CHAPTER XXXV.
ROBERT FULLER'S HISTORY.
"Quite," he returns, looking at me a little doubtfully. "Why do you ask?"

"Because there are times when I am horribly afraid that I shall—times when I cannot understand myself!" I respond. "When I am smitten with a miserable fear that the feeling I have for you is not—not exactly what it ought to be!" I stammer, as I think of all I have ever heard and read of the feverish intensity with which the mighty passion of love is said to sway poor human lives, and by the side of which my calm and tranquil affection for generous, kind-hearted Charley Denton seems to me but as "water wine."

"But why should you feel this?" he asked. "I thought you were beginning to care for me a little," he pleads, as earnestly as if it were his life he were pleading for.

"With all my heart and soul!" I reply, as earnestly as I feel. "It is not that—it is not you—but myself that I mistrust! Believe me, I am not worthy of you!" I add, with a sense of guilt, as I think how much I am receiving—how little I am giving in return!

"Allow me to be the best judge of that," he smiles. "If I am content, surely that is enough—and I am content—more than content, dear! Only tell me one thing, Lesley: Would you be sorry if anything were to happen to separate us now?"

"Sorry!" I repeat, looking up at him in surprise. "Why, I should be miserable! I could not bear to give you up! There is nobody to care for me as you care; and yet I know that I do not love you half so well as you deserve—as I feel that it is in me to love!" I mentally add. But some impulse I can neither understand nor resist checks the words on my lips.

"Then I am satisfied," he remarks, with a smile that lights his face into a look of infinite happiness! "I am willing to wait, secure in the belief that, once you are my wife, all the rest will come in Heaven's own good time! It would be different if I had a rival," he goes on, drawing my head to his breast. "In that case I might, perhaps, be tempted to despair; but as it is, I feel assured that the day will come when we two shall stand soul to soul, as hand to hand." Thank Heaven, if you do not find it easier to love me, you do not find it easier to love any one else!

I do not answer him except by a sigh. He does not know—he never will know, I hope; but it is this very question that troubles me: Is there no one else in all the world whom I could have found it too fatally easy to love?

CHAPTER XXXVI.
SAD NEWS—A DYING REQUEST.
WHAT if it had been Doctor Fuller, with his plain, grave face, who had wooed me for his wife, instead of gay,

THE JOY OF MOTHERHOOD

Came to this Woman after Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Restore Her Health

Ellensburg, Wash.—"After I was married I was not well for a long time and a good deal of the time was not able to go about. Our greatest desire was to have a child in our home and one day my husband came back from town with a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and wanted me to try it. It brought relief from my troubles. I improved in health so I could do my housework; we now have a little one, all of which I owe to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." Mrs. O. E. Johnson, R. No. 3, Ellensburg, Wash.

There are women everywhere who long for children in their homes yet are denied this happiness on account of some functional disease which in most cases would readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such women should not give up hope until they have given this wonderful medicine a trial, and for special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of 42 years' experience is at your service.

Certain-teed

"Service" and "Conservation" are written in italics across the war-time record of Certain-teed Roofing.

It has given vitally needed shelter for munition plant, barrack, shipyard, factory, barn and granary.

It has taken nothing of military value in its manufacture,—waste rags and asphalt are its principal components, and both are useless for war purposes.

Its manufacture is accomplished largely by machinery, conserving labor; by water power, conserving fuel; by women workers, conserving manpower.

Certain-teed endures under all conditions. It is weatherproof, waterproof, spark proof and fire retarding. Rust cannot affect it. The heat of the sun cannot melt it or cause it to run. It is not affected by gases, acids, fumes, smoke, etc. These qualities have made Certain-teed the choice everywhere for factories, warehouses, stores, hotels, garages, office buildings, farm buildings and out-buildings.

In shingles, red or green, it makes an artistic roof for residences.

Certain-teed Roofing is guaranteed 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness.

Sold by good dealers, everywhere.

good-looking Charley Denton?

But, alas! Why should we always covet the things we cannot reach? And with a mighty effort I strive to put the suggestion away from me. It is folly—nay, worse than folly, now that I know his history—to yield for a moment even to the thought! And yet my heart is aching within me, as many a sorrowful heart has ached before, to the sad refrain: it might have been!

The barrier of a miserable marriage stands between us; and even had it not been so, like poor Helen, I might have moaned: "It were all one that I should love some bright, particular star, and think to wed it!"

Not under the circumstances would he have cared for me, I tell myself for the hundredth time. I blush with shame and bitter humiliation of soul as I think of the madness of which I have so nearly been guilty—the madness of loving a man who is not even free to give me a thought in return.

It is Charley's desire that our marriage should take place on the same day as Len and Rita's; and, when once my consent is given, the consciousness that I am striving to do my duty—that it is in my power to confer happiness upon the man who loves me—comforts and supports me as nothing else could.

Because I cannot reach the same of happiness for which my heart craves, shall I cast aside as worthless all other blessings that come in my way? I am asking myself one morning, as Charley comes in and catches me with a snatch of song on my lips.

A little display of gaiety, which he is evidently disposed to interpret in his own way, for he takes me in his arms and bestows a very loverlike kiss on my lips.

"And now, girls, get on your bonnets!" he exclaims, as we enter the room in which Adelaide, looking ill and listless as usual, sits reading. "It is a positive sin to stay in the house such a day as this! I am going to take you both for a drive. The fresh air will do you good!"

"Do Addie good, you mean," I laugh. "I'm very well already, thanks, so I don't quite see how I am going to be better. But, all the same, I am delighted to get Come, Addie, put on your things."

"Not to-day, dear," she begins. But her objections are overruled. Neither Charley nor I will take any refusal, and a little reluctantly she prepares to comply.

"I believe you would live out of doors if possible, Lesley, and compel me to do the same," she declares.

"Of course; gypsy fashion," I return. "Wait until I am rich enough to indulge my vagrant proclivities, and I'll invest in a real gypsy caravan, and live down shady lanes, and out on breezy commons. If you are not too proud, Mr. Denton," I add, sweeping him a mocking curtsy, "I will invite you to dinner and any of your friends, only don't bring too many; the cooking capabilities of a three-legged pot are limited, you know."

"Hope you are fond of stew," interposes Len, looking up from the Times. "Rather doubt the possibility myself of cooking much else in that highly primitive and picturesque utensil."

"And not afflicted with a weakness for chairs and tables," laughs Addie, glancing back at us from the open door as she quits the room. "You will have to sit on the grass, and dine off a fallen tree stump, remember."

"I've fared worse than that in my time," Charley returns. "And I am bohemian enough to be happy even in a gypsy van—if my darling were there!" he adds, as a servant enters.

It is a telegram for Len; and, as he reads the brief message it contains, his face assumes a look of such blank surprise, of utter bewilderment, that my attention is drawn to him in a moment.

"Oh, Len! what is it?" I ask, with apprehension of evil. "As it had news? Whom is it from, dear?" "Whom?" he repeats, with an absolute gasp of astonishment. "Good Heavens, Lesley! Why, it is from Ernest Warden!"

"Thank Heaven!" is all I can say—"oh, thank Heaven he is not dead!" "Dead—of course he isn't dead! Whoever thought he was!" was poor, ignorant Len's amazed reply. "A fellow like Warden—six feet something or other in his stockings, and big in proportion—doesn't 'shuffe off his mortal coil' without some sort of provocation; and what had Warden to die for, I should like to know? But that is not the perplexing part of the business. The telegram is from Devonshire—from Ivy Cottage, of all improbable places on the wide earth—and has references to the most unlikely of people. Just listen to this, Lesley:

"Come at once. Your friend Doctor Fuller is dangerously hurt, and wishes to see you."

"That is what puzzles me," Len pursues. "What has the doctor to do with Warden? What, above all, took him to Ivy Cottage?"

I do not answer. Sick to the heart, I turn away to hide my quivering lips and deadly pallor, wondering where and when this miserable tangle is to end.

Only too well do I know what has taken Robert Fuller to Ivy Cottage; for, in one sudden flash of enlightenment, the whole deplorable truth comes home to me!

"The misery of calling that wretched woman wife belongs to another and more unfortunate man than Ernest Warden," he said to me that day that I went to him in my trouble; and only too easily can I guess the name of that most unfortunate man of whom he spoke!

I see it all—plainly as the light of day! The reputed Mrs. Lennox and Ernest Warden's demented charge is Doctor Fuller's deserting wife—the woman whose evil conduct has shadowed a noble life and embittered a naturally loving and generous nature!

No wonder that the story of Adelaide and Ernest Warden's ill-fated love should have touched his heart with so keen a pang of reminiscence! No wonder he should have told me that he was the one man in all the world who could remove the phantom barrier of a bigamous marriage that has held them apart so long.

"I must be off at once!" Leonard exclaims, breaking abruptly in upon my thoughts. "There is a train to Devonshire in about an hour, I think. Poor Fuller! I wonder what in the name of misfortune could have happened to him?"

"Len!" I exclaim, following him up to his room, whither he has gone to make a few hasty preparations for his unexpected journey, "promise that you will write and tell what has happened as soon as you get there?" I add, forcing the words through my lips, that feel stiff and drawn with the sickening apprehension that chills my heart!

"I promise. I shall do that, of course," he replies. "You will feel anxious, of course; I know I do myself. Poor Fuller! he's been a good friend to us; and I wouldn't have had anything to happen to him for the world! But I can't, for the life of me, make out what could have taken him down to Ivy Cottage! Why, Lesley, do you know anything of all this?" he asks, in sudden surprise, as glancing up from the little bag into which he has been throwing a few necessities, he catches a momentary sight of my face.

For answer I bury my face in my hands and burst into tears.

"Why Lesley, little woman, what is it all about?" inquires Len, coming toward me in unmistakable perturbation of mind. Len is not easily thrown off his balance; but I do not belong to that tearful sort, and this passionate, little outburst of mine seems to have astonished him in exact proportion to its unexpectedness.

"Tell me, dear," he adds, "do you know anything about it?" "Yes," I reply, "I know all about it—or I think I do, at least. But it is a long story—too long for me to tell you now! Oh, Len, go at once, dear! Think, he may be very ill! Only be good to him; remember what a good friend he has been to us! And whatever has happened to him, it was in our interest that he met his misfortune; it was for Addie's sake, though she does not know it, that he went down to Devon."

WAR REVIEW.
The British and French armies continue to cut their way into the German lines on various sections of the lower part of the battle line in France notwithstanding the bad weather which has caused somewhat of a slackening in the violence of the operations. Field Marshal Haig's forces have materially encroached upon Cambrai and St. Quentin, while further south the French armies are pressing eastward on the old Noyon sector towards Laferre and Laon, and northward from Soissons in an auxiliary manoeuvre with the same objectives in view. Between the Vesle and the Aisne River where the American troops are fighting with the French, additional ground has been gained by the Allies' forces. The British now are standing at Villeneuve, six miles from St. Quentin having carried out an advance of over a ten mile front on the general line of Epehy, Rosbecourt and Permaix. To the north the greater part of the German rincourt Wood, one of the German strong points barring the way to Cambrai has been captured. So rapid has been the British advance along this portion of the front that they are now in the position they held before the big German drive of last March. In these positions the Germans are offering stout resistance to further progress by the British. Gradually the French are working their way around the St. Gobain forest north of Soissons, in the movement of Laferre and Laon, and all the German positions east of this region. They have reached the outskirts of the village of Servais on the north edge of the forest, and two and a half miles from Laferre, while a short distance to the north they have taken the village of Mennessis on the St. Quentin Canal. This latter gain brings the French within little more than eight miles of St. Quentin. North of the Aisne near Soissons the Germans are fighting hard to keep the French in check, realising that the gain by them of much more territory in this region in conjunction with the manoeuvre that is in progress around the St. Gobain forest will place the entire German defence line eastwards towards Rheims in a critical position. Near La Faux and to the north of Celle-sur-Aisne the Germans have delivered strong counter attacks but the French everywhere have maintained their ground. The Germans also are reacting somewhat south of Ypres, especially in the region of Ploegsteert, where the British are threatening the capture of Armentieres. Counter offensive manoeuvres here and east of Wulverghem were broken up by the British during the first week of September. Field Marshal Haig's forces have taken more than 19,000 prisoners and large quantities of stores. That further big events are on the programme of the Entente Allies in the prosecution of the war is indicated by the fact that Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War is again in France for a war conference.

ENEMY OFFERING INCREASED RESISTANCE.

LONDON, Sept. 8.
On the southern portion of the battle front our troops have now entered the area of the defence systems constructed by us prior to the German March offensive. The enemy is offering increased resistance among these prepared defences and sharp fighting has taken place to-day at a number of points. Our advanced troops are pressing forward, and have gained ground in the direction of Vermand, Rosbecourt and Epehy. Local hostile attacks were repulsed south of Ploegsteert and east of Wulverghem. On the remainder of the British front there is nothing of special interest to report. The number of prisoners captured by the British troops in France during the first week of September exceeded 19,000.

NEW FRENCH ADVANCE.

LONDON, Sept. 7.
The French have advanced on a 20-mile front to an average depth of two miles and at some places to a depth of four miles. They occupied Tergue without opposition. They have pushed east of this village to the railway and Canal. Field Marshal Haig's forces have materially encroached upon Cambrai and St. Quentin, while further south the French armies are pressing eastward on the old Noyon sector towards Laferre and Laon, and northward from Soissons in an auxiliary manoeuvre with the same objectives in view. Between the Vesle and the Aisne River where the American troops are fighting with the French, additional ground has been gained by the Allies' forces. The British now are standing at Villers-Planchet, six miles from St. Quentin having carried out an advance of over a mile into the general line of the Somme, Rosbecourt and Permand. To the north the greater part of the Havrincourt Wood, one of the German strong points barring the way to Cambrai has been captured. So rapid has been the British advance along this portion of the front that they are now in the position they held before the big German drive of last March. In these positions the Germans are offering stout resistance to further progress by the British. Gradually the French are working their way around the St. Gobain forest north of Soissons, in the movement that aims at the outflanking of Laferre and Laon, and all the German positions east of this region. They have reached the outskirts of the village of Berles on the north edge of the forest, while a short distance to the north they have taken the village of Monesta on the St. Quentin Canal. This latter gain brings the French within little more than eight miles of St. Quentin. North of the Aisne near Soissons the Germans are fighting hard to keep the French in check, realising that the gain by them of such more territory in this region in connection with the manoeuvre that is in progress around the St. Gobain forest will place the entire German defence line eastwards towards Helms in a critical position. Near La Faux and to the north of Celles-sur-Aisne the Germans have delivered strong counter attacks but the French everywhere have maintained their ground. The Germans also are retreating somewhat south of Ypres, especially in the region of Ploegheleer, where the British are threatening the capture of Armentieres. Counter offensive manoeuvres here and east of Wulverghem were broken up by the British during the first week of September. Field Marshal Haig's forces have taken more than 15,000 prisoners and large quantities of stores. That further big events are in the programme of the Entente Allies in the prosecution of the war is indicated by the fact that Newton D. Baker, the American Secretary of War is again in France for a war conference.

FRANCO-AMERICAN ARTILLERY ACTIVE.
WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE AISNE, Sept. 7 (by the A.P.).—Additional forces and supplies were brought up by both the American and French during last night, and early to-day the Franco-American line was again advanced. The Allied artillery of both heavy and small calibres is being used to tear holes in the enemy lines.

LONDON COMMENT ON SITUATION.
ONDOLN, Sept. 7. Public interest to-day is divided equally between the unbroken advance of the Allied armies and the apparent signs that the German people are in a state of nervous anxiety bordering on demoralization. More editorial space is given here recently to future events than the retreat of German army. The belief that something like a panic has based on stories from neutral sources, which have raised false hopes in the past, but upon the utterances of the leaders in the German nation and the appeals of German newspapers to the public to keep its head while they themselves admit the seriousness of the military situation.

TRAIN WRECK NEAR QUEBEC.
QUEBEC, Sept. 7. An L.C.R. train, the Ocean Limited, westbound, jumped a bridge near St. Andre, Kamouraska, early to-day. Six coaches fell off the bridge to a considerable height. There are a number of dead and the injured are many. Rescue trains have been rushed to the scene from Lévis and Moncton with ambulance supplies and doctors. So far one body has been recovered from the wreckage, that of fireman Senechal of the train. The engineer is injured. The despatcher's office of the L.C.R. at Lévis says the Company will make a full statement at 9 o'clock this morning.

ONE DEAD, FIVE INJURED IN QUEBEC TRAIN WRECK.
QUEBEC, Sept. 7. The locomotive turned turtle in the ditch. It is officially announced that only one death resulted, that of Senechal. The number of injured is five. None of the passengers were hurt. The engineer, T. Berub, of Fraserville, was injured, while the other victims are mostly mail clerks, slightly hurt.

UNREST IN GERMANY GROWING.
LONDON, Sept. 7. General demoralization of the German population and widespread and growing dissatisfaction in the German army, accompanied by mutiny and desertions are described in a despatch to the Daily Telegram from its Rotterdam correspondent, under date of Thursday. The correspondent says that information reaching him is so sensational as to inspire scepticism, but declares from authoritative sources which establishes the authenticity of the information beyond a doubt. He asserts that the German army is filled with despondency and seething with mutinous spirit, and that alarming outbreaks have occurred in several units principally Bavarian and Silesian. A huge number of desertions are occurring, the correspondent says, and it is estimated that there are more than twenty thousand deserters in Berlin alone. Large numbers are scattered throughout the country, and the authorities are having the greatest difficulty in tracing deserters owing to the connivance of the working classes. Nevertheless hundreds have been arrested, and generally these have been sentenced to 15 years imprisonment. A great number of imprisoned deserters, broken by solitary confinement, have been released and sent back to the ranks. Disobedience and defiance of officers is common at the front, according to the correspondent's information, and a similar spirit is shown in the munition factories, where the workers deliberately are slowing up, with the result that the output has been seriously decreased.

PUSHING TOWARDS MESSINES.
LONDON, Sept. 7. (Official).—Fighting their way towards the left flank of the German positions along the Canal Du Nord, French penetrated the western part of Havrincourt Wood, taking prisoners as they progressed. In Flanders the British are pushing towards Messines near the south end of the Messines ridge, and advanced their lines last night a short distance in the direction of the town. North of LaBasse Canal on the Flanders front their patrols made headway in the enemy positions in the vicinity of Cateleux and Violan.

FRENCH TAKE TOWNS.
PARIS, Sept. 7. On the front between the Somme and the Oise the French continued to press forward last night, overcoming the resistance of the German rear-guard, according to to-day's war office report. Pushing east of Ham, French troops have occupied the towns of Dury and Oisley, more than three miles beyond Ham.

FRENCH ADVANCING.
PARIS, Sept. 8. The French troops have captured the village of Mennesis about four miles north of Tergnier and on the St. Quentin Canal. Further south they have penetrated to the northern fringe of the St. Gobain forest up to the outskirts of the village of Servais, according to the French communication issued to-day. The text of the statement reads: North of the Oise the French troops have captured the village of Mennesis, and are along the canal St. Quentin. South of the Oise of both heavy and small calibres is being used to tear holes in the enemy lines.

PUSHING TOWARDS MESSINES.
LONDON, Sept. 7. (Official).—Fighting their way towards the left flank of the German positions along the Canal Du Nord, French penetrated the western part of Havrincourt Wood, taking prisoners as they progressed. In Flanders the British are pushing towards Messines near the south end of the Messines ridge, and advanced their lines last night a short distance in the direction of the town. North of LaBasse Canal on the Flanders front their patrols made headway in the enemy positions in the vicinity of Cateleux and Violan.

FRENCH TAKE TOWNS.
PARIS, Sept. 7. On the front between the Somme and the Oise the French continued to press forward last night, overcoming the resistance of the German rear-guard, according to to-day's war office report. Pushing east of Ham, French troops have occupied the towns of Dury and Oisley, more than three miles beyond Ham.

FRENCH ADVANCING.
PARIS, Sept. 8. The French troops have captured the village of Mennesis about four miles north of Tergnier and on the St. Quentin Canal. Further south they have penetrated to the northern fringe of the St. Gobain forest up to the outskirts of the village of Servais, according to the French communication issued to-day. The text of the statement reads: North of the Oise the French troops have captured the village of Mennesis, and are along the canal St. Quentin. South of the Oise of both heavy and small calibres is being used to tear holes in the enemy lines.

LONDON COMMENT ON SITUATION.
ONDOLN, Sept. 7. Public interest to-day is divided equally between the unbroken advance of the Allied armies and the apparent signs that the German people are in a state of nervous anxiety bordering on demoralization. More editorial space is given here recently to future events than the retreat of German army. The belief that something like a panic has based on stories from neutral sources, which have raised false hopes in the past, but upon the utterances of the leaders in the German nation and the appeals of German newspapers to the public to keep its head while they themselves admit the seriousness of the military situation.

TRAIN WRECK NEAR QUEBEC.
QUEBEC, Sept. 7. An L.C.R. train, the Ocean Limited, westbound, jumped a bridge near St. Andre, Kamouraska, early to-day. Six coaches fell off the bridge to a considerable height. There are a number of dead and the injured are many. Rescue trains have been rushed to the scene from Lévis and Moncton with ambulance supplies and doctors. So far one body has been recovered from the wreckage, that of fireman Senechal of the train. The engineer is injured. The despatcher's office of the L.C.R. at Lévis says the Company will make a full statement at 9 o'clock this morning.

ONE DEAD, FIVE INJURED IN QUEBEC TRAIN WRECK.
QUEBEC, Sept. 7. The locomotive turned turtle in the ditch. It is officially announced that only one death resulted, that of Senechal. The number of injured is five. None of the passengers were hurt. The engineer, T. Berub, of Fraserville, was injured, while the other victims are mostly mail clerks, slightly hurt.

UNREST IN GERMANY GROWING.
LONDON, Sept. 7. General demoralization of the German population and widespread and growing dissatisfaction in the German army, accompanied by mutiny and desertions are described in a despatch to the Daily Telegram from its Rotterdam correspondent, under date of Thursday. The correspondent says that information reaching him is so sensational as to inspire scepticism, but declares from authoritative sources which establishes the authenticity of the information beyond a doubt. He asserts that the German army is filled with despondency and seething with mutinous spirit, and that alarming outbreaks have occurred in several units principally Bavarian and Silesian. A huge number of desertions are occurring, the correspondent says, and it is estimated that there are more than twenty thousand deserters in Berlin alone. Large numbers are scattered throughout the country, and the authorities are having the greatest difficulty in tracing deserters owing to the connivance of the working classes. Nevertheless hundreds have been arrested, and generally these have been sentenced to 15 years imprisonment. A great number of imprisoned deserters, broken by solitary confinement, have been released and sent back to the ranks. Disobedience and defiance of officers is common at the front, according to the correspondent's information, and a similar spirit is shown in the munition factories, where the workers deliberately are slowing up, with the result that the output has been seriously decreased.

Useful Post Mortems.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

something similar when I was about that young person's age.

Secondly because I wouldn't say it to-day.

That rather clever phrase, "holding post mortems over it," is its own answer. Why do we hold post mortems? To find out the cause of a death, and if a possible prevent other deaths from the same cause.

For The Same Reason We Keep Expense Accounts.

And for a very similar reason we keep expense accounts,—to find out how we spent that money that is so irrevocably gone, and if the ways in which we spent it do not show up, when put on paper, as satisfactory, to prevent further expenditures of the same nature.

A budget and some system of household accounting ought to be in every home, no matter how small or how large the sum to be expended.

To be without them, is to drift instead of to row; and whereas you may reach some reasonably satisfactory destination if you drift with the tide, you certainly have a better chance of being satisfied, if you make up your mind where you want to go and row there.

The Budget Makes Saving a Gratification.

Household accounts put a premium on saving. They make the act of saving a gratification. For what do we spend all our money above the amount necessary to provide the barest necessities,—except to gratify some taste? Now, if one can get a taste for saving through an expense account, then one can get pleasure by saving instead of by spending.

How It Works Out.

For instance, I might want some artorial luxury that I could well do without. If I had no budget and no household account, there would be nothing to restrain me from buying it, except the vague feeling that I ought to save more money. And I could probably think of plenty of reasons why I ought to have it. One always can. If, on the other hand, I had a budget and the buying of that would over-run my clothing appropriation, that would give me distinct pause. Furthermore, if going without that luxury would make it possible for me to put a larger sum than usual into my savings account the desire to be able to set down those figures and gloat over them would give me a push still farther in the right direction.

Like everything else, accounting and budgeting can be carried too far and made a disagreeable Moloch on whose altar peace of mind and reasonable pleasures and even a proper diet are sacrificed.

But I imagine there is about one cause of that extreme to a hundred of the other.

MARCHING COLUMN.

Heads high and hands true, steadily they march along.
Men that have their work to do, on their lips a lilting song.
In their hearts the fire of truth, cheerfully they brave the dust,
Passing is a country's youth, bearing far a people's trust.

Squads left and squads right, never broken in the line.
Marching, marching, day and night, neighbor's boy and son of mine.

Eyes bright and muscles strong, cheeks of bronze and shoulders square,
Mustered in to right a wrong, tramping duty's thoroughfare.

Mountain pass and country lane, boulevard and city street,
Threading freedom's broad domain at the wide Atlantic meet.
Nameless ships in fog's dull gray welcome them and put to sea,
Bearing silently away regiment and company.

Single file in trenches dim, now the column moves once more.
Far upon the battle's rim where the cannon flash and roar,
Country born and city bred, strangers only yesterday,
Brothers by the road they tread, comrades of the better way;
Taught alike and clad alike, side by side in France they stand
Till the hour shall come to strike for the glory of their land!

The Decision.

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)
Early this year—before the German drive began in March—President Wilson let it be known that he looked on 1918 as the year of the decision in the great war. He was correct. The decision has occurred, though the war is not ended, and may not be for months. Premier Clemenceau makes the characteristic declaration that "the splendid victories of recent weeks" have definitely settled the fortune of war. The enemy, bewildered, deceived himself as to his own strength, and now is finding out that he underestimated us. Premier Clemenceau sent, in the last day or two, a message to this continent, saying that, while the war might go into 1919, or even into 1920, before it could be definitely ended, the victory was already achieved. It is no secret that in high Allied circles recent successes have given birth to hopes—only hopes as yet—that perhaps before the end of the year some crowning achievement of resourceful strategy may bring about a complete collapse of the German hold on France and Belgium. Marshal Foch is gaining his successes with British and French troops mainly. Six American divisions, of about 27,500 men each, took part in the Marne drive, and other American troops are brigaded with the British and French. But the limited extent to which American troops have yet been used is illustrated by the announcement that total casualties, up to a few days ago, were only slightly more than 20,000. There are a million and a half Americans on the Western front, of whom at least a million must be fighting units. It is not impossible that Marshal Foch is using the weeks in which British and French troops are driving back the enemy upon the Hindenburg line to prepare a powerful American force, operating as a separate army, for a final smashing blow upon the exhausted German.

ESCAPING SUMMER TAN.

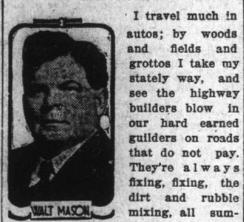

It is no longer considered the thing to exert one's powers to acquire a leathery coat of tan, which, to say the least is doubtfully becoming. And the poor skin how it suffers and grows unsightly because of the owner's lack of sense. Then when the winter months come and the low neck dresses are to be worn, the scars of the summer sun remain, and instead of one thinking of the vacation at the seashore, they are doubtless thinking of Miss Blank's skin, knowing that it is no longer good form to neglect the proper precautions against the sun and wind burn.

One of the first precautions is that of carrying a green sunshade on sunny strolls especially after a sea bath. An old umbrella will answer the purpose but of course one does not wish to risk a delicate parasol upon the windblown sands and again a wet bathing suit. Have a sunbath if you must but do not go to the extremes and bake yourself brown. An excellent way to prevent burning is to mask the face in cold cream and powder before braving Sol's rays. This mask need not be as conspicuous as it sounds. First rub a good cold cream on the face so that it enters the pores, and then after wiping off with a very soft cloth, apply a layer of powder, leaving as much on the face as you can without its being noticeable. Thus protected the rays of the sun can do very little harm.

BAD ROADS.

WALT MASON

I travel much in autos; by woods and fields and grottos I take my stately way, and see the highway builders blow in our hard earned guilders on roads that do not pay. They're always fixing, fixing, the dirt and rubble mixing, all summer they have tolled; and then there comes a torrent—the fact is most abhorrent—and all their work is spoiled. Their road is washed to thunder; and they repeat their blunder, they build it up again; they cut their bootless capers with graders and with scrapers, misguided sons of men. The roads are dragged and graded, and manured and spaded, and when it rains they're done; the money has been squandered on roads o'er which I've wandered, in gold, would weigh a ton. Our roads are dreary fizzes, although with planes and chisels we smooth them, year by year; for money always calling, they're good till rain is falling, and then they disappear. When this grim war is ended methinks it will be splendid if we get down to tacks, and build some modern highways, forsaking muddy byways, and rutty cattle tracks. I travel much in motors and oft I see the voters sunk shoulder deep in mud; respect for morals losing, the language they are using would freeze a purist's blood.

Can America Produce Her Own Potash.

New light is thrown on this interesting question by facts and figures contained in a recent publication of the Bureau of Soils of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Bulletin No. 578 gives a careful analysis of the probable potash supply to be had from the cement industry when apparatus for its recovery has been universally installed.

On the basis of an average production of 90,000,000 barrels of cement, the total potash escaping at present amounts to about 87,000 tons annually. It has been demonstrated commercially that 90 per cent. of this potash is recoverable and experiments show that 95 per cent. of this amount is in available form, or may readily be made available. On this basis we would have a production of approximately 76,000 tons of available potash each year.

Since only about 50 per cent. of the potash in the raw material is ordinarily volatilized in the process of making cement, as handled at present, there is a prospect of still further quantities to be made available from this source.

The present high prices of potash are encouraging installation of collecting apparatus and when once installed the cost of potash recovery is small.

jumped up and struck the colored chap and, as he did so, other colored men and Italians rushed in, and soon a free for all fight was in progress. There were only two or three policemen on the grounds at the time and these, with drawn revolvers, held the crowd for a time. But soon stones were thrown by whites and blacks and the affair became serious. A hurried call was sent for the Dominion Coal Company police, but both forces were unable to keep order. By this time, about an hour after the fight started, the news of the affair had spread through the town, and crowds raced to the grounds. The soldiers at Marconi Towers were summoned. About a dozen arrived, but they were powerless to stop the race riot that was now in full fury. The whites tore up the refreshment booths and destroyed everything on the field. Others set upon every black man. The negroes sought safety in wild flight. They were overtaken and dragged from their hiding places and beaten and knocked into insensibility. Persons who gave them shelter had the windows of their houses smashed to bits, the house doors driven in, and the refugees were dragged out in the street and battered and hammered in wild anger.

of white against black has been growing bitter and on several occasions serious fights ensued. Artificial Limbs.

Revolutionized by new Science of Surgery.
A new field of work has been developed by Italian surgeons in making amputations which offers a remarkable opportunity for assisting the war's maimed, says the September Popular Mechanics' Magazine. It is known as kinematization and consists in forming at the end of a stump what is known as a "motor flap" of such muscular masses, and tendons as are available. This flap is used as an attachment for the hooks, wings, rods, or things to be used in transmitting the movements of the muscles remaining in the stump to artificial limbs. It is even possible to perform the operation on healed stumps. It not only simplifies artificial limbs but greatly increases their usefulness, making it possible to flex the forearm and extend the fingers with a stump only 1 1/2 inches in length.

False Modesty.

has led many a suffering person to neglect the treatment of piles. The itching, stinging sensations produce the keenest distress. The thought of a surgical operation brings mental anxiety which undermines the general health. Relief can always be obtained by the application of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in most cases persistent treatment brings about complete cure. This ointment is worth trying when you think of the comfort to be obtained.

New Leather Substitute of Unwoven Cotton.

A process for making a new kind of leather substitute has been developed which bids fair to overcome very largely the leather shortage, says the June Popular Mechanics Magazine. A company has already been formed to manufacture the new product which is made by compressing unwoven cotton, the fiber being in the form of batting or roving, as the slightly twisted fibers are called. A substance is obtained that is made of closely interlaced strands and so resembles leather structurally. It also has a toughness comparable with that of high-grade leather. Machines have already been designed for making shoe laces, belts and straps, and only slight changes would be needed to turn out a product several feet wide. The cost of the new substitute is said to be only a fraction of that of leather, and it can be embossed and dyed to look like leather of any grain or hue.

Market Notes.

Codfish.—There is very little new fish in the St. John's market yet. The poor weather of July and August kept back drying for several weeks. The prices now offered on all grades should be an inducement to those who made good catches in June and July to get rid of their voyage for these months. Merchantable is now bringing $12 to $12.50; Maderia $11 to $11.50 and Labrador Soft $10 to $10.20. Labrador Shore will probably go to $11 or $12.
Cod Oil.—Common gives promise of going beyond last year's prices, and there is keen demand growing. Late sales for large lots were made at $220 per ton. There is very little in the market here the reason being that those who hold quantities in the outports are standing off for higher prices. Refined has moved up a peg, some recent sales having been made at a slight advance over the summer rates.
Herring.—At Bay of Islands, Bonne Bay and Green Bay advices are that preparations are now going on for the fall pack. Some big work is going to be done at Springdale, a great deal of United States capital having been invested there. All the Scotch Pack of last season has gone out. There is an excellent demand for Splitts at $6.50 to 7 for Halifax and West India markets.
Lobsters.—Last week's exports about four hundred cases. The American demand is good and prices are therefore likely to hold. The local quotation is $19.50 to $20.50, according to pack.
Pork.—An advance in Pork has taken place in New York and Chicago and it is presumed that there will be higher prices here in a few weeks. Wholesale figures to-day are: Ham Butt, $45; Short Cut, $49; Spare Ribs, $35. Beef has been holding fairly even, the big war demand apparently having gone off. Bos Flank is $43 to $45.50; Bos Packet, $41; Boneless, $43. Very late advices by cable announce a sharp advance in tinned corned beef. Flour prices remain unchanged. Supplies of American granulated sugar continue scarce, but a shipment is expected this week. From then on to the end of the year conditions are expected to improve. The present price of Granulated is

The price of local potatoes is now $6 per barrel; that of imported, $6.75. The Canadian crop particularly that of Prince Edward Island, promises to be the largest on record.

Freely His creatures chooses
To cherish or to kill;
And you laugh as the altar crashes
And the wine of the cup is spilt,
Add you about that your sword shall answer
To a pagan god for your guilt;
But when this night is ended,
But when new days begin,
Bitterly shall your children
Barg for their fathers' sin.
The wrath of many nations
Shall drive you to your place,
Man's soul is risen against you,
Man's judgment you shall face—
When the blood has dried in the valley,
And the suns come down from the hill,
And the armies melt in the vineyards,
And the harvest goes to the mill,
Then, when the men are sowing,
Then, when the women spin,
Bitterly shall your children
Pay for their fathers' sin.
The gates of life shall open,
The feast of love be spread,
Joy shall come in with music,
Bringing earth's wine and bread;
And the nation's shall draw together,
And the people's shall be as one,
But you shall come in unwelcomed
And you shall sit down by none.
Slowly man's heart shall open
His doors to let you in;
Bitterly shall your children
Pay for their fathers' sin.
The eyes of all shall mark you,
Lips as you pass be dumb,
Into the path you follow
No other guest shall come;
You shall sit at the feast unfriended,
You shall go from the house unsteady,
You shall be on the earth a stranger
Till the debt that you owe is paid,
Hardly to man's forgiveness
Shall Belgium's slayer win,
Bitterly shall your children
Curse for their fathers' sin.

FRNECH PROGRESS REPORTED.
LONDON, Sept. 8.
By nightfall yesterday our troops had taken Villeque and St. Emile, and had gained possession of the greater part of the Havrincourt wood. Local fighting took place yesterday evening and during the night east of Hamel and in the sector west of Armentieres but without material change in the situation. West of La-basse our patrols have made further progress in the enemy's position.

MORE TOWNS TAKEN.

PARIS, Sept. 8.
North of the Somme we carried Vaux Fluquies and Happencourt. East of here we captured Hamel. South of the Somme the enemy offered bitter resistance. Avesnes was recaptured by the Germans but was again recaptured by us. We gained ground on both sides of the Oise east of Flargniers and west of Servais.

AERIAL OPERATIONS.

LONDON, Sept. 8.
The official statement on aerial operations over the battle front issued to-night says: Clouds and rainstorms limited work in the air on Sept. 7th, but a good deal of artillery observation was carried out as well as reconnaissances and contact patrols. Eight hostile machines and one balloon were destroyed by our airmen. Three of our machines are missing. Thirteen tons of bombs were dropped by us during the twenty-four hours. Our night bombing machines all returned safely.

On a previous occasion the same man strayed from home.

Saturday's Fire.

Saturday night at 8 o'clock, the Western and Central Companies were called to Hamilton Avenue where a chimney was ablaze, and sending sparks on the adjoining houses. However, the residents had extinguished the fire before the men arrived and no damage was done.
