The Sheriff Daniel, who is here today, from Fayette County, says that he is powerless to repress disorder, and property and life are in constant danger. Nearly everybody refuses to act as a deputy sheriff to assist in the eviction of striking miners, and hence the sheriff made a request for troops. Roanoke, Va., Aug. 28.-Advices ceived at the general offices of the Norfolk and Western Railway pany from the coal fields say that two mine guards and two strikers were killed in a battle on Crane Creek, in Mercer County, W. Va., this morning. The scene of the shooting is in the vi-cinity of the Crane Creek Coal Company's operation, and that of the Thomas Coal and Coke Company's operation. A body of mine guards, numbering 20 or 40, were fired on by a party of armed men with rifles believed to have been made up of strikers. The guards returned their fire, and when the shooting ceased it was found that two men on each side had been killed. The sheriff of Mercer County, whose office is at Princeton court house, was immediately advised, and left at once for the scene. Norfolk and Western officials say the trouble was confined to the Crane Creek Company. Several of the operations have been closed SOLDIERS CHARGE STRIKERS.

The sheriff an- ment, was slightly injured, and a haifdozen strikers were haveneted by the soldiers in the fracas. Major Gearhardt, in command of the troops nere, says that he will appeal to the military authorities to put the town of Lansford under martial law. As early as daybreak the troops were busy quelling disturbances and protecting non-union men on their way to work. At Summit Hill about double the usual number of men availed themselves of the protection of the soldiers and went to work. The word that more men than usual were reporting for work spread through the lower part of the valley like wildfire, and in a short time the streets were almost blocked with people. When the corner of Center and East Bertson streets was reached, the cars stopped to allow several non-union men to get off. As the men stopped to the ground the mob made a rush for them. Half a dozen soldiers sprang off the car and with leveled rifles forced the mob back and made a passageway for the non-union men.

THE COLLISION. When the soldiers returned after escorting their charges to a place of safety, the mob commenced to close in around the cars. The strikers were in an ugly mood, and when ordered to disperse merely yelled louder and pressed closer. As Capt. Heim was about to jump from a car be was seized by the legs and thrown to the wed him were roughly handled. With gunn butts and bayonets the soldiers forced the crowd back. The local union, following the pre cedent set by the Chicago organization, at a time when President McKinley was to lay the cornerstone of a new postoffice for that city, intend to en-force its rule that only members of the union shall do any work on the building. The task of sealing into place the stone which shall hold the chief inscription, in its eyes, is on a level with work on the other bricks and stone which go into the edifice.

Major Bonnet, who is in charge of the local army in the absence of Col. Holz, said yesterday:

"We know nothing of the demands of the union men. Our building is in the hands of the contractor. We suppose that he employs union men, as it is our policy to do so, as is evidenced by the fact that in our large printing establishment, where we print the War Cry, only union men are employed. When the consul was here she invited Senator Hanna to lay the stone and we understood that he accepted. In fact we are now arranging the inscription for the stone, which will contain the senator's name."

The officers of the army are anxious that the tangle will be straightened out in a manner which will permit the senator to do the work. The union claims that a strict interpretation of its rules is the only method of enforcing it, and as a consequence. Senator Hanna's request for admission will probably be presented in the near

SHERLOCK HOLMES ALIVE

New York Police Department May Lay Claim to Him.

Made Love to Girl and Recovered Gems Worth $5,865.

New York, Aug. 29. - At last the police department has a man who may demand recognition as a detective. Somewhat of a Sherlock Holmes, he was requested to discover the purloiner of valuable gems. He found a place in the household of the victim as a gardener: he made love to the young woman whom he suspected was the thief; she confided in him, and now she is in a cell and the jewels are again in possession of the owner. Sergt. James W. Wheelwright is the man, and he is attached to the sub-station at Rockaway Beach. It was three days ago that complaint was made to the captain by Mrs. Samuel Goldberg, who has a pretty cottage in Arverne, that she had been robbed of her jewel case, in which she had gems valued at $,865. Loath to suspect anyone in her employ, Mrs. Goldberg said she had no idea who thief. Sergt. Wheelwright was asked to do what he could to help

He was told that three weeks ago Mrs. Goldberg had taken into her household, as a seamstress, a girl of 15 years, who gave her name as Nettie Goldman, and who told Mrs. Goldberg she had come recently from Heidelberg, was an orphan, and was without friends in this country. "You really need a gardener," said the sergeant to Mrs. Goldberg. So just three days ago there was a new man in the grounds of the Goldberg mansion. He gave much more of his time and attention to the young seamstress than he did to the garden. Gardener and seamstress were together for several hours yesterday morning, and when, later in the day, the gardener went to Mrs. Goldberg, he had the missing jewel case in his hand. Opening it the owner found that not a gem had been disturbed. Wheelwright said he had made ardent love to the girl; and after they had agreed to go away together she had told him of the theft, and had taken him to the cellar, where she dug a hole in the ground and brought forth the fewel case.

Washington, Aug. 28.-In view of rumors as to Secretary Shaw's plans for relieving the money market in the event of a possible stringency, the secretary, who is in New York today, authorized Assistant Secretary Ailes to make the following statement: "The secretary recently invited some of the larger national banks in the principal cities to order additional amounts of circulating notes to be printed. BUILT TOWN FOR A SALOON

Only Way He Could Sell Rum in Tucker County, W. Va.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 29.-C. D. Gillespie, of Hendrick, Tucker county, has applied for six years for a license to sell liquor, but was turned down every time. He bought several acres of land on the Cheat River opposite Hendrick and built a number of tenement houses. When the population was sufficient he applied for corporate powers for his town, which he called Brooklyn Heights. As he had a petition from every citizen of the place he got a charter.

After incorporating Brooklyn Heights Gillespie elected a mayor and city council, and with their backing again applied for a license. The county court gave him the necessary permission. Immediately upon getting the license he gave a contract for a wire bridge, which begins in front of his saloon and ends in Hendrick. He built his saloen, a big frame building, in 24 hours, and in selling liquors to the people of the Heights and the town of Hendrick.

He has erected a city lockup, and he runs the town, collects the fines and

He reports that arrangements have been made for the establishment of six chicken fattening stations in Prince Edward Island, and one each in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. They will commence operations about the 10th of September, each station being provided with crates for fattening from 500 to 1,000 chickens. Three lots of chickens will be fattened, four weeks being allowed to elapse between each lot. It is expected that 15,000 chickens will be fattened this year, or more, if suitable birds can be obtained. They will be exported from Charlottetown on the steamship Manchester Commerce and disposed of at Manchester. The six stations to be established on Prince Edward Island will buy every suitable chicken which is produced there, and as a record of the cost of feed and transportation will be kept by the fatteners, it is hoped that this illustration of export trade will eventually lead to large firms handing the Maritime chicken export business. At the present time the bulk of the chickens in the Maritime Provinces are being years will elapse before Pompeli is en-tirely uncovered. The occasion was the celebration of the nuptials of Farres and Julia Atta, who were married the day before.

The bride leans upon such a pillow as would ornament the home of a millionaire. It is of white satin, but so covered with gold embroidery as to nearly hide the ma-terial. Upon the floor are rugs as soft as silk.

As is the custom of the Syrians, the bride and groom sit grave and im-purturbable upon their dais. They do not talk, they do not smile while their guests make merry before them. They rise when a guest enters the room, and they rise when one departs; but that is all. The bride was clad in a beautiful native wedding dress. It did not differ greatly from the American mode. It was of a soft, clinging material, blue in color. Around her shoulders was worn a beautiful lace and embroidered shawl, and upon her head was a wreath of white flowers. The groom wore the conventional American dress.

COLOSSAL MEAT COMBINE

To Control the World's Trade-Argen-'ne Capitalists In It.

London, Aug. 29.-The London Times says Edward and William V. Casey, of Buenos Ayres, with the assistance of British capital are organizing a combine of refrigerating, packing and cattle-growing interests of the Argentine Republic, with a view to joining hands with the Chicago packing trust, to control the meat trade of the world. They believe when such an amalgamation has been effected United States and Argentina will be able to dictate the price of food wherever a human family depends on pork and beef for sustenance.

Edward Casey yesterday said: "The United States is at present the world's butcher, but the increasing demands of its own population and the decreasing supply of cattle will eventually force the American packers to devote themselves exclusively to the home market. Then will be the time that Argentina will demonstrate the inexhaustible productiveness of its virgin soil. Whether we ally ourselves with the Americans trust or not, we shall certainly give it a fight for a profitable British market. for a profitable British market which is dependent on North and South American meat for nine months of the year. AN IRISH TERRIER'S VIGILANCE

Probably the Means of Saving Life-Brave Rescues Made-Incendiary Blaze.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 29.-If it had not been for the Irish terrier Jack the four-story brick flat at 738 Quincy street, corner of Quincy street and Reid avenue, would probably be now a heap of calcined brick and mortar, and there might have been two or three tragedies to record. The dog is the property of Wilbur Smith, who, with his wife and three children, occupy the second flat, over Armstrong's grocery store.

Mr. Smith was in Manhattan on business the previous night. His wife and children were alone in their flat. At 12:15 Mrs. Smith was aroused from a deep sleep by the terrific howling of her dog Jack, who was chained in her coal bin in the cellar.

Mrs. Smith went to the dumbwaiter shaft, intending to shout down and quiet the animal, and opened it. A cloud of thick smoke, smelling strongly of kerosene, puffed out in her face. Half suffocated, she staggered back and screamed at the top of her voice,

"FIRE! FIRE!"

William Van Dorn, a colored employe of Trainor's Hotel, heard Mrs. Smith's screams, and ran to the house. From the window of her apartments Mrs. Smith explained hysterically the cause of her agitation, and Van Dorn ran back to the corner of Gates and Reid avenues, and turned in an alarm. Van Dorn ran back again to the house and into the cellar, where he first unfastened the dog, and then paid his attention to a large heap of burning wood and paper, which had been saturated with kerosene and piled up in the middle of the cellar against a wooden post, which had also caught fire and had communicated the flames to the beams overhead. Van Dorn kicked the burning pieces of wood in a dozen different directions, about the cement floor, where they burned separately and were harmless, but the flames along the post and the wooden ceiling continued to spread in alarming fashion. The smoke was so dense that Van Dorn was driven to the open

TENANTS IN PANIC.

Meanwhile the tenants of the flats were paniestricken. They could not make their escape through the smokefilled halls, and they gathered at the windows and shrieked. When the firemen from the Quincy street engine house, only a block and a half away, arrived, every window was filled with terrified women and children, and from the lower windows poured volumes of smoke which obscured the fire escapes and precluded escape in that direction.

The firemen rigged up ladders in a very short time, and ascending came down in a short while with women and children in their arms. A COLORED HERO.

The colored man, Van Dorn, worked like a real hero. Regardless of the apparent danger, he dashed up through the smoke of the stairways to the third floor, where there was an old lady named Harman. When he got there he found the woman had fainted. and picking her up in his arms he carried her back again through the smoke to the street.

Van Dorn next rushed up to the apartments occupied by a Mrs. Wilcox, whom he found in a state of nervous distraction, and picking her up bodily carried her down. The firemen had meanwhile extinguished the fire in the cellar, without much trouble. The damage was insignificant. "The wood was no doubt piled in the cellar by firebugs," said Mr. Smith in the morning. "It was saturated with kerosene, and had not my dog given the warning there might have been a holocaust. The tenants are talking of presenting Jack with a new collar.

got, and he diagnosed my case as uterine trouble tending to dropsy. Medicine seemed to do me no good. I lingured between life and death for quite a while, every day growing weaker until I could not walk cross the room. My friends were looking for my death every minute. A friend wrote and told me about Dr. R. V. Pierce, and I at once wrote to him for medical advice. He replied immediately, giving me full instructions as to what to do. I at once followed his advice, and when I had taken his medicine about a week feit a good deal stronger. When I had taken it about one month I felt as strong as I do to-day. I took four bottles of each kind and two vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' Many thanks for the medicine, It has permanently cured me."

British Vs. American Athletes.

The Brooklyn Times professes to believe that the recent defeat of Doherty, the English tennis expert, at the hands of Larned, the American champion, was largely due to the allurements of Newport society, and points out as proof of its assertion that the British amateur's ideas of training are radi- the duties now imposed upon such uncally different from those of his American cousin. The Times says:

"Distinction in America between an amateur and a professional is the matter of money prizes. If a man accepts a money consideration for any performance he is a professional in this country. But in England there is a orable tariff conditions, it would be wider difference between the classes. The amateur in different lines of sport over there not only refuses to accept exports the same natural products as money, but he refuses to train as the professional does. The United States are adhered to by our British cousins we Americans are apt to continue to run away with championship after the bidding of the protected interests.

There is doubtless a wide difference American amateur athletics, but the position in this country to a reciprocal difference is all in favor of the former. Your typical British athlete lives much this from the Hamilton Spectator: in the open air and enjoys life in various ways; he does not believe in converting himself into a mere flesh and blood machine. He goes in for sport for sport's sake, for the physical and mental exhilaration it affords. His habits-if not as methodical as his machine-like American rival-are clean and wholesome, and leave an impression on his entire life. Much mouching about in the open air makes him a country-because it doesn't fly the deep-chested and strong-lunged, and same flag. when old age overtakes him it finds him sound and tough, as the native oak of his little island. Your American athlete, on the other hand, has never tasted the real joy of athletic effort. Eventually he becomes a physical monstrosity and, at an age at which the English devotee of athletics is only beginning to realize to the fullest extent the joy of life, his American counterpart is a wreck; overtraining, unnatural exercise and habits have accomplished more ruin than the mild dissipations of the Britisher. The Brooklyn Times appears to have overlooked the fact that the British amateur athlete has held his own in most departments of sport, despite his easy-going ways and his refusal to train as they do in America. After all, the strenuous life in athletics

The London Post says the Monroe doctrine implies that British possessions in America are to be secured by a United States guarantee. That may be, but Canada prefers to furnish her own guarantee in the shape of a wellrained militia.

An American writer says that the powers of the world are being resolved into three groups-Great Britain and the United States, France and Russia, Germany and Central Europe. If there must be a three-cornered arrangement this would suit the British people better than any other combination.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the death, in 1861, of William Lyon abuses which the most loyal subjects a moment tolerate today. He was mistaken in the means he took, but his owes his memory a great deal.

The London Free Press says that "under the tariff the American beef trust has been enabled to fleece meat consumers from Maine to California." A stultifying admission for a high tariff paper. By and by it will be singing with the poet:

The Reason Why.

[New York News.] Someone once sent to Eugene Field poem entitled "Why do I live?" Mr. Field sent back the reply: "Beause you sent your verse by mail.",

[New York Sun.] Old Mother Hubbard
Went to her cupboard
To get her poor doggie a bone;
But the dog couldn't wait, In his hungry state,
And now the old lady is laid up with

A Case of Too Too.

[Toronto Telegram.] Sir Wilfrid Laurier is too French for the Hamilton Spectator, too British for the Paris Français, and too successful for Sir Charles Tupper.

Alas! He "Were."

[Boston Transcript.] She-You tell me you never was in love before? Can you look me in the face and say that? He-When I look you in the face, darling, I forget that there ever was another woman in the world.

To a Strenuous Maid.

[London Punch.] Dear Madge, with nerves so well con-And movements vigorously bold, With health and strength in overplus, You're nothing if not strenuous! Upon the lawn at croquet played, She did not shine—a trifler she— At croquet, but at coquetry!

But you, dear Madge, have driven hence Such dallying inconsequence; Your prowess holds my heart in thrall, Impetuous mallet, flying ball!

I watch at ping-pong your attack, And tremble for my bric-a-brac! In all, you have a single aim, And that "the rigor of the game."

And yet-I trust to time for cure-The strenuous maid can scarce endure. No, sweet eighteen! 'Twill pass away In that great game you've yet to play. That you must play-yourself the prize-With beating heart and downcast eyes. Ah, Madge! you'll be contented then To leave "the strenuous life" to men!

Sure for Once.

[Washington Star.] "Why did you insist on getting me an upper berth in the sleeping car?" asked the habitually austere lady from doing a profitable business with answered her irrepressible niece, "you have been expecting for so many years to find somebody under your bed that I thought it might relieve your mind to have all doubts on the subject removed for once."

In Turn.

No Cause for Alarm.

[New Denver, B. C., Ledge.] Some of the English papers are becoming alarmed because so many Yankees are settling in Canada. No need to be afraid if the entire United States moves across the line. There is room for all, even England, in this land of the C. P. R. Come on, Yanks! Roll in, tumble in, walk in or fly in; so long as you get here we do not care how you come. Never mind your flag. Sula Hop Lee.

[Clark B. Wakefield, of Dallas, Texas.] It was many and many a year ago, In the land of the heathen Chinee,
That a maiden there lived whom you never did know.
But her name it was Sula Hop Lee;
And this maiden she lived with a single thought. And that single thought was me.

I was a man and she was a maid,
In the land of the heathen Chinee,
And we loved with a love that was fed by love—
I and my Sula Hop Lee;
And our love it was fanned by a bellows
of love.
And the bellows was worked by me. And I can't tell why, in this long ago, In the land of the heathen Chinee, That a snake should bite, but it certainly did,

My beautiful Sula Hop Lee So that I sent for a little glass flask For the use of her and me: For I confess that I was so shocked I needed it worse than she.

The angels were not so happy in heaven As I was, or seemed to be,
For I was uplifted (as all men know
Who ever drink snake-bite tea).
But that was no help to the poor little

For the snake was the death of she. But our love, I have said, it was fanned by love.

Nor the sweep of the sharp snicker-Can ever dissever my soul from the soul Of my beautiful Sula Hop Lee. For the tea never steams without bring-

Of the beautiful Sula Hop Lee;
And the flag never flaps but my mind must relapse
To thoughts of my Sula Hop Lee;
And I never can hide—though often I've tried— From the wish that I might have had her for a bride. And remained with my Sula Hop Lee In the land of the heathen Chinee.

INTERRED WITHOUT CASKET

Lady's Body Taken From Coffin and Buried in a Winding Sheet.

Orange, N. J., Aug. 29.—The most of the markets of Europe, South and peculiar interment which ever took Central America, Africa and the East, place in the Oranges was that of the oody of Miss Mary Redmond Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Martin, of Mountain avenue, Llewellyn Park, which was buried in Rosedale Cemetery without a casket.

No reason for the interment of the body without either casket or box was vouchsafted at the home of the Martins. Mrs. Martin said that it was a matter which concerned only the family, and of which she did not care The funeral was private. The only persons present at the interment aside from members of the family, were the gravediggers. When the hearse reached the cemetery the remains of the young woman were removed from the casket in which they were brought from Appledore, Isles of Shoals, N. H., where she died on Aug. 15, and were buried in nothing but a winding sheet.

Miss Martin was about 20 years old The family is well-known in West Orange, and the home in Llewellyn one of the finest there.

Powerful Fight To Be Made to Capture the World's Trade-Tourists Stalled.

London, Aug. 29.-It is felt in Vienna, says the Times' correspondent, that the systematic deprecation of the triple alliance in the Italian press is a more serious matter for Austria than German, because Germany's relations with Italy are predominantly commercial and free of disturbing elements and hereditary resentments. On the other hand, but for the triple alliance, Austro-Italian relations would consist of an armed truce, difficult to maintain and subject to frequent interruptions. LATEST IRON COMBINE.

The iron and steel markets of Germany now have a combination behind them with which to fight for control of the markets of Europe, South and according to a report by United States Consul-General Mason at Berlin, A union has been formed between the coal and iron interests to provide export bounties among all the leading syndicates in the metal and mining industries. This vast and powerful export association, says Mason, is based upon an agreement that its members shall contribute to pay to such members as export their products a bonus equal to the difference between the current price of the merchandise in the German markets and the price actually obtained for it abroad. bounties to be paid on exported metals are calculated upon the amounts of raw materials consumed in their pro-

The international military ride from Brussels to Ostend, a distance of 821/2 niles, resulted in an easy victory for the Frenchman. There were 61 competitors, and they started at intervals of five minutes. After passing the 621/2 mile point the hardest part of the ride began, and the affair developed into the severest kind of an ordeal. Many horses fell exhausted. Three of the animals dropped dead before Ostend was reached. When near Ostend the French lieutenant Bauzil, who noticed that his horse was dying, drew his revolver and blew his brains out. The only English officer in the contest, Lieut. Gibbon, saw his mount was exhausted, and dismounted while the inimal panted its life away. The scene at Ostend when the Frenchman, Lieut. Madamet, riding a Hungarian thoroughbred came* in first, was one of great enthusiasm. The horse died soon after the victory. The second, third and fourth at the finish were all Frenchmen. Then came Norwegian, a Dutchman and a Belgian. The time of the winner, Lieut. Madamet, for the entire distance was six hours and twenty minutes.

The destitution is caused by the lack of vegetation due to excessive drought. Commissioner Jones has asked authority from the secretary of the interior to expend $3,000, with which to purchase subsistence supplies to relieve the starving Indians. Owing to the exigency of the case, the commissioner asks that the supplies be pur save the time required by advertising Decidedly Favors Arbitration.

New York, Aug. 29.—Sir Edmund of External Affairs of New South Wales, Australia, who was one of the members of the recent conference of British colonial premiers in London, and who is on his way back to Australia, accompanied by Sir John Forrest, Minister of Defense, and Austin Chapman, member of the New South Wales House of Representatives, and Government whip, has visited the leading financial institutions and met many leading business men. Sir Edmund took a leading part in the recent enactment of the arbitration law of New South Wales, and is much interested in the progress of the anthracite coal strike in this country. He considers the frequency of great strikes in the United States a serious matter, one which requires careful study on the part of the people and of congress.

"I think." he said, "that we in Australia are very much in advance of your country in the matter of dealing ATHEIST'S GIFT TO CHURCH with industrial conditions. By the terms of our arbitration law great strikes are made practically impossible. Arbitration is compulsory, and when disputes arise between employers and employed both parties are required to submit the issue to a board of arbitration, which is under government control. A judge of the supreme court is the head of the board, and two assessors are named to act with him, one appointed by each side. "A money deposit, sufficiently large to make both the parties to the dispute unwilling to forfeit it, is required to be paid into the court before the arbitration begins. The deposit is a guarantee that both sides will abide by the finding of the board. Since the enactment of this compulsory arbitration law strikes in New South Wales are unknown." Sir Edmund and his party will visit

Washington, D. C., and will sail from Vancouver on Sept. 19.

CHAPTER II.

True to her promise, Miss Waldemar went the next day to see her little protege, and to ascertain, if possible, something regarding his history.

Robert, the coachman, had given her some idea of what she might find in that poor cottage, where Margaret Fox, for that was the woman's name, lived; so she was not unprepared for the evidences of poverty visible on every hand.

It was a tiny house of three rooms— two below and one above. The floors were bare, though clean. The windows were curtainless, but every pane of glass was polished until it shone like a crystal. There were only two chairs, a small stove and a table in the room into which Audrey was shown.

The woman herself was perhaps thirty years of age, of good figure, and possessing a not unattractive face, if it had not been marred by an ugly frown, and a sullen, almost vindictive look, which seemed habitual to it. "No; he's welcome to stay wherever he's treated well and can get enough to eat," said the woman curtly.

the slightest pleasure at hearing him thus complimented.
"Have you ever sent him to school?"

The woman gave a short, harsh laugh at this.

When supper was over, Audrey took her little guest into the drawing-room to let him feast his eyes upon the beautiful things there, and then sent for her coachman.

She told him she wished him to take the child home.

"It is too dark," she said, "for such a wee mite to be out alone, and," she added, in an undertone, "just take a look, Robert, at the woman with whom he lives, and see what you think of her."

"Oh, I know who she is Miss Audrey," the man returned, "and it's a shame that such a fine little fellow should have to be brought up in such a way. He has been here a good deal lately. The cook has frequently fed him, though she gets out of patience to have him come so

If your aim merely to do good and to surround an unfortunate child with the influence of your love and 'kindness,' it need not matter to you what his name is, nor what his antecedenis are." Audrey colored and arose to take her "Well," she said, with a sigh, "I cannot of course compel you to tell me anything about him; but indeed I have become strangely interested in the boy, and I really desire to befriend him; and," she added, with great kindness, "If you need anything for yourself at any time, I hope you will make it known to me. Good morning. "Good day," curtly replied Margaret Fox, as she followed her visitor to the door of her poverty-stricken cottage, and stood there with a sullen scowl upon her face, and watched the helress of half a million enter her carriage and drive away.

"Blue blood!" she muttered, almost flercely, as she turned and went back she threw herself into a chair, where she remained sitting in deep thought for a long time.
"I wonder if I dare do it?" she said.

"I wonder if I dare do it?" she said, at last; and her face was very pale, a wild look in her eyes. "Why not? She is rich; she never would feel it, and—it will end that business forever!"

The next morning Audrey Waldemar was sitting upon a little verandah, which had been erected for summer use on the north side of her beautiful home.

She was very lovely in her dainty wrapper of spotless white her calded. She was very lovely in her dainty wrapper of spotless white, her golden hair gathered into a simple knot at the ack of her finely-shaped head and with faint tinge of pink on her smooth, fair She was reclining in a great willow rocker, into which, around the edge, a broad blue satin ribbon had been woven, and it seemed almost like a fanciful frame inclosing a beautiful picture. She had been reading, but just now her book lay closed in her lap, her hands idly folded upon it, while she gazed absently toward the green hills whose heads seemed to almost touch the blue vault of heaven. All at once, however, a slight sound attracted her attention, and turning toward it, she found little Richard Fox standing beside her. He smiled, showing two rows of gleaming white teeth, as his eves met hers, and an answering smile flitted over her why, Rich! how did you manage to get here so quietly?" she asked, holding out her hand to him.

He glanced down upon his bare feet as if to tell her how: then said simply:

"Madge sent me."

"Madge sent you, did she?" Audrey "Madge sent you, did she?" Audrey repeated, while she lifted his worn can from his curly black head and cast it upon the floor, as if she could not bear to see him disfigured by so unsightly an object; for his face was as bright as the day itself, and his eves were shining with delight at beholding her.

"Does Madge wish anything particularly?" she added, after a moment.

THE WOODSTOCK TOURNEY. tunate in having delightful weather for their great tournament. The large crowd constantly in attendance is taking an interest in the several games. The leading feature in the tournament yesterday was the game between Callander, of Toronto, and J. S. Bell, of London. Both are ex-champions of the Dominion. It was closely contested and a magnificent game. both men being in excellent form and playing well. The game between Errington, of Glanworth, the present champion of the Dominion, and Henderson, of Chesterfield, champion of the County of Oxford, created great interest. The game was an excellent one and Henderson's friends up to the very last were confident of winning, but Errington, with his usual success, came out the winner by 7 points. Wm. Farrel, of Woodstock, and John Witham of Port Bruce, put up a most interesting and closely contested game.

BRANTFORD JUNIORS WON. Brantford, Aug. 28 .- Brantford II. won from Brampton II. in a junior championship lacrosse game here yesterday afternoon by 8 to 2. The game was hotly contested from start to finish, and there was plenty of hard checking. With 6 goals to the good, the locals play in Brampton on Monday, and if they are not beaten by more than that number of goals they will step into the next round. FERGUS IN THE FINALS.

Fergus, Aug. 28.—Fergus and Sea-forth put up a desperate fight in their game here yesterday in the C. L. A. semi-finals. The score in Seaforth was six each, and yesterday was almost the same, being Fergus 6, Seaforth 5. Although not rough in their play, the difference in weight and their football experience gave Seaforth a 114 great advantage when the play was at close quarters. This, however, was a little more than overcome in the quick passing of the Fergus players. The summary is a very correct indication of the natue of the play, which was Al lacrosse, and Referee Kearns, of Orangeville, discharged his duties, on a whole, very satisfactorily, although he might have sent a few more players to the fence on each side. The one unsatisfactory thing about the game is the fact that several of the Seaforth men refused to go on with the game when Fergus got the eleventh goal, which gave them a lead of one playing for him who had signed with point. Seven minutes remained to play, an American League team for next Time. 1:08%.

Fifth race, handicap, for all ages, 1% miles—Belvine, 119 (McCue), 18 to 8th and 11th, in 5, 3, 2, 8 and 18 for Donlin to show that he is in shape.

COLLINGWOOD WON AT HOME. Collingwood, Aug. 28 .- Owen Sound met Collingwood in Collingwood yesterday, and were defeated by the home team by 7 goals to 2. Collingwood had do so. the best of the play throughout the game. The home boys played an excellent combination game, and their rushes on the goal were the best ever seen here. The game was free from roughness, as the referee, Dr. Campbell, of Bradford, kept the players well in hand. This leaves Owen Sound the winners of the round by a score of 22 to 7.

Montreal, Aug. 28.—Considerable talk has been indulged in by footballers in Montreal and other Canadian centers of the game about the selection of the team that is to go to Great Britain and show the players over there what Canadian boys know about the game of Rugby. From paragraphs published, in which names of some former English athletes now living in Canada were mentioned as likely to go on the the impression has gone abroad that only Canadian footballers who had lived in England would be asked This is not so, however. It is Clifford Jack, who have the plan in charge, to send a team that will be essentially representative of Canada. To secure a good representative team they will be able to go, together with their qualifications, how much they know there is to be professional sport, about the English game and how much it travel under that name, and let it time they can give previous to the trip to practicing the English method of play. From the returns received the which is neither the one nor the other, necessary selections will be made.

The Yachting World concludes its comments as follows: "Now that he has entered his third year of work for America's cup honors, Sir Thomas may proceed assured that all sportsmen in Great Britain are with him.'

PROFESSIONALISM. [Stratford Herald.] "Look out," says the Montreal Star, "for professional football." Yes, that is probably a word in season. Look out for professionalism in every game that is played. That is the way of the world at present. But professionalism is not the worst thing which threatens sports. Semiprofessionalism is more dangerous, and never was there a time when it flourished as it does now. To give it its desserts, professionalism is honest. Semi-professionalism is the acting of a lie; it is amateurism traveling under felse pretenses; it is the mean resort of those not skillful enough to be professionals out and out. There's lacrosse. It's a purely amateur game. Of course, it is; with its imported players, its free fights: its 'thrown' games, bought by the man who would spend a dollar more than the other fellow. Then there is hockey. The winter will soon be here, and the paid lacrosse players will settle down to practice at another playing game, the intention of Mr. McClure and Dr. The man who plays for the love of sport is fast passing away. The man of action may not have the time nor the opportunity for much introspective thought, yet he has an instinctive understanding of a universe governed by a Creator of definite and intelligent purpose. DEATH OF MRS. JOHN PURDOM Wife of Well-Known Contractor Died

Yesterday Afternoon.

The very many friends of the family will learn with the deepest sorrow of the death of Mrs. John Purdom, wife of the well-known contractor, which occurred yesterday afternoon at her home, 42, King street. Mrs. Purdom had been ill for several months, but until last Sunday hope for her re-covery was entertained.

Mrs. Purdom was the second daughter of Mr. Thomas Wilson, formerly of the town of Lanark, and her death is the first in her family. Her parents and three brothers and three sisters, all living in the States, survive her. Her sisters-Sarah and Mrs. George G. Runyun, of Morristown, New Jersey, reached London before her death. Twenty years ago she married Mr. Purdom, who with their family of three boys and two girls, survive hera 7-year-old son, Charlie, having died a few years ago. The sincerest sympathy for Mr. Purdom and his family will be felt by their large circle of friends. The funeral will take place at Mount Pleasant Cemetery on Saturday afternoon.

The marriage took place Wednesday afternoon at Halifax, N. S., of Major H. J. Woodside and Josephine Victoria Huestis, second daughter of M. B. Huestis, manager of the Federal Life

BIBLE IS BEING MULTIPLIED ON A SCALE UNPRECEDENTED

tributed Past Year.

Extraordinary Activity of Bible Society Throughout the World.

The Western Ontario Bible Society, auxiliary to the British and Foreign Bible Society, has its headquarters in this city, where it maintains a general depository of Bibles and Testaments, from which all branch societies are supplied with the Scriptures at the lowest possible price. The constitution of the society says that "its object shall be to co-operate with the British and Foreign Bible Society in circulating the Holy Scriptures, without note or comment, both at home and abroad."

The society was formed in 1878, and is undenominational, any person subscribing $1 annually being eligible for membership: $20, if paid at one time, making the giver a life member, and $50, a life director.

But it is the work of the society, and not its terms of membership, that is most interesting. Notwithstanding the cynicism of the modern race it is remarkable how the sale of the Bible has increased. Even in the last year, with its upheavals in China and elsewhere, the issues of the Bible House in London, England, showed an increase of 103,136 over the previous year, The board of wo her last night and decided upon sone improvements although China alone showed a decrease of 400,000 from the usual annual which will especially affect East Lon-them to do so. This shows what an importance the society attaches to the literary power of the Bible to tell its own story; yet it is something outside of literature, a living element which enables one to read it a second or a third time without detracting from its interest and spiritual force. Great as is its interest to the educated man, when one glances at the record of the sales in heathen countries there can be no doubt that it possesses an equally great interest for the uneducated one. In China, for notorious reasons, the sale has sunk from 745,000 copies annually to 382,000, but, on the other hand, last year, for the first time, 44,-000 copies were sold in the West Indies, while in the East the 621 nativo Christian Bible women have read the Scriptures to an average of 36,790 women a week; have taught 2,537 women to read for themselves, and have circulated 23,346 copies of Scripture.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY-ONE LANGUAGES. In the year which ended on March 31, 1902, the society considered questions relating to versions of Scripture in 151 different languages and dialects, of which 33 belong to Europe, 55 to Asia, 43 to Africa, 6 to America and 14 to Oceanica. A new German Bible in Roman characters and a new Greek Testament for students and translators, are among some of the most interesting things promised for next year, while the New Testament in Flemish, the Old Testament in Hun-Chuwash and St. Matthew in Icelandic are also soon to be accomplished. The Old Testament in Ruthen, for a people numbering some millions in Russia and Austria-Hungary is in the press, as are the Four Gospels in Votjak Erza Mordoff and Baskir Turki

In Asia, Genesis and the Psalms Testament, of the Manipuri Acts, of St. Mark in Burmese, of the Old Testament in Origa, and of the New Testament in Kanarese and Malayalam are completed, while the printing of the Old Testament in Asami and the New Testament in Tibet, Tagalog and

A new name in that list this year is Yalunka. At a single meeting twenty-five African versions, in which eighteen missionary societies were interested, came before the editorial

367 DISTINCT FORMS OF SPEECH. The table of languages and dialects in which the translation, printing or distribution of the whole or part of the Bible has been promoted by the society now contains 367 names of disdinct forms of speech, while the payments made to translators, revisers and proofreaders amounted in one to £4,000. The Bible Society report for the year ending March 31, 1902, concludes as follows:

"As we close this brief survey of the most catholic and most ubiquitous of Christian agencies, we realize afresh one commanding fact. Today, while the Bible is being criticised so fiercely, it is also being multiplied and distributed on a scale beyond all piecedent. God's Book speaks in more tongues and lives in more homes and rules in more hearts than it ever did before. Age cannot wither nor custom stale its miraculous vitality. In this world the New Testament fares often like its own martyrs; it is stoned, it is sawn asunder, it has trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover, of bonds and imprisonments. Often men have left it for dead, and buried it out of sight. But in the triumphs of the mission-field, and in "The mills are all very busy," she said, "and their great difficulty at present is to find sufficient help. These have now been taken home to assist in the harvesting operations, and a scarcity of help is the result."
