windows of the city hall is too materialistic to allow the men and women who wear the uniform of the city to be given the best in that complete spirit of altruism expected of civic employees in 1924.

QUALITY OF FOOD BECOMING BETTER, INSPECTOR SAYS

Last Year Was Most Satisfactory in City's History, States W. E. Wilson.

Each year sees decided changes for the better in the quality of food which is being sold in London, according to W. E. Wilson, local inspector of food and drugs. The most satisfactory year in the history of the city was experienced during 1923, only one prosecution was attempted to sell bad food being recorded.

"The quality of food and fruit being imported to the city from foreign countries is gradually becoming better," Mr. Wilson said. "Nuts, figs, dates and raisins which came into the city last year were of the best quality, whereas several years ago we were continually destroying food of this nature because it had rotted on the long journey from foreign countries."

"Few violations of the food and drug act occurred in London during the past year. The medicine sold by druggists and on the market came up to the requirements of the food and drug act, and we have little or no trouble with quack doctors attempting to sell medicines which contained injurious chemicals," Mr. Wilson said.

Although numerous complaints received in regard to the quality of an older sold in London and district last fall and this winter, Mr. Wilson states he has investigated all cases thoroughly and found that the older is free from impurities and is of the highest quality.

The only seizure we made last year was a quantity of cider which had been placed in unclean barrels," Mr. Wilson asserted.

Violations few many bargains. One hundred per cent bigger business in real estate has been enjoyed by local real estate firms since the beginning of the year, compared with the first month of 1922, members of local concerns stated today.

Demand for small houses has increased substantially. Curiously enough, last year when times were slack, during the winter, the prices of homes were almost at their peak, while today, with business picking up, a slight decrease has been registered.

Just now there are numerous bargains on the market in small houses. The period for bargains, real estate men claim, is during February, and next month they anticipate an even brisker market, which will probably have the effect of raising a small increase.

Bert Weir & Co., real estate agents, declared the possibility of a reduction in prices depended entirely on the trend of things in the United States. As soon as building costs and rents come down, they are a reflection of that condition will be seen here.

"You can't buy any kind of a house in London for less than $2,000," an official said. "The average value of a London home is about $3,500."

FATHER, TEACHER AND BOY DAY IS NOW IN PROGRESS

Y and All Boy Organizations in City Co-operate For Father-and-Son Week.

EDUCATION PAYS

This is "Father, Teacher and Boy Day" in the Father and Son Week now being celebrated in the Y, and among all the boy organizations in the city.

Every boy needs the help of his father in his school work. Every father needs to know the facts regarding the boy's school and his educational ambitions. Every school teacher welcomes the co-operation of fathers in the education of their boys. The father, teacher and boy day can make a distinct contribution and this help boys meet one of the great needs of their lives.

Statistics show that the financial benefits, at least in later life, are with the boy who does not leave school until he is eighteen as compared with the boy who leaves school at fourteen. They show that the boy who left at fourteen, when he is 20, averages $475 a year, and the boy who stayed until he was eighteen averages $750. By the time the two boys have reached 25 years of age the difference in favor of the second boy is even greater.

At 25 the boy with the longest time in school is averaging $1,350 a year, and the boy who finished his schooling at fourteen is averaging only $668. These figures cover a large number of boys in Canada and the States.

Notice, that at 25 years of age the better educated boys are receiving $900 per year more salary, and have already, in seven years, received $2,225 more than the boys who left school at 14 years have received for eleven years' work.

Daniel Webster says: "If we work upon nature, it will perish; if we work upon nurture, time will efface it; if we rear temples, they will crumble into dust, but if we work upon immortal souls, if we imbue them with the love of God, the just fear of God and love of fellow-men, we engrave on those tablets something which brightens all eternity."

after him. I started after him, but before I got to him he was captured. I went up to where he was and recognized him as the second man who came into the office.

Q—The man who entered the bank with a revolver pointing over the first man's shoulder?

A—Yes.

Q—Have you seen either of the men since?

A—Yes. One is in the prisoner's box now.

His Lordship—You didn't actually see the first man captured?

A—No.

Q—You saw the second man captured?

A—Yes, the prisoner in the box.

Q—Do you know by whom he was captured?

A—I am not positive.

Q—Who did you see about the prisoner?

A—Burly Robinson, Stuart Campbell, I wouldn't be sure of the third. There may have been others as well.

Q—When he was captured, what happened?

A—I went back towards my office. Mr. John Little handed me a bag.

Q—Where were you when you got it?

A—In front of the bank.

The Judge—Did you know what it was then?

A—No. I expected it was the money. I took it inside the office, saw it was money, opened the safe, and locked it away.

Money in Teller's Cage.

Q—Where was the money kept in the bank?

A—In the teller's cage in the till.

Q—Where were you when the men came in?

A—At the door of the teller's cage. Miss Campbell was in the cage.

Q—What followed that?

A—I went outside again. The body in the alleyway was covered up. Someone said it was Russell Campbell.

His Lordship—Don't tell us what someone said, unless it was in the presence of the accused. Go on. Had the body been moved?

A—I couldn't say. The prisoners were secured at the cross roads.

Q—How many prisoners were there?

A—Two. I went back to the office and called up the manager of our London, Ont., bank. While I was phoning I saw the third man captured, as I looked through the window.

Q—What time was that?

A—Possibly about 11:30, three-quarters of an hour after the robbery.

Q—Have you anything further to add, Mr. McCandless?

A—I don't think so.

Q—Did you see any examination made of your office after this event?

A—Yes. There was a bullet hole in the glass panel of my office door leading to public space.

Q—Where was it?

A—In the lower part of the panel, very little higher than the panel.

Q—Where did the bullet go?

A—Into the west wall of the building behind the door. It was never recovered.

Q—Anything else?

A—Another bullet cut the upper part of the door. It went into the ceiling.

Q—Did you make an examination of the mark on the door?

A—No. Not particularly. The bullet was recovered from the ceiling. It was in the ceiling for a week. I was there when it was taken down. The bullet was handed to me.

Q—Who handed it to you?

A—The person who took it out.

Q—What became of it?

A—I presented it at the preliminary trial. It was given back to me. I took it home and brought it to the last trial.

Mr. Rigney handed witness an envelope and asked him to examine it. Witness took a bullet from the envelope.

Q—What is it?

A—The bullet taken from the ceiling.

PROOFS to Backhand

Mr. Donahue—How do you identify the bullet as one taken from the ceiling?

A—It was dinged a little.

Q—Is that the only mark?

A—Yes.

Q—If shown any other dinged bullet, you couldn't say?

A—No.

Q—You had a revolver in the bank?

A—Yes.

Q—Did you see the man you mention as wearing a bowler hat later?

A—Not till after he was captured.

Q—Had he any hat then?

A—I don't remember.

Q—Who was it?

A—William Murrell.

Q—Was it only by this you identified him?

A—Yes.

Q—Was there any break in the counter through which a person could pass?

A—No.

Q—Did you say that after you had been dazed you got up and saw Russell and Stuart Campbell coming into the staff enclosure?

A—Yes.

Q—Which was first?

A—I don't know. Stuart spoke to me.

Q—You don't know which came through the doorway first?

A—No.

Q—What did they do?

A—they went to the side door without hesitation. I did not actually see them go through the door.

Mr. Donahue here concluded his cross-examination of Mr. McCandless.

John Little.

John Little, mail carrier, was next to take the stand.

Mr. Rigney—What were you doing in April 1921?

A—Same as now, carrying mail.

Q—What happened that day?

A—I was in the hotel and somebody said the Home Bank was being robbed. I ran up and saw a man at the bank door with a revolver. He ordered me back and I went to the hotel corner.

The three Campbell boys then ran up from their garage to the bank. I followed behind Robert and Stuart went into the bank. Russell went into the alleyway. I stopped at Parr's store. Directly after two men ran out, one after the other. After the first one I peeked around the corner and saw two men in the alley, Russell Campbell was one and Sidney Murrell was the other. They were together. I ducked back and shots were fired.

Q—You didn't go in the alley?

A—No. I just peeked.

Q—Was it after you turned back you heard what?

A—Directly after this a man ran out onto the sidewalk and then went along the sidewalk.

Q—Did you see him?

A—Yes. I saw him running with a gun in his right hand. A revolver.

Q—Where did you first notice a revolver?

A—When I looked in the alley.

Q—Who had the revolver?

A—Sidney Murrell. When I saw the two in the alley and Murrell had the gun there.

Q—Where was his right hand then?

A—I didn't look long enough but it appeared to be down at his side.

Q—What about Russell Campbell?

A—His back was to the street. The two men stood as though they had just met, hands at sides.

Q—How was Murrell carrying the revolver when he came out of the bank?

A—By his side.

Q—What did you do?

A—I stayed there. Robert and Stuart Campbell and Burley Robinson ran after him. I followed and saw them capture him. I picked up the bag and saw some money. I gave the bag to the manager. They then brought the prisoner back and tied him to a post.

Q—Stuart came back and said to Murrell:

Q—You've killed my brother. Murrell said I'm not denying it; I shot five.

Q—Shots correct?

A—Yes, that's all I heard.

Stayed Near Prisoners.

Q—Then what?

A—I stayed around by the hotel near where the prisoners were tied. Mr. Donahue, cross examining:

Q—Just as I arrived, Dr. Freese handed me two revolvers, a Colt .45 and a .38.

Q—You know revolvers?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Where were they delivered to you with reference to the prisoner?

A—About four or five feet south.

Q—Had you seen and identified the prisoner?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—What happened when revolvers were handed to you?

His Lordship—Did you have any conversation before that?

A—Yes, "Harry I was never so glad to see your face." I said: "You are in a bad fix now, Sid."

Q—Was he in a position to see revolvers handed to you?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Had you spoken to any of the others?

A—No.

Q—What happened?

A—Another man tied to a post called me.

Q—What did you do?

A—Nothing, for a short time.

Q—What then?

A—I went in a car after another man.

Q—What did you do with the revolvers?

A—I took them with me. They were in my possession until I turned them over to the court.

Mr. Rigney produced the two revolvers, handing a large one, carefully, to Mr. Down.

Q—Whose revolver is that?

A—Sidney Murrell's.

Q—How do you know?

A—He told me before I locked him up in the London police station. I let each prisoner pick out his gun.

Q—When did he say it was his?

A—In the police station.

Couldn't See Hand.

Q—Did he have anything in his left hand?

A—I couldn't see.

Q—Did you identify him at that moment?

A—I recognized him more when he came out of the lane.

His Lordship—You understand, no matter what you said before, we want what is absolutely true. At the inquest you appear to have said you didn't see a revolver. Did you or did you not see a revolver?

A—Yes, I did.

Elizabeth Maher, a new witness, then took the stand.

Mr. Rigney—Where did you live in April, 1921?

A—Dresden. We were going to Melbourne that day.

Q—Were you there all morning?

A—We got there about 11:30 a.m.

Q—What did you see?

A—They had Williams and Murrell tied to posts.

Q—Did you know either of them?

A—Not at that time. I identify the prisoner in the box as one of them.

Q—What did you hear?

A—I was facing Jack Williams directly. They were handcuffed at that time. Campbell came up and shook his fist in Sid Murrell's face and said, "You killed my brother," Murrell replied, "I'm not denying it."

Q—Anything more?

A—I heard Sidney Murrell ask Williams for cigarettes.

Mr. Donahue did not question the witness.

Mervin E. McCallum.

Mervin E. McCallum was next called. He was in Melbourne in 1921.

Q—What time were you there?

A—I arrived at 9 o'clock that morning. I was in Campbell's garage talking to Russell Campbell when the alarm was given. I followed the Campbells down the street. I saw Sidney Murrell coming out of the alley with a gun in his hand.

Q—Which hand?

A—I don't remember.

Q—What next?

A—I saw either Stuart or Robert Campbell grab him just as he was leaving the alley. Murrell had an overcoat on, and wrenched free. He ran 150 feet and he was grabbed again. He dropped his revolver. I picked it up and gave it to Dr. Freese. It was a large revolver.

Q—Did you examine it to see if it was loaded?

A—No, I didn't.

Q—Can you tell how the revolver fell?

A—He had it when he came out of the alley. It fell in the scuffle.

Mr. Donahue—You were standing by Parr's store for some little time?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you see anyone else come out of the alleyway before the man with the revolver?

A—I don't know that I did.

Q—Did you see anyone else?

A—Yes, Williams.

Q—Did he have a revolver?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Where did you pick up the revolver?

A—It was past the Home Bank.

Q—What did you do with it?

A—I handed it to Dr. Freese shortly after.

Q—How long did you have it?

A—Three or four minutes.

Q—Why did you give it to Dr. Freese?

A—There was no particular reason. Some one asked for the revolver. I believe it was Dr. Freese.

Q—Where was Sidney Murrell at that time?

A—Being brought back to be tied to the post.

The jurymen were granted a recess of 10 minutes at 11 o'clock. Mr. Rigney walked to the prisoner's box and spoke to Murrell.

Breaks Revolver.

Q—Break the revolver and tell me what is there.

A—Five empty shells and a vacant chamber. The same as when I received it.

Q—Remove one of the shells. Does the bullet fit the shell?

A—The bullet has been bruised, but they would fit.

Q—Is there a bullet such as that revolver would fire?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—On the prisoner's arrival at the station what happened?

A—I asked him about the revolver. He claimed it about the revolver. He and I went back to Melbourne.

Q—When you were first at Melbourne did you have any further conversation with the prisoner?

A—No, sir. We drove them all to London in the police car.

Q—Did you hear any conversation between them?

A—No, sir.

Q—You have told us all you can recall?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Did you have any conversation later with the prisoner?

A—Not that I can recall.

Went To Melbourne.

Mr. Donahue, cross examining:

Q—What time did you arrive in Melbourne?

A—We left London at 11:15. We travelled about 70 miles an hour. We got there between 11:30 and 12:00.

Q—You pursued another man?

A—Yes.

Q—What time did you leave Melbourne for London with the prisoners?

A—I don't know the exact time.

Q—Was it dinner time?

A—I didn't have any dinner that day.

Q—Was it between 1 and 2 o'clock or earlier?

A—I can't tell.

Q—When you arrived at Melbourne in what position was the prisoner?

A—Stuart caught him by the coat-tails.

Q—Did you notice anything?

A—Yes, the prisoner had a revolver. He pointed it at Stuart, who had hold of his coat.

Q—Anything further.

A—No, I went after Williams.

Assisted Capture.

Q—You assisted in the capture of Williams and in tying prisoners to the posts. Did you hear any conversation?

A—Yes, Stuart Campbell said to the prisoner: "Did you shoot my brother?" He replied: "I am not denying it; I fired five shots." I also heard Charlie Long ask who did the shooting. The prisoner said: "I guess I did." I fired five shots.

Q—Was that before or after talking to Stuart Campbell?

A—After I think.

Q—Was Long present when Stuart Campbell was talking to him?

A—I don't know.

Q—There is no doubt in your mind about the conversation?

A—None.

Q—Did you see any other conversation?

A—Yes; the prisoners conversed among themselves, after the three were there.

Q—Did you hear?

A—When they got William Murrell and took him to the others, William said to the prisoner: "Did you do the shooting?" The prisoner nodded his head in reply. William said: "You fool!" to Sidney. Then they whispered, William and Sid, and then Sid told Williams to "Keep quiet and say nothing." I heard nothing further.

Q—Did you see Detectives Down and Nickle there?

A—Yes, sir.

Q—Were they there when the conversations took place?

A—Detective Nickle was.

Q—Where were the men?

A—Not tied to the post. Handcuffed.

By Mr. Donahue:

Q—Would it be correct in describing the revolver as a regulation army one?

A—By calibre, yes.

Q—Did you recognize the prisoner at Melbourne?

A—Yes, sir. I had known him from a boy.

Q—What of him before this?

Describes Gun.

SIDNEY MURRELL, Melbourne bank bandit, now facing his second jury on a charge of murder, whose fate may be decided tonight.

WEAPONS TAKEN FROM THE BANDITS. Above is shown the revolvers of the two Melbourne robbers. In the foreground is the .45 calibre revolver which Murrell claimed to be his. At the left is the gun carried by Slim Williams. At the right in the background is the satchel in which the stolen money was placed, while in the foreground a bullet, taken from a partition in the bank may be seen.

Q—What occurred there?

A—Sidney said it was the gun he had at Melbourne. Williams was the first to identify his gun, it being covered with blood. I had the three guns in my hand at once. The men were standing in a line, and each man identified his gun, Murrell being the last one.

His Lordship—That's the gun.

Q—What kind is it?

A—A Colt .45, about the largest size made. Handing the witness an envelope containing a bullet, previously identified by Mr. McCandless, Mr. Rigney asked what size it was, and was informed a .45.

Close To Prisoners.

Q—Where were you standing when you heard the conversation?

A—Close to the prisoners.

Q—Were the men handcuffed when the conversation took place?

A—I don't think so. I have a pretty good memory.

Q—When did you disclose your information?

A—At the last trial.

Q—You kept the information to yourself for three years. Can you recollect any person you told it to?

A—I think I could.

Q—Can you?

A—I'm not going to try.

Q—Did you tell the crown attorney?

A—I told the late Mr. McKillop.

Q—When?

A—After the preliminary trial.

Seeks Connection.

Every effort was made by Crown Prosecutor Rigney this afternoon to establish a connection between Sid Murrell and the .45 calibre Colt revolver which is alleged to have spit leaden death into the body of Russell Campbell.

Mr. Rigney's examination of Robert A. Campbell dealt almost entirely with the revolver. Witness was being examined by J. M. Donahue at noon adjournment.

Murrell was brought into the prisoner's box shortly before 2 o'clock. He smiled confidently at his parents, brothers and sisters as he sat down.

Robert A. Campbell, brother of the murdered man, was the first witness called when court convened this afternoon.

Mr. Rigney—You were in Melbourne when the tragedy occurred?

A—Yes. I was with my brother in the garage. About 11 a.m. I proceeded down the street past the bank, having heard of a robbery, with the intention of shutting off a car the robbers had left running. I noticed two men standing by the bank with revolvers. I turned round and saw Stuart with a little rifle. The men went in the bank. He followed and I went after him. He ran through the bank and I followed, out the side door. I saw Mr. McCandless getting off the floor, but did not stop. I went into the alley and heard some shots being fired. I noticed a man running to the street with a revolver. I jumped on his back, but he got away. I and others chased him and caught him about 120 feet away. He was Sid Murrell. I came back and saw my brother lying on the ground. I went and phoned Dr. Freese. On my return I was informed that my brother was dead.

Q—You saw a man running with firearms, and you identify him as the prisoner?

A—Yes.

Q—Was he out of your sight?

A—No.

Q—Did you pursue him up the sidewalk?

A—Yes.

Q—Where you nearest to him?

A—No; Stuart was.

Q—Where did you jump on his back?

A—Where the alley joins the sidewalk.

Q—Anyone except your brother with you?

A—Little and Burley Robinson.

Q—Who caught him?

A—I will say he had no criminal record. He used to get into mischief, nothing serious.

Q—Did you know his family?

A—Yes, quite well.

Q—How long after you got to Melbourne were the prisoners released?

A—A very short time.

Q—On your arrival you saw a lot of people. Were they excited?

A—Yes.

Q—Did you pass any remarks?

A—Yes.

Q—Of what nature?

His Lordship—I don't think that's necessary. However, if you want it, take it. There is nothing wiser than to let sleeping dogs lie.

Mr. Donahue—That will be all, thank you.

John Mair was called, but on investigation it was found that he had gone to dinner.

Mr. Rigney—Where did you reside in 1921?

A—Melbourne. I was an implement agent.

Q—What about the day of the robbery?

A—I was on my way to work, and I saw a number of people around the bank. I stopped at the hotel. I saw Stuart and Bob Campbell go in the front door of the bank. I saw a man between the bank and hotel. I heard two shots in the bank, and after a short interval maybe four or five more.

Q—Where were you when the first two were fired?

A—At the hotel.

Q—And the second batch?

A—About halfway.

Q—What did you do then?

A—Down took me to the Indian boy ran out. He was chased by Mr. Theaker.

Q—Had you seen Mr. Theaker before this?

A—Yes, he was standing by the corner of Parr's store and taking a glimpse down the alley.

Q—Did you see anyone else?

A—Mr. Marr.

Q—When were they standing there?

A—When Williams ran out.

Q—Anyone else?

A—Burley Robinson, Ruthven McIntyre, Duncan McRae—practically all together on the sidewalk.

Q—What happened then?

A—After Williams ran out, the prisoner followed him. He was tussling with Stuart Campbell. I did not pay much attention as I was after Williams. This was shortly after I heard the shots.

Q—What then?

A—Stuart caught him by the coat-tails.

Q—Did you notice anything?

A—Yes, the prisoner had a revolver. He pointed it at Stuart, who had hold of his coat.

Trains Held In Deep Drifts

Associated Press Despatch. St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 5.—Direct long-distance communication with Green Bay, Wis., last night, disclosed that several passenger trains are stalled there on account of snow, but that all passengers have been removed and are being cared for in Green Bay. The message said: "No help needed, so far as authorities have been able to learn."

A—Two or three; my brother, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Little. We all had a hand in it.

Q—Where?

A—To the west of the car.

Q—Did you go back with the crowd, or for the doctor?

A—How did he carry the gun?

A—I could see it from behind him.

Q—He had his hand raised?

A—Yes.

Q—How was it when he was captured?

A—He still had it in his hand.

Q—What kind of a gun?

A—A large one, .45 calibre.

Couldn't Say.

Q—Where did you see it after?

A—I can't say who had it.

Q—But where was it?

A—In the hands of somebody near the corner.

Q—How did you know it was his?

A—I couldn't say.

Q—Did you see what kind it was when he was running?

A—I think it was a very large one a gun that you would notice by reason of its brightness.

Q—How soon after he was captured did you next see it?

A—Several minutes.

Q—Did you notice it when he was caught?

A—Yes.

Q—Where?

A—On the ground.

Q—Lying on the ground?

A—Yes.

Q—Was it picked up?

A—I didn't wait to see.

Q—What do you say as to this gun?

A—I would conclude it was the same one that Sid Murrell had.

Mr. Donahue—On any previous occasion did you produce any bullets?

A—Yes; one that was taken out of the corner of Parr's store.

Q—Where is it now?

A—I don't know. It was a .45.

His Lordship—Do you know bullets well enough to pick a .45 out of a number?

A—That would be a gunsmith's job. I wouldn't profess to be able to do it.

Q—Do you know if any other bullets were found in Parr's store?

A—I was to do one other.

Q—Were you present when other bullets were removed?

A—No.

Q—You and your brothers left the garage together when the alarm was given?

A—I don't know.

Q—When did you next see Russell after leaving the garage?

A—Not till I saw him dead in the alley.

Q—You did see Stuart?

A—Yes, and I followed him into the bank.

Q—Was he more than two yards ahead of you?

A—I couldn't say.

Q—After you started into the bank, did you continue right through?

A—Yes.

Q—You entered the manager's private office?

A—I went right through.

DOCTOR TESTIFIES MURRELL STATED BULLET HIS

SHOWED SIDNEY MURRELL BULLET REMOVED FROM BODY OF CAMPBELL

Drs. Freele and Dewar Called To Testify as Crown Witnesses.

REPRIMANDS DONAHUE

Judge Declares Remark Discourteous—Architect Explains Plan of Building.

Once more Sidney Murrell sits in the prisoners' box on trial for his life. But this time he sits alone, indicted for the murder of Russell Campbell at Melbourne in April of 1921.

His companion in the bank robbery "Slim" Williams, who granted yesterday afternoon a separate trial by Mr. Justice Lennox. This means that once the fate of Murrell has been settled by the jury, the trial of Williams on a similar charge will begin.

At 6:20 last night, after three crown witnesses in the case of Rex vs. Sidney Murrell had been heard, Mr. Justice Lennox adjourned court until 9 o'clock this morning, ordering the jury locked up in the grand jury room for the night.

After granting the request of J. M. Donahue, counsel for Murrell, that separate trials be given, and after J. T. Rigney, K.C., prosecuting attorney, had addressed the jury, the crown opened its case, calling H. C. McBride to the stand. He was called on to identify and explain certain plans made by him of Melbourne and the Home Bank, where the murder took place.

Dr. R. Dewar, Melbourne physician, was the next witness, and he testified to finding the body of the dead man, and as to the post-mortem examination. He was followed by Dr. L. M. Freele, Glencoe, who took part in the post-mortem examination, and who also assisted in the removal of the bullet from Campbell. Dr. Freele was cross-examined at some length concerning the bullet found and his conversation with Sidney Murrell, while the latter was tied to a post in Melbourne. He declared that Murrell told him the bullet was in Campbell came from his gun.

The case of Clarence Topping, also charged with murder, who shot his sweetheart last November, and which was expected to go to the jury, will probably be laid over until March, owing to the illness of Miss Viola McNaughton, star witness for the crown. Mr. Justice Lennox, in addressing the jury, stated that it was possible they might have to deal with this case but not likely.

Many Interruptions. During the examination of witness by counsel, several interruptions and objections were made, these causing his lordship to remark that he might as well settle down for a year, as he well understood what had made the preceding trial so lengthy.

The question of what was done with the fatal bullet, and just who had it in his possession, consumed most of the examination of Dr. Freele, but no evidence was forthcoming to show where the bullet might be. At one time Justice Lennox declared that remarks made by Mr. Donahue were impertinent and discourteous, casting a reflection on the method of his questioning. This occurred when his lordship was asking Dr. Dewar a question about the wound in Campbell's hip, and to which Mr. Donahue objected as leading.

Williams, as the handcuffs were taken off his wrists and he was led downstairs, broke into a smile, the relief at being granted a separate trial being evident.

At 3:50, Mr. Justice Lennox excused all jurymen except those on the Murrell panel, until 10 o'clock, yesterday morning.

Ten of the twelve jurors selected are farmers, the majority being between the ages of 30 and 40.

The jurymen asked to be excused

THE BANK AT MELBOURNE.

Above is shown a plan of the office of the Home Bank at Melbourne, where the four bandits attempted the robbery which resulted in the death of Russell Campbell. The front door was entered by the bandits and the girl teller escaped through the side door to give the warning of the attack.

while Mr. McBride rubbed out figures on the plan made during the last trial. On resumption of court at 4:10, Mr. Donahue objected to copies of early afternoon newspapers being brought into the courtroom. He picked up a copy of The Advertiser and held it in such a way that the judge could read the head lines.

"Separate trials for Murrell and Williams," read his lordship. "Well, that's not a bad idea," said Mr. Donahue. "I don't think it is," said Mr. Rigney. "I don't think it is," said Mr. Donahue. "I don't think it is," said Mr. Rigney.

Architect Explains Plan. While Mr. McBride was explaining the plan to the jurors, his lordship, smiling at some length, asked the architect to read the plan. The architect, H. C. McBride, read the plan and explained the various parts of the building. He stated that the building was designed by him and that he was the architect of the building.

When the Murrell trial was continued, Mr. Donahue, acting for the prisoners, requested that Murrell's trial be postponed till the spring assizes, stating Murrell was operated on for a hernia four weeks ago, and although the wound had healed he was in a weakened condition.

"I have made careful inquiries within the last few minutes of the jail physician, and he assures me, nor is there a y danger," said Mr. Rigney. "I think the case should be postponed on legal grounds, and see no reason for a humanitarian standpoint."

"The air in the courtroom is as good as the air in the jail," said his lordship. "The anxiety of watching this trial will be no greater than that endured waiting for trial. I think the case should be postponed and a large number of jurors have been summoned at enormous expense, and there has already been knowledge of what capacity Mr. Elliott was acting in."

After granting separate trials to Murrell and Williams, the latter was taken back to his jail cell. Williams was quite pleased and could not hide a broad smile of relief as he was led away.

Asks Elliott's Status. Mr. Donahue interrupted the challenging of the jury by inquiry as to what capacity J. C. Elliott, K.C., was serving in the court, as he noticed him assisting in selecting the jury. Justice Lennox stated he had no knowledge of what capacity Mr. Elliott was acting in.

Mr. Donahue then informed him that Mr. Elliott had been acting crown attorney at the last trial, but had no official connection with the present trial.

Mr. Donahue then asked that his objection be noted. Mr. Rigney declared the objection needed no comment so far as he was concerned.

Counsel for defence also objected to Mitchell Innis not being sworn as a juror. He stated Mr. Innis had his hand on the Bible, ready to be sworn when Mr. Rigney asked him to stand aside. Mr. Donahue maintained Mr. Innis should be on the jury and asked leave to quote the law.

His lordship smilingly nodded assent, stating that he might just as well be here a year.

After 20 minutes Mr. Donahue returned and apologized for the delay, stating he had found a reference declaring that a challenge must be made before a juror had taken hold of the book. He maintained that a juror was being sworn as soon as the book was touched.

His lordship stated that the man had not taken hold of the book. Mr. Donahue submitted he was entitled to the jurymen. Mr. Rigney denied this, stating that the book had not been delivered to the juror. The clerk said that the man had held the book but it had not passed out of his possession.

Justice Lennox ruled that he was properly rejected. It took almost an hour to select the twelve jurors. Fifty-two names were called before the "twelve good men and true" were finally chosen. David Walker, one of the jurors, stated his daughter was dangerously ill and asked if he could be kept posted as to her condition, his lordship replying in the affirmative.

Run after the farmers, one is a painter, and the other a carpenter.

List of Jurors.

Following are the names of the Jurors who hold Murrell's fate in their hands: John Alden, London Township, farmer; John McLaughlin, Metcalf, farmer; Richard Lee, West Nissouri, farmer; Frank Barr, North Dorchester, farmer; Ernest Beattie, North Dorchester, farmer; David Walker, Westminster Town-

I don't recollect who they were. Q—Do you wish to imply that the body had been placed in that position? A—Yes, I think somebody turned it over.

Q—Do you know anything about the removal of the body? A—Dr. Woods, coroner, ordered the body taken to the undertaker's. This was done and I assisted. Q—How was it taken? A—We made a stretcher and took it over. This was about 10 minutes after I arrived.

Prepare For Jury. Q—Tell us what occurred. A—We used the undertaker's parlors and Dr. Woods ordered the body placed so it could be seen by the jury.

Q—Was it clothed? A—Yes. Overalls and sweater. Just ordinary working attire. Q—Were you present when the clothes were removed? A—Yes. They were removed before the coroner's jury remains. Dr. Woods and Mr. Sponenburgh also were present when the clothes were removed.

Q—What did you find? A—I think, Dr. Freele. Q—What did you find? A—A bullet under the right arm-pit, pointing up. The skin was broken about 1-3 of an inch. I took the bullet out and gave it to Dr. Williams saying it would be best to save it.

Removes Bullet. A—Any other examination? A—Yes, a bullet wound on the left hip, starting downward, grazing the skin. It was a surface wound. There was quite a bit of blood on the clothing opposite the wounds.

Q—No doubt a bullet caused the surface wound? A—No. Q—Did you discover anything else? A—There was an old scar on one of his legs.

Finds Old Scar. Q—Any further examination afterward? A—We all examined it and I had it for a while. I later gave it to Dr. Woods.

Q—What did you do with the bullet when you had it? A—I showed it to Sidney Murrell. Q—Who is he? A—The prisoner in the box.

Q—Where was he? A—Tied to a telegraph pole on the town line. Q—What did you say? A—I asked him if it was the bullet from his gun.

Mr. Donahue objected to the question, saying the prisoner might have been under pressure at the time. Q—Where did you go with the bullet from the undertaker's? A—To where the prisoner was tied.

Q—You knew he was tied? A—Yes. Q—Did you know at that time the cause of Russell Campbell's death? A—Yes.

Keeps Bullet. Q—What did you do with the bullet after you got it from Dr. Dewar? A—I kept it in my hand. Q—Any conversation? A—I told Dr. Wood I was going to show the bullet to Murrell and see what he'd say.

Q—This was 15 minutes after you had given up the gun? A—Yes. I stayed round for some time after the detectives came from London.

Q—Was anybody with you? A—Yes. Woods was there. He was at my elbow immediately after I showed the bullet. We had to force our way through a packed crowd.

Q—Did you give Dr. Wood the bullet then? A—No. Q—When did you give it back? A—During the afternoon.

Q—Did you make comparisons? A—Yes. Q—Was the bullet removed before the post-mortem? A—That was the first step in the post-mortem.

Q—When did it take place? A—That part took place before dinner. Q—Why did you give the bullet to Dr. Wood? A—He was the coroner.

Q—Did you make any comment to Dr. Wood? A—I don't remember. I probably said, "Here is the bullet. The bullet was marked."

Q—I'm not asking you that. Did you compare the bullet with any other? A—Not to put them side to side. Q—Do you know where other bullet you compared it with came from? A—I do not know.

Q—Do you remember on previous occasion having told you made a comparison of the bullet with another? A—I don't remember. Q—Do you deny making the statement? A—No.

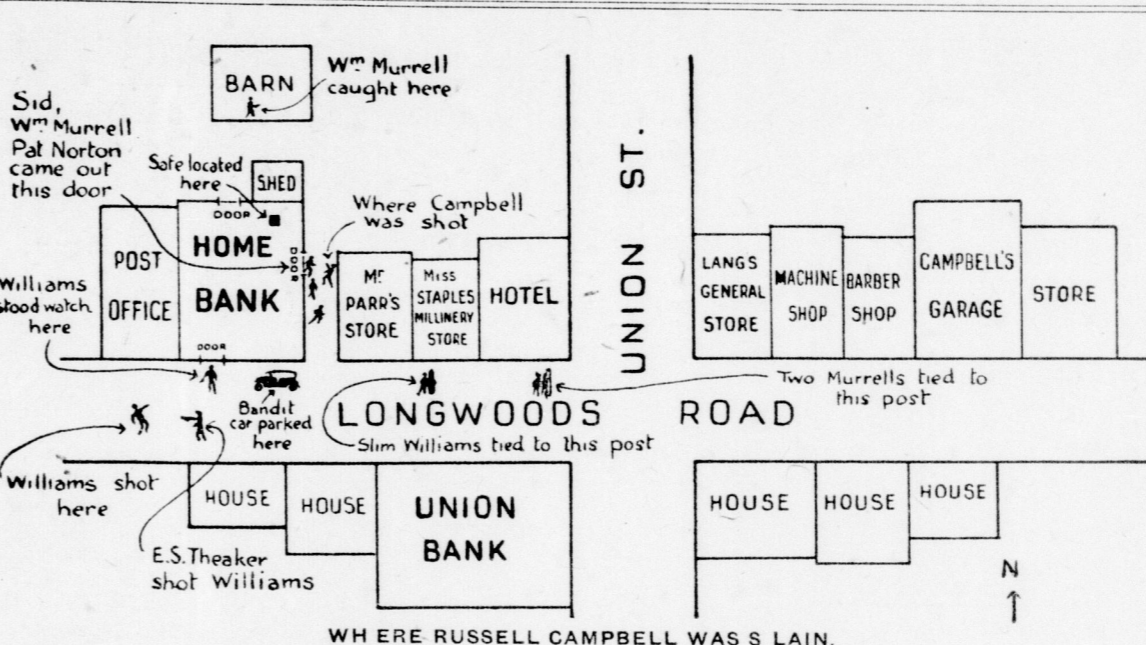

Q—What was the result of the comparison? Was it made after you showed Murrell the bullet? A—After.

Q—Why not to Detective Down? A—I don't know.

His Lordship—I can understand why this case took up so much time at the last trial.

Mr. Donahue—I don't think the testimony is unimportant to the defence. I'll leave the witness, my lord, in your hands.

This closed the afternoon's evidence.

WHERE RUSSELL CAMPBELL WAS SHOT.

Details of the daring attempt to rob the Home Bank at Melbourne in April, 1921, which resulted in the fatal shooting of Russell Campbell can be seen from the above diagram. The bank car was parked just outside the bank door, and while Sid and William Murrell and Pat Norton rushed inside, "Slim" Williams kept guard in the open. After the robbery was thwarted, Sid, Bill and Pat attempted a getaway through the side door leading into an alley. It was here that Campbell was shot. Sid was caught by villagers, and he and his brother were tied to a post, after the latter had been run to earth in the barn at the top of the diagram, which also shows E. S. Theaker shooting Williams, the fourth bandit. Pat Norton managed to escape during the ensuing excitement, and up to the present has managed to evade the law.

FIRE DRIVES FAMILY OUT IN SNOWSTORM

Canadian Press Despatch. Guelph, Feb. 4.—During a blinding snowstorm, which was raging at an early hour this morning, Nicholas O'Donnell and his family residing at 12 Mary street, were driven from their home by a fire originating in the kitchen, and which threatened to destroy the dwelling.

The blaze was discovered by Mr. O'Donnell, who had been awakened by one of his children who had taken ill during the night. Hurriedly arousing the members of his family he got them safely from the building, and then sounded an alarm. The flames were brought under control after a stiff fight.

TWO ITEMS OF CITY BILL OPPOSED BY ALDERMEN

McKay and Greer Go On Record As Opposing Certain Clauses.

ADD TO COMMITTEE

Formation of Industrial Area Body Is Decided—Discuss Relief Problem.

Last night's meeting of the city council passed off quietly as council members, and a large amount of the city's business was transacted in a short time.

The greater part of the evening was spent in dealing with the report from number one committee, several items of which were turned over to committee for further consideration. Very few items were filed, most of the business being either passed upon favorably, or else sent back to be discussed at the next meeting of the council.

A resolution sanctioning the insertion of "Own Your Own Home Week" advertising in the newspapers passed unanimously, as did resolutions permitting the calling for tenders for the city's printing, all tenders submitted to bear the Union Label.

An interesting discussion was raised when the passing of the emergency printing of assessment forms before a proper tender could be arranged, was introduced. Recently Assessment Commissioner Bennett had ordered some printing, taking the lowest price offered, but in so doing the report of the words urgency and emergency had been used. To this, Aldermen Frank McKay and Tove objected strenuously, stating that a situation which arises annually could not in fairness be called a contingency. Alderman Tove said, "Every item that I have been asked to vote on, it seems to me, has been stressed as an emergency. This thing can be overdone!"

Assessor Explains.

A suitable explanation from the assessor was read by City Clerk Baker and the matter was approved.

Section six of the report contained two clauses, the first one asking that the chamber of commerce be requested to name two representatives to the city industrial area committee. This was passed with little dissent, and the added suggestion from Alderman McKay, that the trades and labor council be granted the same right with regard to the industrial area committee.

The other clause, asking that the duties of the industrial area committee be defined as operating with and getting behind the chamber of commerce in securing industries, met with warm disapproval.

This created strong opposition from more than one member of the council, the idea of the chamber of commerce itself as an auxiliary and subservient to the chamber of commerce. After quite a debate on the clause, this portion of the resolution was referred back to committee.

Probably the most important item before the council was the matter of approving Solicitor Meredith's "City of London Bill." Although the bill was eventually approved by the council as a whole, Aldermen Greer and McKay went on record as against two different clauses it contains.

Items Named.

The City of London Bill as sent to the provincial house includes in its items, a request for the issue of $20,000 for Western Fair debentures in connection to improvements and building carried out last year; $200,000 by the city for the construction of storm sewers; a request for permission to extend the frontage tax payment on certain sanitary sewers to the city for another ten years, and the passing of a new bylaw permitting the time limit for payment of London Street Railway paving allowances to be extended to a maximum of ten years.

Other minor matters from number one committee were either filed or referred to estimates as recommended by that committee.

The business in connection with number two committee was quickly disposed of, although containing much that was debatable, the members of the council seemed to "agree to agree" that these matters would be put through quickly.

The first matter that proved a snag to the rapid disposal of number two committee's business was the matter of creating a city garage and storage plant for the city's public works equipment. The need of such a storage plant was pointed out by Engineer Near, who stated that although the city solicitor had ruled it out as illegal, the fact that the asphalt plant was constructed on the same financing, constituted a precedent.

To Seek Plan.

After considerable discussion on this head it was decided that the best plan under the circumstances would be for the mayor and city engineer to go into the matter with the city solicitor and arrive at some feasible means of circumventing the illegal procedure, and if necessary introduce a new bylaw permitting the erection of such a structure.

The request of the Public Utilities Commission for an additional $11,000 for the extension of the trimming of trees as a relief measure, which was employed, brought out a fair amount of discussion. In this debate Alderman Tove took the lead in insisting that whereas the trees had been trimmed almost to death, there was help to a baronetcy and owner of 14,000 acres, is minister of education in Britain's first Labor cabinet. He held an under-secretaryship in the Asquith ministry, but resigned at the outbreak of the war because of his strong pacifist opinions.

Other work such as the clearing of certain main business thoroughfares of ice ridges which made motor traffic dangerous, which could be undertaken.

Both Mayor Wenige and Alderman Douglas protested that this was drawing the line too close, and that both engineers Near and the Buchanan agreed that the tree trimming was the obvious job for the type of unemployed the city had to find work for.

Trees Only Hope.

Engineer Near, in explaining the situation, stated that he had tried to use the men in the construction of the new storm sewers, and that at the time the men were working at present he did not care to introduce green help on the project, and confirmed the mayor's statement that the tree-trimming offered the best possible means of utilizing the labor of the unemployed without offering a form of direct charity.

The last item which was dealt with was the passing of the estimates for the juvenile court for the present year.

The expenditures estimated for this purpose are based on the city paying $5 per week to the county, 25 per cent of the total. The disbursements for this work total $4,000, and are itemized as follows: Salary, chief probation officer, $2,100; clerk of court, $1,040; court expenses, $900; travelling expenses other than on commitments, $260.

WIT AND HUMOR MARK GATHERING

London and District Lawyers Reminisce At Yearly Banquet.

London and Middlesex barristers to the number of forty gathered at the Teumseh House last evening on the occasion of the annual dinner of the Middlesex Bar Association. This yearly function, noted for its production of wit and humor, was attended by two outside guests, Mr. Justice Lennox and T. J. Rigney, K.C., acting in the winter assizes here.

The glories of the past and the triumphs of the future were spoken of by several of the members. Mr. Justice Lennox pictured Canada as a land of untold opportunities for the ambitious and hard-working young solicitor. The unlimited natural resources of the country were greater proportionately than the unlimited opportunity for junior members of the bar, he said. T. J. Rigney, K.C., gave a humorous address on London lawyers and thanked the association for the entertainment afforded himself and Mr. Justice Lennox.

F. P. Betts then told several amusing stories and reminiscences of old times. Many speakers referred with regret to the passing of three former members, P. H. Bartlett, T. H. Purdom, K.C., and W. R. Meredith, J. C. Elliot, K.C., spoke of the dignity of the bench and bar of Canada, and said the confidence Canadians felt in both of these was sufficient testimony to their high merit. John Gunn gave a humorous address, brilliant and sparkling in spots and naive in others. P. M. Marshall Graydon told a number of funny anecdotes and Fred Betts, Jr., on behalf of the young lawyers of the county had received fine consideration from their seniors which was appreciated to the full.

A. G. Chisholm, K.C., recalled the achievement of older members. U. A. Bucher, who has organized the Middlesex Bar Association dinners for fifteen years, followed with a talk on the benefit the society received by them. He expressed the hope that the association's dinners would be interchangeable among the counties.

Exeter, Feb. 4.—While hauling ice on Friday, Richard Davis' team and loaded sleigh went through the thin ice. Mr. Davis jumped to safety, but the team and load sank so that nothing but the heads of the horses were to be seen. The horses were soon got out, and back on the job.

GIGGLES' COMEDY AT GRAND SHOW WITH NOVELTIES

Possesses Lavish Entertaining Qualities, Making It Best Seen Here Yet.

CHORUS IS SPIRITED

Few musical comedies can claim such lavish entertaining qualities as those possessed by "Giggles," one of the best productions of its kind seen at the Grand Opera House this season. Several versatile principals and a chorus, as spirited as it is pretty, make "Giggles" a really delightful show.

Artistic settings, original costumes and satisfactory music gave an air of quality to the show, all too rarely seen in the majority of comedies. Two dozen girls, some of them beauties, and all pleasing to the eye, appear in a variety of stunning garbs, which they make the most of by peppy dancing and singing.

Novelties Abound.

Novelties abound in "Giggles" and all draw merited applause. La Danse Du Mort, featuring La Plenty and My, was one of the finest ever put on in more sophisticated theatrical centres. It was undoubtedly the big attempt of the entire show, and has never been equalled in London from either an artistic or a dancing point of view.

This gripping apache scene opens in the cafe Jambon Et Oeufs of Paris. An apache murders a citizen and escapes to a "den" where the Parisian underworld make merry in traditional style. A flower girl enters, aggravates the apache, who is playing cards, and is thrown with extraordinary velocity to the floor. Then the apache and the girl, who is trained for acrobatic ability, grace and rhythm has never been surpassed here. The girl is truly a splendid dancer of that type and one cannot help but feel that she is a really original body when thrown about with such force. Every minute of this scene is gripping. Finally the girl is killed by her partner. Then a French officer comes in and the murder must be performed. There was an exhibition of real skill which the audience weren't a moment behind in grasping. Friend and Sparkling in the second act are not together original in their comedy, but they get it across perfectly. The one member sings also quite a degree better than the average. They received two or three calls at the afternoon performance. The concluding act, "The Fighting Blood," is one of those brilliant things which is well placed as headliner. The band members open it in rousing fashion, and the solo work showed up excellently. It was a creditable act.

"The Fighting Blood" pictures are missed from the first bill of the week. A Christie Comedy takes this place just now, but the second series of "Blood" commences soon on the second bill of the week. A Pathé film rounds out the bill.

Comedy Parts Well Taken.

The heavy comedy parts were acceptably taken by Harry Evanson and William Davis, two talented comedians, who distill a new brand of humor. Davis is a duplicate of Buster Keaton, and his style is along the same lines. His style does his part with more intelligence, avoiding the slap-stick and substituting the much more entertaining dialogue and comedy.

The best singer in "Giggles" is Olive De Goner, who sang snatches of opera which pleased everyone. The two dancing wonders of the show are a pair of colored boys, St. Clair Deason and Millard McConn. This duo is one of exceptional versatility. Certainly no other dancers here in years have displayed such a big variety of odd, funny and steps. They negotiate the most difficult and embarrassing dances, interjecting a song here and there.

Following so many exclusive and original features, La Danse Du Mort comes as a surprise to the audience. It is a pantomime and the plot is unfolded in an authentic setting representing a typical rendezvous for an apache and other denizens of the Parisian underworld, where a dramatic denouement is enacted and danced. Each musical "cue" typifies the characteristics of the immediate action accompanying it.

Altogether "Giggles" is an eminently satisfying show.

SON OF FORMER 'TISER EDITOR DIES IN BUFFALO

M. R. Clissold Found Dead in Bed—Was Advertising Manager of Courier.

Word reached the city Monday that Malcolm R. Clissold, advertising manager of the Buffalo Courier and Examiner was found dead in bed in the Statler Hotel recently. Mr. Clissold was the elder son of Edward Clissold, who for many years was night editor of The Advertiser. He was well-known in this city.

Malcolm Clissold was born in New York in 1893. When 21 years old he went to Toronto and for a number of years was a reporter on the staff of the Toronto Globe. He was known as the star reporter of his day "Cliss," as he was invariably known among his confidants, came to Buffalo from Toronto. As a newspaperman in Toronto he wrote a book which attacked the Toronto police force, taking a few cracks at Toronto society and club life on the side. The first copies of the novel created an upheaval, and his printing office was broken up.

Later when he left for Buffalo he became famous among newspapermen of that part of the state. He was a member of the Delta Lodge, A. F. and A. M.

WINDSOR CITY PROPERTY GIVEN HIGH ASSESSMENT

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Feb. 4.—Sale of city property on Pelissier street to the Y.M.C.A. as recommended by the finance committee tonight, was sent back to the committee for further information. The committee recommended $10,000 as a fair price for the property, which is assessed at $25,000. This amount was fixed by the assessment department. Alderman Tison explained, in order to make Windsor's property holdings as valuable as possible. This assists in marketing debentures, he said.

LOEW'S PICTURE AND VAUDEVILLE FORM GOOD BILL

"The Call of the Canyon" Is Excellent Film of New Type.

THRILLS ARE MANY

Lois Wilson and Richard Dix are appearing at Lowe's in "The Call of the Canyon," a new picture which is an improvement even on other pictures of the same type in which they have been shown. It has action scenes which include even the effete east, and a west which has advanced to the same period and is not shown as still lingering in the day when cow-punchers spent the day, jolting cigarettes and lolling against the corral railings. An evidence of how truly modern this particular west is may be had in the fact that the cowboys ride to weddings in automobiles, and the art of gossiping was made into as near a little pastime as it is in the east. Gossip has a great deal to do with the plot, and is really one of keen interest. The big thrill of "The Call of the Canyon" comes in the scene where Richard Dix and Noah Beery (in another of his excellent villainous roles) engage in the struggle to the death. A scene altogether different, but every bit as good comes at the conclusion of the picture, when Marjorie Daw and Lois Wilson enact an intensely emotional scene.

The picture is a masterpiece of quite so cleverly worked out, which is quite absurd, or just plainly "flat." Marjorie Daw is an immensely attractive young lady—who isn't seen as often as might be expected. All three vaudeville acts received a splendid reception. Ventrioloquism in the first act is not particularly good, but in the barrel-dancing, or what-ever the proper name is for the feat performed, there was an exhibition of real skill which the audience weren't a moment behind in grasping. Friend and Sparkling in the second act are not together original in their comedy, but they get it across perfectly. The one member sings also quite a degree better than the average. They received two or three calls at the afternoon performance. The concluding act, "The Fighting Blood," is one of those brilliant things which is well placed as headliner. Word reached the city Monday that Malcolm R. Clissold, advertising manager of the Buffalo Courier and Examiner was found dead in bed in the Statler Hotel recently. Mr. Clissold was the elder son of Edward Clissold, who for many years was night editor of The Advertiser. He was well-known in this city.

Malcolm Clissold was born in New York in 1893. When 21 years old he went to Toronto and for a number of years was a reporter on the staff of the Toronto Globe. He was known as the star reporter of his day "Cliss," as he was invariably known among his confidants, came to Buffalo from Toronto. As a newspaperman in Toronto he wrote a book which attacked the Toronto police force, taking a few cracks at Toronto society and club life on the side. The first copies of the novel created an upheaval, and his printing office was broken up.

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Feb. 4.—Sale of city property on Pelissier street to the Y.M.C.A. as recommended by the finance committee tonight, was sent back to the committee for further information. The committee recommended $10,000 as a fair price for the property, which is assessed at $25,000. This amount was fixed by the assessment department. Alderman Tison explained, in order to make Windsor's property holdings as valuable as possible. This assists in marketing debentures, he said.

East London Determined In Stand For Collegiate

Deputation Makes It Plain They Oppose Combining of Two Schools.

PARENTS REPRESENTED

Vocational Committee Hears Speakers Outline Suggestions To Aid Situation.

A deputation appearing before the vocational committee of the Technical School and member of the board of education made it very plain that the residents of London East want a collegiate institute, and are opposed to the plan of combining the London East collegiate and the Technical School into a vocational college.

The deputation consisted of Mrs. Sinclair, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. McNeven, Dr. Gordon and Arthur Mould. The latter speaker made two concrete proposals. First, that if it were necessary to cut expenditure, then cut out all building, making London South do with the old Victoria school and the Princess avenue and put the residue in the Technical School, and put those who could not be accommodated in either place in the Technical School.

He was inclined to believe that the amount required to put the Technical School in shape, including a gymnasium, would be almost as much as would cost to build a collegiate in the east end of the city, and he, along with other speakers, could not see the saving in following the proposed plan of centralizing the two schools at the Technical School.

Dr. Gordon Speaks.

Dr. Gordon explained that the deputation represented the people of East London. Their idea was to get information "We are asking equal education facilities for the east, as compared with the rest of the city."

The speaker thought the east should know about an auditorium, playground and gymnasium. He referred to the report that last year the Technical School was crowded. If so, this afternoon in the effort to draw an international convention for the control of traffic in arms.

Sees No Justice.

Mrs. McNeven could see no justice in the situation. She referred to the story of overcrowding of the Technical School and could not understand how it could take in the London East same educational facilities as any other part.

Mrs. Sinclair wanted to know how long the Technical School would be used as an east end collegiate. Arthur Mould gave credit to Chairman Campbell for the case he made out for the change. "Suppose you make the Technical School into a vocational school, what is the cost?" he asked. "It will be necessary to put on more recreation, auditorium and playgrounds. The east end ratepayers are citizens of the whole city, and do not wish to rush matters. The date for an east end school is a good one."

Mr. Mould referred to a site in the east. The ideal location is on Rectory street. There is property on the border of the Fair Grounds, and there is no reason why the Fair Grounds should not be used as a playground for the new east end school. The school should be east end technical and industrial education, and the matter of car fares must be considered. If you take all that into account, you will see that it is very important to have a collegiate in the east.

Makes Appeal.

Mr. Mould appealed to the vocational board to keep the Technical School from being interfered with. A committee of parents, teachers and collegiate would not be a success.

Mrs. Sinclair urged that there would be a lack of school spirit by not having an east end school. Mrs. Wilson claimed that there should not be over 25 pupils in a room. Education is costing enough, and the wisest course would be to make the best of it.

Trustee Grant pointed out that there was no intention to compromise London East in order to build a palliative school in London South. There is financial stress, and we believe this is a time to take stock before we start on new capital expenditures. No. 3 committee went into the matter and believed that the most economical thing to do was to use the Technical School as it is, with the addition of some standard classrooms. Dr. Grant said the east was entitled to the best of school facilities. He believed that the Technical School would be reorganized and the school for collegiate work would be as good as in any other school. The matter of auditoriums was also referred to, and the date for an east end school was a matter of cost. Dr. Grant answered the question of how long the school would be used by saying, "As long as it is required." As soon as there was no need, it would be erected in the east. The scheme proposed would give London one vocational, collegiate, a permanent organization, approved by the best authorities.

Cost Not Known.

The cost of remodeling the Technical School was not known yet. Dr. Grant asked the east deputation where the money was to come from for a new school in the east. The question of car fares was also referred to, and the point made that children always had to go some distance.

Dr. Gordon, for the east, claimed that there would be $40 a year for car fares, as well as help pay for the new school in the south of London. He was also anxious to know if the south was to have an auditorium in the east end. It has been common talk in the east that the London south district would come to the C. N. R. tracks, to which Chairman Campbell assented. If part of the central area goes to the east end, why not put a school in the east end, where there is plenty of room and where there is the population to warrant it?

Chairman Campbell was sure there would be no question of building. If the council would grant the money the school would be built in the east. "I can't feel but what the plan we have will solve the question."

Dr. Gordon had it figured out that

Fanatics Killed In Police Clash

Associated Press Despatch. Manila, Feb. 4.—The captain of a small vessel said, on reaching here from Surigao Province, that 800 fanatics had been wounded or killed in clashes with the Philippine constabulary there in the last month.

Official sources discredited the statement as gross exaggeration, declaring the total casualties had not exceeded 200.

Council's Attitude.

Trustee Mess brought up the attitude of the council. Arthur Mould referred to the gymnasium that would have to be put at the Technical School, and claimed the increased cost would go far toward building a new school.

"I could agree with a proposition to build no colleges, but if London East boys and girls have to walk to school, why not make the London South walk to school? If the fair thing were done, keep on using the Victoria school and the Princess avenue and put the residue in the Technical School."

The matter of a new school in the south was taken up by Chairman Campbell. The understanding was that there were to be three schools, central, east and south. It is the intention to build in the south, perhaps not this year, but as soon as money can be found.

Mrs. Rose said that a year ago the Union Mothers' Club appealed for a school in London West, and other parts stepped aside, as the need was urgent.

LEAGUE DELIBERATES.

Associated Press Despatch. Geneva, Feb. 4.—The League of Nations commission for the reduction of armaments began its deliberations this afternoon in the effort to draw an international convention for the control of traffic in arms.

BECK IS CONFIDENT SUCCESS AWAITS RAILWAY TO PORT

Members of Railway Commission Inspect Property Monday.

CHANGES ARRANGED

Following an inspection of the lines yesterday morning in company with Mayor Wenige and other members of the London and Port Stanley Railway Commission, Sir Adam Beck, M. L. A., voiced to The Advertiser his supreme confidence in the ultimate success of the city's road to the lakeside.

While the final annual financial statement for 1923 to be submitted at the next regular session of the commission may show a slight deficit when compared, Sir Adam states that certain further economic measures already discussed by the commissioners in a general way, will be introduced to take care of this amount.

In brief, Sir Adam points out that while a small deficit may be shown, there is always two ways of viewing the question, aside from periods of depression, erratic weather conditions and other factors which handicapped all roads during 1923 as well as the L. and P. S.

Journey to Port.

The commissioners journeyed to Port Stanley by special car, conducting an inspection of an appreciable portion of the roadbed, rolling stock, depots, etc. They report entire satisfaction. Certain proposed alterations were considered and approved, affecting the road at Union and Port Stanley. It is recommended that increased facilities for both passengers and freight be provided at Union. Sir Adam reports that certain buildings, owned by the road can be used there to great advantage.

In future Stop 12 will be known to the railway authorities as Union.

WINDSOR COUNCIL DECLARED ELECTED

County Judge Dismisses Appeal Seeking Invalidation of Election.

Special to The Advertiser.
Windsor, Feb. 4.—Refusing the application of E. B. Winter, unsuccessful mayoralty candidate to invalidate the municipal election, County Judge J. J. Coughlin today declared the mayor and aldermen duly elected.

Mayor Frank Mitchell's majority has been increased by 40 votes.

"I find no evidence that either candidate was a party to the non-compliance with the law by deputy returning officers," Judge Coughlin said.

May Appeal Costs.

That the city may appeal against the decision of County Judge Coughlin, in the application of E. B. Winter to upset the municipal election, was indicated tonight at the council meeting, when Alderman C. R. Tison contended that it was unfair to make the city a party and relieve Winter from paying the costs. "I don't think the court has jurisdiction to make such a finding," commented City Solicitor F. D. Davis. The question was referred to the finance committee and the city solicitor.

calms have been recommended for Port Stanley. An empty structure across from the depot, and next the river is not at all remunerative to the city. This will be removed forthwith to the opposite corner upon the understanding that it is to be rented for a store.

The roadbed of the L. and P. S. is now in better shape than ever, the chairman reports. "It is in first-class shape," Sir Adam states, "and is well ballasted. About $12,000 was spent for this purpose during the last year."

Touching upon the financial situation of the road, Sir Adam explained that if the city during the next ten years meets its obligations as it has done during the past ten years, it will have paid off $100,000 on the capital debt. He is confident that it will be done. The city is retiring debentures on short periods, he stated, while in the meanwhile the line is being kept in A 1 condition.

The next meeting of the chapter will be held at the home of the regent, Mrs. James Hendry, Vauxhall street, and in future the meetings will be held at the home of the members. The Sunshine Club of the chapter is planning a spring tea, to be held at the home of Mrs. Kirkpatrick, on Oxford street, on Thursday afternoon. And on Friday night of this week the Sunshine Club is entertaining at a court whist at the De Luxe Cafe, Mrs. Easton acting as convener. Mrs. W. E. Manness was in the chair at last night's meeting.

Trinity Chapter is also planning a past patrons and matrons night, to be held on Monday night, March 17, on the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the chapter. HELPING THE SICK THROUGH THE WINTER. Winter weather is serious weather, especially to the aged, ailing or the unfit. An undertoned system needs more than the ordinary stimulation to make life bearable when the thermometer hovers around zero.

Roman Meal is especially valuable for invalids, little children, and old people, as an item of diet for cold winter months. It is acid blood that causes that "all in" feeling. Acid blood is caused by acid foods. Acid foods are white flour, refined cereals, fats, meats, and sweets.

Roman Meal is the only alkaline cereal—400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali"—alkaline enough to correct the acids of acid foods and keep the blood alkaline in cold weather.

Roman Meal may be made into porridge, pancakes, puddings and cakes. Roman Meal is rich in bone and tooth forming elements which are lacking in white bread and refined cereals. Since a child is only "As good as its bones," Roman Meal becomes the best of all foods for growing children. A child fed Roman Meal throughout its growing period will be larger, better developed and have superior teeth; whether the Roman Meal is eaten as porridge or as a baked product.

Kept in any form, Roman Meal prevents indigestion, positively relieves constipation. At grocers—Adv.

Would Help Little Patients Toward Health by Vocational Occupation.

MUST PAY SALARY

Friends Have Made Donations To Pay For Materials Necessary in Work.

That the children of the War Memorial Children's Hospital should have the services of a vocational aide to assist the doctors and nurses in bringing about a speedier cure, is the opinion of the members of the Occupational Therapy Society. The hospital trust has granted permission for an aide to be placed in the hospital, but has voted no money for the work.

Col. W. M. Gartshore and a number of friends, by generous contribution, has started a fund for the purchase of materials to be used by the aide in her work with the children. There only remains the salary of the aide to be paid, and the Occupational Therapy Society meets tonight to decide whether its members shall undertake the salary, and so make possible vocational therapy work among the children.

The character of the aide's work among the children would have to develop as she carries it on in the hospital. Just as the occupation of weaving baskets has been found helpful in bringing about a rapid cure in the case of adult patients, so similar work, but work such as the children could undertake, would be used to promote the speedier healing of their little bodies. With their minds fixed on the little tasks given them to do, they would forget about themselves and let nature aid medicine take their course in making them better. The size of the child would be a factor in indicating what type of work should be taught by the aide.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

The Tender-Hearted Mother Who Doesn't Enforce Discipline—Shall the Unwanted Wife Leave Her Husband?—Athletic "Eighteen" Who Doesn't Attract Boys.

Dear Miss Dix—My wife is so tender-hearted that she does not demand obedience from our children except when she has her temper aroused, and then she corrects them severely. The result is that they do not pay any attention to anything she says. She invariably objects to my correcting them. This is all done before the children.

Answer: Parents who do not teach their children obedience have failed in their first duty as parents, and have done their children a deadly wrong. Obedience is respect for law and order. It is the very foundation of character and of civilization.

And it is the undisciplined, uncontrolled children who have never been taught obedience who furnish the hoodlum class and who fill our police courts and homes for girls who go astray.

You sometimes hear foolish people say that you will break a child's spirit by forcing it to obey you. What nonsense! You might as well say that you would sap the courage of an army by forcing obedience from soldiers, or that you would weaken the morale of a nation by making it respect the laws. Obedience is the fire that tempers the metal of the sword and gives it strength.

You see many mothers who do not make their children obey them because they love them too much to do anything but indulge them. You see other mothers who are too weak and lazy to fight a strong, self-willed, determined child and conquer it. But the result is always disastrous for the child. It wrecks it, body and soul.

The other day a doctor told me about a case of this kind. He was called in to see a desperately sick boy, and he prescribed certain remedies. The boy refused to submit to the treatment. The doctor told the mother that she must make him take the medicine. The mother replied: "I cannot do anything with him. He will not obey me." "Then, madam," replied the doctor, "I cannot save him. Because you have not taught your child to obey you, he will die." And he did.

Many other mothers have seen their children worse than dead because they did not teach them obedience; boys who would not give up bad company, who would not work; girls who went their headstrong way to perdition, and who would not listen to their mother's warnings because they had never been taught to obey.

Of course, there is no more reason why a mother should teach her children to obey than why the father should, except that the mother is with the children more than the father is, and that a man can practically do nothing with his children against his wife. To raise children properly a man and woman should stand together, and present a united front. There should never be any appeal from Caesar.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a married woman, have only been married a few months; but every time my husband and I have an argument he tells me that I should get out and go. I am getting sick and tired of listening to him telling me to go. What would you do if you were in my place?

Answer: Why, no man could tell me to go but once, S. M. K. I would be or my own before he had a chance to say it the second time. I would have too much pride and self-respect to be an unwanted wife. Why do you want to stick to a man who treats you without any tenderness or consideration, and who offers you the deadliest insult that a husband can offer a wife?

Of course, the chances are that your husband doesn't mean what he says; that he doesn't expect you to go; and that he only tells you to go because he knows that you haven't got spunk enough to leave. It would probably upset his plans very much to lose a good cook and patcher and mender to whom he does not have to pay wages and who watches every penny of his money as only a wife will. Also it would jar his back teeth loose to be called upon to pay alimony, which you can certainly collect if he drives you from home.

The men who talk roughly to their wives are invariably bullies, and a bully is a coward whose bluff you can call. Your life will certainly be a miserable one with this man, who has so little conception of how a husband should treat a wife, and who will lose nothing if you take him at his word and leave. It is better far to be "on your own" than to be with a man who mistreats you.

WEDDINGS

POST-KERR. A quiet but dignified wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Kerr, 373 Ontario street, on Feb. 4, when their youngest daughter Lena was united in marriage to Oswald William Post, youngest son of William Post of Lambton, Rev. W. R. McIntosh officiating.

The bride, who was unattended, was given away by her father, and looked demurely down in a sand-colored tulle gown, with a white beaded sash and a corsage bouquet of Ophelia roses and sweet peas. Mr. and Mrs. Post led the way to the drawing-room, which was decorated in pink and white, where the wedding breakfast was served by the bride's sister, Mrs. Roy E. Hicks, of Sarnia. Only the immediate relatives were present.

The happy couple left on the evening train for their future home in Sarnia amid showers of confetti, the bride travelling in a seal coat, with subtle trimmings, and pretty tulle hat.

Indigestion, Gas on Stomach, Pains After Meals

Many people suffer terribly from gas and pains in the stomach after every meal, and are kept in constant misery. For the past 44 years Burdock Blood Bitters has been bringing hope and joy to thousands suffering from various forms of stomach trouble, helping them to eat three square meals a day—helping them to eat anything they wish without having to suffer for it after.

Mr. Fred Nielson, Moose Jaw, Sask., writes: "All last summer I was troubled with stomach trouble, indigestion, and also gas on the stomach. I could not eat anything except some light food, and even then I would be bothered with pains after each meal. I could not work a whole day without being done out. I had tried everything—doctors, medicines and pills—until I read about Burdock Blood Bitters. I have taken four bottles, and it has nearly, if not completely, restored me to health again."

DENNY BROOKS A STORY OF COURAGE

By ELENORE MEHERIN.

The towers were up on either side of the gorge and from these towers they would soon begin pouring the concrete through great chutes down into the pit, where the workmen waiters would put it in place. Soon the dam would begin to grow. She wrote back: "And does it mean, Dendide, that you'll be there nearly a year and a half from the time they start dumping that old concrete? You love this job more than you do me. What good can you do sticking up there? Oh, please come down."

"I've told Peter, you know, but I haven't told mother yet because she's fussy and would want to have it announced and have teas and all that sort of thing, and she's not ready for this, but I was looking at betrothal cards today and saw some nifty ones. 'I'm sending you a sample. Tell me if you like the engraving. Of course, Denny knew out any for a while, but I might as well begin planning.'"

Denny shrank from that card with a throbbing recoil. Announcing it! Good Lord, yes, yes, yes, in his mind warred: "It's done now, you're in it, it's done." He wouldn't listen, but conjured Peter's face—golden face, golden hair, and smoothed his harassed thought with the image. More often he threw himself with a glad passion into the work. Two years of it before him—long years—demanding years. The shriek of the derricks, the mighty hiss of the steam shovels and ring of picks made music in his mind.

And Denny knew best scores of the men were his devoted friends. There were half a dozen sons of the farmers who had come up to work on the dam. Two of them, Bill Cross and young Martin Loop, admired him openly. They were fine sturdy fellows, accepting it as an honor when he sent them with messages to Katy. "She liked them, especially young Martin Loop. He had boyish, kind blue eyes and curly blonde hair. When she offered him a big slice of cake or tied up in wax paper some of the fudge, he would grin broadly, be blushed and grinned like a schoolboy. "This is pretty nice in you, Miss Brooks."

Katy laughed at his shyness. "Come again, Martin. I'll have doughnuts here tomorrow." He would stand at the door and tell her what a prince that brother of hers was, and she ought to be proud of him. "And shouldn't he be proud of me and I so smart, Martin?" Then the color would flame to the rim of his yellow hair and Katy would wrinkle up her nose and laugh. One night he came with a big newspaper filled with wild flowers.

"She liked them, especially young Martin Loop. Here we are for a blazin' good time! The meadow's chock full of them. You can smell 'em fifty yards off." He started blushing Katy as she set the brilliant things in a battered old soup tureen. Then he said: "Say, ain't you tricky with them hands? Guess you love flowers all right. It's mighty beautiful over to the other side of the ridges. Wish I could get you over there to see that meadow. You'd like it!" "Next year, Martin, I'll see it. Next year we'll take a walk over there." He blushed, turned his cap nervously in his hands. "Oh, it's true, Martin. I'm to walk by next year. You needn't blush for me."

Five Tiny Baby Mice Prove a Big Care To Danny and Nanny

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Such a day as Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse spent in the great manbird! My, my, my, such a day! Not once did they dare so much as poke a whisker outside the tiny coop in which was their nest. All day they heard the voices of men as they worked to repair that aeroplane. All day they heard all sorts of noises as the men worked. Continually they were startled by thumps and other sounds which they could not understand at all. Sometimes it sounded as if that great man-bird was being taken to pieces. Danny remembered how he had seen the home of Trader the Wood Rat torn to pieces that very morning, and at times he was sure that this was what was happening to the great manbird. But he said nothing about it to Nanny.

It would have been bad enough had they had only themselves to think about. But there were five tiny, helpless babies. There were five tiny, helpless babies. That was the secret in the great manbird. That was why Nanny wouldn't because she couldn't leave. This is why Danny and Nanny were more fearful than they would have been had they been alone.

But despite their worries and fear, they were very, very happy. Yes, indeed, they were very, very happy. Those five tiny babies were the most wonderful babies ever born into the Great World. At least that is what Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse thought. No one could make them believe anything else. So they listened to the strange noises and the voices of the men and were fearful, but at the same time they never for an instant forgot their happiness.

Such a day as that was! It seemed to them that it would never end. There was no chance to get even a nap. Danny would no sooner doze off than there would come a thump that would make him jump almost out of his skin. Nanny didn't try to sleep. She had the care of those five wonderful babies to keep her awake. And back, repeating: "Say, Miss Brooks, I'm awful glad to hear that. Awful glad!"

It touched Katy to the heart. Denny twitted her about young Loop's devotion. "Hope you won't rob the cradle, Katy-kid. The lad's only twenty-one."

"Can I help my charming ways, Denny darling? But it's you he loves—the big, bustling fellow. That Bill Cross, too, is always telling me how fine you are."

This attitude of the men gave him a boundless satisfaction. He wrote to Joan about it, feeling she would understand. They, too, were a part of this job. He liked to feel that they loved the work as he did. "One morning as he passed the towers where the men were now pouring the concrete, a laborer stopped him, saying: "This here cable don't seem strong enough."

The cable was suspended like a tight-rope between the two towers. The heavy steel chutes descending obliquely from the towers into the pit were supported by steel arms hung from this cable.

Denny examined the cable. "It's strong enough to support twice the present weight."

"Guess you're right, but it looks pretty weak to me," the old fellow insisted. Three days later the frightful thing happened. (Copyright, 1923, The Call Publishing Company.)

Your clogged nostrils open right up and you can breathe freely. Hawking and snuffing stop. Don't stay stuffed up and miserable. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist. Apply a little in the nostrils and get instant relief. Millions endorse this remedy known for more than fifty years.—Advt.

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

It is but a step from those immediate results of constipation—headache, heaviness, loss of appetite—to serious disease. Such minor ailments are a warning that poisons from food waste are flooding your body. Keep clean internally.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Looking in the Future.

Prof. E. J. Zavitz, speaking in London on Monday, told of Ontario's timber wealth, estimated at $400,000,000.

It is generally thought that timber wealth is a diminishing quantity, and that in the course of a few years those figures will read $200,000,000 and so on down.

According to the provincial forester there is no necessity for such a move, because we can grow trees, hundreds of thousands and millions of them.

Outside of a few interested and visionary people, we have not grasped the meaning of that yet.

Many people laughed loud and long when in about 1900 the policy of planting trees on sandy spots that were not good for agricultural production was started. They do not laugh today at the thousands of trees now fifteen or twenty feet in height.

"Growing a tree crop" is a better way of stating the case than clinging to the somewhat meaningless word of "reforestation." That phrase brings the work within reach of our grasp, and makes it highly practicable rather than a matter of theory.

Mr. Zavitz and those who work with him are building for the future; it is true that we may not get much of the benefit in our day, but our children will have reason to look back and thank the men who had in their life's work sense enough and vision enough to look to the future.

Salaries and Councillors.

The town councillors of Goderich have taken advantage of the clause in the Municipal Act that permits them to vote salaries to themselves.

For regular sessions they will get $3, and for committee meetings $2, making in all about $120 a year.

There is no doubt that the services of an alderman are worth that much, but there is always the objection that in voting salaries to themselves aldermen are doing something of which the ratepayers were not informed at the time of the election.

The East End Collegiate.

The plan to convert the London Technical School into a vocational collegiate to accommodate the pupils from London East, now housed at the old Princess Avenue School, rests to some extent upon the outcome of the visit of Dr. Merchant to the city.

In all the discussions that have taken place so far there has been an evident lack of information on three important points:

(1) Whether the cost of remodeling the Technical School, making the necessary additions, and the addition of a gymnasium which the provincial authorities may insist upon, would amount to almost as much as the cost of a new school conveniently situated in the east end.

(2) Whether the grants for a vocational collegiate would be as great as for a straight technical school.

(3) Whether the growth of the Technical School, based upon past records, will not require all the space in the school without seeking to house the collegiate pupils from the east.

The Technical School is not placed on a good site. It is crowded in between buildings on both sides and at the rear. This is a condition that can hardly be remedied unless by the very expensive means of tearing down existing properties, which could hardly be done on account of the cost.

The original plan was to have three collegiates, following the destruction of the old Central building. There was to be one in the south and one in the east, but so far the only one built has been the Central Collegiate. The London East people take the ground that they want a collegiate in their own district, one that will be a distinct London East establishment, in which that section can find scope for the full exercise of local pride in such an institution. They cannot keep down the feeling that the idea of placing the East End Collegiate in the Technical building, while it may be a more temporary economy, is not a fair solution of their problem, while the central section has its collegiate and London South will have its.

It is quite an easy matter to catch the view of the people of the east, and on point of argument they have not been silenced.

What is needed more than anything else is definite figures. The approximate cost of an eight-room collegiate in the east is known; the cost of making the changes at the Technical School is not known. Intelligent action is not possible until these figures are available.

Pins, Candles and String.

The power goes off for a few minutes or an hour, and industry stops, at least a great deal of it. Newspaper plants, the last word in organized equipment, are dead; in the factories the automatics, the lathes, presses, drills, milling machines all stop.

Power went off in the Biltmore Hotel at New York, and the flickering light of the candle did duty. If it blew out another match would start it again.

The operation of the light was within the control of the man who had another match in his pocket.

These great new inventions which do so well for us are so much out of the reach of our individual powers that they become our masters as well as our servants.

Yet we never get very far away from fundamentals. Years after gas and coal oil have ceased to be used for lighting, the candlemaker will be plying his trade.

Today machines turn out pins at a marvelous rate, and we are as dependent on them as in the days when it took "ten men to make a pin," and the pin is the same article now as then.

Soaps are made more attractive today by the use of new ingredients, but they are no greater in their cleansing powers than the olive oils with which the Greeks treated their bodies.

String is as great a necessity today as it ever was. We make it faster than in the day when David as a shepherd lad used it to make a sling with which to hurl pebbles, but we have not grown away from its use.

Today we turn the soil while power tractors chug away and pull the plow, the disc or the harrows. When Russia went revolutionary there was no power machinery; there were few implements. It was the crude hoe, rake and spade, fashioned as best the muzhik could do, that finally started production on a scale that put the northern country on the basis where it could feed itself.

Of course we are going ahead; we are going on to greater accomplishment and more complicated development, but with it all, how close we stay in many lines to the man who, when things go wrong, reaches over and lights the candle as his forefathers did.

There May Be Trouble.

The Peterboro Examiner has let itself in for a heap of trouble by announcing the demise of the Guelph Mercury, a prosperous daily paper still doing business in the snug little capital of Wellington County.

The Guelph Herald went out about a month ago, and the Peterboro paper has made a mistake in reading the casualty list.

The proprietor and guiding genius of the Mercury, J. I. McIntosh, is a man of peaceful ways and even temper.

For all that we can picture him coming in hot haste from his sanctum, making his way past the stone buildings of Guelph, and asking at the Canadian National station when the first train leaves for Peterboro.

What may happen in the Left Lock City on the arrival of the publisher of the Guelph Mercury remains for history to record.

A Matter of Principle.

Bishop William T. Manning of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York faced the situation of defining his stand on the question of modern doctrines that are creeping into the churches in his diocese.

There was not a hard word from beginning to end, neither was there any uncertainty.

Faced with the fact that his message might interfere with the finances of the diocese, and also affect the $15,000,000 cathedral building, he said:

"A thousand cathedrals are of less importance than one foundation of the Christian faith. Better that the cathedral should never be built than that a bishop of this church should fail to bear his witness for the full truth of Jesus Christ."

And yet there are those who tell us that the church of today is not producing men of mountain-peak faith, of strong courage and fearless expression.

Note and Comment.

The Toronto Star, looking over the 1924 Ontario auto license plates, shivers and makes mention of the new yellow peril.

Lunch counters are operating on the National Railways colonist cars between Toronto and Winnipeg. The same idea might well be applied to other trains. There are many travelers who would appreciate a cup of coffee and a sandwich without having to buy a meal at dining car prices.

Rarebits By Rex

THE BATTLE RAGES.

With rattle of battle still fresh in our minds, Am the boys hardly back from the trenches, Another great fight has emerged over night To shatter our nerves and our sense.

I refer to the stir that's been caused by the cur Who brought a new game from Hong Kong, Whose name I fear, has commenced over here A war between Bridge and Mah-Jong.

When a Greek meets a Greek he is gentle and meek Compared to that renegade Gump, Whose permanent song is "Bring on the Mah-Jong."

And the good who shrieks "One in no time," For the bridge thinks Jong is a game for a mule, And those whom the Jong craze has hit Declare that the midge who inclines toward Bridge Is not at all mentally fit.

Oh, the roar of the war as the casualties soar! Each one says the other's a "blight," And so on, to wit—but the strange Is that both of the factions are right.

A New York doctor says turtle heads make a good nerve tonic. But the person who would try them doesn't need a nerve tonic.

A Chicago man has gone hunting wild elephants to avoid matrimony. It must be fierce to be such a coward.

The only way we are inclined to applaud most vaudeville performers is by clapping them in jail.

ALL-CANADIANS.

The suggestion that an all-Canadian female football team be organized meets with our approval. Right away, turning our attention to the back-division, we have Gertie Goop, the shimmy queen, who would be exceptionally good at shaking off tacklers. Then, for the half there is Bessie Blah of the chorus, who would startle the spectators with her kicking.

For quarterback we nominate Pansy Gurb, who has achieved a reputation as the greatest defensive back in the country by wearing pins in her shirtwaist between the shoulder-blades. Outside wing positions could be filled by any flapper known to be very fast. Finally we select Miss Eustachia Gargle for left half. Her passing is unequalled. 679 bridge games she is known to have bid only three times.

In conclusion, we appoint Miss Von Snipper captain of the team. If she treats them the way she does her fiancé she should be able to get everything possible out of them.

HIS SUIT.

She looks with favor on my suit, I felt at first defeat was mine, But fortune entered to refute My growing fears; I saw a sign In her mild eyes that brought relief; She smiled and told me there was hope; Her words wiped out all trace of grief.

I was afraid she might say "Nope," My visit bore some splendid fruit, No more will I appear distressed; She looked with favor on my suit— One dollar, ten; dry cleaned and pressed!

Paris has decreed that milady's skirts shall be short, very short—to match milord's bank roll.

The Guide Post By Henry van Dyke

RELIGION NOT AN OPIATE.

Pure religion and undefiled before our God and Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep oneself unspotted from the world.—St. James i, 27.

There are two kinds of religion in the world—the religion that is heavy with self and the religion that is strong with love.

There are some people who mix opium with their Christianity. It soothes and calms them; it gives them pleasant dreams and emotions; it lifts them above the world in joyous reveries.

They would fain prolong them and dwell in them, and enjoy an unearned felicity. Their favorite hymn is: "My willing soul would stay In such a frame as this, And sit and sing herself away To everlasting bliss."

But no one ever got to everlasting bliss by that method. The world has small need of a religion that consists solely or chiefly of emotions and raptures.

But the religion that follows Jesus Christ, alike when he goes up into the high mountain to pray and when he comes down into the dark valley to work; the religion that listens to him, alike when he tells us of the peace and joy of the Father's house and when he calls us to feed his lambs; the religion that is willing to suffer as well as to enjoy, to labor as well as to triumph; the religion that has a soul a worse than Goshawk's heart to love man, and a hand to help in every good cause—is pure and undefiled.

A Coin of 1813.

Interesting Find Made Near Tecumseh Monument Adds More Interest to "Copper" Stories.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir.—After reading the two "copper" stories in the "Tiser I would like to send one in also.

While rambling through a piece of bush on the banks of the Thames River about five miles east of the Tecumseh monument on the Longwoods road, I found at the root of a large maple tree a copper coin with the date 1813, and the words "Trade and Navigation" around the rim, and a full-rigged sailing vessel on one side. On the other side it is stamped "Half Penny Token" in the center, with the words "Pure Copper" and "Proferable to Paper" around the rim.

The piece is about the size of a large Canadian copper. It also has a mark on the rim as if it had been hit a glancing blow by a bullet.

London Street Car Man Thinks Needy Individual Should Have Been Given Motor License Issuing.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir.—I am very glad to see your paper drawing attention to the great injustice done to the returned soldiers in not giving them the job of issuing the motor licenses. If a change was to be made then the returned men should have been looked after. But it makes little difference, as to the victors belongs the spoils, and the returned man can starve for the next four years.

But there is another deserving case that we wish to speak about, and it is the case that your rival, the Free Press, made such a fuss about last year, just before the election, and that was the blind motor man of the street railway. They were shedding great tears over the pitiful case. Mr. Beck should have given him the job. The blind motor man could have done the job very well with a secretary, one of his own family, $4,000 and upwards, amounting in all in four years to $16,000, would make the poor blind motor man independent. Instead, a retired merchant, well off, no need to work with a pull, gets a helping out of the pork barrel.

But the workingman, who had the promised land in sight, must now wander through the desert for four or long years, waiting for some manna to fall to help him out, for they will not get much help otherwise. The street railwaymen feel indignant and insulted that their fellow employees was thus given the go-by. Why hasn't the Free Press spoken, that valiant defender of the workingman's right when an election is near, shedding glowing tears like the moving picture actresses do in the films. The actresses are well paid for it.

We street railwaymen know that it is of no use to kick with the powers that be. Fourteen hundred dollars would keep the wolf from the blind motorman's door for the rest of his life. We hope that you will bring this to the attention of the public in the great injustice done in this new appointment. Yours, A NICKLE AT A TIME.

Robbing the World.

Westminster Resident Claims That Strong Drink Has Taken Genius at An Early Age.

Editor of The Advertiser: Sir.—There is a saying of those who want help and by others also, that "the world owes every man a living." The world has the right to expect every man, as Nelson said, "to do his duty."

Take the case of a farmer of our western plains. By his untiring diligence he raises, say, 1500 bushels of wheat. He thus provides, not only for himself and family, but has supplied bread food for 200 others.

We have this charge to make against the excessive use of strong drink, that in shortening its victim's life it makes him a criminal. Years of time that should have been used for the world's welfare are lost to it, as well as to himself.

In a book given as a prize by the trustees of a school section, I have the name of a young man, a man known as one of the brightest in the neighborhood, though but a Scotch shoemaker, who simply killed himself with drink while still young.

That man's life was the young widow and little children a serious struggle for years.

Take the case of Robbie Burns, the marvellous Scottish bard, whose poems still set Scotchmen the world over wild with enthusiasm, and in honor of whose birth they roared and

To His People At Home

Dear Bob,—How we do get into the habit of putting all our faith into a mere name. I see in tonight's paper that "Only nine ministers are former laborers." The reference is to the present Labor cabinet formed by Ramsay MacDonald in England. The article goes on to say that the original occupations of various members of this cabinet include a mill worker, a peer, a miner, a civil servant, a weaver, a railwayman, and so on.

It seems to me we have drugged our minds with names and titles as with occupations. Who is going to say that any person working in a mill is a laborer and that a clerk in any office is not? Clothes and collars have nothing to do with it, and neither have chairs or office stools or mine seams. It is labor that writes novels and it is labor that keeps a set of books. It is labor in the executive end of all business that makes the wheels go round, just as it is labor that digs sewers and carries coal and shovels snow. As I see it, the difference between various kinds of labor lies in its value and what it is worth to society.

Surely no one is more of a manual laborer than an artist or a musician or a pickpocket for that matter. Because they aid the dexterity of their hands by the ability of their brains does not make them any the less laborers. Then, as you know very well, Bob, your wife is a particularly hard-worked laborer. A fellow doesn't realize how much his wife is a manual laborer until he stays home with a cold and sees how the house is the master of his better half. I am speaking here of the best kind of wives who are not too old-fashioned to wash dishes and dust furniture. Laborers, forsooth. Just imagine anyone having the nerve to describe MacDonald's cabinet as containing only nine laborers! If I were any of the other chaps listed as peers, civil servants, and so on, I'd go after that writer and I'd labor him.

HOPE FOR DECISIVE BATTLE NOT REALIZED

Mexican Rebels Retreat Before Federal Troops After Slight Skirmish.

Associated Press Despatch. Mexico City, Feb. 4.—President Obregon's hope for a decisive battle with the rebels on the shores of the Yotiria Lagoon, near Valle de Santiago, was not realized, for the revolutionists retreated after an unimportant skirmish with the federal vanguard early Sunday morning. The forces of the rebel general, Manuel M. Dieguez, dispersed in numerous bands over a vast area, probably with the purpose of counteracting the combined movement against him by the federal generals, Gonzalo Escobar and Juan Jose Rios.

Special to The Advertiser. Preston, Feb. 4.—Galt Terriers, with a following of several hundred and fresh from their win over Stratford Friday, invaded Preston tonight with victory on their countenance which was changed to sadness by the locals, who displayed their best form of win, 7-3.

"Buck" Bowman, veteran of the home team, scored two goals and was in the play at all times. "Eagle-eye" Schmaltz lived up to his reputation as one of the best net guardians in the Big Four. The three goals scored by the visitors were of the impossible variety, and would have beaten the best of them. The terrible Terriers were out to win and gave of their best, but the locals displayed they were a much better team in every department and at times played the visitors off their feet.

Skelly started the scoring for the locals in the first period, and Arnott added another shortly afterwards. The third goal of the night went to Woods of Galt, while Clark for Preston added another before the period ended.

Both teams scored twice in the second, and Arnott for Galt, and Bowman and Roth for Preston. The locals held the visitors scoreless in the final stanza, while Arnott and Bowman both tallied for Preston.

Line drawing made from birdseye view of The B. Greening Wire Company, Limited—'The Plant that is never idle' owing to diversity of its products and extensive markets.

"The Plant that is never Idle"

Every home and industry in Canada is a market for Greening Products. The Company makes: Metal Screens for: Machinery Guards, Window Guards, Roof Guards, etc.

THE extraordinary diversity of the products manufactured by The B. Greening Wire Company, Limited, is the basis for the statement that "the Plant is never idle". There is always some phase of Domestic, Agricultural or Industrial activity calling for the use of wire, wire screens, perforated metal, chain, or the hundred and one variations of these basic products which are in constant demand.

As a result, when business may be slack in one line or one market, it is usually active in other lines and in other markets. "The Plant is never idle," and, as a result, has been able to achieve and to maintain a record for earnings which has few equals in the annals of Canadian Industry. What these earnings have been, and are at present, may be gauged from the following facts.

Earnings—26% average for 10 years. For ten years past, after paying all operating, maintenance and present funded debt interest charges, the Company's earnings have averaged annually 26% on the total amount of the present Preference Share Issue.

The Company has no Bank indebtedness. Total assets are certified to be equal to more than $200 for each $100 Preference Share issued. Net current assets are certified to be more than $100 for every Preference Share.

It is our opinion, based on exhaustive enquiries and reports, that this 7% Preference Share Issue is a conservative and sound investment, yielding a substantial annual income. Application is to be made to list the Shares on the Toronto Stock Exchange. We offer these Shares for immediate subscription at:—

Price: 95 to yield about 7.40% Dividends free from Normal Federal Income Tax.

DOMINION PLANS FURTHER HELP TO IMMIGRANTS

Hon. J. A. Robb Announces New Schemes To Encourage British Settlers.

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Feb. 4.—Policies which have just been adopted for the selection, transportation and colonization of British immigrants were outlined this evening by Hon. James A. Robb, minister of immigration and colonization. They include an agreement for co-operation with the British government in contributing to the transportation expenses of selected immigrants by means of a loan in the case of adults and of an outright grant in the case of children.

Announcement is also made that a land-settlement branch has been organized as the colonization arm of the department of immigration and colonization to insure that new settlers will be directed to lands where they can have the best opportunities of success and to safeguard them from exploitation in the purchase price of farms which they buy.

Household Workers. Similar assistance in the form of a loan is provided for household workers with the additional provision that at the end of twelve months from date of arrival in Canada, a refund of 45 shall be made to each female household worker who has remained for that period on a farm in Canada, and who has meantime satisfactorily paid the installments on her loan.

THREE HUNDRED LIVELY NEWSBOYS ENJOY GREAT PARTY FILLED WITH MERRIMENT

Young Guests of Advertiser Have Riotous Time At Tecumseh House.

MAYOR SELLS "EXTRAS"

Special Edition Delights Young Salesmen, Who Eat, Shout and Sing.

THEY SURPRISED THE BOYS LAST NIGHT.

Three hundred "Newsies" gathered in the dining-room of the Tecumseh House last night after their hard day's work, and as happy guests of The Advertiser, sang "Hall, Hall, the Gang's All Here," with an outburst of exuberant song that shut out the passing train and absolutely drowned the hotel piano. What a jolly family party it was too. Three hundred of the brightest, healthiest, jiveliest little chaps from London crowded round the long tables, resplendent in their vivid paper caps and nodding their heads like a multitude of mandarins in eager chatter.

They gathered in the big room at 7:30 sharp, and anyone who thinks boys can't be punctual should see what a newsboy can do when the dinner bell rings. They had just got nicely going, and the tassels of the paper caps were just beginning to mingle with the potatoes and the corn, when with a rush that equalled anything the boys had ever done in getting the "Easer" on the street, in came four of the handsomest "newsies" that ever swung a paper-bag and shouted "Wuxtra" on the corner of Dundas and Richmond.

Enter Mayor. The first figure appeared in the open door, brandishing a handful of the green special editions. He had a gray cap at just the right angle, slanted becomingly over the right eye, and as he dashed down the aisles between the tables "the boys" were able to see their distinguished chief magistrate in a new role. Mr. Wenize told the boys later in the evening that it was forty years since he had sold papers on the street, but the friendly atmosphere of last night's dinner must have awakened all the memories, for he got rid of those extras like a champion.

Then came H. L. Garner, the circulation manager of The Advertiser, a gorgeous figure in white flannel pants, crimson sweater and school cap. He is styled circulation manager officially, but he knows a thing or two about showing a little speed and style in selling "Easers." He had a race with the mayor, and would have beaten him in getting rid of his papers if he had not run into a waiter with a tray of plates. They dodged each other round a pillar for a time trying to get past, and when he did at last manage it the mayor was about a lap ahead.

"Stan" Young, foreman of the mailing room, also with his cap at just the right angle, a humdrum of a "newsie," Henry Storie, who was carrying the cold wind, turned up his collar and his hat brim down and could have sold papers in any city on earth because he looked so terribly in earnest, and W. H. "Billy" Clark, whose disguise though nifty, couldn't fool the boys, all followed and made the running pretty warm for the first chaps.

Wuxtras! Wuxtras! They sold a special extra made up specially for the occasion. Andy Gump and Barney Google appeared on the front page side by side with graphic stories of the hidden pasts of certain members of The Advertiser staff. The boys evidently enjoyed it and some of them spent the rest of the evening grinning over the stories of their superior officers.

If anyone in the Tecumseh House last night was in doubt as to the musical ability of London's newsboys he is now convinced and everyone who was in the dining-room still has a ringing in his ears. The "Five Hussars," a musical turn from Loe's Theatre, where they are playing this week, supplied just the right touch to a boys' dinner and with their saxophones gave the willing voices a chance to sing. There is an old saying that an empty drum makes the most noise, but it seems to be just the reverse with boys. They were all full after supper, and they told the whole world they could sing. When the penetration of singing did not suit them they whistled and that as one adult, thinking no doubt of the hammer and gong stunts at the Western Fair, said "rang the bell."

What a "chummy" air the staid dining-room took on under the sway of these three hundred laughing boys. The infection of their direct smiles and carefree laughter reached the grown-ups, who lived again some of their lost youth, their school days and in many cases their "newsie" days. The mayor, who was received with a greater and more sincere applause than he has ever received before, admitted it right joyfully and was cheered until the high ceiling echoed in quiet protest as befits its loftiness.

Heard Speeches. He told the boys that selling a paper was the beginning of all salesmanship, and very often the door of all future success in life. Harry B. Muir, who had to swing his bell with both hands to make it heard, welcomed the boys, his "big news family," to the dinner. He told them stories, introduced the various numbers and made an effective plea at the end of the dinner for the square deal, the single aim in life, and a clean mind and body in all the boys.

C. A. Vining and A. W. J. Buckland, both of The Advertiser staff, who were among the roisterers round the festive and groaning board, waved a hand of friendly greeting to the boys and told them they had to shoot like a seaman in a gale to make themselves heard how much they were enjoying themselves and the dinner.

The "Mailing Room Quartet," a singing clan belonging to the circulation department, of which the whole staff is inordinately proud, did their stuff to some tune, and justified the praise bestowed on their ability by Harry Muir. They were W. Orr, W. Head, J. Orr and G. Johnson. Still the chief thing about the evening was that the boys did the work themselves. It was they who sang the choruses, and they who ate the supper, and they who made the "welkin," whatever that may be, ring with their shouts. At half past eight, Mr. Muir asked, "how many boys are ready to go home?" Even at the end it was a very reluctant crowd of youngsters that filed out of the front door into the cold air and hiked for home and bed.

Most of The Advertiser dealers in London were there as well in their paper caps, and looked as happy as the boys. The boys who were there last night were: The following is a partial list of the guests present: Roy Cline, Fred Cline, Bert Crookford, Douglas Coleman, Leonard Pencock, Jack Wilkinson, George Young, Russell Tozer, Fred Griffiths, Arthur Copp, Walter Copp, Alison Wright, Wilfred Newmans, Walter Dowling, Arnold Thatcher, Ross Wilson, Frank Thatcher, Russell Thatcher, Kenneth Wilson, Horace Brown, Frank Roach, E. The three messengers had just left the concert's office for the bank with the Saturday and Sunday receipts from its motion picture theatres when the robbery occurred.

EXPECT DECISION ON RUM RUNNING

Negotiations Between Canada and United States Likely in Short Time.

MATTER BEFORE CABINET

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, Feb. 4.—The final decision of the government regarding the recent negotiations between Canada and the United States on the rum-running situation may be expected shortly. The matter is now before the cabinet council and the agreement will in all probability be announced simultaneously from Ottawa and Washington. One of the features of the agreement will probably be that Canadian customs officers along the border will be instructed to notify the officials of the United States of the clearance of liquor shipments which they have reason to believe are destined for the United States.

BRANTFORD MAN DIES OF FRACTURED SKULL

George Wilson Fatally Hurt in Fall From T. and B. Railway Bridge.

Special to The Advertiser. Brantford, Feb. 4.—George Wilson, 194 Brock street, fell from the T. and B. bridge, landing on the ice below, and sustained injuries which resulted in his death. The night signal man in the watch tower near the end of the bridge saw him fall and immediately went to his assistance. He was removed to the hospital, where it was found he had sustained a fractured skull and a broken leg. He was twenty-three years old, and in addition to his father, George Wilson, 40 Jarvis street, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Olive Haskell of Rodney and Mrs. Grace Burden of this city.

Nova Scotia Industrial Heads Declare Business Is Being Crushed.

Canadian Press Despatch. Halifax, N. S., Feb. 4.—Representatives of the fisheries, canning, dairy and farming and merchandizing industries of Nova Scotia appeared before the board of railway commissioners today and entered strong protests against any increase in express rates on Canadian lines. At this afternoon's session, J. A. Neville, fish and lobster dealer, declared that a good lobster exporting business in Nova Scotia had been crushed down by high freight rates. Mr. Carvell asked him what reduction he considered about the rate in lobster rates, and Mr. Neville said not less than 50 per cent.

Associated Press Despatch. London, Feb. 4.—Arthur Henderson, secretary for home affairs in the Labor government, but who still lacks a seat, has accepted an invitation to contest the by-election in Burnley, made vacant by the death of the veteran Socialist, Dan Irving. There is unlikely to be any Liberal opposition to Henderson, but nothing is yet known regarding the intentions of the Conservatives.

KEEP CANADIANS OUT OF DETROIT

Proposed Legislation United States Congress Cause of Concern.

Special to The Advertiser. Windsor, Feb. 4.—Alarmed at the possibility of border residents being barred from working in Detroit by legislation now before the United States Congress, the city council tonight passed resolutions asking the Dominion government to take immediate action to offset the proposed legislation. Pointing out that Canadians already are prevented from doing business in Detroit by an ordinance passed last year by the Detroit City Council, Alderman A. Hooper declared in favor of retaliatory legislation against the United States. Approximately 6,000 border workers will be affected if the United States Congress passes the act, Alderman Hooper asserted. Other border and Western Ontario municipalities will be asked by Windsor to co-operate.

Ghandi Sentenced To Six Years Is Set Free by Government.

Associated Press Despatch. Bombay, India, Feb. 4.—"Mahatma" Mohandas Ghandi, the Indian Nationalist leader, has been released from prison unconditionally by order of the government. Ghandi on March 18, 1922, was sentenced to six years imprisonment for sedition in connection with the non-co-operation movement. He gained the title of "Mahatma," or "Wonder Worker," through his power and personal magnetism. Recently the Nationalist leader has been in hospital. The action of the government was taken on the recommendation of the attending physicians, who declared that six months of the sentence was necessary for his convalescence.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Port Mann, B. C.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was tired and run-down, and had headache and no appetite and was troubled for two years with a sleepless night. I tried many medicines, but nothing did me any real good. While I was living in Washington I was recommended by a stranger to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am stronger and feel fine since then and am able to do my housework. I am willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. C. GREAVES, Port Mann, B. C.

You'll All Enjoy This new way of teeth cleaning

If you only knew what this test meant you would not delay it longer. It has brought to millions whiter, cleaner, safer teeth—a new era in teeth cleaning. Almost at once you see and feel the results. Bring them to your home—now. That viscous film That viscous film you feel on teeth is their chief enemy. Under old methods, much of it clings and stays. Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Then pearly teeth look cloudy. Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Not one in fifty escapes such troubles under old ways of teeth cleaning. Modern science has found two ways to effectively fight film. One disintegrates the film at all stages. The other removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit. Leading dentists the world over began to advise it. Now careful people of some 50 nations employ this new-day method. No one can doubt. No one can doubt that Pepsodent means a new era in teeth cleaning. The results are quick and apparent. It does more than fight film. It gives multiplied power to the tooth protecting agents of the month. To that factor in saliva which digests starch deposits on teeth. To that factor which is there to neutralize mouth acids. Let this test show what these combined results mean to you and yours. Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear. You will be amazed and delighted. For the sake of all in your home, cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit. Made in Canada Pepsodent CANADA The New-Day Dentifrice Based on modern research. Now advised by leading dentists the world over.

CASES OF WINE HAIL BOUCHARD TO COURT

Fort Stanley Man Remanded—Thought "Claret" of Temperance Variety.

When Edward Bouchard of Fort Stanley read an advertisement for wine purporting to be of the temperance variety, he forwarded an order for two cases. The wine was shipped to London, and Bouchard took it to his home at the lakeside. On the way there he was apprehended by police and charged with having liquor in other than a private dwelling.

This morning in police court Bouchard explained that he thought the wine was under 2 1/2 per cent. Two bottles of the stuff were passed on the magistrate's desk, marked "Claret." Bouchard said his worship asked Bouchard if he wished the wine analyzed. The latter, who is a Frenchman, could not be made to understand, and the court remanded him a day so the strength of the wine could be determined. When the decision was announced, the prisoner, apparently thinking he had been sentenced, drew indignantly, but looked relieved when the case was explained to him.

This Article Will Interest Every Mother!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest help in motherhood of any medicine I have ever known. I am the mother of six children and I suffered greatly each time, except the last one, when I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did and I got along just fine; felt well and strong and had practically no suffering, and had a grand baby that has always been very healthy. I regained my strength very quickly afterward. I was so thankful to have been advised of this medicine, it gave me such wonderful help."

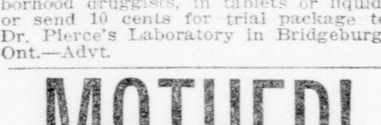

Mrs. Henry McDonald, 3 Wilmut Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Health is of vital importance to every mother. Do not neglect the most valuable asset you have. Get this Prescription of Dr. Pierce's from your neighborhood druggists, in tablets or liquid, or send 10 cents for trial package to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.—Advt.

THE GUMPS—A GOOD OUTSIDE TIP

HOW DO YOU LIKE THE MARKET TODAY, MR. GUMP?

IT'S A VERY UNCERTAIN MARKET—IRREGULAR LIQUIDATION WITH A REDUCTION IN TRADING HAS CAUSED A DOWNWARD TENDENCY—BUT AN UNDERTONE OF INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY SHOWS A DECIDED EVIDENCE OF RESUMPTION UPWARD.

I'LL BET YOU'RE A PLUNGER—YOUR CONNECTION WITH THE HAIR-BRUSH TRUST PUTS YOU ON THE INSIDE—I'M SURE YOU KNOW JUST WHAT'S GOING TO HAPPEN—IS U.S. STEEL DO FOR A RISE?

THE AVERAGE G.V.M. February--- The Month To Set Your House In Order

NORMANDY SWISS VOILES

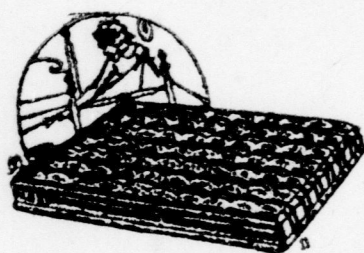

These will be very popular again this season. A fine quality, evenly-woven voile, with the design in permanent stenciled dots in white. This range includes the newest shades of mauve, powder blue, navy, peach, electric blue, seafoam green and black. You will surely want a dress from these tempting fabrics, and we suggest an early choice, for these will quickly go. Genuine Normandy Swiss fabric, 38 inches wide, per yard, 85c

This may have a very different application with many people—with some it may mean what it directly implies, filling in some corner with a piece of new furniture, renewing a worn piece of upholstery, new curtains, a new drape, etc. Or perhaps it may be setting your wardrobe in order for the coming season, or the linen closet, as February is the home-sewing month, and the new spring fabrics are already arriving; gingham, voiles, etc., bright and sparkling as the new spring season.

The BREATH of the AVENUE

Style Scouting For You

FASHIONS YOU FIND HERE ARE STYLE-RIGHT FASHIONS. The fashion-watchful staff of our representatives, "The Breath of the Avenue" organization, go the fashion rounds of New York where new modes are in the making.

You may read "The Breath of the Avenue," exclusive fashion messages in our advertising columns twice a week. But more important than that—you will always find Fifth Avenue fashion rightness in our fashions.

Dresses of Popular Importance

THERE ARE CERTAIN TYPES OF DRESSES that are having their run in New York right now. They are advance models suitable for spring and summer wear, and yet are already selling fast here. They are:

1. The tucked frock in flat crepe.
2. The evening dress with georgette flouer trimming.

THE TUCKED FROCK.

THERE IS A SEMI-SPORTS TYPE that has also already won popular approval. It is flat crepe with horizontal tucks. Straightline with short kimono sleeves. And although its popularity has not spread quite as fast yet as that of the flannel dress, it is well started on a similar path. There was, last summer, a dress with horizontal cordings, you remember, that was instantaneously popular. And this dress has the same possibilities for volume selling.

Flat crepe in white, beige, gray and navy, and in the high shades of yellow, porcelain blue, copper and green. Also in black in satin.

One model that is especially featured has tiny horizontal pin tucks for the waist and much wider tucks for the skirt, while right at the waistline the tucks are graduated as a transition between the pin tucks and the wide tucks.

These horizontally tucked dresses are selling so fast here now for Palm Beach wear that they are surely something for dress buyers to have in mind for their spring and summer trade.

THE SECOND TYPE OF DRESS is for evening. And being an evening dress it has, of course, a less general appeal. But buyers of evening dresses will be interested in hearing of its popularity in New York. It shows a close relationship to the Callot peacock model which was so much featured in Paris openings here last fall, reported in the September 19th issue of the Breath of the Avenue.

This same idea has so many variations that it is, of course, impossible to describe them all. All of these dresses are trimmed with flowers and flower garlands. One of the most popular ways is that of a garland across the bodice from the shoulder to the waistline, with loose petals scattered about the skirt in different layers of the tulle.

Edith Day is now wearing a flower-trimmed white tulle dress of this type, in the moonlight scene of "Wildflower."
