

MAY LOSE HIS LIFE SAVING HIS MOTHER.

Husband and Wife Quarrelled and the Latter Tried to Commit Suicide.

Boy Shot While Trying to Wrest Weapon From His Mother.

New York, Sept. 21.—In attempting to prevent his mother from shooting herself, as he thought she was about to do so, Curt Klein, 16 years old, received a bullet wound in his own head early today in a furnished room house in Second avenue. He was taken at once to Bellevue Hospital, insensible, and will probably die. His mother was looked up, charged with felonious assault.

WARNED NOT TO REMARRY BY DEAD HUSBAND'S GHOST.

Pennsylvania Woman Calls Off Engagement Owing to Night Vision.

Wilmerding, Pa., Sept. 21.—Declaring she was visited at night by the spirit of her dead husband, Mrs. Charles Lincoln, a pretty widow of State street, Wilmerding, called off her intended marriage to S. Parker, of that town, and Parker has a lot of furniture to sell. Parker had furnished a new home complete and everything was in readiness for the wedding, which was to have been solemnized yesterday afternoon. But when Parker called on his intended bride he found her in tears and was told all was off.

CROSSED OVER BRIDGE OF SIGH.

JOHN CROSSOVER WILL NOT BE SEEN ON MARKET NOW.

John Lacey Must Be Good or Pay $20 Fine—Other Cases in Police Court This Morning.

John Crossover, who was given a chance to do better and allowed to go last week when he was up on a charge of vagrancy, was accused of a similar offence by Constable Brannan this morning. The constable stated that he saw Crossover hanging around the market yesterday, and warned him to go away. John went into an alley near by, and fell asleep. He was given six months in Central to think it over.

John Thompson was brought into court by Constable George Nichol and charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty, and at the request of the chief was remanded for a week. He is alleged to have been begging and selling shoe laces around the city for the last few days. When court was over he put on his hat and walked quietly, unhindered, across the road, but met Constable J. Smith at the door, who, recognizing him, nabbed him and shoved him back into the prisoners' dock.

John Lacey, 145 Mary street, was charged by his wife with assault. He pleaded not guilty. Mrs. Lacey said that for two weeks her husband had been drinking, and that last night he assaulted her when she objected to him taking some towels out of the house that did not belong to him. Lacey did not wish to say anything in rebuttal, and was fined $20 or two months, the penalty not to be enforced in case John stays sober.

Nick Wilvert, 91 Merriek street, was charged by Edward Leonard with assault. Leonard is the proprietor of a boarding house at the above address, and said that on Wednesday two of his boarders objected to a racket Wilvert was making, and he went to pacify Wilvert, but was met by a volley of curses and blows. Defendant denied all of this, and said that Leonard cursed at him and attempted to strike him first. The Magistrate adjourned the case till Monday to hear more evidence. J. H. P. acted for the defendant.

John Brown, Toronto, was charged by Constable Graville with being a vagrant. He was remanded for a week to get evidence. He was arrested on James street late last night, begging.

William Yates, 24 Leaming street, was charged with not having red lights on his building material at Wilson street and East avenue, but he explained he did not own the material in question, and the case was dismissed.

Andrew Elliott, no address, was fined $2 for being drunk.

AWAKENING GREAT INTEREST

A Hamilton Institution Developing Wonderful Business Development.

Ever since the opening of the fall season and particularly during the past three days thousands of women have wondered at the possibility of any one store being able to provide such exceptional values and vast varieties of fashionable fall goods, as have delighted the people who thronged The Right House.

Thomas C. Watkins' powerful purchasing ability abroad is being demonstrated this season as never before in the wonderful values that have brought old and new customers alike to the store. Just such values as these will be continued throughout the season, and everybody should regularly read the attractive advertisements of this great firm.

200 EXPECTED.

Commercial Club Premises at Disposal of Manufacturers.

The Directors of the Commercial Club have very generously placed the club premises at the disposal of the local manufacturers for the entertainment of the members of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, who are to visit Hamilton in company with their ladies next Friday morning.

While the premises will not be fully equipped for club purposes until a week or ten days later, they will be sufficiently advanced to permit the manufacturers to put in a caterer, and give the visitors a good time.

SPECIAL REFEREE.

Method to Expedite York Loan Winding Up.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—A special commissioner to sift the 114,000 claims of creditors against the assets of the York County Loan and Savings Company may be the solution adopted to get through the work with despatch. This is the plan which will be submitted to Official Referee McLean in case he finds that he will be unable to give the work his entire attention till it is finished.

Mr. McLean has said that he could not begin on the work until about October 10th, and that then he might be able to give only every other week to hearing the claims. At this rate the adjustment of the claims might hang on until next summer, and not till that work is complete can there be a dividend.

It is not contemplated that the entire estate will be wound up by that time, as there are assets, such as land, which can be realized upon only as demand arises.

MR. J. W. LOUD

To Be Freight Traffic Manager of G. T. Pacific.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 21.—Mr. John W. Loud, for many years Freight Traffic Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, has been appointed to a similar position on the Grand Trunk Pacific. The announcement is contained in an official circular signed by Mr. Frank W. Morse, Vice-President and General Manager, dated Sept. 18. Mr. Loud has been connected with the freight department of the Grand Trunk Railway for many years, rising from a subordinate position.

Two Most Seasonable Wants.

This is the time to buy Parke's pickle mixture and Parke's catsup flavoured. They are both successes. They save you a lot of trouble and prevent both the catsup and the pickles from spoiling. Just call at the store and have their uses explained to you. Parke & Parke, druggists, 18 Market square.

The Best Pipe to Smoke.

Every Peterson pipe is guaranteed perfect in material and workmanship, and smokes cool, clean and dry. They are sold in all shapes, with amber or vulcanite mouthpieces, at peace's cigar store, 107 King street east.

HELD INFORMAL RECEPTION.

Times' New Mammoth Press Had a Call From Old Friends Yesterday.

The Times was yesterday honored by a visit from several of Hamilton's well-known business men, who dropped in to see the new press running off the daily edition, and many were the favorable comments which they made.

MR. J. W. GERRIE, the well-known James street druggist, was a highly interested visitor. As he watched the enormous machine reeling off the edition from the web rolls, made specially for the Times, he remarked that to see a machine that worked with almost human ingenuity, receiving the paper from the roll and directing it to the various cylinders, receiving the color, impression, folding and delivering with lightning rapidity, was to him a liberal education, and infinitely more interesting than anything he had recently seen at the Toronto Exhibition.

MR. F. F. BACKUS, General Passenger and Ticket Agent of the T. H. & B. Railway, was delighted to see such a fine press. Being interested in complicated machinery, he admired the workmanship and magnificent proportions of this mammoth quadruple perfecting press. He said the adjustment of all the parts that go to make up this high-class machine could only be compared to the finish of one of the latest Mogul engines, one of the greatest marvels of recent years.

MR. D. A. SOUTER, of the furniture and carpet house of A. M. Souter & Co., recalled the days of not many years ago with a two-cylinder hand-fed press that would turn out 1,500 copies an hour off each cylinder was considered a wonder. To see this latest of modern presses taking in paper from two immense rolls, at enormous speed, and turning out elegantly printed and folded papers beyond the ability of anyone to count for even a minute, was a revelation.

ANNUL MARRIAGE.

Mr. Joseph Lynd, of Princess Rink, Figures in Case Under New Law.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—Action is now pending in the High Court to set aside the marriage of Joseph Lynd to Miss E. H. Noble, on the ground that the contracting parties are legal infants.

Lynd is the son of Dr. Adam Lynd, a former controller. The girl is the daughter of Detective Noble. It is her father who are trying to upset the marriage. Mr. Lynd is at present in London, Ont. This is the second case under the recent amendment to the marriage law.

BEER DRINKING

Opposed by Socialists Who Think it Will Ultimately Cease.

Essen, Germany, Sept. 21.—The temperance question was again discussed today at the socialist national convention held at the socialist national convention here. Only one vote was cast against a resolution whose main feature was an expression of opposition to the use of alcohol in any form during working hours, thus setting the full strength of the socialist party against the German factory system of beer drinking at regular intervals throughout the day. In many workshops the drinking of 8 to 10 pints of beer is the usual custom, while the men are at work. The prevailing opinion among the delegates to the convention was that the temperance of laboring classes will gradually cease with the betterment of their condition, the shortening of the hours of work and the abolition of night work.

AGAIN BEREAVED.

Sad Lot of Mrs. Martin, Formerly of This City.

Four weeks ago this evening Mr. W. E. Martin, who went from here to Alberta recently, lost his life by drowning, and his body has not yet been recovered. In her sore bereavement Mrs. Martin wired to her sister, Mrs. Cross, of Youngstown, Ohio, who was visiting at Orion, Mich., at the time, to go out and stay with her. Mrs. Cross accepted the invitation, glad to be able to comfort her sister at such a time.

Relatives here have just received the shocking news that, soon after her arrival there, Mrs. Cross had a severe attack of grip. It is supposed that it brought on pneumonia. At any rate Mrs. Cross died last Tuesday, and Mrs. Martin's bereavement is doubled. Mrs. Cross was a widow, and had one daughter. The body will likely be brought to Barrie for interment, that being the former home of the family. Mrs. Martin is and Mrs. Cross was a daughter of Mrs. Bedford, of this city.

FORMER SLAVE

Dies at the Age of 117 Years—His Mother Lived to be 121.

Elkton, Md., Sept. 21.—George W. Harris, a former slave, died this week near Rowlandsville, at the age of 113 years, one month and 14 days. The birth record of the Harris family is said to have been accurately kept by the owners of these colored people who lived in Harford county, Maryland. According to the record Harris' maternal grandmother was 117 years old when she died, while his mother died at the age of 121 years.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES.

The Man In Overalls

Three cheers for Leader MacKay.

Apparently it will be many moons before the wheels of industry in this city are turned by hydro-electric power.

Dundas has been fortunate with its exhibition.

We now know why some people object to the water system they put party before the city.

Adam Beck will be welcome to run in West Hamilton. Can he stand defeat?

The Health Association's visiting nurse is doing good work among the consumptives in their homes in the city.

Yes, light up the parks better, and if the authorities do not do it, it would pay the merchants to light up the business section to something like daylight.

It's too bad if, as the City Engineer says, people have been kept away from Hamilton because of the bad name, it is getting from the "knockers."

Mr. Pugsley seems to be full of fight.

The Tories, judging from their organ, are jealous of the Labor men at the City Council. They think they are entitled to all the pickings.

Our new press is now doing wonderful work. Have you seen it?

No doubt Mr. Borden will get a warm welcome from the British Columbians. But I won't say that it will be cordial.

The Japs may be yellow men, but they do not show a yellow streak.

The average citizen does not want a Grit or a Tory or a Laborite to represent him in the City Council. He wants men who will do the city's business in the city's interest, independent of clique.

HEARING SERMONS.

The Brantford Expositor says that "nine people out of ten who attend church services in this city know practically nothing about the sermons they hear from Sunday to Sunday." And it wants to know what is the matter—if the sermons are uninteresting or the congregations dull. I can't answer these questions. But I may say that Brantford is not singular in this respect. It is doubtful if one Hamilton man out of ten who had been at church on Sunday, could, if he were asked on Monday morning, tell you the text even. But, if the minister gave it out plainly, you could hardly blame him for this forgetfulness. Nor is it very material whether the hearer remembers the text or not. He may not carry much away with him in the shape of information; yet the service will not have been in vain if it has produced a devotional spirit and imbued him with a desire to do better in the future. He may not remember the biographical or historical sketch or the point of doctrine the minister brought out, but if the influence produced by those had their effect upon him he did not go away without some benefit. Reporters can tell you that it is sometimes hard work to get the gist of a sermon even with notes—that it requires a trained ear and more than ordinarily close attention—too close to be pleasant for the average worshipper—to sometimes catch the real drift of the thing, yet he would not always blame the preacher. Of course, some preachers are dull and prosy, even show traces in the pulpit of being lazy, but the pew is not always blameless. A short time ago I heard what I considered a most impressive discourse in one of the city churches, and at the close of the service I won-

90 CENT WHEAT.

Advance of 5c To-day—Flour Up to $4.59.

After standing at 85 cents a bushel on the local grain market wheat took another jump of 5 cents this morning, and the price is now 90 cents—an increase of 10 cents since the new season's product began to come in.

Flour was also run up in price by the millers. A week ago it went from $4 to $4.20 a barrel and to-day was advanced to $4.50. Local millers say it is almost impossible to get Manitoba wheat, which is bringing the high price of $1.15 in Hamilton.

The local supply is good just now, and farmers of this vicinity are reaping the advantage. The quality of the local wheat is also good.

REV. DR. POTTS ILL.

The Doctor Suffered Temporary Injury to His Sight.

Toronto, Sept. 21.—The condition of Rev. John Potts, D.D., Treasurer of Victoria University, is such as to cause both his friends and physician grave alarm, though for the present the danger point appears to have been passed. Besides an internal trouble, he has temporarily suf-

OUTSIDE GAMBLING.

Active Steps Will be Taken to Prevent it.

An officer of the Citizens' League, when asked this morning if the society would take any action this year regarding the bookies at the fall race meet of the Hamilton Jockey Club, said it was very improbable. The responsibility was placed on the Attorney-General's Department last year, and the league did not think anything could be done until the law on the point was cleared up. Active steps will be taken, however, to suppress any gambling in the vicinity of the race track.

BY-ELECTIONS.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 21.—(Special)—Writs for the by-elections will be issued this afternoon. At the first meeting of the Cabinet the date for calling Parliament will be discussed, likely the 14th November.

THREE MEN KILLED.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Sept. 21.—By an explosion of gas in one of the mines of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Co., at South Wilkesbarre, today three men were killed and five injured.

Bain & Adams List.

Large, young, tender chickens and ducks, oysters, canteloupes, watermelon, evergreen corn, Crawford peaches, Imperial plums, grapes, pink and white celery, squash, vegetable marrow, water-root ginger, green split peas, dried green rotting, green split peas, dried green beans. Kindly favor us with your order as early as possible.—Bain & Adams, 89, 91 King street east.

JAPS DRIVEN OUT.

Miners Escorted Them to Steamer and Told Them to Go.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 21.—A despatch from Seattle says that 75 Japanese miners arriving at Atlin on Thursday night to work in the mines were escorted to the river steamer Gleaner by three hundred whites yesterday morning and started back to Vancouver. The white miners served notice upon the Japanese that if they did not stay away violence would be shown in protecting the diggings against Asiatic labor. The Japanese are almost destitute, and will be turned loose in Skagway, Alaska.

Mrs. Ed. Duffy was removed to her home this morning after being in St. Joseph's Hospital for eight weeks.

LARGE FIELD FOR JANUARY ELECTIONS.

Opposition to Mayor Stewart is All Talk Up to Present Time.

City Continues to Keep a Good Bill of Health—City Hall Notes.

Although the municipal elections are nearly four months distant the air is already filled with election gossip and it looks as if the number of candidates for aldermanic honors would be fully as large as last year. It is expected that every member of this year's Council will face the barrier again. The Trades and Labor Council will probably have a slate of at least fifteen candidates. The Board of Trade is expected to have some new men in addition to the three representatives in this year's Council and the North End Improvement Society promises to bring out some new men. It has three representatives sitting at the aldermanic board this year. There is still a great deal of uncertainty as to Mayor Stewart being opposed for a second term, although it is believed the Labor people may put up a man. A report that the Citizens' League would have some aldermanic candidates in the field was denied to-day by officers of that organization.

"I think the policy of the league is more to encourage public opinion," said Rev. J. K. Unsworth. "We believe good men will be put up by citizens in general and endorsed by the league."

The conference yesterday afternoon between Secretary Brennan and Solicitor Levy, of the Hamilton Street Railway Company, over the Herkimer street case leaves the matter in practically the same position as it stood before. The company positively refused to put brick work in at the crossings as requested or contribute one cent towards fixing up the road. If the city insists on the tracks being put back to four feet the company is prepared to go ahead and do it and macadamize between the rails, the city supplying the material, as required by law. The company takes the stand that a five foot devil strip is required to properly protect the lives of passengers. If the city is not agreeable to this the company will do as desired and move the tracks back. Mr. Levy said, however, he was quite prepared to meet the committee again and Chairman Sweeney has issued instructions for a special meeting on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The reproduction in some of the London papers of the material used in the knocking campaign on the Hamilton waterworks system has led to enquiries from the Forest City as to the true condition of affairs here. Dr. Roberts, the Medical Health Officer, has forwarded the following communication:

"In regard to the inquiry made concerning the condition of our water supply, I wish to state that we are singularly free from typhoid fever at the present time, the cases we have not being attributable, in my opinion, to impure civic water supply.

"I would like to be furnished with the name of a city in North America of a population having a lower typhoid fever rate than ours for the past three months, and do not believe one can be found.

"Furthermore, I look upon the abundance and purity of Hamilton's water supply as the greatest asset she possesses."

Board of Education officials say the overcrowding in the schools in the west, east and north districts is still very bad. No complaints have been received from the south. It is regarded as almost certain that at least one and possibly two new schools will have to be built next year.

City Solicitor Waddell, representing the city and M. J. O'Reilly, the Separate School Board, are still going over the assessment books, with Judge Snider, as arbitrator, to see if it is true that a number of Separate School supporters are being taxed for Public Schools. For one year it was found that $2.85, that should have gone to the Separate Schools was credited to the Public Schools.

The work of putting the pipe through the retentment wall for the extension of the Catherine street sewer is being proceeded with. The committee, with the assistance of Adam Zimmerman, M. P., will urge the Government to pay for the extension of the sewer.

The report of Dr. Roberts, the Medical Health Officer, for the week shows only three cases of typhoid fever, three of diphtheria, two each of whooping cough and mumps and one of scarlet fever.

The Standard Chemical Company was granted a permit this morning for a frame and galvanized iron building at the foot of Victoria avenue to cost $1,500.

The Sewers Committee will finish the year with a small overdraft on the general construction account and a small surplus on the sewage disposal works account.

LUSITANIA CAUSED CUT IN ATLANTIC STEAMER RATES.

North German Lloyd Company Reduces Fares $25 Both Ways.

New York, Sept. 21.—With the announcement made by the North German Lloyd to-day of practically a horizontal cut of $25 on both east and west bound business an ocean steamship rate war has developed to-day that may involve not only first but second and third class departments. The North German Lloyd's cut on westbound business will go into effect November 1, when the heavy summer travel has ceased. On the fast express steamers to Bremen the Lloyd has cut the minimum first cabin rate from $95 to $70, and on the twin-speed service to Bremen the rate has been reduced from $70 to $50.

Gustav H. Schwab, manager of the North German Lloyd in America, was brought about by the advent of the Lusitania, of the Cunard Line. Mr. Schwab said: "Ever since the steamer business began the rates of passage have been fixed according to the speed and size of the steamers, the fastest taking the highest rate, and giving the co-called differential to slower steamers. Now comes the Cunard Line with steamers universally stated to be the fastest in the world, in addition to being the largest, and yet the Cunard Line has fixed its rates below those of the North German Lloyd, and the Hamburg-American Lines, thus destroying the tacit understanding as to passage rates among steamship lines."

OUTSIDE GAMBLING.

Active Steps Will be Taken to Prevent it.

An officer of the Citizens' League, when asked this morning if the society would take any action this year regarding the bookies at the fall race meet of the Hamilton Jockey Club, said it was very improbable. The responsibility was placed on the Attorney-General's Department last year, and the league did not think anything could be done until the law on the point was cleared up. Active steps will be taken, however, to suppress any gambling in the vicinity of the race track.

LUSITANIA SAILS.

Will Try to Break the Record Across the Atlantic.

New York, Sept. 21.—Groomed for a fast run at top speed across the Atlantic on her first voyage to the eastward, the Lusitania, of the Cunard Line, will sail for Queenstown and Liverpool at 3 o'clock this afternoon, and steamship men believe she will easily eclipse the eastward record of the 5 days 8 hours and 38 minutes made by the Lucania in 1894 on a run from Sandy Hook light vessel to Daunt's Rock. Many believe the big turbine on her return trip will break the record of the Kaiser Wilhelm II., of the North German Lloyd, which set up a high water mark of 23.58 knots average on a trans-Atlantic passage in 1904.

The Cunard Line officials are making no claims that the Lusitania will try to wrest the title of queen of the seas from her German rival on this trip, though they say the ship is fit to make a record trip.

OTTAWA NOTES.

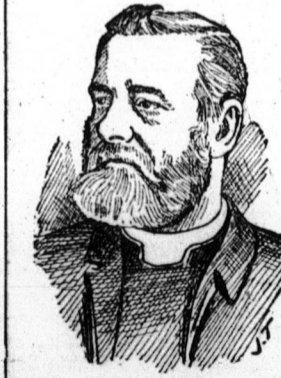

Ottawa, Sept. 21.—The Knighthood conferred on the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario is gazetted to-day.

William Hutchison and Joseph Brodie and Charles Honore Catell receive permission to wear decorations from the King of Italy.

The election of the two new Ministers by acclamation is also gazetted.

Imports of merchandise at New York last month were valued at $17,388,266, an increase of $1,151,653 over 1906 and $4,700,529 over 1905.

The lead in very cheap pencils is sometimes only coke.

REV. DR. POTTS.

THE USURPER

Andrey and the Marjows had been at the Grange three days before Sir Jordan accepted the invitation of his neighbors to visit them. Something had occurred to disturb him on the very evening of his arrival at the Grange. Long after midnight, when the servants had retired, that calm and dignified gentleman, having put on a pair of list slippers, had stealthily made his way, like a burglar, to the room wherein his father had died. The room was just as it had been on that sad occasion, except that the bed was made. Not an article of furniture was disturbed.

He examined the contents of a bureau, but without finding what he was seeking. Then he drew that embossed article of furniture from the wall, and peered behind it. The candle he held flickered with his movements, and cast ghostly shadows around the room. His search was all in vain. Then he turned to a trunk, cautiously opened it, and rummaged therein for a few moments. Whatever it was for which he was searching, it evaded him.

He had just arisen from the trunk, after closing it, and was brushing the dust from his clothes, when something struck against the shutters of one of the windows. For once his calmness deserted him. He started, his lips trembled, and drops of sweat stood out on his marble-like forehead.

In a few moments, failing to hear a repetition of the sound, he wreathed his thin lips into a ghostly smile and muttered: "Phew! It's only a bat or an owl!" The experience of that night had so worried him that he failed to show himself to Andrey until he had recovered his mental equilibrium. On the third day thereafter he called on his neighbors, and was kindly welcomed by Andrey and the Marjows.

His presence at the Grange was not appreciated by Lord Lorrimore, because the latter saw in him a rival who would not be likely to spare any effort to win the favor of Andrey. Unpleasant reports were frequently exchanged between Sir Jordan and Lord Lorrimore, and on one occasion they were on the verge of a serious quarrel, which, fortunately, was interrupted by the timely appearance of Andrey.

The men had gone on a rabbit hunt, and the ladies were to assemble in the neighborhood of the burrows, to partake of a lunch. Sir Jordan challenged Lord Lorrimore to a short horseback race, the prize to be a rose worn on the bosom of Andrey. Sir Jordan, having the superior horse, won the race and claimed the reward. It was graciously bestowed upon him by Andrey, who had the same received the rose from her most devoted attendant, Lord Lorrimore. The fact that this flower had been won by his rival was an unendurable aggravation, and might have led to serious consequences had not Andrey temporarily cooled the hot-headed young man.

A short time afterward Lorrimore challenged Sir Jordan to a test of manhood, the prize to be the same flower. He cut a small hole in a card, tacked it on a tree, and the agreement was that he who made that hole first should possess the rose. Jordan fired and grazed the top of the card. Lord Lorrimore saw his bullet directly through the hole in the center.

Andrey took the rose slowly from his coat, and extended it to his rival. Lorrimore accepted it, raised his hat slightly, and without a word stalked off, as if he had been waiting for him. She raised her eyes and glanced at him with an offended air, which he affected not to notice as he held out his hand with the rose in it.

"Let me restore you your property, Miss Hope," he said, in a calm tone. Andrey took the rose, dropped it on the ground and set her foot on it, then turned her flashing eyes upon him. "How could you be guilty of such a such folly? To quarrel over a worthless flower!" "You forget you wore it," he said in a low voice. "We were not quarrelling."

were children together and now he is wandering, perhaps, friendless and penniless!" "I will go," he said. "His face changed, and his eyes grew dark."

"And when I come back, having failed or succeeded, you will be—"

"She did not understand him for a moment, then the blood rushed to her face. "Andrey Hope still!" she said, in a low voice.

"Two years!" she said, promptly. "I will wait. It is a promise!" He held out his hand. She stretched it out slowly. He took it and grasped it so tightly that the rings cut her fingers. Then he bent and kissed it, and, without a word, turned away.

"Where's Andrey?" She had left the room and gone upstairs, but she entered as he spoke, and came forward with a smile, but looking rather pale. And no wonder, for on her dressing table, where her maid at Lord Lorrimore's request—and a sovereign—had placed it, she had found this note:

"I have gone. I will keep your key if the opportunity comes. I know, and I will bring your friend to you, if he is alive! Tell no one—especially Sir Jordan Lynne!"

"Lorrimore." CHAPTER XI. The next few days after his departure from the Grange Lord Lorrimore was a very busy man. He put his business affairs entirely in the hands of his lawyer, attended personally to some matters which required his immediate attention, and on the day later was in New York.

Here he made inquiries regarding the young man of whom he was in quest, but could gain no satisfactory information regarding the whereabouts of Neville Lynne. A month was passed in the American metropolis, and then Lorrimore set out for San Francisco. The search in California was diligently pursued, but without finding a trace of the wanderer. In a Ballara paper, which Lorrimore found in a reading-room of the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, he saw an account of an exciting incident in a mining town in Wildfall, Australia, wherein an athletic young English miner of refined manners Wildfall, he discovered, was in a state of great excitement. An adjacent mining town, Lorn Hope Camp, had suddenly become incriminated with a religious fever, through the advent there of the Rev. St. Brown and his pretty, blue-eyed daughter, Mary. The good people of Lorn Hope, who were in the neighborhood of the preachings of Mr. Brown, and were so deeply impressed by his pious fervor that they had banished the 'n'er-do-wells and blacklegs from the settlement. They had then been organized as a gang of rangers, with the purpose of despoiling travellers, and had found hiding places in a lonely district between Wildfall and Lorn Hope, which settlements were about twenty miles apart.

Already frequent attacks had occurred within short distances of Wildfall, and several travellers had been plundered by the road agents. Consequently, when Lorrimore arrived at Wildfall, he soon became acquainted with the condition of affairs in that vicinity. A body of vigilantes was organized, in Wildfall to pursue the rangers, and Lorrimore joined it. He had learned of a party of attempting to reach Lorn Hope Camp, where he expected to find some tidings of Neville, unless he were protected by an armed force. Hence his eagerness to join the vigilantes.

This was the condition of affairs at Wildfall, and it was in direct contrast with that of the camp of Lorn Hope, where unusual serenity reigned. Neville had struck a golden treasure in a lovely valley, a few miles from his hut, and was secretly working the streams which flowed between lofty hills. The creek beds gave forth gold in large quantities, and every night, after his day's labor, he conveyed his auriferous dust and nuggets to his hut, and he and Sylvia rejoiced in the thought that soon they would have enough to warrant their departure for merry England.

SENTENCE SERMONS.
Killing time is soul suicide.
Prosperity is a stiff test of piety.
No man finds fame by hunting it.
There is no obedience under compulsion.
Fleeked piety is bound to give somebody pain.
Ideals of character are the conscience of society.
He never finds himself who never denies himself.
You never will find faith by running away from facts.
The highest religion is to do the lowest things well.
They who pour out their hearts never empty them.
A man may deceive himself, but he never fools destiny.
Truth cannot be found while squinting at popular opinion.
Revenge is never so sweet as when we refuse to entertain it.
Our roughest experience often arise from our smoothest tricks.
You cannot travel toward heaven if you turn your back on truth.
Some talk so hard about duty they have no strength left for deeds.
You cannot be a leader and lose sight of those who are to be led.
The shortness of the day excuses no man from greatness of endeavor.
The mournful saint works a good deal more harm than the cheerful sinner.
The faith that shows up strong on the field, will fail altogether when it gets on the field.

WOMAN WANTED A VOTE.

Judge at Brockville Was Obligated to Refuse Odd Request.

Brockville, Sept. 20.—The Board of Registration sitting to enter the names of manhood suffrage voters for the coming by-election had a unique experience today, when a well dressed lady, who recently settled here from England, made application to have her name put on the list. The explanation that the registration was for men only did not satisfy the applicant, and the presiding judge was forced to speak plainly before the woman withdrew. She was accompanied by a man who upheld her contention.

Moulders' Strike.

Eight Fires.

Chatham, Ont., Sept. 20.—Eight fires within the space of two hours was the record established in this city this morning. The most serious was that whereby the large planing mill, owned by W. M. Drader, was burned to the ground. It is a total loss.

Dr. Morris, of the Alien Immigration Board, London, recently reported as stating that trachoma cases were admitted to Canada, writes to the press concerning the correctness of the report.

STALLION MAKES THINGS LIVELY.

HIT WITH SANDBAG, SLIPS HALTER AND GALLOPS OFF.

Falls Eight Feet, Jump Iron Fence and Winds Up in Flower Bed—Will Be Able to Come to Hamilton Next Week, Though.

Caesar, a fine 1,300-pound performing stallion, said to be valued at $8,000 and used in a horse act in the vaudeville show at the Tuck Theatre, was struck by a falling sand bag last night, just as he was being led out, says the Buffalo Express.

The stallion, crazed with fright, slipped his halter and backing away from his guard crashed through two light wooden doors, fell down a sheer drop of eight feet to a hard pavement and then started on a rampage that took him over two high iron picket fences and brought up in a backyard on The Circle.

The horse's owners gave chase expecting him to drop any minute or impale himself on the iron pickets of the fences he took. Caesar is minus several square inches of high-priced horsehide, but all his bones were intact.

As he backed through the doors he fell into an alley that runs behind the theatre. Before his guards could get down the stallion had got up and jumped the iron picket fence around Saint Louis School. While guards attempted to corral him there he jumped over the fence around the orphan asylum. He jumped out again as soon as the guards got inside and dashed up Mariner street to North.

Caesar got mixed in a flower bed there and chewed it up badly before his captors came up with halters and coaxing words. They surrounded him and he dashed into a backyard, where he brought up against a high board fence and was taken without a struggle.

The owner says Caesar is a Belgian stallion of high breed and insured for $100,000. He did not seem to be badly injured aside from the bruises. The fall from the stage to the driveway was enough to kill him, his owner said.

The animal is one of the troupe of society circus horses, announced as the chief attraction at the Savoy next week. Manager Appleton telephoned Buffalo last night and was assured that Caesar was not seriously injured and would be able to perform here.

GRIMSBY PARK.

Company Trying to Set Aside the Recent Injunction.

Mr. J. M. Ferguson, acting for the Grimsby Park Company, Limited, moved yesterday for permission to appeal directly to that court against the judgment of Chief Justice Sir William M. Chief Justice Moss thought that the matter should be discussed in Chambers, instead of taking up the time of the Court of Appeal, and gave a ruling to that effect.

A FINE PARADE.

Thirteenth Had 453 Out for First Drill.

There was a splendid turnout of the 13th Regiment last evening, and a good night's drill was engaged in. The total number out was 453, about twenty short of full strength, which is a creditable showing for the first night of the season.

Colonel Moore announced that this afternoon the senior rifle matches would be held. The tie for the Walker Cup will also be shot. The Non-Commissioned Officers' Cup match and the match between the officers, sergeants and the rank and file will also be shot.

It is expected that the McLaren shelter trench competition will be held on October 12th, although it is not finally decided. The parade state was as follows:

Lieut.-Col. Moore, Majors Mewburn and Ross; Captain Donville, adjutant; Major Herring, paymaster; Captain Carter, surgeon; Major Lester, quartermaster; Chaplain Forrester, staff sergeant; 12 buglers, 45 brass band, 32 bearers, 15 signallers, 10 Maxim 6, recruits 30, A 34, B 30, C 42, D 36, E 32, F 32, G 33, H 36, total 453.

A QUEER OBSESSION.

A Fad That Mocks at Reason and Flouts Experience.

(Montreal Herald.)

"Where free competition is possible," says the Toronto Star, "Government ownership is not necessary. The principle of public ownership is applicable only where the principle of individual liberty and free competition is inoperative. Lord Brassey, who has just come forward as an advocate of the same policy, based his case on just the opposite plea. 'In continental Europe,' he says, 'where the railways were the property of the state, the requirements of the public were fully considered, and the results to the treasury were satisfactory, while in Great Britain competition was carried to excess, an immense amount of capital was invested, and so forth.'

It is curious to have the expression of these two absolutely opposite arguments coming on the same day. Does not the coincidence suggest that in both cases the remedy is prescribed, not upon reasoned conviction that it will work a cure, but pretty much in the same spirit that one who reads the advertisements for a proprietary medicine sets out to cure his own particular ailment? The Government is incompetent within its sphere; therefore, if competition produces an evil, Government ownership will remove it, and if the absence of competition produces an evil, Government ownership will remove that, too. Isn't it just the same as to say that if Jones' Magic Drops have cured rheumatism (which they probably have not in fact), they can be equally effective in removing the ailment? The seat of power is in the Government. How then can anyone doubt?

What the advocates of Government ownership fail to see is that, if they had their way, there would some day come a situation where redress must be sought from the Government against the Government, and that not merely against the political heads of the administration, but against the whole civil service.

The true function of the Government in respect of differences between public service corporations and the people is not, therefore, to substitute itself for the corporation as the object of attack, nor to undertake administrative and operating functions which are better done by the people, but to be always and instantly prepared to hear the protest of whoever may feel aggrieved, and to be always and instantly prepared to provide the redress to which any claimant may be found entitled.

WHAT DOGS CAN DO ON THE POLICE FORCE

(By Reginald F. Mayhew in N.Y. Herald) ARE DOGS TO BECOME regular and prominent members of the police department? Or will they, after a perfunctory trial, be dismissed from the force?

Their introduction as a successful means of hunting down criminals is so entirely dependent on the course adopted by the officials—their handling and training—that it would be impossible to determine how valuable or valueless the recruits will prove.

In Belgium and France great use has been made of the dog by police departments, and their training for various purposes is carried out to a fine degree. Men protected by special uniforms teach the police dogs to attack savagely anyone making an assault on his police master.

As an instance, if a crime has been committed on the east side around midnight, and is discovered about day break, a bloodhound would stick to the trail with a grim unannounced as if the hunted one had left him shadow all along the route.

Let the crime, however, be committed when the section is alive with humanity and remain undiscovered until after dusk, then the powers of the bloodhound would be all at sea and probably fail in their purpose.

Much different, however, would be the case in the more scattered section of the city. Burglaries, murders or what not in the residential or suburban districts would be reduced to a minimum by the employment of bloodhounds.

It is curious that at this late day our police authorities should suddenly awake to the possibility of bloodhounds being an important factor in the running down of a criminal.

With a good bloodhound there would be no necessity to call out a corps of wardens, groping hither and thither for hours, or maybe days, weeks. A bloodhound in this case would prove an unerring Nemesis and the prisoner would be back in his cell in a jiffy.

Prior to the present contemplated step of our Police Department Scotland Yard had a had attack of hysteria when "Jack the Ripper" was indulging in his horrible crimes and the police were hopelessly helpless.

Since then bloodhounds have occasionally been brought into requisition. They have been employed by the Egyptian Government to discover secret stores of smuggled hashish, while some owners of estates in England have successfully employed them in running down poachers.

In writing of the bloodhound in the Kennel Encyclopedia now being published, Mr. Edwin Brough, from whom there is no greater authority, says: "In these special attributes the bloodhound is undoubtedly unapproachable—First, he has a more delicate nose and can hunt a lighter scent than any other hound."

Some forty or fifty years ago the bloodhound was a distinct breed was in a very wabaly condition, so much so that it was threatened with extinction. Since then, however, thanks to stanch admirers in England, he has grown stronger in breed.

Unfortunately for his popularity, he has been confounded with the man eating dogs depicted in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," but as a matter of fact he is no relation whatever to the ferocious mixed breed of dogs used by slave owners. The latter were taught but foxhounds crossed with what has been known as the Cuban mastiff, and to-day in the least settled districts of the country a similar monstrosity, savage and man eating, is shouldered with the name of bloodhound.

In France in the sixteenth century, and specimens were taken to England with William the Conqueror.

A bloodhound, rather than being a relentless, untamable piece of ferocity is somewhat diffident, and, like all high strung creatures, timid to a certain point.

For some years now bloodhound trials have been held in England, and their tests have proved beyond question his superior scenting power over all others of the canine race.

Of recent years several of the best hounds have been sent here from England, and those who have been most prominently associated with them have been J. L. Winchell, of Fairhaven, Vt.; Dr. Knox, of Danbury, Conn.; the late Dr. Lougest, of Boston; the Finnigan Kennels, of Greene, N.Y., and L. B. Strong, of New Jersey.

That they are being put to practical use was demonstrated by a visit to Dr. Knox's kennels.

He has recently been consulted by the police of New York as to the best method of training bloodhounds to hunt down criminals in the city and suburbs.

"It all depends on the kind of animals used and the way they have been trained. For several years the public has been at the mercy of unscrupulous dog dealers. Nine out of ten of them do not know a bloodhound when they see one."

"Nearly one-half of all the hounds registered as bloodhounds at the American Kennel Club are of foxhound type, with bloodhound pedigrees and for that reason the Bloodhound Club of America has been organized. Hounds of this type have been sold as genuine bloodhounds. It is wrong to register animals not having the typical characteristics of the breed. Yet this has been done for years and is done even to this day. In fact the country is flooded with degenerate bloodhounds of the foxhound type. They have been inbred to such an extent that they are nearly worthless for the work man intended them to perform."

"The ability of a bloodhound to hunt criminals depends entirely on the so-called bloodhounds of the country would be worthless to hunt criminals in a city like New York. It would take a year at least, to equip the Police Department with animals that could be depended upon. A properly trained man trailer will work anywhere, in city or country, and will be frightened by trolleys, automobiles or city crowds."

"A properly trained animal should follow a city trail if not over ten hours' old; in the country from three to twenty-four hours. Much depends on the atmospheric conditions. Hot, dry weather is bad. A moist day is the best. I have known hounds to take a bear trail in the snow with six months' rest, even after the snow had melted and disappeared the bloodhounds were able to follow the trail even in the spring."

"An otter hound is the most remarkable of all these animals. It will take a colder scent than any other dog of the kind. It will take a scent from a stone for a month, and even if the stone has been washed—submerged by water for twenty-four hours. He will find the otter every time. It is this attribute of the otter hound which has caused him to be crossed with the bloodhound in England, to give more stamina to animals of the bloodhound breed."

"The only difficulty with the otter hound is that it will leave an old scent for a fresh one, while the true bloodhound never changes. It will follow the original trail regardless of fresh scents. Bloodhounds by nature are not dangerous to man, but they may be made vicious by special training, when young—beaten and tormented in a pen with a vicious dog."

Caring for the Hounds. Dr. Knox has about a dozen hounds in his kennels and some two acres of ground for them to exercise in. The plot is inclosed by two wire fences, leaving a space of ten or twelve feet between fences which are about six feet high, and are enough to prevent dogs or stock from breaking through.

The kennels are spacious, well equipped with modern improvements and kept as clean as a hotel with an expert English trainer in charge.

"I buy the best beef," said the Doctor, "and see that it is well cooked. On certain days it is mixed with dog biscuit and served at regular intervals. Then I feed them eggs. I have a lot of imported Siberian ducks—runners—which lay three or four hundred eggs, while the best ordinary ducks would lay no more than fifty or a hundred eggs. These eggs are large and nutritious, and on them the animals thrive amazingly."

"RUSSIAN JOAN OF ARC" IS AVENGED FOR FOURTH TIME

Mlle. Spiridonova, whose ill treatment by officials of the Czar has at last been avenged.

lowed in the exact footsteps of the man pursued, even the zigzags and doublebacks; and then on up into the thickest of the woods; thence down toward the creek full of flowing water; thence across the ploughed fields, doubling and zigzagging again on the trail; thence across and up the bank; the dog now crying and whining, his fierceness increasing every moment.

Terriers for Company. A fitting companion for a policeman on a lonesome beat would be a terrier of any variety, alert, keen sighted and quick of hearing.

As for life saving, Newfoundland has the reputation of being the crack-jack water dog. This, however, is due to Land-seer's popular picture, "A Member of the Royal Humane Society."

As regards care, a female dog is a much more reliable guard than a male dog. Burglars high up in their profession would not care a snap of the finger for a male.

John D. Roddick, Lyndhurst, Tells His Experience. After Two Years' Suffering With Lame Back and Weak Kidneys, Was Cured by Dr. Hamilton.

Lyndhurst, Ont., Sept. 21.—The following statement made by Mr. Roddick, lumber merchant, tells of the remarkable knowledge possessed by Dr. Hamilton:

"Two years ago I had grippe which settled in my back and kidneys. I was sickly and very miserable, suffered great pain and inconvenience. Different remedies were tried without benefit and then I decided to try Dr. Hamilton's Mandrake and Butternut Pills. I derived immense good from their use in short time. When two boxes were used I was immeasurably better. To-day I am well. Neighbors suffering from kidney and back trouble have also been cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which I am convinced is the best medicine for regulating and cleansing the system. They are very mild, but do the work just the same."

"FUZZYMINDEDNESS." The Poor Woman Who Falls Behind the Procession. A great many people are afraid of the complexity of modern life. They long for the wings of a dove—for anything, in fact, which would enable them to flee away from our many-sided and highly organized world of to-day, and get back to simple habits and simple usages—in short, "back to Nature," whatever that may mean.

HAY FEVER POSITIVELY CURED. Beyond any liability to relapse, it is guaranteed that Catarrhose will at once relieve and cure Hay Fever. All druggists sell Catarrhose. Two months' treatment, $1.00.

telephones, and prepared foods, and domestic science, complexity is a thing that must be accepted. And why should we hesitate to accept it? Every new complexity means a new opportunity. The myriads of new ties that modern civilization thrusts upon us make possible a life fuller and more glorious than ever before.

Nevertheless, the fact remains that every new complexity means a new problem as well as a new opportunity; and we're not to be blamed if sometimes we experience a sort of dazed and helpless feeling in the face of it all.

Only those marriages are valid which are contracted before the parish priest or the ordinary of the place or a priest delegated by either of these, and at least two witnesses, according to the rules laid down in the following articles, and saving the exceptions mentioned under VII. and VIII.

A Prayer for Every Man. Give me the patience that is useful; Give me contentment that from patience gives life; Give me the victory that Thy power hath won; Give me the rest that is for work well done.

Give me the wisdom that never greater can be than wisdom that a sinful man; Give me the trust that Thy power creates; Give me the riches that Thy Wisdom makes; Give me the love that is each man's blessing; Give me the help that overcomes all stonings; Give me the death that is the one that can make me like Thee, who art both God and man.

CATHOLIC LAW ON MARRIAGE

(From the Tablet.) Decree concerning "Sponsalia" and Matrimony issued by the Sacred Congregation of the Council by the order and with the authority of our Holy Father, Pope Pius X.

The Council of Trent made prudent provision against the rash celebration of clandestine marriages, which the Church of God for most just reasons has always detested and forbidden, by decreeing: "Those who otherwise than in the presence of the parish priest himself or of another priest acting with the license of the parish priest, or of an ordinary, and in the presence of two or three witnesses, shall attempt to contract matrimony, the Holy Synod renders altogether incapable of contracting marriage ties, and decrees that contracts of this kind are null and void."

But as the same sacred council prescribed that the parishes and was not to have in force except in those places in which it had been promulgated, it has happened that many places in which the publication has not been made have been deprived of the benefit of the Tridentine law, and are still without it, as continue to be subject to the doubts and inconveniences of the old discipline.

Not less all difficulty being removed in those places where the new law has been in force. For often there has been grave doubt in deciding as to the person of the parish priest before whom a marriage is to be celebrated. The canonical discipline did indeed decide that he is to be regarded as the parish priest in whose parish one or other of the contracting parties has his or her domicile or quasi-domicile. But as it is sometimes difficult to judge whether a quasi-domicile really exists in a specified case, not a few marriages were exposed to the danger of nullity; many, too, either owing to ignorance or fraud, have been found to be quite illegitimate and void.

These deplorable results have been seen to happen more frequently in our own time on account of the increased facility and celerity of intercommunication between the different countries, even those most widely separated. It has therefore seemed expedient to wise and learned men to introduce some change into the law regulating the form of the celebration of marriage, and a great many Bishops in all parts of the world, but especially in the more populous States, where the necessity appears more urgent, have petitioned the Holy See to this end.

It has also been asked by very many Bishops in Europe, as well as by others in various regions, that provision should be made to prevent the inconveniences arising from sponsalia, that is, mutual promises of marriage, privately entered upon. For experience has sufficiently shown the many dangers of such sponsalia, first of all, the temptation of sin and causing the deception of inexperienced girls, and afterwards giving rise to inextinguishable dissensions and disputes.

Influenced by these circumstances our Holy Father Pope Pius X., desiring in the solicitude he bears for all the churches, to introduce some modifications in the law of matrimony, has drawn up and committed to the Sacred Congregation of the Council the task of examining into the matter and of proposing to himself the measures it should deem opportune.

He was pleased also to have the opinion of the Commission appointed for the codification of laws, as well as of the eminent Cardinals chosen to assist the Sacred Congregation of the Council, frequent meetings have been held for this purpose. The opinions of all having been taken, His Holiness ordered the Sacred Congregation of the Council to issue a decree containing the laws, approved by himself on sure knowledge and after mature deliberation, by which the discipline regarding sponsalia and marriage is to be regulated for the future and the celebration of them carried out in a sure and orderly manner.

In execution, therefore, of the apostolic mandate the Sacred Congregation of the Council by these letters lays down and decrees what follows:

I. Only those are considered valid and produce canonical effects, which have been contracted in writing signed by both the parties and by either the parish priest or the ordinary of the place, or at least by two witnesses.

II. Here and in the following article the parish priest is to be understood not only a priest legitimately presiding over a parish canonically erected, but in regions where parishes are not canonically erected the priest to whom the care of souls has been legitimately intrusted in any specified district and who is equivalent to a parish priest and in missions where the territory has not yet been erected, every priest generally deputed by the superior of the mission for the care of souls in any station.

III. Only those marriages are valid which are contracted before the parish priest or the ordinary of the place or a priest delegated by either of these, and at least two witnesses, according to the rules laid down in the following articles, and saving the exceptions mentioned under VII. and VIII.

IV. The parish priest and the ordinary of the place validly assist at a marriage: (i.) Only from the day they have taken possession of the benefice or entered upon their office, unless they have been named or suspended from the office; (ii.) Only within the limits of their territory within which they assist validly at marriage not only of their own subjects, but also of those not subject to them; (iii.) Provided when invited and asked, and not compelled by violence or by grave fear they demand and receive the consent of the contracting parties.

V. They assist licitly: (i.) When they have legitimately ascertained the free state of the contracting parties, having duly complied with the conditions laid down by the law; (ii.) When they have ascertained that one of the contracting parties has a domicile or at least has lived for a month in the place where the marriage takes place; (iii.) If this condition be lacking the parish priest and the ordinary of the place, to assist licitly at a marriage, require the permission of the parish priest or the ordinary of one of the contracting parties, unless it be a case of grave necessity, which excuses from this permission:

(iv.) Concerning persons without fixed abode (vagos), except in case of necessity it is not lawful for a parish priest to assist at their marriage until they report the matter to the ordinary or to a priest delegated by him and obtain permission to assist;

(v.) In every case let it be held as the rule that the marriage is to be celebrated before the parish priest of the bride, unless some just cause excuses from this.

VI. The parish priest and the ordinary of the place may grant permission to another priest, specified and certain, to assist at marriages within the limits of his district.

The delegated priest, in order to assist validly and licitly, is bound to observe the limits of his mandate and the rules laid down above in IV. and V., for the parish priest and the ordinary of the place.

VII. When danger of death is imminent and where the parish priest or the ordinary of the place or a priest delegated by either of these cannot be had, in order to provide for the relief of conscience and (should the case require it) for the legitimation of offspring, marriages may be contracted validly and licitly before any priest, or two witnesses.

VIII. Should it happen that in any district the parish priest or the ordinary of the place or a priest delegated by either of them, before whom marriage can be celebrated, is not to be had, and that this condition of things has lasted for a month, marriage may be validly and licitly entered upon by the formal declaration of consent made by the spouses in the presence of two witnesses.

IX. (i.) After the celebration of a marriage the parish priest or he who takes his place is to write at once in the book of marriages the names of the couple and of the witnesses, the place and day of the celebration of the marriage and the other details, according to the method prescribed in the ritual books or by the ordinary; and this even when another priest delegated either by the parish priest himself or by the ordinary has assisted at the marriage.

(ii.) Moreover, the parish priest is to note also in the book of baptisms that the married person, contracted on such a day in his parish. If the married person has been baptized elsewhere the parish priest who has assisted in the marriage is to transmit, either directly or through the episcopal curia, the announcement of the marriage that has taken place to the parish priest of the place where the person was baptized.

X. Parish priests who violate the rules thus laid down are to be punished by their ordinaries according to the nature and gravity of their transgression. Moreover, if they assist at the marriage of anybody in violation of the rules laid down in (i.) and (ii.) of No. V, they are not to appropriate the stole fees, but must remit them to the parish priest of the contracting parties.

XI. (i.) The above laws are binding on all persons baptized in the Catholic Church and on those who have been converted to it from heresy or schism, even when either the latter or the former have fallen away afterward from the Church, whenever they contract sponsalia or marriage with one another.

(ii.) The same laws are binding also on the same Catholics as above, if they contract sponsalia or marriage with non-Catholics, baptized or unbaptized, even when dispensation has been obtained from the impediment mixta religionis or disparitatis cultus, unless the Holy See decree otherwise for some particular place or region.

(iii.) Non-Catholics, whether baptized or unbaptized, who contract among themselves, are nowhere bound to observe the Catholic form of sponsalia or marriage. The present decree is to be held as legitimately published and promulgated by its transmission to the ordinaries, and its provisions being to have the force of law from the solemn feast of the Resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ, next year, 1908.

Meanwhile let all the ordinaries of the dioceses in which this decree has been made public as soon as possible and explained in the different parochial churches of their dioceses in order that it may be known by all.

These presents are to have force by the special order of our Most Holy Father Pope Pius X., all things, even those worthy of special mention, to the contrary notwithstanding. Given at Rome on the 2nd day of August in the year 1907. Vincent, C. De Lai, Secretary.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS. ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-West Provinces, excepting 3 and 30, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person the holder of the fee of the land, or male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section, of 160 acres, more or less. Application for homestead entry must be made in person by the applicant at the office of the local Agent or Sub-Agent. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of an intending homesteader. An application for entry or inspection made personally at any Sub-agent's office may be wired to the local Agent by the Sub-agent, at the expense of the applicant, and if the land applied for is vacant on receipt of the telegram such application is to have priority and the land will be held until the necessary papers to complete the transaction are received by the local Agent. In case of "personation" the entry will be summarily cancelled and the applicant will forfeit the fee of his application. An application for inspection must be made in person. The applicant must be eligible for homestead entry, and only one application for inspection will be received from an individual until that application has been disposed of. A homesteader whose entry is in good standing and not liable to cancellation, may, subject to the local Agent's requirements, relinquish it in favor of father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister, if eligible, but to no one else, on filing declaration of abandonment. Where an entry is summarily cancelled, or if subsequently the statement is found to be incorrect in material particulars, the applicant will lose any prior right of re-entry, should the land become vacant, or a new entry has been granted it may be summarily cancelled. DUTIES.—A settler is required to perform the conditions under one of the following plans: (1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years. (2) If the settler is a farmer, and the father is deceased, or a homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered or if the settler has a permanent residence in the vicinity of the land entered, the requirements may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother. (3) If the settler is a miner, and the requirements may be satisfied by residence upon such land. Before making application for patent the settler must file a statement in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa, of his intention to do so. MINING REGULATIONS. COAL.—Coal mining rights may be leased for a period of twenty years at an annual rental of $5 per acre. Not more than 2,500 acres shall be leased to one individual or company. A royalty at the rate of five cents per ton shall be collected on the merchantable coal mined. QUARTZ.—A person eighteen years of age, or over, who has discovered a mineral in place, may locate a claim 1,000 x 1,000 feet. The fee for recording a claim is $5. At least $100 must be expended on the claim each year or paid to the mining recorder in lieu thereof. When $500 has been expended or paid, the homesteader may, after a survey made, and upon complying with other requirements, purchase the land at $1 per acre. The patent provides for the payment of a royalty of 2 1/2 per cent. on the sales. Placer mining claims generally are 100 feet square; entry fee $5, renewable yearly. An applicant may obtain two leases to dredge for gold in any one year for a term of twenty years, renewable at the discretion of the Minister of the Interior. The lessee shall have a dredge in operation within one season from the date of the lease for each five miles. Rental $10 per annum for each five miles, plus 2 1/2 per cent. on the output after it exceeds $10,000. Deputy of the Minister of the Interior. N.B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

GYM. OPENING.

Y. M. C. A. Classes Will be Resumed Next Week.

Next Monday night will see the opening of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Mr. Barton says the outlook for the coming year is the best in the history of the association. The gymnasium floor has been cleaned, apparatus put in shape and everything in readiness.

Classes have been arranged for the boy of ten, and for the young man, and older man up to seventy years of age. Those intending to join the classes should secure a copy of the gymnasium circular and get into line at once. All members of the association are given an examination free of charge. This examination alone is worth five times the membership fee, because one is enabled to know his weak point, then he is given a special line of work to build up these weak points, and thus going at his work from a scientific standpoint.

The business men's class, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, at 5 p. m., should meet the needs of a large number of business and professional men, because if a man wants to do the best business and professional work, he must keep his muscles toned up to the highest point of perfection. This can best be done in the gymnasium, where scientific body-building is taught.

The course of study offered between by the Young Men's Christian Association is scientific.

Mr. Barton has been engaged by the Cleveland, Ohio, association, one of the largest in the state, to give a series of lectures on Saturday afternoon to the juniors, evening to men and women, and on Sunday afternoon he will speak at the large Sunday afternoon meeting.

No Sympathy With Hoodlums. (Sir Charles Tupper.)

I must confess to having been greatly surprised on arriving in Canada to learn about the anti-Asian riots in Vancouver. I quite realize that they were instigated by American agitators from Seattle, but it is most unfortunate that they should have happened in Canada, a part of the British Empire which is likely to benefit greatly by the presence of the Japanese.

THE MYSTERIOUS OKAPI.

Lieut. Alexander Tells How He Caught One of the Shyest of Animals.

Lieut. Boyd Alexander told the Royal Geographical Society in London recently how he captured an okapi in Africa a year ago. The okapi is a variety of antelope and is among the shyest of creatures—so shy that few African natives have ever seen it and no white hunter had heard of it up to the time a specimen was discovered by Sir Harry Johnston some years ago.

The okapi taken by Lieut. Alexander could not be taken alive to Europe. It was so timid and shrinking that it could not thrive in the presence of man, and then the difficulties of travel forbade its transportation. Its skin is now being mounted for the Natural History Museum London.

Lieut. Alexander said that at Angu, on the Welle-Makua, he first heard of the okapi in that region. The party spent three weeks in the effort to obtain a specimen.

They found that its haunts are small streams running through swampy grounds where grows a plant some six feet high, whose young shoots, bunching at the top, are an essential part of the animal's food. Here it roams about, singly or in pairs, and the natives said that sometimes three are found together.

The natives added that they had very seldom seen the animal, and this statement was readily believed, for Capt. Gosling, although he had certain evidence on three occasions that he was near the animal, did not catch a glimpse of it, for it was perfectly concealed among the leaves. But three weeks of study revealed its habits well.

In the night the okapi wanders along in the mud and water in search of its food. Capt. Gosling found it feeding as late as 8 a. m., but after this hour the animal retires to the seclusion of the forest, where it remains until nightfall. Owing to its restless nature and keen hearing, the thick foliage of the plant on which it feeds and the perfect seclusion of its forest retreats, the natives say they are never able to kill the okapi with their weapons; it is almost impossible to track it and the few specimens they have killed were trapped in pits.

Jose Lopez, a Portuguese collector in the employ of Lieut. Alexander, followed a solitary animal for three successive mornings in the neighborhood of a stream. He observed that on leaving the water the okapi always took the same course between two large trees about 100 yards from the stream.

With the help of the natives he dug a pit four and a half feet deep between the trees and carefully concealed it with branches and leaves. Early the next morning he again approached the stream and heard the noise of the okapi as it rushed away. An instant later there was a crash and the little animal was struggling in the pit. The native assistants, lying in wait, at once secured it.

The natives say they know no other animal so mysterious as the okapi. In their opinion it is always on the move and never lies down to sleep. Lopez's observations seem to bear out this assertion. On every occasion when he heard it feeding it simply paused to take a leaf here and there and then moved on again.

Dr. Ray Lankester is now examining all the skins and skulls of the okapi that have thus far been brought to Europe—about twenty. Nearly every specimen differs greatly from every other specimen. It is one of the most variable animals that have come under Dr. Lankester's observation.

SHIPS OUTGROWING DOCKS.

Increasing Size of All Warships Presents a Problem.

One of the pressing problems of the near future for all the great naval powers is the provision of docks adequate for the large ships which are now being constructed.

The tendency to build larger vessels is seen not only in battleships and armored cruisers, says Cassier's Magazine, but also in the smaller vessels specially designed for torpedo warfare.

The earliest British submarine was a small vessel displacing 120 tons. The latest development of the type displaces upward of 300 tons.

Again, the latest torpedo boats are larger than the torpedo boat destroyers of a decade or so ago, and the most recent destroyers now approximate in displacement to third-class cruisers.

For the present the British fleet is fairly well provided with large docks. Owing to the recent completion of the dockyard extension scheme at Devonport, at a cost of about 5,000,000 sterling, there are now in the British Empire thirteen Government docks and six colonial and private docks which can take the Dreadnought, and there are five other Government and two private docks in the United Kingdom as well as two colonial docks which can accommodate the Lord Nelson battleships, which are 80 feet shorter and 2 1/2 feet narrower than the Dreadnought.

The idea is that the British authorities will imitate the forward policy initiated with the Navy Department in the case of the Dewey, and will construct several large floating docks which can be moved from point to point in accordance with the strategic necessities of the moment. The same problem of docking accommodation for these huge ships will have to be solved by all the great naval powers, and where satisfactory sheltered waterways can be secured many arguments can be advanced in support of the policy of movable docks apart from considerations of economy.

This tendency on the part of the British authorities has already found expression in the construction of a large number of mobile repair ships for the torpedo flotillas and of the provision of a floating dock for submarines.

Another step in the direction of increased mobility has been taken. There is now nearing completion a remarkable ship called the Cyclops, which may be styled a seagoing dockyard.

This vessel has a displacement of 11,300 tons at a load draught of 21 feet. She is 463 feet long with a draught of 55 feet, and her machinery is expected to give a speed of 12 knots. For armament the Cyclops will carry only ten 3 pounder quick-firing guns as a means of defence against attack by torpedo craft. The interior of the ship resembles a concentrated dockyard. The Cyclops is being equipped with carpenter, blacksmith and armorer shops and a large foundry where new castings can be made. The vessel is also provided with equipment for dealing with electrical work, and has a cooper's workshop, and she is being fitted with a travelling crane. She is expected to prove an invaluable fleet auxiliary.

AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

Coal Dealer—I hope you push business even after hours, John.

Clerk—I always do, sir. I call upon a different friend every night, and never leave until I see a large fire going.

What She Called Him.

The discussion was over the proper pronunciation of the word "chaffeur."

"They were all native sons, and the argument was entirely friendly."

"It's a 'show-fir,'" declared one.

"Never," insisted another, "it's 'chaffur.'"

"Not much," interposed a third, "it's 'shef-fur.'"

"Ah," interrupted another, "here comes Bruce Cornwall. He's a prominent member of Stanford parlor, lawyer, and all that; and, besides, he runs a machine, so he'll know."

"Sh," cautioned one of the group. "Bruce has only been married a few weeks and the thing that would please him most would be to ask him how Mrs. Cornwall pronounces 'chef-fur.'"

"Hello! Bruce, old man! Glad to see you. Accept my congratulations! Say, by the way, what does your wife call the fellow who drives her auto?"

"Well," and Cornwall crimsoned, "we're all native sons together, and I don't mind telling you. She calls him 'dearie.'"

A Good Start is Half the Race

The best start toward a successful day is a dish of delicious, wholesome Grape-Nuts food and cream, for breakfast. The crisp, firm, "nutty" granules indicate firm flesh and crackling good humor. Its value lies in the stored-up energy and tissue-repairing material in whole wheat and barley, so prepared by slow heat and moisture, and subsequent thorough baking, that "all there is" in these cereals is retained and made perfectly digestible.

Let the meat go for breakfast and supper, take on Grape-Nuts in its place, and

YOU WILL FEEL LIKE A NEW PERSON

A breakfast of Grape-Nuts and cream, toast, and a cup of well made Postum Food Coffee will put you away ahead of the meat eater at the start of the day's business, and his handicap will only increase the "gap" as the hourly "laps" are made.

By noon, lunch will be relished, and the digestive organs in fine condition to give you a good send-off for the rest of the day, and the thrill of a steady nerve and a success-winning brain.

It's an easy matter for the man who "gets tired between meals" to prove that there's a reason for Myster of Confederate Millions Is Cleared Up.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—What became of the millions of dollars in gold and silver taken by President Davis and his official family when the Confederate government abandoned Richmond?

For forty-two years this question has been asked and conflicting answers have been given by persons supposed to have been in positions giving opportunity for substantial and truthful explanations.

A large number of persons believed that Mr. Davis managed to get possession of the coin entrusted to the care of the Confederate government. But evidence is conclusive that the Confederacy's president had no hand in its "slipping away."

A still larger number believe that the soldiers of the Union army stole the coin when the wagons in which it was loaded were overtaken and captured at a point near Washington, Ga. There is no evidence to this effect.

Some people think the money was buried deep in Georgia soil. There are all kinds of opinions about the disappearance of the millions, but perhaps no more trustworthy explanation can be furnished than that of Judge Shepherd, a former attorney of this city, a respected citizen and a former officer in Vaugan's brigade. Judge Shepherd finally said:

"The story is an old one to many persons living in this State, and I regret to say that the disreputable actions of some of the star performers do not reflect credit on the Confederate government."

"The money was not hidden in the mountains as it is said to have been, but was carried away by the Confederacy's president and his family."

"Before they reached Charlotte Richmond and the money was hidden in a few ways. Some of the money was carried away by the Confederacy's president and his family."

Winter Coat.

This comfortable garment for mountain or cold weather wear is made very full with a box pleat over each shoulder. The material is a grey mixture and the collar and cuffs are of tan kid with buttons made of the goods in tan colored ring moulds. The back is like the front except fuller and has a seam down the centre.

Puzzles of the Airbrake.

"So important are the airbrakes on railroad trains nowadays that a fireman seeking promotion is examined more rigidly in regard to his knowledge of the apparatus governing them than as to his understanding of the operation of a locomotive."

"Moreover, the examination on the 'air' is made so pass that on the engine itself for the ordinary fireman, it is absolutely necessary that each new engineer shall know all about the working of the airbrakes and their effect upon short and long trains under all sorts of conditions, and until he gains this knowledge there is no chance of his getting his grade."

"The introduction of the emergency brake is largely responsible for this state of affairs, for this invention, useful as it has been, is productive of mischief."

"In the early days of the airbrake when the 'straight air' system was used the whole apparatus consisted of a main reservoir on the engine, with a single connection with all the brake cylinders back through the train. When the engineer wanted to apply the brakes he turned the handle of a three-way cock in the cab, which allowed the air pressure from the engine reservoir to rush back through the train, and the air filled each brake cylinder, forcing the brake shoes against the wheels. This old system had many weak points. One of these was that in a long train the air pressure in the reservoir was not great enough to fill the cylinders throughout the length of the train, and gave a slow acting brake of low power."

"But the more vital defect was that if a train was running down hill, say, and a hose connection broke on any part of the train the engineer was helpless, and nothing would prevent the train from slipping except the prompt application of the hand brakes."

"Then automatic brakes were introduced, which did away with both of these failings. In this system an air tank or reservoir is attached to each car, and each car has its own cylinder. This tank is filled with air under pressure from the engine and is controlled by a valve which is attached to the brake cylinder. This valve has three functions—it releases the air from the auxiliary reservoir when the engineer wants to apply the brakes, it allows the air to rush back into the cylinder when the brakes are to be released, and it also opens a hole through which the air escapes from the engine tank, once more charging the auxiliary reservoir."

"Now with this system, when the engineer wants to put on the brakes, instead of turning on the air as a matter of fact he draws it off. The pressure in the reservoir of each car being say, seven or eight pounds, a certain amount of the air is drawn off, the pressure in the reservoir falls, and the air in the cylinder is forced out, causing the brake shoes to press against the wheels. This valve has three functions—it releases the air from the auxiliary reservoir when the engineer wants to apply the brakes, it allows the air to rush back into the cylinder when the brakes are to be released, and it also opens a hole through which the air escapes from the engine tank, once more charging the auxiliary reservoir."

Fine American Shoes

Our large stock of fine American Shoes is up to date in every particular. So also is our stock of "Hagar Shoes," the FINEST and BEST Shoes made in Canada—the "Gold Medal" shoes at the Toronto Exhibition.

If you have made it your business to observe the shoe styles, you will have noticed that we are always one season in advance of the other dealers. In other words, styles which we introduce this season will be offered by the other dealers next season.

Much in a Name

Where you see such names as Hurley, Hagar, Kneeland, Barry, Sorosis or Porter stamped on a shoe, you can rely on it that the best material and workmanship has produced the shoe—but all of this is of no use to you unless you own a pair. Now, won't you try a pair of these celebrated shoes and enjoy foot comfort?

One Pair Sells Another Pair

When we sell a pair of Hagar Shoes to woman or man, we know that that pair will sell another pair for us, and that the customer will come back to this store when in need of another pair of shoes. It is by keeping such reliable shoes and marking the selling price in plain figures at a fair profit (only one price asked or accepted), that we have built up such a solid business.

BEST STORIES OF A WEEK.

Bishop Teabot, long and lovingly known as the "Caraway Bishop," but now Bishop of Central, formerly visited the city of Richmond, Va. on his way to the West, because, although having ardently to churchly standards, he was a man who was not afraid to stand up for his rights.

The head gamekeeper could not quite believe that a bishop should shoot—he said before the Lord—and so it was with much mingling that he first led the way to where there would be rabbits, he liked the Bishop as everybody does, and was keenly solicitous over what he felt sure would be failure.

The professor answered that ordinary mental exercise was sufficient to secure a good memory, says the Boston Herald, whereas the student asked if he might test the mental capacity of his instructor.

Men are often discontented without reason, but often they have good ground for their grumbling, and it is because their efforts are stupid or lazy that conditions do not improve.

"I remember once visiting a pompous, handsome, stupid army officer. During my visit, a private approached the officer with a full cup and saucer in his hand. 'Well, bless my man,' said the officer in a condescending tone. 'I'll ask you to taste this here. I won't make no complaint, I'll just ask you to taste this, and if you don't say by—'

"That will do, Binks," the captain interrupted in his dignified way, for Binks was getting very angry, and he took the cup from the man, bent forward stiffly, and swallowed a couple of mouthfuls of the liquid. "Then he looked at the private calmly. 'This is not bad,' he said. 'I can't taste anything wrong with this, Binks. By the way, what is it—tea or coffee?'

Rear Admiral Longbecker (retired) remarking recently to The New York Tribune on the subject of discontent among soldiers and sailors, said:

Frenzied Finance. A Richmond lawyer was consulted not long since by a colored man who complained that another negro owed him three dollars, and he had been unable to get it. WORLD OF AMUSEMENT

MUCH MONEY IN THEATRICAL ENTERPRISES

In these days of commercial progress there is in all likelihood no branch of industry which shows such a revolution of method and material advancement as the amusement business. Time was when the Thespian travelled about the country in caravans or barn-stormed in actual reality, being regarded by the social structure as a kind of Pariah and regarded by them as a curiosity in much the same manner as they might a lion or sacred bull, a theatrical enterprise, requiring at the utmost $300 or $400. Now the business has grown and expanded until at the present day many theatrical undertakings require investments of capital which would run a very large manufacturing plant or build an ocean steamship. The amount of capital invested by the large theatrical firms is almost beyond the comprehension of the uninitiated. Such men as Klaw & Erlanger, Charles Frohman, Wright Lorimer, Henry W. Savage and others have amounts of money invested in the amusement business that easily runs up into the millions. The business of these men is conducted with an exactitude and general system which is the envy of the largest and most powerful corporations in the country. The Standard Oil Company or the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroad systems could learn many commercial advantages from the bright men who furnish amusement to the great theatre-going public, while the staid, conservative man of finance would see the large amounts of money which daily pass through their clearing houses. They give employment at more than fair salaries to thousands of employees and so keep the wheels of industry turning in many branches of trade.

As an example, take productions of the character of Ben Hur or Wright Lorimer's tremendous production of "The Shepherd King" to be exact, the "Shepherd King" company in Mr. Lorimer's management gives employment directly to 223 people. This does not take into consideration the employees of the theatre while the production is being played. The painters, lithographers, artists and engravers, costumers and scene painters, carpenters and electricians, who build the production or the railroad transportation men who take it from point to point. To transport "The Shepherd King" company, its scenery, properties and costumes, requires five cars and in nearly every case a special train. Over $85,000 has been invested in the equipment and the pay roll exceeds $3,000 weekly. For a six weeks' stand something like fifty tons of paper is used in the printed matter and $1,500 for postage. Press representatives and advance men supplement the work of a splendidly equipped business force and the thoroughly comprehensive department of newspaper publicity. And the work is done and well done by a marvelous system, and to make the books balance a tremendous business must be done at the box-office. The modern theatre-goers appreciate good things. Let the production see the manager is very richly rewarded. Theatrical managers, of course, have to look out for the public with what the public demands. But for all that they are constantly striving after better things and the American stage is certainly growing better and better. It is doing more than a commercial spirit which prompted Mr. Lorimer to produce "The Shepherd King" and Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger to produce "Ben Hur." It was not altogether dollars which induced Mr. Savage to produce "Parsifal" in English, which caused Mr. Joseph Murphy, or W. H. Crane, although he spends a lot of money in his home.

When David Garrick died it was found that he left one hundred thousand pounds, which was the largest estate which had been accumulated by any actor up to that time. In his will he gave everything to his family, barring a few legacies to the members of his own family. He did not leave a single remembrance to any of his friends, but in looking over his papers—he kept every letter that had been written to him and a copy of every letter that he wrote, had sent during his life—it was found that he had given away a great deal of money to various charities.

Edwin Booth put a lot of his money into the ill-fated Booth's theatre in New York and saw that fortune wiped away. He made another out of which he created the Players' club and gave a clubhouse which remains one of the best in New York.

Joseph Jefferson, who made a great deal of his money during his long and active life, put some of it into a plantation in Louisiana and more of it into a home on Buzzards Bay with the same mer home of his friend and fishing companion, Grover Cleveland.

General Gossip

Many plays are being written in which there is no confederacy. Many plays succeed in living from the rise of the curtain to the going down of the stage without the production of a sentence in which there is mention of Lord So-and-so or Lady Such-and-such. That all this is true means that there has been a revolution in the business of writing for the stage, and that in the revolution much of the aristocracy that used to walk through marble halls on the stage has been overthrown.

Writers for the stage have begun to write about things that they know about, and, as all of them are not intimately acquainted with the goings out and comings in of royalty, many of the so-called aristocratic plays have gone out of existence. This is a good thing. It opens the door to many ambitious playwrights who are capable of writing good plays, but who know nothing about the gingerbread decorations with which it used to be necessary to cover a play that was intended for consumption by the aristocracy who dearly loved a lord.

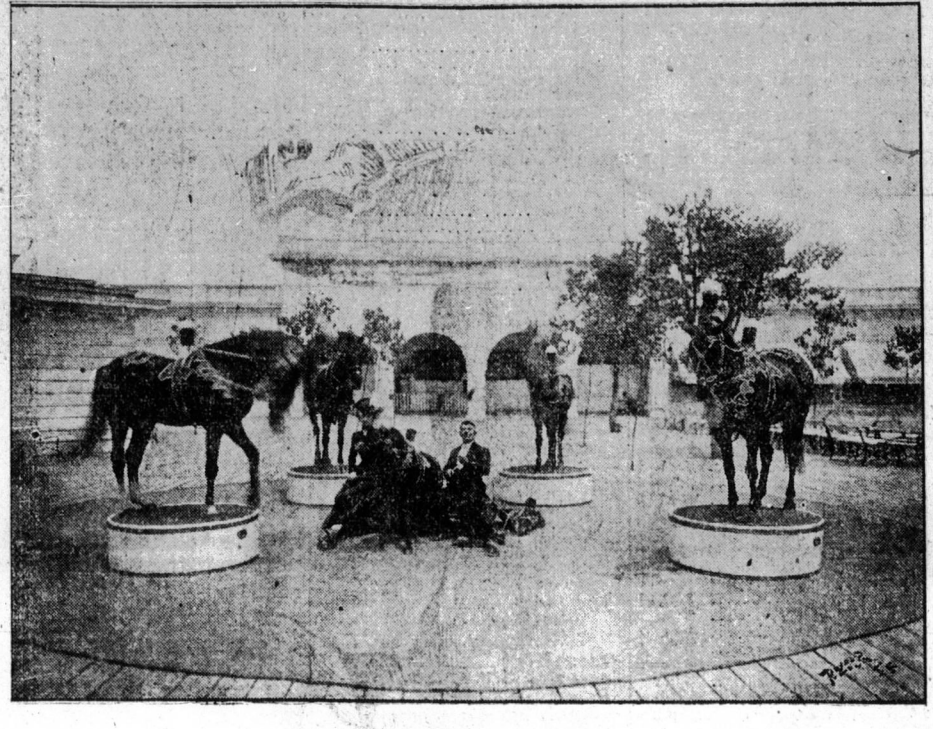

The latterly keen shafts of W. S. Gilbert did away with much of the buncombe that attached to the worship of nobility, as it also did its share toward dissipating the clouds of incense that used to surge up around the eulgs of the ultra refined. The good, sound sense of some of the American playwrights did away with much of the nonsense that was left after Gilbert got through. The recent history of theatrical successes and failures shows that the taste for the "aristocratic drama" is not as keen as it used to be, and that there is a growing sentiment in favor of the blue shirt money with which to buy a bed in even the cheapest lodging house, and he is not ashamed of the poverty out of which he rose.

Some of the actors and actresses that have risen to renown have spent long years in the bondage of repertory companies and in the drudgery of stock work. Frances Starr, David Belasco's latest star, began her career in stock companies and played in them. Belasco discovered her. Nat Goodwin and Francis Wilson and other actors were minstrels back in the days when minstrels got small salaries and frequently did not get them at all.

Out of the hardships attendant upon playing in medicine shows many actors have struggled to firm footing upon the legitimate stage. May Irwin came from the varieties, and so did Lillian Russell and Eddie Foy and many, many more. Miss Russell made her New York debut in 1880 at Tony Pastor's, and so for twenty-seven years she has been conspicuous. Her path has been a comparatively easy one as compared with the hard road that many of her fellow and sister players had to travel.

Those who appreciate what is clearest and most original in the vaudeville world will find it in the show at the Savoy, "Hamilton's Home of Advanced Vaudeville," next week. It is an all-star bill throughout, and owing to the uniform importance of the acts they are given without position indicating their value. Mme. Etolie's six society circus horses and Vinella's boxing stallions are sure to prove a thoroughly enjoyable feature. The act is one of the cleverest and prettiest playing the Klaw-Erlanger circuit. The animals give a fine performance. Mme. Etolie is an rather than the dress coat, and the wide outdoors instead of the flower filled rooms of smart setty drawing rooms.

Although Ellis Jeffreys, Fannie Ward, Mrs. Clara Bloodgood and other players have come to the stage from drawing rooms, and have had plenty of money before going upon the stage, most of the actors and actresses that have gone far have started in poverty.

When Maude Adams was learning her art she used to wear clothes that were made for her by her mother, Mrs. Annie Adams, an actress, and she herself tells of several of those jackets and skirts that were turned and patched and remade times without number.

Julia Martineau also had a hard beginning and this although she went upon the stage young. She played Sir Joseph Porter in "Pinafore" when she was in her teens, but she did not get all the money she earned.

Fay Templeton was in her girlhood a member of the touring company headed by her father, John Templeton, and she endured many hardships before she got into a position in which she was permitted to use any considerable part of the money she earned.

Before Richard Mansfield established himself in favor he knew the pains of actual hunger.

"I have walked the streets hungry," he has said. "I know what it is to be without a crust."

Joseph Jefferson played in Chicago when he was a little boy with his father and his mother, who never drew enough money to make their path in life easy. Abraham Lincoln appeared as the lawyer for the Jeffersons in Springfield, where the local authorities sought to impose some penalty upon the travelling actors.

Both Maxine Elliott and Gertrude Elliott knew privations in their childhood. They were residents of a little village in Maine, and their parents went to New York and the world's goods. Maxine went to New York and went on the stage, and her sister followed soon after, and since those days neither of them has had to trouble about money.

When Ethel Barrymore was a little girl she was carried around the country by her brilliant father, Maurice Barrymore, and her equally brilliant mother, Georgia Drew Barrymore. She often slept in dressing rooms, and as the fortunes of the Barrymores not always were in consonance with their deserts, little Ethel often knew what it was to want a great many things that she could not get.

The heavy weight juggling and balancing is very showy. He juggles numerous articles of furniture, including a bed, bureau, washstand and other articles, and for a finish balances the girl on two chairs which he supports on his chin. The Elite musical quartet, a quartette of clever musicians, play many instruments, and everything from opera to ragtime. They are sure to contribute a delightful number. Josephine Davis, a dainty comedienne, another clever act, and the moving pictures make up a great bill. Following is the musical programme which will be rendered next week by the house orchestra, under the leadership of Mr. H. A. Martin:

Selection—The Gingerbread Man (A. Baldwin Sloane)

Intermezzo—Nippono. Harry J. Lincoln

Waltz—Dreaming, arranged J. B. Lampe

March—Id Rather "Two-Step" Than Waltz, Bill. Arranged J. B. Lampe

At the Grand

The Shuberts announce that their latest and greatest English importation, "The Blue Moon," in which James T. Powers is being starred, and who is supported by a particularly capable company, will come to the Grand the week after next. "The Blue Moon" was an unequalled success abroad for two solid years, and its cordial reception so far this season would lead one to surmise that it will go down in theatrical records as one of the most substantial and pleasing musical comedies that England has ever sent us. Miss Lucille Johnson, of this city, is a member of Mr. Powers' company.

From the beginning of the action to the final curtain of Wright Lorimer's massive Biblical spectacle, "The Shepherd King," there is nothing to repel the eye, far the ear or insult the intelligence. Europe and America has given their best in costume, in scene painting, and in cast, to make it a feast of wisdom, of beauty and a satisfaction to the heart's best cravings. Mr. Eckstrom, in the part of David, is extremely convincing. One can but imagine they see the shepherd boy step from the pages of the Bible into real life upon the stage. David, in "The Shepherd King," is not merely a manikin on which to hang tawdry trappings. He is a man full-blooded in his youth, strong of heart and clear of brain in his kingship, and as gentle as a lover. It is natural that the poetic side of David should present itself with much force to Mr. Lorimer. Few dramatists or stars would have paid so clear a tribute to the softer side of the King. The hue and cry of court life, the noise and rush of war and the merely spectacular side of David would arouse their interest and command their pens. Mr. Lorimer has assumed from the first that the David of his play and his role creation should display in successive steps the moulding of the character and the continuity of the dramatic story. In "The Shepherd King," therefore, it is spread out as a picture framed in vivid coloring, softened here and there by quieter grays and mellow semi-tones, that grand story of a humble beginning; of poet's fancies, of valor and high-mindedness, width of shoulder and strength of forearm, leading to power and to the plaudits of the whole people; until, finally, in the ripeness of manhood, with enemies routed, but not despised, with the love of a tender woman to soothe him and the arms of a victorious army to uphold him, David stands a king in very flesh and blood, the master of his own, the ruler of a willing people.

The appearance at the Grand of "The Shepherd King" on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights will be one of the most important engagements of the season. Seats are now on sale.

"The Right of Way" will be presented at the Grand Opera House next month.

De Wolf Hopper, with his five score assistants, including a dainty, delicious, demure and delightful Marguerite Clark, will present "Happyland," a comic opera of such artistic value and worth that it has been presented. The production is one of bewildering splendor, the costuming of dazzling beauty; which, together with the brilliancy and originality of the book and music and portrayed by such a large, clever and capable company, little more can be desired in the way of the completeness of the entertainment. "Happyland," in its entirety, comes to the Grand shortly.

In all the daintiness and niceness of her "Marrying Mary," clever Marie Cahill has scored a signal triumph and will be seen here at the Grand Opera House Monday night, September 30th. Those who have called for more story and more plot in musical plays have been vindicated in this most interesting effort of Edwin Milton Royle, and the music by Siglo Hein and lyrics by Benjamin Haggood Burt, have proved a most fitting decoration to the book. "Marrying Mary" is really a great musical play, for it marks the creation of a new class of entertainment.

There will be no files on the bill at Bennett's next week, as one of the strongest aggregations of vaudeville artists has been gathered together.

First and foremost there is the sketch, "The Sailor and the Horse," in which Harry La Rose, the well known fun producer, is shining. Manager Driscoll has secured a horse that is bony enough for the part and it is now propped up in the animals' room, in the rear of the theatre. The Times Democrat, of New Orleans, says about this act:

"What stands as the feature of the bill at the St. Charles Orpheum is the Harry LaRose Company in a comedy, entitled, 'The Sailor and the Horse.' It is a novel and altogether remarkable clever sketch with a whirlwind finish."

Another headliner is the act of Mr. and Mrs. Allison. The Boston Traveller says of this:

"There is an act in the Keith programme this week that offers a new variety of comedy and consequently has been one of the hits of the show. Mr. and Mrs. Allison (without any front names) are presenting a sketch called 'Minnie from Minnesota,' which it is easy to suppose gives Mrs. Allison a good chance to discuss things in general in Swedish dialect. She does it, too. Mr. Allison just sits around and sings while his laugh-making wife abuses the English language. Swedish dialect is not particularly easy to acquire, unless you happen to be a Swede, and it has possibilities of humor that cannot be exceeded."

The remainder of the bill is composed of acts that cannot be excelled in their particular lines. There are the Dillon brothers, in amusing parody monologues. These two are brothers of Bill Dillon, who was at Bennett's during the opening week and they maintain the family reputation for cleverness. The Tennis trio has a superb musical act, that is novel and is always welcomed by managers when they get a chance to book it. Jules Garrison is a comedian who dares to burlesque the characters of the immortal Shakespeare. This is a new and original act and as it is done by a smart actor it never fails to create an excellent impression. The Village Choir act is a charming little country idyl, the principals singing the songs of yesterday and to-day. The Nelson Comiques have romping comedy acrobatic act and the Musical Craigs are always found to be interesting. The Bennettograph will show two new films.

The following programme will be rendered by the house orchestra under the leadership of M. S. Minnes, at next week's shows:

Selection—The Grand Mogul. (Gustave Luders)

Intermezzo—Flower Girl. Percy Wenrick

Waltz—Whispering Waves.

March—The Four Aces. Abe Loech

HALE'S FIRE FIGHTERS.

Hale's Fire Fighters and polio-vaudeville acts will be presented next Friday and Saturday at Association Hall by the Edward Shields Co., of Chicago. The performances will be given under the auspices of the Veteran Volunteer Firemen's Association, and will no doubt attract large crowds. The feature of the performance will be motion pictures of Hamilton's creek fire department in action. These pictures will be taken on Monday afternoon at 4.15 at the Gore extension. Another feature of the entertainment will be the appearance of Miss Sadie Sherman, monologue artist.

The reserved seats plan will open next Wednesday at Nordheimer's music store.

A TIP TO ANGLERS.

Bait Your Hook Next Time With Limburger Cheese.

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 20.—Nicholas Hollander, William Christie, and E. C. Santow went out on the Sound to catch blackfish to-day, and their supply of worms and shiners gave out. There happened to be a large piece of limburger cheese on the boat, and Santow playfully baited his hook with it. The fish bit greedily, and the party was kept busy hauling them in until the limburger gave out.

The cheese seemed to attract dogfish chiefly, but a few blackfish evinced a liking for it and were hooked.

MONTREAL TRAVELLER MISSING.

Mr. James Corley Disappears at Halifax Last Month.

Montreal, Sept. 20.—A despatch from Halifax states that James Corley, a Montreal commercial traveller, is reported to the police in that city as missing. Mr. Corley went to Halifax early in August, and disappeared on the fourteenth, the last news of him being that he was seen boarding a tram car on that date.

Inquiries at Mr. Corley's home on Alexander street in this city confirmed the fact of his disappearance, but no great usefulness seems to be felt.

A SCENE FROM "THE SHEPHERD KING." The big production will be seen at the Grand on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

First Woman to Become a Texas Ranger

MISS FANNY MALROY, whose father, Col. Colbert Malroy, is one of the cattle kings of the Rio Grande country, is just now the most popular heroine in southern Texas. She is the first woman ever to become a genuine Texas ranger, having been elected an honorary member of that famous border band because she has displayed qualities of heroism and daring under circumstances that would have made most men show the white feather.

Miss Malroy, accompanied by a single servant, entered the hostile and desolate region of Mexico in search of her wounded father.

She swam her mustang across a raging and treacherous stream.

She fought and vanquished a mountain lion.

She appeared with all the eloquence of Portia in a Mexican court and put the lawyers and witnesses to confusion.

She led a charge against armed cattle thieves and put them to flight.

She went to the City of Mexico and in a personal interview persuaded President Diaz to give herself and her father and their herd of cattle a safe conduct to the Rio Grande.

Because of all these brave deeds, and because she is as beautiful as she is brave, Miss Malroy is justly the heroine of the Rio Grande country, and the story in detail of her exploits reads like a romance.

Col. Malroy Shot in the Shoulder. Some months ago Col. Malroy ventured into the interior of old Mexico for the purpose of buying cattle. He was accompanied by twenty-five of his most courageous cowboys. After the passing of some weeks a letter came, bringing bad news for the devoted young daughter. Her father had gathered a thousand head of Mexican cattle and he was about to set out on his long trip when a difficulty—misunderstanding—occurred between him and a Mexican of bad character and desperate courage. Pistol shots were exchanged and the brave old Texan got a bullet in one of his shoulders.

Of course the prudent father made light of the affair, saying that it was only "slight wounds," and that a few days' nursing and rest would "put him on his feet again," and they would be able to resume their march.

After getting this sad news it did not take the brave Texas girl long to make up her mind as to the course she ought to pursue. She spent some hours in studying a map of Mexico and tracing the streams, great highways, and the railroads over the red, blue and yellow spots of the land of the Aztecs, and suddenly surprised her mother by saying: "I am going to father—I am going to Mexico."

No amount of persuasion could turn the determined young woman from her purpose. Discovering that she could travel most of the journey by rail, she packed a small valise and calling to her assistance a faithful, courageous, and well-tried old Mexican vaquero, she set out on her long and dangerous trip.

Traces the Trail, Dressed as a Cowboy. The journey was uneventful until she reached the little town of Los Nietos, where she had to leave the railroad.

Here she learned that it was about fifty miles to the Rancho Grande, where her father was holding his big herd when last heard from. The region she had to traverse was uninhabited, desolate, and reputed to be infested by savage beasts and bandits. This did not cause her brave girl to hesitate a single moment. It was not the first time that she had faced danger. She could handle a rifle or revolver like a cowboy, and she never had been thrown from the back of a horse.

Distressed and eager to reach her father's side, she lost no time in securing good horses and changing her apparel. As she galloped away from the little Mexican town one who was not too close an observer would have supposed that he saw a handsome young American and his servant seeking the famous hunting grounds of the Los Morenos.

With bright spurs and jingling bells at the heels of her little boots, a great Mexican sombrero on her head, a rifle at the horn of her saddle, and a revolver at her belt, the venturesome Texas girl looked the typical cowboy of the western plains.

During the long ride through the lone, forbidding regions her courage was tried more than once. An unknown stream running full to the capacity of its banks and looking dangerous, took a good deal of grit out of the old Mexican. He believed that it would be impossible to swim the horses from bank to bank, and he tried hard to prevent the daring girl from riding into the frightful looking torrent.

"I think," says the fearless girl, "that my most terrifying adventure occurred during the first night of our journey." It was about midnight, and knowing that they were drawing near Col. Malroy's camp, they concluded to stop for a few moments under some large pines for the purpose of resting their jaded horses. Fanny was tired, and, throwing a blanket on the ground, she sat down with her back against a large tree, grasping a revolver in her hands. Sanchez said he would loosen the cinches and let the horses nip a little grass.

Miss Malroy was disturbed by the falling of small pieces of bark. Slowly turning her eyes toward the top of the tree, she saw something that made her urged the animal forward. At the first step the mustang disappeared to the tips of his ears and the foaming waters lashed the arms of the girl.

"If he can't swim it, I can," shouted the laughing Texas beauty. The mustang came bounding to the surface, blowing streams of water from his nostrils and struck out bravely for the other shore. He proved to be a "regular water dog," as the old Mexican said, and soon carried his mistress safely to solid ground.

pleads father's case in Mexican court.

Col. Malroy now says: "It is as certain as fate that the Mexicans would have got every hoof of my cattle, and probably my life if my daughter had not arrived and helped me to manage affairs."

Miss Malroy favored the idea of setting out towards the Rio Grande at once hoping to reach a town where they could find a competent surgeon. The herd no sooner was started than the Mexicans began to interfere in various ways. First Col. Malroy was arrested and next a civil suit was entered against him for trespass.

At that moment the boys caught a glimpse of the band of outlaws. They had collected on an eminence, doubtless for the purpose of making another attempt to stampede the cattle. The cowboys did not know that their "queen of the trail," as they had begun to call Miss Malroy, was with them, and they were astounded when the brave young Texan gun over her head and shouted: "Charge them, boys, charge. They have given us enough trouble."

When the fearless girl dashed towards the band of bandits the cowboys made frantic efforts to seize her bridle reins, but she led them, shouting like a veteran and intoxicated with the joy of battle and pouring a stream of fire from her gun.

The outlaws were dispersed, and at daylight the big herd crossed the Rio Grande, and while the tired steers fed upon the grass of the land of the Lone Star and happy cowboys rejoiced, she shouted praises for her gun.

A third quality that commends both Japanese and Chinese to the people of the coast is their enterprising and energetic character. Not only is crime distinctly rare among them, but they are extraordinarily quiet, good natured, and well-behaved.

To speak of "Chinese cheap labor" provokes a smile on the coast, for the Chinese laborer gets at least as high a wage as the white man of the same class, and usually a little higher on account of his superior industry, honesty and trustworthiness. Chinese workmen earn from $2 to $4 a day in the orchards, the mines, and the canneries, while a fair Chinese servant gets $40 a month and his board and a good cook, with a helper, will provide meals in a lumber or mining camp for forty or fifty men. Nor does the great mass of Japanese interfere with any class of white labor. Certain of them are more enterprising and energetic and are beginning to enter the lower grades of skilled manual labor, or unions, and the recent agitation for their exclusion. The chief trouble with the Japanese is that he is a little too much like ourselves.—Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in World's Work.

Then he was stood up before a high dignitary, who thus addressed him: "Stranger, you have safely passed the ordeal of introduction into the ancient and honorable order, and we hail you as a brother and well beloved brother." "As a brother and well beloved brother?" THE KING'S CRUISE IN THE DREADNOUGHT TO WITNESS GUN PRACTICE

The special correspondent of the London Times, writing from H. M. S. Bulwark, under date of Aug. 5, says:

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning the King left the Victoria and Albert, accompanied by the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Princess Victoria, the Duke of Connaught, and many members of the suite, and went on board the Dreadnought, which had been previously ordered to prepare for sea. The Lords of the Admiralty and the Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth were already on board to receive their Majesties, and soon after the royal party had arrived the Dreadnought weighed anchor and proceeded down the lines in the direction of Spithead. The ships of the home fleet had been dressed over all at 8 o'clock, and as the Dreadnought passed between the battleship and armored cruiser lines the same ceremonial of saluting by the officers and cheering by the ships' companies was observed as at the inspection on Saturday.

The main purpose of the cruise was to enable their Majesties to witness the firing of some of the Dreadnought's 12-inch guns and also the evolutions of certain of the newer types of submarines which had previously been ordered to a rendezvous off Sandown. I enjoyed the high privilege of being allowed to go on board the Dreadnought and to stay there during this memorable and most impressive cruise. The ship proceeded at moderate speed through the lines, but soon quickened up first to 15 and shortly after to 18 knots. Before the cruise was ended she had steamed 20 knots for some little time. The steadiness of the ship at these speeds and the complete absence of any vibration due to the movement of the engines were most remarkable. While the ship was proceeding at 20 knots, I visited the starboard engine-room. It was far cooler than any other engine-room I have visited; there were no moving parts except the governors of the two turbines, and there was very little noise. As to the engineers in charge, they seem to have little or nothing to do except to stand by for orders from the bridge. Another most remarkable point which I observed from the deck was the extreme steadiness of the ship, and the extreme steadiness of the ship, and the extreme steadiness of the ship.

expressed his extreme interest in the ship and her cruise, and his high satisfaction with all that he had witnessed. It is, as Sir John Fisher remarked to me in his picturesque way, an interesting historical fact that this is the only occasion on which a sovereign of the United Kingdom has steamed out to sea, in the premier battleship of the world, with the Royal Standard flying aloft and the Admiralty flag at the yard arm—the combined symbols of supremacy both Navy and Army. It is, perhaps, a still more significant fact that on this unique occasion their Majesties should have witnessed a feat of gunnery practice which has also no parallel in recorded history. But it may be said the Dreadnought is an exceptional ship, and no criterion of the home fleet at large. Well, we shall see in the course of Wednesday. At daybreak on that day the whole fleet—with one or two exceptions, including the Dreadnought, which remains at shots had both struck within the very small circumference of a small circle not more than 2 feet or 3 feet in diameter at the centre of the bull's-eye.

The Dreadnought anchored whilst luncheon was served on board, and soon afterwards their Majesties witnessed the evolutions of eight of the two latest types of submarines now in commission. Four were ordered to trim for diving so as to enable them to steer down below the surface of the water. Four others were ordered to pass the ship under their petrol engines at a speed of 13 knots. The four first mentioned were then ordered to dive and circle round the ship, occasionally putting even their periscopes under water so as to become entirely invisible. At the end of the evolution they were to return to the surface and make their way back to their anchorage. It was very remarkable to note the smartness with which the submarines took in the signals made to them from the Dreadnought by Commander S. S. Hall, their commanding officer, even when, being submerged, they had nothing but their periscopes to depend upon. Several orders signalled to them were quite unexpected, and were obeyed on the instant. The King watched these evolutions with sustained interest, as, indeed, did every one else on board.

The submarines having completed their evolutions and departed, his Majesty ordered the Dreadnought to proceed to sea, and after a short run at 20 knots in the Channel we steamed back about 5 p. m. to the anchorage at Cowes, and his Majesty returned to the Victoria and Albert, having, as I understand, graciously

IN QUIET MOODS.

Good Cheer.
Have you had a kindness shown? Pass it on.
'Twas not given for you alone— Pass it on.
Yet it travel down the years, Let it wipe another's tears, Till in heaven the deed appears— Pass it on.

Did you hear the living word? Pass it on.
Like the singing of a bird? Pass it on.
Let its music live and grow, Let it cheer another's woe, You have reap'd what others sow— Pass it on.

'Twas the sunshine of a smile, Pass it on.
Staying but a little while, Pass it on.
April beam, the little thing, Still it wakes the flow'rs of spring, Makes the silent birds to sing— Pass it on.

Have you found the heav'nly light? Pass it on.
Souls are groping in the night, Daylight gone;
Hold thy lighted lamp on high, Be a star in some one's sky, He may live who else would die— Pass it on.

Be not selfish in thy greed; Pass it on.
Look upon thy brothers' need, Pass it on.
Live for self, you live in vain; Live for Christ, you live again; Live for Him, with Him you reign— Pass it on.

—The Rev. Henry Burton.

look cold; grew worse. She called her mother. Her new dress had brought her to hell, as she thought. But it didn't though! She was saved all in a hurry, as most are, and by the light of the Furnace Door she read her title clear. The swiftest beauty transformed into an angel that I have ever seen. He turned the leaves of his record and said, "Here's one worthy of note. A master mariner, he left home all well to go 'round the Horn; said good-by to wife and six children. The first letter he got on his arrival was that four had died of scarlet fever; the next letter told him that other two had followed, and the home sounded hollow. He brought those two letters and read them in the light of the Furnace Door. Salt tears seasoned the dose; the strong man shook; then paused, then said: "It is the Lord." "He gave, He took; blessed." Why don't poets sing of the glory of the Furnace Door; it would make the world sweet with prayer. Look at the handwriting; look at the words chosen, chosen. I have chosen these in the furnace. As many as I love I rebuke and chasten. This is the vestibule of the palace of the Great King. A cavalcade arrived suddenly at the Furnace Door, demanding the attention of my strange companion, and I had to take my sad leave, but I took in a cargo which is down below yet, and my lesson is only half learned.

Do You Have Family Prayers.

A clergyman, occupying a prominent place as an educator, and who has opportunity to know something of the home life of many American families, deplors the absence of the family altar in the majority of homes. In fact, he declares that in comparatively few is the adage of family worship continued.

At one time it was the rule in most Christian families to have prayers either morning or evening every day, but now you rarely find a family where this is done. How is it in your home? Another thing this clergyman says is that he despairs of ever seeing the Church really alive as it ought to be unless we re-establish the custom of family worship.

Children need it. Parents need it. The guest needs it. God must be acknowledged and honored in the home.

The warmth of family piety dies down unless there be this daily rendering of homage to the Lord of the family. What is there to hinder your reading a few verses from your Bible and saying a prayer with your family to-night? Think about it! Do not know just how to begin? There is a form of family prayer in the prayer book. You have your Bible. Begin with the Beatitudes, St. Matthew 5th. Only a few minutes and you have started your family altar.

The True Man and Christ.

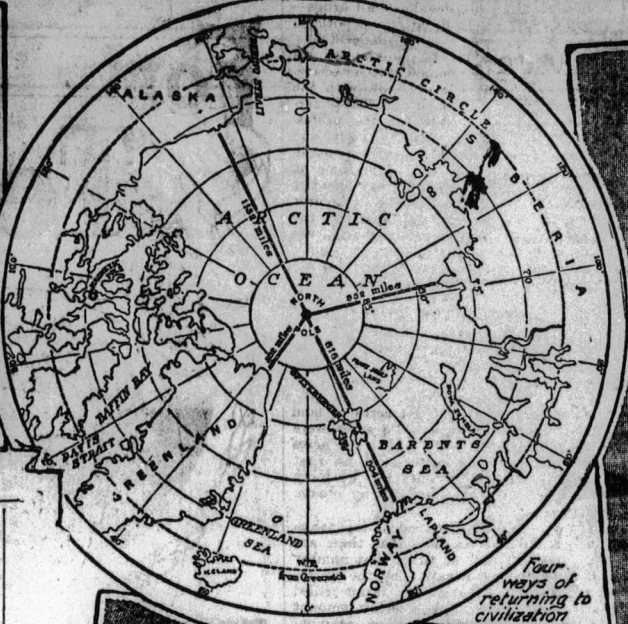

True living is true religion; the Christian life is the sound, sane, whole human life; the man who follows truth follows Christ, whether he knows Christ or not. Yet we preach Christ insistently to every man. For we dare to say to every man, if you are true, here is what you are looking for: the way of God in men, the way of life; more life, irrepresible, growing, victorious life, and that is the way of Jesus Christ. Have that mind in you which was in him who humbled himself and in obedient unto death; practice faith in an infinite spirit of love as he practiced it to the utmost limits, to the least details; above all, learn his spirit who came not to be served, but to serve and to give his life for many, and you will prove that Christ's way is life indeed and life abounding.

The man who follows truth follows Christ, to be sure, but to follow and not know him is to walk in the dark that precedes the day. Give to the man who follows truth to see Christ as he is; he will recognize his Master, he will recognize the life that is himself the truth. To him Christian discipleship comes as inevitably as day to them that wait in the morning.—If Christ be presented as he is. But presented in the guise of overworn creed, unreal liturgies, superstitious "schemes of salvation," the true Christ is not seen of the true man, the common man, and not on the common man rests the blame.

Love a Preservative.

The only preservative from the withering of the heart is love. Love is its own perennial fount of strength. The strength of affection is the proof, not of the worthiness of the object, but of the largeness of the soul which loves. Love depends, not on the quality of the soil through which it passes, but on the inexhaustibleness and depth of the spring from which it proceeds. The greater mind cleaves to the smaller with more force than the other to it. A parent loves the child more than the child the parent; and partly because the parent's heart is larger, not because the child is worthier. The Saviour loved His disciples infinitely more than His disciples Him, because His heart was infinitely larger. Love trusts on, ever hopes and expects better things and this a trust springing from itself, and out of its own deeds alone. And more than this; it is this trusting love that makes men what they are trusted to be, so realizing itself. Would you make men trustworthy? Trust them! Would you make them true? Believe them!—F. W. Robertson.

Words of the Wise.
Never give up to despair. To regret a wrong is good; to stop to think of it too long, and to plunge into remorse, is to lose the power of reparation.—Charles Wagner.

Sobering, almost alarming, to some of us is the thought of Christ as Judge. On the other hand, what judgment could be kinder or fairer? We are to face the judgment seat, but let us never forget that it is the judgment seat of Christ—the Christ who knows man, who sees and sympathizes with every individual, who, having himself suffered, being tempted, is prepared to make allowance for human infirmities, who judges us not so much by what we are as by what we want and strive to be.—Howard Allen Bridgman.

If to be true in heart and just in act are the first qualities necessary for the elevation of humanity, if without them all else is worthless, intellectual culture cannot give what intellectual culture does not require or imply. You cultivate the plant which has already life; you will waste your labor in cultivating a stone. The moral life is the counterpart of the natural—alike mysterious in its origin, and alike visible only in its effects.—J. A. Froude.

Old London Street Names.

Those who know the city of London have probably at times been puzzled by the curious names borne by some of its localities. An antiquary thus explained a few of these: "St. Margaret Patten has no reference to footwear. The 'pattens' is a corruption of 'patines,' the plates used for the conserved bread. 'St. Mary Woolnoth' took its name from the wool market which once stood near it, 'wool' being the old form of 'wool.' 'St. Mary Axe,' popularly pronounced 'Sim mery Axe,' gained its name from the fact that a house with the sign of an axe once stood in the street. 'Crutched Friars' does not, as one might suppose, refer to crippled monks. It merely commemorates the cross worn by members of friars who were known as 'crutched' in course of time becoming 'crutched.' Threadneedle street was originally Three Needle street, from a house bearing the sign of the 'Three Needles.' Bread street was once the only street where bread was sold, while Friday street was the resort of fish-mongers who provided the Friday diet of our pious ancestors."—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

It is claimed that thirty miles from Dallas, Texas, excavations are being made which it is expected, will uncover the ruins of a city far older than any in Egypt.

An Age of Reason

The days of mystery have passed. There must be a reason for everything, and we demand to be shown the why and the wherefore. Secret or patent medicines must go with the other mysteries.

King Palmetto Compound

Is not a secret remedy,—the formula is printed on the label, and you can get expert advice from your physician, who will tell you that it is.

The Most Useful Prescription

ever prepared. Saw Palmetto for the Kidneys, Cassara Sagrada for the Bowels, Couch Grass for the Bladder, Corn Silk, Golden Seal and Compound Keraulin,—a perfect combination.

The Cause of Ill-Health is not a mystery either, and we know we should apply our reason to our daily habits. The modern struggle is too much for us. The result is a clogged liver, and a generally disordered condition of the Stomach, Liver, Nerves, and Kidneys. These things lead to Very Serious Results, and render the body an easy prey to germs diseases, such as Typhus, Typhoid, and Consumption.

The Reasonable Solution is to begin taking King Palmetto Compound to-day. One dose a day, and the cure begins with the first dose. It will renovate your entire system, cure Constipation and Indigestion, and purify the Blood.

Our Scotch Corner

Kaid Maclean.

(By Marquise de Fontenay).
Sir Harry Maclean, the Scotch commander in chief of the Moorish army, is described in all the dispatches announcing his treacherous capture by the insurgent chief Raisuli as a soldier of fortune and a mere adventurer. It may be well, therefore, to recall the fact that he is the scion of an ancient and illustrious house of the Scottish aristocracy, being a younger brother of the MacLaine of Loch Buis, head of the grand old Scotch clan of MacLaine, the founder of which was Gillean of the Battle Aca, one of the most notable figures in Scottish annals of the twelfth century. A junior branch of the family is headed by Sir Fitzroy Maclean, whose baronetcy dates from 1682, and the possessions of the house comprise, among other things, the greater part of the island of Mull.

Sir Harry himself was formerly a captain of the Sixty-ninth regiment of infantry in the British army, served as a member of the Red river expedition in Canada under Lord Wolseley and left the English service while stationed at Gibraltar to take command of the late Sultan of Morocco's bodyguard, being advanced in course of time to the position of generalissimo. The Kaid as he is called in Morocco, has never found it necessary to become a Moslem in order to strengthen his position, and, although the Moors are, perhaps, the most fanatical of all the followers of the Prophet, the fact that he has remained a strict Presbyterian has never been allowed to interfere with their excellent relations with his fine old Scotchman.

Sir Harry has had a good deal of domestic trouble. His marriage was an unfortunate one, and the social position of the now ex-Lady Maclean was such, both prior and subsequent to becoming his wife, that nobody at Gibraltar and none of the European ladies at Tangier, would consent to hold any social intercourse with her, while, in spite of the platitudes used for the conserved bread, her husband, she was ignored by all the foreign legations. Three years ago Sir Harry was compelled to divorce her, her daughters testifying against her, the co-respondent being a man of the name of Spencer Lewis Mortimer.

Sir Harry is a man of medium height with a keen blue left eye—he lost the right one years ago—and gray hair and whiskers. He invariably dresses in the uniform of his rank—a blue, gold embroidered jacket, large knickerbockers, a blue turban and a white, flowing mantle. He looks every inch a Moor. But from the moment that he opens his mouth to talk English, the fact that he is a Scotchman is apparent. His elder brother, the chief of the clan, should mention, has reverted to the old way of spelling the name and is known as the MacLaine of Loch Buis, while Sir Harry has retained the modern way of writing his name, that is to say, MacLean.

Caid Maclean's Father.

In one of London's historical and tranquil suburbs dwells a venerable old Scotch gentleman who since his youth has been in the service of Crown and country as a member of the Army Medical Corps. As a young man he was attached to the 11th Hussars under the famous Earl of Cardigan, and he has ever since held staff appointments. In April last he completed his 95th year, and although he leans heavily on his stick when walking he is in full possession of his faculties, his mind is alert and keen, and at the present both mind and heart are concentrated on the man whose courageous attempt to assist in solving a very difficult problem has brought him into special prominence in the eyes of the world. This fine old gentleman, who morning and evening eagerly scans the newspapers for the good news that he is hoping and praying for, is now the head of a family which, in generations past, still served king and country. His rank is Deputy Inspector General in the Royal Army Medical Corps, and his name is Maclean; his son's name is Caid Sir Harry Maclean. Noblesse oblige, and the name has been honorably borne from the days of Culloden, when a General Maclean and his three sons fought side by side with the Camerons, the father alone living to tell the tale. The grand old Scot speaks proudly and with beaming countenance of his son, Raisuli's prisoner, and tells how King Edward showed him gracious courtesy when he invited him to dine at Buckingham Palace, and after dinner presented him with one of his own walking sticks, and asked him to come in Highland garb when next he visited his Majesty, and also to bring his bagpipes with him and give the King a skirl. Sir Harry's father also refers to the warm welcome the Caid received at the hands of the German Emperor on the occasion of his memorable visit to Tangier. His Majesty complimented him on the way he had organized and commanded the Moroccan army, and presented him with a gold snuff box. Sir Harry Maclean has three daughters now in Tangier, and a son, Lieut. Andrew De Vere Maclean, is the 2nd East Surrey Regiment, now in India. A brother of the Caid, Colonel Fitzroy Maclean, also in the Army Medical Service, is at present in Pretoria; another brother, Mr. Alan Maclean, was until quite recently British Consul at Casa Blanca. He is now in Spain, and his place has been taken by Mr. Archibald Madden, a cousin.

A SCOTTISH MEDICANT.

Singular History of Old Time Knight of the Road.

(Chicago Scottish-American).
There are few north-country people who have heard not of "Uilleam Aberach" and "Scorus an Eilan," while possibly quite a number of the older ones may still remember such well known worthies as "Ferraich a Ghunna," "John Banks," "Big Eacham," and many others. "Uilleam Aberach"—who was a scion of the Aberach branch of the Clan MacLachlan—was born in the parish of Strathly, Sutherlandshire, some years before his countrymen took up arms in the rebellion of 1745, and was, indeed, on the road with his pack—when still quite a youth—ere the wild clansmen of the north had turned "their swords into plowshares" and their spears into pruning hooks" after the bloody slaughter on "wild Drumossie Moor." The youthful packman was full of energy and enterprise, and notwithstanding the fact that there was then no road to speak of north of the Highland capital, he travelled through the greater part of Sutherland, Caithness, Ross and Inverness Shires, disposing of his wares, and gradually accumulating capital which enabled him some years later to establish himself as a merchant at Crask, in the parish of Farr, with agencies elsewhere. By reason of his excellent business capabilities he became a man of influence, not only in his native country, but throughout the entire north. In an hour, however, a flaxen-haired maid—evidently a "Fair Annie of Kirtom"—won his affections, which she, alas, did not return, preferring rather the blandishments of a handsome young "knight of the chisel" in the neighborhood. She accepted the carpenter, and from that hour Uilleam's reason deserted its throne; his business aptitude was gone forever; he neglected his affairs and again took the road, but this time as a mendicant and gaberlunge "all up and down the north he wandered" until summons came to him to cease from his wanderings. Possessed of a poetic genius second only to the famous Sutherlandshire bard, "Rob Donn," he sang in "the language of Eden" the praises of his lost love, and wherever he went the poor hapless wanderer was received with sympathy and consideration. In referring to "Uilleam" in his "Sketches of Sutherland Characters," Alexander Mackay says that on one occasion Uilleam shipped from Thurso to Leth, and that on his arrival there he immediately made his way to a wholesale establishment with which he had dealings in his palmy days. He sought an interview with the head of the firm. When the smartly attired business man saw the strange-looking creature who confronted him he immediately ordered his removal from the premises. But Uilleam was not to be shifted so easily. In a peremptory tone, and with a regal wave of the hand, he ordered the chief clerk in the counting house to look up his ledger and he would—on a certain date many years before—find an entry against "William Mackay's merchant, Crask." The clerk obeyed his instructions, and was surprised to find that the amount was considerable. Uilleam paid it without a grudge as if he had been a millionaire, and having obtained a receipt, proudly took his departure. It is thought that upon this occasion he visited London, as he was for a very considerable time away from his native haunts. He, however, again turned up, and it is needless to say that a hearty welcome was accorded to him by the warm-hearted Highland peasantry wherever he went. At a very advanced age Uilleam Aberach ended his pilgrimage—in 1829—laid down his meal packs, and went to rest under the roof-tree of James Mackenzie, of Strath Halladale, and his remains were interred in the churchyard of Bal-na-h-Eaglais.

GLIDDENING.

It's a Hair-Raising Experience in More Ways Than One.

Gliddening as a cure for baldness has not as yet received the endorsement of the medical fraternity or the scalp specialists, but so far as testimonials go, says the Motor World, it has the strongest kind of praise from J. W. McGorray, a well-known Cleveland undertaker, who was a passenger in the last tour.

While Mr. McGorray did not encounter any hair raising experiences in the popular sense he found soon after he started that a modest but unmistakable crop of fuzz was developing on his head, which had for many years been garnished with the hirsute luxuriance of a china egg. By the time he reached Chicago his hat did not fit any more on account of the new hair, and upon his arrival in New York he had to have a hair cut.

"I have thrown my wig away," he wrote his brother, Sheriff McGorray, of Cleveland.
The latter has planned a theatre party to celebrate the new crop when his own returns home. And it will be the first time in a great many years that Undertaker McGorray has not sat in the bald-headed row. He plans to study chemistry of exhaust motor gases to discover the secret of his transformation.

Every man has an open countenance when he gets in the dentist's chair.

BAD BLOOD

"Before I began using Cascarets, I had a bad complexion, pimples on my face, and my feet were not clean. Now I am entirely well, and the pimples have all disappeared from my face. I can truthfully say that Cascarets are just as advertised. I have taken only two boxes of them." Clarence K. Griffin, Sheridan, Ind.

ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

A REAL PEARL BEFORE SWINE.

Just Rescued in Time—The Ohio River Fisheries.

W. M. Bostoff and Henry Voit, mussel fishermen who have been taking the bivalves from the Ohio River six miles below New Albany, have been finding in the last few days a number of pearls, and so much excitement has been created among the river men on account of their good luck that the mussel fishermen will receive large additions to their numbers. Bostoff was in New Albany Saturday, and exhibited a handful of pearls, among which were several that were conspicuous for their size, shape and purity. One in particular, a pure white pearl the size of a pea, attracted great attention and all sorts of valuations were put upon it by persons supposed to be experts. The majority of the gems, however, were of small size, irregular in shape and would sell for but little.

When the mussel fishing excitement at Leavenworth, sixty miles down the river from New Albany, was at its height a few years ago, a pearl, sold afterwards for $300 to Eastern jewellers, was picked up in a peculiar and remarkable manner. At that time great quantities of the bivalves were taken from the river and the meat fed to hogs. As the finder of the pearl was feeding the hogs, while in the act of pouring a bucket of meat into the trough he observed a tiny white ball, which he quickly snatched from the swine. Upon examination it was found to be a pearl of the purest quality.

Grampan a Speed.

Grampan attained a record of 16 1/2 knots on steam trials at the Clyde. The vessel is 502 feet long and 60 feet broad, with accommodation for 200 first, 350 second, and 1,400 third-class passengers. She is expected to make the trip from Glasgow to Quebec under seven days.

EAST AND WEST.

The Growth of National Spirit in This Country. There are still some people who imagine that the extremities of Canada are self-centred and careless of what is being done in Ontario and Quebec. It has been said that the Nova Scotian doesn't know what is being done in Toronto, and, more than that, doesn't care. That is not a fair statement.

EASIER MONEY. (Toronto Saturday Night). The Canadian banks have strengthened their position considerably the past three or four months and relatively as strong today as a year ago. The severe stringency in money that was experienced during the summer months has relaxed some, and it is doubtful if such acute conditions will be felt this autumn.

Now, Will Borden Act? (Hon. Mr. Pugsley). "My view of the matter is that it would be well for Mr. Borden to turn his attention to his own party first. If he himself is not willing to talk, perhaps he could get some of his leading friends to state what amount of money had been expended throughout Canada to secure the return of Conservative candidates in 1904. The amount would startle the people of this country as they were never started before."

A Hot 'Un. (Toronto News). Politically Mr. Algonquin seems to have a hot temper and a better vocabulary.
