MORE DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN EXEMPTION IN BRITAIN

London, Nov. 10.—A general review of the present attitude of British tribunals towards applicants for exemption will doubtless interest Canadian Speaking broadly, any man under 30 whether married or single, in any industrial category, has little chance of securing exemption on personal grounds, and men passed for general service, even those with several children or who are sole remaining sons have practically no chance of exemption unless engaged in work of national importance.

"The task of securing these exemptions was recently transferred from the military authorities to the Ministry of National Service, and the indications are that the change will produce a still further stiffening of the process. Many of the medical categories following occupational exemptions in the war should be dropped without delay into more useful work."

"All the same, the Ministry of National Service emphasizes the necessity of guarding against a certain proportion of young men remaining in 'surplus' categories, since such work is being done by a proportion of young men in the army. The whole aim, in fact, is now to concentrate the entire able-bodied population of military age distributed equitably between the forces in the field and the civil forces on war work."

FOOD CONTROL

Dr. Kierstead, of the University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, delivered a most eloquent address on the subject of Food Control before a very large audience in the Memorial Hall on the evening of Friday, Nov. 10. The Mayor being unable to attend, the chair was taken by the Rev. W. M. Fraser, who in a few words introduced the speaker of the evening.

"The present condition of the world's supply of food has summed up in a masterly way, showing how the land under cultivation in Europe had decreased, the available labor had decreased, much food had been sunk in torpedoed ships, the crops had not been normal in yield; how, for our Allies, the sources of supply from distant countries was cut off by the 'lick of sabotage' to convey the food; how the business of carrying on a war was using up the energy of those engaged in it so that they consumed more food than they had produced; and how the vitalizing force of an army would not be there without some wastage! The shortage of wheat and beef and animal fats which we and our Allies had to face today was grave in the extreme. So grave was it that, very shortly, while ago, the President of the United States had called for a 'war ration' of food, and Wilson to send supplies of food at once or he would not keep his soldiers in the trenches; their families were starving and they would go to them at all costs if they were not supplied."

"All that Proctor and old Hezeman. They pool in together."

FOOD PARCELS FOR OFFICER PRISONERS OF WAR IN GERMANY

In connection with the scheme instituted by the British Government last year for the distribution of parcels of food to Officer Prisoners of War interned in Germany and Austria-Hungary, the Canadian Red Cross Society, London, England, has announced that it will send parcels of food to these prisoners during the four weeks ending Nov. 15, 1917.

"The right to send food parcels to an Officer Prisoner of War rests with the parent of the prisoner, but may be transferred by the latter or by the Prisoner of War himself to any person. It is advisable that application should be made to the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, London, England, for the necessary coupons for parcels packed personally at the earliest possible moment. These coupons are to be used on food parcels only and no coupons can be issued for amounts under ten pounds. If, therefore, it is desired to dispatch a parcel weighing less than ten pounds an ordinary coupon must be used and the parcel counts as one of the four permissible in four weeks."

"The needs of Officer Prisoners of War holding commissions in the Imperial Army are looked after by the Central Prisoners of War Committee, Tisbury Place, London, W. W. England. This Committee will supply the necessary coupons to the need of kind of these Officers, which regulations remain unchanged."

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[November 15 to November 21.]

An eventful week, indeed, was the one under review, and its results were eminently satisfactory to the British arms and to those of their gallant French and Italian Allies.

In the Western campaign in the early part of the week the British strengthened and extended their front northeast of Ypres, and successfully repelled many and tremendous attacks by the Teuton forces. The casualty lists indicate the ferocity of the fighting. In the latter part of the week the British made a surprise attack in Picardy along a front nearly 32 miles in extent, extending from the River Scarpe on the north to near St. Quentin on the south, and penetrated as far as the enemy's second line of defence at several points. The drive was in progress at the week's close, and had reached a point within five miles of Cambrai, which is presumably the immediate objective. More than 8,000 prisoners were taken, and very great quantities of munitions and guns.

The success was one of the most spectacular of the whole war, and its result will be far-reaching. The French were heavily engaged all week on the Meuse, and scored important successes. Altogether the week was a most satisfactory one to the Entente Allies on the Western front.

Of the Russian campaign during the week nothing can be said, for little or no news thereof was forthcoming. The internal affairs of the great nation were in a most serious state, and riot, pillage, and bloodshed were reported in many parts of the country. The extremists of the Provisional Government headed by Kerensky, who had to seek safety in flight, but their triumph seemed to be incomplete and likely to be of short duration. What the ultimate outcome is to be it is impossible to conjecture; but one thing is certain, Russia cannot take any active and effective part in the war until some concord and a strong executive are established within.

Of the British military operations in Mesopotamia, the week was without news, but the sad announcement was made of the death of General Maude after a brief illness.

Great success was reported of the British operations in Palestine. Jaffa being taken, and a point being reached within five miles of Jerusalem. Since Beersheba was taken over two weeks previously the British steadily drove the Turks before them, capturing over 8,000 prisoners and great quantities of war material, including heavy guns.

The news from the East African campaign was equally satisfactory, the British and Belgians having captured the last German gun of large calibre, and secured many prisoners. The Germans and their native troops not captured were driven southeastward from Mahenge, and the enveloping forces were narrowing their circuit, so that the final stand cannot be much longer delayed.

Some activity was reported in the Balkan campaign, but nothing that resulted in any change of positions. The Italian campaign was marked by a definite check of the Teuton forces at the Piave River, and in the north at one point the Italians were able to take the offensive and to capture 1200 prisoners. The situation was still a very serious one for the Italians, but reinforcements were being rapidly moved to points where they were most needed, and there was a hope that the tide of combat would soon turn again in favor of the Italians.

The submarine campaign of the Germans yielded an average result in merchant shipping destroyed; but the statement made in the British House of Commons by the Prime Minister were driven German submarines were destroyed on Saturday last would indicate that the British, aided by the Americans and French, were getting the submarine menace well under control.

THE ELECTION

THE election campaign in Canada is now in full swing, Monday having been nomination day, and in all except twenty constituencies there will be a contest. It was hoped up to the last moment that a contest might be avoided in Charlotte County, but unfortunately this was not accomplished. Upon whom the responsibility rests for failure to call a joint convention of both political parties will be interned until the end of the war. He is alleged to have been aiding the enemy financially, but the officials are silent as to what methods he employed in doing so.

VICTORY BONDS

The sale of Victory Bonds in Charlotte County is meeting with great success, as was to be expected, the total amount subscribed in the whole County to date being in excess of $300,000. Rents in the town are at a premium, several families looking for rooms have been unable to find suitable quarters. It is hoped the new saw mill being in operation will stimulate the building trade, and that some of our capitalists will erect tenements for would-be residents.

The hunting season is drawing to a close and may be put down as the poorest for years. Big game is beyond doubt becoming scarce, and legislation may be necessary if we wish to preserve our deer, moose, and partridges.

Mrs. Moran is confined to the house through illness. The Town Council meets to-night, Wednesday, in the Town Hall. Mayor Lawrence visited St. John on Monday. Miss Helen Taylor visited the Border Towns this week.

Mrs. J. Wells Fraser, with her young son and two maids, left on Wednesday evening for her new home in Peterboro. Mr. Fraser has been in Ottawa for a few days before going to take up the management of the branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in Peterboro.

Miss Julia McGinchee has returned from a pleasant visit in Providence R. I. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Reidmond of Grand Manan were in St. Stephen for a brief visit last week, when they left for Boston. For a Kicker's Breakfast!

Most men are critical about coffee. They travel around among the best hotels and taste coffee prepared by expert chefs. Now Red Rose Coffee was produced especially to meet the critic's keen, educated taste. It is a blend of the richest coffees, and is crushed—not ground. Some men, whom we know to be real kickers, have been kind enough to say that the flavor is equal to that of any coffee they have ever tasted. If you are a kicker, have your wife make you a cup and then tell us what you think of Red Rose Coffee.

The same price as it was three years ago.

Paints and Varnishes

Fire may never come, but the deteriorating effect of the weather on buildings of every kind is certain, unless protected by paint.

Unprotected wooden surfaces crack and become open and porous, then decay and rot starts. This means expensive repairs, which can all be avoided by the regular use of paint.

Examine your buildings now—A little money spent in painting at once may save you much larger expenditure a little later.

Sherwin-Williams Paint, Prepared, is the ideal paint for outside use. It is made of the purest and best materials, thoroughly mixed and ground by powerful machinery according to special formulae, the result of years of experiment and experience in paint making.

GALLANT CONDUCT OF A ST. ANDREWS BOY

Frank Grimmer, now on active service with the Canadian Pioneers in Belgium, has shown himself to be a son that St. Andrews may well be proud of, as may be seen from the following extract taken from a letter written by Lieut. R. H. Goodchild to his wife.

"Frank Grimmer proved himself a brave chap and a real comrade when he went to the help of a chap who was killed by a shell which had knocked Frank over by the force of its explosion. He was the only one of the party of several who did not run away at the time. Monty told me of this, as he had charge of the party."

OBITUARY

GEN. SIR F. S. MAUDE London, Nov. 19.—General Sir F. S. Maude, British commander in Mesopotamia, died yesterday.

An official announcement issued today says General Maude died in Mesopotamia after a brief illness.

Major-General Sir Frederick Stanley Maude, the captor of Baghdad was rated as one of the most brilliant commanders of the war. After a series of British defeats in Mesopotamia, General Maude was placed in command late last year and won an unbroken series of successes. Advancing from the Babylonian plains, he captured Kut-el-Amara, where General Townshend's army had been compelled to surrender. He continued his drive up the Tigris, advancing 90 miles in two weeks, and last March captured Baghdad.

With the opening of the new campaign this fall he pushed up the Tigris more than 100 miles beyond Baghdad.

General Maude was fifty-three years old. He had a distinguished military record before the war. He took part in the Sudan campaign in 1885 and received the medal with clasp and the Khedive's star. He served with distinction in the South African War, where he won the Distinguished Service Order and the Queen's Medal with six clasps.

Prior to taking command in Mesopotamia General Maude saw service in France, where he was wounded. He was mentioned five times in the dispatches and made a Commander of the Bath.

JOHN ALPHA COUGHEY News reached St. Andrews last week of the death of John Alpha Coughley, age 49, at his home in Edson, Alberta, on Wednesday evening, November 7. He is survived by his widow, who was formerly Mrs. Erlena Giberson and is a daughter of Rev. Allen Sisson, of Perth, N. B.; and by three sons, Ernest James, Murray

Allen, and John Russell, all of Edmonton, Alberta. He also leaves a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. James Coughley, of Perth, N. B.; and one sister, Mrs. Maude Hetherington, McAdam, N. B.; and one brother, Thos. J. Coughley, of St. Andrews.

The deceased was a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Edson, Alberta, and of the Knights of Pythias of St. Stephen, N. B. He had been employed by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway for the past seven years. The Edson Knights of Pythias and the Brotherhood took the body in charge until it came East. It arrived in St. Andrews on Saturday last, and the funeral took place on Sunday, November 18, at his brother's home, where services were held by Rev. William Amos, of the Baptist Church, assisted by the Church Choir; after which the Knights of Pythias of St. Stephen and St. Andrews formed an escort, and officiated at the grave. The pall-bearers were Mr. J. R. Polley and Mr. Alexander Hannan, of St. Stephen, and Mr. Shier Johnson and Mr. Alexander McFarlane, of St. Andrews.

MISS INEZ FOUNTAIN Death under all circumstances is sad, but particularly so when it removes from the family circle, the brightest and most promising of our young. Such was the case in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fountain, of Eastport Me., but formerly of Cumming's Cove, Deer Island N. B. when on Friday morning last their eldest daughter, Inez, a beautiful and attractive young girl of fifteen years passed away, and her illness extended over several months and all that medical aid and loving parents could do, was done, to allay that dread disease, tuberculosis. Several months ago she was conveyed to a Sanatorium in Maine, hoping that the change and treatment there might prove effectual, but the disease was too deeply seated. She was patient throughout her illness, and conscious of the fact that she was one of God's children. She leaves her sorrowing parents, one sister and one brother of the immediate family, besides numerous other relatives and a host of friends. The funeral services were conducted from the home on Sunday after-noon by her pastor, Rev. A. C. Berrie. Interment was in the cemetery at Eastport Me.

- 1 tablespoon molasses

Pour milk over crumbs, and soak thirty minutes; add salt, yeast cake dissolved in lukewarm water, and buckwheat to make a batter thin enough to pour. Let rise over night; in the morning, stir well, add molasses, one-fourth teaspoon soda dissolved in one-fourth cup lukewarm water, and cook same as griddle cakes. Save enough batter to raise another mixing, instead of using yeast cake; it will require one-half cup.

Creamed Finnan Haddie—

Pour boiling water over the Finnan Haddie. Leave a few minutes, and pour off. This takes away some of the smoky taste. Lay the fish in a baking-pan and cover with milk or water. Cook gently in the oven until done. Make a white sauce, using the milk that is on the fish. To one cup of this milk use two tablespoons of flour, one tablespoon of butter and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. It requires no salt. Carefully remove the bones from the fish, breaking it as little as possible. Add this flaked fish to the White Sauce. Reheat, and serve at once.

Graham Flour Biscuits—

- 2 cups Graham flour
- 1 cup sweet milk
- 1 level teaspoon baking powder

THE FOOD CONTROLLER'S AIMS

The food controller is well aware that in many homes of the Dominion very considerable economies in food have been effected voluntarily since the war began. In thousands of other homes high prices of food have compelled the utmost economy in selection and in apportionment to the various members of the family. The Food Controller aims that, as far as possible, there should be sufficient and suitable food for the people of Canada at prices which are no higher than are absolutely necessary under present conditions of supply and cost of production.

Seventy per cent of the people of Canada are as thrifty and careful as any in the world. They consume but little or no more than is necessary to maintain their physical strength. The Food Controller does not ask these people to reduce their consumption below the amount necessary to maintain their efficiency, but he does ask them to substitute other foods, as far as possible, for wheat, beef and bacon, which are needed by the soldiers overseas. There is still a considerable minority of the people of Canada who can and should reduce their consumption of food by simpler living. Substitutes may involve some sacrifice but surely the men at the front are deserving that such sacrifice should be made. Elimination of waste is a patriotic service in which the most humble and the most prosperous can contribute. It is no exaggeration to say that every ounce of waste is a contribution towards starvation.

CONVICTED AS A SPY IN ENGLAND

London, November 9.—Official announcement was made to-day of the conviction of a Belgian as a spy, as follows: "A Belgian subject was tried by the general court-martial in London on September 24 and 25, on the charge that he had come to the United Kingdom with the intent to commit acts of espionage on behalf of the enemy. He was found guilty and sentenced to death. The sentence was duly confirmed, and subsequently was commuted to penal servitude for life."

PASSPORT RULE STRINGENT

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—It is announced in the current issue of the Canada Gazette that, at the request of the United States authorities, notice is given that persons en route from Canada through the United States to another country must carry regular passports, which must be approved by United States consuls in Canada.

A NEW PRIVILEGE

FINANCE MINISTER ANNOUNCES THAT ALL VICTORY BONDS MAY BE REGISTERED

The following announcement has been made from Ottawa.—The Finance Minister of Canada has issued a new instruction in connection with the Victory Bonds, which will be of much benefit and importance to many small investors. He has decided to grant the privilege of the registration of all bonds, that is to say, that bonds of all denominations, including the $50 bond, may be registered as to principal and as to principal and interest. In previous loans the privilege of registration was necessarily confined to bonds of the large denomination, such as $1,000 bonds or more. Bonds of lower denominations were issued as bearer bonds, with coupons attached, and while carrying equal benefits as to principal and interest were liable to being lost by the owners. Under the privilege now given by the Finance Minister, the buyer of any bond (whatever the denomination), may have it registered, in which case the interest will be paid by cheque, and the bond, if lost, may be replaced after proper evidence has been shown. It is believed that this privilege will be greatly appreciated by many thousands of small investors, who will thus be assured of the absolute safety of their investment even against fire or carelessness or any other accidental cause of loss. This improvement in the issue will involve extra work upon the Department of Finance, but Sir Thomas White considers that its benefits will more than offset the labor involved.

THE LORD MAYOR'S MENU

London, Nov. 12.—In view of the criticism which the decision to hold a Lord Mayor's banquet on Friday night aroused, the menu was cut down to a scale of simplicity such as was never previously seen at the Guildhall. It was set out as follows: Clear soup, filets of sole, casserole of partridges, baron of beef, sweetmeats. The soup was, as usual, real turtle. Potatoes baked, were the only vegetable. The sweets were ice cream and jellies. The only wine was champagne. Food Controller Rhonda, who accepted an invitation to the banquet, was not present.

When you want Pretty Patterns in Linoleums and Mattings see Ours.

Dear Mary:—
I've just finished "putting down" my new linoleums and mattings. How neat and clean my kitchen looks! How cool my bedrooms are and how easy to sweep and keep tidy!
My "girl" just sings as she works. She was getting cross before. I don't blame her. I ought to have been considerate of her surroundings as well as my own.
When you come over and see how refreshed my whole home is since I've fixed the floors, you too will get some new linoleum and matting.
Come over—HELEN.

JONATHAN SWIFT

Jonathan Swift. The Leslie Stephen Lecture, delivered before the University of Cambridge on May 26th, 1917, by C. Whibley, M. A., Honorary Fellow of Jesus College, 1st ed. net. Cambridge University Press.

THE aim of a portrait-painter, Tennyson tells us, is "divinely through all hindrance" to see the man "and then to represent him 'ever at his best and greatest.'" And for the artist, no doubt, some such principle holds good. No one desires to produce, or possess, a portrait that only repeats. There may be what is called "ugliness" about it—such, for instance, as is to be found in portraits of Johnson, but the preponderating effect must be somehow to please and to suggest excellence of some kind. In literary portraits on the other hand no such law seems to prevail, for, although the ordinary "Life of So-and-So" invariably flatters, with great historical figures it is certainly often otherwise, so that, while the maxim De Mortuis nihil nisi bonum is on every lip, it is exactly against the dead that all the passions and prejudices which pervert our judgement exercise their fullest power. And the reason for this is not unclear. For human character is a very complex thing, even in ordinary folk, while in men of power—above all in those who have made their way by hard struggles—the qualities which compose it are often in violent disagreement. Has Imitis viri virtutes ingenia sua sequuntur, wrote Livy of Hannibal, and the like could be said of hundreds of the mighty dead who either by their words or their deeds command the perpetual interest of mankind. Their greatness is incontestable, they are the giants of our race; but there is much about them that perplexes, so that we can form no clear, definite image of the real man. And then comes the portrait-painter—historian, biographer or novelist—and says "Behold! But, unhappily, he can see and portray only the image in his own mind. He may make a hero out of a scoundrel, as Carlyle did with Frederick, or, in fact, he may adopt the reverse method, and in dealing with a great writer whose prejudices were only equalled by his virtues, his strength by his infirmity, and his wit by his coarseness—who shall draw the man as he really was? Who shall show us Jonathan Swift with the exact lineaments and just coloring of truth? Assuredly no task could be harder; but neglect half his character and nothing could be easier. With a few bold and lurid phrases a schoolboy could off-hand give him the outline of the devil or the coloring of Meville's Satan.

say whether he was only "a ribald priest," or to the memorandum of his expenditure for the year 1701, amounting in all to £100, judge Swift a little by the last three items: "Gifts and charity extraordinary, £10; Charity common, £2 10s.; Expenses common, £17."

But it is needless to go further, for the portrait of Swift has been drawn for all time by a great artist. The "Memoirs" which Walter Scott prefixed to his edition of Swift's works present a picture of the man which is at once true to fact, and executed with that care, that ability and, above all, that sympathy which are the proper debt of genius to genius. There is neither extenuation nor concealment. You can see the man at his best, and also at his worst, as, for instance, when he stalks into Vanessa's room at Marley Abbey, his face terrible with anger, "flings a letter on the table," utters no word, but "instantly quits the house, mounts his horse and returns to Dublin," leaving the woman, whose only crime was love, relentlessly to her death. It is a horrible scene, and there is much both in Swift's life and writings that stirs only aversion—almost loathing. But none the less he is, more perhaps than any other great writer, essentially a tragic figure. His whole life is a tragedy; he is as interesting as Hamlet, or King Lear, and Scott—scarcely a master of literary portraiture—has set him alive and breathing before our eyes. We may condemn or criticize as we will, but to read his "Memoirs of Jonathan Swift, D. D." is to be overpowered by that sense of awe which comes from witnessing a strange yet noble nature at perpetual odds with stern and inexorable fate.

It is just, however, this tragic greatness of Swift's life which Mr. Whibley treats at Cambridge his business was to afford an hour's interest to an academic audience, and his lectures, as he publishes, do exactly the same for the educated reader. He writes, as he always does, admirably; he offers happy entertainment and provides it. But his portrait, assuredly, lacks light and shade. He needed the deftness of the artist, the tact of the diplomat, the subtlety of the statesman, the balance and Vanessa; he says nothing about such points as "Chloe and Stephen," he claims that Swift was no "misanthrope" because, though he hated mankind, he loved his friends, and that he was a cynic, because a cynic, it seems, though Diogenes would perhaps have rejected the definition—no one who looks upon life and morals with an indifferent curiosity, and "whose levity persuaded him to smile upon the vices of others" and he concludes by showing that Swift's style with "its proper words in proper places" and the simple words that could be found, was a better style than Johnson's, who loves "balance and art in his style, and who, though he is unhappy if there is not, here and there, a polysyllable to hold the lesser words in subjection."

None the less, although Mr. Whibley sketches Swift only with a light and, perhaps, too light touch, he brings out in a true light some features which other writers have distorted, and, if it induces some readers to turn for a fuller presentation to the Dean's own writings and to Scott's great biography, it will have served its purpose. * * * T. NEW BRUNSWICK THE LAND OF PROMISE

Every native of New Brunswick, whether at home or abroad, will be interested in the New Brunswick number of the Bay East of Canada which has just been issued. This magazine, which has been making steady and marked improvement of late, has certainly touched a high degree of excellence in its latest effort, which is replete with splendid articles, with very many illustrations, which help to tell the story of New Brunswick's resources and possibilities. The cover design is exceedingly attractive showing the leading provincial industries, farming, lumbering, fishing and manufacturing. The frontispiece is a four-color reproduction of one of Horne Russell's paintings, "Low Tide in New Brunswick," and adds distinctiveness to an issue which the Maritime Provinces may well be proud.

HOW THE TROUBLE STARTS

If more people knew how Rheumatism and kindred ills started there would be infinitely less suffering. It should be a matter of popular knowledge that the blood stream completes the circulation of the body in approximately three minutes, and that being up waste matters. It is the function of the Kidneys to remove these impurities or poisons from the blood and eliminate them from the body. Should there be any derangement of the Kidney action the poisons are not eliminated but are carried around again in the blood stream, to accumulate slowly and occasion sickness and distress. Then follow pains in the back, in the region of the Kidneys, Rheumatism, constant headaches, and the many complaints arising from derangements of the Kidneys or Bladder. First, the Kidneys must be put in order, and regulated, these organs are healed and regulated, no real health is possible. GIN PILLS contain the medicinal and tonic properties that the Kidneys require. You can get Gin Pills at all dealers—box a box or 6 boxes for $2.50, or a sample will be sent free upon request to the National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto, or to the U.
