"Tell Him I Loathe Him."

CHAPTER XXXVI. A YEAR'S FAREWELL.

HE did not see, by perhaps it was because her voice was choked with tears, and she feared an exhibition of her own weakness.

She lifted her arms and placed them about his neck, leaning trustingly upon his breast.

Their lips met—and parted. They turned from each other simultaneously, two suppressed sobs issued from pale lips.

He took up her travelling bag and umbrella, then opened the door, stepping back to allow her to pass out. She had drawn her veil closely over her tremulous face, thereby concealing the tears that had forced themselves to her cheeks.

In the hall they met the others, but no one seemed to feel gay.

Silently they descended the stairs, entered the waiting carriages, and were driven to the wharf.

Children accompanied them on board, saw that Miss Beaufort's rugs and chair were safe, even arranged her stateroom with care; and as she watched him with a careful smile, he caught her hands in his.

"I am half tempted to take my passage even yet," he said, his strong, clear voice quivering suspiciously. "It is so hard to let you go, dear one. Life has been nothing but partings for you and me. But there! I am a brute to make you feel worse than you would. God bless you, my darling, and keep you safe for me."

He took her in his arms and kissed her again.

"Don't go, Eric!" she whispered brokenly.

"I must dear heart! It is myself that I dare not trust. My weakness is the strength of my nature. Good-by again. I do not ask you not to forget me, for I am sure you never will. Duchess—"

He paused. Evidently fear of himself had overtaken him, for he strained her quickly, passionately to his heart, then rushed away, blindly, heedlessly.

She did not follow him on deck, but locked herself in her own room.

"Good-by, Charlie," he whispered to his friend at parting. "Take care of her for my sake. If anything should happen now—God!"

The word, uttered as an aspirant, explained all his meaning.

Quintard wrung his hand.

"You may trust me, old fellow," he answered affectionately.

Children scarcely remembered afterward how the adieux were spoken, or whether they were spoken at all.

He knew at last that he was standing upon the rough pier, he knew that the gangplank had been removed, dimly he saw the fluttering of handkerchiefs from the deck, and knew that the gallant steamer was on its way to sea.

Wearily he turned to big, gloomy, desolate Liverpool, swallowed a sob, and began the renewed battle with life.

CHAPTER XXXVII. IN THE SUNSHINE OF LOVE.

It is the month of June—the month of roses and of love. Beaufort Park appreciates that fact, and has never looked more exquisite than under the pale blue of her sky.

The roses nestle against the old hall as though in sympathy with the joy of the beautiful lady of Beaufort Park, caressing the very air she breathes with a soft fragrance that was delicious.

Within the same library where she had bidden her husband adieu with such bitterness, the Duchess awaited her lover, a look of glad expectancy, half of tender regret, playing upon her lovely face.

That other scene was all before her, strangely distinct, and she had selected that place to meet him to be quite sure that he had forgiven her, to be sure that not even a germ of bitterness lingered in his memory.

The dainty peach-blow color deepened as she listened to the sound of wheels, and as they paused before the door, she could control her eager agitation no longer.

She sprang to her feet like a girl in the first blush of her maiden love, and, with her hands clasped above her heart, waited.

"Would he be the same? Would he look the same? Had that year and his wonderful success as an author changed him in any way?"

His letter had been so brief, so unsatisfactory; if it had contained so little that her heart yearned to know, would he—

She lifted her hands and kissed his forehead as she passed. The children scattered her path to and from the church, with flowers which they themselves had gathered because they loved her; the men raised their hats with an outspoken "God bless you, miss; God bless you, sir or her sake," that came straight from the heart.

And all that change love had worked. They had meant it to be a very quiet wedding, but it was not in the heart of the generous Duchess to keep out those old yet new friends who rejoiced in her happiness.

Etienne Millet was best man, having come all the way from Paris for that purpose, but there were those who said he would not leave Beaufort as single-hearted as he had arrived for the Quintard was rapidly taking the place of a memory.

He had loved Bebe sincerely, but he living cannot devote a whole life to the dead.

Charlie Quintard, with Mignon was there, so also was a bearded French nurse with a bundle of cambric and fine lace in her arms, from which peeped a little wrinkled face which the loving mother insisted was the "perfect picture of Charlie!"

"I never imagined that the realization of such happiness as this could ever come to me, dear heart. Childer whispered, as he held his wife against his breast. "Duchess, tell me that you are glad."

She lifted her sweet face and kissed him.

"Do you need to be told, Eric?" she whispered. "I know that I am yours at last forever. There is nothing in heaven but death that could take you from me now. I have loved you always, I adore you now. Dear love, can you doubt that I am glad?"

He held her closely, unable to speak under the excess of his emotion.

"Ah, what is there in life but love!" THE END.

Children Had Eczema Treatment prescribed had no effect—DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.

Mrs. Dear Yarnott, St. Antoine St., writes:—"I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment to cure my child's Eczema and other skin diseases. One son, while nursing, broke out with running watery sores all over his head and around the ears. My nerves were prostrated to no effect. The child's head became so swollen and he suffered agony until he became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him."

"Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. Another boy was also cured of eczema by the Ointment and we hope more people will learn about it so that their little ones may be saved from suffering."

As a cure for eczema and itching skin disease there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. Get a box at all dealers of Edmondson, Bates & Co. Toronto. Dr. Chase's Recipes sent free.

disgrace your name. My story has been told to the whole world. You will find that your daughter should become my wife again with the memory of all my past before you."

"I am quite willing, my boy. I don't deny but that I should like to wipe that old memory out, but one can't have everything as one would wish. Surely you have done enough to redeem your single error, and there is not a shadow of regret in my heart when I say to you again, take her and God bless you."

Children were deeply touched. Unable to control his emotion sufficiently to speak, he knelt beside Mrs. Beaufort and lifted her hand to his lips with the gallantry of a cavalier.

Silently she leaned forward and kissed him gently upon the brow.

The second wedding of the Lady of Beaufort Park took place in the same church where the first had been solemnized, but how different.

Then the tenants of Beaufort were there as tenants, the poor were respectful, but silent; the children stood back with their fingers in their mouths, awed with the grandeur of the great lady of the park.

Now all was changed. They knew the story of her life and that of the handsome man beside her who had converted the beautiful coebug into a woman.

She was their friend, their benefactress; they called down blessings upon her bonny head as she passed. The children scattered her path to and from the church, with flowers which they themselves had gathered because they loved her; the men raised their hats with an outspoken "God bless you, miss; God bless you, sir or her sake," that came straight from the heart.

And all that change love had worked. They had meant it to be a very quiet wedding, but it was not in the heart of the generous Duchess to keep out those old yet new friends who rejoiced in her happiness.

He held her closely, unable to speak under the excess of his emotion.

"Ah, what is there in life but love!" THE END.

At The Bar Of Another World

THE MARCH ASSIZE.

CARTWRIGHT, whose appetite for vengeance was but whetted by his first success, had never lost sight of the movements of his victim; and now he had followed him to the place of his embarkation, with an eager but undefined purpose of working him some further and more deadly mischief. Stealthily he hovered about the house which sheltered the unconscious object of his malicious hate, plotting, as he afterwards confessed, the wildest schemes for satiating his revenge. Several times he made excursions for calling at the hotel, in the hope of observing the nature of the premises, taking care, however, to avoid being seen by Mr. Harvey or his family. A fortnight passed away, and the day of departure of the emigrants arrived without the slightest opportunity occurring for the gratification of his purposes. The ship was leaving her berth; most of the passengers were on board; Mrs. Harvey and the children, with nearly the whole of the luggage, were already safely in the vessel; Mr. Harvey only remained on shore to purchase some trifling article, and to settle his bill at the hotel on removing his last trunk. Cartwright had tracked him in the street; he could not attack him in the street; and he finally followed him to the hotel, in order to wreak vengeance on him in his private apartment, of the situation of which he had informed himself.

Harvey entered the hotel first, and before Cartwright came up, he had gone down a passage into the bar to settle the bill which he had incurred for the last two days. Not aware of this circumstance, Cartwright, in the haste that prevailed, went up stairs to Mr. Harvey's bedroom and parlor, a neither of which to his surprise, did he find the occupant; and he turned away, discomfited. Passing along toward the chief staircase, he received a room of which the door was open, and that on the table there lay a gold watch and appendages. Nobody was in the apartment; the gentleman who occupied it had only a few minutes before gone to his bedroom for a brief space. Quick as lightning a diabolical thought flashed through the brain of the villain, who had been baffled in his original plans. He recollected that he had seen a trunk in Harvey's bedroom, and that the keys hung in the lock. An inconceivably short space of time served him to seize the watch, to deposit it at the bottom of Harvey's trunk, and to quit the hotel by a back stair, which led by a short cut to the harbor. The whole transaction was done unperceived, and the wretch at least departed unnoticed.

Having finished his business at the bar, Mr. Harvey repaired to his room and locked his trunk, which, being of a small and handy size, he mounted on his shoulder, and proceeded to leave the house by the back stair, in order to get to the vessel as quickly as possible. Little recked he of the interruption which was to be presented to his departure. He had got as far as the foot of the stair with his burden, when he was overtaken by a waiter, who declared he was going to leave the house clandestinely without settling accounts.

It is proper to mention that Mr. Harvey had incurred the enmity of this particular waiter in consequence of having out of his slender resources given him too small a gratuity on the occasion of paying a former bill, and not aware of the second bill being settled, the waiter was rather glad to have an opportunity of charging him with a fraudulent design. In vain Mr. Harvey remonstrated, saying he had paid for everything. The waiter would not believe his statement, and detained him till he should hear better about it.

"Let me go, fellow; I insist upon it," said Mr. Harvey, burning with indignation. "I am already too late."

"Not a step, till I ask master if accounts are settled."

At this moment, while the altercation was at the hottest, a terrible ringing of bells was heard, and above stairs was a loud noise of voices, and of feet running to and fro. A chamber-maid came hurrying down the stair, exclaiming that some one had stolen a gold watch from No. 17, and that nobody ought to leave the house till was found. The landlord also, moved by the hurricane which had been raised, made his appearance at the spot where Harvey was interrupted in his exit.

"What on earth is all this noise about, John?" inquired the landlord of the waiter.

"Why, sir, I thought it rather strange for my gentleman to leave the house by the back way, carrying his own portmanteau, and so I was making a little breeze about it, fearing he had not paid his bill, when all of a sudden Sally runs down the stairs and says as how No. 17, has missed his gold watch, and that no one should quit the hotel."

Revolver Battle.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—Five persons were shot, two of them probably fatally, in an attempt early to-day to rob the saloon of Louis Belmont, in the town of Cicero, near here. Three handis made the attempt at robbery, and when the saloon keeper began fired at them a revolver fight began. One of the robbers, name unknown, was shot through the head and is not expected to recover. The other two escaped.

Policeman John Kane, who ran to the aid of Belmont was shot through the body five times and will die.

You Blame the Stomach

But chronic indigestion will disappear when the liver, kidneys and bowels are set right by DR. A. W. CHASE'S KIDNEY AND LIVER PILLS. You are skeptical. For you have tried many medicines and still suffer from indigestion with all its annoying symptoms. Take a new line. The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

A complaint was registered with me today to which I'm more than glad to give all the publicity I can. It is against that class of people who through sheer carelessness, rather than lack of money, let their bills lie three or four months before attending to them. This true story accompanies the complaint:

"I know a music teacher who has the support of a family consisting of an invalid sister and two little children. The first of every month she makes out her bills and sends them to the parents of her pupils. The understanding when she took the pupils was that she should do this—she did not add that she hoped the bills would be paid promptly for she knew they were all fully aware that she was the only bread winner for the family. "If ONE happened to let the bill run a month or two she would get along all right, for she earns enough for a comfortable living, but when—as is frequently the case—not just one, but all, forget or neglect to pay for several weeks or even a month, it places her in a very trying position. Just this present month on the 15th of the month not one cent on one bill had been paid, and had it not been that she had credit at the grocery, the family would have actually suffered. But even though it did not come to actual suffering every housekeeper knows the discomfort of not having a little ready money on hand. There is the washerwoman to pay; the crock of butter comes in from the country, the farmer comes with vegetables, but she can only send to the grocery instead of buying at a saving as she ought to, and could if people would only pay her the money she has worked so hard to earn.

"And the most trying part of it all is that they might pay promptly if they only would. The payments come in checks, with hardly an exception, and often after such a message as 'Will you please send me another bill?' I think the maid must have burned your other. I left it on the mantel, but it is gone, or 'Your bill entirely slipped my mind until to-day and now it is nowhere to be found.' Time is money to this little woman and it takes hours of it to make out bills."

What one of us couldn't tell of some case more or less like this one? Myself, I am thinking of a dressmaker who has her invalid husband and two children to support. She was employed in a large dressmaking establishment and did such beautiful work that customers of the establishment persuaded her that she should set up for herself. She sorely needed the money and after much deliberation took this step. At first I heard she was doing splendidly. Later I was much pained to hear that she had been obliged to go back to her former position at a reduced salary. Inquiry revealed the fact that she had fallen through no lack of ability on her part, but simply because her customers—most of them rich women—were so tardy about paying their bills that with her limited capital she couldn't keep the business on a paying basis.

A good part of the dressmaker's profit, you know, comes from buying her customers' trimmings, etc., at wholesale prices, and she cannot do that unless she is able to settle her store bills promptly.

Everyone ought, of course, to be able to pay all his bills at the end of the month. But even people who can't do that, can at least so select the bills they will pay promptly that those who are forced to wait for their money will be people with capital, and not people who suffer as this woman, and a million others like her do.

And as for the people who have plenty of money to pay their bills and only delay because "they let it slip" or "didn't think"—well, I have always had an idea that Hell was paved with "didn't think" quite as much as with good intentions.

Nutritive Hypophosphites.

When a person feels "blue"—"all tired out"—"doesn't feel like doing anything"—cannot concentrate his mind on his work—feels weak mentally and physically—doubts his powers—complains of poor appetite and sleeplessness—suffers from headaches—then his nervous system is run-down and demands a good up-building tonic. Nervous exhaustion is a modern disease, caused by too close attention to business, overwork, worry, devotion to trying family cares, overstudy, etc.

Nutritive Hypophosphites forms the best nerve and brain food known, and have restored thousands of sufferers to health. Large bottle, $1.00.

has been at work for some time past in formulating a plan by which the rates for cablegrams sent by the general public, in other words, cablegrams in plain language, as distinguished from code language, be reduced about one-half. That plan has now been worked out, and inasmuch as it will require the co-operation of the telegraph lines in Europe, where the Government own the lines, our plan involves a proportionate reduction in the land line rates, charged by the European Governments, and hence the co-operation of the Governments will be necessary.

"At present the cable rate is twenty-five cents per word. The proposed plan is to charge twelve and a half cents for every five letters in the class of cablegrams. We have found by careful investigation and examination of a great number of cable messages that plain language averages only five letters to the word, and hence if we only charge twelve and a half cents for five letters (every letter in the cablegram being counted as though the whole cablegram was one word), the result would be that the public in sending cablegrams would pay but one half of what it now pays for these cablegrams, it being a part of the plan that these reduced rate messages will be subject to prior transmission of messages paid for at a higher rate."

"We hope to be able to put the plan into operation in a short time. It being necessary first to make the necessary arrangements with the European Governments, I would add that this new mode of charging for cablegrams will be a decided advantage to the business public which use a code, inasmuch as it will be an inducement to them to put a portion at least of their cablegrams in plain language rather than use a very complicated code which requires a great deal of time on their part, first to code, and then to decode. After the most careful consideration and study of the whole subject we are satisfied that this new method of charging for cablegrams will not only reduce the charges for ordinary cablegrams one half, but the plan itself will be logical, simple, workable and satisfactory."

Two Persons Killed
And Four Seriously Injured in Fire in New York Apartment House—Real Estate Man Jumps From Fifth Story and is Impaled on Picket Fence.

New York, Nov. 11.—Two persons were killed and four seriously injured today in a fire that destroyed two upper floors of the Rosslind, an apartment house on Manhattan Ave., on the upper west side of the city. William H. Abbaott, a real estate operator, 45 years old, jumped from a front window on the fifth floor and was impaled on a picket fence along the sidewalk below, dying instantly. Mrs. William H. Abbaott, his wife, 30 years old, was burned to death in her apartment. Serious injuries were sustained by three other occupants of the building and by one of the firemen engaged in putting out the blaze. But for the heroic work of the fire-fighters, it is probable that many more persons would have lost their lives. The rear fire escapes on the upper floors were early cut off from access, and there were no emergency exits on the front of the building. By liberally strutting the front walls of the structure with extension ladders, however, the firemen picked panic-stricken men and women and children out of the windows and passed them down to the street in safety. Impaired tenants on lower floors jumped into a fire net spread over the sidewalk and all landed unharmed. Miss Alice Cullen, 35 years old, a telephone operator, who lived on the top floor, was the most seriously injured of the rescued tenants. Her clothing was ablaze when the firemen reached her and she was taken to a hospital severely burned.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good." It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 60 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N.Y.

Household Notes.

Pieces of rubber sponge in a mop handle will be found excellent for raking up dust, lint, etc., from hardwood floors or from rugs. They may be used dry, or moistened.

A back rest for an invalid, which will be found comfortable for one confined to bed, is made of a wide board, well padded and slipped into a cretonne pillow case.

An asbestos mat under the bread pan will help the bread to rise on a cold night, as it will prevent the bottom being chilled. The ordinary stove mat may be used.

Never put the chafing dish or any of its parts in water, but clean the pans by partly filling them with water and scrubbing, and the outer parts by rubbing with chamolis.

A safe paint cleaner is as follows: Two quarts of hot water, two tablespoonfuls of turpentine and one pint of skimmed-milk, with soap enough to make a weak suds.

Coarse sandpaper should be kept in the kitchen and used for scrubbing kettles that are burned and for removing anything that has stuck to the pan in the process of cooking.

Always keep alum in the house. It checks bleeding wounds, and for bleeding of the mouth or tongue.

Paint must not be scrubbed with sand soap, or it will be worn off. Wipe off with a cloth dipped in thick suds of white soap and rinse with a clean cloth wrung from hot water.

Mahogany can be given a good lustre by wiping off with a cloth wrung from cold water and rubbing to a high polish with a dry cloth. It should be rubbed at least half an hour.

A little borax and ammonia added to water for cleaning painted walls will greatly expedite the work. Wash a small part at a time and wipe it perfectly dry with a clean cloth.

A grape basket for the clothes pins, with a wire hook fastened to the handle, will save much time when hanging out clothes, as it may be pushed along the line and will always be handy.

The river Seine rose at a rate of 4.10 of an inch an hour to-day. The official statement that the maximum flood would be reached on Thursday next has not reassured the river side dwellers in the city and suburbs who see the waters advancing slowly in the streets and fear another disaster. The return of flood conditions has convinced the Government that the raising of the parapets is but a makeshift measure and according will push the big project of a canal to divert the waters in time of flood. The building of this canal will be a matter of years.

Budget of News

FROM NEWTOWN AND VICINITY.

Rev. M. K. Gardner, late Curate of Newtown, has been appointed to the Curacy of Fogo parish.

Mr. E. J. Crumney, the Principal of the Methodist Superior School at Greenspond, was obliged to close school last week for a couple of days on account of illness. He is now considerably better.

Last week the Ladies' Aid of Greenspond Methodist Church held their annual soup supper in the Lecture Hall. It was very well patronized, and a creditable sum was raised towards the church funds.

Mr. Arthur Bourne, an enterprising Greenspond merchant, who recently returned from a health tour through the neighbouring Dominion, intends leaving again soon for the winter.

The new medical practice at Newtown, which has hitherto been handled by Dr. Smith, of Brookfield, in conjunction with the whole locality, has been accepted by Dr. Gourley.

The citizens of Badger's Quarry assembled in the Fishermen's Hall there on Friday night to discuss as to the most suitable place for the contemplated coastal wharf soon to be erected. The meeting adjourned without any definite arrangements being agreed upon.

It is probable that the whale factory at Safe Harbour, which has been closed for three or four years, will be re-opened next year. Mr. Caverner, a gentleman interested in the factory, has been inspecting it lately and superintending some repairs which are being effected there.

While the "Fogata" was moored at Dominey's wharf, at Greenspond, on the night of the 3rd instant, her stern line became tangled and her stern fell off from the wharf. The schooner "Grass" was lying a little distance off from the wharf and the "Fogata's" stern collided with her jibboom which was broken off short.

Fishing operations in this vicinity are now closed. A few of those who can be spared from the fall's work of wood cruising and fish shipping, have gone to work inland in order to augment their somewhat meagre earnings of the summer.

Cabinet Crisis.

(Daily News Message.)

LONDON, Nov. 15.
Parliament reassembled to-day, but in the absence of Premier Asquith the proceedings lacked the acute interest that had been anticipated. The political crisis is deferred until tomorrow. By that time the Premier will have seen the King again and laid before His Majesty the decision reached by the Cabinet at to-day's session, which was unusually long. The fact that ministers were in conference for two and a half hours is taken to indicate that two or three of them are favourable to the plan of asking the Lords to accept or reject the veto resolutions before the dissolution of parliament. Those members are said to have made a hard fight in support of their views.

A Chapter of Ill-Luck.

Yesterday we gave a report of the finding of the Marine Court of Enquiry into the loss of the Regulus. We pointed out that the finding as to facts on the sworn testimony of witnesses was such as might have been expected by those who had the report of the facts as gathered and written up by the reporters of the Evening Telegram. We also set forth what the opinion of the Court was in reference to the facts as it had found them.

The Court very properly considered it unfortunate that the conference between those in authority on the Regulus and the John Green resulted in the procedure adopted. It was also most unfortunate that both rigs did not come up to the disabled ship, as what one failed to do, both might have been able to do.

Then again the cause of the serious loss of time by weighing the anchors on the Regulus instead of slipping the cable is still a mystery which the Court has not been able to clear up owing to the loss of every soul on board the ill-fated steamer.

Further misfortune also dogged the effort of the John Green, which was not heavy enough, in the opinion of the Court, so we learn, for the towing under the conditions of wind, fog and sea. The speed of the towing was only 2 to 2 1/2 miles an hour and considerable leeway was made towards the land.

Further the Court was advised, and considers that the course taken was unfortunate and should have been an East course to clear the Motion. Altogether the chapter seems to have been one of misfortunes and ill-luck.

Serious Charge.

Frederick Lighter, watchmaker, aged 31, was recorded in the Police Diary on a charge of indecently assaulting Maria Prince, married woman, of Seal Cove, Southern Bay, E.B., on the 20th July last. The case was not gone into in the police court. From what we can glean of the affair Mrs. Prince made a deposition before Magistrate Lilly charging that on the night of July 19th past accused, who hoarded in her house, gave her a drink of spirits and indecently assaulted her. The accused has a shop at Seal Cove and in visiting the place during the summer boarded for a time at Mrs. Prince's house. Her husband was at Labrador all the summer.

LATER IN THE COURT.
Bail has been refused. He will be tried in Trinity. Mr. Higgins is going there to defend him.

The Fogota Here.

The s.s. Fogota, Capt. Baxter Barbour, arrived here at 5.30 p.m. yesterday from the northward. The ship left here at 1 p.m. Wednesday last and had a rough and tedious trip. South and southeast storms with dense fog, rain and heavy sea were encountered. The ship owing to this weather had to harbor over night at Wesleyville, Victoria Cove and Seal Cove, near Fogot. She reached Change Islands Sunday morning and left that afternoon. She did not get to Dog Bay but went to Gander Bay Sunday night. It was so foggy that the ship had to anchor in the Bay, getting in Monday morning. The ship could not negotiate Cape Fogot owing to the fog and storm and had to come up through St. George's Harbor Run. She brought 115 packages of freight and these passengers: N. Keen, Mr. Bailey, Mrs. S. R. Winsor, Wm. Tiller, Douglas White and 8 steerage, including three Reservists.

How to Grow Hair.

It has been proven that Henna leaves contain the ingredients that will positively grow hair. That they contain this long-sought-for article is proven every day.

This preparation is called SALVIA and is being sold with a guarantee to cure Dandruff and to grow hair in abundance. Being faintly perfumed, SALVIA makes a most pleasant hair dressing. McMurdo & Co., your druggist, is the first to import this preparation into St. John's, and a large quantity of bottles can be procured for 50c.

Nearly Drowned.

Two men belonging to the foreign vessel Freden in the Arm came near losing the number of their mess on Tuesday. They were out birding and going over shoal ground the sea broke under them, filling their boat and throwing them into the water. Their boat sinking, they managed to get ashore on a rock washed by the sea, and were repeatedly washed off but managed to regain the rock each time. Their perilous predicament was first seen by Mrs. Bath, who spied the men on the rock. They were eventually rescued by a man named Bath and another named Stimmoney ropes thrown from the boats, as they were unable to row very close. —Twillingate Sun.

Mary Joseph Coming.

The schooner Mary Joseph, Follett, master, about which there was so much anxiety, is on the way from Riverhead, St. Mary's, to-day for this port. Skipper George Follett, of the Campania, yesterday afternoon had the following message from his brother, Peter, on board the Mary Joseph: "Harbored in St. Mary's; no chance to go to sea; all well."

Cricket Meeting.

The Cricket Association had a meeting last night in the office of Bowring Bros. last night, Mr. J. S. Munn presided. There was a fairly large attendance. The offer of St. George's Field Stock Company submitted was not accepted. The Secretary will notify the Stock Co. accordingly. Several other matters of importance were discussed and great enthusiasm prevailed.

Cellars Flooded.

The rain storm last night was the heaviest of the season. The sanitary men were out in their oil skins all night keeping the gullies clear. The gully in front of Mr. Thomas McCarthy's store, Water Street, was choked beyond remedy and the street was overflowed. Several cellars on New Gower Street and Water Street were flooded.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Our townspeople are now putting in their winter's stock of hard and soft coal.

An item in your paper on Monday last has left me free to wish Capt. W. H. and Mrs. Parmenter very many years of wedded life.

Driving at night without lights is now becoming a nuisance, and the police should wake up and bring some of the law breakers to justice. Last night as two gentlemen were proceeding along Water Street a carriage was driven over LeMarchant Street at high speed, and it was only the activity of the gentlemen that saved an accident.

There is a law compelling people when dismantling or demolishing old buildings to have the sidewalk fenced off a considerable distance so as to avoid accidents. This very necessary precaution was not taken by the parties removing the old house on the west side of Victoria Street to-day, and as several pieces of brick slid down the roof they fell to the ground narrowly escaping hitting some passers-by. As Mrs. H. H. Archibald was passing this danger spot all unprepared of the risk, three large pieces of the brick fell to the ground at her feet, and in their descent barely escaped killing the above lady. Why not the police get a hustle on and try to stop even the chance of accidents of this nature.

We are sorry to report that Capt. D. Pumphrey is now in a very weak condition, and his physician will offer his family no hope of his recovery.

Very Few Crafts Here.

Not for twenty years past has there been so few crafts at the wharves of St. John's as at present, and as a result very little labor is being given in the handling of fish. This time last year hundreds of crafts were at the various city wharves discharging fish, and so much was handled that men enough could not be found to dispose of it, and were sought for on the street to reinforce workers on the wharves. At present there are only two or three schooners at each wharf, and the outlook for the city labourer is not at all a bright one.

Slick Work This.

Shortly after noon yesterday two young chaps who say they were from Torbay hauled in a team to Rothwell & Bowring's store and ordered two sacks of oats. The storeman delivered them and told the men to pay the clerk in the office. Instead of this they watched their chance and when the storekeeper went to another part of the building they quietly drove away without paying for the goods, and got ahead of the firm in the sum of $5. It is not known who they are. The matter has been reported to the police.

Had Narrow Escape.

Monday evening a boat put out from the Fogota to land two men and a girl, passengers by her, at Cat Harbor, with some mail matter. Three of the crew rowed it, and a big sea ran on the beach. As the boat ran close ashore two of the men on board were washed out of her and hurled up by the combers on the beach, while another man fearing the boat would go over jumped for the stringers in the wharf taking the girl with him, and after much difficulty clambered up on the pier. Both were drenched from the flying spray, and the men who were thrown on the beach were also saturated. Had the boat been overturned before reaching the beach a fatality might have occurred.

Man Falls Overboard.

Late last night in the height of the storm a man named Spurrell with his son were putting extra moorings to their craft at Duder's wharf when he suddenly missed his son who was helping him. The father called repeatedly and getting no answer began a search when he found the son clinging to the shore with his head barely above water and in an exhausted condition. With the help of other men he was hauled up on the wharf and going aboard his craft was looked after. At 8:30 last night an old man walked overboard on Job's eastern pier, and his cries for help brought watchman, R. Mayo to the scene. He threw the man a fish stand and on this he floated himself into the cove and was assisted ashore.

ASHBURY PARK, N.J., Nov. 15.
Following an abortive attempt by a mob to lynch Thos. Williams, the negro suspected of the murder of nine-year old Marie Smith, the prisoner, trembling with fear and on the verge of collapse, was quietly removed early to-day from the local jail and whisked away in an automobile to the county jail in Freehold. The mob had been scattered and the streets were comparatively clear, so that the officers in charge of the prisoner had little difficulty in getting him out of town. Williams, whimpering and cowering, presented a pitiable spectacle as he was brought from the jail. Shortly before he had been surrounded by a howling mob. The police had been able to bring the crowd back with their clubs, capturing a sledge hammer and several crowbars. Williams denies all knowledge of the crime, and it was learned from official sources that he had apparently established a good alibi. He is being held without bail for further examination and to wait the inquest on the mutilated body of the Smith child which was found in the woods near her home on Sunday. Williams, who had been missing since Wednesday last, the day the girl disappeared, was arrested Sunday evening.

TULA, Russia, Nov. 15.
The conditions of both Count Leo Tolstoy and the Countess are reported to-day as critical. The Count appears to be succumbing to a fever brought on by mental distress and exposure, incident to his voluntary exile from her, while the deserted wife is dying of a broken heart. The delicious mind of the great novelist scarcely could have conceived the tragic ending of two lives that have been intertwined for half a century. Tolstoy overcame with fatigue while attempting yesterday to continue his pilgrimage from the monastery at Shmaradino to the Caucasus, where he had hoped to spend his last days in the Tolstoyan colony on the shores of the Black Sea. He lies in a miserable hut at the railroad station of Astapova, at which point he was removed from the train, when his physician and companion, Dr. Makovsky, realized that a continuation of the journey would result in certain death. To-day Dr. Makovsky and consulting physicians declared that the state of the aged man was most serious. On the Tolstoy estate at Rasnaya, Polnana, less than 30 miles from Astap, the Countess to-day received the last Sacraments. When her husband disappeared last Thursday she attempted suicide. Since then one nervous crisis after another has followed. For four days she has not touched food. The physicians who have remained in constant attendance say that the patient is prostrated mentally and physically and that illness has reached a critical stage. Those in close touch with the novelist say that Tolstoy felt the approach of death, and that his disappearance from home was influenced by a desire to spare his family pain and the complications which might ensue regarding his funeral because of his excommunication from the Greek church. Prince Obolenski, who first gave the world the news that the Count had abandoned his home secretly to seek solitude, pointed out to-day that Tolstoy was always deeply interested in the legend of Alexander I., who did not die when he was supposed to have, but passed many years as a hermit in Siberia under the name of Kuzmitof.

Certainly Ends Stomach Misery.

Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn, or Dyspepsia go in five minutes.
You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally.
Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing will ferment or turn into acid or poison of stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness (like a lump of lead in stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.
Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.
Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of Impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.
Should you at this moment be suffering from Indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

The Coming Treasure Hunt.

A day or two ago the writer paid a visit to the ship "Mary Dier." She lay at the wharf of the B. C. Marine Railway Company, where she is being outfitted for her treasure hunting trip to Cocos Island in the southern Pacific.

Capt. Fred. Hackett, the commander of the expedition, was aboard and from him was learned many interesting details regarding the history of the treasure and the manner in which the present expedition is being prepared.

When questioned as to his knowledge of the treasure Capt. Hackett said:

"I have stood right over it, and only lack of proper equipment prevented me from bringing the treasure back. A landslide had covered the hiding place to some depth. It was useless to attempt the work with pick and shovel, nothing short of hydraulic machinery would have any effect. On the voyage down I had picked up a shipwrecked crew of twenty-six men and it would have been unwise of me to try to uncover the treasure in the presence of this unexpected addition to the crew. This time, I am going to Cocos Island fully equipped with hydraulic machinery. We will wash away the hills in Seattle, or in the hydraulic mines of Alaska. You may repeat this for me and you will repeat no lie that this time I will bring the treasure back."

The early history of the treasure is well known. In 1835 the Peruvian and Chilean nations were at war. The British barkentine "Mary Dier"—for which the present ship has been named—was then trading on the coast. One night she anchored close to a Peruvian fort near Callao. The fort was on the point of being besieged by the Chilean army. In the fort had been gathered the money, jewels and golden treasure of the townspeople amounting to over $15,000,000. The anxious governor of the fort, fearing that the Chilean attack might be successful, decided that it would be a wise thing to have it placed on board the "Mary Dier" and thus under the protection of the British flag. Ten boatloads in all were placed on board the ship. The crew tempted by the glittering wealth provided false to their trust. As soon as the conflict began they slipped their cables and made for sea. The treasure was hidden on Cocos Island. Soon after leaving the island a storm was encountered which quickly dismasted the vessel. She was captured by a Peruvian gunboat which had been sent in pursuit and nine of the eleven men on board were hanged at the yard-arm. A seaman named Thompson and a Frenchman were spared to guide their captors to the treasure. They stated that the treasure was buried on Galapagos Island and the ship was headed in that direction. Fever and sickness coming aboard the ship caused the captain to put into Panama and the two prisoners had an opportunity to escape. Sliding down the side of the vessel they swam for a whaler which was leaving the harbor. Sharks made that swim a fatal one for the Frenchman, and Thompson clambered aboard, the sole possessor of the secret of the buried millions.

"Thompson next showed up at Kingston, Jamaica, a hunted man," says Captain Hackett. "He boarded a Newfoundland vessel, loading with sugar and molasses, in search of a job. He was a tough looking object and when he asked the captain for a place on the crew was promptly turned down. As he was leaving the ship he encountered John Keating, the ship's carpenter, who taking pity on the dejected looking man and having some influence with the captain introduced him to give Thompson a berth. During the voyage Thompson told Keating the secret of the treasure and gave him a chart he had made of the place. When the ship arrived at St. John's, Newfoundland, Keating again befriended Thompson, who was living in constant fear of the Peruvian secret service. The panic stricken man was smuggled aboard a vessel bound for London and Keating heard no more of him until he received a letter, which had been begun by Thompson and finished by a nurse, Thompson repeated his instructions for locating the treasure. This letter is now in Capt. Hackett's possession. "This letter woke up Keating. Up to then he had not much faith in the story of the hidden treasure, but in 1844, accompanied by a Captain Boggs and crew, he sailed for the North Pacific ostensibly on a bear hunting expedition in Dulce Bay. They made the excuse of calling at Cocos Island for water. Keating easily located the treasure and secretly, in canvas pockets sewn inside their clothing, they carried what they could to the ship. The crew got suspicious, and fearing a mutiny they had to desert. They sailed for Panama where they decided to desert the ship. As they went ashore a black squall struck the whale boat upsetting it, and Boggs, loaded with the treasure on his person, was drowned. A grandson of this Captain Boggs is at present occupied in making the sails for the present ship "Mary Dier" in Vancouver.

"Keating made his way across the Isthmus and eventually landed in St. John's. In 1846 he again visited the island and was again successful, getting in his two visits about $110,000." Captain Hackett says: "His wife used to tell me how he returned and threw the treasure on the bed, jewels and gold pieces tumbling together. When he left he was a poor man. When he returned he bought a ranch, and built the Keating block, which still stands at the corner of Prescott and Water Streets. The Gauntlet, his ship which he had left at Panama, was lost with all hands rounding the Horn."

Keating later made up his mind to make another trip after the treasure. Captain Thomas Hackett was to be commander of the ship on this occasion and to him he imparted all the instructions and the chart which he had received from Thompson. Captain Hackett, however, died at Havana, Cuba, of yellow fever before he was able to outfit for Cocos Island. Keating died a year later, and the papers and charts passed into the hands of Captain Thomas Hackett's brother, Captain Frederick Hackett, the commander of the present expedition.

In 1897 Captain Fred. Hackett made his first attempt to find the treasure, leaving Victoria in the scho. "Aurora." This was the occasion on which he picked up the shipwrecked crew, and beyond verifying secretly the bearings and instructions contained in the chart and papers Captain Hackett made no attempt to uncover the treasure.

The present expedition will go out fully equipped with a modern hydraulic apparatus capable of washing away about 4000 yards per day. Captain Hackett expects to uncover the treasure in about ten days after the plant is set up on the island. The ship will also be equipped with a wireless telegraph instrument and will be able to keep in touch with ship and shore in case of necessity.

Says Captain Hackett: "I do not receive one cent of money from the shareholders of this expedition except I bring back the treasure. I am the only man living who has authentic knowledge of its location. I have all the original charts and papers used by Keating. He got some of the money. I have been on the island, I know where the treasure is and I know I will bring it back. It would be foolish of me to waste my time if I thought otherwise. This is no pleasure trip for me, but a business proposition."—Vancouver Advertiser, Nov. 5th, 1910.

Seamen Adrift.

The s.s. Benedick was ready to leave for Montreal at 6 p.m. yesterday but was delayed till nearly 8 o'clock, owing to the fact that six of her crew, firemen and others, who had come ashore during the afternoon went on a bit of a time and failed to return. Head Feet with Constables Devine and Fitzgerald after some trouble corralled the crowd and got them on board.

New Clothing Factory.

Messrs. M. & E. Kennedy have been given the contract to erect the new clothing factory on Duckworth Street for $60,000. It will be six stories high with a frontage of 81 feet and rearage of 84. It will be built of steel and reinforced concrete. The work will begin at once with a view to having it finished within six months.

TOOK HIS DEPOSITION.—Mr. A. W. Knight, Clerk of the Central District Court, and Supt. Grimes and Mr. W. J. Higgins, Barrister, yesterday went to the General Hospital and took a statement from Patk. Tobin, who was assaulted by a man named Squires a couple of weeks ago at Manuels and had his jaw bone broken.

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Cannot be cured with ordinary soothing syrups. The disease must be attacked at the root to eradicate the irritation of the lungs, heal the wounds and strengthen the respiratory organs. The composition of of Tar and Cod Liver Oil and other Medicinal Extracts marks it amongst all other remedies as the true specific for the disease of the throat, the bronchial tubes and the lungs. Here are a few conclusive proofs:

Dear Sirs,—We have nothing but good to say of Mathieu's Syrup and can conscientiously describe it as the most popular and successful Cough Medicine we handle. Owing to the absence of any drug store in this vicinity there is a great variety of proprietary medicine sold in the course of the year, and Mathieu's Syrup pre-eminently leads in its own class. Yours sincerely,
D. MARTIN.

AGAINST HEADACHE there is no remedy so active as Mathieu's Nerve Powders which contain no opium, morphine or chloral. 25 cts. per box of 18 powders.

The Proposed Seamen's Home.

The appended letter speaks for itself. It was handed to us for publication:

W. T. Grenfell, Esq., M.D., City, Sir:—On October 23th, I received an invitation from His Excellency the Governor to attend a meeting to be held at Government House to consider the needs of a Sailors' and Fishermen's Home for St. John's. After His Excellency the Governor had explained the business of the meeting in a very excellent manner I was asked by His Excellency whether I was in sympathy with the idea of a Fishermen's Home as outlined by Dr. Grenfell.

From practical experience I strongly advocate the building of such a home for our fishermen and seamen as I am fully acquainted with the many disadvantages they have to contend with when they visit the city. Our city is like many other sea ports—there is room for much improvement, and very often the landmen do not give "Jack" or "Bill" a thought as to how he is to spend his spare moments while in port. I have spent a number of years at sea and have visited quite a number of ports in Europe, West Indies, United States and Canada, and have had the pleasure of meeting at different times friends of seamen and fishermen who had taken a great interest in "Jack" while on shore. On different nights of the week these ladies would gather in the auditorium of the different homes and arrange for "free and easy" concerts and other amusements; the meeting would be ended by the ladies supplying a nice cup of coffee to their visitors and by having a heart to heart talk with the seamen, that there were men and women on shore ready and willing to lend them a helping hand and keep them clear of the many "shoals" and "breakers" that are found in the different sea-ports of the world.

I have often wondered that there has not been more interest taken in our fishermen and seamen in this colony. St. John's is visited by thousands of fishermen from the north, south, east and west of our island at different times of the year. If a man from the northward meets a friend from the west and wishes to have a talk with him on business matters the only place for them to go is to some bar-room which is very attractive and warm and nicely lighted. These men are not of those who imbibe, but this is the only place that they can go, and while there talking

Indigestion & Dyspepsia

In all its forms can be Cured.

It is quite a daily occurrence to hear persons say: Oh, what a feeling of distress I have after meals, fullness of the stomach, heaviness and headache. I feel too tired to do anything. I have no heart to exert myself and at times I care for nothing. I often have a pain in the pit of my stomach, no appetite, my heart beats rapidly on the slightest exertion. I feel just as tired when rising in the morning as when retiring to bed. My sleep is often disturbed, and I often awake with a sense of suffocation and a difficulty of again going to sleep. I have to be careful of what I eat, and my life seems a veritable burden.

Now, it seems a shame and a pity for persons to be suffering like that when it is in their power to get cured by taking a Bottle of Dr. Stafford's Prescription A. A sure cure for persons afflicted with stomach troubles. It can be obtained at over a glass some other friend drops in and has to call for another round and very often before they really know where they are they get a little top-heavy. No blame however, can be laid to the saloon-keeper and I would not think of laying such at their doors as they are open for business. I consider that a great work could be done by the lovers of temperance in this direction, and I think that you and the men who are so ably assisting you have moved in the right direction and that the building which has been suggested would not only be an ornament to the City, but also a meeting place for our fishermen and seamen, as well as a place for the large number of out-of-door labourers who come here looking for work and to seek clean and comfortable quarters.

I am of the opinion that if the fishermen themselves were asked to contribute a little towards the erection of this home they would gladly do so according to their means. It would be a field for the "Seamen's Friend Association" which no doubt the ladies of this city have already organized. With the co-operation of the ladies I have no doubt that our fishermen and seamen, boarding in this home would always remember that they have friends in this city who will be pleased to extend to them the hand of welcome and do everything in their power to make their stay here comfortable and enjoyable.

I have the honour to be, Sir, Your obedient servant,
A. W. PICCOTT,
Minister of Marine and Fisheries.
