To the Members of Grace Church:

For the last Sunday in October Rev. S. Bennett will take the service at 11 a. m. The Sunday School and Bible classes will be held at 2 p. m. Ven. Archdeacon MacIntosh, of Dundas, will preach at 3 p. m. in connection with our Rally Day services. This is our annual effort to rouse more interest in Sunday School work. Our congregations are reminded of the fact that the Sunday School occupies less than one hour in each week. Consider how much can be done after prayers and hymns are sung and said. How despairing a teacher is when some children come after the lesson is half over. How much more so, when the parents have not taken the trouble to see that the child has looked at his lesson leaflet. What if this method were pursued in the Public School? Would the child be able to read or write? Religion is of the greatest meaning. It feeds the soul as well as the mind. How small a part it takes in the growing, or grown up, life of Canadians. What wonderful blessings are lost. Conscience is not satisfied, solid joy never gained, sure ground for the present life never entered upon, consoling hope for the life to come never fastened to any abiding confidence.

Let us, dear brothers and sisters, get at true values of things. We cannot live for self only. We soon would die. Our interest must reach out to others even if only for the sake of self. Consider others you consider yourself. Here is where our Christian schooling reaches out to improve the moral life of the whole world. If true righteousness held its place everywhere, what a world it would be! For Christians, what an entrancing prospect lies ahead. Bend your efforts to this inviting task. There bars in our way. These must not cause us to lessen effort. Individuals must have abiding, prevailing Faith. Congregations must have abiding Conquering Faith.

For the first Sunday in November Rev. Prof. Morris will take the services morning and evening. Your Rector is reading, praying, sermonising, meditating and taking some rest. Good news from your services shall, I am sure, be encouraging.

Yours faithfully,
H. J. LEAKE.

L. O. L. Meeting

On Friday evening, October 6th Waterdown L. O. L. No. 2837 held a degree meeting for the purpose of exalting a number of candidates to the Royal Arch Purple Degree. Invitations were extended to the Hamilton brethren and also to Dundas and Carlisle brethren, all of whom turned out in goodly numbers. Five candidates were exalted to the Royal Arch Purple Degree, the Dundas Degree Team taking charge of the Degree work, which they did to a nicety. Wor. Bro. John McNiven, Past County Master, occupied the chair. The meeting opened on the Orange Degree, with W. M. J. Rutledge in the chair. At the close of the Orange Degree the Dundas brethren took charge for the remainder of the evening. After closing the Lodge the Waterdown brethren served lunch and coffee to the visitors, the meeting being closed after singing God Save the King. Among the visiting brethren were, Bro. A. A. Peall, County Master; Bro. J. W. Dickson, Past County Master; Bro. J. McNevin, Past County Master; Bro. T. Dove, County Secretary, as well as numerous Past Masters and Masters. In all nearly one hundred brethren sat down to lunch. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all, and strenuous efforts will be put forward by the Waterdown brethren to have a repetition of this meeting in the near future.

FULFILLING A DUTY.

THE REAL LIFE WORK OF THE WOMAN WHO NEVER MARRIES.

She is Generally Owned by a Syndicate—Smooths Out the Rough Places—Helper and Comforter at Cradle, Altar and Grave.

Any woman can marry some sort of a fellow. 'Tis the sheerest folly to question that. It is an infinitely bigger achievement to remain unmarried—as many sensible women do—from a keen sense of duty to others, loyalty to a high ideal or for a wider sphere of action, which is fortunate for the rest of humanity, for the world would swing along very lamely without the unmarried woman.

She is generally owned by a syndicate composed of the various members of her family, and she is passed back and forth among them—a sort of jointly possessed treasure—to be loaned wherever it happens to be most required, frequently serving as the uniting link between the dis-secting factions thereof. She feels all the interest of an owner in the worldly possessions of the lucky syndicate which knows her ministering, and yet in all this great universe she owns absolutely nothing. For more than one reason she is a tremendous source of comfort when things go wrong, the sort of things that cause a man to blaspheme under his breath and cast about in his mind for somebody to lay the blame on. She makes a fairly good scapegoat after years have tanned her spirit and taught her the wisdom of silence. While she has youth and attractiveness she finds it very true that marriage is possible for any woman. She may discuss by the hour; she may write about it at a certain rate per column; she may dream of the bliss of possessing a home and a real sure enough man all to herself; of the satisfaction of indulging her own tastes and following her own inclinations; of the sweetness of an unselfish love and the soothing of a man's sympathy when heartaches and other ills were strong; of the pleasant sense of protection that comes with a man's arm always between her and the world.

She may even have an occasional idea of trying the experiment with some particular one of her numerous admirers, but when she looks around and sees the many empty places that nobody else can fill and remembers the many people who need her she hasn't quite the nerve to desert her post. She believes that another woman will console each man in whose life she has created an aching void and that no one can fill the other gaps. She is convinced that it would be selfish just then for her to think of marriage for herself.

As she grows older and these temptations come less often she fills the sentiment craving side of her nature with other people's love affairs. Many a matrimonial aspirant goes to her for a brace when his soul is sick with uncertainty and goes away with a certain buoyancy and sense of peace. It probably requires much grace and tact to know just how to behave when people you've tended through sundry infantile ills and spanked and bossed generally begin to wear grown up airs and be patronizing. It's even worse when they loftily take you into their confidence about some budding romance, going into all the details for fear you wouldn't understand, you, who've been there so many times, but the unmarried woman is equal to even this, and she gets the lion's share of these confidences too. Being very mortal, there come times to her when she wonders why God gave her such splendid abilities and permitted circumstances to curtail the possibility of their development; why he gave her a soul with such infinite capacity for loving and enjoying and withheld from her the beautiful things of life and the realization of her ideal.

When she consecrates her life to her kith and kin, she almost invariably carries with her the possibilities of physician, nurse, cook, housemaid and, when an emergency arises, general commanding the whole situation. She's "a rock in a weary land" when a small, pink, sticky edition of humanity arrives on the scene. She halves the sorrows and burdens and failures and doubles the joys and successes with which she is enticed upon to sympathize. She it is who gracefully crowns with tulle and orange blossoms the girl who walks down the flower bedecked aisle to stately wedding music, to return a wife. Her fingers press down the lids over eyes she had loved and bid the departing spirit god-speed on its last journey, and with quivering heart and throbbing brain under a calm exterior she goes about soothing grief less bitter than her own, because it finds relief in expression.

When she dies, there is sorrow inconsolable in many rudderless homes over the first loss she has ever failed to lighten, and for the longest time they wonder how they can find existence possible without her. They never before realized her actual worth; she had been a part of their daily necessities always. They speak of her with hushed voices and sorrowfully as though she had gone away on a long, wearisome journey, when she has only fallen asleep after a brave struggle to find her first real rest.

Yet some people actually declare that the woman who doesn't marry fails to fulfill her whole duty to the race.—Adelle E. Shaw in Housekeeper.

Prevention of Tuberculosis In Poultry.

It is absolutely useless to treat poultry which is suffering from tuberculosis with any sort of medicine or patent poultry tonics. Preparations which guarantee to cure this disease are pronounced frauds by scientists. Once the bird is infected there is no cure. All effort should be directed to prevent the healthy birds from contracting the disease.

If the flock is small and not of great value and if several birds have died or are known to be affected, it would probably be the part of wisdom to destroy the whole flock and start over again. The poultry house should be scrubbed out with good disinfectant and the walls whitewashed. If the floor of the house is dirt, remove about six inches and bury it out of the way. Resurface with fresh, clean soil. If the floor is well made of either concrete, tile or wood, soak thoroughly with disinfectant. If the floor is not of good material or hard to clean, lay a new one over the old. Turn over the soil in the runs. Boil drinking cups and cleanse all other utensils. After this is well done, secure the new birds, being very careful to purchase them from a flock which is free from the disease.

If the flock is large or valuable and it is decided to attempt eradication without destroying all the fowls, great care and attention, even to the smallest details, are necessary. One will, of course, overlook some of the diseased birds on the first examination, but they may be observed later on when the symptoms are better developed. Keep the floor as free from droppings as possible, and clean out and disinfect at least once a week. Do not allow the young birds to run with the older ones, for they are easily infected. After the first general weeding out, watch the rest and as soon as one begins to appear diseased, remove it from the flock and keep it alone, and then if it develops further symptoms destroy it at once.

For young pigs on pasture the self-feeder has given satisfactory results. Slightly more grain may be required, which is offset by economizing of labor.

The man who improves the live stock of a community or gives it a better variety of corn is deserving of praise as well as he who "plucks glory from the cannon's mouth."—W. A. Lloyd.

Less Pot-washing

SMP Enameled Ware has the smooth surface and polish of fine crockery—without the breakage. And it is so very easy to clean—just like china, and therefore makes light work of pot washing.

Whenever you are buying kitchen utensils be sure they carry the SMP trade-mark.

Diamond Ware is a three-coated enameled steel, sky blue and white outside with a snowy white lining. Pearl Ware is a two-coated enameled steel, pearl grey outside and inside. You can't go wrong if you buy either.

GROWING SWEET PEAS

Getting the Very Best From This Beautiful Flower.

Location and Soil Suggested—Early Sowing Desirable—Good Support and Frequent Picking Necessary.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Location.—An open, sunny position in the garden suits them very well. Close up to a building or near to a close board fence facing the south is not a good place for them as the intense heat of the sun induces attacks of insect pests. An east, west, or north exposure close to a fence is not so objectionable, except perhaps a direct northern exposure. Near to an open wire fence or trellis fence is not objectionable.

Soil.—A deep, fairly rich loamy soil is best. If the ground is poor or gravelly or heavy clay, dig a trench the length required from 12 to 15 inches deep and about 10 inches wide. Place about two inches in depth of well rooted barnyard manure or cow manure in the bottom of the trench, then fill the trench up with well enriched loamy soil. Deep digging is necessary for sweet peas even in good soil. Never sow sweet peas twice in succession in the same soil; a part of the soil at least should be renewed every year. Prepare trench or ground for sweet peas the previous fall if possible.

When to Sow.—Sow as early in the spring as the ground can be worked. The seed may be soaked in lukewarm water before sowing for six or eight hours to hasten germination.

How to Sow.—Make a drill about two inches in depth. Sow the seed about two inches apart. Cover with nearly two inches of fine soil. (The Spencer type of Sweet Peas is the best kind to sow.)

Thinning.—Thin the plants when about six inches in height to three or four inches apart.

Support.—Wide meshed chicken wire five feet in height, maple brush-wood or coarse twine may be used for support. Netting made of coarse twine makes an ideal support, better than wire, as the plants cling to it better than to wire.

Watering.—Water thoroughly, in very dry weather. Draw a drill a few inches deep and about four inches from the row on each side. Pour water into these until the ground is thoroughly soaked. Watering in this way once every week or ten days is far more beneficial than frequent light surface waterings. Sprinkle the foliage with water under pressure from a fine sprinkler every day in hot dry weather to keep down insects, such as green aphid and red spider. Sprinkle the under side of the foliage especially. Tobacco and soap solutions are also good for insect pests.

Picking Bloom.—Keep all the sprays of bloom picked off every second day to prevent seed from forming. If seed is allowed to form, the bloom will be inferior and the flowering season of short duration.

Fertilizers.—A watering once or twice with liquid manure solution towards the end of August will help to keep the plants vigorous and productive late in the season.—The late Wm. Hunt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Silo Facts.

In the silo you can store corn in a form in which practically every particle can be eaten.

Silage gives the effect of pasturage in winter; it is both palatable and succulent, and it also aids digestion in the dry-feeding season.

Animals fed silage are not more subject to tuberculosis, do not lose their teeth more quickly, and are not shorter-lived than animals fed other common kinds of feed.

The use of the silo often makes it possible to save corn that would otherwise be lost by frost.

A good silo should be round, airtight, water-proof, have walls that are smooth inside, and be strong and durable.

A silo should be placed where it will give the greatest convenience in feeding and where it will be least exposed to extremely cold winds.

One hundred tons of silage will feed 25 cows 40 pounds of silage a day for 200 days.

A silo 14 feet in diameter and 32 feet high will hold 100 tons.

Silos of more than 100 tons capacity cost from $2 to $6 per ton, according to the type and material used in construction.

Few Roads.

The ancient British colony of Newfoundland is said to be almost entirely devoid of roads as most of the inhabitants live along the shores and few of them have penetrated into the interior. Some English capitalists have already bought up a great deal of the land in the interior, which offers possibilities for the establishment of paper and pulp plants and the first step required is the building of a system of roadways over a part of the island. There is a great amount of water power which can be made use of with little difficulty,
