From the Pittsburg Christian Advocate. The Brightest Land.

I oft have heard of other lands Across the swelling main, Where winter frosts ne'er blight the trees, Nor desolate the plain :

And where the cloudless summer sky Is of a deeper blue, And all the flowers which paint the plain Of brighter, richer hue

And where, o'er sands besprent with gold, The rivers roll their tides. And deep within the mountain's breast The sparkling diamond hides,

And oft I've thought how beautiful Those sunny lands must be: How pleasant wandering 'mid their groves And valleys, wide and free!

But ah, though bright and beauteous are Those lands across the waves. The plague of sin has reached them too, And studded them with graves.

Yet we may find a brighter land Where sorrows never come; A land of love-a cloudless land, Where sin or death's unknown.

A city stands amid its plains-A city built by God. With walls of jasper, gates of pearl, And streets of purest gold,

And through these ever shining streets A crystal river flows, On either side the tree of life In fadeless beauty grows.

No flowers are there which fade and die-No joys which pass away; Eternal summer decks its plains-Its pleasures ne'er decay.

And there the glorious throne is placed, And Jesus, too, is there, Even He who died that we might live, And in His glory share.

O look to Him-to Jesus-now, While yet He waiting stands : Be His, and happiness is thine, And thine that "better land."

But he had a confident spirit, a strong heart, and. above all, an unwavering confidence in the protecting power of Him in whose service he was devoting his life.

Even on the grounds of Dick Jones the birds sang sweetly, the cool breezes sported amid the leafy branches, and the breaths of a thousand flowers mingled their fragrance on the air; and even as the colporteur trod these grounds, he felt and enjoyed the tranquil beauty and peace of nature. There was no shrinking in his heart. He was not in terror of lions that crouched on his path. Soon he stood at the open door of a house, around which was no air of comfort, nor a single vestige of taste.

"Who's there? What's wanted?" was the repulsive salutation of a woman, who seeing a stranger.

"May God's peace be on this house!" said the colporteur, in a low, reverent voice, as he stood, one foot on the ground, and the other across the threshold.

A change passed instantly over the woman's tace. Its whole expression softened.

What is Death?

BY REV. GEORGE CROLY. What is death! 'tis to be free No more to love, or hope, or fear To join the dread equality: All, all alike are humble there The mighty wave Wraps lord and slave! Nor pride, nor poverty, dares come Within that refuge house—the tomb! Spirit with the drooping wing,

And the ever weeping eye, Thou of all earth's kings, art king Empires at thy footstool lie Beneath thee strew'd Their multitude. Sink like waves upon the shore! Storms shall never rouse them more

To the grandeur round thy throne Riches, glory, beauty, birth, To thy kingdoms all have gone Before thee stand The wondrous band. Bards, heroes, sages, side by side, What's the grandeur of the earth.

Who darken'd nations when they died! Earth has hosts, but thou canst show Many a million for her one! Through thy gates the mortal flow Has for countless years roll'd on

Back from the tomb No step has come: There fix'd, till the last thunder's sound, Shall bid thy pris'ners be unbound!

Power of the Pulpit.

In his excellent work on the Pulpit, Dr. Spring shows what our country would soon become without a preached Gospel:

Go to lands where there are no pulpits, or to those portions of the world where they are "few and far between," and what do you hear, if not the most awful profanation of the name of the great God, even from the lips of lisping childhood and hoary age? and what do you see, if not the most mournful desecration of that day of rest which the King of the Universe claims for his own: that set a limit to the grossest ignorance and confusion, of contention and hatred?restrained? Harvest Home. Home! Home! the Harvest Home! Hark how the chorus swells, Whi e gay knots gleam on every team. And silvery tinkling bells.

Home! Home! the Harvest Home! We've toil'd beneath the sun. And the fields are clear'd, and the garner stor'd. And the reaper's labour done.

Home! Home! the Harvest Home! The ripe and rustling corn, From the fields and plains, in loaded wanes, Was blithely homeward borne.

Home! Home! the Harvest Home! The festal of the year, When with mirth and song we gaily throng To the pleasant harvest cheer.

Home! Home! the Harvest Home! The last brown sheaf is stored, And each sun-burnt face has its welcome place, At the sturdy yeoman's board, Saturday Evening.

How sweet the evening shadows fall, Advancing from the west As ends the weary week of toil, And comes the day of rest.

Bright o'er the earth the star of eve Her radiant beauty sheds; And my riad sisters calmly weave Their light around our heads.

Rest, man, from labour ! rest from sin ! The world's hard contest close : The holy hours with God begin-Yield thee to sweet repose.

Bright o'er the earth the morning ray Its sacred light will cast. Fair emblem of the glorious day That evermore shall rest.

The Daisy.

Not worlds on worlds, in phalanx deep, Need we to prove a God is here-The daisy, fresh from winter's sleep, Tells of his hand in lines as clear,

For who but He who arched the skies, And pours the day-spring's living flood, Could rear the daisy's purple bud ?

Mould its green cup, its wiry stem, Its fringed border nicely spin, And cut the gold embossed gem, That, set in silver, gleams within?

And fling it unrestrained and free, O'er hill and dale, and desert sod, That man, where'er he walks, may see In every step the stamp of God?

Zurich, S Sept 1835 — I have tried DuBarry's Revalents trabica for a complaint which had hitherto resisted alother remedies—viz.: CANCER OF THE STOMACH; and Lam happy to say, with the most successful result. This conting remedy has the effect not only of arresting the comiting, which is so fearfully distressing in Cancer of the Stomach, but also of restoring perfect digestion and assumilation. The same satisfactory influence of the excellent remedy I have found in all complaints of the ears standing. I look upon this delicious Food as the

DR. GRATTIKER. PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE OF DR. GRIES IN CONSUMPTION Magdebourg, 16th Sept, 1858 .- My wife, having suffer Magdebourg, 16th Sept, 1858.—My wife, having sufferd for years from a pulmonary complainty became so seriously ill at the beginning of this year, that I looked laily for her dissolution. The remedles which hitherto ud relieved her remained now without effect, and the ilderations of the lungs and night swears debiliated her earfully. It was in this, evidently the last and hopeless
-tage of pulmonary consumption, when every medicine emained powerless in even affording temporary reliefhat I was induced by a medical brother from Hanover, who makes pulmonary consumption his special andly
