MONDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 3, 1873.

The Trades Arbitration Act. In order that the Masters and Workmen may become acquainted with the provisions of the Bill introduced by the Hon. Adam Crooks, and entitled an act to facilitate the adjustment of disputes between masters and workmen, we give a short synopsis of it.

Masters and workmen may agree to form a Board for the friendly settlement of differences, and shall jointly sign a memorandum, whereby it is mutually agreed to establish such Board, and which shall exercise all the powers granted to arbitrators. The Board shall consist of not less than two masters and two workmen, nor more than ten masters and ten workmen, and a chairman, who must be some person unconnected with trade. No member of the Board will be permitted to adjudicate in any case in which he or any relation of his is one of the parties. The Board shall have power to hear and determine all questions of dispute and difference between employer and employee, and the decision to be final, without being subject to review or challenge by any court or authority whatsoever.

A committee of Reconciliation is to be appointed by the Board, consisting of one master and one workman, and all questions of dispute submitted to the Board must come before the committee in the first place. No counsel, solicitor, or attorney will be permitted to attend on any hearing before the Board or Committee, unless with the consent of both parties. The Act does not extend to domestic servants, or servants in husbandry.

A Mean Evasion of the Law.

Mr. F. J. Chadwick, proprietor of the Guelph Herald, is one of the Deputy Reeves of the Town, and consequently a member of the County Council. As such he is disqualified by Statute from entering into any contract with, or holding such contract from, the County Council. In the face of such disqualification, however, Mr. Chadwick gets one of the employees in his office to send in a tender in his (the employee's) name for the County printing, which tender being the lowest the Council accepts, and the Herald, owned by Mr. Chadwick, gets the printing for this year. Now we have always believed in healthy, honest and legitimate competition, and had Mr. Chadwick not been a member of the County Council we should have been the last one to grumble at his success in securing the contract. But as it is, his course in connection with this business is anything else than a mean, despicable evasion of the law, which is very explicit on this point. If this is the kind of business morality practised by such a high toned gentleman and Conservative as Mr. Chadwick, then we thank heaven that we never belonged to that particular class, and fervently hope that whatever our other faults may be, we shall never be guilty of such small, contemptible work as Mr. Chadwick has countenanced by a dishonest and tricky evasion of one of our most salutary laws.

Consolidation and Amendments of Municipal Acts.

We have received the Government Bill entitled "An Act respecting Municipal Institutions in the Province of Ontario." The preamble is thus set forth: "In order to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting Municipal Institutions, Her Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, enacts as follows: The consolidation and amendment of the various Municipal Acts is a work of great importance, and cannot but prove of indelible value to the Province; but it is a work of vast labor. The Bill before us, which we have not yet had time to examine and compare carefully, contains 157 pages and 510 sections or clauses, exclusive of the schedules referring to the numerous acts and clauses of the various Acts in active operation. This statement, however, shows the tremendous amount of work the Government must have expended in the preparation of the Bill, and the exclusive tax upon their time. To accomplish for less work it required the whole time of a committee during three sessions of the Dominion Parliament, terminating in 1865.

New Counties.

Saturday's Mail contains one of the most silly editorials we have ever read in its columns, and which proves to a demonstration that there is no such thing as pleasing some people. The article in question finds fault with the Government because the Attorney-General has publicly declared that the Government are not prepared to consider the question of subdividing counties during the present session. The Mail also admits that the settlement of the Municipal Loan Fund is a question of great public interest, but denies that any practical inconvenience would have been felt if it had been postponed for another year.

Our respected confere forgets that the Government pledged itself to the people to settle this great public question during the present session, and they would be unworthy of the confidence reposed in them were they to fail in carrying out the promise so made. During the last election one of the most prominent questions before the public was the settlement of this long continued and vexed question, and many were the promises given that the Government would grapple with it, so soon as the House met. The Mail would fain have its readers to believe that the question of subdividing the counties is of the first importance, and the settlement of this Fund a secondary consideration. It is evidently hard up for something to find fault with.

The Stringency of the Money Market.

The Ottawa correspondence of the Toronto Mail says, that in view of the prevailing stringency in the money market, Sir Francis Hincks invited tenders from the several banks for the purchase of the London exchange, the proceeds to remain on deposit at five per cent. interest. Tenders for a very large amount have been received, and sales to over $800,000 made. The lowest tender accepted was at the rate of 9 1/2 per cent premium. It is thought that this move, on the part of the Finance Minister, will have the effect of greatly relieving the stringency in the money market, and imparting more confidence in the banking institutions of the Province.

PETRIE'S NEW DRUG STORE

Nearly opposite the Old Stand, NOW OPEN.

Mr. PETRIE takes this opportunity to thank the Public for their large and liberal support during the seven years he has been in business in Guelph.

The New Store is the one formerly occupied by Mr. H. Berry, and lately by Mr. J. B. Fort, as a Confectionery Store. The store has been enlarged and refitted, making it a much more desirable place of business than the old stand.

Having secured the new store for a term of Ten Years, I hope, with the assistance of the Public, to present in the future as I have done during the past seven years, any monopoly in the Drug Trade in Guelph.

The old store will remain open for business until the first of May.

By conducting my business in the future in the same upright principle as in the past, I trust to receive a continuance of your generous support.

I am, yours very truly,

A. B. PETRIE.

ANNABEL

THE TEMPTATION.

CHAPTER III.

THE STRANGER REMAINS IN MYSTERY, BUT PROVES A FRIEND.

For many days the stranger required and received the careful nursing of Annabel and Mrs. Dobson; but under their devoted ministrations he gradually rallied from the weakness and prostration into which he had been cast by the cruel hand of the robber. When he began to gather strength and composure of thought they expected him to inform them who he was, and ask them to communicate with his relations; but, strangely enough, he gave no indication of a desire to do this. He neither communicated his name nor hinted at his social position, though evidence was not wanted to convince them that the latter was the position of a gentleman in easy circumstances. His language, his mode of expressing himself, as well as his general appearance, and the fine quality and accompaniments of his dress, betokened culture, refinement and social superiority. He must therefore be a man accustomed to move in good society, and in the midst of a circle of friends and acquaintances whom it was natural he should wish to be informed of his whereabouts and the mishap which had befallen him. How could his disappearance be by them accounted for? Must they not be dramatically correct liberty? And was it not highly desirable that their anxiety on his account should be set at rest at the earliest moment?

This seemed natural, yet strangely enough he showed no inclination to do what seemed so natural and proper, and lest this might proceed from inadvertence on his part, Mrs. Dobson did not refrain in her own cautious way from giving him hints to the necessary effect. These hints, however, were not taken, and somehow the stranger's manner was such as prevented her from directly questioning him on the subject. She might indeed very long have ventured to do so had Annabel not restrained her. The fair girl could not but see that the old man purposely refrained from giving them information of a personal kind. Whatever might be his reason for his conduct, by a desire to conceal his name and belongings, and Annabel's intense delicacy of mind prompted her to respect the wish, however strange it seemed. She therefore positively solicited Mrs. Dobson to ask none of the questions which the latter so longed to put.

"Why, look-a-mercy, Miss Annabel, and why should I not?" remonstrated the good-hearted but curious landlady. "Perhaps the poor old gentleman hasn't got his wits strong enough yet to think of it, and won't his relations be in a sore way to know what has become of him, which is the most natural thing in the world, and not to be neglected as something of no consideration. I can't bear to think of their sorrow, Miss Annabel, and so I think I shall just broach the subject next time I take in his tea."

"Really, now, you must not," said Annabel, in reply. "If he wished his relations to know about him, he would take means to do so without being prompted. He is quite collected, his mind is quite strong and active, and it seems to me that he wishes to remain unknown to us."

"Good gracious, why should he wish that? And what a dreadful thing if he should die and we not know who he is. It makes me quite uneasy to think of."

"He will not die now, Mrs. Dobson. The doctor says he is recovering; and yesterday I heard him ask if he would soon be strong enough to move. The doctor said that in a few days he will be quite able to depart."

"And must we let him go without even knowing who he is?" cried the worthy lady, with excessive astonishment. "Alas! what we have done for him, and him at death's door. Not that I want anything for nursing him, for Heaven knows I did it out of Christian charity; but it seems most extraordinary to do all that for a gentleman as we are never to be allowed to know anything about."

"Wait patiently," counselled Annabel. "If he wishes us to know he will tell us; if not, he has his reasons, and it would be wrong in us to seek to gratify mere curiosity. I have no doubt he will compensate you for the trouble and expense he has occasioned; for the rest, let us be silent, and respect his wish."

SUPERIOR FARM FOR SALE.—For sale the superior farm in Puslinch known as the Mackenzie Farm, containing 40 acres, lying in the 7th concession, about 2 1/2 miles distant and under cultivation, well fenced; the balance covered with trees, hazel and cedar. The land is well watered. There is a good bank barn, also other 1000 barns, stables, outbuildings, etc. Large and valuable orchard, stock of all first-class fruit trees, grapes, etc. The farm will be sold in one block, or in two lots to suit purchasers.
