Stella Mordaunt:

The Cruise of the "Kingfisher."

CHAPTER XXVI.

"I understand," he said, shaking Hatherley's trembling hand. "Don't think I want to marry Lady Mary because—against her will. Don't you say anything about these shares or the I O U's; just leave me to take my chance. I—I hope I've got a chance. There's no one else, is there?"

Lord Hatherley winced at the vulgarity, the coarseness of the question. Had Ralph changed of late in his manner, or was it only his—Hatherley's—fancy?

"No, there is no one else," he said in a low voice. "I am sure of that. There used to be—a kind of boy-and-girl flirtation with Bryan's second boy, Edward; but I am sure that it was only a childish fancy."

Ralph's face darkened, and his teeth closed over his big cigar. "Only that," continued Lord Hatherley. "Indeed, it was impossible that there should be anything more serious between them. Edward—he is a thoroughly good fellow and a great favourite of mine, poor boy;—is absolutely without means. And, as you know, he has gone abroad."

Ralph nodded. "And they don't write?" he said, suspiciously.

Lord Hatherley winced at the suggestion. "My dear Ralph, if they had, I should have known it. Mary is incapable of a clandestine correspondence," he explained.

Ralph coloured. "Of course—of course!" he said. "Well, that's all right. As you say, a match between Lady Mary and that beggarly Edward Bryan would be out of the question; and there's no one else. Well, I shall hope for the best. Faint heart never won fair lady, you know. There's the second bell; I'll be off. No, I can't stay; thanks, all the same; I'll come over presently and try my luck. I've got your promise not to tell her of those I O U's?" he added, keenly, with his hand upon the door.

"Certainly," said Hatherley. "She must not know."

"Oh, mustn't she? We'll see!" muttered Ralph, as he sauntered up the drive.

As he crossed to the Hall, he tasted in anticipation the success which his scheme would bring him, and smiled to himself with cynical complacency. It had been so easy to lure the simple-minded old man, ignorant of the A B C of the Stock Exchange, into a ruinous speculation; so simple that Ralph had sometimes felt amazed at the blind confidence which had led his victim into the trap. But he was in it fast enough; and Mary was helpless, Ralph told himself, as he patted the pocket in which he had placed Lord Hatherley's I O U's. If she refused him again, he would be able to put on a pressure which she could not resist. To save her father from being turned out of the Manor and doomed to the exile of a cheap continental watering-place, with all its miseries and degradations, she would marry Ralph—or anyone.

"I've got her fast enough!" he muttered, as he entered his "den," and went straight for the cellaret in the sideboard. His steps tended towards that cellaret quite mechanically now. "I've got her. God! how lovely she looked as she came in, with that dash of colour in her cheeks! It soon went, though, when she caught sight of me, confound her! She doesn't like me, I'm afraid; but that does not matter. It makes my triumph all the sweeter. I'll teach her to be civil and pleasant when I marry her!"

He mixed himself a tall glass of whiskey and soda, and lying back with half-closed eyes in his chair, gave himself up to the delightful vision which opened before him. "My wife!" he murmured. "The loveliest girl in the county—my wife! When that Bryan comes back, he'll be rather surprised, I fancy. I shall have the laugh on him then, d—n him!"

His dream of future joys and triumphs was rudely dispelled by a knock at the door.

It was Parkins. He held a long paper, something like a play-bill in his hand.

"I beg your pardon, my lord," he said, in his quiet, irrefragable manner. "A person called this afternoon to ask if you would patronize some kind of a show he is bringing to Market Ratton."

Ralph was in an amiable frame of mind, and nodded pleasantly.

"What kind of a show is it, Parkins?" he asked.

Parkins glanced at the bill in his hand. It was the usual sort of thing; and stated that, at immense expense, a company of London artists would appear for one night only in their tremendously successful entertainment at Market Ratton; and in the centre of the bill the name of the star performer, "Nita," was printed in double capitals.

"Seems a kind of music-hall affair, my lord," said Parkins in a non-committal way. "The party left this. Perhaps your lordship would like to see it?"

"Oh, don't bother," said Ralph, with a yawn. "Throw it in the waste-paper basket. You can take half a dozen seats if you like. Hi! put some more whiskey in this decanter, will you?"

CHAPTER XXVII.

As he had done coming, Lisle contrived to keep his horse at a slow trot, so that Cecilia and the groom got on well ahead. To Lisle this drive alone with Stella was too precious to be cut short, and he grudged every minute as it fled past. To be alone with this beautiful girl, so close to him, was a joy unspeakable. He wondered how she could sit so still and unconscious of the love which he felt radiating from himself; and now and again he glanced at her face half apprehensively, half longingly. Her unconsciousness of his great passion almost awed him; he wondered whether he should ever find the courage to tell her that he loved her. If she had shown the least consciousness of his condition, if she had blushed when she met the ardent which sometimes notwithstanding his caution, he could not prevent from shining in his eyes if she had even shrunk from the touch of his hand, his heart would have been relieved from the dread that possessed him. It seemed to him that anything would have been better than her profound ignorance of his devotion.

He asked himself what she was thinking of, as she sat looking straight before her, with the half-sad half-wistful expression in her lovely eyes, whose every light and shadow was known to him. Was there—was there any other man figuring in the past of hers whose mystery only added a piquant charm to her personality? His heart misgave him some times when he asked himself the question; but he reassured himself with the hopefulness of the lover. Surely if there had been any other man, she would have confided in Cecilia.

"Might one offer the large sum of one penny for your thoughts, Miss Mordaunt?" he said, with a smile that was rather wistful.

Stella started and blushed. "I was thinking of Lady Mary," she said, and with some truth; for though her thoughts as usual had been of Rath and the island, Lady Mary had traversed them. "I was thinking she was one of the prettiest, most beautiful women I have ever seen—but then I have seen so few!—and I was wondering why she looked so sad. She did look sad; it was not my fancy?"

"No," he said; "I noticed the change in her. When I left home, saw her last, she was a light-hearted girl; now she is a grave and rather melancholy woman. Yes, she is beautiful; she was pretty as a child. But I don't think her the most beautiful woman I have seen," he said in parenthesis, as he glanced at the lovely girl beside him. "Perhaps her father's health—she said that she was not well—troubles her; or there may be something else. She hinted that she was worried."

Stella received the suggested explanation doubtfully.

"I think it is something more than her father's health," she said, with the shrewdness and insight which even the youngest and least experienced of girls will sometimes display. "It is some secret sorrow which concerns herself personally."

Lisle laughed softly. "Where did you learn such perspicacity?" he asked. "Mary can have no personal trouble; she is the only child of Lord Hatherley, and is watched over and guarded as if she were something too precious for the winds to visit too harshly. She may be in love," he added, after a pause.

"Yes," said Stella, dreamily. He looked before him thoughtfully. "Yes, that is it," he said, as if he had suddenly hit the heart of the mystery. "And I can give a shrewd guess as to who it is. Did you hear her speak of a certain Edward Bryan? And did you notice how the colour rushed to her face, though it had gone again in a moment, when we spoke of him? But perhaps you did not notice?"

"Yes, I did," admitted Stella. "Where is he? Does he—care for her?"

"I think so. Yes, I am sure of it," said Lisle, thoughtfully. "Your question calls up to my mind all sorts of little incidents. She and Edward were always together when we were all playmates, and he used to call her his 'little wife'—yes, that is it."

"Where is he, then, and—does he not care for her?" asked Stella. "But of course he does. Lady Mary is not the girl to give her heart unasked."

"No; you're right," he said. "But if Edward Bryan loves her, that wouldn't make her much the happier. He is the second son. He went out to make his fortune in the colonies somewhere, and I'm afraid that he has not done it."

Stella nodded and sighed. "You have explained it," she said in her innocently frank way. "It is because she is separated from him, and because there is little hope of his winning her that she looks so sad. I can understand it—to be separated by thousands of miles!"

Her face grew pale, and the long ashes veiled her eyes.

"How completely and definitely you have settled the case," he said, with an uneasy smile. "Where did you gather this experience of life and its troubles, Miss Mordaunt? You are young to possess such knowledge of the human heart."

"I am not too young to know what separation means, Lord Lisle," she said. "Sorrow is not reserved for old age."

"No; that's true," he assented, almost bitterly. "Youth has its griefs and disappointments. But it is a hard saying on such a lovely evening as this. Do you see the sunset behind the pines?"

"I was looking at it," said Stella. She did not add that it had recalled, with a poignant longing, the sunset behind the firs on the island—the sunset at which she and Rath had so often gazed; but she shivered under her memory.

"You are not cold?" he asked, anxiously, as he felt the tremor of her arm, so close to his.

"Oh, no!" "But I'm afraid you are. The evenings are growing chilly. Let me put his wrap more closely round you. Stay! Perhaps you'd be warmer if you had something to do. You have over driven, have you? I think you said you had not. Take the reins for a little while. It will warm you."

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich. — "I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong." — Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.
PARIS, May 30.
In Belgium on the right banks of the Yser, our troops captured all the German trenches on Hill 17 in the Plikin district, capturing fifty prisoners and three machine guns, also repulsing a counter attack. In the section north of Arras, artillery duels are raging very fiercely. We attacked to the southeast of Neuville St. Vaast the heavy German works. A hot struggle took place but we advanced four hundred metres taking numerous prisoners including officers. On Le Preire Wood outskirts we secured further trenches and captured fifty prisoners. In Alsace, on Schaeffers Hill, we repulsed an attack and captured, by throwing back the enemy, one of their advance trenches and two machine guns and a minenwerfer.

ITALIAN OFFICIAL.
ROME, May 31.
In the Valley of Giudicaria, on the Trentino Tyrol front, we occupy the important position of Spessa summit near Storoz. Our artillery destroyed the Luserna fort on Asiago Plateau. Seeing the white flag flying on the latter fort, the Austrians of Fort Belvidere immediately directed their fire against it. The modern works of Venezia Summit are also destroyed and occupied by our infantry, who advanced right up to the village of similar name situated further down. Our losses are slight. In the Cadora we occupy the Pass of Tre Croc Cortina Baspezzo, on the Friuli front. The Austrians reinforced their positions on the left banks of the Isosno and still hold several important positions on the right banks covering the town of Goritz. Despite rains which swell the rivers, our troops continue to advance. Their vigorous activity and spirits are excellent. Austrian losses up to Saturday reached 1,800 killed, 3,000 wounded and 1,000 prisoners. The Italians have to face for the present an army of 650,000 men and 70 batteries.

SPIES IN ROME.
ROME, May 31.
A cry of alarm has been raised over the possibility of German or Austrian spies being hidden in the catacombs which extend many miles outside Rome. The major part of the excavation of the catacombs hitherto has been directed by Germans. The catacombs of San Sebastiano was, until a month ago, the active scene of German spade work. It is not very far from important defensive posts.

HOLLAND'S ATTITUDE WATCHED WITH INTEREST.

THE 'TIMES' IN TROUBLE.
LONDON, May 31.
The first important newspaper prosecution under the Defence of the Realm Act, on a charge of printing information useful to the enemies of Britain, was begun to-day against the Times. The prosecution is based on a letter written by Major Richardson published in Temps, May 21, which said: "The last of the French reserves are out. At the present no men young raw recruits have been called up." The letter was a plea for conscription. Public Prosecutor Bodkin said the French Government had complained of its publication. "The statement, whether true or false, was calculated to give confidence to Germans and depress the Allies," the prosecutor said. The case was adjourned to Saturday.

Applying the lessons of the Civil War to present day problems, he declared the solemn lesson of the war was the unity of the United States must be exemplified by the actions of its people. "Let us think of our duty and the actions that lie before us," declared the President. Mr. Wilson avoided any direct reference to the present international crisis. When he arose to speak, the entire crowd stood up and clapped for several minutes.

Eighty-three fishing craft have been lost, and 24 sunk. In Galicia the battle on the San River is also developing in our favor. Our troops have successfully assumed the offensive last night they crossed the River Lubaczowka, and occupied the village of Monaster, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy. The offensive of the enemy along the front from Jaroslau and Radymno, in an easterly direction, has been stopped by our fire. In the region beyond the Dniester all hostile attacks of Saturday along the front between Zadorowicz, Bolechov and Javorow, were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy. Sir Edward Grey.

The news that Sir Edward Grey, the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, has been obliged to discontinue his labors even for a short time to rest his eyesight will cause regret throughout the Empire. Even though his place is temporarily taken by Lord Grey, who has had experience in the Foreign Office, when he was Secretary to Lord Lansdowne, assisted by Lord Lansdowne, who was Foreign Secretary from 1900 to 1905 in the Balfour administration, the absence of Sir Edward Grey from the Foreign Office will be felt. Sir Edward Grey occupies a unique position in the confidence of the nation as Foreign Secretary, and the nation trusts him there as much as they trust Mr. Asquith as Prime Minister and Lord Kitchener as Secretary for War. He is the embodiment of the plain common sense of the nation and its paramount duty, and is actuated by a high sense of personal honour. The outstanding success of the struggle in which Europe is engaged is the diplomacy by which Sir Edward Grey has knit together Britain, France and Russia and brought Italy to our side in this gigantic struggle. His is the success which has brought these nations to the determination to fight to a finish until the Teutonic conspiracy against the freedom and liberties of humanity has been utterly destroyed. The intention of Germany to defeat France and Russia in detail, while keeping Britain out of the war until she could tackle her alone with all the prestige of success on the continent was frustrated by Sir Edward Grey, who has taught the Kaiser and his minions that Britain will fight for right, even though it is but a scrap of paper. Last but not least of his successes in diplomacy has been his efforts to make clear to the United States that Britain is fighting for the success of free institutions in the world, and for a high standard of international law and humanity, and his example will be a source of inspiration to President Wilson in determining the attitude of the United States, as the American people are now confronted with a situation like in many respects to which their English kin across the water had to face ten months ago.

Boy Scouts' Patriotic Entertainment.

Mr. Cameron of the British Theatre has kindly consented to aid the Boy Scouts by singing at their Concert in the Grenfell Hall on Monday, Wednesday evening, June 2nd. This means a good deal because so many would appreciate hearing Mr. Cameron in a patriotic and comic songs and for this good cause. The Boy Scouts. Songs will also be rendered by Rev. J. P. Adams, Mrs. Job, Miss Nellie Job, and Miss E. Jones. Patriotic songs by Miss Madge Quick, Miss Daisy Skinner, Mr. B. Colton, Mr. F. Gush, leading elocutionists; pianoforte solos by Miss Dorothy White and Mr. Gordon Christian; a sketch from life, "The Volunteer," and a display of drill will also be exhibited. The opening address will be delivered by the Lord Bishop of Newfoundland, and there will be a short speech at the close in expression of appreciation by the Scout Master, Mr. Butler. The Boy Scouts in the city should attend in their hundreds to help on this good cause. Admission, 20c., will be by ticket, for sale at the Hall the evening of the entertainment, or from members of the Troop. The concert will be a grand patriotic event, and it is hoped that everybody who can will patronize it.

"The Man of a Hundred Wounds"

"The Man of a Hundred Wounds" is the way English papers are describing a young Newfoundland, Lieut. Commander Howley, R.N., a nephew of the distinguished Howley of the Ancient Colony. He received his wounds aboard the Irresistible in the Dardanelles, where he showed the stuff that heroes are made of, when his ship was in action, distinguishing himself and doing credit nobly to the fair name of Newfoundland. —Sydney Record.

GERMAN EFFORT EXPENDED

RUSSIAN ON OFFENSIVE.
LONDON, To-day.
The great battle of the Somme in which the Russians fell back after retreating over half Galicia, still rages, but the Russians assert they have assumed the offensive. This statement is taken in London to mean that other mighty German effort has expended itself. Though the fate of Przemysl is still uncertain, it is contended in Allied circles that the Austro-Germans have failed in their purpose to crush the Russians in Galicia, and that their rush forward costing as it did thousands of lives, has fallen short, just as it did in the repeated thrusts at Warsaw and Calais. The official statement issued to-night by the British War Office, makes no claim to any noteworthy advances in the east, dismissing the Przemysl region with the brief declaration that fighting continues, but asserting that there have been no serious engagements elsewhere on the eastern front. The Russians, on the other hand, claim victories virtually along the entire front, especially beyond the Dnieper where they say they have taken seven thousand prisoners. In the west neither side has done much of late, although the French continue gnawing around Arras. There has been hard fighting along the Yser. Italy has retaliated for the Austrian air and naval raids along her coast, by bombarding Pola, the Austrian naval base, from a dirigible, while Italian destroyers have made a dash on Monfalcone, doing considerable damage to Austrian shipping and getting away unscathed. German submarines have been extraordinarily active, the news last night adding one more neutral vessel to the growing list of victims. This was the Danish steamer Soborg, which was sunk forty miles northeast of the Tyne. All hands were rescued. The English press, following the German-American exchanges on the Lusitania tragedy, display keenest interest. There is much speculation as to the probable American action.

U.S. Cabinet Considers German Reply To-Day.

STRONG STAND EXPECTED IN VIEW OF GERMANY'S FAILURE TO YIELD IN FACT OR PRINCIPLE TO AMERICAN NOTE OF MAY 19th.

WASHINGTON, To-day.
President Wilson intends so to shape the course of the United States Government in the international crisis, which has arisen as to leave no doubt abroad that that country's purpose, not only to speak but if necessary to act for the cause of humanity. Two things were practically determined upon by the President yesterday in the solemn atmosphere with which Memorial Day enveloped the National Capital. First, Germany's avoidance of the larger questions of humanity and the spirit of International Law by technical argument on the hitherto undisturbed point of nations to exercise the right of visit and search by a war-craft when encountering merchantmen whether carrying contraband or not, must be met promptly with a note again setting forth briefly the facts as found by the investigation of officials here as to the cargo and peaceful equipment of the Lusitania, reiterating the earnest intention of the United States to hold the German Government to strict responsibility for all violation of American rights on the high seas. Count Von Bernstorff, German Ambassador, has been granted an interview with President Wilson for Wednesday, noon, but unless he brings some proposal from his Government answering the demands of the United States differently from the Note just received from Dr. Von Jagow, German Foreign Minister, a circumstance which is doubted in well informed quarters, the President's course, framed by his consultation with the Cabinet to-morrow, will not be materially affected. Second, notwithstanding the critical situation with Germany, there will be issued to-day a statement which has been in preparation for several days and will be communicated to leaders of all factions in Mexico, serving notice unless they themselves bring to an early end the deplorable conditions which their warfare has wrought, some other means will be found by the United States in the interest of humanity to save millions of non-combatant Mexicans from starvation and further devastation of property. To-day the President will lay before the Cabinet both questions. The effect of the warning to Mexico, the President hopes will be a coalition within the next few weeks of the best elements in the Southern Republic to form a Provisional Government, to which the United States and other countries can accord early recognition. The tense situation produced by the receipt of an unyielding reply from Germany to the request of the United States for reparation for 100 American lives lost in the sinking of the Lusitania, and guarantees against destruction of American lives and property in the future, overshadowed all other governmental activities yesterday. Just what the President will propose to his Cabinet to-day was a matter of wide conjecture last night. In official diplomatic quarters there was a noticeable confidence, however, that Germany would yield to a principle or fact to the American point of view, the President would suggest a course following logically the strong expressions of the Note of May 19.

GERMAN SOCIALIST MANIFESTO DENOUNCES AUSTRIA-HUNGARY AND THE GERMAN WAR PARTY.

LONDON, To-day.
The Morning Post's Berne correspondent says a long manifesto of the Socialist Party is being circulated widely among the German working classes. According to a correspondent, it accuses Austria-Hungary of having caused the war and complains of the ignorance in which the German and Austrian people are kept. It denounces the German War Party, Imperialist and retreat diplomacy as the arch enemies of the German people. It is asserted in the manifesto, the correspondent adds, that if March peace was possible, but the greed of the Imperialists refused it.

ITALIANS CONTINUE INVASION OF TYROL.

The Italian invasion of the Province of Trent is progressing from the South along the Alpine ranges, from the West across the Tena Pass, and from the East by way of the Lavarone Plateau. The attack of the Italians is continuing along the zig-zag frontier up to the highest part of the North where they have occupied the Ampezzo Valley together with the town of Cortina. Cortina is a well known summer resort, where ambassadors accredited to Italy were accustomed to spend several months during the warm weather. Cortina is the junction of several railroads, the most important being that from Bivie Di Cadore which leads to Toblach along the Drava Valley.

CAN'T TRANSPORT TROOPS.

LONDON, To-day.
An Athens despatch says it has been learned there that the transportation of Turkish troops to the Dardanelles has been interrupted by the operation of a British submarine, which is cruising in front of Constantinople.

ITALIAN SUCCESS CONTINUES.

ROME, To-day.
The following official statement of the operations of the Italian military forces was issued by the chief of the general staff: The advance of our troops beyond the Tyrol-Trentino frontier continues, and we have occupied an important height of Zugna, about four miles north of Ala, which dominates Rovereto. Up to this point the Austrians some time ago ordered a fortress to be built. Our vigorous artillery action upon the Plateau being followed up, the first of our troops is believed to be diminished in intensity and our infantry is solidly established. Our front advancing from the Val Sugana has arrived within five miles of Borgo. It is supported strongly on the slopes of the valley. The mountain of Bevevere, which dominates the plain of Drimer in the Cisono valley, is also in our hands.

AMERICANS CLEARING OUT.

LONDON, To-day.
During the last few days, a positive exodus of Americans from Germany to Switzerland have been taking place, says the Morning Post's Berne correspondent. Many of the arrivals have been residents of Germany for years. They declare the popular feeling against the German Government places make it intolerable, if not unsafe for them to remain.

INTERMENT PROCEEDING SLOWLY.

LONDON, To-day.
The interment of subjects of the enemy countries is proceeding very slow, owing to the difficulty in finding suitable accommodation. It has been suggested that the aliens be put under canvas, but this suggestion cannot be far short of 1,800,000. Another quarter of a million must certainly be added for the fighting of the last six weeks.

ALPINE TROOPS PUT AUSTRIANS TO FLIGHT.

ROME, To-day.
A battalion and a half of Austrian machine guns attacked our Alpine troops in the defile on Mont Croce on the Carnia frontier on May 30th. The Alpine troops repulsed five spirited attacks delivered one after the other, after which they took the offensive in violent rain and thick fog, putting their assailants to flight. Our losses are light.

ADVANCING ON ST. JULIEN'S.

LONDON, To-day.
British troops advanced on St. Julien according to a message from the correspondent of the Daily Mail, in Northern France. The German line is said to be greatly weakened and is giving ground northwest of Ypres before the vigorous attacks which have been preceded by bombardment of their trenches. They have made desperate efforts to hold their possession and are said to have been ordered by German headquarters staff to hold their ground. The ground which the Germans won a month ago is gradually being pierced according to the correspondent at various points.

SERBIANS OPEN OFFENSIVE.

NISH, SERBIA, To-day.
The resumption of military activity on the part of Serbia against Austria is indicated in an official announcement issued to-day. In this report the military authorities claim a successful artillery engagement, as a result of which a battalion of Austrians which was fortifying itself to northeast of Capinova was dispersed. Considerable material property on the part of the Serbians has been noted also on the Albania-front.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S HEAVY GUNS RE-LINED.

NEW YORK, To-day.
The British super-Dreadnought, Queen Elizabeth, is having her guns repaired and relined in Gibraltar, according to officers of the Greek steamer Constantas, who saw the battleship in that port on May 24. According to officers of the Queen Elizabeth, who arrived in Gibraltar on that day, she had a number of shot holes in her funnels and in her superstructure, but none of them in any way are affecting her fighting powers. Shortly after she put into Gibraltar five hundred expert mechanics arrived from a British naval yard on a special steamer and set to work at once to repair and change the fifteen inch guns of the battleship.

PANIC AT CONSTANTINOPLE.

ATHENS, To-day.
The latest advices from Constantinople is to the effect that the battle cruiser Sultan Selim, formerly of the Russian fleet, has been virtually dismantled in recent developments in the Dardanelles, is described as having cast a gloom over the Turkish capital. There is strong current opinion in favor of opening the Straits and negotiating for peace. During the recent British submarine raid in the sea of Marmora and off Constantinople there was a condition of panic in the city. People shouted, "The Russian army is coming," and vessels were hastily withdrawn to the far end of the Golden Horn. Troops on board the transports were disembarked. Italians and Greeks continue to arrive at Dedagatchi. They report Constantinople was sobered by this raid. One result was the despatch of all troops available to the Dardanelles.

WOMEN WORK ON AMMUNITIONS.

BARROW, Eng., To-day.
Women will play an increasing part in supplying the demands of the British army for shells at Vickers, Sons and Maxim works. Six hundred women hands are employed in the manufacture of munitions, these giving such satisfaction that the firm has decided immediately to employ an additional thousand. Other firms are expected to follow the example of Vickers, Sons and Maxim.

GERMAN LOSSES NOW 1,800,000 MEN.

LONDON, May 26.—According to information in the possession of the London Chronicle, the German losses since the beginning of the war until March 23, total 1,800,000 men. The Chronicle says:

"We have received what purports to be an accurate statement of casualties in the German ranks from the beginning of the war until March 23. The number of lists of dead and wounded is not complete, but the lists deal with the period between the middle of February and the end of March.

"According to the general statement from which we quote the following is the classified loss until February 14:

Dead, officers, 10,951; non-commissioned officers and men, 237,697; wounded, officers, 19,630; non-commissioned officers and men, 738,406; missing, officers, 1,853; non-commissioned officers and men, 177,144; total, 1,175,881 men.

"We have not any classified statement with regard to the next forty-five lists, but on the basis of earlier lists they would probably add an additional 300,000 to the total. It is to be borne in mind that the six weeks covered by the latest forty-five lists include exceptional severe fighting in Poland, Galicia and the Carpathians, as well as tremendous and sustained struggles in Flanders and Northern France. The probability therefore, is that the grand total of German casualties until March 31, cannot be far short of 1,800,000. Another quarter of a million must certainly be added for the fighting of the last six weeks."

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

We have all heard mothers answer their children's questions with a snappish reply or silence them altogether. If a child is intelligent enough to ask an intelligent question, he should receive an intelligent answer and never be told to keep quiet or not to ask any questions. Alert boys and girls crave knowledge and they have a mad desire to know about everything they see or hear.

This desire should be encouraged as far as it is possible and the reply should always be given in a manner that will encourage the child to ask more questions. You will soon observe in many instances that your children's questions will be brighter than your reply, which may give you a needed hint that you, yourself, have not kept up with the times in general knowledge.

Newfoundlanders at Mount Allison.

The success achieved by our Newfoundland boys abroad is little known to the average reader of our daily papers, and the students themselves are naturally too modest to proclaim their own accomplishments when they graduate from colleges outside their own country.

It was my privilege to be a student at Mt. Allison during the year ending May 1915, and now wish to take this opportunity of stating a few facts to show that our boys are capable of holding their own when classed with students of other countries.

Amongst the matriculants from the Academy into the University was Mr.
Edgar Duff, of Carbonear, who succeeded in carrying off a prize of $25 given for the highest average in English during the Senior Academic year.

Miss Beatrice Maken, of Burin, was awarded certificates in Bookkeeping and Penmanship.
Mr. Baxter Murrell, of Little Bay Islands, was awarded a diploma for Book-keeping.

A prize of $60, given to the student making the highest average in the first year's theological subjects, was awarded to Mr. Eli Anthony. Mr.
Anthony is another of the long line of Newfoundlanders who have won this coveted prize for many successive years.

A prize of $10 was awarded to Mr.
J. C. Elliott, of Ha Ha Bay, for first place in Hebrew.
At the "University Convocation" held in the Charles Fawcett Memorial Hall, May 25th, a certificate in applied science was awarded Mr. Arthur Curran, who successfully completed a two years' engineering course which entitles him to enter upon the third year of that course at McGill University with which Mt.
Allison is affiliated.

Certificates in Theology were awarded Mr. W. R. Seeley and Mr. J.
A. Wilkinson.

Special mention should be made of two of our boys, Mr. M. M. Hollett, Burin, and Mr. A. S. Winsor, Tilt Cove, who for three years have proven themselves capable students, and men of no mean ability.

In addition to completing in three years the regular four years' course in Arts, these two men have pursued an honor course in Mathematics, and were awarded a certificate of first class honors in that subject on admission to the degree of B.A.

The $60 prize offered for the highest standing in honor mathematics was equally divided between Mr. M.
Hollett and Mr. A. S. Winsor.

These two men who have secured in three years the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, as well as first class honor certificates in what is recognized as the most difficult course taught at Mt.
Allison, merit our warmest congratulations.

Able-Bodied Relief Condemned

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—The daily appearance of dozens of able-bodied men at the office of the Relieving Officer here, prompts me to write these few lines in condemnation of the practice of giving something for nothing, while the roads are so badly in need of repairs. The taxpayers and every right-thinking person are down on such a belittling practice. I have no objection to helping the sick, the aged, the widow, the orphan, etc., but let us draw the line at wholesale relief. Give us work, let the taxpayers see something for their money. I take the liberty of calling upon the Government and the Commissioner of Public Charities, in the name of the public, to put a stop to this practice at once, before our people are pauperized. Those that are inclined to work will in many cases refuse to do so while So-and-So is getting his support wholly from the Government and giving no returns. Let the citizens demand a cessation of this practice, and at once.

Yours, etc.,
HUMANITY.

In Memoriam.

Death of Captain James Murphy.

Yesterday morning there passed the bar of death, Capt. James Murphy, well and favourably known to hundreds in Newfoundland. He had reached the advanced age of 70 years, 78 of these was spent on the cold and rugged Labrador, engaged at his calling—a humble fisherman planter. At 12 years of age Capt. Murphy had crossed the Straits of Belle Isle, and since then he has been continuously occupied at the fishery. In the premature days he was supplied by the firm of Thomas and David Slade, but after they became extinct he received the requisite supplies from the firm of Baine Johnston & Co. Created by nature of a strong and robust temperment he had not known a day's illness up to a few days of his demise.
He was able to be up and around his home within a short while before the grim reaper called him to his eternal rest. The deceased could recount many incidents relating to events of by-gone days, long ere the congestion of the traffic indulged in by rail and steamer. Born at Carbonear, the home of many a hardy son of Neptune, and of many a son of the church, as well, noted for their brilliancy, he loved her with all the filial affection of a parent for his child. He leaves four sons and one daughter, the latter a Mrs. Henry Garland, of Harbor Grace. One of his sons, James, was lost in the ill-fated Erna; two of his sons reside on the Labrador, one of them, William, is mail courier
there; the remaining two reside at St.
John's and were ready to sail in their vessel the Bertha May but were detained owing to the death of their father. The Telegram extends its sympathy to the family and friends.

At the House.

MAY 31st, 1915.
Mr. Kent asked the Hon. Minister of Finance and Customs to table a statement in detail of Fines and Forfeitures received by the Government from July 1st, 1913, to date, and of the appropriation thereof.

The Minister said the answer was being prepared.

Messrs. Halfyard and Winsor also asked questions which were not answered.

The Speaker reported that the Legislative Council had passed the American Packing Co's., Retiring Allowances and Bank Fishery Bills. The Speaker also acquainted the House that Hon. Mr. Bishop had been put on the Select Committee to deal with the Logging Bill in place of Mr. Murphy.

The report of the Committee on the Labrador Bill was reported by Mr.
Morine, setting out that the Council's amendment rendered the Bill useless.
The report was accepted and the Bill sent back to the Legislative Council with a statement of reasons why the Assembly does not concur in the amendments made.

Mr. Kent presented to the House the report of the Select Committee, which was dealing with the petition asking for the incorporation of the St. John's Builders' Association. The leader of the Opposition asked leave to introduce a Bill "An Act to incorporate the Master Builders' Association," which was granted and the Bill passed its first and second readings.

The Bills "An Act to further amend the Revenue Act, 1905," "An Act respecting the Nfld. Railway and Tram Ferry Syndicate, Ltd.," "An Act to amend the law respecting the Exportation of Timber," "An Act respecting Proceedings against the Crown by Petition of Rights," "An Act re Public Service," "An Act for raising a sum of money by loan for the extension of the Railway System of the Colony,"
"An Act for raising a sum of money by loan for the Public Service of the Colony" and "An Act to provide for a temporary loan for "Public Purposes" were passed and sent to the Council for concurrence.

Mr. Lloyd asked if anything had been done with reference to the petition requesting a telephone service between Colinet and Whitbourne. He reported a rumor that the Government intended to link up Colinet with Salmonier by telegraph and said that would not fulfil the wants of the Whitbourne people.

The Col. Seely replied that the matter was still being considered and that nothing had been done.

The Premier rose and said that before moving the adjournment of the House he would like to propose Resolutions of Sympathy in relation to the death of an old friend, Hon. James Bairst, who for a great many years had been a member of the Upper Chamber of the Legislature. He took great interest in all public matters, and a quarter of a century ago undertook the fight for the Newfoundland lobster packers on the French coast.
The case was finally settled before the Privy Council in England in favor of the late Mr. Bairst. This case led up to a solution of the French Shore dispute. His success as a business man was also referred to, and it was proposed that a copy of the Resolutions be sent to the relatives of the deceased.

Mr. Kent in seconding the motion said it was an appropriate action on behalf of the House to pass the Resolutions out of respect to the memory of the late Hon. Mr. Bairst. All who knew him noticed that during the last few years his advanced age had been telling on him, as he did not possess that robust appearance which he maintained throughout a very long life. He was a man who carried on well a successful business and who won the esteem of those who were associated with him in public and private life, and his loss to the community will be great. Mr. Kent then alluded to the unique incident, cited by the Premier, in which Mr. Bairst came forward and preserved our constitutional right, the record of which will always be associated with the name of Mr. Bairst and his name will go down in history. Concluding his eloquent remarks the Leader of the Opposition said that by passing the Resolutions proposed by the Premier the House would pay a fitting tribute to the memory of Mr.

Bairst.

The House adjourned until 4 o'clock
to-day.

Kitchener and Girouard

A first class Kitchener-man is, I see, the latest of those who are "back to the army again." This is, Sir Percy Girouard, who was Kitchener's right hand man in the march to Khartum. He is a railway genius, a blend of French imagination and Canadian push and go, who was chosen at the very early age of thirty to be director of the Sudan railways.
While Kitchener manages the fighting, young Girouard laid the great Nile railway to Khartum. In that campaign Sir Percy had the reputation of being the one man in Egypt who could and would "stand up" to Kitchener. The story goes that on one occasion he told the War Lord that certain work could not be done in time. Kitchener insisted that the work must be ready. Girouard, without a word, resigned and went back to Cairo. When he got there a telegram from the chief awaited him.
It ran: "Come back." Girouard returned and had his own way.

THE REBOUND!

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A friend of mine has a son who is emphatically a freethinker in matters of religion as to approach the broad-mindedness which is intolerant and narrow in its resentment of anyone who is less tolerant.

The woman herself is a strict member of a strict sect. She believes whole-heartedly in the creed of that particular sect and she thinks all the rest of the world who do not believe the same as she and her co-religionists are hopelessly mistaken. You can imagine with what horror she regards her son's attitude. "It does seem so strange," she says, "that I should have a son like that."

"I, of All People"

The "I" is in black type because she says it in a tone which means "I, of all people, I who am such a strict believer in the one true religion."

As a matter of fact it seems to me that she, of all people, is peculiarly predestined to have a son like that.

I don't doubt that her son's aggressive broad-mindedness is nothing but a rebound from her aggressive narrow-mindedness.

Few people, I think, realize how strong the rebound tendency acts, especially in young people.

It is of course the natural thing to oppose with all your heart any fault or vice which you have learned to hate, but if you are a parent and you have a child whom you want to guide away from that fault or vice I doubt if it is the wisest thing to be too violent in your opposition.

Youth Hates Prejudice.

Youth instinctively hates prejudice and it is apt to view as prejudice any opposition which declaims against its object in season and out of season.

I have known young people—pretty good young people too—who seemed to snatch a certain rare zest from the fact that their fathers or mothers would be horrified if they could see them.

And I once knew a fine young man who had gotten into the habit of that vice.

The father had good reason to hate the vice but he would have done better not to be so violent against it. He spoke so wildly and took such an intolerant view of anyone who succumbed to the weakness that his son, who was not old enough and wise enough to winnow the wisdom from the intolerance, resented his father's attitude as a prejudice and reacted against it.

The Transfusion of Experience, A Delicate Operation.

Of course, you fathers and mothers, you are burning with the desire to give the young people the benefit of your experience and your knowledge of life, but remember, that is one of the most difficult tasks in the world. The transfusion of blood from one body to another is not half so delicate an operation as the transfusion of experience from one mind to another.

If you want to succeed you must go about your task not with the intolerant ferocity of a zealot, but with the tact and restraint of a diplomat.

THE HELPLESS.

WILLIAM WOOD

The man who's always waiting for help to do his task, down to the camp goes skating, where tread he a r i g d o o l o s e b a s k. "I've asked my neighbor, Perkins," says helpless William Wood, "to help me plant my gherkins, and now my nutmeg seed, and when he comes, you betcher, we'll make things hum around; and I'll ask Bill Fletcher to come and roll the ground." He waits and keeps on waiting, nor tries to make things hum, but spends his time berating the friends who do not come. He sits and scolds and whistles, and waits, and never stirs, while help's grow up to thistles, and juicy cockleburrs. He'll wait, and keep awaiting the friend who never comes; he'll sit, all effort, waiting, a-twiddling of his thumbs, until, to end the circus, a cart comes to the gate, to take him to the works, where other paupers wait. The delegate who's wending his way to wealth and fame, is on himself, depending, throughout this mortal game.

Salvage Notes:

Monday 24th, Empire Day, was fittingly celebrated, but not so good as was hoped, owing to the non-appearance of the mail-boat Dundee, nevertheless the day will long be remembered as a gala one, and a historic one for Salvage. Flags were flying everywhere and great interest was shown in order to make the day a success. The afternoon was devoted to the children, who met in the schoolroom and from thence went in procession around the harbor during which several hats were made and patriotic songs sung. After the parade the children were provided with a sumptuous repast after which they indulged in games till 6 p.m. After tea a public meeting was held in the schoolroom for older sexes, at which the Rector, Rev. A. E. Tulk, B.A., acted as chairman, and who gave a very inspiring and patriotic address. Addresses on the Empire, Empire Day and the Union Jack were delivered by Messrs. K. Brown, Job Steed, Shears, Dewey and Dr. Macdonald, all of which were interesting, especially the address given by Dr. Macdonald, who interested us with facts concerning the Mother Country and the Constitution of the British Crown. The doctor was listened to with rapt attention and prolonged cheers given by the audience. Patriotic songs, such as Rule Britannia, Tipperary, Marseillaise, Russian and National Anthems, Tenth To-night, were rendered. Great credit is due our esteemed and energetic organist, Miss Macdonald, who ably presided at the organ and by her talent did much to make the affair a success. Our noble and patriotic teacher, Mr. Shears, is also deserving of praise for his taste and patriotism as was shown forth by the decorations at the schoolroom. One of the decorations particularly attractive, was the British Coat of Arms. At the end of the programme was a rifle drill given by some of Mr. Shears' pupils; the performance of this drill is noteworthy of praise to the boys as well as to their teacher, who had taken so much interest in the boys.

For your Digestion's Sake Windsor Table Salt

Congratulations were bestowed on members of Salvage Branch of the W.P.A., and too much praise cannot be given the ladies for their interest and efforts in this philanthropic work. This patriotic and inspiring meeting was ended by singing of Arch Lang Syne and the National Anthem.

We have not as yet had a visit from the longed-for Dundee, but it is hoped she will show up Saturday.

Frog's Legs as Labor Test.

How the leg of a frog may be used as an argument in favor of the Ten-Hour Day Labor Law was explained recently by Miss Josephine Goldmark, publication secretary of the National Consumers League, in a lecture before the economic seminary of John Hopkins University.

Miss Goldmark described how she had taken a frog and attached an electric current to his leg in such a way that the light shocks caused the leg to move. Also attached to the leg was a machine by which the force and rapidity of the leg action was registered on a piece of paper. It was noticed that at first the action was not intense while the muscles were loosening up. During the second period the activity increased and reached its maximum, while in the third it decreased, owing to fatigue. Miss Goldmark maintained that this was the case with human beings and the more they were worked the less efficient workers they become.

She also told how blood extracted from the leg of a weary frog and injected into that of a fresh one caused a decrease of activity of the latter. Thus, she said, poisonous gases exuding from a tired worker might enter and injure a fresh worker unless proper ventilation were provided in the workshop.

Six British Soldiers' Amazing Adventures

Since Battle of Mons-- Life in Dug-Outs and Trenches-- How Two Frenchmen Were Bayoneted by Germans.

(Liverpool Express, May 17.) There have just crossed the Belgian frontier, behind German lines, and come into Holland, six British soldiers. Behind that plain statement lies an amazing odyssey of a battle, of halfbreath escapes, of sufferings terrible, writes the Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. For these men were "in it" from the start. They were at Mons in the tragic days of August, and were cut off from their regiment in the great retreat. They crept through the encircling Germans, and for nine months have been fugitives in France and Belgium, living in fields and dugouts. They have passed through experiences probably without parallel, playing through all these nine months a game of hide and seek to have lost which would have meant summary execution. For a price was on their heads.

But when I saw them to-day, soon after they had crawled through the barbed wire into Holland, they were cheerful and undaunted, only longing for two things, the first to see England again, the other to return to Flanders to "get our own back on the Germans." James Garrigian, who, his memory aided at points by Jenkins, told me the history of the adventures, said:—

"It was on August 26th that the Germans got round us properly. Our little lot of odd men were collected, and went into one trench. 'The Germans are surrounding us,' said the captain. 'Don't mind that, men, said the captain; 'a German is sounding it.' So we kept plugging away. Three times the Germans sounded the call 'Cease fire.' Then the captain stood up to send four men out on to the flank. He got a bullet in the heart and was killed instantly. — took command and gave the word to charge. We went at them once, but had to retire. A second time we charged. — got hit in the hip.

"The third time, when we had another go, it was pitch dark. We had to come back again, and I found there were only seven men with me. We were absolutely surrounded.

"But we managed to hide in a ditch, where we stayed all night. Next morning we found ourselves in a little paddock, only two fields away from the Germans, in the middle of their lines. So we lay low all day.

"Then eight Frenchmen crawled up to us. We managed to keep out of sight until most of the Germans had gone on. We hid most of the time in orchards, and lived on pears for ten days. We were then a party of 21, eleven English and ten French.

Fate of Two Frenchmen.

"As we were desperate for want of food we decided to make for a village and fight to the last man if we met any Germans. Just before we left the orchards twelve Germans caught two of our French comrades and bayoneted them without giving them any chance to surrender if they had wanted to. We got to a village, making our way along the railway line and through the forest. Here we all lodged in a barn, and a woman, the best soul we ever met, brought us milk three times a day.

"After some days the Germans occupied the village. One day they discovered the woman washing our shirts. They recognized the grey backs, as army shirts are called, and got hold of her. For three days they kept on threatening her and her two daughters, aged 16 and 9, with the bayonet, to try and make them tell them where we were. Bless them, they never gave us away. But it got too hot for us. We were afraid they would find our hiding-place, so we took to the fields.

The Germans who were searching for us, were in a horse-shoe shape round the village, and were closing in on us. Private Jamieson, a scout and a good one, took command. He got us out, nearly under the noses of 12 Uhlans. We got into a field, and stayed there for a month, with Germans only six fields away.

"We dug a sort of trench along the fence to hide in. The farmer gave us civilian clothes, and we worked for him in the fields for three weeks under the noses of the Germans. Then we had to clear again.

"Shot if Caught."

"We divided into three parties. My little party of eight got into a field, where we made a dug-out. We lived in this for a month, stealing out at night to get food from some people in a village close by. While we were there, a Frenchman brought us a notice which had been stuck up by the Germans in the villages around. This said they knew there were Englishmen hiding in the district, and that if we did not give ourselves up we should be shot when we were caught. We moved on again, and tried the same plan at the next place we stopped at.

"It was terrible weather, raining nearly all the time. We had to keep baling the place out nearly all night. We were pretty nearly starving some of the time. At last we got so sick that we decided to change our quarters, and to find a place where we could live above the ground.

"We made another trek, and then lived for a month in a hut which we built in a corner of a field. Then a Belgian guided us to a village."

Uniforms Under Civilian Clothes.

What happened to the fugitives after this must not be disclosed, as it might implicate good friends who helped them through Belgium and ultimately to escape across the frontier. Suffice it to say that they travelled openly daily, passing the German sentries, and even using the railways. They were lucky, but, even so, they had to make three attempts to cross the frontier before the one which succeeded. Private Jenkins has scratches on his face and torn clothes, as the result of creeping through the barbed wire into Holland. One other fact worthy of record is that for the first six months the six intrepid fugitives wore their uniforms under their civilian clothes. Said Private Garrigian: "We were determined to stick to our khaki, and for a long time we had our rifles handy, because we made up our minds that we would never be taken prisoners, and that if we ran into the Germans we would die fighting. We had seen too much of their work to want to fall into their hands."

Obituary.

MRS. HARRIETT H. RODGER.

We record to-day with profound regret, the sudden demise of an estimable lady, in the person of Mrs. Harriett H. Rodger, wife of Mr. Alexander S. Rodger. Though deceased had been alling for some considerable time, death came unexpectedly. Last night she retired, without complaint, and early this morning her husband found her lying in bed cold in death. The final summons having come while she was sleeping. Dr. Fraser and Rev. Mr. Sutherland were sent for, but their services were unavailing as life had been extinct for several hours previously. Death was pronounced due to heart failure. Deceased was 68 years of age. Besides a husband she is survived by three sons, Stan and Will, who are in business with their father, and Herbert, who is abroad, as well as a large circle of friends. The funeral takes place Thursday afternoon from the late residence of deceased, 84 Barnes Road. The Telegram offers its sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family.

MRS. BRADBURY.

There passed peacefully away last evening at her late residence, 158 Gower Street, a well known and highly esteemed lady in the person of Mrs. Bradbury, relict of the late Jas. Bradbury. The deceased had reached the advanced age of 75 years and had been invalided for some years past. She had been married twice and is survived by eight children, four of whom are in Boston, Mr. Thomas Jenkins, son of her first husband, Mr. Samuel Bradbury, Mrs. Chaplin and Mrs. Longman; and four in this city, Mrs. James Lawrence, Mrs. A. E. Parkins, Miss Bradbury, of the Methodist College Staff, and Mr. James Bradbury, to all of whom the Telegram extends sincere sympathy. The funeral takes place to-morrow afternoon.

"What Are You Doing for that Eczema?"

"Nothing; I've about given up trying to cure it."

"That is not wise. Do as I did and you will probably be cured in a short time. I used Zylex and Zylex Soap with it and my Eczema began to improve at once. A couple of boxes cured. You can get Zylex at your druggist's."

Reid-McMartin Cases

DISPOSED OF AND DROPPED.

(Montreal Star, May 27.) The charge of obtaining 7,500 shares of the stock of the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company, laid against Robert H. Reid five months ago by John McMartin, was dismissed this morning by Judge St. Cyr. A counter charge of perjury, brought by Reid against Martin, was also dismissed.

The case which had been adjourned from time to time, grew out of a disagreement between two men over the affairs of the company in question. Through Reid's efforts during six years, it developed at the trial the company obtained control of valuable timber lands in Labrador, covering 3,100 square miles, in addition to water powers and concessions from the Newfoundland Government. Later, when a deal for the sale of the property to an English, French and American syndicate was on, McMartin defaulted in the payment of a note for $100,000 due to the former owners of a part of the company's limits. McMartin claimed that the obligation was not genuine.

Reid then refused to surrender the deeds of the property, the company was unable to deliver title, and the proposed sale fell through. McMartin laid charges of perjury against Reid, and the latter retaliated by charging McMartin with perjury in denying his name on the $100,000 note which he had signed in a New York hotel.

Before Judge St. Cyr this morning McMartin acknowledged that the charge of false pretences had been founded on a clerical error made in copying the description of the deed from Reid to the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company, and further acknowledged the validity of the $100,000 note.

These acknowledgments and the settlement of the note dispose of a case brought against Reid in Halifax, where McMartin charged him with falsely uttering the note.

Capt. Bob Bartlett Rejoins the Roosevelt.

In all probability Capt. Bob Bartlett will go back and take command of the s.s. Roosevelt, of Arctic fame. It was understood recently that he was going to navigate the s.s. Neptune on her "round-the-world" tour with the moving picture expedition, and had been entrusted with the responsibility of engaging a suitable crew for the trip, but, it is said, he has abandoned that idea. He is at present in Washington, U.S.A., and after completing his business there will proceed to Alaska waters and rejoin the American ship Roosevelt.

New Cochrane St. Church Commenced.

First Sod Turned This Morning.

The initial work in connection with the building of the new Cochrane St. Methodist Church, began this morning, when the first sod was turned by the Pastor, Rev. Mr. Whitmarsh, under favorable circumstances. A large concourse of people witnessed the ceremony. The construction of the work will mean a boon for workmen the coming summer and autumn season, though there will be little employment, offering until the debris and ruins of the old structure, which was destroyed by fire, is cleared away. The new edifice, when finished, will be an ornament to the city.

A Model Regiment.

In thanking the Lord Provost for the reception given to the Newfoundland Regiment, at present quartered at Edinburgh Castle, the Governor of our oldest colony pays a glowing tribute to the island race, and doubts if even Caledonia could better the breed. This is no mere pat of official "butter." We have had the men under our eyes now for months, and it can be said in all truthfulness and sincerity that no better behaved body of men ever garrisoned the ancient keep. Suddenly transported from the comparatively primitive life to which they had been accustomed to the Old Town of Edinburgh, where they find themselves cheek by jowl with the slum and the public-house, the men must have experienced the temptation to have a fling; but they have given a minimum of trouble. Quietly soldiers come and go, and one day the citizens will awake to the fact that the strangers are no longer within the gates; but the Newfoundlanders will leave behind them the name of a model regiment which knew how to honor itself and the place whence it came.

Capt. Lewis's Banker Log Loaded.

Captain John Lewis, one of Newfoundland's famous and successful fish-killers and who is known in fishing circles as the "Jowler," has arrived at Harbor Breton from the Banks in his banking schooner Metamora, hailing for 300 qts. of codfish. He reports fish in abundance and after putting his catch under salt will resume the voyage. We hope that Capt. Lewis's luck will continue.

THE MYSTERY OF THE HIDDEN HOUSE.

The big picture show at the Crescent Picture Palace attracted large audiences yesterday and disappointed nobody. "The Mystery of the Hidden House" is a perfect feature, the perfect photography and acting leaves nothing to be desired; the other four pictures are also of the best class. Mr. Delmonico's song, a new ragtime number, pleased all the patrons; for an encore he gave a vocal cornet imitation which was equally well received. The same programme is to-day, don't miss seeing it. To-morrow and Thursday the Crescent has an extra big bill with good pictures besides a film showing the Newfoundlanders and Canadians at Salisbury Plain. Mr. Delmonico will give a big vaudeville act; altogether the Crescent show this mid-week will be immense.

A BIG ATTRACTION.

The house of masterpieces was filled to its utmost capacity last night by those anxious to see the great production presented by Lubin's. All who saw it spoke in the highest terms of approval; it was all that it was represented and a good lot more. It will be shown to-night and to-morrow night and if you have not yet seen it then don't miss it to-night. It is a magnificently produced picture, abounds in thrills and excitement; and in fact is one of the very best put out of the Lubin laboratories. It has received the wholesale and hearty approval of critics and if you want to witness this splendid production before it is too late then come before Thursday night.

THE BRITISH THEATRE.

An exceptionally good programme was shown at this Theatre last night, the feature picture being: "The Candidate for Mayor," an excellent two part production by the Lubin players. "The Little Madonna" is another picture that is well worth seeing. Mr. Arthur Pridmore Cameron was at his best in "I'd like to go halves in that." The programme will be repeated this afternoon and night. All lovers of good motion pictures should see the pictures mentioned above, and for those who like good wholesome comedy "The Maid from Sweden" and "Making him over for Minnie" will fill the bill.

THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY.

Hundreds of citizens attended the Nickel Theatre last evening to see "Our Mutual Girl." They were delighted to see the photographs were splendid. The other pictures were good, particularly the "Lily" in which Lillian Walker and Earl Williams played the lovers. This evening the whole programme will be repeated, and Mr. Stanley will sing his very comic song again. To-morrow the "Million Dollar Mystery" will be continued. All patrons of the Nickel and they are many, are interested in this wonderful film. Don't miss it to-morrow or Thursday.

GREAT LAUGHING BILL AT ROSSLEY'S.

Rossley's Theatres, East and West Ends were crowded last night. The Prize Baby is the funniest act ever seen and the crowd laughed heartily every minute. Jack Rossley is certainly the limit and kept the house in roars. There was also a good singing act as well. Mr. Ballard Brown sang: "I'm a Friar of Orders Grey" also "The French Hussar" which were loudly applauded. Miss Locke sang "Angus McDonald" in great voice; also told baby stories and baby impersonations. They are prime favourites here. They are fixing up a great act for Thursday, and on Monday, June 7th there will be a splendid pantomime: "Little Bo Peep and Boy Blue," the best yet. The tickets for the contest are on sale at the Rossley Theatre and are selling rapidly.

"OURS" IN THE WEST END.

Last night there was a crowded house at the popular little theatre. The pictures are the pick of the markets, both comedy and drama, and the sweet little singer in her patriotic song brought down the house. Always clean, bright and comfortable, the very place to spend a pleasant evening is the cosy little house in the West End. There will be a very special programme arranged for Thursday-holiday.

WITNESSES LEAVE.—The witnesses from Bonns Bay who have been here during the past few weeks in connection with the Snowdon trial, leave for their homes by this evening's express.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Rev. Ernest Davis is now home on a holiday visiting his parents. He leaves shortly for his mission on the Canadian side of Labrador, where he will remain for the summer months.

Quite a number of fine codfish were fished in the harbor last evening, although the harbor was nearly filled with ice.

A shoemaker who had an altercation with a customer in his store on Monday last was summoned by the latter on Thursday for having used unbecomingly language. The shoemaker was fined $2.50 and costs.

The K. E. Brigade attended Divine Service at St. Andrew's Church yesterday forenoon, and were addressed by the Pastor, Rev. C. A. Richie, from the words of St. Paul found in the 15th chap. 13 v. Romans: "The night is far spent, the day is at hand, let us therefore cast off the works of darkness and let us put on the armor of light." The address was highly appreciated by the officers and the boys alike. Mr. Richie is particularly interested in young men, and his address we feel sure, will long remain in the minds of all present at the service.

A large number of men gathered at the Relieving Officer's office on Saturday evening looking for relief. Another crowd called on Mr. E. Parsons, M.H.A., requesting some assistance in the way of securing seed potatoes. It is a great pity some form of work cannot be opened up, so as to help these poor people to get seed for their ground. It is sure that all the potatoes that can be raised this fall will be required.

A strong breeze of W.N.W. wind is blowing to-day, sending the ice away off in hidden ice gulches, we also wish it a quick passage to warm water. Our Labrador men and others are anxious to be rid of ice for this season.

Ever Ready Hot Water, Night and Day.

FOR THE NURSERY.

"The bath ready for baby, when baby is ready for the bath" should be an adage of every housewife—wife should also keep in mind that a "cubic saved to the nurse makes for a well-ordered, contented household." Gas Water-Heaters, whether of the instantaneous or circular type, offer the convenience of available hot water "upstairs, downstairs, and in the lady's chamber," without any labour at all—independently of the state of the kitchen fire.

The cost is reasonable. FOR THE BATHROOM.

An uncertain supply of hot water in the bathroom is a frequent cause of annoyance.

Hot water can only be secured, usually, by getting the cook to act as stoker, but at what a cost! "Think of the coal that is wasted—the fatigue of coal carrying—the extra labour of grate cleaning—and the discomfort of a hot kitchen in warm weather!"

A Gas Water-Heater is economical, because it only heats the water actually required; and labour-saving, because there are no coals to carry, no fires to clean, no ashes or dirt to remove.

The master of the house has both shaving water and a hot bath whenever he wishes without delay or trouble.

HOT WATER FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

When "Spring cleaning days" engross the busy housewife, then the convenience of an unlimited supply of hot water on the upper floors is brought home to her with special force.

But at all times—apart from convenience—a gas water-heater makes an irresistible appeal to the housewife from the point of view of dealing with the domestic problem.

Latter-day domestics are difficult to keep unless due consideration is shown by saving them unnecessary drudgery—and in the category of unnecessary drudgery may be included the toil of carrying hot water upstairs, the cleaning of grates, and the removal of dirt and ashes.

The gas water-heater renders such labour superfluous.—may12,tf

Two of God's Men in Every Sense.

AND OTHERS ARE LIKE UNTO HIM

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper's Son is Critically Wounded. His Two Other Sons are on the Way to the Front and His Only Other Son Has Volunteered—His Tribute to an Able Highland Wife.

The following letter from Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper to Dr. H. H. McKay, of New Glasgow, will be of general interest. It will be remembered that his son-in-law was killed and his son wounded in a recent battle, and this letter points out that all his sons are engaged in active service.

"Your kind note (the first from dear old Pictou) was welcome to my wife and me. My son-in-law has been taken and by brother's death soon followed. They were two of God's men in every sense of the word.

"My son is in a critical condition in Boulogne—shot through both thighs, with a compound fracture of the femur. There is gangrene, but I am hoping that, as he was shot on April 22nd, and was slightly better yesterday, his life may be spared to us.

"In all this time of stress, and when the blows are coming heavily, my comfort and strength is in the Highland character of my dear wife. I never thought so highly of her till this awful war came upon us. Not a word to discourage her darlings going to the front, and not a word of regret now that they have gone, and yet her silent agony is inexpressible and how widespread is the suffering and how splendid the spirit throughout not only Canada, but the empire. God send us victory."

If the mothers and fathers all had the spirit manifested by the above sacrifice, there would be no talk of conscription at last.

Splendid Story of Heroism and Endurance at Ypres.

Sacrifice and Dogged Resistance Against Overwhelming Odds—British Repulse Massed Attacks—The Germans again fail in Tactics Against Flanders Line.

(By Percival Phillips With the London Express.)

British Headquarters, May 24.—When the battle of Ypres can be written out in detail, it will yield one of the finest stories of heroism and endurance in the history of the British Army. It is a story of sacrifice and dogged resistance against overwhelming odds; of fragments of battalions refusing to abandon seemingly impossible positions; of individual acts of courage which could not be surpassed, and the success of a series of forlorn hopes which checked the overconfident Germans and saved Ypres.

Above all, it is the story of a soldier's battle, fought under new conditions, which demanded all the initiative and self-reliance of the men.

Captains were leading remnants of battalions and wounded sergeants commanded ragged companies under a deluge of German shells, while they clung grimly to the battered trenches. New non-commissioned officers, who never heard the whistle of shrapnel before, directed their men like veterans. No troops ever behaved more nobly under fire than these men who suddenly found themselves in an inferno of bursting shells. For days and nights they faced an ordeal sufficient to try the stoutest heart. Some came back, but many died, and, as an officer told me yesterday, "they died like men."

Hurled Back Demoralized.

In this way the second battle of Ypres, which began April 22, and lasted nearly three weeks, was a British victory. Although the shortened salient map may make it look like a defeat, it again proved the superiority of the British soldier. Whenever the German infantry attempted to storm, it was invariably thrown back, and only the employment of a vast number of heavy guns and the expenditure of an almost incredible number of high explosive shells, in addition to the use of gas, gave the Germans a strip of ground added to their lines east and northeast of Ypres.

At no time did the Germans attempt a great infantry attack. Whenever their infantry came forward in the usual close formation, our troops hurled them back demoralized. Whenever our trenches were occupied, it was only after a concentrated shell fire had practically obliterated them. Not a single German infantry attack got home.

Great Gaps Blown in Line.

One officer told me how he watched them repeatedly forming up on Grafenstafel Ridge, two thousand or more at a time, under officers who drove them forward in an attempt to profit by this incredible bombardment. The solid mass lumbered across the ridged fields until our men could distinguish every frightened face. Then as great gaps were blown in the line, it wavered and was broken.

Occupants of shattered British trenches watched those hesitating advances contemptuously. It was clear the German infantry had no stomach for the business at hand. They had a trick of suddenly falling flat and trying to burrow into the soil with their hands. When a man fell dead or wounded, a comrade would use his body as a cover. Some of them even dragged two or three helpless men into a heap and then crouched behind this impromptu shield.

Nfld. Football League.

REPORT FOR SEASON, 1914. We are pleased to be able to congratulate the League upon the completion of its nineteenth season.

The clubs of the year previous were strengthened by the addition of the St. Andrew's, whose appearance in the fixtures was a matter of much pleasure to all who were familiar with the early history of the League. A well contested series of games showed at its conclusion that the Stars, Collegians and C. E. I. were equal in their share of the points. A play-off ended with the same result, and by reason of the lateness of the season and the heavy inroads made into the teams by the enlistment of players in the First Newfoundland Regiment, it was decided to proceed no further with the competition and to award souvenir medals to all three teams; it being also agreed that the year would not be considered in connection with the computation of time as applied to the Championship Cup.

The absence of any inter-brigade competition as was anticipated had the result of the best players in that division finding their way into the senior ranks, and a general levelling-up of the various teams was noticed. Our yearly tilt with the Navy was in the shape of a contest with a team from H.M.S. Essex, in which the local eleven did honour to the town.

The financial results for the year were most successful. Despite the elimination of the Brigade Division the total receipts from all sources reached $1,514.92, against $1,219.79 for the year previous. Expenses amounted to $1,378.30, leaving a credit balance for the year of $136.62. The disbursements included a vote of $200 to the Patriotic Fund, an object which was considered of such a worthy and extraordinary nature as to justify this allocation from our finances.

We would avail of this occasion to point with pride to the parts played by members of the League in the great war in which our Empire is now engaged. It is significant that the very first volunteer for our Regiment was one of our most prominent players, Mr. L. C. Stick, of the C. E. I. His splendid example was followed by a large number of his team mates and by his rivals in other teams of last year, as well as by many who had done service in many a strenuous League game in years gone by. And even the forces of the neighbouring Dominion told a similar story, for in their ranks were included many who had been conspicuous figures on St. George's Field. Unfortunately we have also already had our place on the casualty list, some even having paid the extreme price of citizenship in the Empire. They have indeed "played the game" to the end, and, in expressing our sympathy with those who mourn, may we not also feel that their exemplification of the true manhood which clean sport fosters should be an inspiration for generations to come. And may we all realize and rejoice in the magnificent lesson to be learnt from this rally from all clubs of players who now stand shoulder to shoulder against the common foe.

Respectfully submitted, MARK CHAPLIN, President. W. J. HIGGINS, Secretary. St. John's, May 29th, 1915.
