IN THE "FLOWING TIDE"

All Liberals Elected on Friday But One Were Gains.

Joseph Devlin, Irish Nationalist, Captures the Unionist Stronghold of West Belfast—Candidates Tell the Why of It All in Their Opinion—Sir P. Magnus, Conservative, Redeems London University.

London, Jan. 20.—(C. A. P.)—Out of eight returns of Friday's voting received up to 2 o'clock, seven were Liberal gains. The other seat already held by a Liberal saw his majority increased from 317 to 2,810. Thus the counties, with even greater unanimity than the boroughs, are joining with the Liberals in the "flowing tide." In all, forty-six seats were decided, but the 8 o'clock closing hour, which prevails renders it impossible to get the returns until next day. The Liberal gains now aggregate 131, and the Labor gains 28, offset only by four Conservative gains.

The one bright spot for the Conservatives was the announcement early in the evening of the close of the poll for London University, where Sir P. Magnus, Conservative, was elected by 24 over Sir Michael Potter, who held the seat for the Liberal party by 863. Last night's returns record the fall of another former Minister in Sir Robert Finlay, former Attorney-General for England, who was defeated at Inverness by 558. He is the eleventh member of the Ministry to follow their leader, A. J. Balfour, to defeat. In fact, Arnold Forster occupies the splendid position of being the only member of the late Ministry as yet returned.

Monday will decide the fate of Austen Chamberlain, against whom a strong onslaught is being made in Worcesterhire. He had a majority of 2,594, but has been ill during the most of the campaign.

One big turnover in yesterday's vote occurred in Middlesex, where a Conservative majority of 3,268 changed to a Liberal majority of 2,115. In Cheshire, Sir Frederick Milner, who was distinguished for having written 11,000 letters to his constituents, was defeated by 531.

The Why of It All. On the vexed question of what was the real cause of it all, interesting opinions have been expressed by candidates. Of sixty-four successful Liberal and Labor members, thirty-six affirm that free trade, or the fears of food as "taxation" as they describe it, was the first cause; twenty-four others give the chief credit to the desire for social reform, and disgust with the late Government, or local conditions. Two say Chinese labor did it, one, education. They agree that all these factors were at work, but differ only as to their relative influence.

"Misrepresentation" and "Radical lies" are the most frequent explanations offered by twenty defeated Conservatives heard from. Thirty-five place the first blame on Labor or local conditions; twenty say that Chinese labor was the primary cause of their undoing; seven put the Education Act in the first place, while eight confess that tariff reform, or "misrepresentations about dear food," was the chief cause. Many declare they found tariff reform very popular. One riding is said to have been won because the candidate had eighty-two motor cars in his service.

The total votes polled thus far for Liberal and Labor candidates is 1,764,260, and for Conservatives, 1,427,887.

Liberals Elected. The Liberals elected on Friday were all gains except in Leith Burgs.

Results: Liberals—Huntingdon, Howard Whitehead, 469; Leicestershire, Melton H. de R. Walker, 1,767; Denbigh, Wales, Clement Edwards, 1,278; Inverness, J. A. Bryce, 558; Leith Burgs, R. C. Munro-Perguson, 2,810; Renfrewshire, Sir T. Glen Coats, 1,368; Middlesex, Enfield J. Branch, 2,116; Nottinghamshire, Bassetlaw, Frank Newness, 531.

Late returns of Thursday's voting: Pembroke, Wales, J. W. Phillips, Liberal, 1,049, gain; Monmouth, Lewis Haslam, Liberal, 592.

The following were elected without opposition: East Mayo, Dillon; North Kilkenny, J. Devlin; North Monaghan, Chare; Southwest Meath, Sullivan; South Armagh, McKillop; Queen's County, Meahan; Connemara, O'Malley; South Galway, Duffy; Tyrone, Narnighan; North Meath, White; Northwest Meath, Ginnell.

The most interesting feature of yesterday's election returns was the capture of West Belfast by an Irish Nationalist, Joseph Devlin. Belfast has been a Unionist stronghold from time immemorial, with the exception of a few years, when the seat was won by Mr. Devlin was held by Thomas Sexton.

Riots Follow at Belfast. Mr. Devlin's victory at Belfast led to rather serious rioting, in which many houses were partially wrecked.

The Man to Cheer For. Chamberlain yesterday morning received a thousand letters of congratulation in one delivery. Telegrams were delivered fifty at a time, many from the colonies.

Linemen's Injuries Fatal. Hamilton, Jan. 20.—Joseph Webb, 106 West King street, a lineman, employed by the Cataract Power Co., who was injured yesterday morning, died during the afternoon. He was hurt while helping to lower a big electric light pole at the corner of McNab and Murray streets. He was holding a crocheted stick under the pole. The stick broke, letting the pole fall on him.

There always is a way to manage a stubborn person without resorting to force.

PRESERVE OUR OLD GUNBOAT

Lady President of the Historical Ass'n. Writes The Planet

A Splendid Patriotic Appeal Which Should Meet Ready Response—A Suggestion

The following letter to The Planet, has been received from the talented Hamilton lady who is the President of the Canadian Historical Society. It speaks eloquently for itself:—

To the Editor of The Planet:

Sir,—The splendid souvenir copy issued by The Planet speaks volumes for its enterprising publisher, and it was a great treat for me to read. The articles are all so good and the illustrations exceptionally so. What was of special interest to me was the article of Capt. Black, "A Relic of 1812," and the picture of that old gunboat, now forming such a topic for discussion to all true patriots. I read it without some emotion, the story, and grieved to know that this most interesting relic of bygone days was unprotected from the devastating winds and driving storms; that vandals hands were carrying it off piecemeal; that "its beautiful lines" were broken up, and what remained was to be exploited, as the New York Herald of November 19 said, to the United States, as that of "one of the famous British warships sunk after Perry's great victory," and to be taken as trophies of war to the other side.

That such a state of things could exist in your beautiful city seemed incredible, or that your Council should, if for no other than commercial reasons, not seek to preserve this historic relic to its wealth, could hardly be thought true. It is to be hoped that Chatham, seeing the lively interest taken by all Canada for them, will have and hold forever these priceless treasures.

Might I venture on a scheme, suggested by other such surroundings, I would say: Place the gunboat now on the park in some accessible place, there, restore as far as possible to its original shape, put an iron fence round it, and high around it as a protection from pilfering hands, have truthfully told and plainly written its share in the war; have a good and suitably built roof overhead; below the eave troughs let the great beams bear as high as level, lettering the names of those taking part on that occasion, and above all place a flagstaff from which shall float out, from sunrise to sunset, the Union Jack, which carries with it everywhere the declaration of British possession, and, acting upon that declaration, let the good people of Chatham see the flag duly respected. I, for one, would deem it an honor to contribute my mite towards the purchase of that shall float out the invincible red, white and blue.

Having duly honored this glorious old boat, we would then consider, that as defeat no matter how older eyes may regard this one, is never inspiring to the young, we would let the other boats quietly rest where they sank, but on the shore, in the immediate vicinity, let a huge boulder or cairn be erected, and have it suitably inscribed in statutory bronze.

As Mr. Sandys "Chatham Boy" is everywhere, let there be a grand home call to rally round the flag on such an inaugural as is here proposed, where perhaps some of us, who have looked with longing eyes on your treasures, may be allowed to come and take part in the celebration.

Men of Chatham, you have all the Dominion at your back, as supporters in this project, when shall it be carried out?

CLEMENTINA FESSANDEN.

All Chicago Honored Him.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Funeral services for Marshall Field were held yesterday at his late home on Prairie avenue, and in the First Presbyterian Church. Never before in the history of Chicago has such respect been paid to the memory of a private citizen as was shown yesterday. During the hours of the funeral services at the house and the church, all of the large retail establishments on State street were closed, the 1,000 enterprises operated by the members of the Chicago Commercial Club, and situated in all parts of the city, were closed; the board of trade held but a brief session, and upon every clubhouse and prominent office building in the business section of the city flags were displayed at half-mast.

Urging That $12,000 a Mile.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—The Provincial Government is again pressing upon the Government at Ottawa for a subsidy to the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway. At the last session of the Legislature a resolution was passed that the Federal Government should be asked to give $12,000 a mile toward the road, and the resolution was forwarded, but so far has not been productive of any reply. The Temiskaming Railway commissioners, who were in Ottawa last week, pressed the matter on the Dominion Government. The request from the Ontario Government will be renewed soon if there is no reply to the latest one.

Experience costs a lot.

HEALTH OF THE KING

Causes Much Anxiety According to Court Circle Rumors.

Friday His Majesty Consulted Three Physicians, Including His Physician Extraordinary and Sir Frederick Treves—Unable to Take Exercise Owing to Hurt to Ankle—Finds Difficulty in Breathing.

London, via New York, Jan. 20.—There are persistent rumors in court circles that the King's health causes much anxiety, and the fact that he was in consultation with three physicians yesterday lends an ominous color to the reports.

The King came to town from Sandringham yesterday morning, leaving the Queen there. At noon Sir Felix Semon, physician extraordinary to His

THE KING'S LATEST PORTRAIT.

Majesty, and the most famous throat specialist in Great Britain, visited the King at Buckingham Palace, accompanied by Sir Frederick Treves, the King's surgeon, and another eminent physician.

All three were at the palace some time. Owing to a broken tendon of his ankle, an injury sustained while hunting six weeks ago, the King has been unable to take any exercise. Being of full habit and with an appetizing tendency, the King is gaining flesh rapidly, and this occasionally occasions difficulty in breathing.

To all journalistic inquiries about the King's health Lord Knollys, his secretary, invariably replies that it is excellent. It is stated that His Majesty's physicians recently insisted that he stop smoking. The King, however, declined.

FRENCH CABINET SILENT.

Discusses, But Makes No Announcement as to Venezuela.

Paris, Jan. 20.—At a Cabinet Council held in the Elysee Palace yesterday, President Loubet, presiding, Premier Rouvier explained the Venezuelan situation. No indication whatever has been given out relative to the Council's decision.

After the Council had adjourned the Cabinet Ministers present Madame Loubet with a superb silver cup as a souvenir from the last Ministry during M. Loubet's term as President.

M. Maubourget, the Venezuelan charge d'affaires, who was expelled from France Thursday, according to an interview in The Patrie, said that being a Frenchman he felt his expulsion greatly, and would return to France at the first opportunity.

To Bring Venezuela to Time.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Three French warships are now off the Venezuelan coast, prepared to deliver the answer of France to President Castro's treatment of M. Taigny, the French representative at Caracas. Two additional warships will join them as soon as they can make the trip across the Atlantic. Until the demonstration has been initiated, the French Government will share only with the President and Secretary Root the knowledge of the exact form which this expression of her displeasure at President Castro's action will take. It can be announced that a French demonstration in Venezuelan waters will be viewed here with complacency.

Innerkip Woman Suicides.

Woodstock, Jan. 20.—Mrs. John Ross, the wife of a respected resident of Innerkip, committed suicide by taking a dose of Paris green. Mrs. Ross had suffered from melancholia and for the past few days was unwell. During the absence of husband and family Thursday morning, she took the poison and then locked herself in the barn. She was 44 years of age, and is survived by a husband and two children.

Bolder Game Ends in His Arrest.

Guelph, Jan. 20.—James Edwards, who held up two stores on Wednesday night, played a bolder game Thursday night when he walked into the Chamberlain bakery, and pointing a revolver at Mrs. Chamberlain, emptied the till. He was afterwards arrested. He is 15 years old, and borrowed the revolver from Harry Galloway, night watchman at the General Hospital.

All the Bodies Recovered.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 20.—All of the eighteen bodies have been recovered from the Detroit mines on Paint Creek, the scene of the dust explosion yesterday. The men, except one, were found at their places of work, showing that the explosion came without warning.

Even the man with a will of iron may lose his temper when he gets hot.

HIGH HONOR WAS CONFERRED

Dr. J. L. Bray Was Presented With Beautiful Illuminated Address

Medical Council of Ontario Do Fitting Honor to One of Their Most Respected Members

There are only a limited few who really arrive at the top in their chosen professions, but it is not surprising when these few—no matter what their professions—are found residing in Chatham.

Just at present the many friends of Dr. J. L. Bray are congratulating him upon receiving the very highest honor which it is possible for the Ontario Medical Council to confer upon any physician—an illuminated address, commemorative of his long and valued service on that board.

In July last the Medical Council passed a resolution appointing a committee to prepare this address. The committee has just completed its work and when the doctor was in Toronto this week the address was presented to him. Dr. Bray is one of the most celebrated physicians in the Dominion and is the only one upon which the Council has conferred such a high honor. The address reads as follows:—

To John L. Bray, M. D., LL. D., M. C. P. S. O.: Sir.—The Council of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, gladly take this method of congratulating you on the fact that a quarter of a century has now elapsed since first you were chosen as a representative.

Your conduct in that capacity during this long period of uninterrupted service has retained the confidence of your constituents as well as the uniform respect and esteem of those with whom you have legislated for the public good in uplifting the moral and scholastic standard of our beneficent calling.

In consequence thereof the sincere desire is hereby expressed that for many a long day you may live in vigor and happiness to adorn the position which you now occupy.

LIQUOR CASES

Crown Attorney Smith was in Blenheim yesterday on cases against W. J. O'Brien and A. B. Vester for selling liquor to a minor, Melvin Fleming, Fleming, with two others, John Thompson and Chas. Two other charges for selling liquor to intoxicated men were also laid against the hotels and an adjournment taken.

FORGING ANTIQUITIES.

At times the forger is content to take ancient fragments of ancient vases or statuettes and complete them with clay or plaster of paris. These new "old" wares he then paints up and passes to the unsuspecting, and sometimes suspecting, purchaser as real antiquities. The story is told of a forger in Athens who had just finished an antique he himself could not always tell where the genuine part ceased and the false began. Under such circumstances it may not be wondered that at times even experts are tricked.

The following incident shows how forgeries turn up in very unexpected places: One hot day a party of us were toiling up a steep ascent in the island of Melos when we saw above us a number of Greeks seated on a parapet of ruins. We had been cruising long enough among the Aegean islands to know that these people of the place had seen our ship and were waiting to sell us antiquities. At the sight of these Greeks one of our number, a tireless Scotchman, scrambled ahead of us to the top, where we could soon see her, wind blown and outlined against the blue sky, bargaining for a vase. When we reached the top after a more leisurely climb she put her purchase in my hands and asked me what I thought of it. My hands were moist with perspiration from the exertion of the climb, and for answer to her question I held them out to her all blackened from grasping the vase. The sweat had attacked the modern paint with which it was covered, and by this coming off on my hands the color had betrayed its falsity. The whole vase had been patched up from six or seven pieces, and then painted over to conceal the repairing.

CONCERNING DREAMS.

Often Indicate a Serious Illness—The Blind See in Dreams.

Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood, is said to have recorded a dream in which a bumblebee stung him in his left thigh, on a place where a couple of days later appeared an ugly ulcer. Malesherbe, the renowned French author, found himself in a dream attacked by a rowdy, who stabbed him in his left breast with a dagger in an area where the following evening he felt the first attack of severe pneumonia. "The archives of medical reports," says Dr. Axel Emil Gibson, "are heavy with cases of a similar character, which have either received no explanation at all or else have been explained away entirely."

Dr. Gibson calls attention to the fact that dreams depend on some other media than those known as the five senses. A conclusive evidence in favor of this view is found in the circumstances that even the blind are able to see in dreams, as witness experiences recorded by Helen Keller, "Blind Tom," the poet Milton and others; hence the conclusion seems to be unavoidable that it is only as far as physical vision is concerned that the optic nerve guides and limits the field of vision.

This same author arrives at the deduction that dreaming and waking differ in degree and form of manifestation.

Treating Wrong Disease.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he, assuming them to be such, prescribes his pills and potions. In reality, they are all suffering from the same disease, the disease of suffering, encouraged by this practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery. It has been well said, that "a disease known is half cured."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. As a powerful invigorating tonic "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs, and distinctly feminine in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nerve-tonic "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate the stomach, liver and bowels. One to three a dose. Easy to take as candy.

tion only, not in principle and essence. "Like waking consciousness," he avers, "the dream reveals, but does not create. The same world that surrounds the waking individual surrounds the dreaming, only the viewpoints and media of observation are changed."

Was Just a Dream.

"Some old fellow over at Fort Sill who has been in this section of the country for a good many years once dreamed that there was an Indian massacre on the summit of Signal mountain. He afterward began to tell that dream, and at length told the story for the truth. That dream has gone down in history as an actual fact. There never was a massacre on this mountain, nor even a battle of any sort. In early days, after the establishment of Fort Sill, the soldiers had a signal station there, built the house that is now crumbling in ruins and possibly observed the maneuvers of many Comanches."

A Natural Inference.

Six-year-old Fanny, just returned from Sunday school, seemed to have something on her mind.

"Mother," she said after awhile, "they must have had very large beds in Bible times."

"Why?" asked her mother.

"Well, our teacher told us today that Abraham slept with his four fathers."

A wise man doesn't wait for opportunity to come along, he goes after it.

International Bible Lesson for Tomorrow.
The Boy Jesus—Luke 2, 40-52.

Golden Text—"Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man."

What kind of a boy do you like best? What kind of a boy was He? Soon to round into youth and manhood, made in all things like unto His brethren, Joseph and Mary, His mother, devoted to the Law of God, take their Son of 12 years to the Temple for confirmation. Were all parents as careful and prayerful with their boys we should have better men than we have now. This boy confirmed as a Son of the Law, by Jewish rites and Jewish priests, carries lovingly behind His parents in the sacred city and at the Temple of God; they miss Him after a day's journey and return to Jerusalem in search of Him. Strange they did not go first to the Temple and save three days of anxiety. Evidently they did not understand the disposition and mission of their boy, any more than we parents do now—verses 43, 44 and 45.

At last they find Him, and He astonishes them by His holy boldness as much as He amazes the D. D.'s by the questions He asks, the answers He gives and the spirit He manifests. His spiritual understanding deeply interests his listeners.

Mary, the mother, seems to have been the leading spirit in the holy family, and her Son's answer to her called home the fact to both parents that the Boy Jesus was God's child, and therefore perfectly at home in the Temple and in the truth of God; yet it was God His Father's will that He be subject to Mary and Joseph, honor them and help to support them up to His 30th year.

This is the last mention of Joseph in the gospels. If the Boy's own loved ones could not understand Him, how utterly impossible for sinful men, unless enlightened by the Holy Spirit, to comprehend Him, and how easy to misunderstand each other.

DON'T NEGLECT A COLD.

Neglected Colds Lead to Consumption.

PE-RU-NA
CURES
COUGHS.

How Pretty Miss Powell Was Restored to Health by Pe-ru-na.

Miss Lillian Powell, Aurora, Ind., writes:
"Last spring I caught a severe cold from getting my feet wet and being out in the rain, and in a day I had a most miserable cold, but I neglected it, thinking it would soon leave me. But it hung to me for two weeks, when I felt something must be done, as my condition was serious."
"I had heard so much about Pe-ru-na and in its praise that I bought a bottle and began taking it regularly. I was gratified to find that in a week the cold and cough was broken up, and three weeks' treatment completely restored my usual good health."—Lillian Powell.

How Consumption Develops.

Nine cases of consumption out of ten occur in this way:

A person catches cold. The cold is not properly cured, and another cold is caught.

This cold is dilly-dallied with, either by no treatment whatever or some treatment that is ineffectual, and the cold continues.

Then another cold is caught and a cough develops. Cough syrups are resorted to, but they give only temporary relief.

By and by the patient gets tired of taking medicines and cough syrups and gives up in despair.

The cold continues to develop and the cough grows worse.

Then the doctor is called in, only to discover that the patient is in the first stages of consumption.

It was just in this way that Miss Powell, of Aurora, Ind., became sick. She caught a cold, and not considering it serious, neglected it, thinking as many others do, that it would "wear off."

However, it clung to her tenaciously, and in two weeks she found her health in a serious condition.

Fortunately, Pe-ru-na had been brought to her notice, and she took a course of this remedy before it was too late.

In a week the cough and cold were broken, and a three weeks' treatment completely restored her to health.

This is what Pe-ru-na is doing all the while. Not a day, and probably not an hour passes in which some one does not have a similar experience with Pe-ru-na.

Cure the Slight Colds and Avoid Consumption.

The first step toward consumption is a cold. The next step is a failure to cure it promptly. The third step is the development of catarrh, which gradually becomes chronic. The fourth step, the catarrh begins to spread from the head to the throat, then to the bronchial tubes, and finally into the lungs. It is then consumption in the first stage.

At any time during the progress of catarrh, from the first onset of the cold to its final settlement in the lungs, Pe-ru-na can be relied upon to stop the disease. If you have taken a cold, buy Pe-ru-na without delay. One bottle in the beginning will do more good than a half dozen bottles after the catarrh has fastened itself on the lungs.

Thousands of Testimonials.

We have on file thousands of testimonials from people who have been cured of catarrh of the lungs by Pe-ru-na. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements we are receiving every month. No other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks as Dr. Hartman for Pe-ru-na.

Electricity in the Home.

Let the housewife rise up and call electricity blessed, says the Chicago Tribune. Benevolent are its uses in the home, if an electrical oracle be correct. By its aid spring cleaning may be abolished and houses kept ten times cleaner than now under the "cyclical system of displacing dirt and dust."

Colonel R. E. B. Crompton of Great Britain predicts that electric power will soon supersede the tools of the housemaid, motors driving machinery for washing dishes, cleaning fats, roasting and grinding coffee, chopping meat, kneading dough, doing the laundry work, cleaning metal effects, polishing silver and jewelry, cooling the refrigerator, pressing clothes, rocking the baby—in brief, doing all and more than the ten fairies on a woman's hand can ever be expected to achieve.

Love's young dream does not bes long exclusively to youth.

NO TRUTH IN IT

"There is an unkind report in circulation," said Sergeant-Major Harry Flowers this morning, "that the Regimental Band are getting half of the proceeds of the Mrs. Burrill benefit. I should appreciate it if The Planet would give the denial to this report. The band boys are all generously giving their services without any change to this deserving project and the 'Non-Coms.' are very grateful for their kindness."

Mr. Wm. Saddington, one of the best known residents in the county, met with a bad accident on January 8th that will lay him up for a long time. He was returning from a mill on his foot up on the front. He had to cross a rail fence that was down and while doing so his left foot slipped through and caught on a rail, breaking the bone in the leg just above the ankle. He pluckily continued his drive home, crawled off the boat and opened the gate and afterwards crawled on his hands and knees to the house. The services of Dr. McRitchie were at once secured and the broken limb set. He is now doing as well as could be expected.

A CRISIS HAS ARRIVED

Grand Commander of the Mac-cabees on Fraternal Insurance.

Cold Business Methods Responsible For Fraternal Societies Failure—Only Field For a Fraternal Benefit Society is to Mix Fraternity With Business—Only Upon Old-Line Methods Can Speculative Insurance Be Had.

Detroit, Jan. 20.—"A crisis has arrived in the affairs of fraternal organizations and it has been brought about by the societies being converted into quasi old line insurance companies. When the fraternal method appears and cold business methods take its place, the fraternal benefit societies must go down, for fraternal societies, barring difference in expense of administration, cannot issue insurance at any less than the old-line companies. With the possibilities of had selections, it is apt to be more. There is an end to everything, and we must not expect our societies to be perpetual. Only when a man can perpetuate himself easily can he perpetuate an organization such as an order."

Uttered in characteristic style by Major N. S. Boynton of Port Huron, grand commander of the Knights of the Modern Macabees, and one of the best-known fraternal insurance men in America, the above remarks dropped like a bombshell into the annual meeting of the Michigan Fraternal Congress, in session at the Hotel Cadillac, Detroit, prominently identified with the A.O.U.W. of Michigan, who had protested that there must be rates adequate to meet all contracts at the time specified, requiring a sum of money which at compound interest would meet the policy at the expiration.

"You must get the 2 plus 2 from the members in order to have the 4 to pay back to them, or else you will meet dissatisfaction and disorder," said Mr. Wilson.

"What we have to expect is fraternal co-operation, not fraternal insurance," maintained Major Boynton. "You want blood-brothering, amalgamation and camaraderie. My method is milder. I will specify would be more to my idea. The only field for a fraternal benefit society is to mix fraternity with business. If you get too much commercialism, the young men will go to the old line orders. If you get too much fraternalism, the confounded craft hops over. But we don't have the fraternalism we had 25 years ago and the orders are weaker for it."

"Fraternal insurance will carry a man over the line when he most needs insurance. If the organization which I have devoted years in helping to build up should go out of business to-morrow I should be satisfied with it for the good it has done. If you are going to speculate upon, you have got to do it on the basis of the old-line companies."

I WILL CURE YOU FIRST THEN YOU PAY ME

The physician who has not sufficient confidence in his ability to cure his patients first, and receive his pay afterwards, is not the man to insure confidence in those who are in search of honest treatment.

My acceptance of a case for treatment is equivalent to a cure, because I never accept incurable cases. I am satisfied to receive the money for the value I have given the patient, but I expect to prove my worth and show positive and satisfactory results before I ask for the fee. So, should I fail to cure the case, the patient loses nothing, while when I cure him I have given him what is worth much more than money.

I have given him his health again. I am the very first specialist in the United States who has had sufficient confidence in his ability to say to the afflicted,

NOT ONE DOLLAR NEED BE PAID UNTIL CURED

There is no guess work, no experiment about my method. I am a known expert in my chosen specialties, and offer you the best and only the best treatment. When your life or your health is at stake, inferior treatment (which leaves after effects worse than the disease itself), is dear at any price.

I have 14 Diplomas and certificates from the various colleges and state boards of medical examiners which should be sufficient guarantee to you that I make no difference who has failed to cure you, it will be to your advantage to get my opinion of your case free of charge.

The Latest Method Treatment is a heaven-sent boon to nervous sufferers. There are scores and hundreds of persons suffering from nervous disorders, including: Sleeplessness, nervousness, business and domestic cares, nervousness, depression, etc. To overcome these conditions, and to secure a permanent cure, the patient must be treated by a specialist. The use of narcotics and poisonous stupefying drugs is done away with, and permanent cures accomplished.

The LUST of HATE

BY GUY BOOTHBY

Author of "A Beautiful White Devil," "A Bid For Fortune," "The Marriage of Esther," "Dr. Nikola," Etc

To Be Continued.

Leaving the little sandy bay where we had landed, I went as far as some large rocks I could see a couple of hundred yards or so to my left hand. As I went I thought of the strangeness of my position. How inscrutable are the ways of Providence! However much I might have hated Barrard, had I not met Nikola I should in all probability never have attempted to revenge myself on him. In that case I should not have been compelled to fly from England at a moment's notice, and should certainly not have sailed aboard the Fiji Princess. Presuming, therefore, that all would have gone on without me as it had done with me, Miss Maybourne would have been drowned off the coast of Spain, and the Fiji Princess would have gone to the bottom and nobody would have been left to tell the tale. It was a curious thought, and one that sent a strange thrill through me to think what good had indirectly resulted from my misfortune.

Reaching the rocks mentioned above I clambered on to them and began my search for limpets. Once more Fate was kind to me. The stones abounded with the molluscs, the majority of which were of larger size than I had met with in my life before. In considerably less than five minutes I had detached a larger supply than our little party would be able to consume all day.

My harvest gathered, I filled my handkerchief and set off for the plateau. About half-way I looked up, to find Miss Maybourne standing at the cave's mouth, watching me. Directly she saw me approaching, she waved her hand to encourage me, and that little gesture set my heart beating like a wheat-flail. It was the first dawning of a knowledge that was to give me the greatest pain I had ever yet known in my life.

On reaching the plateau, I hastened towards her and placed my spoils at her feet.

"Fortune is indeed kind to us," she said. "See what splendid limpets I have obtained from the rocks down yonder. I was beginning to be afraid lest there should be nothing edible on the island."

"But how are we to cook them?" she answered, with a little shudder, for I must confess the things did not look appetizing. "I could not eat them raw."

"I have no intention that you shall," I cried, reassuringly. "I am going to light a fire and cook them for you."

"But how can you light a fire? Have you any matches dry enough?"

I took from my waistcoat pocket a little Japanese match-box, the lid of which closed with a strong spring, and opened it in some trepidation. So much depended on the discovery I was about to make. With a trembling hand I pressed back the lid, and tipped the contents into my palm. Fortunately, the strength of the spring kept the lid of the cover rendered the box almost water-tight, and for this reason the dozen or so matches it contained were only a little damp. In their present state, however, they were quite useless.

"I think," I said, turning them over and examining them closely, "that if I place them in a dry spot they will soon be fit for use."

"Let me do it for you," she said, holding out her hand. "You have done everything so far. Why should I not be allowed to help you?"

"I shall be only too glad to let you," I answered. "I want to cut the fish out of their shells and prepare them for the fire."

So saying, I handed over the precious matches to her care; and then, taking my clasp knife from my pocket, I knifed, and I had prepared an ample meal for three people. I placed it in a safe place in the cave, and then set about collecting a supply of fuel for the fire.

When this work was done I determined to climb to a point of vantage and search the offing for a sail. Just as I was starting, however, Miss Maybourne called to me to know where I was going. I informed her of my errand, and she immediately asked permission to accompany me. I told her that I should be very glad of her company, and when she had looked into the cave at the little child, who was still fast asleep, we set off together.

From the encampment we climbed the hillside for a hundred feet or so, and then, reaching another small plateau turned our attention to the sea. Side by side we looked across the expanse of blue water for the sail that was to bring deliverance to us. But no sign of any vessel could be seen—only a flock of seagulls screaming round the rocks below us, and another wheeling roundabout in the blue sky above our heads.

"Nothing there," I said, bitterly. "Not a single sail of any kind."

A fit of anger, as sudden as the squall that ruffles the surface of a mountain lake, rose in my breast against Fate. I shook my fist fiercely at the plane of water softly heaving in the sunlight, and but for my companion's presence could have cursed our fate aloud. I suppose Miss Maybourne must have understood that for she came a little closer to me and laid her hand soothingly upon my arm.

"Mr. Wrexford," she said, "surely you who have hitherto been so brave are not going to give way now, just because we cannot see a ship the first time we look for one. No! No! I know you too well, and I cannot believe that."

"You shame me, Miss Maybourne," I replied, recovering myself directly. "Upon my word, you do. I don't know what made me give way like that. I am worse than a baby."

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

Mrs. T.E. Gillis

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, irregular menstruation, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. T. E. Gillis, Windsor, N. S., describes her illness and cures, in the following letter:

"When I commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was suffering with weakness and womb trouble, headache, backache, and that worn-out, tired feeling. I have only taken the Vegetable Compound a few short weeks, and it has made me well, strong and robust. I believe that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is without equal for female troubles."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or absorption of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Surely you cannot wish to remain sick, weak and discouraged, when you might so easily be cured. The medicine which has made so many other women well will cure you also.

"I won't have you ever yourself names either. It was because you are tired and little run down," she answered. "You have done too much. Oh, Mr. Wrexford, I want you to grant me a favor. I want you to kneel with me while I thank God for His great mercy in sparing our lives. We owe every thing to Him. Without His help where should we be now?"

"I will kneel with you with pleasure," I said, "if you wish it, but I am not worthy. I have been too great a sinner for God to listen to me."

"I cannot let you say that," she went on. "Whatever your past may have been, God will never forget and forgive you if you pray aright. Remember, too, that in my eyes you have atoned for all your past by your care of us last night. Come, let us kneel down here."

So saying, she dropped on to her knees on that little plateau, and without a second's hesitation I followed her. It must have been a beautiful sight for the gulls, that lovely girl and myself kneeling, side by side, on that windy hillside. Overhead rose the rugged peak of the mountain, below us was the sunlit beach, and on all sides the treacherous sea from which we had so lately been delivered.

What were the exact words of the prayer Miss Maybourne sent up to the Throne of Grace I cannot now remember. I only know that I seemed to me the most beautiful expression of thankfulness for the past, and supplication for guidance and help in the future that it would be possible for a human being to utter. I had to use the largest of the shells I had discovered. These did not prove altogether a good substitute, but as they were all I had got, I had to make the best of them or go without.

When the mussels were sufficiently done, I lifted them off the fire and invited my companion to taste the dish. She did so, and the grimace which followed told me that she was not displeased at the result. I followed her example, and felt obliged to confess that they made but poor fare to support life upon.

"If we cannot get something better, I don't know what we shall do," she cried. "These things are too horrible."

"Perhaps I may be able to hit upon a way of catching some fish," I said. "or it is just possible I may be able to get a trap and catch some birds. There is no knowing what I may not be able to do with a little practice. In the meantime, you must endeavor to swallow as much of this mess as possible, and try to get the little one in the cave there to do the same."

Putting some of the fish into another shell, I gave it to her, and she carried it off to her sick friend. After I had scraped and washed it carefully, I filled a larger shell with pure water from the pool and gave it to them to drink. When they had finished their meal—and it was not much that they ate—I called Miss Maybourne outside and informed her that I was going to build up a large fire, after which I should set off on a tramp round the island to see if I could discover anything better to eat. While I was away, I advised her to dry her own and the child's things by the blaze; for though we had been some time under the influence of the hot sun, still our garments could not be said to be anything like dry. She promised to do as I wished, and when I had piled what remained of my heap of fuel upon the fire I made my way down to the shore, and then set off for a tramp round the island.

Serious Heart Trouble

"Fruit-a-tives" cured her when Doctors failed.

Hundreds of people suffer with Irritated Heart. Pain comes over the heart, especially after eating. Palpitation or fluttering—headaches—belching gas—indigestion and constipation follow. And the sufferer takes heart tonics and sees heart specialists, and steadily grows worse.

The heart is irritated by the stomach. The nerves of the heart and stomach are identical. When the stomach is distended by gas—when food sours or is not properly digested—the stomach nerves are irritated and this soreness extends to the heart. That causes pain which makes so many people think they have serious heart disease.

"Heart disease and Dyspepsia cured by Fruit-a-tives."

OTTAWA, July 14th, 1905.

To Fruit-a-tives Limited, Gentlemen:—

I never gave a testimonial to any medicine before but I like "Fruit-a-tives" so much I will gladly do so. I had every symptom of heart disease and I had a very nasty pain over my heart. I tried purgatives and consulted several physicians but nothing did me any good. After taking "Fruit-a-tives" I am entirely well again. My digestion was very bad and I suffered from long standing constipation and now I am quite well from these complaints. I wish to say also that my complexion was very bad, sallow and muddy in the extreme, but now after taking "Fruit-a-tives" it is as fresh as ever. To any one suffering from constipation and bad digestion I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" with every confidence. (Signed)

MRS. A. SUTHERLAND.

"Fruit-a-tives" CURE IRRITATED HEART because they cure stomach, bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" set the gastric juices flowing—clean and sweeten the stomach—insure the perfect digestion of every meal. Mrs. Sutherland thought she had

Serious Heart Trouble

"Fruit-a-tives" cured her when Doctors failed.

Hundreds of people suffer with Irritated Heart. Pain comes over the heart, especially after eating. Palpitation or fluttering—headaches—belching gas—indigestion and constipation follow. And the sufferer takes heart tonics and sees heart specialists, and steadily grows worse.

The heart is irritated by the stomach. The nerves of the heart and stomach are identical. When the stomach is distended by gas—when food sours or is not properly digested—the stomach nerves are irritated and this soreness extends to the heart. That causes pain which makes so many people think they have serious heart disease.

"Heart disease and Dyspepsia cured by Fruit-a-tives."

OTTAWA, July 14th, 1905.

To Fruit-a-tives Limited, Gentlemen:—

I never gave a testimonial to any medicine before but I like "Fruit-a-tives" so much I will gladly do so. I had every symptom of heart disease and I had a very nasty pain over my heart. I tried purgatives and consulted several physicians but nothing did me any good. After taking "Fruit-a-tives" I am entirely well again. My digestion was very bad and I suffered from long standing constipation and now I am quite well from these complaints. I wish to say also that my complexion was very bad, sallow and muddy in the extreme, but now after taking "Fruit-a-tives" it is as fresh as ever. To any one suffering from constipation and bad digestion I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" with every confidence. (Signed)

MRS. A. SUTHERLAND.

"Fruit-a-tives" CURE IRRITATED HEART because they cure stomach, bowels, kidneys and skin. "Fruit-a-tives" set the gastric juices flowing—clean and sweeten the stomach—insure the perfect digestion of every meal. They make the liver give up more bile, move the bowels regularly every day, and strengthen and heal the kidneys, as well as act directly on the skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are concentrated fruit juices, combined by a wonderful process which increases their medicinal action many times. Tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into tablets.

At all druggists or sent postpaid on receipt of price—50c. a box or 6 boxes for $2.50.

CARTER-McCARTNEY.

Perhaps one of the prettiest and simplest weddings ever witnessed at All Saints' church took place at high noon to-day. The bride, Miss Gertrude Alice McCartney, sister of Mrs. J. M. Duck, and who for years has held the honor of being one of the most popular society girls of Windsor, was beautifully gowned in white broadcloth and wore a white lace hat tipped with white ostrich plumes. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. The groom, Mr. Harold Gilbert Carter, is from Boston and a traveller for the National Cash Register Co. Miss Dottie Duck, charmingly gowned in grey silk crepe de chene, acted as maid of honor. She also wore a white hat trimmed with white ostrich plumes and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. To the sweet strains of the Lohengrin wedding march the bride party moved up the aisle, the maid of honor leading the way, followed by the bride on the arm of her guardian, Mr. John Morton, of Chatham. They were met at the altar by the Rev. F. A. P. Chadwick, the groom and his best man, Mr. Pierpont Littlewood, of Montreal. Mr. Morton gave the bride away.

After the ceremony the wedding group repaired to the vestry, where the bride would sign her maiden name for the last time. On leaving the church the organ, which was most ably presided over by Miss Lizette Compton, played the Mendelssohn wedding march. Immediately after the ceremony a wedding supper was given at the residence of J. M. Duck, on Chatham street, for the bride and the relatives and most intimate friends of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Carter left for the south by way of Chicago and will spend their honeymoon in Southern California, afterwards making their home in Portland, Oregon.

Although no invitations were issued for the church, over three hundred of the elite of Windsor society were there. Among the invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forster, Mr. and Mrs. Montalieu Nesbitt and Miss Riggs, of Detroit; Dr. and Mrs. Smith, of Windsor, were also among the house guests. From Windsor Record.

Miss McCartney was a sister of the late Mrs. R. M. Morton, of this city, with whom she made her home for a number of years. After the death of her sister and brother-in-law, she went to her sister, Mrs. John M. Duck, from whose home the wedding took place.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT.

The children's fancy dress ball, held in the Elks' Auditorium last evening, was a charming success in every way and reflected unbounded credit upon the energetic ladies of the Kent Children's Aid Society, who had the management of the affair in hand. A fancy dress ball is by no means a means a novelty in Chatham, but it is three years since the last one was held. That an event of this kind is popular in Chatham was plainly shown by the large audience which attended last evening.

A promenade, a minuet, a Spanish dance and a special dance were put on and lasted from half past seven until nine, when refreshments were served to the children present. At ten o'clock the older people took the floor and danced to the sweet strains of Lorrimer's orchestra until about one o'clock, when the affair broke up.

The officers of the ball deserve great praise for the splendid manner in which the event was conducted. Mrs. D. S. Patterson as convener of the general committee took a special interest in it, in fact all of the ladies worked earnestly to make the occasion an enjoyable and successful one. Miss Greening and Miss Fleming, who directed the dances, deserve special thanks and praise.

SICK HEADACHE

Many varieties of headache exist, those most prevalent being sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, etc.

Headache is an effect of disease, the cry of the suffering body for relief from some depressing disorder.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed in order to cure the headache permanently. Wrong action of the stomach, liver or bowels is responsible for nine out of ten cases of headache.

In sick headache (a very common form) there is sometimes nausea and vomiting and usually constipation.

In nearly all forms of headache

has proved itself a specific—a medicine that has cured where all others failed.

Keep the stomach, liver and bowels in perfect working order by the use of nature's regulator and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters, which cures all forms of headache by removing the cause.

Miss L. Smith, Morrisburg, Ont., writes: "I desire to let you know how much good Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled with headache for a long time, and could get no relief, until a friend told me of your Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles of it, I can say that I am completely cured."

B.B.B. is for sale at all druggists and general stores. Do not accept something "just as good."

The Letter-Box

THE ASSESSORSHIP.

To the Editor of The Planet:

Dear Sir,—Allow me to publicly thank all those members of the Council who supported and appointed me by (by-law) for the assessorship, firstly with Mr. French, and, when he refused to act, excepting with Mr. Gonne, then with Mr. Gonne, who, faithful to their compact, also refused excepting an associate with French. More especially, Mr. Editor, permit me to thank the four aiders who stuck to their guns and supported me from start to finish. Of those who fell out of my column, I had the solemn promises of Aldermen Scullard and Massey, who may find it difficult, before closing their municipal careers, to reconcile their actions with either the public or their consciences.

A British subject, a taxpayer, an ex-soldier, a member of the High School Board, a hundred cents on the dollar man, with a good knowledge of all that goes on in our famous little city, I owe no man an apology for having offered myself for this office, the more especially as a majority of the taxpayers have felt for some time that the ties which bind Gonne to French and French to Gonne should be cut, and a new man appointed in the place of one or the other.

It is surmised that the qualifications of the new man should not alone be the ability to carry the books, blanks and one end of the tape line, but firmness to combat the shortcomings (to use a mild term) of his associate, and point out the injustice and absurdity of this, that and the other assessment, when compared with the valuations of properties of those who appear to be the favored ones.

I trust the ratepayers of the city will not consider me too presumptuous when I state that one of these courses should be adopted for the assessment: (1) Appoint one good new man at the salary paid both Gonne and French to make a thorough assessment; or (2) appoint a man with plenty of firmness to act with either Gonne or French, if it be necessary to have one of the old men on duty; or (3) if it be necessary—until we shall have introduced a new man—to have both Gonne and French, and appoint a third man with whole wagon loads of firmness, who can take the place, as assessor, of the one or the other of these immaculate gentlemen.

Yours truly,

JOHN F. LIDDY.

Ex-Reeve's Rheumatism Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Was So Crippled That He Could Hardly Get Around And Could Get No Relief From Doctors or Medicines.

Dresden, Ont., Jan. 15.—(Special).—Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me of Rheumatism sleek and clean," Mr. W. G. Craig, the well known merchant and ex-treasurer of this place was the speaker and he evidently meant every word he said.

"It was the inflammatory kind of Rheumatism I had and it crippled me up so that I could hardly get around to do my work in my store. I had the best doctors and everything in the line of medicines I could hear of, but nothing even gave me relief.

"Then I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills and six boxes cured me completely." Dodd's Kidney Pills cure Rheumatism by curing the kidneys. Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid in the blood. If the kidneys are right they will strain all the Uric Acid out of the blood and the Rheumatism will go with it.

Yours truly,

MATTER OF "PRINCIPLE."

Interesting Essay Contributed at the Macaulay Club—Some Notable Allusions.

The following very interesting essay was contributed at a recent meeting of the Macaulay Club and, at the request of several members, is reproduced for Planet readers. The author is a well-known and skilful local legal light.

Criticism and essay writing are distasteful to me. I would prefer sawing wood. It requires less nerve, and one can be more cutting with less offense to your neighbor, and leave a deeper impression; however, they are all wooden in my hands.

When required by the executive to write an essay, I was anxious to get a subject that would of itself command interest, and so I selected "Principle."

I think one should always write about something of which he knows very little. Most people do. It gives so much more scope for the imagination.

Of course there are many kinds of principles. For instance there is Principal Plewes, of the Central; I mean school of course. I am not writing of him. He does not need it.

There are principles of architecture such as may be seen in our new municipal building in front of the market. I am not writing of that. Alderman Potter can point those out to you.

Then the principal actor in "The Magistrate." Dr. Munson is, however, too funny for a serious article such as this. He must be seen to be appreciated.

We have the principles of law spreading their thick branches wide over our social system, throwing its protecting shade where may be seen the young "Brackin" sprouting up through the leaves of Blackstone's commentaries with our own precious "Hobbs," but of these I do not write.

The principal stores in the city; but they are being added every day in The Planet of course—so I will not do them.

I will say nothing of the principles underlying our representative Government run by professional politicians; any one can under lie a professional politician.

The principles upon which art and sculpture are founded are not of the kind of which I write. You can trace these for yourself in the beautiful lines of the Tecumseh monument.

The principles of surgery are very dear. The human race has been much cut up about it. They would even mutilate the history of man by removing the appendix.

But all these principles and many others which might be mentioned, occupy a secondary position to that of which I write. Even the business principles whereby wealth is acquired without earning it are of little importance compared with that which is the essence and life of character, the fountain of our actions, that love for truth and right which, founded upon generations of experience and reason, becomes almost as an instinct, teaching us good from evil.

I am writing of principle in its higher and nobler form.

It has been one of the greatest factors in our growth and development. Every great battle and every great movement in history has been founded upon principle, either by reason of it or for lack of it.

Better to stand for principle than to hang for want of it. Between these two are the many blending shades. The farther you get from one extreme the nearer you are to the other.

Even the butcher's clerk has his principle at stake.

Principle! Some men are born with it, some acquire it, some have it thrust upon them; but one thing is true, a large number of persons there is a deplorable lack of it. Even the principals of assessment may be half "Gonne" if some one throws a stone.

This lack of principle seems to be more marked in each succeeding year. This appears to be because the human race multiplies faster than principle, and there is not enough to go round. The remedy is careful cultivation of principle. It is wonderful how fast our principle increases in power with each bit of added interest which we take if we spend as much time cultivating principle as we do sugar beets it would be more profitable, and the proceeds could not be attacked by our creditors.

The principle of self preservation impels me to desist, lest there be a funeral with myself the principal.

FAMOUS PEOPLE

BY FANNIE M. LOTHROP

COUNTESS GREY

Wife of the Governor-General.

The life at Rideau Hall, the official residence of the Governor-General of Canada, is social rather than political; it gives just an atmosphere of royalty in a democratic country, which though a colony in name is practically a free nation in fact. Earl and Countess Grey seem to have just the delicately difficult blending of aristocracy and democracy that make them admirably fitted for their roles as representatives of the King in Canada. They are both free from that oppressive reserve that distinguishes many members of the British nobility.

Lady Grey has never taken an active part in the political world in which her husband has been so conspicuous, her domain being social and philanthropic; and she has been as enthusiastic as the Earl on the subject of temperance reform and a devoted co-worker in his Public House Trust for removing the worst features from English saloons.

Lady Grey is wealthy in her own right, being one of the daughters of R. S. Holford, the millionaire member of Parliament and owner of the palatial mansion, Dorchester House in Park Lane, one of the most famous homes in London. At the time of her marriage in 1877, Lady Grey and her two sisters were conspicuous in London for their beauty, rare intellectual gifts and their social standing. Since her marriage Lady Grey has spent little time in London, as she has followed the fortunes of her husband and been his constant companion in his various positions in all parts of the world and was with him when he made his splendid record in South Africa in the administration of Rhodesia after it had been taken over by the crown from the South African chartered company. The Greys have five children, the eldest Lord Howich, now twenty-six years old, who until recently acted as his father's private secretary, and four daughters, the eldest of whom, Lady Sybil, married Arthur W. Grenfell.

Lady Grey has regular features, a perfect English complexion, a sweet smile that seems a benediction, and the restful, calm manner of a nature thoroughly well poised and controlled. With a keen mind, a kindly tact that seems instinctive, a simple, sincere cordiality and graciousness, a life-time of closest association with the best social life in England, and the additional charm and ease that travel has brought her, Lady Grey should fit perfectly into the life of the Dominion and add to the traditions of hospitality that linger like a perfume round the memories of Rideau Hall.

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1905, by W. G. Mack, at the Department of Agriculture

Interesting Events of Ye Olden Times Gathered from The Planet's Issues of Half a Century Ago.

The county auditors for 1864 were John F. Delmage and Geo. D. Ross.

The County Council, by a vote of the majority of that body, have signified an intention of abandoning the plan of township superintendents of schools and going back to the old system of one local superintendent of education for all the townships. Mr. David Mills to be that superintendent for 1864.

Colonel Grant, of the Royal Canadian Rifles, arrived in Chatham on Tuesday, the 16th inst., and inspected Captain Smith's and Captain Glenenden's companies of volunteers at the barracks. On the Wednesday following Col. Grant proceeded to Blenheim, where he inspected Capt. McMichael's company and then went to Windsor, where he inspected Capt. Macdonald's company.

Pekin, China, has the oldest newspaper in the world. It has been published for 1,000 years and is printed on a large sheet of silk.

We have received a first number of a new candidate for public favor in the newspaper line. It is called the Western Informer, and is published in this town by "Cameron & Bro." The sheet is similar in size and appearance to the now defunct Union. The editor promises his introductory address in the near future, from which, we presume, we shall be able to judge somewhat of the politics and policy of our new contemporary and rival, whom we welcome, in the meantime, into the world of newspaper life.

The theatrical troupe of Mr. Macfarland, consisting of some 20 members, will perform in Chatham every night of the week, beginning with to-night. For several months this company has been performing at the Lyceum, Toronto. It is Mr. Macfarland's wish to give "The Ghost" here, but a difficulty is experienced in procuring the requisite gas for its perfect representation.

The Western Union, a newspaper started in Chatham some twenty-two months ago in opposition to the Chatham Planet, and published for a time as a weekly, then as a tri-weekly, and latterly as a semi-weekly, has descended to the tomb of all the Capulets' after a fitful and chequered career. Had it lived until the second of April next it would have been two years old. Alas! how young to die. The Western Union makes up a list of five journals which have been published and have ceased to be published in this town within the past seven years, in opposition to the Chatham Planet. Against all antagonism, the old Planet continues to pursue the even tenor of its way, and steadily to gain friends, support, confidence and influence throughout the entire country. New brooms for a time sweep clean, but it is the old ones that know the corners.

UT THE SUN WON

The wind and the sun, as the old story goes, once had a dispute. "You are a terrific bluster and noise," said the sun, "but when it is all over, what does it amount to?" The wind roared angrily back and blew the shudder. Again the sun spoke:

"See how much I do, and yet you never hear me make a sound! I melt the snow and ice in spring, I thaw out the frozen ground, I make the leaves and the grass grow, I bring out the flowers, I ripen the fruit."

"Puff, puff, pooh!" interrupted the wind.

Gaily the sun continued, "Every day I light up the whole world!"

Then at last the angry wind found his voice.

"Very well, here comes a traveller, let us see who first will make him get off that long cloak of his."

The sun agreed, and said, "While you do your best, or your worst, I will retire behind a cloud."

The wind blew, at first gently, then harder, then harder yet. It whistled and howled about the man's shoulders, it made the trees by the roadside shake and bend. But all the while the traveller only wrapped his cloak the closer around him, until the wind, out of breath, had to stop and rest.

"How did you succeed?" asked the sun, peeping from behind the cloud, and smiling his brightest.

But the weary wind, rustling faintly, answered not a word. The man, who had looked so troubled and cross when the wind was hattering him, now straightened himself, and unbuttoned his cloak and walked cheerfully on his way.

And just as the boastful wind was retiring, defeated, back to his cave, the traveller remarked:

"How good that sun feels! I do believe I will take off my cloak!" translated from the Swedish of Topelius.

A DANGEROUS WILD ANIMAL

We all are so accustomed to dogs and so unaccustomed to tigers that the real fact, well known to sportsmen in India, that the dog is the most dangerous of wild animals, seems impossible. Yet it is a fact. The tiger will kill a bear, a buffalo, another tiger even, but will run from the wild dogs as hastily as the domestic cat seeks the fence when the neighboring cur comes along. "I have seen more than one tiger," says the English official tiger killer of Mysore, "flee from a pack of curs—a very mangy one gallantly holding on to the royal beast's tail on one occasion!"

The wild dog, like his civilized brother, gains his point by his superior intelligence and fidelity. The pack hunts together, and never desert each other, charging in to rescue a comrade, never giving up, and striking always for the weak part of the foe. They always take the tiger from behind, and then it is all up with him.

NEW USE FOR A RAZOR.

Oh, George, I don't think that new safety razor of yours amounts to anything at all.

Why not, dear?

Because I tried to use it to-day, and I could not do anything with it.

What were you trying to do with it?

I was only trying to sharpen a pencil and it wouldn't cut a bit.

Yes, doctor, I've been going the pace that kills.

A ROMAN THIEF'S METHOD

Thieves are ever ingenious and, in many cases, shrewd judges of human nature. A young man in Rome has for three years successfully based his dishonest operations on the reluctance to be bothered about trifles to which his "clients" are prone. His system was to watch the head of the house leaving for his office, when he would arrive, all out of breath with hurry, saying that Mr. X. had sent him for the boots which needed mending. Mrs. X., although surprised, would go and pick out the boots, or shoes she thought most likely to be the boots required and hand them over trustingly to the waiting messenger. In the evening the discovery of the fraud would be made, but invariably it was too small an affair to take the trouble to inform the police. Recently, however, a Mr. X., more indignant than the others, described the thief minutely to her husband, who, as fortune would have it, ran across and recognized his man at once. Taken to the police station, the thief confessed to a hundred thefts; but, of course, they must have run into the thousands. His system was simple; the old shoes were taken to a cobbler, an accomplice, of course, who made them as good as new, and the two divided the gains from the sale of them to a trusting public. Each theft was small in itself, but in the aggregate they yielded a handsome income from a sneak thief's point of view.

THE WONDERS OF AN ANT LIFE

A student of ant life, who has removed whole colonies of ants to his own home, thus describes the wonderful little insects:

"Before long the emigrants will make the best of their new location, by constructing passages, chambers, pillared halls, royal apartments and nurseries out of the earth provided, and settling down to the duties of an ant town. A little dab of honey laid outside the colony, on the uncovered part of the tray, supplies them with food, which they come to fetch, emerging at gateways made at the edge of the glass cover. Thus recommends the regular existence of the tribe, which may grow to number a quarter or a half million individuals."

"When the observer quietly draws aside the upper lid, which conceals the glass top, there lies disclosed the daily existence of the tiny creatures, furnishing evidence of gifts utterly astounding, and hardly to be disposed of by calling it instinct."

"In one city thus suddenly revealed to view will be seen the queen mother—of truly royal stature compared with her children and subjects—reclining in her throne room. Ants come and go through the apartment, laying down small white pupae—the young of the state—and carrying them off again when her majesty has inspected, touched, perhaps fed them. The ants-in-waiting, if we may style them, do not turn their backs upon the sovereign; their heads are in the direction of the presence."

"In another city, whose squares and streets are most unveiled, a different species live. They are, perhaps, the pale-colored ants, who capture and train slaves; and if so, one may watch the luxurious masters, fed and attended by dark servitors, who scurry hither and thither, intent upon their duties, visibly performing all kinds of work for the perfectly idle fighting ants. And slowly wandering up and down the same streets and squares will be observed small wood lice, quite blind, but domiciled and maintained by the community, the function of which appears to be keeping the city clean, for they will be seen feeling about for every scrap of dirt, and removing it—the housemaids of this ant people."

PROTECTION FROM POETS

A correspondent of the Manchester Guardian suggests that measures should be taken to protect the Prince and Princess of Wales during their tour in India from the designs of the professional versifier. It has now in all probability been forgotten, he writes, that when in 1891 the then Duke and Duchess of York travelled through Canada they were actually threatened by a miscreant armed with a poem of 553 verses, which he wanted to recite to them. When the King visited India as Prince of Wales in 1875 one bard heralded his arrival with a poem that began with the inspiring lines:

"Hail! Hail! one thousand hail!"

To the Mighty Prince of Wales!

While another poet went into details as follows:

He will beautifully shoot Many a royal tiger brute! Turning on their backs they'll die, Shot in the apple of the eye!

It will be seen that the correspondent's suggestion is not so unreasonable as might at first be supposed.

FIRST LOCOMOTIVE STEAM WHISTLE

Locomotives seventy-five years ago had no whistles. The engineer kept by his side a tin horn, which he blew before curves and dangerous crossings. But the noise was feeble. In 1838 an English farmer's cart was run down on the way to market, and 1,000 eggs, 100 pounds of butter, two horses and a man were lumped in one great comet on the rails. The railway had to pay the damage. The president sent for George Stevenson and said angrily:

"Our engineers can't blow their horns loud enough to clear the tracks ahead. You have made your steam do so much why don't you make it blow a good loud horn for us?"

Stevenson pondered. An idea came to him. He visited a musical instrument maker and had constructed a horn that gave a horrible screech when blown by steam. From this horn the locomotive whistle of today descended. Louisville Courier-Journal.

COULDN'T BE HER.

Mistress—Mary, wasn't that gentleman asking for me?

New Maid—No, ma'am. He said the lady he wanted to see as being about forty, and I told him it could not be you.

Mistress—Quite right, Mary. You shall have an extra afternoon off tomorrow.

New Maid—Yes, ma'am. Thank you, ma'am. I told him it could not be you, for you was about fifty.

Mistress—And while you're off you had better look for a new place.

HEREDITARY CALLINGS.

Interesting facts concerning the following by sons of their fathers' occupations is furnished by comparing countries in the old world with those of the new. The practice of sons following their fathers' occupations is quite common in many Oriental and even some European countries. In America, on account of greater opportunities, hereditary occupation is not so commonly the rule. The Rochester Post-Express has the following to say concerning hereditary occupations in the United States: "Some, no doubt, will be surprised to learn to what extent even here certain callings descend from fathers to sons. It is said that 90 per cent. of the farmers are farmers' sons; 51 per cent. of the lawyers are lawyers' sons; and 50 per cent. of the doctors are doctors' sons. As regards the mechanical vocations we have not the statistics at hand; but it is probably safe to say that proportionately the number of carpenters, or blacksmiths, or shoemakers, who have taken up their fathers' callings, is less than the number of lawyers or physicians who have adopted their fathers' professions. It is, moreover, a matter of some curiosity and surprise that the ministry is a calling in which the hereditary seems most lacking of application. Only eight per cent. of the ministers are sons of ministers, and the ratio is decreasing. This perhaps is not difficult to account for. The average ministerial salary is small; and especially when the degree of respectable living which is expected to be maintained is taken into account. To multitudes of the sons of clergymen life presents during their childhood and youth its seamy side, where the economies that must be practiced are often pinching and, moreover, the dependence upon the favor and good will of sometimes capricious and sometimes malicious parishioners is often disagreeable and mortifying. Then, too, taken as a class ministers' sons are above the average in brightness and culture, and so there is a demand for them in the more lucrative business positions and the better paid professions. Doubtless, moreover, the great theological uncertainty and unrest of our day deters many bright young men from entering the ministerial ranks. Certain at all events it is that decade after decade the demand for candidates for the ministry is answered by an increasing dearth instead of an increasing supply."

THE REGISTRATION VOTE.

It is said that the Whitney Government proposes to abandon the registration of voters. There is no doubt that the registration system has given a lot of bums and floaters a chance to be an expensive nuisance at election time, and so far as they are concerned, it will be well to drop the scheme. But provision should be made to give the franchise to a lot of young men in the cities, who are neither owners of property nor tenants, and who are now included in the registered list. In rural parts of the province provision is made for the putting on the voters' list the names of farmers' sons; but there is no similar way of giving votes to deserving young men in the cities. The merchant's son, and the mechanic's son, are not recognized in the voting scheme in Ontario. But, if the Government should determine to abolish an unmitigated nuisance, the purchasable vote of the bum and the floater, it should find some means to give the franchise to the respectable young man of good position, who takes an interest in the city and country, and whose vote is not for sale to the highest bidder. It may be a difficult job to undertake to give the franchise to those who would respect the privilege, and withhold it from those who consider it merely an asset, but if it can be done satisfactorily the people will be mightily pleased.—Hamilton Spectator.

GLOBULAR HYPOCRISY.

Toronto Mail.
"Mr. Whitney's descent to the spoils system," says the Toronto Globe, "shows that there is but one cure for the insidious poison introduced into the public life of the province." This hypocrisy would be more deceptive were it practiced at a greater distance from the date of the appointment by the Whitney Government of a member of the Globe staff to a lectureship at the university!

HON. MR. FIELDING'S ADVICE.

Toronto Mail.

Finance Minister Fielding sometimes says a really good thing. The other day a Canadian shoe manufacturer complained to the tariff commission that the United States manufacturers were advertising very largely and getting a great deal of the trade, whereupon Mr. Fielding recommended a trial of printers' ink for the Canadian industry. "Full many a flower is born to blush unseen," simply because it is not advertised. Publicity is in these days, more than at any other time, the secret of success.

CHINESE ART IN STONE.

Its Best Examples and Some of Its Greatest Defects.

The spirit of purely Chinese art in stone is shown in work such as the great monolith figures of animals and warriors which flank the approach to the tomb of the Ming dynasty and in the perfectly plain structures designed for the tombs of the present dynasty. These are composed of enormous blocks of stone brought with infinite labor from distant quarries over roads and bridges which are hardly capable of sustaining ordinary cart traffic and have always to be specially prepared to prevent the great weights causing their collapse.

The same admiration for the employment of huge blocks of stone is seen in the case of the bridges over the rivers along the coast of South Fukien, where the stone slabs used in the construction occasionally measure sixty feet in length and are estimated to weigh nearly 120 tons, and the bridges themselves have a length of 1,000 to 2,000 yards. In almost all cases where the buildings are not of solid construction the weight of the blocks employed has placed a strain upon the supports which the architect's skill was not competent to provide against, and with the lapse of time the melancholy spectacle is seen of slabs fallen from their places and of noble and costly structures approaching ruin. In some cases the interdependence of the arches leads to the same result. One notable instance of this occurred during Colonel Gordon's campaign against the Taipings, when to allow of the passage of his small steamers it was necessary to make a gap in a bridge of over twenty arches, and arch after arch collapsed immediately after the passage of his small flotilla.—London Saturday Review.

AVERAGE HUMANITY.

Most People Are Not Very Good Nor Yet Very Bad.

What do we mean by a good man or a bad one, a good woman or a bad one? Most people, like the young man in the song, are "not very good, nor yet very bad." We move about the pastures of life in huge herds, and all do the same things at the same times and for the same reasons. "Forty feeding like one." Are we mean? Well, we have done some mean things in our time. Are we generous? Occasionally we are. Were we good sons or dutiful daughters? We have both honored and dishonored our parents, who in their turn had done the same by theirs. Do we melt at the sight of misery? Indeed we do. Do we forget all about it when we have turned the corner? Frequently that is so. Do we expect to be put to open shame at the great day of judgment? We should be terribly frightened of this did we not cling to the hope that amid the shocking revelations then for the first time made public our little affairs may fall to attract much notice. Judged by the standards of humanity, few people are either good or bad. "I have not been a great sinner," said the dying Nelson; nor had he—he had only been made a great fool of by a woman. Mankind is all tarred with the same brush, though some who chance to be operated upon when the brush is fresh from the barrel get more than their share of the tar. The biography of a celebrated man usually reminds me of the outside of a coast guardman's cottage—all tar and whitewash.—Essays of Augustine Birrell.

ALLANS GET THE CONTRACT.

For Next Five Years Will Carry St. Lawrence Route Mails.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—The Allan Steamship Co. has been awarded the St. Lawrence mail contract for a term of five years. There is a provision in the contract under which the term may be extended for another five years on the condition that the Allans improve the service and put on faster steamships.

The subsidy enjoyed by the Allans is in proportion to the service given. Their last two seasons, the two liners Victorian and Virginian, each cost $5,000 a trip, and the Tunisian and Bavarian, the next two in speed, $3,750 a trip. All four have to make ten trips a year. The Virginian is at present in dock on the other side, and the Bavarian is on the rocks below Quebec. The remaining vessels of the Allan fleet are paid at the rate of $5,000 a trip, and have to make weekly journeys.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE UNIVERSAL PANACEA.

When your luck is running crosswise
And the world is looking blue,
And misfortune has its finger
Pointed right direct at you,
When the cards are stacked against you
Each deal running to the bad,
For what ails you then, my children,
Try a little old want ad.

If the cow is cross and cranky
And will not give down her milk,
If the hired girl is saucy
When she should be "fine as silk,"
If the hens remark of laying
That it is a foolish fad
And no longer their main business,
Try a little old want ad.

If you cannot find a fortune,
If you cannot find a cook,
If you cannot find a lover
Like the hero in a book,
If you cannot find a partner,
Do not worry and be sad,
For you give up quite discouraged,
Try a little old want ad.

It's a great three ply elixir,
One of which the poet sings,
Good for all the ills financial
And for several other things;
Good for catching dimes and dollars,
Suckers, husbands, wives and shad,
When you feel the lack of something
Try a little old want ad.

Near to Nature.
There is nothing more cheery than a bird in a great crowded city.

The multitude moves along unmindful of anything but the pursuit of sordid dollars or filled with prosaic wonderings as to where they will get their next meal, unmindful of the beauties of nature or the call of the woods.

If amid all the noisy din and the selfish sordid crush and hurry one may suddenly come on a little bird it carries him back to the country lanes and to the rollicking days of his childhood.

It isn't necessary that the bird should be so little either. In fact, a twenty pound turkey fills the bill quite acceptably, particularly if it is where a busy man who has brought his appetite along can get at it with a knife and fork.

If We Try.
We cannot all be presidents.
That's quite well understood.
There's eighty millions of us now,
But one may wear the hood.
We cannot all be presidents.
But we can all be good.

The Exception.
"They say lightning never strikes twice in the same spot."
"Except liquid lightning. That is the only way it can touch the spot."

Cause of Swelling.
"Jonsey has a terrible case of swelled head."
"From falling heir to a fortune?"
"No; from falling down a well."

One Kind.
"She's certainly the limit."
"When did you notice it?"
"The age limit—she has been thirty-eight for years."

Why, its very nature makes it the most natural and easy cure that human intuition and diligence have discovered. South American Rheumatic Cure is as harmless as milk. One of its marvels is the rapidity with which it effects a cure and the testimony of the thousands who have thrown away their crutches and climbed from the valley of suffering to the mountain top of health would fill a book. THE REPUBLIC'S PERIL

REV. DR. TALMAGE DISCUSSES MORMONISM IN THE U. S.

IT IS NOW A GROWING EVIL

Brigham Young He Describes as One of the Most Corrupt and Most Dangerous Men Who Ever Lived on American Soil, and His Evil Influence is Bringing Forth Its Bateful Harvest To-day.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada, in the year 1906, by Frederick T. Talbot, at the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 14.—That Mormonism constitutes a real danger to the United States and that it is a growing rather than a decreasing peril is shown in this sermon, the text for which the preacher takes from Isaiah 41, 9, "They declare their sin as Sodom; they hide it not."

The study of the lives of great men has always been with me a passion. Next to reading the works of the great authors and the speeches of the great orators I have always had a longing to know how these leaders of thought looked and lived and acted in their public and private lives. Thus as a young man when I had the opportunity of entertaining in our home Dr. Byron Sunderland, who was to preach in the Brooklyn tabernacle a couple of Sundays, I literally pumped the old man dry of all his reminiscences. Great was his well of information and personal experiences.

Dr. Byron Sunderland for nearly half a century had been a resident of Washington. He was not only known as the pastor of presidents, but for years he had been chaplain of the United States Senate. Webster and Clay and Benton and Pierce and Lincoln and Conkling and Blaine, all the mighty political giants north, south, east and west, had been his intimate friends or acquaintances. Hour after hour would speed by as the old man talked to me. I remember well the last night we were together. It was nearly 1 o'clock in the morning when I said, "Dr. Sunderland, you have been describing to me many men. Tell me the strongest personality you have ever known." Then the old man leaned back in his chair and told the following incident:

"The scene was not in Washington; it was in Salt Lake City. The man was not Webster or Clay; he was Brigham Young. Many years ago the Mormon church challenged the gentiles to a debate, and some of the leading ministers of the east took up the challenge. Bishop John P. Newman of the Methodist church and myself were delegated to meet the Mormon representatives. The debate took place in the Mormon tabernacle, which holds some 10,000 auditors. The debate has been going on for some days, and we had come to the closing night. Bishop Newman was summing up and making his peroration. With the fall of an accomplished orator he was wheeling his facts into line, and he said substantially: 'Therefore, if this is so and if that is so and if the other thing is so then we are forced to the conclusion that Mormonism stands for nothing else besides licensed libertinism and wholesale fraud.' Ten thousand angry men and women instantly leaped to their feet and began to press down toward the platform. The cry was taken up everywhere: 'Lynch him! Lynch him! Kill him! Stab the heretic's heart! Kill him! Lynch him now!'

"I sat beside Newman at the time," continued Dr. Sunderland, "I did not see one avenue of escape. Suddenly Brigham Young arose and stepped to the front of the platform. He swung his arm out over that cursing, swearing, angry mob and uttered just two words, 'Sit down!' They dropped into their seats as the grain falls before the hiss of the scythe. That was to me the most marvelous scene I ever witnessed. As I came under the leader's spell I realized that he was one of the greatest of men and one of the most dangerous, if not the most dangerous, to American liberties who had ever trodden American soil."

What Byron Sunderland said to me over fifteen years ago was absolutely true. Brigham Young was one of the greatest and one of the most corrupt men who ever lived on American soil. I have been to Salt Lake City. I have carefully read many of the books written both for the advocacy and for the condemnation of Mormonism, and from the mass of conglomerate testimony into which I have delved I can come but to one conclusion—that Joseph Smith was a crack-brained epileptic, who, with his fits of hysteria, was just the man for a little while to appeal to the ignorant and superstitious people with whom he came in contact. But Joseph Smith could never have created the Mormon church. It needed more than an epileptic visionary to do that. No sooner was Joseph Smith dead (and he died some fifteen years after he had begun to proclaim himself a prophet) than this monster manipulator, this modern Elus Beard, this leprous Frankenstein, this robber of men's gold and of women's morals, Brigham Young stepped forward and gathered together Smith's crazed followers and molded them together into a social organism, of which he was to be the chief blood letting vampire. And all that Brigham Young stood for fifty years ago the present head of the Mormon church stands for to-day, though the claw may have temporarily sunk out of sight in the soft flesh of the tiger's paw.

To show that the Mormon church to-day stands exactly where it did in Brigham Young's time I would quote part of the interview which Irving Sayford had a few months ago with one of the chief men of the hierarchy, Mariner W. Merrill, one of the twelve apostles.

Question: "Mr. Merrill, have any of the doctrines or covenants in the Mormon faith been altered or modified in respect to recent years, or do the principles, doctrines and covenants stand to-day precisely where they have always stood?"

Answer: "There have been no changes made."

Question: "If that is so, why has the Mormon church repudiated the principle of polygamy as witnessed in the manifesto of 1890?"

Answer: "You are under misapprehension. The Mormon church has not repudiated the principle of polygamy. It never will repudiate polygamy. Under the manifesto the Mormon church merely set aside temporarily the practice of plural marriage—laid it on the shelf for the time being—in obedience to the law of the land."

Question: "Then you mean to say as a member of the apostolate that polygamy is just as much a cardinal principle of Mormonism as it ever was?"

Answer: "Yes, sir. And I speak from an experience of fifty years in the church."

Could any testimony be more conclusive that the Mormon church stands to-day in all its principles just where it stood in Brigham Young's time? Now, let us begin to examine more in detail what this leprous social organism is reaching out for in this twentieth century.

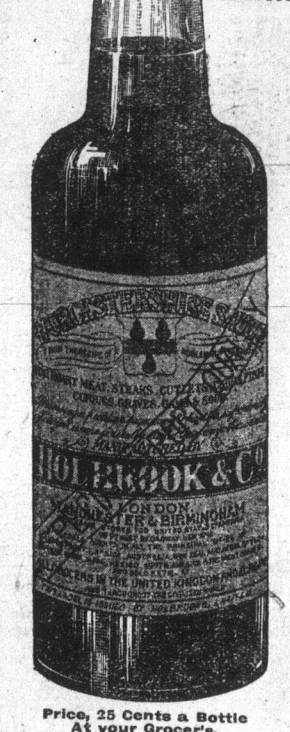

First, the Mormon church unflinchingly stands for "graft." It represents financial plunder. It is Boss Tweedism parading about the streets in the mud bespattered garments of ecclesiasticism. It is the Tripoli pirates demanding blood immunity pay from all those who come under its churchly shadow. It is the holdup call of the highwayman, demanding that the stage's passengers empty their pockets at its altars. It was conceived with the idea of financial graft, and it is perpetuated with the idea of graft. The members of the hierarchy are no more philanthropists than the buccanniers of old; they are philanthropists when he raised his black flag over the Adventurer on the Madagascar coast in the latter part of the seventeenth century.

Brigham Young did not elect himself as head of the Mormon church for the benefit of his followers any more than Boss Tweed ruled New York for the benefit of its people. He was a financial robber, pure and simple. He at once commenced to levy his taxes. This tithing system grew and grew until out of the iniquitous system Brigham Young became one of the wealthiest men in America. The world marvels at the few hundreds of thousands of dollars which members of the iniquitous political rings of New York and Philadelphia were able to steal. Why, these men were only babes in the art of financial graft compared to this monstrous adventurer. Some years ago, with the governor of what was then Utah Territory, I was driven about Salt Lake City. Almost everywhere I could see the results of Brigham Young's financial depredations. Two years after his death the Salt Lake Tribune declared that Young had secured from the tithing system of Utah over $13,000,000. Nine million dollars of this he squandered on his family; $4,000,000 he left to be fought over by his heirs. I have been told that at his death he owned one-tenth of all the wealth of Utah. Can any man read an account of such financial dealings and not declare that he was the king of grafters.

What the Mormon church stood for in its financial dealings fifty years ago it stands for to-day. By its tithing system the Mormon church has now an income of at least $2,000,000. Where is it going to? For what means is all this vast amount of money being used?

For the spread of the Mormon gospel? Oh, yes. Some of it is spent in that way, just as some of the money of the infamous Louisiana lottery was used for advertising the lottery tickets all over the world; but, without doubt, a vast percentage of that income goes into the pockets of the Mormon leaders.

"But," says some one, "you should not condemn the Mormon leaders like that. They do not compel the members of the church to 'stand and deliver' as a highwayman gruffly orders his victims to do. These church members do not have to surrender their tithes any more than the members of your church have to give into the collection plates unless they wish to do so. If the Mormon people give to Joseph P. Smith they give of their own free will. Ah, my friends, that is one of the biggest mistakes ever broadcast over this land. The Mormon victims do not give willingly. They are compelled to give, whether they are willing or not, by the thumb-screws of the boycott and financial ostracism. If you have proof of what I say read to-day the marvelous investigations of 'Mormonism Unveiled,' by Irving Sayford, already quoted. Not only does he cite facts seen with his own eyes, but he corroborates with names and dates the various means financial persecution which the Mormon leaders have used to compel to give, whether they are willing or not, by the thumb-screws of the boycott and financial ostracism. If you have proof of what I say read to-day the marvelous investigations of 'Mormonism Unveiled,' by Irving Sayford, already quoted. Not only does he cite facts seen with his own eyes, but he corroborates with names and dates the various means financial persecution which the Mormon leaders have used to compel to give, whether they are willing or not, by the thumb-screws of the boycott and financial ostracism.

But in this description of the Mormon hierarchy we must also declare that modern Mormonism stands for licensed libertinism and immorality. Many of these long-bearded apostles, by their own confession, are living to-day in open adultery. These gray-whiskered Mormon criminals before the Senate investigating committee not only unflinchingly admitted that they were living with plural wives, but they even were photographed with them and with their illegitimate offspring, born since the famous manifesto whereby the Mormon leaders declared they would only cleave to one wife thereafter.

Now, the rank and file of a church cannot be better than the leaders of a church. If you have a corrupt pupil in time you will have a corrupt pew. Dear Swift in clerical garb means Dean Swift in debauched conversation. Water by the law of specific gravity cannot rise higher than its source. Yet it is undeniable that there are many of the rank and file who are thoroughly disgusted with the odious lives and false pretenses of these leaders. To these honest ones, who long for better things, we must extend all sympathy.

Let us go and visit Salt Lake City. We stop and look in the city directory to find where the Mormon leader lives. "My," you say, "Uncle Joseph must move quite often to escape paying rent. Why, here are five different houses under his name." "Yes," I say, "he sleeps in one house, eats breakfast in another house, has supper in another house, spends the evening in another house and sleeps in another house. In each one of these homes he has a different wife. When he walks along the street forty-two different children can stop him and call out 'Hello, papa!' Uncle Joe must have a great memory to remember the faces of all these children. He must have a deep well of affection to love all of his progeny. He must be a financial genius to support all these homes and yet be a 'poor minister.'" Most of us Protestant ministers have hard work to make financial ends meet and support one wife and three or four babies, but Uncle Joe certainly can do it. I have more respect for the star gazing idiot who herds the shaggy four-legged beast leading his cattle over the western prairie than for his human libertine walking around and posing as an apostle of God and talking about love. Yes, he has love, but it is the love of a wholesale libertinism which would push its devotees out of all decent society.

While writing this sermon there lies before me a list of the domestic message of the leaders of the Mormon church. Francis M. Lyman, the president of the twelve apostles, has two wives; John H. Smith, an apostle, two wives; Heber J. Grant, apostle, five wives; John W. Taylor, apostle, seven living wives and forty-six children; Matthias F. Cowley, apostle, three wives; Rudger Clawson, two wives. Now, if these men are living in open sin, what are they doing in secret? And if these church leaders, these apostles, are living in such illicit relationships, what are the rank and file of the Mormon church doing to-day? If the truth about the libertinism of the Mormon church could be fully pictured the walls of the picture gallery of virtue and of modesty in comparison. All decency, all purity, all virtue, should rise up in wrath against the sins of the Sodom and Gomorrah of the Utah plains.

There are two means whereby it is possible to overthrow a good woman. The one is through her heart and by her love. That is not what the Mormon leaders can do. Even Brigham Young, with all his powers of persuasion, could not prove to a sensible woman that he could love equally well and at the same time twenty-five wives besides a score or more of affinities. The second way for the Mormon hierarchy to overthrow a good woman is through her religious beliefs. This is one of the ways in which the Mormon church accomplishes its infamies. The leaders of that church promulgate these two doctrines. First they say:

"A woman who is unwilling to marry and beget children is a woman who will have no part in the glories of the celestial life. Therefore it is the duty of every woman to marry, no matter what may be the desires of her heart. Love or dislike of life has nothing to do with the matter. In the Mormon world a woman must be sealed to a man or else she is doomed to eternal death." The second doctrine is like unto the first: "The highest seat in heaven for the good Mormon is for the Mormon saint who takes unto himself the greatest number of wives and rears up the greatest number of children, for on the great day of ascension God will first call up the husband. Then the husband, in turn, will call up his wives. The more wives and the more children the man can produce, the greater will be his rewards for eternity." Therefore the Mormon church says: "Woman, marry. Woman, get your husband as many wives as you can, for such is the will of God." By thus appealing to woman's superstition we find that husbands have married sisters and even mothers and daughters and had children by them all. Is it not about time for this horrible teaching to end?

But, again, says some one, "the Government has no right to stop the belief of man and woman. Here we have no union of church and state." No, the Government has no right to try to make a Baptist out of a Methodist or a Presbyterian out of a Catholic, but certainly has a right to stop any teachings that lead directly to crime or which may be used to overthrow a man's or a woman's morals. The Indian Government certainly had a right to interfere and stop mothers casting their children to the crocodiles in the Ganges. It certainly had a right to stop the widow-burning and the Indian Juggernaut. Our Government certainly has a right to forbid the use of the mails for vile literature and for the selling of lottery tickets, and it certainly has a right to stop the crime of polygamy at its source and to compel all citizens to obey the statute of the land. Utah as a state pledged herself to such obedience, but she violated her solemn pledge. The Government has a right, therefore, to enforce the laws and prevent our land from being overrun with the crime of polygamy and with illegitimate offspring. The superstitious teachings of Mormonism are responsible for these conditions. The degradation of women is its object, by fair means or by foul, by the door of sin or by the narrow gate of blinded superstition.

Representatives of Mormonism should be forever debarred from entering our congressional halls or participating in legislation on the ground that they, as Mormons, owe first allegiance to the Mormon hierarchy. Their oath of allegiance to the hierarchy is in direct antagonism to the spirit and purpose of American citizenship. It binds them hand and foot like slaves. Utah to-day is struggling in the grip of this monstrous evil as Laocoon and his sons were struggling in the grip of the deadly serpent. Like a demon, this evil church is casting its malignant eye on every part of our fair land. Beware, O Americans, lest its blasting breath may yet touch your own home! Are not the Mormons after our own state as well as Utah? With their infamous teaching are they not after every home, every city? Is not even the White House at Washington the throne of power at which they are casting longing eyes?

I beg and plead with all Christian people to be much on their knees in prayer, that God will cut out the cancer of Mormonism from this nation, as he cut out the cancer of slavery. For mark you, if Mormonism is not soon eradicated and stamped out, there may come a time when God will demand its obliteration at any sacrifice.

MORE DEADLY THAN FAMINE.

Neglected catarrh sooner or later causes consumption, which destroys more human beings than famine and war combined. The way "Catarrh" cures catarrh is very simple; it first kills the germs that cause the irritation; then by soothing away the congestion and inflammation it cures the discharge, hawking and drooping in the throat. "I suffered so originally from nasal catarrh," writes Ernest H. Dakin, of Rosemont, "that I sorely know what it was to be free from headache and pain over the eyes. Catarrh relieved me at once and made a thorough cure." No other remedy cures like Catarrh—try it for your next cold.

Minister Dead; Wife Ill.

Brookville, Jan. 19.—The death of Rev. James Dunham, after an illness of several days with pneumonia, occurred yesterday at Hamilton, N. Y. Mr. Dunham held many important charges in the Montreal Methodist conference. His body will be interred at Phillipsville, Ont. Mrs. Dunham is also taken ill and in a critical condition.

The cause of sleeplessness is removed, health is restored—you can work, eat, sleep—feel like new after using Ferrozone. Don't put off—Ferrozone costs 50c. per box at all dealers; get it to-day.

Rotten Life Belts.

New York, Jan. 19.—Evidence that there were many rotten life belts on the steamer General Slocum when over 1,000 lives were lost during the burning of the steamer in June, 1904, was given yesterday at the trial of Captain William H. Van Schick of the General Slocum, who is charged with criminal negligence.

KEEP THE BOWELS REGULAR.

If your bowels didn't move for a week you would be prostrated. If more than one day goes by you become languid, blood gets bad, breath horribly offensive, you feel sick all over. To remedy this take Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which regulate the bowels and cure constipation. Taken at night you are well by morning. They purify and cleanse the system, prevent headache, biliousness and sick stomach. Prompt and certain are Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, 25c. per box or five for $1.00 at all dealers.
