THEIR EXCELLENCIES LORD AND LADY BYNG. HERE MONDAY

Governor General and Vice Regal Party Will Be Extended Formal Welcome At Town Hall and Conveyed Through Town in Procession—Will Visit Both Hospitals

After completing a two months' tour of the Maritime Provinces and visiting thirty places throughout the Province of New Brunswick, His Excellency, Lord Byng of Vimy, Governor General of Canada, accompanied by Lady Byng and the Vice Regal party, will arrive in Campbellton on Monday, Sept. 23rd at 2 o'clock, where the representative of His Majesty will make a two hour visit.

Besides being the first official visit of Lord Byng to the Maritime Province, this is the first time in years that Campbellton has had the honor of welcoming the Governor General of the Dominion, moreover our location on the extreme north of the province, affords us the distinction of having the opportunity of not only welcoming them a farewell from the Maritimes as Campbellton is the last stop prior to the entrance of the party into the Province of Quebec.

An Honor.

In welcoming Lord and Lady Byng, Campbellton enjoys an honor which should not be under-estimated. The visit of Lord Byng is an occasion which has a dual significance to all Canadians. Not only will Lord Byng be welcomed because he is the representative of His Majesty, but also because of the undying reputation he won as leader of our Canadian troops in the World War. The heroism of General Byng of Vimy and his contribution to the glorious victories of Arras-Cambrai in 1917, will never be forgotten and because as a man and a leader he wears worthily the mantle of Wellington and Kitchener of Karthoom, Campbellton should extend Lord Bynga fitting welcome on the occasion of his visit here.

It is to be hoped that all citizens will co-operate heartily and by decorating their premises, etc., assist in making this welcome what it should be. On the arrival of the party here at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Lord Byng will be read and presented with an address of welcome in the Town Hall and after his reply the party will be conveyed in procession through the town. After a brief visit to our two hospitals, their Excellencies will again entrain to continue their tour in the Province of Quebec. The route of the procession through the town will be as follows:—

Up Roseberry to Cemetery, down Cromwell to Duncan, down Duncan to Sugar Loaf, up Sugar Loaf to Lansdowne, down Lansdowne to O'Leary, down O'Leary to Duke, down Duke to Minto, to Aberdeen, down Aberdeen to Andrew, up Andrew to Arran, down Arran to Soldiers' Memorial Hosp., and Hotel Dieu, down Prince Wm. to King, down King to Ramsay,, up Ramsay to Water, up Water to Cedar up Cedar to Patterson, up Patterson to Andrew, down Andrew to Water, up Water to Station. After leaving here the Governor-General will visit Matapedia and on the following day their Excellencies will visit New Carlisle, the shiretown of Bonaventure County.

FIRST ELECTION IN 28 YEARS

For the first time in twenty-eight years there is to be an election in the parish of Addington for municipal councillors.

In past years it has been the custom to nominate just the required number of councillors required, two, and allow them to go in by acclamation.

But this year it is difficult. Six candidates have filed their papers and a lively election is promised.

The candidates are as follows:—

FOR SALE—Diamond ring for two tickets to "The Third Alarm" as part payment.

WANTS TAXES COLLECTED TO DATE

Coun. St. Onge Says Town Would be on Easy Street if All Paid.

A meeting of the Town Council was held Tuesday evening, His Worship Mayor McKay presiding. There were present: Couns. Belle-Isle, Gilker, St. Onge, Moores, Duncan, Graham and Gorman.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Fred Dolman, fireman at the power house tendered his resignation, because of ill health. This was accepted.

Applications for reduction of assessment read from several ratepayers. These were referred to the Assessment and Appeals Committee.

The Town Solicitor submitted copy of agreement with Clifford Chatterton for the construction of the sea wall at the park.

Coun. Duncan thought the season was so far advanced that the work could not be completed advantageously this year.

Several other councillors spoke in favor of leaving this work over until next season.

Coun. St. Onge moved that the construction of the sea wall be postponed until next year. Carried unanimously.

The usual departmental accounts were passed.

On recommendation the Police and License Committee, Fred J. McDonald was given permission to install a gasoline tank on Sugarloaf Street.

Street Commissioner LaCasse submitted a report of tools, etc., on hand when he took charge of the department. He also recommended that another horse be purchased and a gasoline tank be installed.

Coun. Duncan moved that the Public Property and Streets Committee be empowered, if they deem it advisable, to purchase another horse and install a gasoline tank.—Carried.

Coun. Gilker was named as a member of the Fire Protection Committee.

When the matter of finances to pay for the extension of the water system was taken up, Coun. St. Onge asked what the present overdraft at the bank was. He was informed about $13,000.

Coun. St. Onge then asked the amount of outstanding 1923 taxes not paid.

The Mayor—About $50,000.

Coun. St. Onge—This $50,000 with $25,000 of other years unpaid taxes if collected would put the town on easy street. Can nothing be done to collect these taxes. He thought the finance committee should get after this matter in earnest.

Coun. St. Onge brought up the matter of the old Waverly ruins. These were getting dangerous and should be pulled down. He thought the owners should be notified.

Coun. Duncan moved that the owners of the Waverly be instructed to demolish the ruins at once, and if work is not started in fifteen days the town will proceed with the work and collect the cost of such work from the owners.—Carried.

Coun. Belle-Isle brought up the matter of the approach to the river from Water Street adjacent to the Ed. Sullivan property. He moved that a committee be appointed to interview Mr. Sullivan on this matter and report to Council.

His Worship named Couns. Duncan, St. Onge and Belle-Isle such committee.

The council then adjourned.

RETURNED MEN ATTENTION!

The dress will be optional, those who have uniforms will wear them, those who have not will parade in civics.

Body of N. Y. Infant Is Found in River

New, York, Aug. 29.—The body of a three months old bady was found today in the Hudson River by police who have been searching for Lillian McKenzie, an infant kidnapped from her carriage in front of a store twelve days ago.

The body was naked, with no outstanding marks of identification. The child was a female.

The body was taken from the foot of West 78th street to the police station and Mr. and Mrs. Peter McKenzie summoned to view the remains.

WORK BEGUN ON WATER EXTENSION

Contractor Busy Digging Trench and Laying Main to New Dam.

The work on the water extension system is now under way and it is hoped to have everything completed and in order before the frost comes.

This addition to Campbellton's water supply will, we hope, and have every reason to believe, supply Campbellton's growing needs for many years to come.

Recently officials of the Health Department visited Walker Brook, and made a thorough examination, and with the exception of three houses and three barns a short distance above the proposed reservoir, approved of the site.

The town has purchased the buildings complained of together with twenty-five acres of land, for $4700, a very reasonable price.

These buildings will be either removed or destroyed and the whole site thoroughly cleaned.

More recently an official of the N. B. Underwriters looked over Walker Brook, following it back for miles, and noting the various feeding brooks which flow into the main stream. He came back enthusiastic and stated that Campbellton would have an abundant supply for all purposes. Our readers will also remember that Engineer Holt made an examination of Walker Brook and recommended this as a source of greater supply for Campbellton.

The contract for the trenching and back filling has been let to Wm. Doucett at $1.80 per foot. He had also to clear the right of way.

The pipe line will follow the highway for about a thousand feet, thence through the Jagoe and Pratt properties and along the brook to the dam site.

The dam site has been chosen, and every preparation is being made to rush the work of building the concrete dam, which will be done by days work under the supervision of the Town Engineer.

TWO TREATS FOR BASEBALL FANS

Final Fight for Napier Cup on Friday Night—Bathurst Nine Here Monday

With the two biggest games of the season scheduled to take place within the next few days local baseball fans are assured of two real treats between now and Monday. On Friday night on the O'Leary field diamond the final battle in the local league series will be waged between the C. N. R. and the C. H. S. nines, and as this game is to decide the winner of the Napier Baseball Trophy, it will doubtless be the fastest and most thrilling contest of the baseball season here. These two squads are very evenly matched and the struggle for the league supremacy will undoubtedly be a most exciting spectable. Those who are not familiar with the fine brand of ball which is being exhibited by our boys this season should not fail to be on hand. Friday night's contest will be too good a game to miss.

Bathurst Here Monday.

Monday's game, which will likely be the last baseball of the season, gives ample promise of being a big event. The fast Bathurst squad in this summer a snappy aggregation and in competition with the pick of our local players, a fast and exciting contest is certain.

Another thing to remember is that this game with Bathurst on Monday is the first engagement of the season with an outside team and that this venture entails expenses which must be met by the local baseball club. The boys have been doing their best all summer to provide wholesome amusement for lovers of baseball so it is to be hoped that not only the fans but citizens at large will liberally patronize Monday's event. The game is set for 3.30 so will not conflict in any way with the visit of Lord and Lady Byng.

THREE ARE BEING HELD IN FISH WARDEN MURDER CASE

Dept. Public Works Jan. 24

According to word received here today from St. Florence, Que., three men of that locality have been arrested and are being held in connection with the murder of Fishery Inspector Joseph Blacquire, who was shot to death by salmon poachers there on the night of July 28th while on duty on the Bonaventure River. The apprehension of Edmond Girard by Detective Rioux on Aug. 18th has contrived to simplify the mystery which first surrounded the death of the Fish Warden. On being taken to Quebec by Detective R. H. Rioux, Chief of the Provincial Staff at Quebec, Girard confessed and told all he knew concerning the killing. His story implicated five others, two of which are now being held by the police. According to Girard's statement the man who actually did the shooting, and whose name is withheld for obvious reasons by the police, is still at large. His general whereabouts however, are known to the authorities and his arrest is expected any day. In his confession to the authorities Girard gave the names of the other four men implicated in the shooting and also told who fired the shot. According to his story the person who actually killed Blacquire was on the shore and not in the canoe with the others. It appears that this man ordered the Warden back to his house, this remark being overheard by the occupants of the canoe. Whether any quarrel ensued or not, is not known, but a few moments later the shot was heard, followed by the agonized cry of the victim.

Quick Work.

The developments which have so far evolved in the Blacquire case appear to be the result of quick work on the part of the authorities. Arriving in the vicinity of the tragedy shortly after its occurrance, Chief Detective Rioux, accompanied by two members of his staff, set about to enjoy some fishing, ostensibly as holiday guests of the Salmon Club. Learning of the death of the Fish Warden, apparently for the first time, they became naturally curious over the affair and temporarily forsook their fishing apparatus. By following the immediate developments of the case in a mildly interested way they arrived at certain conclusions which later provided clues upon which to work. Special C. N. R. Agent Harry Culligan also assisted, in unraveling the mystery, and on information secured by Constable E. Smith of Campbellton, who was recommended by Detective Culligan, much of the initial work was begun.

On the morning of August 18th, the fishing tackle disappeared and was substituted by the flash of bright nickle handcuffs and Girard was placed under arrest, a charge of murder being preferred against him.

UNION OF N. B. MUNICIPALITIES

Meeting At Campbellton Created Much Interest—Some of the Addresses.

The Union of N B. Municipalities meeting held here, created much interest throughout the province, and the newspapers devoted many columns to it. Many of the addresses were of a high order and were read throughout the country with deep interest.

We regret that we cannot reproduce all of these, as it would take up our entire space. However we will reproduce some of the addresses.

At the opening meeting His Worship Mayor McKay called on Councillor Belle-Isle to welcome the delegates and Mr. Belle-Isle delivered the following addresses in English and French:—

Mr. President and Gentlemen Delegates of the Union of New Brunswick Municipalities

I have been graciously invited by his Worship Mayor McKay to address you a few words of welcome in French, my mother tongue, and it is with much pleasure that I accepted the invitation.

I can tell you, right here, that to day our good Town of Campbellton feels greatly honored by your presence in our midst, and it is in the name of all our citizens that I wish to convey to you, gentlemen, the word of a hearty welcome.

It is certainly the intention of our Town Council as well as of all our citizens to make it so, that you shall always keep a kind and happy remembrance of your stay among us.

The task that you are pursuing is a laudable and noble one in every way, a task of greater education in various branches all tending to make our people healthier both physically and financially and provide better Civic Government.

These annual Conventions bringing together a large number of Municipal Councillors, Aldermen and Officers from all parts of our beautiful Province, can but be greatly benificial to us all. They facilitate the exchange of ideas that constantly tend to improve our System of Municipal Government, in its different branches. They also give us all, the immense advantage of getting better acquainted with each other, and as the annual Conventions are always held in a new place, we thus give the opportunity to a class of broad minded and progressive men to thoroughly acquaint themselves with the different parts of our Province and their varied resources, useless to add that all these men have at heart the development of one of the finest provinces of our Dominion.

I am indeed pleased to note that the membership to the Union of New Brunswick has been increased by one new member, Gloucester County represented by Mr. Poirier of Caraquet.

I have no doubt that these Conventions, representative of all parts of our province will also have a salutary influence on the "Bonne-Entente" between the two great races that form our population. It is in knowing each other better that we learn to appreciate more one another.

Union is strength, let us unite and we are assured to make of our dear province if not altogether a garden of Eden, at least the best and most prosperous of our fair dominion.

We have the brains and resources, let us get to work and so on our perseverance will be crowned with the ultimate success we are looking for.

Again, gentlemen, a hearty welcome to you all.

Mr. le Président et Messieurs les délégués de L'Union des Municipalités du Nouveau-Brunswick.

J'ai été gracieusement invité par son Honneur le Maire McKay, de vous adresser quelques paroles de bienve en français, ma langue Maternelle, et c'est avec un vif plaisir que je me rends à cette invitation et je puis vous dire en toute sûreté que notre bonne ville de Campbellton s'honore aujourd hui de votre présence dans nos mûrs et c'est au nom de tous que je vous so unaite une cordiale bienvenue. C'est certainement l'intention de notre Conseil de Ville ainsi que le tous nos Citoyens de faire en sorte que vous conservierz longtemps un bon souvenir de votre séjour parmis nous.

La tâche que vous vous êtes tracés est louable et noble en tous points. D'abord ces conventions annuelles qui rassemblent un grand nombre de Conseillers, d'échevins et d'officiers municipaux de toutes les parties de notre belle Province, ne peuvent que bénificier à tous et cela à tous les points de vus.

Premièrement elles nous facilitent l'échange d'idées qui tendent à améliorér constamment notre système de Gouvernement municipal dans ses diférentes branches, ensuite elles nous donnent l'immense avantage de nous mieux connaitre mutuellement puis comme l'on change le siège de la UNION OF N B No 2 Convention à chaque année et qu'a tous les ans la Convention en lieu dans un nouvel endroit, nous faisons connaitre les différentes parties de Notre Province ainsi que leurs ressources variées à une classe d'hommes de progrès et aux vus larges qui ont a Coeur le développement d'une des plus belles Province de la Puissance du Canada. Il me fait plaisir de constater que nous comptons cette année un nouveau membre a'l'Union des Municipalités du Nouveau Brunswick, le Comte de Gloucester qui est ici représenté par Mr. Poirier de Caraquet.

Je ne doute pas du tout ces conventions représentatives de toutes les parties de la Province auront aussi une influence salutaire sur le rapprochement tout désiré des deux grandes races qui composent notre population, C'est en se connaissant mieux que l'on s'appréciera d'avantage.

L'Union fait la force, unnissons nous et nous sommes assurés de faire de Notre Province si-non un Paradis terrestre du moins la plus prospère de notre dominion, nous avons les talents et les ressources, mettons nous à l'oeuvre et notre persévérance sera bientôt couronnée de succès.

GOOD SESSIONS OF MUNICIPALITIES

Commen of Commissioner Thornton, Home Today From Campbellton.

(St. John Times)

Commissioner John Thornton, who returned yesterday after attending the union of New Brunswick Municipalities convention, said the meeting this year was one of the best he had ever attended. The papers read were of a very high order and the discussions brought out some excellent suggestions for better Municipal Government. It was well worth the time of any person interested in Municipal affairs, he said, to attend one of the conventions as there was aways something to be learned.

The people of Campbellton had been very hospitable and the time had passed all too quickly. The only criticism the commissioner had to offer was that there was so much material that it was hard for a person to grasp it all and there was hardly sufficient time to thoroughly discuss the various papers.

Commissioner Thornton and Commissioner Wigmore made the trip by automobile, going by way of Moncton and back by way of Fredericton. He found the roads in very good condition and especially commended the practice followed in the upper counties of straightening out curves in the highways.

INFANT MORTALITY RATE EXAGGERATED

Press Story from Ottawa Not Correct—A Steady Decrease.

Fredericton, Aug. 25.—Dr. G. C. Melvin, Chief Health Officer of New Brunswick has issued a correction of the report which has been circulated for some time past by the press that New Brunswick has a rate of infant mortality of 142.4 per thousand. The report was begun by a press despatch issued from Ottawa and is presumed to have been based upon a report for the month of January given to the Federal Department of Health. The rate of infant mortality for that particular month was 142.4 per thousand but an entirely wrong impression is created by publishing that rate as the rate for the province which should be based upon the monthly average for twelve months.

Rate Steadily Reduced.

During the past three years the rate of infant mortality in New Brunswick has been steadily reduced. The reduction has been greater in proportion than in any of the eight provinces whic hmake returns of infant mortality. The New Brunswick Department of Health considers the showing very creditable.

Rates For Three Years.

The rate for the three past years shows the steady decrease in the rate of deaths among infants. For the year 1920 the rate was 135 per thousand. For the year 1922 the rate was further reduced to 108 per thousand, that being the last complete year.

MILLIONS IN A MAZE

SEEKING THE BURIED TREASURE OF BANDIT PASHA.

Excavators Are Searching Beneath the Stronghold of Brigand Who Terrorized the Balkans More Than One Hundred Years Ago—He Fought With and Against Napoleon Bonaparte.

Excavators searching beneath the ancient stronghold of Ali Pasha, the famous brigand who terrorized the Balkans one hundred years ago, believe that they are within a few feet of sixteen strong boxes containing 55,000,000 Venetian ducats.

A Venetian ducat was worth 5s. 4d. in the Middle Ages, but its present value in weight of gold is many times this sum.

Twenty-five skeletons of men who were murdered because they knew the secret of Ali's treasure have been found in the labyrinth of twisted passages which ends in the crypt.

A subterranean lane 1,100 yards long and twelve yards from the surface has been cleared. It has many turnings, and is interested by narrow, crooked tunnels leading off into the darkness. Some of these tunnels, on being explored, were found to lead back into the main tunnel. Others had blind ends.

The exploring party expect to reach the great iron gate which bars the entrance to the crypt at a very early date. Not only an enormous sum of money, but jewels, tapestries, and a hoard of golden Byzantine chalices stolen from churches are believed to be behind this door.

The archeologist in charge of the work declares that the site of the fastness would never have been discovered but for the miraculous intervention of St. Nicholas, who is said to have spoken at a seance, giving directions to the excavators. The saint is also credited with having led the searchers to the spot where Ali's sumptuous baths were recently brought to light.

Ali Pasha was the son of a woman leader of a brigand band. She inspired her son with a fierce and indominable temper after the death of his father at the hands of neighboring chiefs. When he grew up he avenged his father, and then grew rich with spoil.

He helped the Turks in their war with Russia in 1787, and was rewarded with honors. Soon his power became supreme in Albania, and he became an ally of Napoleon in the hope of an opportunity to establish a great sea power in the Mediterranean.

Later he fought against Napoleon, and he negotiated with Britain in the name of the Ottoman Government, which, in fact, he was, for he completely overshadowed the Sultan. He was murdered treacherously as he left the Grand Visier's tent after concluding peace negotiations.

In the Pines.

Awake in the stillness of the country, with quiet meadows, white in the moonlight, stretching beyond your garden gate, you hear the approach of the wind as he woos your pine trees to sing with him; for the wind cannot sing alone; he needs a lyre through which to sweep his mightiest and his gentlest songs.

It is not a rustle, as with poplars, but a swift, swishing sound, at first hardly more than the breathing of a child, but rising to a powerful crescendo as the boughs flatten under the mighty sweep of the wind.

A few moments and the hush follows, that wonderful vanishing point of sound, unattained by the greatest artist. So gentle is the subsiding that you hardly know when the wind left, but the pines are straight and still again, and the wind is a mile away, stirring the hawthorn buds on the hill and flinging out their fragrance into the moonlight.

End of Cromagnon Age.

About 15,000 years ago the Cromagnon Age in Europe came to an abrupt end. There developed a sudden mildness to the climate, accompanied by cool rains. Heavy forests sprang up on what had been the open grasslands of wild reindeer, wild horses, and wild bison. Glaciers pulled back up their Alpine slopes; the ice fields that were over what is now Norway and Sweden melted away. The Pleistocene Age was over and the modern era was at hand. Cromagnon people all but vanished from western Europe; Cromagnon art was no more. Whether these wild chestnut-haired hunters followed the ice into what is now Russia, or whether they became extinct, no one knows. Certain it is their former lands were deserted when the next race of man appeared.

Queen Ants and Bees.

It has been contended that the queen ant has not had justice done to her by naturalists. As compared with the famous queen bee, she is regarded by some as a far more admirable creature. In fact, they are, in many respects, diametrical opposites. The queen bee is a degenerate creature, unable to nourish either herself or her young, to visit flowers, to build combs, or to store them with honey. With the queen ant quite the reverse is true. She is a perfect example and embodiment of her species and the worker ants suffer from incomplete and retarded development. The queen ant is a very industrious and intelligent worker and it is pointed out that she forms an exceedingly interesting subject for study, and has not hitherto been well understood.

A STORY OF PIRACY ON THE HIGH SEAS

Yarmouth, N. S., Aug. 24.—With a grim story of piracy on the high seas, the liquor-laden Nova Scotia schooner J. Scott Hankinson, minus Captain and cook, who were wounded in a battle with rum pirates on Monday afternoon eighteen miles off Rockport, Me., and who are now in hospital at Gloucester, Mass., anchored just inside Yarmouth Light this morning. The vessel, commanded by Captain Frank Moore, the mate, came in out of a forty mile "smoky sou'wester" and such a heavy sea was running that newspapermen on a harbor tug could not go aboard. Hailing the mate they learned that he and the deck hands had been cooped up in the forcastle during the battle under guard of a detachment of the nine gunmen who boarded her. They knew few details of the actual encounter.

"The pirates came up to us about five o'clock on Monday afternoon" shouted the mate across the intervening space of angry sea. "Our crew with the exception of the cook were all on deck at the time. The pirate boat came alongside and two men, the only ones we could see on her then, came aboard and asked for our skipper, Captain Arthur Moore. We directed them to his cabin. We presumed the visitors had some business to transact with him and we suspected nothing. The cook was in the cabin at the time.

"As the captain was going down the companionway one of the strange men shot him in the back. Our skipper yelled to us to come and help. Just as we started aft seven men who had been hidden on the pirate boat swarmed aboard us. They were armed to the teeth, with guns and revolvers. They drove me and my three men towards the focastle, where we were forced to remain until the pirates were ready to leave the ship."

Helpless to aid their captain and Harry Harm, the ship's cook, the men heard revolver shots and then a tragic silence. The pirates then told them they could come up and departed without another word.

Rushing aft the mate found Captain Moore in the cabin with seven bullet wounds n his body; he was very seriously injured in the back, with less severe wounds in his side and arms, while four fingers of one hand had been shot away. The cook had three wounds, none of them very serious. The captain had a revolver which the mate believes he used to good effect when he was attacked, wounding at least one of his assailants.

The pirates took all the money that was in the captain's cabin, how much the mate does not know.

"That was the captain's own affair," he said to-day. He expresser the belief that the gunmen came aboard with the intention of seizing the ship's cargo of liquor, of which very little had been disposed of, as well as what money was on board. Then when they had wounded the captain and cook the pirates decided the mate believed, that the situation was too serious to warrant any further stay on the Nova Scotian vessel.

As soon as the pirates had gone, the mate ordered the signal of distress hoisted and two hours later a nearby fishing boat came up and took off the two wounded men. The mate then set sail for Yarmouth.

It is believed here that the schooner's cargo of liquor is almost intact. The schooner had a cargo of liquor from Scotand under charter and sailed for Yarmouth three weeks ago with clearance papers from Nassau.

WHY NEW BRUNSWICK'S WATER POWERS SHOULD BE DEVELOPED

MIGRATORY BIRDS PROTECTIVE TREATY

Effects of Migratory Birds Treaty Act Are Being Recognized.

When the white man first came to the North American continent, one of the attractions, not least among the many which appealed to those early settlers, was the great abundance of bird life, which not only afforded pleasure to both eye and ear, but was also a definite and unfailing source of food. Since then, the hunting and killing of game birds has been continued, by succeeding generations, though the meat now obtained is no longer one of the principal means of subsistence. Men of to-day hunt more particularly for the sport of hunting and for the sake of the recreation afforded by an outing in the unspoiled outdoors. Many a tired business and professional man looks eagerly forward each year to his annual excursion to the woods, where with his gun he may spend a week or two of pure joy, away from all the cares and worries of his daily life back in civilization, returning, after his brief sojourn in the wilds, rested and strengthened, with renewed ambition to perform his share in the big world's work.

The early hunters brought back with them large bags of game. Then the bags grew smaller, and gradually it became evident to thinking men that our game birds were in danger of extermination if the decrease in their numbers was to continue. In fact, a number of species, once plentiful, have actually become extinct. These include the Eskimo Curlew, the Labrador Duck, he Passenger Pigeon, and the Great Auk. Others, such as the Whooping Crane and the Trumpeter Swan are in exceedingly grave danger of extinction at an early date.

While probably everyone will admit the great need for preserving our game birds as a natural asset, not everyone, perhaps, is fully aware of the value to the farmer and indirectly to all humanity, of the insect-eating birds, because of the immense quantity of injurious insects devoured each year by these birds. Should their numbers become reduced, a marked increase might be observed in the damage to field crops, orchards and forests, caused by insect pests—damage which is estimated to amount to millions of dollars annually in Canada alone.

Many of our Canadian birds, both of the game and the insect-eating varieties, spend the winter months in the Southern United States, or pass through the United States in the course of their migration, and come back again the Spring to propagate. It therefore became evident some years ago that any measure, taken with a view to the protection of our migratory birds, must be carried out in cooperation with the United States, if it were to be effective. The futility of protecting birds in one part of the country, only to have them killed in another section. was also recognized by the United States authorities, who, in 1913, enacted their Federal Migratory Bird Law, which gave uniform protection to migratory birds throughout the various States of the Union, with equable open seasons fixed in accordance with local conditions.

There was now uniform protection throughout the United States, and conservationists both of that country and of Canada immediately took steps urging the necessity for an international treaty for the protection of migratory birds. Their efforts were finally crowned with success when, in August 1916, the "Migratory Birds Convention" was signed by the representatives of Great Britain and the United States. This treaty provides for the absolute protection in both Canada and the United States of game birds during the Spring months and of insectivorous birds throughout the year It also provides for an open season of three and a half months, during which the sportsman, wherever he may live, is free to hunt game birds, fully aware of the fact that he is not being discriminated against, but has an equal chance at the birds with all other sportsmen in either country. Regulations setting forth the dates for the open seasons for each part of Canada, may be obtained from Mr J. B. Harkin, Commissioner, Canadian National Parks, Department of the Interior, Ottawa, by whom the Dominion Act based upon the Treaty is administered.

As most of the province have amended their game laws to conform with the Migratory Birds Convention Act, thus making it possible for them to enforce the terms of the Treaty within their repective territories, the principal work of the Federal Department, in this connection, is the erucation of the people to a knowledge of the law and its benefits and the encouragement of a sympathetic attitude towards bird protection. At the same time it has enforced the law in remote sections and in some provinces.

A very important means by which the Act is enforced is through the medium of a large force of Honorary Game Officers, men and women who voluntarily give their services, each in his own locality, for the furtherance of bird protection work, with no thought of financial remuneration but simply because they are in sympathy with the cause of the birds. These include men from all walks in life, including business and professional men and farmer and fishermen, and the fact that their numbers are steadily increasing is most encouraging for the future welfare of Canada's birds.

The prospect for the future is most promising in every way. Already a noticeable increase in game birds is apparent, and it seems practically certain that, due to the wise precautionary measure which has been taken in the passing of the Migratory Birds Treaty, Canadians of the future will be able to enjoy the same delightful hunting expeditions as their forefathers and to experience the same thrills of conquest that have been the delight of every hunter from time immorial, as well as having the health-giving opportunities afforded by such expeditions.

If a wise policy of protection for our migratory birds is continued, it is not improbable that new ndustries may develop. One possibility is the production of eiderdown, which is now obtainable only from the European markets. At present the numbers of eider in many parts of Canada have become sadly reduced, but due to the absolute protection afforded them under the Migratory Birds Treaty Act since ahe year 1918 and to the practical surety of their future protection as deemed necessary, there seems no reason why these valuable birds should not afford one of the coming industries for the coasts where they breed.

BELL FIRE ALARMS ELIMINATED IN LYNN

Lynn, Aug. 22.—The bell alarm for fires in Lynn was eliminated beginning to-day, according to a decision reached by members of the City Council to-day.

Action followed a request by Chief Edward E. Chase of the Fire Department for the abolition of the bell alarm except for second-alarm fires.

Chief Chase requested the elimination of the bell alarm because of traffic congestion caused by motorists who persisted in rushing to alll fires and blocked the highways to such an extent that the fire apparatus was unable to reach the fire.

GIRL TURNS BANDIT TO GAIN THRILLS

Tells Police After Capture That She Liked the Game

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Miss Marie Dubois, 21, pretty daughter of a formerly New Orleans family, is alleged by police to have confessed to assuming the role of "bandit queen" because she has a passion for thrills.

The girl, with a group of eleven other "under-world characters" was arrested by detectives seeking to clear up 25 or more robberies here.

She admitted, police said, that she was Roy Palmer's "girl." Palmer was one of those arrested. Loot worth about $5,000 was recovered in a secret drawer in his flat.

Marie was dressed in a grey "Quaker costume" when arrested. To other members of the group, three of whom have also confessed, she was known as "Betty." Several of the men were identified by victims.

"I'm mighty glad now I am alone in the world," Marie said today "My parents died four years ago and when my brother and I graduated from the Holy Cross Academy at New Orleans, we went our separate ways in search of adventure.

"I was in my first hold-up by accident. We were out in Jimmy Vinci's car and they made me hide in the bottom until they got a roll of money. I was scared, but after a while I liked it."

Able Paper Presented by Hon. Dr. E. A. Smith, Chairman of N. B. Electric Power Commission, at Municipalities Convention Here Last Week.

SUBJECT EXHAUSTIVELY DISCUSSED

At the annual meeting of the New Brunswick Union of Municipalities here last week, Hon. Dr. E. A. Smith, Chairman of the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, on Tuesday delivered the following address on the problem of hydro development and the bearing of its solution on the material prosperity of this province:

This subject to which I have given considerable time in the last three years, and which has been studied technically by our engineers, is to my mind, so closely allied to any adequate program for the increased prosperity of the municipalities, which you represent, that I am particularly pleased, at your recognition of its importance, by providing this opportunity of discussing the subject before such a representative body as the Union of Municipalities.

The development and transmission of electric power, is as you are aware, a highly technical proposition, and I am free to confess that I am not prepared today to discuss in detail, just how many kilowatt hours of electric energy can be produced from our water powers, nor to a tenth of a cent, how much per k.w.h. that current could be delivered for operating an electric iron in Campbellton, Moncton or St. Stephen I hope, however, to be able to advance sufficient reasons as to why the water powers of N. B. should be developed and to enlist your individual interests, in the efforts that are now being made to utilize these powers, for the benefit of the province at large.

The development of our water powers, is not, to my mind, so much an end in itself, but rather, as a means to the development of the resources of the province in general, and my effort today, is to show how the utilization of our water powers, might promote improvement in our industrial, agricultural and social conditions.

Water Powers of Provinces Compared

According to the report of the Dominion Water Powers Branch of the Dept. of the Interior, Ottawa, there is with complete development of storage, about 200,000 commercial horse power, in this province, and this statement is borne out by an analysis of the engineers of our commission.

At November the first 1922, the water power installation expressed in h. p. 1000 of population was:

	H. P. per 1000 Population
British Columbia	595
Alberta	56
Saskatchewan	Nil
Manitoba	170
Ontario	439
New Brunswick	107
Nova Scotia	90
P. E. Island	21
Yukon	3157
Average for all Canada	331

It may be noted from these figures, that while the total available water powers of New Brunswick are comparatively small, yet the total installation has not reached more than (1-5) the available capacity. Until all the powers are harnessed, we have no reason to deplore the comparative scarcity of water powers, particularly, when one power site in the province, comprising (3-4) of all our available power, remains in its natural undeveloped state.

While Quebec, British Columbia and Ontario have from 440 to 600 h.p. per thousand population, we in New Brunswick have only utilized 107 h.p. per 1000 of our population. That indicates plainly, that we have taken advantage of this resource only to one third the extent, found in the rest of Canada. One cannot help the conclusion, that if this province is not keeping pace, industrially and commercially with the rest of Canada, it may be in no small part due to the fact, that we have not taken full advantage of our opportunities for providing power.

Reasons For Development

It appears to me, that the water powers of the province should be developed, first, in the interest of industrial expansion of the province. Now what are the opportunities for industry in the province compared with other portions of Canada?

Industries require raw material, cheap and abundant power, labor, capital and markets. Many flourishing industrial communities of the world have had in the first place, only fuel for producing power, but due to geographical position, have been able to import raw material, attract capital and labor, and export manufactured goods. How much more fortunate, is a province that has available power, for manufacturing; a large share of raw material for one of the leading industries of the country, capable and reliable labor, and a geographical position, which permits it to import other raw materials and export its manufactured goods. All these things and conditions we have in abundance in our province, considering the area and population of the province.

For the past seven or eight years, notwithstanding that export of pulp wood from the Crown Lands of the province, has been prohibited, there had been exported, on an average, annually, over 200,000 cords of pulpwood from the province; sufficient to produce 300 tons of paper per day for 300 days of the year, and which would leave in return, four to five times the value, in the manufactured article. To have converted this wood into paper it would have required, approximately 30,000 h.p. mechanical energy which power has been flowing over our water falls. What is the result of allowing this raw material and unmanufactured wood to leave our province? Our workmen, if they wish continuous employment must follow this wood to its destination; there to help build up centres of population and provide a market for the farm produce of another country. How can this deplorable condition be remedied, so long as we are heedless of the development of the water powers of the province, without which this material cannot be manufactured here.

One of the first essentials in the manufacture of paper, is cheap and plentiful power. It is one of the largest consumers of power of all industries; requiring about 73 h.p. to produce one ton of paper per day of mechanical pulp; 10 to 20 h.p. for sulphite pulp and about 100 h. p. per ton of newsprint.

The large and influential provinces are pressing for a Canadian embargo on the export of pulp wood; in order to protect the supply of material for the industries already established in those provinces. Sooner or later they may be successful in their efforts. What position will this province then be in to take advantage of that condition? If we shall not have provided, by the development of our resource, power, for manufacturing here, and if we do not attempt to establish paper mills in the province, we will have failed to take advantage of our natural resources.

Lumber Industry Alone Justifies It

The complete development of this one industry founded on our forest products, in my opinion, would more than justify the development of our water powers. The addition to industrial returns in the province would be millions of dollars annually.

Year after year we have been cutting down our forests and sawing our timber into rough lumber, just sufficiently small to permit of easy handling in transportation, and then that rough lumber—raw material— has been exported, for further manufacture in other countries. That is precisely the same procedure we are following, only more intensely, in our failure to manufacture our pulp wood into paper.

If there is a market in a foreign land, for a finished product, manufactured from our timber in plants in that land, then there is a market in that same country, for the finished product of our lumber, manufactured in this province.

In the days of wooden ships—had our forefathers pursued our short sighted policy, then instead of building ships in the province, they would have exported the hacmatac timber and pine plank, and been content with their small returns, for their logging operations, and there would have been no such period of prosperity as accompanied the ship building in New Brunswick.

We cannot too strongly emphasize the importance to this province of the paper making industry of the near future, and I am convinced, that the development of that industry must be preceded, by the development of cheap water power, to such an extent that power will be available in sufficiently large blocks in whatever part of the province, it may be desirable to locate such paper mills.

The Plan of Development

An adequate scheme for the development of our water powers, would comprise, not only the installation of machinery at each power site, but the erection of such transmission lines as would be necessary to carry to the larger centres of the province, and there distribute that power as widely and for as many uses as possible. Fortunately, the inhabited portions of this province are so distributed, that it would be practical to serve, with electrical energy generated by our water powers, at least 75% of our people.

Our settlements cover a narrow strip of the coast, from Restigouche to Charlotte County, and an area of varying width along the St. John river, in the western part of the province. Another settled area has between these two, in the vicinity of the Miramichi and the Nashwaak rivers.

Our engineers are now investigating, for the Provincial Government, the possibilities of development of the Grand Falls, on the St. John river, and the building of high voltage transmission lines from there to the North Shore, via Campbellton and Bathurst, and down through the settled area of the St. John valley. From these two high voltage lines (110) volts, together with the line already built between St. John and Moncton, and between the Nepisiquit and the Miramichi, we find that it is possible to reach the great majority of the communities of the province.

When the power market shall exceed the capacity of Grand Falls, the small sites can be developed as part of the general provincial system, thus making the combined capacity of practically all the water powers available in all centres of population in all parts of the province. Our water powers should be developed along such broad lines, in the interest of general efficiency. There are now in the province, 27 central electric stations, i.e., stations for generating, or else distributing electricity for the use of the public, under as many boards of management. Eight of these stations are hydraulic, 15 are fuel plants and four are non-generating, purchasing power from other companies and distributing it.

The total capital invested in the central electric station business of the province is approximately $4,500,000 and the users of electricity are supporting 27 boards of directors or management to carry on the various undertakings.

The annual fuel bill of these stations is probably $350,000 and they serve approximately 20,000 customers; domestic and commercial.

Only 1-3 of Population Have Electric Service.

Then of our total population of 387,000 people, not 100,000 have the advantage of electric service. Neither can the remaining 75% of our people entertain any hope of being served by the existing systems. Already there are isolated stations in every community large enough to justify the expenditure; in fact a great many of the isolated plants, in the smaller places have difficulty in operating even at very high rates.

What Has Been Done.

The development of our water powers, however, and the erection of transmission lines, between the plants and the large cities, will enable the smaller communities, on the route, to obtain current on the same basis, in so far as the generation is concerned, as the larger cities. What might be expected, all over the province, is demonstrated by what the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission are now doing, between St. John and Moncton, a distance of 90 miles.

We have a 66,000 volt transmission line to Moncton an undertaking justified by the power demand of that city. That line having been built through from St. John, we are now able and are providing power for Sussex, which owns it distributing system, and in addition, we are servng direct, the residents of Fairvale and Hampton, and before the end of the fiscal year, hope to be serving customers in Norton, Apohaqui, Millstream, Bloomfield, Petitcodiac, River Glade and Salisbury. Not one of these small communities would have justified the building of an independent generating plant. Besides providing the above villages, we expect to make available, electric energy for a large number of farmers living between the places I have mentioned.

I do not wish to make those of you, who represent some of the larger towns of the province envious, so will not tell you what the rates will likely be in these small communities. I may mention, however, that the rate at Hampton is $1.00 per month, service charge, plus 6 cents per k.w.h. for the first 20 k.w. hrs. per month, and 3 cents for all additional used. That rate enables a resident in the village of Hampton to use an electric cooking range, or other large consuming appliances as freely as if living in Montreal. This is a condition brought about by development of water power and the means of transmitting it, and can be reproduced all over the province by the development of our water powers, under a broad and comprehensive scheme.

Economy of Operation

Such a development as I have mentioned, would be in the interest of efficiency, because, instead of operating 20 separate stations or plants to serve 25% of our people, we would with ultimate development, operate less than half that number to serve at least 75% of the population of the province; moreover, the generation of power in large quantities, could be made equally available in the small town and in the city.

The ultimate development of our water powers would lead to an annual saving of a fuel bill of about $350,000 for the various isolated central stations now operating, which added to the fuel saving that would be brought about by replacing steam power with electric, in the various manufacturing plants, would aggregate a million dollars per year. While we might not need to be concerned, in this province, with the conservation of fuel, seeing that the great bulk of our coal is imported; yet in this instance, fuel conservation, by the development of our water powers would give us power from our own resources, without depending upon the coal out put of another community, with all its increasing uncertainties as to cost and availability.

Power and Location Would Attract Capital to Province.

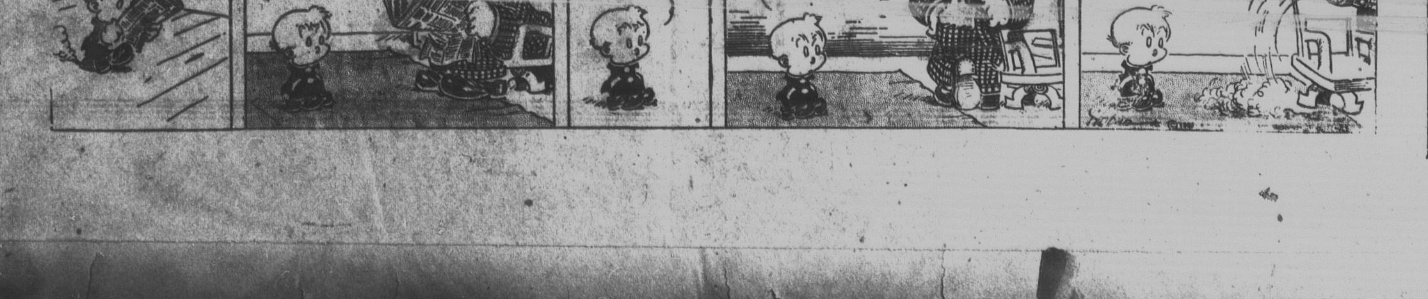

You cannot expect capital to come to a province where public indifference is shown in regard to natural resources. A manufacturer looking about Canada for a location, will look first for cheap industrial sites, cheap power and location with regard to markets and dependable labor. Can you expect him to choose New Brunswick, when he can obtain power abundantly and cheaply in other provinces, even though we can supply sites; have a better location with regard to the markets of the world, and have as efficient and dependable workmen, as can be found in the world, but cannot offer him power, where he requires it, nor in any quantity required. Any manufacturing plant of any size in the province today must increase its undertaking very considerably to provide a power plant, and even the power is costly. The day is past when industry will locate where electrical power at reasonable cost is not available.

Our Raw Materials, Location, People.

Are we not better located in New Brunswick with reference to the markets of the world, than any other province? Is not the coast line from Campbellton to Baie Verte, open to the oceans of the world for seven months of the year? and is not our south shore open to the oceans of the world all the year? To what use are we putting this great asset of location? Heretofore we have been satisfied to collect a seasonable commission on such of the trade of the 8,000,000 people of Canada, as passes through this province each winter.

We have apparently forgotten that the markets of the world are accessible to us. We should be manufacturing in this province raw material that may and can be exported from any part of the world, and should be exporting manufactured goods to all parts of the world. That should be the business of a province situated as New Brunswick is. There is located

Weddings

DUNCAN—MacKENZIE.

A very pretty wedding of much local interest took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Allan MacKenzie, South Nelson, N. B., when their second daughter, Leila May, was united in marriage to H. Holten Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Duncan of Campbellton, N. B.

The arrival of the bridal party was announced by the singing of "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." The bride who was charmingly gowned in white silk canton crepe with shell pink crepe de chene trimmings and handsomely embroidered bridal veil, carrying a shower bouquet of ophelia roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern, entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march played by Mrs. H. F. Brown

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Alex. Firth of Doaktown, N. B., in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. The double ring service was used.

After the ceremony, a dainty buffet luncheon was served in the dining room, which was artistically decorated with sweet peas and fern.

The bride's mother was becomingly attired in black silk canton crepe with corsage bouquet of American beauty roses, while the groom's mother wore a black satin gown with pearl grey trimmings, wearing a corsage bouquet of roses.

After the luncheon the bridal party left by motor, amid showers of confetti and the good wishes of their many friends for Newcastle, where they took the Ocean Limited for Toronto and other Canadian cities. On their return they will reside in Campbellton.

Travelling, the bride wore a tailored suit of navy serge with moleskin neck piece and hat of navy mohair with grey ospreys.

The groom's gift to the bride was a substantial cheque, to the pianist a white gold scarf pin and to the bride's sister a beautiful ring.

The bride received a splendid array of gifts including silver, china, cut glass and linens.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. H. Duncan, Miss Minnie Adams, Miss Rutilla MacLauchlan, Campbellton; Mrs. Wm. Kitchen and daughter, Mrs. Chas. Walker and daughter, Miss Harriet Johnston, Chatham; and Mrs. Alex. Firth of Doaktown, N. B.

SCENIC GASPE

By REV. W. CAMP

An Article which will be of Special Interest to Our Readers along the Gaspe Coast.

(By Rev. W. Camp)

A few weeks ago, the writer made a trip down the Gaspe Coast. The day was beautifully fine and the journey was begun at Cross Point Station. The train was on time and at 11.30 a.m. we boarded her. We tried for chairs in the parlor car, but large numbers of tourists travelling in the same direction as ourselves had already secured these at Matapedia. However, we rode most comfortably in the first class and arrived in Gaspe on schedule time 9.55 p.m. This was not our first trip, but we found things new and old which gave interest and delight.

After spending a few days at Gaspe we came back to St. Godfroi Station and drove to Shigawake, a beautiful country resort on the Bay de Chaleur. In this delightful spot we spent a part of our vacation. For the most part we lived on the sea shore, bathed in sunshine and fanned by the strong sea breezes. How suggestive were the lines:—

"I love to wander on the pebbled beach,
Watching the sunset at the evening hour,
And harken to the thoughts thy waters teach,
Eternity, eternity and power."

But I started to write about scenic Gaspe. Speaking with a gentleman lately he said he always associated Gaspe with the idea of a cold, bleak, in hospitable and undesirable country. He had never been there and so knew nothing of its lovliness and charm.

One finds it difficult to set forth the scenic beauty of the Gaspe Peninsula. Words fail to convey an adequate picture of a land of sunshine, of pretty streams, of delightful scenery and of rich and fertile valleys. One must see it to really appreciate it. It has an atmosphere, a charm, a vision, which must be experienced to be truly known. The Gaspe Peninsula has a length of 220 miles and a breadth of 90 miles in the widest part, with a total area of over 10,000 square miles.

Starting at Matapedia and travelling by the Quebec Oriental Railway to New Carlisle, which is about half way; and then on by the Atlantic and Western Railway, the traveller reaches Gaspe, a distance of 202 miles. Every mile of that journey is filled with varied and beautiful scenery. Books, papers and magazines must be laid aside while one drinks in the delightful scenery of mountain and vale, of forest and meadow, of river and brook, of country and village, of cultivated fields and barren plain. What a panorama passes before our vision in that day's trip. We cross a number of rivers Escuminac, Nouvelle, Cascapedia, Grand Cascapedia, Bonaventure, Grand, St. John and other streams whose waters are filled with salmon, trout and other fish. To these rivers and sea shores come hundreds of tourists every year to fish, hunt, to bath in the salt water and breathe into their lungs an atmosphere full of invigorating and life-giving qualities.

At the terminus of the railway a ferry carries you across the Gaspe Basin. A team is at the wharf to carry you and your luggage to Baker's Hotel. Here is one of the most up-to-date houses in Eastern Canada. This hotel which contains a number of houses, ministers to both mind and body The surroundings, trees, flowers, hills, forests, rivers and inner and outer Gaspe Basin, all create most pleasant sensations and convey a charm and delight which fill the soul with gladness. Then the "eats"; where can one be better served? The menu is always all one can desire. Mr. John Baker the genial proprietor, has taken every pains and at a cost of a vast sum of money to make his guests comfortable and happy. Here is a delightful summer resort with most reasonable prices for the very best service. Making Baker's Hotel the home base, one may go in a number of directions and find beautiful scenery and pleasant outings.

Sandy Beach

This spot is down Gaspe Bay on the south side. Here is an immense sand bar. It was here Jacques Cartier landed July 20th, 1534 and planted the cross and lilies taking possession in the name of Francis I., of France.

Cape Gaspe.

Continuing our journey down the Gaspe Peninsula from Sandy Beach, we may make a detour and visit Cape de Rosier. The auto must be strong and powerful to climb these towering hills. But when you have reached the goal, a pleasant surprise awaits you. Here is a fishing village nestling amid high hills with the noble St. Lawrence flowing by. After climbing a long and steep hill on your way to Cape des Rosier and before plunging down the other side into a deep valley, you can alight and within a few minutes walk, get a splendid view of Bon Ami, a huge, black, lofty rock thrusting its nose into the waters of the St Lawrence. As you stand and gaze upon this scene it grows upon you, even as the Niagara Falls will do upon your first visit Only words like grand, magnificent, wonderful, etc. can express your admiration of this thrilling sight.

Continuing the journey towards shiphead you pass through the little fishing village of Grand Greve. This lies at the foot of a long hill. The road up this hill zig-zags and then one passes along the route when onlya foot of land lies between your car wheel and a precipice of a hundred feet and more. After an auto ride of twenty-eight miles the foot of a long high hill is reached. The owner and chauffeur of the car does not care to go further and so we walk the rest of the journey. At last we reach the top of this huge rock which thrusts its muzzle into the blue waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence three hundred feet above the ocean level. At the end of Gaspe Cape, lying about halfway down is another shelf of rock projecting into the sea. This is called Ship Head. It is said that when Cartier first saw this point, this particular shelf of rock was covered with a growth of trees which at a distance resembled a ship and so Cartier called this point Ship Head. Now the trees and earth have been washed away and there is nothing but the bare rock. On the higher rock is Cape Gaspe "light" flashing its revolving rays out over the waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence. This light is discontinued from the 20th of Dec. to the 1st of April. Mr. Smith, the light house keeper is both genial and competent, very courteously he showed us through the light house explaining the duties of his office. In thick weather he fires a shot every fifteen minutes which takes the place of the fog horn. The light house is firmly cabled to the rocks. In times of storm the wind is so strong that a man cannot stand up against it.

The writer and wife, in company with a gentleman, his wife and son, from the City of Quebec, made their trip by motor car on the 19th of July last. It will always be remembered as one of the most enjoyable outings of the summer vacation.

There are many other drives one can take, the trip to Fox River is said to be full of interest and beauty. Then the trip to Perce is not a long one for those who have motor cars. Or one can take the morning train from Gaspe, go to Perce station where autos are waiting and after five or six miles reach Perce Village, spend the day and return to Gaspe by the evening train.

But there are other attractions for tourists besides sight-seeing. The sport may be at home here, for there is fishing, hunting, bathing, driving and boating. In other words here is an ideal summer resort with exciting and thrilling experience for the most fastidious and exacting tourist. Multum in parvo is true not only with respect to time, but also with respect to cost.

When the reader next plans his summer vacation, let Gaspe loom up high in his objective.

And now sitting quietly in my study and thinking of my Gaspe experience, of the winds and waves which blow and dash on those ragged, jagged ledges along the Gaspe shore, the words of Whittier come to me:

"I sit alone; in foam and spray wave after wave
Breaks on the rocks which, stern and gray
Shoulder the broken tide away
Or murmurs hoarse and strong through
Mossy cleft and cave."

NEW BRUNSWICK'S WATER POWER

in St. John a sugar refinery, second to none in the British Empire, working day and night on imported raw sugar There is a flourishing brush and broom factory, importing all its raw material. The cotton mills in the province, importing cotton from the southern States. At Moncton we have the J. A. Marvin Ltd., a most flourishing and successful biscuit manufactory, importing the flour from the West and sending its manufactured product, not only back to the west but as far as the West Indies and as far south as Trinidad. If these industries can successfully operate here, why not others? I believe the development of our water powers would directly lead to that industrial expansion in New Brunswick, that the location of the province warrants. And along with the industrial expansion, would be provided additional markets for our agricultural products. Our soil and climate do not produce, in great quantities, wheat and such produce as may be conveniently shipped a great distance. Our produce is of such a nature, that for the most part, must be disposed of in nearby markets. There is only one way to provide sure markets for our farmers and that is by enlarging and increasing our industrial centres.

Would Stop the Drain of Youths To U. S. and West.

There is a product of this province, that we have seen year after year for half a century, going out to other parts of Canada and the United States, the most valuable product of any country, and that is the young men and women. We have suffered a greater economic loss in this than in all other direction. When we consider that these young people in great numbers have grown up in the province and been educated at the expense of the province, and then taken their talents and wealth-producing ability from us, you must conclude, nothing should be left undone to provide in New Brunswick, scope for their enterprise. The development of our water powers, under a provincial wide scheme would, I believe, provide an example of enterprise that would stimulate individual enterprise in the province and go far towards giving better opportunities for our young people.

This is an age of rapid industrial changes. It is only in the last 20 years that such a scheme, as we are now working upon in New Brunswick, became practical. The difficulties of generation and long distance transmission have in that period been largely overcome. Yet in that short period, other provinces of Canada have to a large extent, taken advantage of their water powers, to work out large power schemes. We cannot hope to hold our own with those provinces, if we neglect to make the same provisions in so far as our resources permit.

I need not dwell upon the improved living condition of our people that would accompany the development and distribution of our water powers to the large majority of our homes. These improvements, great in themselves, would accompany the development of our power sites, for widely distributed industries. The fact that electrical service may be made available for domestic use in a small village will add to the value of homes, a greater amount, than the capital cost of providing that service.

I have not pointed out to you, just how a super-power scheme could be carried out, nor how the existing interests may be reconciled to a more comprehensive scheme; based upon the development of our water powers; nor am I in a position to say that the Government of the Province will be prepared to carry out the ultimate development. I can say, however, that the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission have been asked by the Government to investigate and report upon the feasibility of development of our largest power site. That investigation is being carried out now by our engineers, along with their other work, and in due course the results will be laid before the Government.

I do not believe there has ever been before a government of New Brunswick such an issue so important to the people of the province as this: The comprehensive development of our water powers, in the interests of—

(1) The development of the paper industry in the province.
(2) The extension and introduction of industries, based on the imported raw material, which our geographical position warrants.
(3) The increase in markets for agricultural products.
(4) Improvement in living conditions, both urban and rural.
(5) Provincial enterprise.
(6) Increasing opportunities for our young men and women.
(7) Conservation of natural resources.

Cultivation of Root Crops

The object of cultivation is fourfold—(1) To destroy and prevent the growth of noxious weeds; (2) To develop various degrees of openness of texture and uniformity of soil conditions suitable to plant growth; (3) To modify the movement of soil moisture and soil air; (4) To change soil conditions so as to maek it either warmer or colder.

The cultivation of the soil should begin at the first indication of weeds; in fact it is still better to make a start before the weeds get rooted. To expose them to the hot sun in the germinating stage is the most effective way to kill weeds. If harrowing has been properly carried on cultivation may begin with a cultivator the teeth of which are 2 to 2½ inches wide, but, if the soil is soddy or lumpy, a narrow-toothed cultivator will be necessary to do effective work. Be sure the cultivator has a sufficient number of teeth to cover the ground effectively—that is, so that the whole surface of the ground will be thoroughly stirred to a depth of from 2 to 3 inches.

The harrow tooth cultivator is the best to start with; the teeth are narrow, they do not throw the earth over the young plants and one can cultivate closer to the plants without covering them. Later the larger tooth is better, and as the cultivation season advances and the plants get well rooted, the cultivator should be narrowed and cultivation should be deeper in the centre of the hows. The most efficient work can be accomplished by first going one way all over the field, in a day or two cultivate again but go in the opposite direction, to that of the previous cultivation. Cultivation should be continued at intervals just so long as the plans are not injured by horse or cultivator.

The reasons for thorough cultivation are briefly as follows:—The soil particles are rounded in form, and when massed together without being crushed they leave a large amount of unoccupied space; this unoccupied space in the soil is needed for the movement of the soil water and air and the spreading out of the root fibres; it is also the home of micro-organisms which develop the available nitrogen used by the higher plants.

If these soil prticles are too large and too loosely packed the soil permits the rain-fall to pass through it too freely and the water is soon out of reach of plants, nor does it return rapidly enough through capillary action to meet the needs of the crop. If the particles are too small and too closely crushed together the water moves very slowly and the air is excluded from the soil; and when the water dries out, the particles are cemented together too strongly by the salts, which have become too concentrated to stay in solution. Consequently, the root fibres are unable to set the soil particles aside; the root system of the crops, is prevented from proper development; the plants are cut off from sufficient food supply; and as a result the yields are reduced.

If thorough and continuous cultivation is carried on it will, correct the detrimental conditions mentioned, will lessen hand hoeing, and increase the yield and profits, which is one objective to be borne in mind in all farming operations.

Good Versus Poor Rearing of Heifers

What may be affected by feed—Is a superior or inferior cow born or made? To answer the question definitely has required and will require a deal of careful and well conceived investigation work. The matter is by no means settled yet, but it is advisable to give out some of the information now available. Feed is supposed to affect size, type and production, and though it would take a whole book to cover all these points, a few words may not be amiss here.

Feed as Affecting Size—There is no doubt that a heifer fed a heavy grain ration will devedop into a larger cow than one reared on roughages alone; but the difference in size is much more marked during the first few years and less so at maturity. Experiments conducted in Missouri showed the height at the withers of an eighteen-months-old, heavy-fed heifer to be 3.5 inches more than for the poorly fed one, whilst at maturity the difference wasonly an inch.

Feed as affecting type—Liberal feeding may affect type temporarily in that heifers so fed will be heavier and show beefiness of form instead of the angular conformation looked for in the good dairy cow. If, however, the heifer has inherited from her parents the factor of heavy milk production, she will usually milk off this extra fat during her first lactation period and ultimately develop into as good a producer as her more scantily fed mate.

Feed as affecting production—A few years ago an experiment was conducted at Cape Rouge with twins, so as to minimize the chance of error due to breeding. One of them was well fed, produced 11,392 pounds of milk testing 5.75 during her first two periods of lactation, and qualified for Record of Performance; her sister was not well fed, produced 3,767 pounds of milk testing 4.45 during the two first periods of lactation, and could not, of course, qualify for Record of Performance. But experiments conducted in the United States have shown that "the milking tendency of a cow when mature is not influenced to any appreciable extent by any ordinary variations in the ration fed during the growing period."

What course to follow—Under certain conditions, such as preparing pure bred stock for sale or exhibition, or when it is desirable to increase size somewhat, it might pay to feed very heavily on grain, and it must, be said that there is no fear of hurting heifers in doing so, for if the cows are bred right they will lose the surplus body fat soon after calving. But, in general the most profitable course to follow will be an intermediate one, between the two extremes; on very good pasture, no concentrate, and at other times, all the clover hay they will consume, with silage and roots when available, and a grain allowance of from 2 to 3 pounds per animal, per day, according to age.

Gaspe

Gaspe, Aug. 22.—After looking through the Graphic, we think it is time for Gaspe to sit up and take notice.

We are pleased to note that Gaspe is again starting to look bright as the mills are getting very busy. The Howard Smith mill is again working after so many years and gives considerable employment.

Although the summer has been cool both the hotels have been busy and seemingly Gaspe never loses its charm for the city people.

Last week-end there were a great number of boats in. These included the Gulware, Cartier, Margaret, Yatch Alida, Canadian Logger, Jakob Maer-[illegible], this last boat is loading salt for Robin, Jones & Whiteman, Ltd. There was also a steamer at the Government wharf with a cargo of coal for the Chandler Pulp Co.

After Harvest Work Against Weeds

The time to start fighting weeds is in the spring, and among the prerequisites to success is the early sowing of clean plump seed, of suitable varieties, in a seed-bed that is well-prepared as regards drainage, fertility and tilth. By starting the crop vigorously it is enabled to hold its own to the end with the minimum growth and seeding of weeds. However in spite of the best of care there will always be weeds demanding some extra attention. In cultivated crops this can be given the season through, and especially before harvest; in grain and hay there is little opportunity until the crop is off. If not delayed then too long, many of the weeds of these crops can still be taken in hand, and some of them with the greatest of timeliness.

Some weeds like ragweed and Russian thistle push up rapidly about this time. Where grain has been seeded weed growth may have to be kept down by the use of the mower, but other stubble should be worked over by means of a disc harrow or cultivator, or plowed very lightly. Besides preventing the seeding of weeds, this also makes conditions favorable for the germination of seeds already in the surface soil, which can be destroyed in the later fall plowing. Some seeds—wild oats for example—do not germinate readily, if at all, the first season, but any farmer who has practised after-harvest cultivation knows that considerable germination of many seeds can be induced in favorable years.

After harvest plowing of weedy hay fields is also desirable at the first opportunity that occurs. Such persistent perennials as couch grass, Canada and sow thistles, the hawkweeds, ox-eye daisy, etc., are propably at their weakest after using up their reserves in the attempt to mature seed, which timely cutting of the hay should prevent. Plowing at this season is not always the easiest done, but the dryness or the ground, if it does not prevent thorough work, is all to the good in weed destruction; couch grass, indeed, might well be left alone unless the ground is somewhat dry. The plowing at this time need not be deep; for coach grass particularly it should be only deep enough to get beneath the matted surface rootstocks. After plowing the object will be to drag the rootstocks into the drying sun by means of a spring tooth or other implement. Thistles and sow thistles will not be so readily dragged out, and can best be dealt with by the use of a duck-foot cultivator to keep all growth cut off as often as it appears. The amount of fallowing thus possible after the removal of a crop should go a long way toward cleaning a field, or at the least preparing for a cleaning hoed crop the following year. A rotation which allows of this procedure every three to five years will hold weeds reasonably well under control.

Many of the worst weeds of crops are also commonly weeds of waysides, pastures and waste places and should be cut by means of mower, scythe or spud, or hand-pulled after a rain, if only to prevent their seeding. Places which can be broken up and cleaned may be later reseeded if so desired, using strong-growing grasses and clovers which will fully occupy the ground. Besides removing a menace to crops and often to good-will among neighbors—a little puttering about in odd corners of the farm works wonders in making the old place more likeable. After midsummer such weeds rapidly become conspicuous, and may well claim some of the hours or half-days when wet weather has upset other plans.

ANTHRACITE SUPPLY FOR FOUR MONTHS

Washington, Aug. 22.—Sufficient stocks of hard coal are in storage to supply normal requirements in the U. S. for more than four months, according to a survey made by a Government department since the controversy between anthracite miners and operators reached the stage where a discontinuance of production seemed a possible outcome.

Explained.

Lightning had struck the glue factory.

The huge storage tanks had been burst and the contents were flooding every department, while fire-tongues lapped greedily at the wooden portions of the structure, watching out of one corner of their eyes all the time for the approaching fire fighters.

Into the room where the telephone switchboards were kept ran a deep viscid rivulet of adhesive goo.

It was glue-goo, which is the gooiest glue as well as the gluiest goo there is.

Up around the soles of the operators' feet rose the turgid tide.

Up to and over the seats of the stools it rose.

The girls, working easily at the switchboard, answering calls, warning this and that department of the impending danger, murmured softly to themselves and to one another:

"And yet people wonder why we stick!"

QUESTION OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

It is to be hoped that all our readers on the north shore who have not already carefully read Dr. E. A. Smith's paper "Why The Water Powers of N. B. Should be Developed," which he read here at the convention of N. B. Municipalities last week, will do so without delay. The entire article appears on page three of this issue. It is a most comprehensive treatment of a subject which is of vital interest to the people of Campbellton and indeed all those who have the best interest of our county and province at heart. It is most desirable that everyone should become as thoroughly acquainted as possible with this important question for it is one, the disposal of which, will effect the industrial, commercial and individual life of the province. Should the finding of the engineers of the N. B. Electric Commission prove sufficiently auspicious to warrant the early development of Grand Falls the consummation of the project will, in all probability, mark the beginning of an epochal period of progress and prosperity in the history of this section of the country and throughout the province as a whole.

Dr. Smith's paper is too heavily freighted with portentious statements and suggestions to give space here to quotations from its lengthy and carefully detailed treatment of the subject, but there are certain paragraphs which should be carefully noted. If the development of Grand Falls is a feasible project and offers a solution to the power problem for the northern counties, Town Councils, Boards of Trade and other bodies of public spirited men should thoroughly acquaint themselves with all sides of the question and then unite their strength to bring this vital matter to a successful issue.

NEW CARLISLE READY FOR VISIT

A large and well representative meeting was held in the Town Hall last Friday night and plans and committees were drawn up to prepare for the visit of Lord Byng.

According to schedule forwarded by the Governor's Secretary, His Excellency and party will arrive in New Carlisle about Sept. 5th, His Excellency will inspect the guard of honour and the procession will proceed through the town to the Academy grounds. The procession will be under the direction of the transportation committee.

The school children of the town will be massed and will sing. Those who have lost their sons in the Great War will be introduced to their Excellencies.

All citizens are asked to decorate their homes so that a reception befitting the great service rendered by Lord Byng during the Great War may be extended to him. All citizens of other villages will be warmly welcomed to New Carlisle.

SCHOONER SEIZED NEAR CARLETON

An auxiliary schooner, alleged to be a rum-running craft was seized near Carleton on Monday by Inspector Miller of the Inland Revenue Department. In a search of the vessel several jars of liquor were found and it is believed that a cargo of spirits had just ben landed a short time before somewhere along the coast. The fact that the captain could show no clearance or entry papers served to confirm this suspicion and the vessel was immediately taken to Dalhousie where she is being held under seizure awaiting further instructions from the Customs Department.

It is further stated that the owner of the seized vessexl is fairly well known along the coast and that this is the third trip this schooner has made up the Bay Chaleurs. She is equipped with two twelve horse-power engines but both of these were out of order when she was seized and it was necessary for the Customs Cutter to tow her to Dalhousie Harbour. She will ,in all probability, be confiscated.

TRIP TO GASPE.

It is planned to organize a new Masonic Lodge at Gaspe, Que., Monday evening. The G. M. of Quebec will arrive Monday morning by the Ocean Limited and will proceed direct to Gaspe. If a sufficient number of North Shore Masons desire to go, arrangements for a special train with pullman could be made, but all must notify C. A. Alexander by Friday noon. This would be a very enjoyable trip.

FUGITIVE ARRESTED.

William Daigle who recently knocked Deputy Liquor Inspector Doucette of Jacquet River unconscious on the platform of the station at that village and then made a sensational get away from a number of men who gave chase, was apprehended a few days ago by C. N. R. Special Agent H. Culligan. Daigle appeared before Police Magistrate Daniel McAllister at Jacquet River and was fined $10.00 and allowed his freedom on a two year term of probation.

ONLY TWO POLLING PLACES.

For the election of County Councillors on Tuesday the law provides only two polls. One of these will be at the Thompson building on the Subway and the other will be at or near the Orange Hall, Flatlands. As there are about two thousand voters to vote at the Campbellton poll and the poll closes at four o'clock, we predict a busy time for the returning officers and clerk if the day is fine and the electors turn out. If you wish to vote be on a hand early.

PLAINTIFF WINS IN RESTIGOUCHE

Dalhousie, N. B., Aug. 30.—A verdict for $388 for the plaintiff in the case of James A. McKay vs. Loudon Lumber Company, Limited, has been entered at the session of the Restigouche Circuit Court which is being held here. Chief Justice McKeown of the King's Bench Division is presiding and A. T. LeBlanc for the plaintiff, H. A. Carr for defendant.

ROWDIES ON THE HILL.

Citizens on the hill are complaining about a number of half grown boys and young men who make life unpleasant. They break the street lights and then enter gardens, taking away and destroying garden crops, fruit etc., and recently broke down a citizens fence and did other damage. It seems too bad that parents would allow their boys to be so destructive. The police should take the matter in hand and teach them a well deserved lesson.

GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERARY

SATURDAY NIGHT.

There will be the usual dance on Saturday night at the Princess Palm Room. Archestra in attendance.

SPECIAL NOTICE

Because of the big crowds that will attend the showing of "The Third Alarm," next Wednesday and Thursday, we beg to suggest that, if possible, you arrange to come at the starting hours—either 7.30 or 9 o'clock.

It is our desire that you see this great picture comfortably seated and above all—we don't want you to have to wait a half hour or longer or turn away disappointed, simply because most patrons usually come about midway through the first show, thereby causing a "false crush" for a time.

Help us avoid this unnecessary congestion by coming at the starting hour, to either the first or second show. You'll enjoy the picture better too.

For those who can find it convenient we would suggest the nine o'clock show when there will undoubtedly be more room.

Here Are New Recipes for Delicious Apple Pies

Summer-time is pie-time, for in no other country do housewives have the wide choice of small fruits that American women have for pie material. Besides all the berries, peaches, pears, grapes and plums, there are the first green apples which are always ideal for pies. Of course, there are also made fillings, which are always good, but we can have them all winter; so it is wiser to stick to fresh fruits, which are a passing luxury as they are available only during their own short season. Fresh green apple pies have a flavor that none of the winter apple pies have, and served with rich cream or ice cream they are, indeed, a treat.

Green Apple Pie

Line a buttered pie-plate with good crust. Peel, halve, quarter and seed apples enough to fill the crust. Remove every bit of the core, then slice them. Dot the apples with butter, cover with a cupful of sugar, sprinkle them with two tablespoonfuls of water, then put on a top crust with vents in it and crimp the edge. A very small grating of nutmeg may be put into the pie or a very small bit of cinnamon may be added. This is optional. If a little paper cornucopia is put into one of the vents, it will carry off steam and keep the pie from running out if the apples are very juicy. Pie-plates with a gutter to catch the overflow may also be used for this purpose.

Apple Sauce Pie.

Prepare a good, rich apple sauce, sweetening it to taste and making it rather dry by cooking down. When this is done and cool, fill the pie, dusting it with a very little nutmeg. Add the top crust and finish the edge by marking it with a floured tined fork Bake the pie until the crust is done. Serve it with whipped cream or plain cream. If desired, the pie may be cooled, then frosted with a soft frosting and set to harden. This is a decorative fancy and is very good.

Old-Fashioned Apple Pie

Prepare enough apples to fill to the brim the crust-lined pan. Dot the top with butter and sprinkle it with a full half-cupful of sugar. Mix two heaping tablespoonfuls of flour to a smooth paste with three-quarters of a cupful of molasses. Turn this mixture over the pie, put on the top crust and finish with the floured fork markings on the edge. Put in the paper funnel or better still, use the guttered pan, for this pie is very much inclined to run out when the molasses begins to cook. Serve it with blocks of dairy cheese.

Apple and Pineapple Pie.

Prepare enough apples as already directed to half fill the crust-lined plate. Pare and dice a fresh pineapple of the sugar-loaf variety, squeezing the juice from the core with the lemon squeezer. Mix the pineapple with the apple and fill the pie. Sprinkle it with a small cupful of sugar, to which has been added two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch. Turn the pineapple juice over the pie, then put on the top crust Bake it as usual and serve with or without cream.

Do You Feel Tired After Eating

A tired, nervous feeling may be a sign of poisons in your system which prevent proper digestion. Food turns into more poison and gas, making you nervous and weak. Simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adlerika, expels poisons and gas from BOTH upper and lower bowel. Removes old matter you never thought was in your system which poisoned stomach and made you tired and nervous. Adlerika is EXCELLENT to guard against appendicitis. ..A. McG. McDonald, Druggist.

Attractive Uses for Which Dish-Toweling May Be Used

Dish-toweling, it has been discovered by modern women, has functions in the household economy besides that of drying dishes. In fact, the household shopper may be surprised to learn how many things are made of this material.

The toweling comes in several variations of the linen-plaid in blue, red, yellow, lavender and green. Black plaid in different sizes, in the solid blocks, are to be found in the same colorings.

First, we find the most charming set of table-mats of blue and white line plaids with narrow feather-stitched hems. These have bouquets of flowers done in cross-stitch in the natural colors, and also little motifs of pottery, teapot and cup, pitcher and glass in odd design or a floral running design in colors just above the hem.

The mats are cut square, round or in the newer oblong shapes, which hold plate and flat ware at each place more comfortably than do round plate doilies.

For porch use, there are tablecloths of line embroidered with cross-stitch borders and a cross-stitch initial in the middle in the four-inch size. This initial does away with the need of a centrepiece and shows through the glass flowerplate of blue, red or opalescent coloring, which goes well with the linen and tone in with the dishes.

We also find hammock cushions made of the linens in solid block designs. On the white squares there may be a motif embroidered in the shade of the color blocks. The edges may be finished with the wide hemmed ruffles or hemstitched hems.

Kitchen curtains made of the line plain linens are charming and new. The curtains are made with deep, hemstitched hems, and above the hems there are designs of various cooking utensils done in cross-stitch the color of the line forming the plaid. The wee designs are very cunning. One especially humorous gave the utensils legs and faces and placed them in attitudes of running at top speed across the width above the hem, or marching in threes like soldiers.

Tray-cloths and small napkins for porch teas are also made of the linens. Some of these are quite elaborately embroidered in the new open block-stitch with solid birds or flowers in the middle of the open block lattice. This work is new and very attractive and is appearing on runners and the sets made of huck plain white toweling.

Kitchen aprons of toweling, made after the pattern of the chefs' aprons, are very clean-looking and wear wonderfully well. Many are made with a half-inch hem entirely around the apron, which is hem-stitched, of course, by machine. Though the linen fringes very well, and knotted looks rather pretty, yet hems seem more appropriate for this heavy sort of material.

An attractive work-apron of dish-toweling is made the length of the material. It takes two yards for the pattern. Cat-stitch the two widths together with linen floss the color of the line of the plaid, turn over a draw casing at the top for the ribbon to go around the waist, fold up the bottom to within a quarter-inch of the cat-stitching, then feather-stitch down to form three pockets. Hem this apron at the sides and feather-stitch the hem like the pocket lines. Do the same across the tops of the pockets. This makes a charming work-apron.

There is no denying the fact that linen dish-toweling has come into its own, and if we wish to be in the fashion, we must use the material in some of these novel ways.

Marquis & Company, Ltd.

Along the Baie des Chaleurs

By MARGARET GRANT MacWHIRTER

No. 1

The Janvrins, as well as many others have passed away in Gaspe. The old ledger from which quotations have been so fully made will doubtless finally rest on the shelves of the Dominion Archives, where persons interested in the life and customs of those days may consult it.

But Gaspe fish is as prolific as of yore, and command a place in the world's markets.

Robin, Jones & Whitman, with headquarters at Halifax, have branches in the Gaspe Peninsula at Gaspe, Barachois, Mal Bay, Perce, Cape Cove, l'Anse aux Beaufils, Grand River, Newport, Gascons, Port Daniel, Paspebiac and Bonaventure. The LeBoutillier Brothers have branches at Paspebiac, New Carlisle, Bonaventure Isand, etc. Several other firms are engaged in the cod fishing industry, among whom are Messrs. Hyman & Sons, an old firm, dating from 1842, with many places of operation besides Gaspé Harbor. A firm, extensively engaged in fish buying was the Gorton Pew of Gloucester, Mass.

Gaspe is now in touch with the outside world by rail as well as by water. The Gaspe railway is operated under the names of the Atlantic Quebec and Western from New Carlisle to Gaspe and the Quebec and Oriental Railway from New Carlisle to Matapedia.

This railway has had its own vicissitudes for from its commencement in 1886, till the first train went through on its completion the one hundred miles from Matapedia to Paspebiac was twenty years in building. In the spring of 1905, the building of the second division to Gaspe was begun under the management of the New Canadian Company and in 1911 the first passenger train went through to Gaspe. The late Mr. C. R. Scoles was manager, and he was largely responsible for its completion in such short time, for the Gaspe country has many rivers and streams over which bridges had to be built, and the tunnel alone through the mountain of grey limestone in Port Daniel took two years to penetrate. The tunnel is 635 feet along, and the height of the centre of the tunnel of Cap a l'Enfer 240 feet, while the height above the centre of the tunnel is 180 feet. The work was performed under the direction of Sir Douglas Fox and partners, engineers, and so accurately were the calculations made that one evening the operators on opposite sides pierced the last piece of resisting rock exactly in the centre.

It is hard for strangers to realize how much this railway means to the Gaspe Coast. Before it came the long winter drive by horses from Gaspe to Dalhousie was a common occurrence and the mail was carried in the same manner. Of course local prophets insisted that no railway could be operated during the wild storms of winter, but the Gaspe railway has carried on, and no later than last year, for the greater part of the winter this branch train of 202 miles length gave good service Mr. J. S. Gordon, the manager, has done what he could, and no doubt government aid will be forthcoming for this deserving railway and the deserving people who are dependant upon it. Hon. Messrs. Marcil (Bonaventure) and Lemieux (Gaspe) have been indefatigable in their efforts on its behalf, and they both know that the present Federal Government is at their backs and the railway will be helped to greater efficiency.

Some years ago the project of making Gaspe an all-the-year-round port for ocean vessels was considerably discussed. In these days of time-saving Gaspe is first in the running because of the very great difference in distance between Europe and other Canadian ports. Gaspe being so much nearer.

To benefit by the British preferential tariff, British goods must be imported into Canada by way of a Canadian ocean or river port. In summer there is of course nothing to stop boats, and in winter navigation can be kept open ten months in the year, and many years during the entire twelve months. In cases of ice, there are vessels for ice-breaking. There is a most wonderful natural harbour. Gaspe Bay is about sixteen miles long and six miles wide at the outer part. It is a beautiful bay with happy homes nestling on the hillsides, and it leads up to beautiful Gaspe Basin, where there is nothing for the mariner to fear, land-locked and safe from the storms which may blow outside.

If the Canadian Government should use this natural harbour, it will mean increased trade, prosperity and population for the coast where nearly four hundred years ago, Cartier planted his cross of possession.

It would mean a future for the entire peninsula and northern New Brunswick, for with closer connection with Europe ,improved railway facilities will becomee imperative, and so Gaspe, long neglected will come into her own. Hon. Mr. Lemieux has not failed to present the advantages and claims of Gaspe for an ocean port. With two representatives like Mr. Marcil and Mr. Lemieux, Gaspe Peninsula need not fear that her interests will be overlooked.

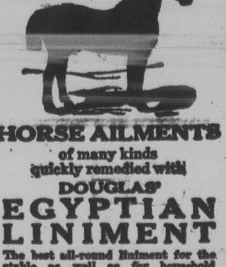

Gaspe has long been a port of call, where vessels were both entered and cleared. The customs officers at this port were to date Messrs. O'Connel, Henry Kavanagh, Belleau, E. Yatu, J. J. Kavanagh and A. J. Kavangh, the present officers to whom the writer would like to express appreciation of courteous aid rendered in securing data of the early shipping days of Gaspe. A list of the ships of this port, and also of the port of Paspebiac will appear later in this series of articles.

Gaspe is well known as a tourist resort from the cities of Canada and the United States come people in search of change, sport and health. When Gaspe is mentioned, Baker's Hotel is spoken in the same breath, for who has not heard of Baker's Hotel, where John Baker Esq., provides lavishly for his many guests. This hotel, which had its beginning many years ago, where young Mr. Baker and his mother opened a small hotel in the field adjoining the present main hotel. Now it has grown to great dimensions, where a large number of guests are every year entertained. House after house has been added, the latest addition being the most interesting from every view-point, it being the delightful "One Ash Inn," built many years ago by Dr. Wakeham an English physician who made his home in Gaspe and who lies in the pretty little hillside cemetery of the Anglican Church.

Materials and workmen were all of Gaspe, and the large house with its parlors, conservatory, billiard and music room was most deightful. "One Ash" usually feel that they have There is everything to give charm and comfort, and the guests housed in the best that could be desired. Beautifully situated, the old stone house is a delight, and needs to be seen to be appreciated. Mr. Baker spares neither labour or expense to give pleasure and comfort to his guests.

Those who find Gaspe once and have partaken of the good cheer of "Bakers" usually return so that there are guests who come so regularly that they almost seem to belong to Gaspe. Mr. Baker is most efficiently assisted by an energetic staff, chief of whom is Mr. Earl Annett To those who know not Gaspe or this charming hostelry, the advice is go and see for yourselves, and judge if the beauty, healthfulness or charm of either have been over-estimated.

This series of articles will be discontinued for some time owing to the absence of the writer.

CAMPBELLTON FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Correspondent in the Presbyterian Witness Writes of Our Town.

(Presbyterian Witness, May 8, 1908)

Campbellton, N. B., is a seaport town of considerable importance, situated on the Restigouche River It is supposed to have received its name from an early Governor of the Province named Campbell, and is the big game centre of Northern New Brunswick. The early settlers were largely of Scotch extraction That element still predominates among the business men of the town, and the Presbyterian Church is the largest body. Its growth has been rapid and it is still expanding. It contains five churches, does a considerable trade in fishing, and has a population of 4000.

Campbellton is the cradle of Presbyterianism in this section of New Brunswick. Seventy years, ago Rev. James Steven, the pioneer, landed here at what is called Ferguson's Point. Though the town was then in its infancy, yet the grand scenery surrounding it and the beautiful deep flowing Restigouche must have presented an attractive and magnificent scene to the stranger who unfurled the blue banner. He was a native of Scotland and came here and commenced his ministry at 30 years of age, on the 24th Oct. 1831. He was a solitary toiler, had no brother near at hand with whom he could hold council. He ministered to the people of the two embryo towns, Campbellton and Dalhousie, 15 miles apart. His services were also extended far beyond his regular charge. Bathurst, New Richmond, New Carlisle and Port Daniel received occasional visits from him. He was the superintendent of an extensive charge at a time when roads were in a poor condition and much hardship and fatigue had to be endured in his long journeys. For the long period of 33 years he toiled faithfully and arduously. His body now sleeps within sound of the murmuring ripple of the Restigouche surrounded by many of those whom he taught and whom he loved in life. He is still remembered by some in the busy town, and the old manse still occupied, is one of the ancient landmarks near the present neat building occupied by Dr Carr. The first members of session associated with Mr. Steven were Robert Ferguson, John Adams, Robert Adams, Alex. Adams, John Duncan and Jonathan Hoar. The old church, the first built, was occupied for upwards of 50 years. A new one was opened on the 26th Oct.1886. Mr. Steven ceased from his labors on the 22nd Jany., 1864, in the 63rd year of his age.

After his death the Colonial Committee of the Church of Scotland sent out the Rev. Wm. Wilson who was ordained on the 16th Nov. 1865. He only labored two or three years at Campbellton. His efforts on behalf of the congregation were highly appreciated. In 1868 he was called to St. Andrew's Chatham, where Rev. Geo. Wood now labors.

Shortly after his removal the Rev. Wm. Murray, another native of Scotland succeeded Mr. Wilson in 1869. When first coming to New Brunswick, he took charge of the congregation of Moncton, where a very handsome church was built, through his instrumentality, at a most of over $4000. He also supplied Dalhousie and other congregations in Restigouche Presbytery, and afterwards became for a time assistant to Dr. Brooke, Fredericton. At the time of his settlement the congregation numbered 120 families and 150 communicants.

On the 6th Nov., 1876, Rev. J. C. Herdman, B.D., son of the late Dr. Herdman, Pictou, was settled over them. Here he toiled for 9 years, when he demitted the charge, on the 31st May, 1885. The strong and clamant cry from the West was heeded by him, and in the rising town of Calgary he labored successfully for a few years. He is now the indefatigable superintendent of missions, in British Columbia, and is diligently toiling to meet the spirtual wants of the incoming settlers in this Province of the Dominion.

The next pastor installed was the Rev. A. Ogilvie Brown. He was inducted on the 5th Jany. 1886. Mr. Brown was a native of Dundee, Scotland, was educated in the University of St. Andrew's and labored a few years in Scotland as a missionary and assistant minister. Hs ministry at Campbellton was brief and terminated by a severe illness on the 29th April, 1889.

The present minister of the congregation, Rev. A. F. Carr, D. D., was inducted on the 1st Oct., 1889, and has enjoyed a fruitful ministry of nearly 19 years. For 36 years he had labored in the Master's service, being ordained at Alberton, P. E. I., in 1871. He has finistered to two congregations for the same period of time and commenced his work in both of them in the same month. Under his ministry the congregation has grown and has now the largest communion roll of any charge in he Miramichi Presbytery. It is also the banner congregation in the Presbytery in its contributions to church schemes, reaching last year the munificent sum of $1071 and $3998 for all purposes.—Com.

MAY BE EMBARGO OF COAL TO CANADA

Canada Not Likely to Receive Much Coal If Strike Declared.

Washington, Aug 25.—The expectation here is that the question of the placing of an embargo on shipments of anthracite to Canada in the event of a strike will come up at the Governors' conference in New York on Tuesday. Persons in close touch with the situation predict that there will either be an embargo on hard coal to the Dominion or such a system of priorities on the railroads as practically to make it impossible to ship anything like the usual amounts there and that Canada will very largely have to depend upon soft coal. The official view of the situation, however, continues to be that work will not be suspended in the anthracite mines.

Cleopatra's Beauty Secret

Cleopatra knew that to have a fresh fine skin, thorough cleansing was necessary. She knew that the gentlest means must be employed. She used Palm and Olive oils.

The crude combination of these oils which was the best even royalty could command, is today brought to perfection in Palmolive.

Every girl can have the radiant healthy skin which is the foundation of all beauty. Intelligent care is the secret — thorough cleansing the basis.

Unless thoroughly cleansed with soap and water, the skin becomes sluggish and inactive. The tiny pores clog with dirt, oil secretions, perspiration, rouge and powder, and blackheads and other blemishes result.

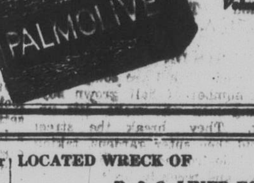

A pure mild soap causes no irritation.

Women who fear it have been using the wrong soap.

Palmolive, with its creamy mild lather is lotion-like in its action. It soothes while it cleanses; it freshens, revives and stimulates and leaves the skin delightfully fresh and rosy.

LOCATED WRECK OF P. & O. LINER EGYPT

Attempt to Recover Gold Ignots Now Worth L10,000,000.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—Salvage experts have at last succeeded in locating the whereabouts of the wreck of the P. and O. liner Egypt which went down on May 21, 1922, after having been in collision with the French steamer Seine off Ushant. The wreck has been found six miles from the scene of the accident, at a depth of sixty-four fathoms.

The underwriters have accepted the expert terms for an attempt to recover the gold ingots which the Egypt was carrying, and which at present rates are estimated to be worth ten million pounds. Later an attempt will be made to refloat the vessel itself. Salvage operations, it is said, will start soon.

ORNAMENTAL TREE BROKEN DOWN BY GALE

The high wind of last week has not occassioned any serious lost in this district so far as is known to date, but in one or two instances the velocity of the recent gale has proved more than some of the town's ornamental trees could withstand. One fine tree on Wellington Street evidently planted soon after the fire and now about six or seven inches at the but was broken off by the wind about eight feet from the ground.

COUGHLIN—LAVIOLETTE.

St. Gabriel's Church was the place of a happy marriage when James Coughlin of Springfield, Mass., and Charlotte Laviolette were married by Father Burbee. The church was decorated with flowers and the organist played the wedding march. The bride wore a gown of Spanish over lace with veil and carried a bridal bouquet. The happy couple will motor to St. John and will leave for their home in Springfield the last of the month.

LAURENTIC GOLD TAKEN FROM SEA

Recover All But Few Bars Following Sinking of Ship by Submarine

London, Aug. 25.—All except a few bars of the thirty million dollars worth of gold bullion which dropped to the ocean when a German submarine sank the Laurentic off Donegal, Ireland, has been recovered by divers, who, since 1916, have been carrying on their labors, ninety feet below the surface of the sea. The thirty bars remaining in the water it is expected, will be brought up within two weeks. In addition to the gold, which was consigned to U. S. bankers, the Laurentic was laden with almost five million dollars in silver, mostly in two shilling pieces, all of which has been salvaged by the divers. The men have been using a diving spear with a dial attached that shows whether the spear point is touching gold or a base metal such as iron.

The clock-like dial is kept aboard the salvaging ship and is connected with a spear which is in the hands of the diver working ninety feet below the surface. The hand moves to the left of the zero mark when the spear is prodded against a piece of iron, copper or other such metal, but when it touches gold the dial swings to the right. It veered further when it came in contact with a eighteen carat bar than when it touched one of nine carat.

EDITOR WRITES OF NORTH SHORE

J. S. Winterburn of The Norwich Gazette Pleased With Eastern Trip.

From Bathurst to Dalhousie Junction, about 54 miles, the railway skirts the shore of Chaleur Bay, of which magnificent views are obtainable.

Dalhousie is delightfully situated at a point overlooking Chaleur Bay, which, with the estuary of the Restigouche at its northern boundary, gives the town an extensive waterfront, part river and part bay shore. The beaches at the foot of the shore cliffs are noted for the facilities for bathing they afford, while the islands off-shore make pleasant objectives for boating trips.

Campbellton stands at the head of the navigable deep water of Chaleur Bay, or perhaps to be exact, at the head of the broad estuary of the Restigouche River which discharges its flow into the famous bay. The town, which is beautifully situated, has a population of 4,000, and is noted as a prosperous business centre as well as an attractive summer resort.

From the business standpoint its chief interest lies in the lumber industry, the annual output of which is about 90,000,000 feet a year, while the total value of the manufactured products of the town is in excess of two million dollars. It is also an important shipping centre, for which it is well equipped with substantial wharves.

Campbellton possesses many attractions for the delectation of the summer tourist. Almost directly across the river in the Gaspe country of the Province of Quebec, is Mission or Cross point, noted for its Indian reservation of 500 Micmacs, while back of the town is Sugar Loaf Mountain from which those who climb its 2,000 feet can obtain a glorious view of the surrounding country. In fact the whole surrounding country is well diversified and exceedingly picturesque with its many valleys and conical hills.

After a run of about thirteen miles from Campbellton, New Brunswick, passing enroute through the interesting tunnel at Morrissey Rock, Matapedia, in the Province of Quebec, is reached. Matapedia is famous as the point where the rivers Restigouche and Matapedia join their respective waters as they flow onward into the Bay of Chaleur. From this point a railway runs to the Gaspe Preinsula. The Matapedia, famous for its scenic effects and its salmon, is followed by the railway for a distance of over twenty miles, thus affording the tourist ample opportunity for feasting upon its beauties. In thirty miles of its course the river has no less than 222 rapids.

It Works From Both Ends

A local merchant upon whom we called recently gave us a first class talk upon "buying at home." We certainly agreed with him in all he said, and more too. The Graphic has always preached this doctrin, and lived up to it.

But what of our local merchants? A genial solicitor for wrapping paper, paper bags, etc., had induced him to order his counter check books from him, "just to make up a good sized freight shipment."

Our local merchant clean forgot that our local printers could supply these counter check books at the same price. He sent out of town for them.

But its a poor rule that won't work both ways.

ALL THE NEWS — DALHOUSIE, N. B., AUGUST 30, 1923 — EVERY WEEK

GOVERNOR GENERAL HERE MONDAY

Lord and Lady Byng To Arrive At Shiretown Sept. 3rd at 10.00 A. M.

Dalhousie, Aug. 29.—With all our mills closed on Monday, and the day proclaimed a holiday by His Worship Mayor Barberie, it is expected that there will be the largest meeting of people that ever was massed on the spacious Court House grounds, to hear the Governor General's reply to the address that will be read and presented to him by our civic authorities on behalf of the whole people, when the hero of Vimy, accompanied by Lady Byng arrive here on Monday morning at 10.30 o'clock.

Hero of Vimy.

The shiretown of Restigouche County has often been visited by illustrious men since the visit of Lord Dalhousie, prior to the year 1830. The approaching arrival of Lord and Lady Byng in our midst has a double feature of importance that might never be repeated. Besides being the governor of one of Britain's greatest colonies, Lord Byng proved himself to be one of England's greatest generals during the great war, and what should make him dear to us in this country, is that it fell to his good luck to command our Canadian boys, when the successful assault was made at Cambrai, and that Vimy Ridge was captured in April 1917. History tells us that on the Cambrai front General Byng made a dramatic attack that came as a surprise to the enemy. He swept the enemy temporarily off their feet by a tank attack on an extraordinary scale. Hundreds of the monsters rolled suddenly down on the German trenches behind a screen of smoke from the British guns, their rumble drowned to the hearing of the enemy by the roar of the canon, and smashed a wide path through the enemy lines, opening the way for the infantry.

The battle of Arras-Cambrai was a contribution to the victory of the forces of light such as any army might have been proud of. In a period of less than six weeks a force of four Canadian divisions, assisted by one or two British divisions, had engaged and decisively defeated no less than thirty-one German divisions; the Canadians had captured a total of nearly 20,000 prisoners, nearly 400 guns and over 2000 machine guns and trench mortars; they had liberated over 116 square miles of French territory including the city of Cambrai and fifty-four towns and villages; and they had done this at a loss of barely 30,000 casualties killed, wounded and missing. "The honour is theirs, to the world's end."

Lord Byng knows that the County of Restigouche, according to its population furnished as many men for the war as any other county in Canada. He also knows that the Counties of Bonventure and Gaspe furnished their quota of soldiers. The Town of Dalhousie furnished at least 150 men and twenty-five of them are sleeping their last sleep in the little cemeteries of France and Flanders.

DALHOUSIE BOY SAVES COMPANION

Joe LaBillois, Former Resident of Shiretown Acclaimed Hero.

Dalhousie, N. B., Aug. 27.—The Menominee, Michigan, "Herald-Leader" of August 20th published the following under the heading "Joe LaBillois Life-Saver."

"Whether or not City Attorney John J. O'Hara was actually rescued from a watery grave while fishing bass, Joseph LaBillois goes down in local history as a life saver and will wear on his breast "The Hero of Bakers' Point" thus annexing additional fame to his past record as a champion swimmer of Merimachie Creek, Canada, where the illustrious Joe was reared.

LaBillois and O'Hara were members of a fishing party at Baker's Point, this side of Cedar River, when the big boat in which O'Hara was fishing capsized when a big perch grabbed the hook. LaBillois, with his old time Napoleonic dash sprang into the deep and pulled the gargling city attorney to safety. LaBillois' sacrifice is all the more commendable because he didn't lose any time removing his clothing before plunging after O'Hara."

Joe LaBillois is a Dalhousie boy. He resided in Campbellton for many years. He was educated at the Chatham College. His wife was formerly Miss Bessie Grogan of Campbellton. He is a cousin of Mr. LaBillois of Dalhousie and of Mrs. A. F. Harquail of Ferguson Manor, and has many relatives at Maguasha, P. Q.

The little car placed on the Dalhousie branch railway line last week, broke down on its first trip. It seems to have no power in reserve to make the up grades. After leaving Dalhousie, it stopped several times for lack of power and it stopped for good when a part of its machinery blew out, at Hick's mill, near the Junction The passengers had to walk to the station.

One of the most delightful gatherings of the year was held on Barberie's beach on Monday evening, when about fifty guests assembled to participate in the joys of a clam bake under a glorious full moon, cloudless sky and perfect weather. The waters of the bay were almost without a ripple and the reflection of the moon was a wonderful sight. The roaring flames of five huge bonfires composed of enormous roots, stumps and logs, added to the effect. Songs, games and all kinds of refreshments contrived to make the evening a most delightful affair. Mrs. A. Fullerton and her sister, Miss Gertrude Barberie and her brother Frank Barberie are to be highly congratulated on the success of their efforts in providing such delightful entertainment.

Mr. Frank Godin was in Moncton last week attending the Assomption convention.

Happenings of The Week

The Restigouche Municipal election will be held on Tuesday of next week.

The hay crop in this section of the province, is exceptionally poor this year, and as a result many farmers will be forced to kill their stock this fall.

The whist party and basket social announced to take place this week in the Convent Hall marks the beginning of the gathering of funds for the erection of a new R. C. Church in Dalhousie.

All roads will lead to the shiretown on Monday, Sept. 3rd. It will be Labor Day and the Governor General, formerly General Byng, hero of Cambrai in the famous tank charge, will be in Dalhousie from 10.30 a.m. to 1.00 p.m. The band stand near the Court House should be repaired as it is the intention of Mayor Barberie to have the Campbellton Band in attendance to play patriotic airs when the Governor General arrives.

The committee appointed at the annual school meeting to take into consideration the building of a modern school building and the selection of a site therefor, has an option on the Barberie lot situated between Adelaide and Victoria streets. It is probable that a meeting of the Town ratepayers will be called shortly by the Board of Trustees to receive the report and consider same.

The ladies prize was won by Mrs. Crocket and Doctor Fleck was the lucky winner of the gent's prize. At midnight dainty refreshments were served.

On Wednesday evening the Misses Antoinette and Corinne Blanchard, daughters of Sheriff S. Blanchard and two of Restigouche Co's popular teachers were given a great surprise, when a number of their old school mates and friends arrived at their home and presented them with an address, accompanied with a purse of money. This thoughtful and kind act was due to the fact that the Misses Blanchard are on the eve of saying farewell to their parents, relatives and friends to enter the convent at Three Rivers, P. Q., to join the order of nuns known as The Sisters of Jesus. Miss Marie LeBlanc read the address and both young ladies replied in well chosen words, thanking their friends for their kind act. Dalhousie Prepares Fitting Reception for Lord and Lady Byng

Dalhousie, N. B, Aug. 29.—The committee appointed by the Dalhousie Town Council at their regular monthly meeting held on Wednesday evening 15th inst., consisting of Mayor Barberie, W. H. Priest, Geo. C. Scott, W. A. R. Cragg, Harry McEvoy and C. H. LaBillois to lay plans for the reception of the Governor General on Monday next, met on Saturday evening in the Council Chamber.

According to the schedule forwarded by the Governor's secretary, His Excellency and party are to arrive at Dalhousie Junction on Monday morning, Sept. 3rd, at about 10.30 a.m., they will motor to the shiretown accompanied by Mayor Barberie and other members of the Committee, who will welcome them to Dalhousie. They will be taken in procession through the town to the Court House where the address of welcome will be read. The procession will probably go to the Court House by the following route: Coming down the highway from the Junction through Point La Nim, entering the town proper by Victoria St., turning down George St., to Adelaide St., to Renfrew St., and to William St., thence to the Court House. It is probable that the school children of the public school will be massed between the arch at the entrance to the Court House grounds and the platform over the Court House entrance, where the civic address will be read and presented. Following His Excellency's reply, a reception committee of the Mayor and Mrs. Barberie and others will present as many as desire to the distinguished visitors. Following the reception, His Excellency and party will be taken back to their train at Dalhousie Junction by way of William St., to George St. to Victoria St. to the regular provincial highway through Point La Nim to their car at the Junction.

The committee in charge of decoration and construction of arches, etc., is composed of Messrs. W. H. Priest, Geo. C. Scott, W. A. R. Cragg and C. H. LaBillois, and it is hoped that all citizens residing along the course of the procession will suitably decorate their premises.

Mr. Harry McEvoy, who with the Mayor will arrange the details about the procession and reception, as one of the School Board, will see about the pupils of the public school being lined up on the Court House grounds.

The co-operation of all the people of the town and country and by our neighbours at Maguasha, Fleurant, Escuminac, etc., is expected in order that His Excellency may be given a reception befitting his position and the great services he rendered during the war in command of the Canadian troops at the front.

The Boy Scout camp at Reid's Bridge broke up on Friday after a week's most happy outing on the banks of the Charlo river About sixteen boys from Campbellton and Dalhousie were present and were in charge of T. C. Goodspeed. The Revs. A. B. Humphrys and R. J. Coleman were welcome visitors.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—In a New York jewelry store Philip Severn, United States consular agent, notices a small box which attracts him. He purchases it. Later he discovers in a secret compartment a writing giving a clew to a revolutionary movement in this country seeking to overthrow the Chilean government. The writing mentions a rendezvous, and Severn decides to investigate.

CHAPTER II.—Finding the place mentioned in the writing apparently deserted, Severn visits a saloon in the vicinity. A woman in the place is met by a man, seemingly by appointment, and Severn, his suspicions aroused, follows them. They go to the designated meeting place, an abandoned iron foundry.

CHAPTER III.—At the rendezvous Severn is accepted as one of the conspirators and admitted. He meets a stranger who appears to recognize him.

At that moment I had no thought but to discover some means of escape. The knowledge of the danger I was in robbed me of all courage. I was like a child afraid in the dark. I moved forward, inch by inch, feeling my way along the rough planking with one hand, my limbs actually trembling under me. If I could only find some opening; see some gleam of light; break away from this terrible silent darkness.

I supposed I was moving with the utmost caution, every nerve on edge, feeling a way forward with hands and feet. Once I stepped upon a shell of some kind which crunched beneath the weight, and again my groping hand dislodged a small block of wood, which fell with a slight clatter. I halted both times, my heart in my mouth, yet nothing happened, and I moved forward again confident of not being overheard.

I could not have told what it was that halted me. I remember I stopped as though shot, my very breath suspended, one foot still uplifted in a step forward, my eyes staring helplessly into the black void. The silence was that of a tomb. I could feel the perspiration flow down my face in a stream; it was an instant of torture. Then an unseen hand gripped me and an electric flash-light glared into my eyes.

CHAPTER IV.

I Become a Well-Known Thief.

The sudden, unanticipated attack, the burst of dazzling light in my eyes, rendered me for the moment utterly helpless. I was blinded, and so tightly grasped at the throat as to be nearly strangled. I only dimly realized that my assailant was a man, his grip that of a giant. Then, to my surprise, the fellow laughed oddly, snapping out his light, and releasing his grip.

"Well, if this don't beat h—ll," he said, in the tone of cheerful disgust. "Come in here and let me look you over."

His hand closed on the sleeve of my coat, and before I scarcely found time to catch my breath again I had been dragged through a narrow opening and became aware that a door shut silently behind me.

The fellow gave me little opportunity to either act, or think. A match flared, and was held aloft to a gas jet which instantly broke into a dull flame, sufficient to render visible the full extent of the small room in which we stood. In some semi-conscious way I was aware of bare walls, of a small table opposite with some writing materials on it, and a short bench covered by a blanket. I suppose I saw these things, yet all that I seemed to perceive was the man fronting me, who stared in my face, a quizzical smile on his lips, as though still half uncertain of the reality of my presence. He was tall, a trifle angular, but exceedingly well-dressed, with closely trimmed iron-gray beard and peculiar eyes deeply set in a rather chalky face. He broke the silence, evidently inclined to look upon this meeting as a joke.

"Don't recognize me, I reckon? Well, that ain't to be wondered at, for likely enough you never saw me before. Beats the devil though why you being scrutinized. I held my breath expectantly.

"Who is there?" the voice was a mere whisper, so close as to startle me.

"Gaspar Wine," was the answer, in the same low tone, "162."

"What word?"

"Cervantes."

"But there are two of you!"

"Oh, this is one of us. It's all right, Juan; I'll vouch for him."

"This fellow inside grumbled something—should drift in here; now I suppose we will have to be fifty-fifty."

His words and manner gave me a new lease on life. Whoever the fellow might be he was seemingly friendly. I must meet the fellow in that same spirit and endeavor to extract from him some knowledge of whom he supposed me to be.

"I do not quite get the drift of all this," I ventured. "You imply that you know me."

"H—ll, yes. Over in Bow Street, on the other side. The Hartlebury robbery case. I'd been hearing about you for years, and when that came on, I took a chance and drifted into court one day just to see what you looked like. You've shaved your mustache, and look ten years younger, but I knew you, all right. I never forget a face. Say, who put you onto this game—Waldron?"

I nodded, taking a chance. "I'd have bet my life he was the guy. I might have known he would double-cross me some way. Of course a tip's a tip in this game, and I don't blame you for horning in. Naturally you never knew this was my game—how could you? Waldron never said a word about me, did he?"

"Not once."

"That is how I had it sized up, so I don't hold any grudge against you. Now listen," and he bent forward confidentially, lowering his voice, so I could barely distinguish the words. "We'll talk it all over later, when we're alone. 'Tain't exactly safe here, for these walls are thin, and there is quite a bunch around tonight. There's plenty for the two of us, if we play the cards right, and we'll let Waldron hold the bag. What do you say, Daly?"

So my name was "Daly." Well, that was interesting at least, although it gave me no new light. However, nothing remained for me to do except agree to his blind proposition.

"That's mighty handsome of you. What's the figure?"

"A million!" enthusiastically. "Wait until I get a chance to explain the plan; it looks like Providence had just handed us out the money."

"Why not explain the scheme to me."

"Not now; there ain't time." He glanced at his watch, "and besides, for all I know, some guy might be listening in to what we say. You see there is a bunch o' hell-cats in there waiting for me to give them a song and dance. I'm the big end right now, but I've got to sing low until I'm sure what word these guys have got from Washington. After that I'll know how to trim sail. You wait until I come back, Daly, and then we'll plan this thing out. You think I'm aiming to play fair, don't you?"

I looked at him doubtfully.

"Well, of course, I've got to think so," I admitted, hoping to gain further enlightenment, "but you leave me pretty well in the dark. What do I really know? Nothing. You talk glibly about a million you propose going fifty-fifty with me on. That naturally sounds good, but it would sound better if I even knew who I was dealing with. I never saw you before in my life."

"H—l, that's so," he grinned cheerfully, "I forgot I wasn't talking to an old pal. Just to be sure you're Harry Daly was enough to make me cough up, but that don't help you out, does it? Ever hear of 'Gentleman George' in your travels?"

"George Harris!" the name leaped to my lips in inspiration; only the day before I had chanced to read a magazine account of a famous criminal exploit. His eyes gleamed in genial appreciation.

"I thought maybe that would fetch you," he said exultantly. "There ain't many of the old boys but have my number, and they all know I play square. How is it? Will we shake hands, and call it a deal? I've got to get back in with that bunch."

I took the extended hand cordially, feeling the iron grip of his fingers. I do not believe I was ever more frightened in my life, although outwardly cool enough, and my brain perfectly clear. There was no retreat possible. I must go on, acting out the strange character in this drama to which I had been assigned.

"But you are not known by that name here?" I ventured.

"I should say not. I'm Horner, P. S. Horner of Detroit. See! That's the guy who had the papers. He was English all right but pretended to be United States, and had a passport to come through with this bunch. So I've got the bull by the tail—for a cool million, old man, a million. All I'm afraid of is this d—d woman—they always did get my goat."

"Keep still, and let her show her cards," I suggested, feeling the necessity of saying something.

"What I'm aiming to do. Well, so long, Daly. I'll be back presently with everything straight. Better turn out the light, or some one might wander in here."

I was alone again, in the dark, but under vastly different circumstances than when wandering blindly about between those imprisoning factory walls. With no effort of my own, purely by blind chance, I had been given a new name and identity, and as instantly inducted into a revolutionary criminal plot as fascinating as it undoubtedly was dangerous. Who Harry Daly might be I had not the slightest conception, yet there was no escape from the conviction that Harris believed blindly in my identity. He was not acting, for he would have no possible object in such pretense. I was to his mind Harry Daly, a well-known criminal, an international thief, a man after his own heart, to be warmly welcomed into partnership as a most valuable ally.

What should I do under these peculiar circumstances? Seek to escape during his absence, and thus frighten the covy, or remain, and trust fortune to show me a way to both expose their villainy and save myself? I was young, adventurous, and I chose the latter, thinking less of the danger, I admit, than of the mystery of the case, and—yes, the girl.

Harris had spoken confidently of gaining possession of a large sum—a million dollars, surely a stake worth daring much for—but how, by what means, did he expect to get his hands on such a fortune?

My mind reverted to the fragment of letter which had sent me on this mad chase, to its mention of a letter of credit to be deposited with the banker, Krantz, to the credit of the recipient. The writer had stated that the sum would be found ample for all needs. But a million dollars! Could it be possible that so large an amount would be thus advanced? If so, then the result hoped for must be proportionately important. To whom had this letter been sent—Alva, who apparently was the active leader here in New York, or the revolutionary representative in Washington, seemingly known as Mendez? Whichever it was, that man evidently had the disposition of this vast sum entirely at his disposal; either it was already in his hands or so deposited as to be quickly available. In my judgment the fellow would be Alva, for sundry reasons; first, he had been one of the men registered at the hotel when the lacquered box was lost; and second, the expenditure of this money was seemingly intended to be made in and about the port of New York—if I read the message right, in the purchase of arms and munitions for shipment to South America; perhaps the enlistment of a body of fighting men.

So far the matter was fairly clear—Alva as the local revolutionary agent had been intrusted by the junta with this money to spend in a certain definite way; but he must work under strict orders coming from the headquarters at Washington. He dare not assume the initiative without the "O. K." of the man higher up—Mendez. Something had occurred to delay action; that made no difference, but now the time had come. Mendez, unable to be present in person, and even fearful to permit any of his well-known junta representatives to appear in this connection, had chosen to send a woman, who would be unsuspected, to deliver to the conspirators his definite plan of action. All this seemed reasonable enough, and in no way surprised me.

But the appearance of the woman did, and also the close intimacy of this man Harris. She was not criminal, not even of the insurrectionary class to my eyes, and I could not imagine what influence had ever induced her to accept such a commission. Something about her personality, some undefined quality of womanhood, had made a definite impression upon my mind, not to be effaced. Everything was against her—the saloon in which she waited alone; her coming there secretly in the night; the meeting with an unknown man; the accompanying him up that black alley to this hidden rendezvous of conspiracy. Every act stamped her as unworthy.

In spite of all this evidence as to the truth of the matter, nothing harmonized. She did not belong—the gulf was too wide. Yet there was no other explanation possible—she was actually here, in the den of conspiracy, alone among all these men, unafraid, the recognized representative of the Chilean revolutionary junta, bringing with her direct from Washington those final instructions for which they waited—instructions, no doubt, involving neutrality, destruction, death, frightfulness, the extinction of a friendly government; all this that could be compassed by the expenditure of a million dollars in ruthless hands. It was unthinkable, yet every evidence proved it true.

There came to me an insane desire to overhear what she had to say; to watch her once more, when free to study her unnoticed, and to see this gang to whom she brought her message. Almost without realizing my action I crept in the dark out into the narrow passage, and felt my way along the rough board walls. As I advanced cautiously the full ingenuity with which the place had been prepared for just this foul purpose became more apparent. The narrow passage I followed, my hands touching either wall, was not straight, but curved to the right, and it dawned upon me that it skirted the main apartment, where, in all probability, the conference was being held. This accounted for the fact that no gleam of light was visible, and that, in anticipation of their use, separate and small rooms had been constructed, connected together yet so isolated as to permit of the utmost privacy. One of these Harris had left me in, and now I found that the passage led me not direct to the main apartment, but to another smaller room, whose door barred my progress. This, I figured out, might be the same into which Wine had entered in search of Alva, when he deserted me in the front hallway.

TAILS AND THEIR FUNCTIONS.

Different Reasons Given for Different Movements.

Animals' tails have various functions, Prof. Giuseppe Renato tells us in a published study of their uses, the New York Times states. The tail of a dog, says the professor, is, as we all know, an index of his psychological state; he raises and wags it, under the impression of joy, lowers it when afflicted and trails it between his legs when frightened. Why, then, may we not believe that dogs have a caudal language, and that the various movements of the tail form a method of communication between them?

The professor points out that among cattle and beasts of burden the tail is a weapon of defense against insects which, in the undomesticated state of these animals, may often have meant the saving of their lives. He says that in the early struggle for existence in cattledom and horsedom the question of survival of the fittest was purely a matter of which had the strongest tail. This resulted in the development of the muscles of the cow and horse to a remarkable degree.

When a horse is struck on the back with a whip it switches the spot with its tail. The horse knows it is a whip and not an insect, but the reflex muscles of its tail are so highly developed that it instinctively switches before the horse has time to telegraph to his brain and put in a stop order.

A cow finds it less fatiguing to keep up a perpetual side to side motion of its tail than to indulge in the nervous, energetic one which the horse upon occasion employs.

Excellent Motto to Adopt.

David Crockett was the author of the famous motto, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead." It is said to have first appeared in print in Crockett's "Autobiography," published in 1834—appearing on the title page in the following form, says the Detroit News:—

"I leave this rule for others when I'm dead,
Be always sure you're right—then go ahead."

The statement has been made that "Crockett wrote this highly entertaining history of his own life—full of blunders in grammar and misspelled words," although it had been revised and corrected by his more scholarly friends, "but the Britannica speaks of it as 'a so-called autobiography,' which he very probably dictated or at least authorised published in 1934. A work purporting to be a continuation of this autobiography and entitled 'Colonel Crockett's Exploits and Adventures in Texas' is undoubtedly spurious."

John Bartlett, in his "Familiar Quotations," describes "Be sure you are right, then go ahead" as "the motto of David Crockett in the War of 1812."

Five Steps Forward, Three Back.

Five steps forward and three steps backward—five steps forward and three steps backward—that is the strange dance of the Whitsun Tuesday dancing procession of the natives of Echternach, in the little principality of Luxembourg, in Europe. Old men and women, fathers and mothers, boys and girls, and little ones hardly able to keep up, fall in line by the thousands on the morning of the festival. At 8 a.m., the great church bell peals and the procession starts, led by solemn priests, who chant a service. Through twisting streets to the banks of the Moselle river they go, dancing this strangest of dances, and to the tomb of St. Willibrod, who is supposed to be buried in the vicinity. This dance is a yearly custom of centuries standing. It is said that in the eighth century an epidemic broke out among the cattle, killing many. The people prayed at the tomb of the saint. The epidemic gradually disappeared, and the people said that the saint did it. So every year they dance their way to his tomb to give him reverence.

Writer's Old Habits.

Ambrose Bierce's habit of going about and "disintroducing" himself from persons that he found below his standard of acquaintanceship, was the least of his eccentricities. A brilliant writer, somewhat morose and always caustic, he was a genuine personality. He was born in Ohio, entered the Union army, and became a distinguished staff officer. He settled after the Civil war in London, where he was considered a famous literary personage.

Some fifteen years ago he took residence in Washington, but his "disintroducing" was one of the most delicious and at the same time feared ceremonies of the national capital. He was an adventurer at heart, went to Mexico to join Pancho Villa, whom he admired as a warrior who made war, and he is believed to have been killed in the battle of Chihuahua. His body was never recovered.

Neatly Managed.

A retort courteous but sarcastic was made by the Abbe de Voisenon, a Frenchman who had had the misfortune to offend Prince de Conde. When the abbe sought to make his peace with the soldier the prince rudely turned his back on him. "Thank heavens, sir," cried the priest, "I have been misinformed. Your highness does not treat me as if I were an enemy." The prince, taken by surprise, demanded why he thought so. "Because, sir," answered the abbe, "your highness was never known in all your life to turn your back on an enemy."

In Manchuria.

The cultivated land in the two northern provinces of Manchuria yielded approximately 9,520,000 tons of cereals in the last two years, including 1,270,000 tons of wheat. Agricultural production has been increasing rapidly and constantly.

EXPORTS OF CANADIAN FISH FOR JULY TOTALLED $3,141,692

Ottawa, Aug. 22.—Total exports of Canadian fish for July brought $3,141,692, according to a report prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Of this amount $822,869 worth was shipped to the United Kingdom and $1,639,713 to the United States. The total figures shown an increase over June business, but a decrease of some $700,000 when compared with July, 1922.

BACK TO GOOD OLD MELO-DRAMA!

A FEAST OF THRILLS, DRAMA AND HUMOR

Our Unsung Heroes

Campbellton also has its brave men, who for a mere honorary amount of money risk life and limb in fighting fire, protecting our lives and property. They are our heroes year in and year out. This picture tells about them too. See it.

THE CLANG OF THE GONG! The shriek of the siren! The blast of the whistle The dash of the plunging horses tearing down the street! The surge of the roaring engines, belching smoke and flames! The rush of excited throngs in the wake of the apparatus, shouting, screaming, wild-eyed. All of which gives but a hint of the smashing action and vivid drama of "The Third Alarm," stupendous master-melodrama of the lives of firemen and the perils they undergo in the routine of their daily duties.

WHEN YOU SEE IT YOU'LL SAY SO TOO!
