Mrs. Hooper King gave a delightful Five O'clock Tea last Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Miss Helen King, who is home on a visit from Cleveland, where she is taking a course as a nurse in training. Mrs. King and Miss Daisy King received. Mrs. Ross, of Hastings, Eng., presided on the tea room and poured the tea, assisted by Mrs. Kingsmill, Miss Helen King, Cleveland, and Miss Stetson, of Winnipeg. The tea room was very charmingly decorated, the conception being quite original. Golden rod and white formed the color scheme. Many pretty gowns were in evidence.

THE KENNEL

FIELD TRIAL ENTRIES.

The entries for the International Field Trials Club Derby for setter and pointer puppies whelped after January 1, 1903, closed with 19 nominations, 13 of which are English setters, two Irish setters and four pointers.

The entries for the all aged stake closed November 1.

The club intends holding a members' stake also, which will be open to members of the club only, who will have to handle their own dogs. The stake will be for a trophy donated by the club. The club this spring turned down 75 good strong quail on the grounds at Ruthven and reports say that they have been well, so it is expected birds will be more plentiful than they have been for the past few years, when they were so scarce that the dogs could not be properly tested.

The close season for quail will not effect the trials, as no birds are killed at them.

The trials begin with the members' stake at Ruthven on Monday the 22nd of November, to be followed by the open derby and on the completion of the derby by the all aged stake.

The judges have not yet been selected but their names will be announced shortly.

Through the courtesy of W. B. Wells, the honorable secretary of the International Field Trials Club, The Planet is able to publish the list of entries for the derby, which are as follows:

SATCHEL OF THE SATELLITE

The would-be sport is always trying to lead a better life.

Perhaps those 500,000 men who are going to dredge the river will live in tents.

The election cannot grind with the dredging and the armories that are past. That's why.

I suppose Boyd and Tremblay, the alleged burglars were running in double harness yesterday.

And there I almost forgot that the Honorable Sidney General Fisher would be here on Tuesday.

I knew those Dresden people could not catch that pair of escapers when the Chatham police couldn't.

There is no doubt but that Chatham will get the armories if the elections only hold off long enough.

And its too bad that my friend, J. D. Lamont won't be able to work in any more election campaigns for eight years.

The Hon. G. W. Ross has a majority of one in the Speaker. Never mind there's a couple more election trials to come off yet.

A cigar in the mouth is worth two in somebody's else's box, and a prisoner in the jail is worth two in Chatham township and still going.

If the elections only come soon enough, we may have as much armory as we have street railway on Queen Street, and that, too, before the snow flies.

P. C. Darr (on the corner)—"A John White, a John White, a month's salary for a John White," but the running pair didn't wait to find out what the policeman said.

They'd never have dragged his lordship, the great and only General Fisher, up this way if he knew what the Kent people thought of Dundonald. But he'll find out.

While not posing as a Canadian Hicks, still I am not above predicting that it will rain next week. The Peninsular Fair and Sid. Fisher are the basis of this remark.

Capt. Stone told the officers of the 24th Kent last night that Geo. Stephens, M. P., had assured him that the armory would be started in 10 days. This is not more than the 421st assurance.

BLENHEIM

Sept. 24.—The death occurred last evening at nine o'clock of Mrs. James Pickering, Sr. The deceased had been in poor health for several years.

Word was received by Mr. J. K. Morris that his son John had met with an accident. He was shown to the elevator, the door being open for him, he thought, to step on to the elevator. It was not, and he fell a distance of twelve feet, breaking several ribs.

Helen Angus, of London, is visiting Mrs. Gilman.

Mr. C. D. Colby, who has been buying beans in this section of the country for a number of years, has formed a partnership with F. A. Young, of this town. They have rented the old rink and will start business at once.

TILBURY

Sept. 24.—General regret was expressed here yesterday over the escape of Boyd and Tremblay, the Tilbury burglars.

Thos. Cox left this week for Sault Ste. Marie to look after his business interests there.

Alex. Coutts left to-day for Louisiana, where he is looking after the timber interests of the Sutherland-Innes Co., of Chatham.

There is great divergence of opinion as to the loss of the corn crop from frost. Some experienced farmers say all the unripened corn—and most of it is in that state—will be lost, while others are more hopeful and think the stalks are all right. It will take a few days yet to definitely determine the loss. Vegetables, however, have suffered severely.

Millinery openings take place next week.

N. R. Thibert, of Worcester, Mass., was in town yesterday on his way to St. Louis Fair.

The Silcox sidewalk contractors have finally commenced work on Canal street, where the disputes as to location have finally been settled. H. Johnston made a new record on the plains, where he this week shot 87 ducks in one day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Poole and family left Thursday for their new home in Lacombe, Alberta. Mr. Poole came to Comber in the spring of 1893, and he proved himself a thrifty and progressive citizen.—Comber Herald.

District Dashes

Mr. Alfred Scraton, who left a few months ago for Calgary and other Northwest points, arrived home Monday morning, looking the better for his trip. Mr. Scraton has taken up and south of Calgary and will move his family there in the spring. Sorry to lose such a good citizen.—Comber Herald.

W. M. Angus, of Puce, generally has a crop of 600 to 800 bushels of peaches. This year the crop is so poor that he has just enough for family use. This is just an indication of what the Essex peach crop will be this year.—Ridgeway Plaindealer.

A horse and rig belonging to Mr. Jas. Sauve, Tilbury West, was stolen one evening last week. The rig was taken from the farm of the Comber Drug Store, driven to Kilmory, tied up in the Methodist Church shed and abandoned. It was not until the next day that Mr. Sauve found his property, but not before he had gone to considerable expense and trouble.

We have received a very interesting letter from Mr. Archie E. Dupuis, son of Mr. Cleophas Dupuis. The young man is now located in the Estevan District, N. W. T., and he is well there. His crops are large and he will write a snug sum. He expected to come to Chatham a few days after writing his letter, Sept. 7th.—Comber Herald.

Mr. Chas. W. Hubbard, of Wallaceburg, died on Thursday last at the age of 39 years and six months. Deceased has been sailing for the past three years and since February last has been confined to the house. He was the son of the late John A. Hubbard and was born on lot 2, concession 1, Camden Township, in 1868.—Dresden Standard.

On Sunday last at the South Bush Mission Church—Presbyterian, Mr. Campbell, the student minister who has been laboring there during the holiday season, gave his farewell sermon prior to his departure for college. Mr. Campbell is a clever young man and gives promise of becoming one of the bright men of the Presbyterian pulpit. In his final address Mr. Campbell said that he regretted leaving the charge, and his best wishes for success were with them. He had nothing but good to say of the people there and their treatment of him during his stay.—Merlin Mirror.

Quite a heavy white frost fell on Tuesday night, which is reported to have done considerable damage to standing corn and growing vegetables. A trip through the country however, shows that the standing corn is apparently but very little damaged, the only real harm done being that of some corn before it is sufficiently matured. Along the lake front there was no frost and corn and tobacco still standing is flourishing. A mile or so back from the lake shore the frost was noticeable, but not to do any damage.—Merlin Mirror.

"A RAGGED HERO."

In "A Ragged Hero," which is announced for the Grand on fair nights, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 28th and 29th, the principal character, a "hobo," is essayed by the clever young comedian, George F. Hall, and the story tells of his rise from poverty to competence. Incidental to the redemption of this "knight of the road," the threads of a pretty love story are woven through the play. The murder of an old farmer by his son, the accusation by the murderer of his somnambulistic brother, the latter's consequent imprisonment and death sentence, from which he is saved in the nick of time by his faithful sweetheart, the hero's tramp's rescue of a little girl from the upper story of a burning farm-house by means of a great swing, and the timely rescue of an aeronaut, who, from his balloon overhead has been the sole witness of the murder, are among the original features of the production.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL OENSUS

The one hundred and sixty "visitors" required to visit every home in Chatham in one afternoon are being selected this week by the superintendents of the various Sunday Schools. This work, if well done and wisely and energetically followed up, should do more for the moral uplifting and spiritual upbuilding of the people of Chatham than any other single Christian enterprise. It is strictly non-sectarian and appeals to our common Christian philanthropy. The following is the text of the invitation to be left in each home:—

AN INVITATION.

Are you connected with any Christian Church? If so, in the name of our common Master we ask you to unite your prayers with ours for the spread of the Gospel, especially among the young. Towards this end will you not increase your efforts in your own church? "Jesus went about doing good," and said, "Follow me."

If you have no church connection, we come to extend you a cordial invitation to any of our churches that you may desire to attend. We want you to share with us our fellowship in Christ and the hope of glory. He says, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." May we see you with some of us next Lord's day and regularly thereafter? If you have children, will you not see to it that they are in some Sunday School every Sunday?

In Behalf of Each Church and Sunday School in Chatham.

On Monday, at 4.30 p. m., the Executive Board of the City Sunday School Association, which includes the pastors of the churches and the superintendents of the Sunday schools, will meet in the Free Library Auditorium.

On Tuesday, at 8 p. m., all the one hundred and sixty workers are asked to meet in the same place for instructions and to receive the limits of their territory. This will be an important meeting. J. W. Shackleton's city map and the city directory will be much in evidence.

LOCAL VIEW OF FISH SCANDAL

Caleb Wheeler Writes The Planet a Strong Letter upon the Subject

Something for Geo. Stephens and T. L. Pardo to Explain to the People Letter Turned Down by Their Organ.

Editor Planet:

I see by the papers that Mr. Bastedo, Deputy Commissioner of Fisheries for Ontario, accompanied by Mr. George Stephens, M. P., and Mr. T. L. Pardo, M. P. E., with the hoop net fishermen and a few anglers, have been paying a visit to the St. Clair waters. The object of the visit is stated to be on account of the complaints of the net fishermen that they are badly used in not being allowed to put in their nets before the first of October.

They seem to have gotten up a grievance on account of the net fishermen on the American side being allowed to fish. The writer is informed that no nets are allowed on the American side of the lake. The anglers of this County would like to know why no recognition is taken of their rights in these waters by the Deputy Commissioner, Mr. Stephens or Mr. Pardo. Not long ago, largely signed petitions were sent down from Chatham, Big Point, Mitchell's Bay, Wallaceburg and Dresden, praying that all net fishing be done away with in Lake St. Clair, Mitchell's Bay and the River Thames. The petitioners claim that the fish are being exterminated by the few fishermen who are foreigners, strangers and retired tradesmen and farmers, to the injury of the thousands of residents and ratepayers lying adjacent to these waters. The fish taken in the hoop nets which are being set now until April 15th, are not sold in Canadian markets, but all to the United States. In fact it is said that the fishermen are under contract to the large fish trusts on the other side, and dare not sell any fish except to them. It is also stated that the money for nets, boats, etc., is supplied by these same trusts, and that the fishermen are in effect only agents for said trusts.

The licenses for these nets allow for the taking of coarse fish only, such as eels, bullheads, madpouts, catfish and suckers, and no other kind of fish whatever. Also that—

1. Nets must not be set in places known to be frequented by bass or other game fish, nor in marshes, creeks or channels.
2. All bass or other game fish accidentally caught to be liberated alive under penalty of the forfeiture of the nets, the imposition of a fine and the cancellation of the license.

Now it is well known that nearly all of the provisions of their licenses are openly broken by these fishermen. All of the waters where these nets are set are frequented by bass and other game fish, particularly that portion of Lake St. Clair to the north where the different channels run into the lake, such as the St. Eclair, the Johnson channel, the Shintagan, the Bassett channel running into Mitchell's Bay from the lake. This portion of the lake between Grassy Point and Hickory Point is so filled by these hoop nets that fish can hardly get into Mitchell's Bay on the St. Eclair without striking one of the leads and being led into the nets. The channels to Mitchell's Bay and the St. Eclair are practically blocked where the nets are the thickest. It is also known that this is the favorite home of the small mouth black bass, locally known as the green bass.

It was stated by these fishermen that the bass did not go into the nets, but this on examination was proved to be untrue, as nets when lifted were found to contain more bass than other fish.

The leads are to be eight rods only in length, yet there is not a net that has not leads twice or three times that length, and this the inspectors know. Bass are supposed to be placed back in the water uninjured, but anglers are at a loss to know why fine species of fish has become almost extinct.

Pickering, according to the licenses, are not allowed to be caught, yet they are openly taken and shipped. This the inspectors also know. The anglers claim that if these nets are done away with thousands of residents and ratepayers will be benefited both directly and indirectly, who now derive neither pleasure nor profit from their own fish in their own waters. Strangers would also be attracted, who would spend money and do good to punters, hotel keepers, grocers, and others. Thousands of men, women and children would be afforded pleasure and people would enjoy eating a string of fish caught by themselves. As it is now half a dozen men have a monopoly of all the fish of these waters. The thousands must do without sport or fish that these so-called fishermen shall lead a life of idleness and make money out of what by rights should belong to the people of this section, who have not even the privilege of buying the fish caught by these men. The hoop nets are in Lake St. Clair and Mitchell's Bay, from whence the fish are shipped without any supervision. There is one inspector at Wallaceburg and one at Chatham. They are paid small salaries, not enough to make them take an interest in the work.

What is wanted, if this net fishing is to go on, is one good man stationed, not at Chatham or Wallaceburg, but where the fishing is going on. Also that the fishermen be obliged to ship from one or two stated points, and on certain days, so that the inspector can examine the boxes and see that the law is observed.

These sudden movements send a thrill of pain through her and she realizes that though love may lighten labor it cannot lighten pain.

Thousands of women who have suffered from backache, headache, and other consequences of womanly diseases, have been made well women by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness.

"I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as it has done me so much good," writes Mrs. Henry Harrell, of Toronto, N.C. Box 100. "I was so weak I could hardly walk when I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription.' I also had terrible trouble and could neither eat nor sleep any as I took morphine. Tried four different doctors and they all failed to do me any good, so one of my friends recommended your 'Favorite Prescription' to me and I took only three bottles and am now well and hearty. Can do almost any kind of work."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

Anglers also contend that no hoop or pound nets should be allowed in Lake St. Clair, which is a too well-lake. The leads used extend from the bottom to the top of the water, allowing no fish to pass, all are led into the nets. It is, therefore, easy to understand why the fish in these waters are being exterminated.

SUPREME COURT TO SAY.

Does the Net Income of the C.P.R. Exceed 10 Per Cent?

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—(Globe Special.)—The Supreme Court at its coming term will hear argument as to whether the net income of the C.P.R. Company exceeds 10 per cent. per annum of profit upon the capital actually expended in the construction of this question rests the issue as to whether or not there shall be Government control of rates. Under its charter the company is freed from Government control of rates until its net income reaches the amount stated. As to whether its stage has been reached is a difference of opinion between the Minister of Justice and the officers of the company, and it was thought that a judicial determination of the questions involved would materially assist in arriving at an understanding of the mutual rights of the Government and the company and the obligations or liabilities of the company in this behalf.

Northwest Legislature Opens.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 23.—At the opening of the Northwest Legislature yesterday the speech from the throne was of a formal nature. It expressed thankfulness for the continuance of prosperity and declared that throughout the greater part of the territories the harvest is bountiful and referred in eulogistic terms to the visit of Lord and Lady Minto. The Government did not propose to introduce legislation on any large public question, and it was a matter of gratification that the private bill to be promoted indicated the forward march of the territories. Regret was expressed that the movement for their establishment on a territorial basis had not been materially forwarded during the past year.

FIRST DOSE WENT RIGHT TO SPOT

Commercial Traveller Talk of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Gives Valuable Advice to Those Who Use the Railroad Train Frequently.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 19.—(Special.)—Mr. J. H. Ireland, one of the oldest and best known commercial travellers on the road, has come out with a statement for the benefit of his fellow travellers.

"It is with pleasure," says Mr. Ireland, "that I endorse Dodd's Kidney Pills. While on a trip through the Maritime Provinces Dodd's Kidney Pills completely cured me of a severe pain in my back that had bothered me for some time. The first dose seemed to go right to the spot and removed the trouble so effectually that it has not and is not likely to return."

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are just as advertised," Mr. Ireland concludes. "They cure to stay cured."

Travellers, railroad men and others who ride on the railway a great deal are subject to Kidney Troubles. They will find Mr. Ireland's statement valuable reading.

Money For McGill.

Montreal, Sept. 23.—In addition to the $50,000 gift by Lord Strathcona to the faculty of medicine at McGill, Principal Peterson yesterday announced that His Lordship had expressed his intention of giving $25,000 as a starter to a subscription list to erect a $100,000 college gymnasium and, furthermore, that Sir William Macdonald has already given $100,000 toward the students' union scheme.

A PASTOR'S WIFE CURED OF PELVIC CATARRH

She Suffered for Years and Felt Her Case Was Hopeless—Cured by Pe-ru-na.

MRS. ANNA B. FLEHARTY, recent Superintendent of the W. C. T. U. headquarters, at Galesburg, Ill., was for ten years one of the leading women there. Her husband, when living, was first President of the Nebraska Wesleyan University, at Lincoln, Neb.

In a letter written from 401 Sixty-seventh street, W., Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Fleharty says the following in regard to Peruna:

"Having lived a very active life as wife and working partner of a busy minister, my health failed me a few years ago. I lost my husband about the same time, and gradually I seemed to lose health and spirit. My daughter is a confirmed invalid, and we both felt great need of an invigorator.

"One of my neighbors advised me to try Peruna. A bottle was immediately secured and a great change took place in my daughter's as well as in my own health. Our appetites improved very greatly, the digestion seemed much helped, and restful sleep soon improved us, so that we seemed like new women.

"I would not be without Peruna for ten times its cost."—Mrs. Anna B. Fleharty.

What used to be called female diseases by the medical profession is now called pelvic catarrh. It has been found by experience that catarrhal diseases of the pelvic organs are the cause of most cases of female diseases.

Dr. Hartman was among the first of America's great physicians to make this discovery. For forty years he has been treating diseases peculiar to women, and long ago he reached the conclusion that a woman entirely free from catarrhal affection of these organs would not be subject to female disease. He therefore began using Peruna for these cases and found it so admirably adapted to their permanent cure that Peruna has now become the most famous remedy for female diseases ever known. Everywhere the women are using it and praising it. Peruna is not a palliative simply; it cures by removing the cause of female disease.

Dr. Hartman has probably cured more women of female ailments than any other living physician. He makes these cures simply by using and recommending Peruna.

Mrs. Esther M. Milner, DeGraff, Ohio, writes:

"I was a terrible sufferer from female weakness and had the headache continuously. I was not able to do my housework for myself and husband. I wrote you and described my condition as near as possible. You recommended Peruna. I took four bottles and was completely cured. I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."—Mrs. Esther M. Milner.

Congressman Thad. M. Mahon, of Chambersburg, Pa., writes:

"I take pleasure in commending your Peruna as a substantial tonic and a good catarrh remedy."—T. M. Mahon.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

AN INGENIOUS DEVICE.

A new device has caused a boom in hardware in the prohibition state of South Dakota. It is a spirit level, ruler, calendar and pencil holder combined, and in South Dakota sells two for a quarter at the best regulated hardware stores. Where there are one hardware store in town, there are now three, and all are doing a big business in spirit levels.

The most interesting thing about the device is the spirit level, with emphasis on "spirit." In the center of a square piece of wood about eight inches long is a hole running lengthwise into which fits very neatly a glass tube, tightly corked, containing two ounces of spirits. Another hole running lengthwise is just large enough to hold a lead pencil. In the middle of the piece of wood are two holes running at right angles to the aperture extraordinary containing the glass tube. One can look into these smaller holes and see the spirits in the glass tube. The owner of the device may, if he chooses, extract the tube from the frame, cork it and proceed to the work of putting down liquor according to the manner in vogue in non-prohibition States. Thereupon the possessor has no more use for the spirit level, nor the ruler, pencil, nor the calendar, nor the ruler. —New York Tribune.

What's the news from the front? asked the first citizen of St. Petersburg. That our front is now where the rear was, replied the second doleful.

THE LOCAL BUDGET

M. Wilson, K. C., left for Toronto to-day.

The wound required surgical treatment.

Robert Manning's son severely cut his left wrist with a piece of glass.

Mrs. Geo. Embrey and Mrs. Harry Cameron left to-day on a visit to friends in Chicago.

Robert Knight, formerly an old Chatham boy, now of Cleveland, Ohio, is spending a few days in the Maple City.

Mrs. Lester Austin, Centre Street, left on Thursday evening for Chicago, where she will visit with her son, Jason.

Wheat is at a dollar five here but the farmers aren't worrying any about the price. They haven't got any to sell.

"The Chatham market shed is a disgrace to civilization, let alone Chatham," warmly commented ex-Ald. Wm. Potter this morning, and knew there was a great deal of force in what he said. "I was on the market this morning," remarked Mr. Potter, "and the rain was pouring through the roof. In fact it was but little protection. The interior of the shed was about as nasty a place as you could imagine, damp and dirty. Something should be done by the Council at once."

The funeral of the late Joseph M. Eberts took place this morning from his late residence, Wellington street west, to St. Joseph's church, and thence to St. Anthony's cemetery. Rev. Father James conducted the obsequies. Delegations from the city fire brigade and also from the veteran firemen were present at the funeral. The pall-bearers were, two from St. Joseph's church, Peter Robert and John D. Kelly, two cousins, Richard and Carl Eberts, and John Waddell and A. E. Pilkey. The funeral was largely attended.

About eleven o'clock this morning a fire alarm was telephoned in to the fire hall from the Rutley House. The cause of the alarm was a burning chimney on the house adjoining Christ Church, on Wellington St., formerly occupied by Dr. Bogart, but now by Mr. Hazlett, and owned by Miss Louise Richards. The firemen responded promptly and the fire was extinguished before any damage was done.

Mr. Sheppy, D. G. M. W., of Highgate, and Mr. White, organizer for the A. O. U. W., paid Peninsular Lodge, No. 2, a visit last evening, and gave addresses, which were highly appreciated by the large turnout of members present. Several of the brothers also gave short speeches re the order. Several applications were received, among them some from ladies. A. Sauermann, John Counibear and A. E. Lenfesty were appointed a committee to represent Peninsular as to the formation of a carpet ball league in the city among the different fraternal organizations.

DAMAGE TO CROPS

"The frosts of last week have killed nearly all of the tobacco, bean and corn crops on the lake shore," was the startling statement made by T. Broadwood, who was on the market square this morning. "All of my crops are gone," continued he. "Jas. Woods, a neighbor of mine on the lake shore, has five acres of tobacco all spoiled and badly scorched; S. Conlan has five acres of tobacco gone; a large field of tobacco on the Everitt place is ruined, and Mr. Bannan has all of his tobacco and late beans completely gone. James McGuigan's crops, strange to say, are all right."

"Tomatoes and cucumbers are greatly damaged. Tomatoes are selling on the market to-day at 60 cents a bushel, and last Wednesday you could hardly get 35 cents a bushel for them. Melons and all of the tender stuff like that are damaged and in many cases whole crops are ruined."

"All of the crops were late this year and it was thought that the frosts would also be late, but they have come right on time—the only thing that has not been backward this year."

"When I was coming into town this morning I saw two large fields of beans on Holdway's place on the town line and they were all black, killed right out by the frosts. Last Wednesday morning I saw ice on the road at Charing Cross, so you see the frosts were certainly severe. Some of the farmers lit smudges in their tobacco fields to keep away the frost but these did little good. The frost on Thursday night did more damage and was heavier than the frost on Wednesday night. The loss to the farmers will be great."

Board of Steamboat Inspectors Report On Slocum Disaster.

New York, Sept. 24.—The Board of Steamboat Inspectors who have been investigating the General Slocum disaster recommend that the licenses of William H. Van Schaick, master and pilot; Edward Van Wart, pilot, and Denj. F. Conklin, chief engineer, be revoked, and specially commends the unselfish heroism displayed on this occasion by Mr. Everett Brandow, second engineer of the steamer, in the performance of his duty, who remained at the throttle of his engine answering all bells promptly until his services were no longer required, this notwithstanding the commotion, and panic on the steamer at the time and without means of moving from personal observation from his post in the engine room what chances must be of saving his own life.

The report also commends the captains and crews of the Franklin, the Massachusetts, the Walter Tracy, the Wade, the Director and the Golden Rod for saving lives from the Slocum.

Better Than In 1903.
Montreal, Sept. 24.—The following telegram was received Thursday at the general offices of the Ogilvie Milling Co. from P. W. Thompson, vice-president and general manager, Winnipeg: "Thrashing returns reported from 70 out of 100 of our elevators where threshing is in progress show an average yield of 18 bushels, or our estimate of 50,000,000 bushels, or 5,000,000 bushels more than last year, appears to have been very conservative. Weather is cloudy. I am pleased with the milling quality of the new wheat."

New Fruits

Seems early to have new fruits, but they will be here next week. Some have arrived already, and we are on the way. One thing you can depend on, you get the best of the goods, and the very cheapest when you buy here.

Raisins are very cheap this year, and we give you the benefit once. Seeded raisins have no decided advantages over the other kinds.

They are ready to use—no seeds. You get a full pound of Seeded Raisins, equal to a pound and a quarter of raisins. They are richer in flavor.

NEW SEEDED RAISINS, 10c lb.
NEW CLEANED CURRANTS, 10c lb.
NEW TABLE FIGS, 20c lb.
FRESH CRANBERRIES, 15c a quart.

EDMUND OLIVER B. A.

Edmund Oliver, B. A., who spent the past summer as a missionary in the Canadian Northwest, delivered a splendid lecture to the First Church Young Peoples Society last night. Mr. Oliver had a vein of humor running through his remarks that helped hold the interest of his audience. In his Sunday school he had nine when he opened it and never had more than fourteen. Mr. Oliver said that he never attempted to preach Presbyterianism. He couldn't. His congregation was a mixture of four Baptists, six Methodists, two Russians, three Catholics and a few Lutherans and Episcopalians. He had about one Presbyterian. The English church minister came 53 miles to hold communion service and he had but one communicant. The Methodist minister came over a hundred miles to hold service. Mr. Oliver is a strong admirer of the great West.

SKIN AND BLOOD PURIFICATION

Cuticura Soap, Ointment

Cleanse the Skin, Scalp
and Blood,

Of Torturing, Disfiguring Humours with Loss of Hair

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS

Thousands of the world's best people have found instant relief and speedy cure by the use of Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills in the most torturing and disfiguring of itching, burning and scaly humors, eczemas, rashes, itch-ings and inflammations.

Thousands of tired, fretted mothers,
of skin-tortured and disfigured babies,
of all ages and conditions, have certified to almost miraculous cures by the Cuticura remedies, when the best medical skill had failed to relieve, much less cure.

Cuticura Treatment is local and constitutional—complete and perfect, pure, sweet and wholesome. Bathe the affected surfaces with Cuticura Soap and hot water to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle, dry without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take Cuticura Resolvent Pills to cool and cleanse the blood, and put every function in a state of healthy activity.

More great cures of simple, scrofulous and hereditary humors are daily made by Cuticura remedies than by all other blood and skin remedies combined, a single set being often sufficient to cure the most distressing cases when all else fails.

ECONOMICAL INSURANCE

Munyon's Cold Cure Makes Good Life Insurance.

IT PREVENTS

Grippe, Bronchitis, Pneumonia and Other Diseases Having Their Origin in Colds.

I regard my Cold Cure as being better than a life insurance policy. How often we hear the statement following the loss of a precious life "that it was only a simple cold at first."
Did you ever stop to consider, though, that a cold is the beginning of most diseases? It is the starting-point for pneumonia, rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, kidney troubles and numerous other diseases. Spread of a cold and Killed By a Train.

Huntsville, Sept. 23.—Miles Blundell, a farmer, 60 years of age, who resided in Stisted Township, was struck and killed by an express train at Brenner's crossing Wednesday night. His daughter, a young lady of about 20 years, was with him in the buggy, and is so seriously injured that there is but slight hope of her recovery.

WHAT WILL MAKE US CRAZY

Here are the causes which Dr. Jas.
P. Lynch says will make all civilized men insane in 70 years:

Drink, the use of drugs, the mad race for gain, the worship of the dollar, the neglect of religion, the constant over-exertion of physical endurance, mental gluttony, the lost art of the total relaxation of mind and body, the high nervous tension of life, and the present condition of woman as wage earner and mother.

"The society woman and the working woman both live a strenuous life of constant exhaustion. The gay life of pleasure of the one woman and the drudgery of the other are continuously decreasing their nervous strength and energy, and when brain-fagged and physically exhausted they marry they become the mothers of physical starvelings, who develop into men and women into the burdens of life, who, in their turn, live in the manner of their parents, weaker and even less able to stand the nervous tension of work and dissipation. These people are often predisposed to insanity and nervous diseases, while often the result is degeneration and imbecility."

"When men make it possible for women to return to their proper place of home and motherhood, and they can cease their pitiful struggle for existence, leaving the obtaining of a livelihood to the men of the family—then the conditions that produce insanity will diminish."

"Among the foreign laborers, bad whiskey and beer cause more insanity than do anything else. The reason is that the drink is 'doctored' with cocculus indicus or 'fish berry', that is used by the Chinese in catching fish."

"In other words, drugs and whiskey combined are a good combination upon which to build a lunatic."

NEW STORIES OF THE IRON DUKE

A recent volume of personal reminiscences of the Duke of Wellington written by the Earl of Ellesmere and edited by his daughter Alice, Countess of Stafford, gives some new and entertaining tales of the Iron Duke. We are told here that the Duke considered Hannibal far and away the greatest soldier on record. Of his own antagonists he spoke of Massena as the most dangerous. Scarcely he thought the best strategist, but "very defective and irresolute in actual collision." It is a curious fact that the Duke never —except once by accident—read anything bearing on his own military career. "He said," writes Lord Ellesmere, "that he would merely tempt and provoke him to comments which he could not make without offence to living men. Before I knew this I once asked him for his opinion on a passage in Napier, with whose work
I took it for granted he was familiar.
He positively refused to read even an extract." That the Duke kept himself, as well as his troops, under Spartan discipline, there can be no doubt. For three years in India he lived on little but rice; and his worst outbreak was when, on arriving at Dover in 1814, after six years' absence abroad, the first order he gave at the Ship Inn was for
"an unlimited supply of buttered toast."

An Enemy in the House

NO ONE would wish to face the midnight robber with revolver and mask and dark lantern.
As he stands here he has the occupant of the room at his mercy. You would give up all your ready cash, your watch and your jewelry to his demands.

There are enemies in the human body as dangerous as the dreaded burglar. These are neglected, weak, overworked and clogged kidneys. They wear the mask of concealed risks. They carry the lantern of discovery into every part of the body, and the pistol of poison which will kill if it is not prevented. Kidney troubles cause many other troubles, among them being the very serious ones of rheumatism, neuralgia, and Bright's Disease. Do not let the robber enter. Lock your doors, using Bu-Ju as the bolt which will shut out the powerful enemy to health.

Bu-Ju, The Kidney Pill, is the sovereign regulator and tonic for the kidneys. It keeps healthy kidneys well and restores weak kidneys to health. It cures those diseases which arise from defective kidney action. A trial will convince any sufferer.

STRICTURES Cured To Stay Cured

Strictures, no matter where located, are apt to involve the surrounding structures. If neglected or improperly treated, urethral stricture will produce distressing symptoms. Cutting, stretching and tearing are the old barbarous methods of treating this disease. The strictly modern and original methods employed by us are free from the horrors of surgery and are absolutely safe and harmless. The abnormal structure is dissolved and leaves the channel free and clear. All unpleasant discharges cease, any irritation or burning sensation surrounding organs are strengthened and the bliss of manhood returns. Our ABSORPTIVE TREATMENT will positively

PAIN ACROSS THE STOMACH

Can Always be Relieved by a Few Doses of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

"I could not take the simplest food without a pain across my stomach." That was the miserable condition Marie Ann Bujold, of Maria Cap, Bonaventure County, Que., was in. Thousands of Canadians could sympathize with her. For they know just how miserable she was. They are that way themselves. But listen to the rest of Miss Bujold's experience:

"I finally consulted the doctors, but they did me no good. Then an advertisement led me to try Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. One box completely cured me."

No one can appreciate the amount of condensed happiness contained in a box of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets till they have suffered as Marie Ann Bujold did, and found the relief that came to her. That relief can always be found in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

STYLES OF THE DAY.

A Notre and Taffeta Directoire Gown-Attractive Light Wraps.

Pearl gray robe, with steel gray taffeta lace and Irish crochet lace, furnishes the material for the very chic gown shown in the cut. The skirt is circular, greatly flared below the hips. The directoire coat has a fitted back and shows a lace vest that falls loose over the girdle. The mousquetaire undersleeves are of lace over chiffon, with deep wrist ruffles. Pale blue taffeta lines the vestee, and cut steel buttons add their distinctive touch. The picture hat is of gray chip with Tyrolean crown, pale gray ostrich plumes and a chiffon scarf.

GOWN AND COAT IN SILK AND LACE.

The second figure shows a carriage coat of silver gray shantung pongee and tinted gray ecru lace. The back and front are shirred for six inches below a shallow yoke and seamed under arm and at the back. Shirred liberty satin ribbon in self tone trims the coat. The pearl gray chip hat is trimmed with American Beauty roses and velvet ribbon.

Some slender, pretty women are wearing to great advantage shoulder capes drawn across their shoulders rather than fitting over them, and often are they most becoming when trimmed with several cross rows of ruchings, three or four usually. Lace, ribbon, plinked out soft silks or mouselines are used in these ruchings, sometimes matching the capes, sometimes in contrast with all white capes. They have a pretty Romney effect with bunched up ends over the bust or else permitting the ends to hang in a long stole effect.-Vogue.

To Can Tomatoes.

Have a large kettle of rapidly boiling water on the stove. Wipe the tomatoes, fill a wire basket with them and plunge it into the boiling water until the skins begin to crack. Then plunge into cold water and remove the skins and the hard part under the stem. Mash thoroughly and let them boil quickly until soft, but not enough to evaporate all the liquid. Then season as for the table; to every quart allow one teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of pepper and half a cup of sugar. Cook five minutes longer, then fill the jars almost full. Have ready some butter, melted, strained and hot, in the proportion of one tablespoonful to every jar. Fill to brim with hot butter and seal at once.

Whole Tomatoes For Winter.-Fill a large stone jar with ripe and sound whole tomatoes, adding a few cloves and a sprinkling of sugar between each layer. Cover well with one-half cold vinegar and one-half water. Place a piece of thick flannel over the jars, letting it fall well down into the vinegar, then tie down with a cover of brown paper. This will keep all winter and is not harmed even if the flannel collects mold.

A Toothsome Pudding.

Cut the whole kernels from the cobs of corn and chop very finely. For a family of six allow two cupfuls of corn, six eggs, one and a half cupfuls of milk, one teaspoonful salt, one-half white pepper, one cupful stale bread-crumbs. Mix all together except the whites of the eggs. Beat these stiff and add last. Pour into a buttered mold, set in a pan of cold water and bake in moderate oven for thirty minutes or until the center is firm. Then unmold quickly on to a hot plate and serve with butter and pulverized sugar.

Sweet Apple Pickles.

Select smooth apples below medium size and have them uniform. Peel carefully and leave the stems on. Allow two quarts of vinegar, four pounds of light brown sugar, one ounce each of ground cinnamon and cloves. Tie the spice in little cheese-cloth bags and some sticks of whole cinnamon. When scalding hot put in enough apples to cook well. When they can be easily pierced with a broom straw skim out in a stone jar and cook the other apples. Pour the hot vinegar over the pickles, turn an inverted plate or saucer over the jar and tie up securely with white muslin.

A WONDERFUL WATCH.

M. Leroy, a Parisian clockmaker, has just achieved a triumph in watches. He has been at work since 1879 upon a chronometer which he has just completed. It contains 975 pieces, and has cost $4,000. On the case are the signs of the Zodiac, and on the main dial, besides hours, minutes and seconds, are numerous computations of time in years, months and days, the phases and age of the moon, the seasons, solstices, and equinoxes, and various time records. Then there are large and small gongs, and a little carillon of three notes for sounding purposes. On the lesser minute dial are 226 stars of the Boreal and 200 of the Southern hemisphere, times at 125 different cities of the world, times of sunrise and sunset, and a thermometer, a hydrometer, and a barometer.

THE SMALL-POX QUESTION.

Any intelligent physician will admit that you don't catch small-pox because someone else has it, but because your condition favors it. Low vitality always encourages sickness, and at this season especially, everyone should take Ferrozone, which destroys disease germs and makes the system so strong and healthy that sickness can't exist. Ferrozone is a vitalizing tonic that makes rich, red blood, builds up the nerves, cures nervousness and drives away tired, languid feelings. To get strong and keep strong use Ferrozone; it assures health and costs but 50c. at all druggists.

CHOOSING WIVES

Herbert Spencer, in "An Autobiography," tells of a gentleman who, having adopted a boy with a view to educating him after a system of his own, found that he had underestimated the magnitude of the undertaking. He therefore cast about for a wife, whom he gave clearly to understand that his principal reason for marriage was to secure a fit person to rear the boy.

A poetical-minded literary man, hailing from North Dakota, not long since married a lady, who keeps a small hotel in the Latin quarter of Paris. This young man, who for 11 years had paid not a single sou for board or lodging, was at length taken severely to task by his long-suffering hostess, who threatened summary ejection. Such a cold prospect was little to his liking, so he proposed to cancel his bill by marriage. The lady was willing, and the twain were made one.

Weight was taken into consideration in the wooing of Miss Plumb, a fair and fat damsel of Huntington, Connecticut, whose father promised to present any eligible youth who should be willing to take her for wife $1 for every pound of her avoirdupois. Upon ascertaining that the lady's weight was 400 pounds, a Mr. Harang promptly closed with the offer, and shortly afterwards led his substantial bride to the altar.

A gentleman residing in one of the southern suburbs of the Metropolis, who is an ardent devotee of philately, met some while since a fellow collector in a lady, whose album contained certain rare specimens he much coveted. To obtain them he suggested exchange, purchase-in vain. At last, in desperation, he made an offer of his hand. It was accepted, and the lady and her stamps passed into his possession.

This strange courtship recalls that of John Henry Maedler, the astronomer, who died at Hanover in 1874. One day this savant, whose pet study was the moon, encountered a fellow-enthusiast in the person of Frau Witte, the wife of a State Councilor who owned a wonderful model of his favorite luminary, which she herself had fashioned out of wax.

To gain possession of this globe was Maedler's sole aim, and as the worthy councillor being still alive, he could not espouse the lady, he paid court to her daughter, Miss Ma, to whom, in the natural course of events, the coveted model would descend. All turned out to his satisfaction. He married the daughter, and on Frau Witte's death the marvellous globe came into his keeping.

Though a bitter tongue does not generally recommend a wife, it did so lately in the case of a rich Yorkshire man who for some years had been pestered by the importunate assiduity of a horde of poor relations. Failing to keep these at a distance he, as a last resort, took to himself for wife a common-speech spinster, whose venomous speech and uncertain temper had the desired effect of clearing his house of unwelcome legacy-hunters.

That silence is golden was clearly the opinion of a French lawyer who, two years back, was smitten with the enforced taciturnity of a lady whom he sought for better or worse. Unfortunately it was for worse, for if his wife was dumb she had a temper so violent as to drive him to despair, and ultimately into the arms of a very garrulous dame with whom he eloped.

The late Augustus Hare, in "The Story of My Life," vouches for the truth of the following extraordinary story. A certain lady, the unfortunate possessor of a cork leg, was wooed and won. One day soon after the marriage she had the curiosity, during her husband's temporary absence, to open a wardrobe that he had always kept religiously fastened, and found therein, to her horror, two wooden legs, each labelled with the name of a lady, carefully stowed away on one of the shelves.

Agghast with fear she hastened to the house of some mutual acquaintances, to whom she confided her gruesome discovery, only to be assured that, although the false limbs were those of her husband's former wives, there was no cause for alarm. Her husband, the friends explained, had originally wedded a one-legged lady, and so happy had been the marriage that on her death he had vowed never to mate again, save with a wife similarly situated.

A short while afterwards he met a lady whom, as she fulfilled the requisite stipulation, he courted and won. His second marriage, which turned out even more felicitous than his first venture, had caused him, on his beloved partner's decease, to renew his former vow, the outcome of which had resulted in his present

CANTERBURY IN WRECK

Party Was Shaken Up But None of Them Were Injured.

Special Train Crashed Into Vagrant Engine While Going 60 Miles An Hour Near East Brookfield, Mass.—Archbishop's Engine Struck the Other One With a Terrible Crash and Demolished It—Four Hours Delay.

East Brookfield, Mass., Sept. 24.—A special train conveying the Archbishop of Canterbury from Bar Harbor, Maine, to Washington, was wrecked on the Boston and Albany Division of the New York Central Railroad, near the station here, yesterday morning. The Archbishop was not injured, although considerably shaken up. J. Pierpont Morgan of New York, who was also on the train accompanying the Archbishop, was also shaken up but not hurt.

The special, running at the rate of 60 miles an hour, was just passing the station when a detached locomotive, which had been drawing a train on the North Brookfield branch, ran on to the main line. The engineer of the special sighted a danger signal, but owing to the high speed of the train and the slippery rails due to the mist of early morning he found it impossible to more than slightly reduce the speed of his locomotive. The engine of the branch engine heard the on-rush of the special, but he had not time to move out of the way.

Terrible Crash.
The Archbishop's train struck the North Brookfield engine with a terrible crash and demolished it. The locomotive of the special was thrown from the rails and landed across the eastbound track near the wreck of the North Brookfield engine. The cars did not leave the rails.

Rev. J. Ellison, the Archbishop's secretary, answered for those in the Archbishop's private car, including Mrs. Davidson, that no one was injured. With the Archbishop, besides Mrs. Davidson and Mr. Morgan, were Rev. Hyla Holden and Rev. J. Ellison and attendants. It was rumored that a maid was hurt, but her injuries were not held to be serious. Traffic on the road was blocked for some time.

The Archbishop of Canterbury's special train, with a new engine, resumed its trip to Washington just before 10 o'clock.

Canterbury At Albany.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 24.—His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury arrived here at 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon, four hours later than the time he was expected. After spending an hour here, the English Primate and his party left over the West Shore Railroad for Washington.

NINE CHILDREN DIE.

Outhouse of a School Turned Into a Vault.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 24.—During the morning recess yesterday of the public school, a building, containing about 20 miles north of this city, a number of children lost their lives. When school recessed there was a playful rush into the out-house, which gave way, precipitating about 20 children into the vault. Nine dead bodies have been recovered. After nine dead bodies had been recovered, and 12 children had been rescued alive, the vault was thoroughly dredged and drenched, the rescuers abandoned the search. Of the twelve who were rescued covered with the filth of the vault, half of them will die of poisoning. Several of the rescued have limbs broken.

Train Hit Dynamite.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 24.—A wagon loaded with 19 cases of dynamite was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio fast freight train at a road crossing at North Branch, W. Va., near here, yesterday, and an explosion ensued. The engine and nine cars were wrecked, and the track torn up for a distance of one hundred feet. Two men were killed, and several others injured, two seriously. Several residences in the neighborhood were demolished, no building for a considerable distance escaping damage.

Drove to His Death.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—Regardless of the warning cries of the watchman and a spectator, young Marcus Perryman, of 44 St. Clarens avenue, drove to his death at the Dunn avenue railway crossing yesterday afternoon. The victim was the 16-year-old son of T. Perryman, grocer, and has for the past month been delivery boy for James N. Caesar, grocer, 1410 West Queen street. As the front wheels of the light wagon touched the rails the train was upon it. The young fellow realized his position and with a shriek leaped toward the engine, vainly throwing up his arms, as though to ward off a blow. The boy, with his skull fractured, and right arm broken, lay limply on the ledge of the cow-catcher, and in this position was carried to the South Parkdale Station. In less than 15 minutes the victim was dead.

A Trolley Accident.

Toronto, Sept. 22.—The sudden grasp of a fellow passenger upon his arm caused Henry J. Hummel, 30 Foxley street, to lose his balance and fall over the back platform rail of a crowded street car last night. Hummel fell under the trailer and the axle striking his back, forced him along the pavement for a considerable distance before the car could be stopped. It was found that the left hip was fractured and that one of his ribs was broken. There were other internal injuries that render Hummel's condition critical. He was taken to his home in the police ambulance. Hummel has only been out from England for a short time and has a wife and family.

Killed By a Ton of Coal.

Port Arthur, Sept. 24.—Thursday night shortly after eight, while the last of the Midland King's cargo of coal was being taken from the hold at the C.P.R. coal docks, Fort William, about a ton of coal dropped from the top of the derrick, striking full upon the head of Mitro Gregorinsky, killing him instantly.

Peculiar Mill Accident.

Woodstock, Sept. 24.—An accident occurred at the saw mill owned by F. C. Avery of Norwich, Thursday. The governor on the engine driving the machinery of the mill refused to work and in an instant the fly wheel of the engine gained an unusual rate of speed, increasing the momentum of the machines with such force that cog wheels and shafts were smashed, and the pieces flew in all directions. Parts of the iron work twenty pounds in weight were driven through the roof of the building, and carried many feet. Blocks of iron were thrown as far as the Swartz Hotel, 200 feet distant.

Fireman Injured.

Toronto, Sept. 24.—Falling glass at a fire in the Gooderham & Worts building, Church and Front streets, yesterday, injured several firemen. Foreman Sweatnam of Bay street chemical, while descending a ladder, was struck on the head and sustained a scalp wound necessitating six stitches. Fireman Deasley of aerial No. 2 had one of his fingers painfully cut, part of the knuckle bone being cut away, and Fireman Dixon of the same truck had his arm cut, while several others received minor cuts.

Blew Out the Gas.

Guelph, Sept. 24.—About half-past one yesterday afternoon it was found that Thomas Crane, a farmer, of Puslinch township, about 25 years of age, had been asphyxiated in the Commercial Hotel. He blew out the gas.

Only An Accident.

Huntsville, Sept. 24.—At the inquest held on the body of Miles Blundell, who was killed at the railway crossing, near Huntsville, on the 20th inst., the verdict of the jury was that the deceased came to his death by being struck by a G. T. R. engine attached to an express train. No blame is attached to the Grand Trunk Railway Company or any of its employees.

MAY CALL 10,000 OUT.

Mechanics, Allied Mechanics and Blacksmiths of C.P.R. Assembled.

Winnipeg, Sept. 24.—The whole question of increases in wages to mechanics employed on the western line of the C.P.R. seems to have reached a crisis. In addition to the ultimatum presented by the machinists Thursday morning to the company, the allied mechanics and the blacksmiths have taken a similar stand and notified the Canadian Pacific Railroad that unless some definite result is reached in their negotiations by this morning at twelve o'clock, they will go out on strike. There are about 10,000 men altogether involved in the agitation.

Took Trays of Diamond Rings.

Ottawa, Sept. 24.—A McMillan's jewelry establishment on Sparks street was robbed Thursday of $2,000 worth of diamond rings, pendants, etc. The firm believes that the theft was perpetrated while one of the clerks left the diamond counter to get a purse out of the window. The enterprising thief lifted the diamond tray out of the show case, and, after settling for the purse, walked off with both the purse and gems. The fifty diamond rings stolen were all engraved with the firm's name, and the police are on the lookout for a man about 40 years old, five feet eight inches in height, of sandy complexion, and clean shaven, as the suspected thief.

He was nominated last winter.

The sum of $108 was awarded to Albert Davis, in whose wagon Mr. Hockley was driving when the train killed him.

Laid Mince At Winnipeg.

FIGHT SOON AT MUKDEN

Four Japanese Armies Now Advancing on the City.

Military and Chinese Differ As to the Date of the Battle—Japs Moving Towards Fu Pass, Where, If They Gain a Position, They Will Render Kuropatkin's Position at Mukden Insecure—Russians Left 19 Dead.

Mukden, Sept. 24.—Military authorities here continue to express the belief that a battle will be fought near Mukden within a few days, but, on the other hand, the Chinese profess confidence that active hostilities are remote. The war balloon was sent up yesterday southeast of Mukden, which seems to indicate that the Japanese are expected to appear in that direction.

New Japs Move.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—A dispatch received here yesterday from Mukden gives details of the Japanese positions as follows:

Gen. Kuroki has concentrated one army, with Bentapiutze and Bensiuh as its radius, and his advance is pushing forward along the road leading to Fushin and Fu Pass. The advance forces of the other two armies occupy the Yentai Mines, the Village of Yentai and Sandun.

The front of the three armies is protected by an outpost screen which Chinese are not allowed to pass.

A small Japanese detachment is moving along the left bank of the Liao River in order to protect junks. The weather at Mukden is rainy and windy and cold has prematurely set in.

Nearing Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 24.—Gen. Sukharoff reports that the Japanese army is moving from Bentapiutze towards Fu Pass, six miles northeast of Mukden. The Hun River at this point is shallow and probably for this reason the locality has been selected by the Japanese for crossing. If the Japanese gain a foothold at Fu Pass, Gen. Kuropatkin's position at Mukden will be insecure as the Japanese will from thence be able to threaten the Russian line of communications. Fu Pass is only twenty miles north of Bentapiutze, but at the present rate of progress the Japanese will probably occupy it in four or five days in traversing it.

The Russian force south of Mukden is believed to consist of only one army corps, which is acting as a rear-guard and is not intended to offer a serious resistance to the Japanese advance.

When Russians Lost 19.

Tokio, Sept. 24.—An official telegram reports that fights have taken place at the towns of Tieling and Santungku, sixty miles northeast of Liaoyang, on Sept. 20. The patch says:

"Our detachment advanced to Heinichang on Sept. 20 and defeated the enemy, consisting of a party of infantry, some of a machine gun stationed at Liaoyang, and a battalion of infantry, six quick-firing guns at Tieling. The Russians, who were driven off to the northward, left some spoils. Our losses were slight."

Final Struggle at Port Arthur.

Paris, Sept. 24.—The Matin's Petersburg correspondent telegraphs as follows: Telegrams, of which general staff have as yet no knowledge, reached the Emperor at 10 o'clock this morning. I can affirm that they concern Port Arthur, regarding which place the greatest anxiety prevails at court. The Japanese are now engaged in a general assault, which is more furious than predecessors, attacking the town from three sides simultaneously, and employing their whole forces, being determined to finish the business. Russian mines blew up whole battalions. General Fock especially distinguished himself, directing the fire from the wall, which the Japanese reached after indescribable massacre.

The Jap Fleets Aiding.

The whole of Admiral Togo's and Vice-Admiral Kamimura's squadrons are aiding the struggle, which, it is feared here, will be final. The besieged forces are fighting as in a furnace. A perfect storm of shells is falling on the town, port and fortress, from the whole hill and roadstead. General Stoessel is going from fort to fort encouraging the men.

Boulder on the Track.

Brookville, Sept. 24.—What looks like a desperate attempt to wreck the B. W. & N. Express was perpetrated Thursday but a short distance from the town and at the most dangerous spot on the whole road. The afternoon express which left here at 4.10 was running slowly over the first trestle when Engineer John R. Graham noticed a huge rock lying in the middle of the track between the first and second trestles. The train was brought to a standstill before the boulder was reached. It weighed between 200 and 300 pounds.

A WINGLESS BIRD.

Far away on the other side of the world, in New Zealand, there is a most curious species of bird, which has neither wings nor a tail. There are very few of these strange creatures left, even on their native island, but their cousins, the kiwis, are still numerous in Australia. The kiwi gets its name from the peculiar cry, which sounds like "ki-wi, ki-wi." The learned name of this bird is apteryx. It has feathers that resemble coarse hairs, and has a long bill, by which it secures its food easily. It lives on insects and worms, which it catches on the ground in its night rambles, for the bird only goes abroad at night and hides during the day. In size it is about as large as a goose, the feathers on its head being short, but those on the body increasing in length. Altogether, it is a queer-looking creature, and as it has so little means of defending itself, it falls an easy prey to larger and stronger beasts.

THE JOKER TRAPPED.

A clerk in a Chestnut street drug store had been sent to a nearby bank to get a $100 bill changed. He came out of the bank with a bunch of fives and tens in his hand, and was recounting the money as he walked up the crowded street. A friend coming toward him thought to have a little fun with the money-laden clerk, and just as he got alongside of him, the friend grabbed at the crisp bank notes in the drug clerk's hands. It might have been that the clerk was thinking what he would do if someone tried to rob him. At any rate the instant he felt a pull at the bills in his left hand his right shot upward and caught the joking friend under the chin. When the two faced each other there were, of course, profuse apologies, but it is not likely that the young man with a badly shaken jaw will try and grab bank notes from another fellow on the street, even in fun. — Philadelphia Press.

Venturesome Alpine Climbers

Curious and Terrible Accidents During the Season—English Tourists the Most Daring.

Considering the vast number of amateur climbers on the Alps this season the number of fatal accidents is small, but in comparison with previous years it is far above the average, so says a Geneva correspondent to the London Express. The mountains have been in excellent climbing condition, all things considered, but owing to the intense heat the dangers of avalanches, falling stones, bursting water "pockets" and half-melted, treacherous snow bridges have been very much increased, and in every instance when accidents from these causes have occurred they have been due to climbers venturing without guides.

English climbers, and particularly English ladies, have been well to the fore this year, and have accomplished some record ascents. Two well-known lady Alpinists, the Misses Rhoda and Charlotte Hindley, of London, besides being the first persons to make the ascent of Monte Rosa this season, climbed in eight days, with only one or two days' interval, the Matterhorn and seven other great peaks, ascending in that period at least 125,000 feet, or eight times the height of Mont Blanc.

Another fine piece of record Alpinism was achieved by that intrepid English mountaineer, Mr. Ryan, at Chamonix, in July, when in five days he climbed to seven of the most inaccessible summits, whose aggregate height is 84,000 feet, or more than five times the height of Mont Blanc. Some splendid climbing has also been done on the Mont Blanc range by another Englishman, Mr. Stute, and in the Bernese Oberland ranges by G. Hasler.

In the Engadine some very bold and clever climbing has been done by Mrs. Thomson, of Bournemouth, and this lady, recently, with two guides, succeeded in conquering the dangerous Gussfeldtsattel, being the first woman to accomplish this feat.

The first ascent of the Weisshorn from Zinal to Zermatt by the passage of the cords has just been accomplished by an Englishman, Mr. Lloyd, with Felix Abt, of Theytaz, of Zinal, as guides. But though undoubtedly the best climbers hail from Great Britain, it is none the less true that some of the more rash and reckless come from the same source. The casual young man or woman who starts in Switzerland to ascend the Weisshorn, or Mount Blanc, clad in patent leather shoes and a light summer suit, with no other provision than a smart walking stick and a packet of cigarettes, is invariably British.

IN HIGH-HEELED SHOES.

Miss Mary Wilmot, an English lady who was visiting Chateau d'Oex, lost her life through climbing rocks in dainty high-heeled shoes. Miss Wilmot started with two Swiss companions, but one guide, to climb the Rochers de Paray in search of edelweiss. The party, after ascending some distance, lost their way, and while her companions descended to look for a safer path, Miss Wilmot attempted to reach a patch of edelweiss on a slope overhanging a precipice, where rocks crumbled beneath her feet, and, unable to gain secure footing, she slipped and fell on to a ledge fifty feet below, where her companions found her lifeless body.

Among minor accidents from the same causes are the cases of a young Englishman, Miss Nichols, who, rambling alone on the Chamondix Mer-de-Glace in soft cycling boots, fell into a crevasse, and was lucky enough to escape with a sprained ankle and a few cuts and bruises, and of Mr. Merridew, an Englishman, who while climbing Pilatus in his summer shoes slipped and fell some distance, but managed to arrest his fall and to land comparatively unhurt on the very brink of a sheer drop of 200 feet.

Next to the danger of climbing without guide comes the danger of making difficult ascents with amateur guides. Owing to this cause a party of four young German students from Geneva almost lost their lives on the Chamois a week ago. They were all inexperienced, and were being piloted by a young Swiss man of business from Geneva. They had reached a most dangerous portion of the ascent when a fierce storm came on, and in their endeavors to secure themselves to the face of the peak they dislodged a great flake of rock.

CLINGING LIKE FLIES.

Then they found that they could neither ascend nor descend without risking a fearful fall, and they were compelled to spend the night clinging like flies to ridges and cracks only a few inches wide, expecting every moment to fall from exhaustion. In the morning they were rescued by a party of climbers, who lowered ropes to them from above.

Many strange and curious accidents have happened lately on the Alps. Not long ago a guide named Charles Kohl confessed to having, with another guide, led M. Prady, a Swiss tourist, to a place where there were mountains, and to have there robbed him and thrown him over a precipice.

The account of this cruel and blooded assassination, which was published a few weeks back in the Swiss and English papers, led to a quaint misunderstanding, and almost to a fatal accident.

Professor Schuyler, of Chicago, traveling in Europe for his health, went from Chamonix with a guide to explore the Argeniere glacier. The professor did not understand French, and as he and his guide were skirting a dangerous crevasse the guide laid hold of his arm, and with gesticulations tried to explain that they must turn back, as they were on dangerous ground. The American, suddenly seized with the idea that the guide wished to rob him and fling him down a precipice, without hesitation struck out vigorously, and, having knocked down the stupid guide, rushed wildly in the direction of the valley. In his blind haste he fell into a crevasse, from which he was eventually rescued by his late guide and a party of French climbers to whom the guide had explained that a poor English tourist had just gone raving mad owing to the heat. The professor had a sprained ankle, and the guide a black eye, but after explanations, apologies and a liberal douceur, they parted the best of friends.

Another extraordinary accident, or, rather, fatal piece of madness, is reported from the St. Gervais-les-Bains, Flais, climbed some distance up in the pine woods above the village and lost their way. When they reached the head of a steep couloir, some 150 feet in depth, Mme. Flais decided to slide down the rocks, as being the easiest and quickest method of descending the valley.

DASHED UPON THE ROCKS.

Her husband appears to have made no effort to stop her, and, once started, she dashed downwards with fearful force until she was flung against the rocks at the bottom, where she was found with her skull fractured and her legs and arms broken. M. Flais lost his head, and flung himself down the couloir in a wild impulse to aid his wife. He also fell on the rocks, and was severely injured. His screams quickly brought assistance, and the two victims were carried down to the nearest hotel, where Mme. Flais died the same night. M. Flais is out of danger, but it is feared that his reason is permanently affected by the awful experience.

To make a difficult ascent with a guide strange to the locality is almost as foolish as to climb with no guide at all, and it was owing to this cause that Professor Demelius, the head of the Innsbruck university, and his Tyrolean guide, Joseph Tembel, lost their lives on the Gabelhorn, July. Though one of the best guides in the Tyrol, Tembel was ignorant of the Zermatt peaks, and this ignorance proved fatal.

Near the summit a huge block of stone, to which the climbers were clinging, gave way and dashed them into space. The Zermatt guides with much difficulty recovered the bodies, which were almost unrecognizable, both being most frightfully mutilated. When the body of Professor Demelius was found on the great Gabelhorn glacier, the upper part of the skull was missing, and only the nose and chin were distinguishable. The body was almost entirely naked, the clothes having been torn off by the jagged rocks during his fall.

During the week before last 25 persons were killed by accidents on the Alps: eleven in Switzerland, and fourteen in the Tyrol and Savoy. Besides these, several persons are missing, and twenty or more have met with serious but not fatal accidents.

THE LAND OF "PRETTY SOON."

I know a land where the streets are paved

With the things we meant to achieve;

It is walled with the money we meant to have saved,

And the pleasures for which we grieve.

The kind words unspoken, the promises broken,

And many a coveted boon,

Are stowed away in that land somewhere—

The land of "Pretty Soon."

There are uncut jewels of possible fame,

Lying about in the dust,

And many a noble and lofty aim

Covered with mould and rust.

And oh, this place, while it seems so near,

Is further away than the moon!

Though our purpose is fair, yet we never get there—

The land of "Pretty Soon."

It is further than noon than it is at dawn

Further at night than at noon:

Oh! let us beware of that land down there—

The land of "Pretty Soon."

Human affection is the foundation of the idea of immortality: love was the first to speak that word.

Good Bets Made by Mistake

It Pays to be Obliging

New York Sun.

"When the horses Toupee and Teepee ran in the same race a while ago I paid a bookmaker. 'I had to turn my whole sheet on the race over to the ring's board of arbitration when the numbers were hung out showing that both of them had got into the money. The similarity in the names of the horses caused the confusion.' 'Even before the field went to the post my sheet looked like a Chinese political manifesto, for about three quarters of the bettors on the race got their bets down on the wrong one and came ramping back to my stool and asked me to switch their badge numbers and amounts. Teepee to Toupee or from Toupee to Teepee.' 'When I'm on the block I'll never too busy figuring out my percentage to take a bet off my sheet, or transfer one, when I'm civilly requested to. It took me a long while to annex the lesson unto myself. It wasn't until I had a long line of past performances behind me to prove it that I got wise to the peculiar fact that most of the bets people want to have wiped off are winning bets.' 'An incident that helped to teach me that happened when I was down in Hot Springs one winter a few years ago. One of the plungers down there at the time was sick in bed and playing them at the rooms through a commissioner. 'One day he sent his commissioner over to the big store poolroom to get $2000 down on a horse scheduled to go in a New Orleans race. The commissioner became twisted on his way to the poolroom and got the $2000 down on another horse in the same race with a somewhat similar name, an 8 to 1 shot. 'When the commissioner hustled back to the sick room of his principal with the ticket, the plunger threw whatever came handy at the commissioner's head, and ordered him to romp back to the poolroom proprietor and request him to rectify the mistake by taking the $2000 off the 8 to 1 shot and putting the coin on the other one in the race that the plunger had doped out to win. 'The commissioner, in a panic, skated back to the poolroom and told his little tale of grief to the poolroom proprietor. The poolroom man gave the commissioner the goat. 'Not on your watch and chain,' he said flatly. 'Each and every bet made beneath this bamboo tree stands as it's made. What d'ye think I am, a moving picture? To the first! 'But' pleaded the hard-luck commissioner, 'I'll lose my job with his nob if you don't make this switch me.' 'Never mind the out-in-the-snow music on the 3 string,' heartlessly replied the poolroom man. 'When d'ye think I began to take money away from myself? That 6 to 5 nursing that your man wants to play is going to sit in all by his little solitude. Please g'way an' let me sleep.' 'The commissioner didn't dare to go back to his principal's sickroom and tell him that the poolroom man had refused to fix up the mistake, but hung around the poolroom, gnawing his nails, until the result of the race was called off. Then he gave a correct imitation of a Castilian castanet cancan and raced back to the sickroom with a $16,000 winning in his Plymouth Rocks. 'The 8 to 1 thing on which he had put the $2000 by mistake came home in a bored and weary jog, and the Hot Springs players who were next to the inside of the incident journeyed to the poolroom man on the slack wire of their kidding for the remainder of the season. 'I put a lot of little incidents of that kind that come under my observation away for future reference, and I was money in when I harked back to them in actual practice as a layer myself. When that Pass Book hog-slaughtering went through I saved myself the cussin' little matter of $3000 by refraining from swelling up when asked to rub a bet off my sheet. 'I had just finished putting up the figures on that race when an excited little man banged his way through the crowd around my stool, stuck a $20 bill within a couple of inches of my nose, and yelled— 'Pass Book, straight.' 'I had 150 to 1 chalked up against Pass Book, so I gave the little man $3000 to $20 and looked upon the double sawbuck as just about right. Continued On Page 10.

GROWING POWER OF WOMEN.

This international assemblage of women brings a new power into world politics. Though as yet not fully recognized as a political force, even in their respective countries, they are that force none the less, and make it felt in more ways than one. The "influence" of women is not denied; indeed it is urged by those who would deny them any more direct expression; but this influence is by no means wholly good. While altogether personal in her activities, limited in ambition and responsibility to the domestic circle exclusively, the woman could bring to public affairs only a narrow and reactionary policy; but these women of to-day—learning by personal experience the conditions of the outside world, learning by travel and contact the great lesson of our age, the unity of social life—bring to the consideration of our common affairs a new spirit and a new power. So long as the mothers of the world give to their children only the intensely personal sentiments of the primitive home, no social advance of the father can wholly counteract their heavy influence. He, growing and broadening in an ever wider contact with humanity, may transmit to the child the racial advance; but she, in her immovable position, steadily re-creates the infant mind with our oldest prejudices and strengthens anew that ancient egotism which is the strongest barrier to social progress. In this new life, this broad humanitarian work, we are building a new motherhood of immense advantage to the world. It is not only in direct physical heredity that this is felt—for our young girls are naturally not the ones who form international councils—but in the broader social heredity, which works far more rapidly. —Charlotte Perkins Gilman in the Booklovers' Magazine.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24.
A. B. AYLESWORTH, K. O.

While Mr. Aylesworth sat in England as one of the judges on the Alaska Boundary Arbitration his reported indiscreet talk to the press led Goldwin Smith to intimate that it required all his professions of loyalty in an after-dinner speech in Toronto to undo the harm which his previous talk and his attack upon the Lord Chief Justice had occasioned. The Chief Justice in return smiled and entertained Mr. Aylesworth at dinner, and the London Times merely remarked that Mr. Aylesworth's dissenting remarks would be more commendable if they had been less controversial.

The Toronto Globe, on the strength of his previous talk while the case was being argued, treated us day after day with "smashing the empire" editorials; but the subsequent loyal utterances stunned that great Journal into silence, while the American press and people heard no more from Canada of the former charge that the American members of the Alaska Tribunal had prejudiced the case and were partisans. We heard nothing of the judges from the United States accepting a banquet from a party to the litigation, and we are proud to say that none of the other Canadian or English members of the court were guilty of that indiscretion. Perhaps it was necessary, as Goldwin Smith, in the Weekly Sun, suggested in Mr. Aylesworth's case, and perhaps the hope of the customary knightlyhood made it, in Aylesworth's opinion, expedient, but his course throughout is much to be regretted, and the thought of it may well be buried in oblivion.

It is feared, however, that the charity and benevolence of a Canadian people in that case has given to Mr. Aylesworth what is commonly called a "swelled head," and that he has taken the public forgiveness and courtesy for a license to abuse other privileges entrusted to him. He was counsel in the recent North Grey election trial, and during his cross-examination of Mr. A. W. Wright, a man of high character and good reputation, he got into a personal altercation with the witness in which the learned counsel came out second best. Apparently chagrined with the unexpected humiliation, Mr. Aylesworth during his argument, without pointing to a word of evidence that could reflect in the slightest degree upon Mr. Wright, classed that gentleman with two of the Buffalo rascals employed by "Cap." Sullivan for the Reform machine work in the three Norths. In truth, Mr. Wright's only act was to bring to light the conduct of Vance and Sullivan and the hired debauchers of the constituencies. The bad character of the villains hired by Mr. Aylesworth's employers could not be questioned, and that counsel did not think it beneath him to couple the name of an eminently respectable gentleman with the gang by whose criminal acts the Reform party profited.

We are not now concerned with Mr. Wright. That gentleman has shown himself to be quite capable of looking after his own honor. It is, however, time that lawyers, judges and the Law Society should understand that there is a limit to the patience and long suffering of the public. We acknowledge that the legal profession as a whole is a most honorable one, and that very few of its members abuse the privilege they possess by vile and abusive attacks upon a witness. Most of the judges will check counsel who so far forget themselves. The Law Society is said to have power to punish its members for much less injurious misconduct. A lawyer cannot under our law be prosecuted as a common slanderer for what he says in court, but this fact should put him on his honor and restrain him from bringing disgrace upon his profession and disrespect upon the administration of justice by hurling unwarrantable insinuations and vulgar abuse against a respectable and unoffending witness. It would be well for the legal profession and the benches and judges to take notice that when self respect or a regard for common decency will not induce a barrister to restrain his slanderous tongue they or some of them must punish the offending member or an appeal will be made to the higher court of public opinion to put a stop to such conduct as a few—we are glad to say a very few—have been guilty of. The limit of public endurance has been reached.—London Free Press.

The shabby treatment meted out to Hugh Clark, M. L. A., by the Liberal executive has won for him the sympathy and good will of the whole province. NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Kincaid Review.
One thing about the Minnie M.—she takes no stock in "lady politics." In behalf of Sutherland and Kennedy it ought to be noted that they are merely over-zealous in the cause of wise and progressive government.

We hear a good deal about "the Minnie M. charges," although the evidence shows clearly that everything on her was free.

The Globe may denounce the Sullivan as it pleases, but how does the organ account for their passion for righteous government?

How can a candidate who hands the conduct of his campaign over to strangers depose afterwards that he desired a fair election?

Really, the only redeeming feature the Globe can see in the Soo case is that all the plugging and personation and bribery were done in the cause of good government.

OUR DEPENDENCE ON BRITAIN'S NAVY.

Montreal Witness.
The report that a Russian warship is cruising off the coast of Vancouver island suggests the idea that our commander contemplates overhauling the Empress steamships of the Canadian Pacific Railway company on their way to Japan. As it is quite likely that these vessels would have in their cargoes consignments of goods rated as contraband of war by Russia, they would be rich prizes to send to Vladivostok. Such action would be a blow to the trade of Japan, but it would be a worse blow to the trade of Canada, and bring the question of contraband to an acute stage. The activity of the admiral commanding the British squadron on the North American Pacific station, on receipt of the news that a Russian cruiser was in the offing, would indicate that he intends to be on hand should a seizure be attempted. This brings the war close to our own doors, and shows how dependent the Dominion is on the Royal Navy for the protection of its commerce. Here we have a striking object lesson of our dependence, and of the necessity forced upon us for bearing our share in the defence of the empire, which, as this instance proves, is self-defence. If there were no British squadron at Esquimaux, the Russian cruiser could do as it liked, Canadian commerce might be swept off the Pacific, and we would be utterly powerless to assert our rights.

Tuberculosis a Bad Habit

Consumption Due to Laziness in Breathing, and the Disease Can Be Avoided.

Out in Colorado the other day a doctor told me this:
Tuberculosis is only a bad habit. It is a form of laziness.
There are various degrees of laziness, but consumption arises from a lazy habit of breathing. The individual does not use all of his lungs, and the cells not used collapse, the tuberculae find a nesting place and hatch, and gradually the disease spreads. With consumption there is always perfect nutrition, and mal-assimilation comes largely from the lack of exercise.

The germs of tuberculosis are in every individual—existence is a fight between the factions of life and death. Life is a matter of elimination. If you use all the lungs you have, every day, in the open air, even but for a short time, you may get killed in a railroad accident, but you will never die of consumption.

And then my Denver doctor told me this:
People who were born in Colorado, or who went there in childhood, occasionally die of consumption.
If a man, say in New York State, has incipient tuberculosis, and moves to Colorado and there continues the same mode of life he followed in the east, he will die of the disease as sure as fate, and in about the same time as he would had he remained at home.
And yet, many people who have consumption go to Colorado and get well. But those people not only change their geographical base, but they change their entire course of life as well. So let this be noted: Telegraph operators, clerks, bookkeepers, engravers, printers and all those who in New England lead sedentary lives, and are in danger of the Great White Plague, are in just as much danger in Denver, if they go into the same business as they followed before. The consumptive who go to Colorado and get well are those who go on the ranches and live out of doors.

Horseback riding shakes a man up so that the breath enters every corner of his lungs. Swing an axe, swing a broom, swing your arms and breathe deeply and slowly. It takes will, but exercise in the open air is the price of life.

The Denver doctor is right—consumption is a disease of the will. People in New England need not die of consumption if they will only get and exercise themselves.

And so thoroughly is this fact known that in the City of Denver the "lunger" gets very scant sympathy. Every store and office and factory is on guard against him.

"Are you here for your health?" And if the reply is "Yes," he is damned on the spot. No consumptive admits he has consumption, but most lungers are patent medicine fiends.

They seek a substitute for deep breathing and exercise. And they all die before they find it out. Nothing can be poured out of a bottle and taken with a spoon will take the place of the sawbuck.

The lunger in Colorado who is really wise will swear I faith he is out there to train for a prize-fight, or a long-distance pedestrian march and then by his daily life will carry out the idea. The version to the stricken person is a good thing—he ceases to talk about malady. And if he can be made to cease giving the wood-pile absent treatment, he will get well.

There is a law in Colorado making it a serious offense for anyone to employ a consumptive in a bakery, dairy, restaurant or hotel, or any other place where food is prepared or served. Customers instinctively boycott the concern that harbors the lungers, and so they fall prey to third class boarding houses who charge a first-class price, and get no one else but lungers, for everywhere he is shunned and scorned. He is a pariah and only last year a bill was introduced into the Colorado legislature requiring every consumptive to carry a bell suspended around his neck and ring it as the lever is compelled to cry, "Unclean, unclean!" Only bum doctors, undertakers and the men who keep the "lunger ranches" welcome the consumptive to Colorado—business men flee him as a pestilence.

This seems hard indeed; but if by a natural method of fastening forced to bring will to the cure himself. People live longer in New England than in Colorado, if they only hustle—and hustle out of doors.

Disinclination to stir is the damnation of the man with the so-called consumption taint. The trouble is in his brain, not his lungs.

The person who has will enough to clean out of doors the year around in Massachusetts will snip the growth of consumption in the bud.

Midnight suppers, steam heat, cushioned chairs, ease, and a lazy habit of life, are the things the tuberculosis love. All this doesn't sound sympathetic but it's God's truth.—The Philistine.

for dinner money and loose cigar change.
A few minutes later I heard a great wrangling between a man and a woman somewhere behind my stool, and I wheeled around to see what was coming off. The little man who had bet the $20 with me on the Pass Book joke, was being backed into a stanchion on the edge of the lawn by a big raw-boned woman, evidently his wife.

"She was several cubits taller than he was, and she looked as if she could demolish him with both hands tied behind her back. She was shaking a long fore-finger in his face and ordering under dire threats, to get the twenty-dollar bill off Pass Book, while he was feebly trying to convince her that Pass Book had a chance.

"Don't you dare to try to tell me such a thing you fat head!" she was saying to him. "The very idea of your trying to squander our installment money on such a sausage as Pass Book,—the very idea. You go to the man this instant and tell him that I want that $20 put on the horse that I told you to play, d'ye hear me?"

"The little man slunk over to my stool.

"Say old man—" he began, but I cut him off.

"It's all right, mate," said I to him. I heard her handling it out to you, and I'll fix you out. Give me your number and I'll send the bet. What's the one she told you to play?"

He named the horse—I forget which one of the crabs it was—and I had the change made on the sheet. The little man went away with his shoulders hunched forward, looking blue. "About four minutes later Pass Book had trotted home in front of his field, and I was just $3000 on the nice side because I hadn't got the weight lifter's vest on when the little man asked me to change that Pass Book bet."

"I was in the same car with the little man and his raw-boned wife on the trip from the track. She was jawing him at a great rate, and, what d'ye suppose she threw at him.

"If you was anything like a man at all, 'stead of a shrimp,' I heard her hiss at him. 'We'd have $3000 right this minute. If you wasn't a noddie-noddie you wouldn't ha' let me nor no other fool woman make you take off that Pass Book bet.'"

"Funny how people lay for my corns," remarked the barber. "I was standing in the market about an hour ago, when a woman came along with a thundering big basket filled with meat and stuff. And when she went to put the basket down so as to get into her pocketbook, of course she dropped it right on my tenderest toe. Great grief, but it hurt! IS YOUR DOCTOR BILL LARGE?

Best way to keep it small is not to call the doctor, but use Nerviline instead. For minor ailments like colds, coughs, chills, cramps, headache and stomach trouble Nerviline is just as good as any doctor. It breaks up a cold in one night, cures soreness in the chest, and for neuralgia, toothache and rheumatism you can't get anything half so good as Nerviline. The home of Nerviline for cramps, colic, and pain in the stomach extends far and wide. Good for everything a liniment can be good for and costs but 25c. for a large bottle.

Freddie promised and came back triumphantly.

"Was down every mornin' soon's any of them," said he in answer to her question.

"I'm so glad! Hope you'll keep it up."

"You won't let me?"

"Won't let you? Why not?"

"You see I just put my 'nighty' on and slept in my clothes, so's to be ready in the mornin'."

SOME SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Great Revival Within and of the Church
Are Pointed to—It Is a Self-Evident
Fact That the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ Is the Most Vital and Essential in the World To-day.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1904, by William Bailey, of Toronto, at the Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 18.—In the nature and habits of the birds the preacher finds a simile of the entrance into the church of a large accession of converts. The text is Isaiah lx. 8, "Who are these that fly as a cloud, and as the doves to their windows?"

An axiom is a self-evident fact. "It is," the lexicographers say, "a proposition whose truth is so obvious at first sight that no process of reasoning or demonstration can make it plainer." It is a golden truism coined in the "mint house of maxims" with the raised features of the Goddess of Truth stamped upon its side, even as the English shilling bears the profile of King Edward and the American silver dollar the outstretched wings of an eagle, as the Roman penny once bore the superscription and image of Caesar and a Grecian coin the features of Alexander the Great. It is an aphorism, an apothegm. It is as Hippocrates once said, "A succinct saying comprehending a complete statement." It is truth in a nutshell. It is a universe of analyses condensed in an epigram.

Hundreds of men are simply doing the same thing in trying to find the reasons for the phenomenon stated by shallow observers, that the church of Jesus Christ is losing its power over men. Long lists of reasons for this waning influence are cited, whereas the writers have only to open their eyes to discover that the church of Jesus Christ is not losing its power over men. The church of God is never so powerful as it is to-day. More strong men and strong women are bowing before its altars than ever before. More are the church's teachings respected by statesmen and in the homes and daily lives of our citizens than ever before. I have not time to go into argument to prove this assertion. I would not to-day do so if I had the time. Why? Because it is a self-evident fact. It is a self-evident fact that the church of the Lord Jesus Christ is the most vital and essential influence in the world to-day. It is a self-evident statement. All intelligent people who have looked boldly and impartially at the facts are ready to concede that the assertion is true.

But though the church of the Lord Jesus Christ is growing more and more powerful day by day, I do not believe that still greater triumphs are before it in the future. The victories already won are small compared with those which are yet to be won, when nations shall be born in a day. Josiah Strong recently wrote a book entitled, "The Next Great Awakening." I am not going to find my theme in the latest book of the famous author of "Our Country." I am going to look through the inspired spectacles of a prophet who lived nearly 3,000 years ago. Isaiah took the picture of the doves flying to their home coots in great clouds, the symbol of the church of the future gathering in its members. So I shall try to show that the "coming awakening of the church" is not only going to be a world-wide evangelistic movement, but also that the conquest of the world for Christ may be near—yes, very near—at hand.

In the first place, let me say that such a movement as this, foreseen by the prophet and prefigured under the symbol of a flight of doves, is in accord with the record of history. Again and again the church has been revivals which have brought into the church vast numbers at one time. Since the day of Pentecost, when 5,000 were converted under the preaching of the Apostle Peter, there have been such great movements. How many were won to the truth by the teaching of Luther? What vast multitudes were gathered under the preaching of a Wesley, a Whitefield.

a Finney and a Moody and of a "Forrey and a Chapman, a Munhall and a Harrison of the present day. We know that Peter the Hermit, clad, like John the Baptist, in untanned skins, walked through Europe, lifting high in his hands the crucifix until thousands and tens of thousands of devotees were ready, in 1096, to follow this enthusiastic ascetic to Palestine as the advance guard of the crusaders. We know that thousands upon thousands of Cromarty minors used to hang upon the words of John Wesley in the early mornings at 5 o'clock, before their day's work began. We know that no building was large enough to hold the crowds who wanted to hear Moody. Great halls had to be erected in Boston and New York and Chicago to hold the huge audiences. The Philadelphia depot on account of its great size had to be used in place of a church. Thousands upon thousands found Christ in the revivals of the seventeenth century under the preaching of the Puritans. Thousands upon thousands found Christ in the Methodist revivals of the eighteenth century. Thousands upon thousands found Christ in the first part of the nineteenth century, when Charles G. Finney had such power over sinners that a dying blasphemer said, "Don't let Charles G. Finney preach my funeral sermon, or he will preach my soul into heaven in spite of my own desires." But all these gospel triumphs of the past centuries are as nothing in numbers to the multitudes Isaiah saw crowding into the kingdom of Christ. Isaiah saw them coming, not by the hundreds or the thousands, but by the millions. "Who are these," cried he, "that fly as a cloud and as the doves to their windows?"

The selection of the figure of a flight of doves is significant. It is, above other things, a suggestion of immense multitude. But few people realize the marvelous numbers and propagating powers of the doves of olden times. Biberg, the ornithologist, estimated that if a common pair of domesticated pigeons hatched nine times a year—which number of hatchings is not extraordinary for an average pair of these birds—and if these pigeons laid two eggs at one time, and all the fledglings which were hatched should live and hatch in turn, that single pair of pigeons would produce in four years nearly fifteen thousand descendants. The fecundity of the dove is about as great as the reproductive powers of the English sparrow or the Australian rabbit. The most graphic description ever written of the innumerable multitudes of the doves was penned by Alexander Wilson, the naturalist. Statements made by this Scottish-American writer were endorsed by John Audubon. Among the ornithological authorities there can be no better indorsement than this: "Mr. Wilson wrote that down in Kentucky, in a place which migrating doves used to visit annually, their multitudes were so great that they literally destroyed whole forest regions. In this tract about which he wrote the branches of every tree were filled with dove nests wherever a nest could be built. In many trees over one hundred nests had been constructed. Above the trees the multitudes of the pigeons' wings were so great that their flapping wings sounded like the booming of a tornado. So great was the noise of their flapping wings that the horses of the farmers in that region often became unmanageable and could not be driven. Near Frankfort, Ky., Alexander Wilson saw a flock of migrating doves. The naturalist estimated that this single flock was two hundred and forty miles long and had an enrollment of at least 2,230,000,272 birds."

Isaiah describing the consecrated worshippers flocking to the millennial church could not have chosen a more expressive figure. "These that fly as a cloud and as doves to their windows." The readers of his time would realize by it what countless throngs of men he saw in prophetic vision hastening into the kingdom of God. The church of God is now great in membership, but, church members, do you not look forward in holy ecstasy to the time when the thousands who are worshipping Christ now shall be changed into the millennial day when Christ's disciples shall flock through the church's doors in innumerable multitudes "as the doves fly to their windows?"

The figure is expressive not only of numbers, but of spiritual qualities. The church of the future is not to have a cold roll. It is not to be composed of a lot of members who as the five foolish virgins of Christ's parable, lounged around and slept and had no oil for their spiritual lamps. It is not to be composed of men and women who occupy their church pews only on Sunday and then when the benediction of the sermon is given turn and shut their pews doors and say, "Good-by, religion. I must go home now. You just stay here for a week, and next Sunday morning I will come back and see you and pat you on the back for an hour again while the choir sings and the pastor prays." But in prophecy not only shall there be multitudes of worshippers, but all these multitudes shall be consecrated worshippers. These many worshippers shall be men of living faith, to whom the presence of God is an abiding reality, influencing them wherever they go and in every moment of their lives.

But though "black-eyed Susana" or the "golden spore" or the "blue eyed violets" on account of a great multitude may be called a common flower—a weed—dove, has never been called a common bird. The dove always has been and always will be the symbol of purity, gentleness and love. This symbol was recognized in heathen times. Because the dove signified purity Venus had this bird as her emblem.

In the beautiful mythological legend Semiramis, the queen, was said in her youth to have been nurtured by a dove and at death to have been changed into a dove. We find, however, in Christian nomenclature the dove is also the symbol of purity and gentleness and divine love. In the Bible the dove has the most hallowed of associations. It was as a dove that the Holy Spirit appeared at the baptism of Jesus. It was two doves that the blessed virgin presented at the temple as an oblation for her purification after the divine birth. What says the psalmist in reference to the man's redemption from sin and his cleansing through the blood of Jesus Christ? "Though ye have lain among the pots, yet shall ye be as the wings of a dove covered with silver and the feathers with yellow gold."

This migration of the redeemed and spotless multitudes of human beings to Christ's churches shall not only come with the purity of the dove, but also with the swift velocity of the dove. It will not come with the leaden feet of a man who, having been born in a Christian home, takes ten, fifteen, twenty, perhaps thirty years, to make up his mind to be a Christian. It will not come with the slow processes some churches have, whereby their sessions or vestries or boards of deacons place the applicant for church membership on probation. But these new accessions to the churches of Jesus Christ will come to the front rank of Christian service and worship as quickly as the name of a Saul was changed into a Paul. The new members whom Isaiah saw in vision fled to Christ's altar as quickly as the doves fly to their windows.

The swiftness of the dove's flight is one of the greatest inspirations to me of all of Isaiah's vision. Why the swiftness? Because I know that we can come to Christ now. Oh, my brother, it takes a swift wing for you in an instant of time to cross over all that far country of sin which separates you from God's devotee. The distance from Arizona to New York or from St. Sebastian, Spain, to Venice, where doves have been seen, are not as far. Tell me, O man, did you not start forth on your journey of sin ten, twenty, forty years ago? Why, let me recount the years. You have not seen a communion table since your mother died. You have not made one earnest prayer for ten years. If I was to-day to count over the list of your intimate friends I would find them without exception to be men and women who have not been in the past and are not now living Christian lives. Oh, my brother, my poor sick brother, you have a long distance to come back to God. But you can come by divine grace. You can come now. You can come as quickly as the new converts of the church which Isaiah saw in vision came to the mercy seat. You can come with a superlative swiftness. You can come with the lightning velocity of a flying dove.

But why talk about Isaiah's church of the future? Why caption this sermon with the title, "The Coming Awakening?" When Isaiah saw this migrating dove and used it as an emblem was he alluding only to a future church? I think not. I think as the Hebrew prophet was standing there on the mountain of inspiration looking off on what was to come he kept saying to himself: "Why is it not possible for this vision of God's church to be materialized now? Is not God willing to bring this beatific condition to present man if the members of the children of God will to-day co-operate with the Holy Spirit? Yes, he can, he will, was the prophet's thought. I know this is the thought to-day running through many a Christian mind. God can and God will make the prophetic vision of Isaiah come true now if we, the church members, will only truly yield ourselves and consecrate our minds and hearts to Christ's will. O man, O woman, the greatest enemy of Jesus Christ to-day is not the infidel and scoffer outside of the church. It is the man and the woman inside the church who does not co-operate with Jesus in his purpose to save the world for Christ through the agency of his church. If we yield ourselves to his will even the smallest and the most insignificant can become mighty for God, for, as Joshua hath said: "One man of you shall chase a thousand, for the Lord your God, he it is, that fighteth for you, as he hath promised you. Take good heed, therefore, unto yourselves that ye love the Lord your God."

The symbol of the dove which Isaiah uses to describe the church could not be better illustrated than by the spectacle in the great square of Venice, which is flanked on the one side by the famous cathedral of St. Mark. With but few exceptions I have seen all the great cathedrals of the world. Take it all in all, though it cost not nearly as much as some others, the most impressive cathedral I ever saw was that of St. Mark's of Venice.

Like unto natural scenery St. Mark's is the Yellowstone Park, not the Yosemite or the Gothenburg Pass, among the cathedrals. It impressed me not with its size so much as its exquisite colorings. Its roof, its walls, its arcades all blended as the colors of a rainbow frozen in stone. The tops of its lofty columns were not hideous with grimy gargoyles. They were chiseled into flower gardens, which grew at your feet or with their leaves hung down from above. These different flower gardens were so perfectly chiseled that it seemed as if the winds, sweeping up from the Venetian Canals were gently swaying them as the rosebushes bended under the touch of a summer breeze in your father's garden. There, within those walls, the chancel and auditorium blend in such perfect harmony that when I stood before the altar's picture of the dying Christ I felt for the first time in a European cathedral that I was in the presence of God and in the place of prayer.

But, though I saw many places in the Venice cathedral that entranced me, after all, my greatest lesson learned there was outside the cathedral walls, and not within. I learned that lesson there not from the cold stones of a building, but from the warm hearts of living doves. There, from behind the towers and from within the recesses down from the roof and the four great bronze horses, from pillars and vestibules, the doves gathered around you by the hundreds. They came as fearlessly to my side as my little children might come. They perched on my shoulder, on my hat. They fluttered over my head. They crowded by the hundreds at my feet to eat of the food I had ready for them. As they fluttered about me I said to myself, "Would that God's sinful children might here gather about these church doors as I see my God's little feathered loved ones." When I spoke these words involuntarily I started. I said to myself, "Why will not God's sinful children thus come to God's sanctuaries?" Did not Isaiah in vision see them coming? Shall they not come? Will they not come now, if the Christian church members feed them with the "bread of life," as I am feeding these birds with little crumbs? Yes, they will. They will, if we Christian church members only live right and offer to the outside suffering world the right kind of divine messages. Will not you and I, O church members, by our examples and welcome and gospel food, make Isaiah's vision a possibility now? Will not you and I, as followers of Christ, beckon the sinners to him, and they will come as doves come to their windows.

DANGER OF LIVING WITH CONSUMPTIVES.

Is real danger, because the sputum of affected persons diffuses itself through the air and finds lodgment in the systems of others. If exposed to consumption use fragrant, healing Catarrhose, the most efficient germicide known. No case of catarrh can withstand Catarrhose, which cures this loathsome disease thoroughly. Cold in the head is cured in a few minutes, and bronchitis, asthma and lung trouble are cured to stay cured if Catarrhose is employed. "I don't know any remedy so good for catarrh and bronchitis as Catarrhose," writes N. T. Eaton, of Knowlton. "I cured me after years of suffering and saved me from consumption. Two months' treatment $1; trial size 25c."

Lady Curzon Seriously Ill.
Dover, Eng., Sept. 23.—Lady Curzon of Kedleston, who was Miss Leiter of Chicago, is critically ill, and is at Walmer Castle, which her husband, the Viceroy of India, occupies, as warden of the Cinque Ports. It is reported that acute peritonitis has supervened. Lord Curzon, who is overwhelmed by the sudden blow, remains constantly by his wife's bedside.

Dysentery causes the death of more people than small-pox and yellow fever combined. In an army it is dreaded more than a battle. It requires prompt and effective treatment. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has been used in nine epidemics of dysentery in the United States with perfect success, and has cured the most malignant cases, both of children and adults, and under the most trying conditions. Every household should have a bottle at hand. Get it to-day. It may save a life. Sold by all druggists.

The Small Boy
He indulged much too freely in pie and plum cake, and during the night how his "tummy" did ache, they ran for the doctor, who knowing the fault, without hesitation prescribed "Abbey's Salt."

Mothers, who want their children to grow into sturdy men and women instead of pale, sal-low dyspeptics, should see that the youngsters take a morning glass of ABBEY'S SALT. Children eat irregularly—indiscreetly. ABBEY'S SALT strengthens the stomach—regulates the bowels—so that "pain-killer" and "oil" are never needed. So pleasant to take, that mothers have no trouble in teaching the children to use it.

MAKES RUBIES.

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences in Paris there was presented a paper by A. Verneuil, describing his success in making artificial rubies, weighing from 12 to 15 carats each, by a new process of fusing aluminum. Each ruby is the close of the process splits in two, forming half spheres, which can be worked by lapidaries like natural stones. The color is fine, and lapidaries to whom they have been submitted, say that these artificial gems have the same hardness and take the same polish as natural rubies. Unfortunately, or, as some may perhaps think, fortunately, many of the stones thus made, especially when of large size, have internal discolorations and bubbles. But M. Verneuil thinks further experimentation will enable him to avoid these defects.
