

Saturday, April 19, 1879.

The Week.

The Eastern question still troubles the diplomats. The Turk objects to the joint occupation of Roumelia, and the negotiations must have gone much further than they have. The British Government is generally satisfied with the present position, but they are not yet ready to accept the Turkish proposal. The British Government is generally satisfied with the present position, but they are not yet ready to accept the Turkish proposal.

Russia, troubled greatly at home by nihilism, gives many proofs of her desire to maintain peace with the rest of the world for the present at least. She has withdrawn some of her troops from the country south of the Balkans. She has used her influence to put an end to the insurrection in Macedonia. She has left the Ameer of Afghanistan to his own resources, and she has, it is said, surrendered Kuldja, a much valued position, to the Chinese.

Lord Dufferin finds his position under present circumstances very trying. Even in times of profound peace the English ambassador to Russia must be constantly on the watch, and never accept with absolute trust any statement of the truth of which he has not the most certain evidence. He must be ever on his guard against the possibility of being deceived, and he must never allow himself to be misled by the Russian ministers.

Germany are now told, is watching the political situation of Austria closely. Bismarck probably entertains the idea of one day attaching the German portion of Austria to the German Empire, but of late the desire of any portion of the Austrians to exchange their comparatively free government for German despotism have been greatly diminished. It is not likely that Austria will ever be annexed to Germany.

In France the Government appear to be determined to abolish liberty of education, and it is not improbable that they will succeed in a time. They hope, by such means, to destroy Christianity utterly in that country, but it may be that this new persecution will serve to excite Christian zeal and so lead to the establishment of true liberty and lasting internal peace.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

Another deplorable disaster is reported from South Africa. A company of British troops has been annihilated by the Zulus and the supplies which they were securing all carried off. In this case also there appears to have been a want of vigilance on the part of the officers in command, but perhaps if any of the officers survived they could tell why it was that the train and its equipments completely shattered, and in few instances did their restoration to liberty even retard their descent to an early grave. Daniel Reddin, who was convicted of participating in the murder of a Zulu, was executed in prison, and his funeral was made the occasion of a great popular demonstration.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

In Canada the tariff is still the chief object of interest. The debate in the House of Commons was continued until Thursday morning of Holy Week. It was dreary enough for the greater part, as many of those who spoke did little else than repeat what others had said. The weight of argument, and of facts, is not to be argued, as on the side of the protection. Indeed, on the Government side, the speakers chiefly indulged in declamation and in drawing in the brightest colors they could use, glowing pictures of the great effects which they said their National Policy will produce.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

the effect of this tariff will be, especially in the case of the cotton and wool. The tariff will be a great benefit to the country, and it will be a great benefit to the people.

Russia, troubled greatly at home by nihilism, gives many proofs of her desire to maintain peace with the rest of the world for the present at least. She has withdrawn some of her troops from the country south of the Balkans. She has used her influence to put an end to the insurrection in Macedonia. She has left the Ameer of Afghanistan to his own resources, and she has, it is said, surrendered Kuldja, a much valued position, to the Chinese.

Germany are now told, is watching the political situation of Austria closely. Bismarck probably entertains the idea of one day attaching the German portion of Austria to the German Empire, but of late the desire of any portion of the Austrians to exchange their comparatively free government for German despotism have been greatly diminished. It is not likely that Austria will ever be annexed to Germany.

In France the Government appear to be determined to abolish liberty of education, and it is not improbable that they will succeed in a time. They hope, by such means, to destroy Christianity utterly in that country, but it may be that this new persecution will serve to excite Christian zeal and so lead to the establishment of true liberty and lasting internal peace.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

Another deplorable disaster is reported from South Africa. A company of British troops has been annihilated by the Zulus and the supplies which they were securing all carried off. In this case also there appears to have been a want of vigilance on the part of the officers in command, but perhaps if any of the officers survived they could tell why it was that the train and its equipments completely shattered, and in few instances did their restoration to liberty even retard their descent to an early grave. Daniel Reddin, who was convicted of participating in the murder of a Zulu, was executed in prison, and his funeral was made the occasion of a great popular demonstration.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

In Canada the tariff is still the chief object of interest. The debate in the House of Commons was continued until Thursday morning of Holy Week. It was dreary enough for the greater part, as many of those who spoke did little else than repeat what others had said. The weight of argument, and of facts, is not to be argued, as on the side of the protection. Indeed, on the Government side, the speakers chiefly indulged in declamation and in drawing in the brightest colors they could use, glowing pictures of the great effects which they said their National Policy will produce.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

the effect of this tariff will be, especially in the case of the cotton and wool. The tariff will be a great benefit to the country, and it will be a great benefit to the people.

Russia, troubled greatly at home by nihilism, gives many proofs of her desire to maintain peace with the rest of the world for the present at least. She has withdrawn some of her troops from the country south of the Balkans. She has used her influence to put an end to the insurrection in Macedonia. She has left the Ameer of Afghanistan to his own resources, and she has, it is said, surrendered Kuldja, a much valued position, to the Chinese.

Germany are now told, is watching the political situation of Austria closely. Bismarck probably entertains the idea of one day attaching the German portion of Austria to the German Empire, but of late the desire of any portion of the Austrians to exchange their comparatively free government for German despotism have been greatly diminished. It is not likely that Austria will ever be annexed to Germany.

In France the Government appear to be determined to abolish liberty of education, and it is not improbable that they will succeed in a time. They hope, by such means, to destroy Christianity utterly in that country, but it may be that this new persecution will serve to excite Christian zeal and so lead to the establishment of true liberty and lasting internal peace.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

Another deplorable disaster is reported from South Africa. A company of British troops has been annihilated by the Zulus and the supplies which they were securing all carried off. In this case also there appears to have been a want of vigilance on the part of the officers in command, but perhaps if any of the officers survived they could tell why it was that the train and its equipments completely shattered, and in few instances did their restoration to liberty even retard their descent to an early grave. Daniel Reddin, who was convicted of participating in the murder of a Zulu, was executed in prison, and his funeral was made the occasion of a great popular demonstration.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

In Canada the tariff is still the chief object of interest. The debate in the House of Commons was continued until Thursday morning of Holy Week. It was dreary enough for the greater part, as many of those who spoke did little else than repeat what others had said. The weight of argument, and of facts, is not to be argued, as on the side of the protection. Indeed, on the Government side, the speakers chiefly indulged in declamation and in drawing in the brightest colors they could use, glowing pictures of the great effects which they said their National Policy will produce.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

the effect of this tariff will be, especially in the case of the cotton and wool. The tariff will be a great benefit to the country, and it will be a great benefit to the people.

Russia, troubled greatly at home by nihilism, gives many proofs of her desire to maintain peace with the rest of the world for the present at least. She has withdrawn some of her troops from the country south of the Balkans. She has used her influence to put an end to the insurrection in Macedonia. She has left the Ameer of Afghanistan to his own resources, and she has, it is said, surrendered Kuldja, a much valued position, to the Chinese.

Germany are now told, is watching the political situation of Austria closely. Bismarck probably entertains the idea of one day attaching the German portion of Austria to the German Empire, but of late the desire of any portion of the Austrians to exchange their comparatively free government for German despotism have been greatly diminished. It is not likely that Austria will ever be annexed to Germany.

In France the Government appear to be determined to abolish liberty of education, and it is not improbable that they will succeed in a time. They hope, by such means, to destroy Christianity utterly in that country, but it may be that this new persecution will serve to excite Christian zeal and so lead to the establishment of true liberty and lasting internal peace.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

Another deplorable disaster is reported from South Africa. A company of British troops has been annihilated by the Zulus and the supplies which they were securing all carried off. In this case also there appears to have been a want of vigilance on the part of the officers in command, but perhaps if any of the officers survived they could tell why it was that the train and its equipments completely shattered, and in few instances did their restoration to liberty even retard their descent to an early grave. Daniel Reddin, who was convicted of participating in the murder of a Zulu, was executed in prison, and his funeral was made the occasion of a great popular demonstration.

It is now said that Garibaldi does not himself know why he went to Rome, and he is dying. In a letter lately published he asserts that the condition of the people is worse than it was before the Piedmontese King became King of Italy.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

In Canada the tariff is still the chief object of interest. The debate in the House of Commons was continued until Thursday morning of Holy Week. It was dreary enough for the greater part, as many of those who spoke did little else than repeat what others had said. The weight of argument, and of facts, is not to be argued, as on the side of the protection. Indeed, on the Government side, the speakers chiefly indulged in declamation and in drawing in the brightest colors they could use, glowing pictures of the great effects which they said their National Policy will produce.

The Greenback Party developed unexpected strength in Congress, and they will perhaps prove troublesome, especially to the Democratic Party. The Greenback Party is a new party, and they are not yet known to the people.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, APRIL 19.—This afternoon the House went into committee on the Bill respecting the collection of statistics. Mr. Anglin moved to amend the Bill so as to authorize the collection of vital statistics, and it should not be attempted by the authorities. A permanent staff might be employed for this purpose.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

On the second reading of the True and Fair Bill, Mr. Mackenzie moved to amend the Bill so as to provide for the collection of statistics. The Bill was agreed to.

