MERCANTILE MARINE.

MEMORIAL PLAQUE and SCROLL.

His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to sanction a Memorial being presented to the next-of-kin of all those Members of the Mercantile Marine who have lost their lives through enemy action while serving on British Ships and to the next-of-kin of British Members of the crews of neutral or allied vessels under the direct control of the Admiralty who have lost their lives through enemy action while serving on such vessels, between the 4th of August, 1914, and the 11th November, 1918. This Memorial is to take the form of a Bronze Plaque emblematic of design, and a parchment scroll with appropriate wording, each of which will bear the deceased's christian name and surname. The Memorials will be accompanied by a letter from His Majesty and are to be regarded as a gift from His Majesty the King.

Application should be made to the Customs' Officer, in the same manner as application for the British War Medal and Mercantile Marine Medal.

STEWART'S

Home Made Bread,

THE BREAD MY DADDY LIKES.

Daddy is evidently not one of those back number lords of creation who believes that woman's place is in the home—and only there. His taste in a wife is an up-to-date woman who will prove herself a real companion. He knows that if she is a slave to her kitchen she can't enjoy the peace or have the interest in world affairs that a little extra leisure would make possible; and so he is pleased to eat MRS. STEWART'S HOME MADE BREAD—the loaf with the home made flavor.

The smiling, well-nourished kiddie doesn't look as though suffering because mother is progressive enough to buy good bread made by a bread specialist, instead of wearing out her life in the kitchen.

THE Phantom Lover.

(By the Author of "A Bachelor Hand.")

CHAPTER XVIII.

Ether wrote to Mrs. Ashton that same night and told her she must regretfully decline the offered position; she gave no reason, but she permitted herself a little sigh of regret when the letter was dispatched.

She would like to have gone; she would like to have seen Raymond's home and to have got to know his mother, but it was his wish that she should not go.

She tried to believe that she was happy in the knowledge of his love, but in her heart she knew that she was restless and dissatisfied.

"If I had something to do I should be ever so much happier," she told June again and again, and June quite agreed.

"It must be awful, killing time," she said. "When I think of the life I used to lead at home before I started trying to improve people's complexions, I wonder I didn't go mad. Nothing, but silly tea-parties and scandals. . . . Right! But all the same Micky and I agreed that you wouldn't like being at Mrs. Ashton's."

"Micky!" said Esther scornfully. "As if I care what he thinks. . . ."

June looked mildly amazed.

"Oh, all right," she said smoothly. "I suppose I may mention his name sometimes, mayn't I?" She began to laugh. "Do you know that for once in my life I've been totally wrong with regard to you two? I was so sure you'd more than like each other—I even thought it quite possible that Micky would fall in love with you—you're so exactly suited to him."

"I'm glad you think so," said Esther drily. "I'm sorry I can't oblige you by agreeing."

Jane said "Humph!" She yawned. "All the same," she added after a moment, "I'm convinced that things would have been different if it hadn't been for that phantom lover of yours; you're so crazy about him." There was a touch of exasperation in her voice.

Ether flushed angrily. "It's absurd of you to talk like this," she said. "Mr. Mellowes is the last man on earth I should ever have looked at, even supposing Raymond. . . ."

She had spoken the name before she was aware of it; in her momentary flash of temper she had so carefully guarded herself.

It was too late to attempt to cover what she had said; she knew by the sudden expression of June's face that she had heard.

There was a poignant silence, then June sat up with a little jerk.

"Of course, that's let the cat out of the bag," she said curtly. "And you let me run him down! How mean! How ungratefully mean of you, Esther! . . . I can't think now why I never guessed Raymond Ashton!"

Ether had flushed scarlet. "I never said that was his name," she tried to defend herself. "It's purely your imagination. And even supposing it is, do you think I mind what you say about him, or Mr. Mellowes either? Neither of you know him as I do, or you would never say such cruel, wicked things." She stopped with a sob in her voice.

"Then it is Raymond Ashton?" June said gently. She got up and came over to where Esther was sitting. "Oh, I am sorry I said anything about him!" she cried impulsively. "You ought to have stopped me. How on earth was I to know?"

"I don't care what you said; it's all untrue," Esther protested stormily. "Nothing you could ever say about him would influence me or make me feel any differently."

June got up for a cigarette; when she was nonplussed she invariably had to smoke; she took several agitated puffs before she looked at her friend again.

"Well, anything I said was in absolute innocence, you know that," she said in distress. "I'd no more idea than the dead that you and he. . . . So that's why he doesn't want you to go to his mother?"

"He doesn't know; I never told him it was Mrs. Ashton's—I just said I had had an offer of a berth. I suppose you are trying to make out now that he—"

"Heaven bless the child!" June cried. "I'm not trying to make out anything! I'm struck all of a heap like! as Lydia says. So he's the phantom lover, is he? . . . Well—I can't find any words to suit the case."

"He's not a phantom lover," Esther protested. "He's a real lover, a very real lover."

June stopped and took her hand. "I'm not going to let you quarrel with me over him, no matter how badly you want to," she said. "No man is worth two friends having a row over. I'm quite prepared to take him to my arms and love him if you do. . . . Oh, Esther, don't look like that!"

There were tears in Esther's eyes, and her lips were trembling. "You're making fun of me," she protested. "It's unkind of you."

June turned away; she wondered if perhaps, after all, she and every one else had thoroughly misunderstood Raymond, and if this girl's warm championing of him was deserved.

"He's not nearly good enough for her," she was telling herself indignantly. "She'll never really be happy with him."

"I hope you won't tell Mr. Mellowes, or any one else," Esther was saying defiantly. "I don't want my affairs talked over by every one."

"I shall not tell any one," June said quietly.

She stood looking down into the fire, and her face was troubled.

Presently she walked to Esther, and, stooping, kissed her.

"I'm awfully glad I know," she said. "It makes our friendship seem so much more real."

Ether smiled faintly.

But June was ill at ease. She felt instinctively that things were not all right.

"It isn't the man himself," she told herself obstinately. "It's some foolish, mistaken ideal of him that she has created."

She wondered what he really was doing in Paris. Micky would know—he and Micky had been such great friends. There would be no harm in speaking of him to Micky, at least that would not be betraying any secret or confidence.

She rang Micky up the following morning. She made the excuse that she wanted to see him on business. She took him to lunch at her club.

"You don't look well," was her greeting. "What's the matter, Micky?"

Micky frowned. If there was one thing he hated it was for any one to remark on his appearance. He answered brusquely that he had never been better in his life.

"By the way, I was going to write when you rang up," he said. "I've got some tickets for a first night to-morrow. Would you care to come along and—bring Miss Shepstone?"

June beamed. She liked going out with Micky.

"I should love it," she said with enthusiasm. "I can't answer for Esther, though."

"Try to persuade her," he urged carelessly. "I don't suppose she's been about much; it would do her good."

"She told me she loves theatres," June admitted; "but the trouble will probably be that she hasn't got a dress."

"A dress?" Micky echoed vaguely. "Can't you lend her one of yours?"

June laughed. "My dear boy, she's much taller than me and slimmer. . . . However, I'll see what can be done. Where shall we meet you?"

"I'll call for you at seven. We'll have some grub first."

"Good! And if Esther won't come?"

"Oh, well, if she won't, you come along, of course; but try and persuade her."

"She's refused Mrs. Ashton's offer, you know," June said presently. She kept her eyes lowered; she felt self-conscious and guilty.

"Has she?" Micky did not sound particularly interested.

"Yes; the phantom lover objected, or something, and I think it's just as well."

"She said something about it when I had tea with you the other day," June nodded.

"So she did. I dare say that wretched Raymond would have tried to make love to her if she had gone," she added deliberately.

"He's away just now," Micky said quickly. "I ran across him when I was over in Paris last week."

June looked up quickly. "Did you? What's he doing there?"

"Nothing particular; he often goes over, you know."

"I can't stand that man," June said, after a moment.

"No?" Micky's voice was casual. "I never could see why you were so thick with him," she went on.

Micky laughed lazily. "Perhaps because I haven't your gift of second sight, my dear," he said. "I shouldn't have thought it would need second sight to see what he is," June declared.

She looked across at Micky and was surprised by the hard expression of his face. "I hate men who flirt," she added. "Micky, do you know that I've got a kind of feeling about Esther's phantom lover that he doesn't really exist?"

Micky sat up with sudden attention. "What do you mean?" he asked.

She shrugged her shoulders. "I mean that he isn't really a tangible man," she explained haltingly.

Micky laughed. "Oh, yes, he is," he said.

June caught her breath. "You don't mean—oh, do you mean that you know him?" she asked excitedly.

Micky met her eyes with a faintly ironical smile in his own.

"Yes, I know him," he answered hardly. "And so do you. My dear, I may be very green, but your careful questioning wouldn't deceive a mouse."

"Micky!" said June indignantly. She flushed all over her face, and her queer eyes blazed angrily. She really felt that she had done a dreadful thing in having allowed him to guess. "You needn't look so upset," Micky said. "You've not told me anything; I knew it long before you did."

"When? How—oh, Micky, do tell me!"

Nature's Finest Food in Its Safest Form

Build up your children's health—Let them drink lots of this rich, creamy, pure milk

Thousands of These Recipe Books are in Use

Carnation Milk adds richness and flavor—improves all your cooking. It should be diluted first, of course. The famous Carnation Book of 100 tested recipes is sent FREE for the asking. You'll find a use for every recipe in the book. Write for a copy today—address our Aylmer office.

The label is RED and WHITE

USE Carnation Milk liberally at every meal—with cereals and fruit, in soups, puddings and sauces, for creamed vegetables and as a beverage—and your children will gain those rosy cheeks, bright eyes and happy smiles that spell perfect HEALTH.

Carnation Milk is Nature's finest food in a convenient form. It is just pure, rich cow's milk with part of the water removed by evaporation—sealed in air-tight containers while perfectly fresh and sterilized. It contains all the rich body-building elements of milk.

Because it is sterilized it is safe milk. Because it is sealed in the heart of the dairying counties, it is safeguarded against contamination.

In the can Carnation Milk stays sweet indefinitely. You can keep a month's supply ahead on your pantry shelves. Your children can have this nourishing milk to drink whenever they need it.

You simply dilute Carnation Milk with at least an equal quantity of water. It is then ready for every purpose for which you use ordinary milk. And its rich quality makes more delicious, more nutritious cocoa, bread-and-milk, puddings, custards, cakes, soups and sauces.

Or you can use it as cream, for tea and coffee, direct from the can. Carnation is the only milk supply your home needs.

Try this convenient milk supply one week and you never change back to ordinary milk. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans from your grocer. He is the Carnation Milkman.

At my Wits' End.

Dear Sirs, I am so delighted with the results of Virol that I feel compelled to send you a photo of my baby. When he was a few weeks old I tried numerous foods, but without success, and I was almost at my wits' end to know what to do, when a friend advised me to try Virol. I did so; he is 8 months old now, and I am quite sure you would not find a more healthy child. I feel so thankful that I shall be only too pleased to recommend it wherever I can.

Yours faithfully,

DO ALL MY HOUSE WORK

Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly get about.

Cobourg, Ont.—"For many years I have had trouble with my nerves and have been in a general run down condition for some time. I could not do my work half of the time because of the trouble with my monthly sickness. I was told by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and advised to try it. It has done me good, and I strongly recommend it. Since I have taken it I have been able to do all my own work, and I also know friends who have found it good. You can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. ELLEN FLATTERS, Box 761, Cobourg, Ont.

Why will women continue to suffer so long is more than we can understand, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For forty years this good old fashioned root and herb remedy, which contains no harmful drugs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (consultant), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Fashions and Fads.

The collars on wool serge or crepe gowns are made of heavy lace. Fancy piquets are used for the waistcoat blouses worn with two-piece suits.

Very large evening hats are made of heavy lace, horsehair and crepe de chine.

Chantilly lace is being displayed in shrimp pink, grass green and copper.

Brilliant-colored bands of embroidered trim coats, suits and street dresses.

Foulards are incrustated on chiffon in smart black and white combinations.

Palmettes in square and oblong shapes are in much demand for evening gowns.

Cream lace is draped over black satin, taffeta or chiffon, for afternoon wear.

Broad Bertha collars of heavy Italian lace are used on serge and taffeta dresses.

Chic, allover embroidery jackets are worn with plain skirts, giving a two-fabric effect.

Voiles will not be worn as much as they usually are, while voile slacks has been successful.

Afternoon dresses feature fullness between hips and knees given by stiffened godet gores.

TALKSMITHS.

My neighbor Hiram Henry Hicks is fond of talking politics; that is a theme that makes me sore, so Hiram Henry seems a bore. But I'm the sort of sap-head right who always strives to be polite, so I pretend that he is not so boring. H. Hicks, with all his talk of politics, is holding me entranced, spell-bound; I do not yawn or rubber round, but hang upon his throbbing words as though they well might charm the birds. But when H. Henry Hicks runs dry, and I would talk of books or pie, or any topic I adore, he looks upon me as a bore; he interrupts and yawns and sighs, and hot tears gather in his eyes, and then he reaches for his hat, his parasol, brass knuckles and gat, and hastens from my humble shack—he cannot bear to hear me clack. And Hiram Hicks is short of friends; the people shun him as he wends along the main street of our town; he as a bore has wide renown. But when I trip along the street I'm smiled upon by all I meet. This moral, then, these facts afford: You must be willing to be bored if you would bore the other; talk to him as he blooms whisksers off.

Mine Owners and Strikers Agree to Hold Conference.

Volunteer Workers Unmolested—London Newspapers are Optimistic—Disorders Reported From Wales—Naval Balloon Found but no Trace of Crew.

PROSPECTS OF SETTLEMENT BRIGHTER.

LONDON, April 10. An agreement was reached last night by the striking coal miners and mine owners for a conference for the purpose of endeavoring to settle the strike. The executive body of the miners has instructed the miners to refrain from any action endangering the mines. Frank Hodges, Secretary of the Miners' Union, said the conference with the mine owners had been arranged without conditions being stipulated. To-day was a day of relaxation from the tension created by the coal strike and the possibility of a general industrial tie up and gave cabinet ministers and labor leaders an opportunity to get into the country for a rest. Opinion on the present aspect of the crisis continues favorable, but meantime all precautionary measures and recruiting of volunteers are proceeding actively and will not be relaxed until the miners are back at work. These preparations formed a great attraction for Londoners to-day who apparently no longer haunted by fear of strikes by the railwaymen and transport workers, crowded the parks and rivers enjoying the brilliant sunshine. It was a striking contrast to Saturday, when fears of untoward developments kept the nervous suburban population in its houses. Various views were apparent to-day. First was the confident belief among labor leaders that now an unfettered conference is assured a greater number of pumpers will return to their duties, although under terms of the agreement they only are required to abstain from molesting volunteer workers. The second was that the government while firmly opposed to a subsidy, is willing for a limited period to afford some temporary assistance to tide the industry over the difficult stage. It is also believed that the whole wage basis recently proposed by the mine owners, and which originated the dispute, will be discarded and a new basis formulated for the miners' consideration.

NEWSPAPER COMMENT.

LONDON, April 10. The Sunday morning papers, commenting on Saturday night's dramatic turn of the industrial crisis where by the mine owners and miners will meet Monday morning, welcome the coming conference as one which is likely to open the road to a settlement of all differences, but in their opinion the most important development is that the safety of the mines is already assured. Only Lloyd's news attempts to explain how the parties were brought into agreement creating a successful outcome to the patience and conciliatory attitude of Premier Lloyd George, who was convinced that a mutually acceptable basis of discussion of points at issue could be arranged between the parties. It states that the Premier suggested that pumping should be continued by voluntary workers and that the miners should agree that there would be no intimidation. The News says, "It is too early at present to say that a settlement has been effected, but it is obvious that a long step has been taken towards peace when two parties agree to a conference. The change of feeling is welcomed for the best interests of owners and miners, and what is much more important, the nation at large. Peace is nearer victory than either side could expect to win from a prolonged and bitter struggle."

DISORDERS IN COAL DISTRICTS.

LONDON, April 10. Further disorders were reported to the authorities yesterday from districts where coal miners are on strike. In Wales there were many cases of looting. In one instance a coal train was held up and a large quantity of fuel taken. Raiders are also killing sheep pasturing in the hilly regions. Billboards, trees; fences and other fixtures of wood have been taken for fuel. In Newcastle district there have been numerous fires and many telephone and telegraph poles have been destroyed. Acute distress is already being felt in many districts and the Salvation Army is distributing food.

CUTTING WAGES.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 10. A reduction in wages averaging from fifteen to twenty per cent., was proposed to representatives of the clerical and station forces of the Pennsylvania Railroad by the Roads Managers' Committee in conference here yesterday. Approximately forty thousand employees in these departments of the system would be affected by the plan.

BALLOON FOUND BUT CREW MISSING.

PANAMA CITY, Fla., April 10. The naval balloon, which had been missing with five men since it left Pensacola naval station, March 22nd, was picked up in the Gulf late Friday by a fishing boat and brought here yesterday. No trace of the crew was found.

TESTING HIS WIFE.

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 10. Roy Harris, held here by the police on his confession that he was concerned in the murder of Jos. B. Elwell, in New York, last June, to-day confessed that his story is not true. The prisoner had been questioned for two hours by District Attorney Moore, at the end of which he made the statement admitting that his original declaration was false. Harris alleges that his reasons for the hoax were that he had been separated from his wife and had met her again only last week and decided to know whether she would be staunch to him in serious trouble. He said that he had not proven "loyal and true" he would have gone to the electric chair without regret.

A LONELY WORLD.

It's getting so I want to see
The green returning to the tree.
I want to hear the robin's song—
The birds have been away so long
That I've begun to wonder when They'll come to build their nests again.

As when the youngsters go away
And all alone at home I stay,
The world has lonely grown to me.
For everywhere I turn to see
Some spot deserted and in gloom
Where friendly blossoms ought to bloom.

The corner where the children play
Looks up at me, as if to say,
"When shall I hear the shouts of glee
Which are the breath of life to me?"
And from a hush the creaking swing
Seems, waiting to behold the spring.

I know they're tired of walls and floors,
The youngsters should be out-of-doors
And street and lawn need merry feet
To make their loveliness complete.
I'm hungry now once more to see
The world arrayed as it should be.

World's Greatest Educational and Historical Industry.

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY.

In the business progress of the civilized world, no more rapid or wonderful advance has been made than has marked the Motion Picture industry. To-day more people are interested in this great new development and more people derive their chief pleasure, amusement and instruction from the silent drama than from any other source. Within less than a decade it has developed from an insignificant form of recreation and amusement into one of the greatest educational mediums of modern times. No other industry has ever been founded on a more solid foundation. The extent of the screen's appeal is limited only by the number of human eyes there are in the world.

ENORMOUS PROFITS OF THE BUSINESS.

It is interesting to know that nearly $2,000,000,000 of capital is now represented in the producing and exhibiting of pictures; more than 300,000 persons are now regularly employed in its various branches of activities; 4,000,000 ft. of film are produced weekly; over $2,000,000 were spent in the United States and Canada in 1919, for admission to motion picture theatres, and it is represented that $150,000,000 represents the profits made by producers and exhibitors. This remarkable record has been attained in the last fifteen years, making motion picture industries the third largest in the world and first in the amount of profits it has paid on the capital invested.

It is this development and these possibilities which have caused the entry to this field of such outstanding business and financial men as W. C. Durant, President of General Motors Corporation; Sir Herbert S. Holt, President of the Royal Bank of Canada; Harvey D. Gibson, The Liberty National Bank of New York; Lord Beaverbrook; Daniel E. Pomeroy, Vice-President Bankers' Trust Company of New York; Lord Ashfield, Chairman of the Underground Railways, London; Sir Hugo Cunliffe Owen, Chairman of British American Tobacco Co.

DID YOU EVER REALIZE?

That the moving picture industry pays a larger dividend on the investment than any other industry.

That most of the pictures you pay to see in your local theatres are produced outside of the Dominion.

That Canada pays the United States fifteen million dollars per year for Motion Picture Films.

That in the United States to-day there are three hundred and thirteen companies making film plays and that up to a year ago there was not one successful producing company in Canada.

Dollars represent energy. You can make them work and earn. The great industrial leaders of the world made their first start by saving a few dollars and investing wisely and at the right time in some new industry.

AND REALIZING THIS ARE YOU SATISFIED?

If you are interested in the moving picture industry as an investment, send your name and address on a postcard to J. R. BECK, Rates Representative, and we will forward without obligation to yourself some interesting literature pertaining to the industry in Canada.

Memorial for Bell Island.

The war memorial which the people of Bell Island are erecting to their honored dead, arrived by the s.s. Stanmore and is a most beautiful monument. It consists of a handsome shaft of gray Aberdeen granite; 15 feet high, including the base block, three feet square. At the bottom of the shaft is a caribou head, gracefully carved in relief and on the other side names carved number 27, two off-the words, "Lest We Forget." The shaft is a caribou head, gracefully carved in relief and on the other side names carved number 27, two off-which Veteran N. G. Lodge is the President, and Veteran C. O. Butler, a Blue Puttee, is the Secretary-Treasurer. The site has not yet been decided on but the D.I.S. Co. has kindly offered one in the business centre of the mines. The decision will be made at a meeting to be held on Wednesday next. Bell Island has set an example to the capital city, which St. John's may well and wisely imitate, at the earliest possible opportunity.

A Diplomatic (?) Trade Agent.

When countries send duly accredited envoys to other countries for purposes of politics, trade, or the conservation and strengthening of international interests, the men selected to occupy such important positions are those who are educated, diplomatic, conciliatory and possessing a full knowledge of the duties they are to perform. Newfoundland has but recently sent certain gentlemen abroad to act as Trade Representatives, but it is a moot question whether all of them possess the qualifications that the importance of their offices demand. One striking example of absolute unfitness comes from Oporto, where the gentleman who represents Newfoundland trade interests has shown that while he can spend Newfoundland money lavishly—his outlay having been quoted in the House of Assembly as reaching the handsome sum of TWELVE THOUSAND AND THIRTY DOLLARS, THREE CENTS—he does not recognize the amenities of polite correspondence, as the following threatening letter to Oporto, will show. There would perhaps be some excuse for Mr. Smith, if he wrote this letter on his own initiative, but when it is counter-signed "approved" with the signature of Hon. W. F. Coaker, Minister, it becomes far of more effect than merely the personal communication of the Newfoundland Trade Commissioner for Portugal. It is given the imprimatur of the Government, and the Government becomes responsible. We refrain from further comment on this most offensive communication, to-day, preferring to let the public be the judges of the contents of a document, every line of which is an insult and a threat to the persons to whom it is addressed.

COPY OF A LETTER ADDRESSED TO ONE OF THE LEADING IMPORTERS OF PORTUGAL.

Oporto, Feb. 8, 1921.
Dear Sirs,
Saint John's informs me you cabled Government Board Trade refusing buy fish through Mercantile. Who informed you that any sales here were to be through Mercantile? I told you that Trade Commissioner was to be sole salesman of all fish entering from Newfoundland, and every sale had to be arranged through Fishery Department. I may inform you now, that whether you buy or don't buy, no sales will be made except through Fishery Department. I would also remind you that Newfoundland Government don't intend to be advised as to how it shall conduct its business, by you, or any interested party here, who know that consignments are more beneficial than outright sales. All are to be treated on equal footing here, and if necessary, I am prepared to erect cold storage for Newfoundland fish, and sell direct to the Trade. While I don't wish to injure any firm dealing with fish, I don't intend to be influenced by the actions, or resolutions of combines, or persons here, who wish to grind their axes at the expense of Newfoundland. I am surprised that you should cable a falsehood to Newfoundland, which will be a proof of the anxiety of some Importers here, who fear that consignments will be cut out, which would remove the chance of making sure profits at the Shipper's expense.

(Sgd.) S. K. SMITH,
Newfoundland Trade Commissioner, Portugal.
Approved.
(Sgd.) W. F. COAKER,
Minister.

The Revenue.

Below will be found the Revenue Returns as asked for by Sir M. P. Cashin in the House of Assembly recently. Comment on them is altogether unnecessary, they speak for themselves:

West Coast Fishery Worst for 30 Years.

The report of Sub-Collector Farnoux of the fishery from Rose Blanche to Harbor Le Cou for the period up to April 3rd, gives the total catch as 5,140 qts., and since March 12th there has been no fish caught. The report continues: "There have been no fish caught for the past three weeks, although the shore boats and all the schooners had been out several times from the inside fishing ground to the outside part of the Bank 15 miles off, and not a single fish had been hooked. The drift ice passed over the outside fishing ground about a month ago. Since then the fish have taken a start—many think to the Southern Banks. The fishery to date is 4,000 qts. short of last year's catch, and last year there was not an average catch. This, then, can be rightly said to be our worst fishery for over 30 years. All the schooners are gone home, some poorly fished, others only half loaded. Not likely anything further will be done before some time in May after the herring make their appearance."

Judgment Sustained.

In the matter of the appeal of the St. John's Daily Star to set aside a judgment, Mr. Justice Johnson handed down his decision, which is in effect that the judgment must remain but the defendant Daily Star may take action for damages against plaintiff, W. Garland, Gaultois.

In Trouble Again.

CASTLE POINT MAKING FOR HIRE
A message was received Saturday morning by Messrs. Bowring Bros. from S. S. Castle Point which stated that the ship was short of coal and was making for this port. A message received later gave the ship's position as 173 miles east of this port and also stated that she had lost a blade of her propeller, as well as having damaged a second, and that she was fast in the ice. Many and various rumors were about yesterday concerning the ship, but nothing definite is yet known beyond the fact that S. S. Terra Nova, now at the icefields, has been in communication with the Castle Point and will go, if possible, to her assistance and bring her to port.

The Castle Point is owned by Messrs. Moore & McCormack of New York, and several months ago, whilst bound from New York to Queenstown, put in here with her steering gear out of order. After the necessary repairs had been made the ship resumed her voyage, but returned two days later with the steering gear again damaged. The ship was delayed several days whilst having repairs effected, when she again resumed her voyage. Fate however, was unkind, and when nearing the English Coast, the ship again became helpless and was towed to Queenstown. The Castle Point is now on the return trip and another chapter in her history is being enacted. The Castle Point is a sister ship of the S. S. Delco, well known in this port.

Sealing 'Plane' Up Yesterday.

The small sealing plane, which took the place of the larger one intended to locate the sealers, made a flight of 3 hours yesterday with Mr. Cotton and Capt. Keen aboard. The flight extended to Grand Falls, Fogo, Mesagrove Harbor and Twillingate. According to the report the weather conditions were not altogether satisfactory, there being low clouds, but everything worked well. Open water from the land to as far as could be seen was reported.

A False Alarm.

The police on duty in the West End last night were informed that some person was hovering about near the office of Morey & Co., Queen Street, and was examining the outside of the building with a flashlight. Sergeant Keefe, in charge of the night watch, had two constables stationed near the office and in the interim despatched another for Mr. H. Wyatt, manager at Morey & Co's. When Mr. Wyatt arrived he made a complete investigation and found everything intact. The trouble was that some coals left burning in a grate in the upper part of the office was flickering and some passersby jumped to the conclusion that a thief was operating and using a flashlight, and reported the matter to the police.

St. Thomas's Rector.

PREACHES VALEDICTORY SERMON

In spite of the very wet weather of yesterday, St. Thomas's Church was thronged with people anxious to hear the valedictory sermon of Rev. Dr. Jones, on "Fiduciate or Backsliders—Which?" The service was taken by Rev. C. A. McGilton, the Rector reading the Lessons and preaching. Taking his text from the words "Stand fast therefore," Dr. Jones delivered one of his most forceful utterances, whilst the vast congregation awaited his words with intense solemnity. His was the personally painful duty of acquainting the congregation that he had decided to give up his charge in Newfoundland to take work in another diocese. During the six years of his stay in the parish, he had been uniformly treated with the greatest kindness, and had been associated with such an array of willing workers, as seldom falls to the lot of any Rector. He loved the work in St. Thomas's Parish, and he believed he was leaving a congregation more united than when he came, people that he believed would carry on after he left them; else had what God permitted him to do, been of little value. What then was he leaving for?

He came to the parish filled with enthusiasm for the success of the whole diocese, of which he is a native. A large percentage of the clergy did not want him; but that is not the reason. He was not leaving for more money, as he wanted more, he was sure the congregation in their generosity would supply that want, for they had ever been abundantly generous. He was leaving because he had been urged by the Bishop of Delaware to come and help him in the work of reconstructing a diocese, where such help was greatly needed. This Bishop had but a short time ago been consecrated. They had been fast friends, and co-workers in Dakota. He would not be so well off in temporal affairs, but he believed it was the will of God and he should obey that will, as he believed, and continually preached, that the will of God should be obeyed by all. He assured his hearers that the wrench to him of leaving was greater than he could express, but felt sure his friends would credit him with honesty of purpose.

Referring to the text, Dr. Jones then said there was some things the parish as a whole stood for, and to these he directed attention. (1) St. Thomas's Parish stood for a better system of education. Schools without religion and without church teaching were not advocated; but a union of purpose was believed in that would uproot the present absolutely inefficient prevalent system and afford opportunity for the children throughout the borders of the Colony, that under present conditions they were deprived of; (2) St. Thomas's Parish stood for Christian fellowship. Unswervingly loyal to the branch of the Catholic Church to which it belonged, there was yet room in the parochial heart, to extend the hand of Christian fellowship to those who sang from a different hymn book or used a different form of service; (3) St. Thomas's Parish stood for the fullest measure of belief in the presence of the Saviour in Holy Communion, and during the recent Mission when hundreds attended the early morning celebrations to pray, this fact was made apparent to all; (4) St. Thomas's Parish stood for a special effort in missionary work. He believed it was the only Parish in the Diocese that wholly sustained a Mission such as was so splendidly carried on by Rev. Henry Gordon, at Cartwright, Labrador, at the cost of $4,000.00 annually. He pleaded eloquently with the congregation to continue this branch of effort, to which not alone the dollars were sent, but three of the members of the Parish had given themselves as teachers. To all of these Dr. Jones urged continued allegiance and zeal. Another Rector would come to them, and take up the work, he hoped, more vigorously. As God was calling him, so would God send another. Closing, the Rector referred to a song recently sung by Mr. Lloyd Woods in Canon Wood Hall. It described the trials, the suffering, the disappointments of the boys in the trenches, and though they were confronted with all these, their refrain was "But to-morrow, by the Living God, we will play the game again." So may the people say when their new Rector is installed.

We can only now express the sentiment of regret that our citizens generally will feel, because so valued a clergyman and Christian gentleman feels it his duty to sever a connection with them that has been abundantly fruitful of benefit and blessing.

IN MEMORIAM.
In loving memory of my son, James J. Martin, No. 2320, Killed in Action April 13, 1918.
A son of mine, a dear, dear son,
Alas I will see no more;
He sleeps in a soldier's grave in France's far-off shore.
My son that I have longed to see,
I have prayed, but all in vain;
For God knew best to take him,
And will not meet again.

And those long months of sadness,
I shall never once forget;
Trusting that he would return to me
And that we would meet again.

And now my heart has lost all hope,
In we meet no more,
He sleeps to-night so far away
In France's far-off shore.
And as I look upon his face,
The face I loved so dearly,
My thoughts fly quickly back again
In France where he sleeps for ever more.

His memory I will cherish,
And how he nobly fell,
Good-bye my darling son, good-bye,
Farewell for ever more,
May the sacred heart of Jesus have mercy on his soul.—inserted by his Mother.

Thousands Honor Dead Soldier.

St. John's Pays Tribute to Gallant Hero.

Despite the inclement weather conditions the citizens of St. John's turned out in thousands yesterday afternoon to await the arrival of S.S. Kyle, bringing home the body of Pte. Anthony McGrath, who as a member of the American Expeditionary Force made the Supreme Sacrifice in France. By arrangements with the Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries, two guns were fired 1 hour previous to the ship's arrival. Shortly before six o'clock the Kyle, moving slowly, steamed up the harbor and docked at the Reid pier. The executive of the G.W.V.A. had everything in readiness and immediately the casket was landed and it was covered with the Union Jack and American flag and placed on a gun carriage. A general salute was sounded by a bugler of the C.L.B. and a firing squad from H.M.S. Briton, presenting arms. After a number of wreaths had been placed, the funeral cortege moved through the dock premises and onto the road leading to Water Street, where hundreds waited to join it.

The formation of the funeral party was as follows:—

1. C.L.B. Band.
2. Firing Party H.M.S. Briton.
3. Gun carriage with body, flanked by pall bearers from the G.W.V.A. Executive.
4. Acting American Consul and Sergeant A.E.F., who arrived in charge of the body.
5. Capt. Saltmarsh, A.D.C. of His Excellency the Governor.
6. Immediate relatives.
7. Prime Minister and Militia Representatives.
8. The Acting Mayor Mullaly and Civic Commission.
9. Members for the district of Placentia, public officials, Society representatives.
10. Sailors and Soldiers.
11. Detachment from C.O.C. and C.L.B.
12. General Public.

The line of route was along Water Street to the G.W.V.A. Rooms, as owing to the late arrival of the ship the body could not be taken to the R. C. Cathedral, as had been proposed. A guard of honor was posted and the casket, with a beautiful branch of candles at its head, was placed on suitable stands. During the night hundreds of citizens visited the mortuary room to say a prayer for the repose of the hero's soul. At 8.15 this morning Undertaker Myrick brought the Corpse to the Railway station and placed it aboard train en route to the deceased's home town, Patrick's Cove, Placentia Bay, Corporal J. Evans, G.W.V.A., and Sergt. Campbell, A.E.F., accompanying it. The corpse is enclosed in a hermetically sealed bronze casket, which is covered by a wooden case. Besides the wreath sent by the A.E.F. to adorn the casket, the following also contributed the G.W.V.A. Prime Minister, Sir M. P. Cashin and members of the Opposition, Messrs. Walsh, Sullivan and Sinnott, members for Placentia and St. Mary's, Mrs. (Hon.) John Browning, Mrs. J. McNamara, Mrs. Enon, Miss A. Nash, Branch, and American citizens residing in St. John's. We understand that the local expenses of burial is being paid by the Government.

WESLEY CHURCH

To a large congregation yesterday morning Rev. W. H. Browning of Harbour Grace preached an excellent sermon from Romans 16th Chap. 22 verse, "I Tertius who wrote this epistle salute you in the Lord."

In the opening of the preacher referred to the Apostle Paul, the dictator of the manuscript to his amanuensis, or secretary, Tertius who thought he might have the privilege of saluting those who would read the Epistle because of his close companionship and relation to Paul as working together for the same Master, and also the bearer of the letter to Phoebe—whose hospitality he had shared and whose usefulness he had been a witness of, and owing to her being about to leave Corinth on a visit to Rome, he had availed of the opportunity to forward the Epistle to the Romans. He then continued to explain the duty and reason for Christian service, not merely local, but to those in need, etc., and the joy of Christian service, its reward in this present life and after when His servants shall gather home and receive the "Well done, and enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

The rain storm, and arrival of the S.S. Kyle at 6 p.m. with remains of one of our heroes, which was accorded military honors, drew a great many to the streets where the parade would pass. In consequence of this the audience at the evening service was smaller than expected. Geo. W. Gushue, Esq., delivered a very practical address and urged all to adopt the principle of titling as commanded in the Old Testament, giving one tenth to the Lord's cause, and he believed by honoring God with our means, according to ability, we would bless our lives. We were only stewards of His bountiful goodness and should share it with others.

Rev. Mr. Browning spoke very eloquently and earnestly on the claims of Christian Missions. His points were, the responsibility of the obligation, "Go ye therefore, etc." The responsibility of the privilege and the responsibility of opportunity, the entering of the wide open doors. It was a thrilling appeal and Mr. Browning's hearers greatly appreciated his services as the deputation. Rev. Mr. Buglen, E.A., the Pastor, gave the report which showed that out of 25,000 dollars contributed last year by the Newfoundland Conference, that Wesley Church had given $1028.00, besides over six hundred dollars raised by the W.M.S. and Young Women's club.

—A.W.M.

The continued story of Philipians 4.8, in George Street Church last evening brought the preacher to the subject of "Purity."

These sermons of Rev. D. B. Hemmeon, B.A., are vivid portrayals of the fundamentals of righteousness. When the Christian religion began its influence it was necessary for its champions to employ the superlatives of pagan thought to explain the new conceptions of christianity, because these were the most dynamic and striking expressions available.

Thus it came about that such words as Truth, Honour, Justice and Purity were all taken from pagan environment and lifted to entirely new levels of thought and given a new significance entirely to express something of the incomparable beauty of the Christian outlook.

The word "Purity" had merely a ceremonial significance, indicating a fitness of the object for sacred purposes, an idea of superficial acceptance which might be called "Authoritative Purity." The word has now been lifted and exalted by its use in the Christian vocabulary to indicate an entirely different conception, i.e. a complete freedom from adulteration; a process of change from within to without covering the object entirely with its essence. Such is the conception of the word "Purity" in the Christian and common thought to-day.

Following the admonition of the text "Think on these things," the preacher proceeded to consider the effect of a purifying process on the institutions about us, such as the home, amusements, politics, business, international relations and the church. In all these directions his thought was searching and vivid.

The unalloyed and untarnished condition of pure relationships and the beautiful effects that result therefrom were exhibited with a wealth of expression rarely attained in public utterance. We may refer to two or three only of the many striking applications of the "Uox of Purity" which the preacher made. Purity in the movies—He had great hope that a cleaner, purer form of this great avenue of amusement might be provided, free from suggestions of evil and pregnant with influences for good. He had found movie managers courteous and ready to co-operate. Many a parent will have a load of fear lifted from the mind if the preacher's hopes are realized in this particular.

The Minister of Education in Ontario had recently forbidden the use of a certain published Text Book of History in the schools of that Province because it reflected in certain places on the people of the United States and their Government. We can share in the Preacher's admiration of this action of the Minister, but when can we hope to have the authorities in the United States reciprocate by removing from their Text Books the offensive and false statements in which they abound? International relationships will be greatly improved by such rectifications. No poison is more virulent than that emanating from such sources, and none more dangerous to international unity.

The purifying influence of the Church must not be thwarted by any

The Abdication of Napoleon I

On April 11, 1814, Napoleon Bonaparte abdicated the throne after an unsuccessful attempt to commit suicide. Though thoroughly beaten by the allied sovereigns, he was treated with the greatest generosity and allowed to retain the title of emperor. The island of Elba, was assigned as his future residence, and a sum of £100,000 as his yearly income. He was also given four hundred French soldiers as a bodyguard. Setting out at once for Elba, Bonaparte travelled towards the coast to escape the fury of the people who had once idolized him. For ten months the exiled monarch lived in his little kingdom—an islet sixty miles in circumference, displaying the restless energy characteristic of him. He visited every corner of his new realm, laid out new roads, built several new palaces, imposed new taxes, to the discontent of his subjects, had a supply of water brought into his new capital, took possession of an island adjoining, still smaller than Elba, and then turned his attention to the recruiting of his little army. All this ran him into pecuniary difficulties. A consummate dissembler, Napoleon spoke of his political career as closed. He discussed the public affairs of Europe, but always from the standpoint of a spectator. His sole interests he proclaimed were his family, his house, his cows, and his poultry. A few months later, during the sitting of Congress of Vienna, when the monarchs tried to dispose of the enormous territories which had been won from Bonaparte, he planned and successfully carried out his escape. With a fleet of seven small ships, and an army of a thousand men, he slipped away when everyone was busy at a ball given by him, and the vessels steered for the French coast. Reaching Paris, he met with extraordinary success, principally because the army sided with the old chief who had so frequently led them to victory and plunder. On June 18, 1815, he was finally defeated at Waterloo, and the Bourbon dynasty was restored to France until 1848, when a republic was established with Napoleon III. as president. Three years later he was crowned Emperor, but in 1870 the war with Prussia lost him his throne, and the existing republic was substituted.

St. Andrew's Sale of Work.

A Sale of Work in aid of church funds, will be opened by the Young Ladies' Guild of St. Andrew's Church, to-morrow afternoon in the Presbyterian Hall. At 3.30 o'clock, Rev. R. J. "THE OUTLOOK FOR NEWFOUNDLAND."

Address Delivered by A. B. Morine, Esq., K.C., Before Llewellyn Club.

Mr. Vice-President and Gentlemen,

The speaker and the subject for tonight were chosen by the President (Rev. Dr. Jones) and he is responsible for advertising my address as a "lecture," which I declare it is not to be. The "Outlook" which I am to speak about is not the spiritual one, for that is in the care of Dr. Jones and men of his cloth; neither is it the Party Outlook for I am not a party man. I was elected to the Assembly in 1914 as an Independent, and only joined the Cahn cabinet in 1919 because parties in the Assembly were so evenly balanced that it was necessary for me to join one of them in order to form a Government. My erstwhile constituents, apparently, did not approve, and I was defeated in the autumn of 1919, since which I have taken no active part in party work, though I have maintained my interest in the larger public questions. I speak tonight, therefore, as one of the "Elder Statesmen," as the Japanese call them, as a Philosopher and a Prophet, looking over the public field with the eye of experience. In what I have to say tonight, therefore, I shall not extenuate, nor ought I set down in malice, but I beg to be charitably judged, if inaccuracies occur. I shall speak tonight of the "Outlook for the Colony" as a whole in relation to trade, finances and matters of that kind. You will not expect to be amused, for I have not, I hope, any reputation as a humorous speaker. The Legislature sitting now seem to give more in that line than I can hope to afford.

EXTERNAL TRADE.

And first I wish to draw your attention to the marvelous increase which has taken place in the external trade of the country; by which I mean the volume of combined imports and exports. From the following table you will see that the average increase in the seventeen years next preceding the war was normal, and that during the war period it was very abnormal. A trade totalling $11,000,000 under Whiteway, in 1897, amounted to $30,000,000 under Morris in 1914, $70,000,000 under Cahn in 1919, and $76,000,000 under Squires, in 1920. I have chosen the last full financial year under various Premiers, but do not wish to say that the premiers named were in any sense to be credited or blamed, as they, of course, had very little to do with results; but the use of the names will prove convenient in all the following tables.

The average of the total trade for the 17 years before the Great War was $27,400,000 per year, and the average for six years during the war was $56,500,000, an increase, due to increased prices rather than to increased quantities. I think, though it is impossible to tell from the statistics how much of the increase was due to quantity, and how much to quality.

TOTAL IMPORTS AND EXPORTS.

1897—Whiteway	11,000,000
1900—Winter	10,000,000
1904—Bond	20,000,000
1908—Bond	23,000,000
1914—Morris	30,000,000
1919—Cahn	70,000,000
1920—Squires	76,000,000

THE COLONY'S IMPORT TRADE.

I turn now to consider the imports of the colony. The figures given in customs statistics show the cost of imported goods in the country from whence imported. To ascertain the cost to the colony, you must add the freight paid to carriers not owned in the colony. To ascertain approximately what the imports cost the importer, you must add Customs duties as well as freight, and to the importer's cost you must add his profits, if you wish to know the cost to consumers. You will note from the following table that the imports increased from $6,000,000 under Whiteway, in 1897, to about $15,000,000 under Morris, in 1914, an increase of $9,000,000, in 17 years, or an average annual increase over that period of $535,000 a year; but from the end of 1914 to the end of 1920 there was a total increase of over $20,000,000, averaging $3,500,000 increase per year for the five years ending 1919, and there was an increase of $2,600,000 for the year 1920. In the latter year the increase was not as rapid as in previous war years. Decreasing prices had commenced to affect the value of imports. If the war had not caused an abnormal increase, and the pre-war normal increase had been continued, the value of imports in 1920 would have been about $18,000,000 instead of $16,000,000, so that the increase of $18,000,000 above the normal in peace times, or 100 per cent. may be attributed to abnormal war conditions. If you were to calculate upon a continued increase in imports for several years, you would find on the pre-war basis, you would find that by 1925 the imports should total over $22,000,000, and as the total revenue of the colony from all sources averages on the present basis about 25 per cent. of the value of imports, you would arrive at the conclusion that if customs duties were not increased, the revenue of the colony by 1925 under normal conditions would reach about $5,500,000. Of course, between this and the end of 1925 conditions will not be normal, and it will be very hard to estimate revenue collections. On the one hand, there will probably not be an increase in the quantity of goods imported, but on the other hand, the prices will continue to be decreasingly above the normal. Next year, probably, imports will decrease both in quantity and value, and afterwards normal increases in quantity and decreases in value may be expected to continue for some years until world affairs have been re-established on permanent bases.

THE COLONY'S EXPORT TRADE.

For the purpose of Customs trade the value of exports is calculated in this way—the average local cost is added the expense of handling, and the total is stated as the value of the Export Trade of the Colony. If you want to estimate what the real earnings are, you must add the freight paid to carriers owned in the colony, and profits made by the exporters, and you must deduct the losses met with by exporters. The official returns of exports for this year, for instance, will show a much larger amount than the actual value of the exports of the colony when realized, because the value will be stated in these returns on the basis of the prices paid here last year for fish, upon which great losses have been incurred in realization. The official figures concerning exports, therefore, are not really reliable. On looking at the following table, you will see that the value of exports increased from $5,000,000 in 1897, under Whiteway, to $18,000,000 under Morris, in 1914. The increase in exports was almost the same as the increase in imports during that period. In other words, in the 17 years last preceding the war, the export trade increased about $600,000 annually, but from $15,000,000 in 1914, the exports amounted to $37,000,000, under Cahn, in 1919, and to $40,000,000 under Squires, in 1920, and the average increase in the war period was $5,000,000 per year. In the pre-war period the value of imports exceeded the value of exports by about a million and a half dollars per year, but in the war period, the results were startlingly reversed, the value of exports exceeding the value of imports by about $5,500,000 per year, or a total of more than $20,000,000 in the six year war period. To the surplus of earnings and outgoings shown by these facts, you must add profits from increased value of vessels and other property sold abroad, and such profits as exporters may have made over and above the estimated value of their exports, and you will arrive at an enormous sum as the apparent surplus of earnings, in the war period.

BOWRING BROTHERS, Ltd., Grocery.

What has become of it? In my mind a very large portion has been deposited in savings banks, and is, therefore, safe. The fishermen, laborers and middle classes generally are better off than they have been. But on the other hand, a large portion of the surplus has been lost in the depreciation of shipping, and recently in great losses on fish in foreign markets; so that I believe that the merchant exporters and traders generally have lost what they accumulated in war times, and are generally poorer to-day than before the war. As to enormous investments in shipping, this paradox is true, "that what the owners have lost they have saved, and what they have saved they have lost." For what they have lost they have been paid for by insurance, and what they have saved is largely unseizable. The broad lesson drawn from this is that the fishing classes are the capitalists upon whom dependence must be put during the near coming years, as they to a large extent will have to finance themselves in carrying on their various occupations.

REVENUES OF THE COLONY.

I turn now to consideration of the revenues of the colony. About 90 per cent. of these are derived from customs duties. The proportion was even in the past, but of recent years excess profits and income taxes have amounted to a very large sum. There are also earnings from Crown Lands and Posts and Telegraphs. But generally speaking, the revenues from all sources are about equal to 25 per cent. of the total importations. By reference to the following table, it will be seen that in the 17 years just preceding the war, the revenues increased from $1,600,000, in 1897, to $3,818,000, in 1914, or an average rate of increase of $135,000 per year; an increase due in the main to increased population, and increased cost of goods, but at the end of the 8 years war period from 1914 to 1920, the yearly revenue had increased $7,000,000, or an average per year of $1,160,000. Even in 1920 this amount of increase was almost reached, though there were signs that it would not continue, and from the 1st of July, 1920, the decline has been exceedingly rapid. By the end of February last, when the total revenue, to have equalled that of the previous year, should have been $6,000,000, only $5,000,000 had been collected. The customs revenue had decreased $1,300,000, but there had been slight increases from other sources. As prices abroad progressively decrease, and as the purchasing power of the people is progressively less, from the lower price received for fish, and for labour, the decrease in Customs duties will become much more rapid, and with that feature I shall deal presently.

Year.	Imports.	Total Rev.
1921-22	$19,000,000	$4,750,000
1922-23	$19,500,000	$4,875,000
1923-24	$20,000,000	$5,000,000
1924-25	$20,500,000	$5,125,000

EXPENDITURES OF THE COLONY.

From the foregoing table, it will be seen that the expenditure in White-way's last year, 1897, was slightly larger than that in 1899, Winter's last full year; but in Bond's two terms, it increased at the average rate of $100,000 per year, while in Morris's term of six years, ending in 1914, it increased at the rate of $200,000 per year. The average increase in expenditure for the 17 years next preceding the war, was, therefore, about $124,000 per year, but along came the war, and in 6 years, between 1914 and 1919 inclusive, the ordinary expenditure increased about $650,000 per year; while in the first year under Squires, the increase was not less than $2,500,000. Please let me say here that I do not attribute responsibility for this last great increase to the Squires Government alone, as a large part of the expenditure was under his predecessor.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE FOR 1921.

I turn now to consideration of the revenue and expenditure for the current year. I am forced into the region of estimate, based upon certain figures for the months that have passed, and upon certain calculations of what is yet to come for the four months ending on the 30th of June next. The present Minister of Finance, in his Budget speech last year estimated the revenue for this current year at $11,000,000. He said that "in view of the world wide depression and unrest now existing, it may be asked if I am not over-optimistic. I do not hesitate to reply 'No.' The sources of revenue, which for the past few years have been so prolific, we anticipate will maintain their productivity without serious abatement during the 'coming year.' Unfortunately, that prophecy has been falsified. As I have just mentioned, the revenue to the end of February last fell below the record of the previous year by $1,000,000, and I understand that during the month of March, the shortage was abnormal, so that the total amounted at the end of last month to about $1,750,000. My own estimate is that within $4,000,000 was collected in the last four months of the last financial year, something less than $3,000,000 will be collected in March, April, May and June of this year, and I rather regretfully estimate that the total revenue during the current financial year will not exceed $8,000,000, or $3,000,000 less than the estimate. The estimated expenditure on the other hand for this current year was $10,250,000. I add the sum of $750,000 for ordinary contingencies, making a probable ordinary expenditure of $11,000,000. A very heavy loss in the operation of the Reid Railway system, assumed by the Government, and in connection therewith the loss on mail steamers, may be estimated for this year at $2,000,000, so that total expenditure on current account will reach $13,000,000, and a deficit of $5,000,000 for this current year is highly probable. Now, if abnormal increases during the war are put aside, and normal increases allowed for on the pre-war basis, and it is calculated that the revenue collected is about 25 per cent. of the value of imports year after year, the revenue account for approaching years should work out about as follows:

But of course in the years that we have first in front of us, normal increases in imports on pre-war basis will not take place. For this current year, for instance, instead of being $18,500,000, as they would have been on a normal pre-war basis, they will have been about $22,000,000, as against an importation of about $36,000,000 in 1920, a decrease due to decreasing prices abroad in this current year. To the decreases of values of total imports, due to decreasing prices, must be added large decreases due to lower purchasing power, owing to lower fish prices, and where as the importation fell this year by $4,000,000, it may be expected to fall an equal amount next year. As years go on, the fall in prices, and therefore, in values imported, will be decreasingly less and less, and by 1925 the normal should have been reached. I estimate, therefore, an import value of say $28,000,000 in 1921-22, and an average constant decrease thereafter until a total import value of not more than $22,000,000 is reached at the end of 1924-5. My calculation on this point is given in the table above as to normal imports on pre-war basis. Many people contend that the pre-war basis of prices will never be reached hereafter, but the outlook for sale of our fish, and for our labor, inclines me to the belief that this Colony will resume her normal value of importations by 1925. With the decrease in value of imports must go a decrease in revenue from customs sources unless the customs duties are increased, and if no change takes place in them, it may confidently be estimated that the revenue in 1921-22 will be a million dollars less this year, and progressively thereafter $500,000 per year until in 1925 the total revenue collected will have decreased to about $5,000,000; therefore, if the ordinary expenditure were to continue at the present rate of $1,000,000 in round figures with a loss on the railway operation of $2,000,000 yearly, an annual deficit varying from $6,000,000 next year to $7,500,000 by the end of 1924-25 may be expected. From this debacle there is no escape except by decreasing expenditure or increasing revenue, or both. Borrowings on capital account cannot be long resorted to, in the condition which the credit of the country will be in, and to borrow and add to the public debt, would only increase the burden of interest. The Colony, therefore, is now in the face of circumstances which call for heroic treatment.

RAILROAD OPERATION.

Intimately associated with the questions of the Colony's finances is that of the continued operation of the Reid Railway system, with its connecting steamboats. Statements furnished by the Reid N.G. Co. show that in the 18 years of operation of the Railway, from the time of the amended contract made by the Bond Government in 1901, to the 30th of June last, $4,000,000 was lost by the Company in operation. If to that had been added the loss during the period between the making of the contract of 1898 and the amendment in 1901, the loss to the Company by operation was not less than four and a half million dollars in twenty-one years. In August, 1920, an arrangement was made between the Squires Government and the Reid Company, by which a Commission representative of both undertook the operation of the Railway at the expense of the Colony, save and except for the sum of $100,000 to be paid by the Reid Company. The loss for the current year under the Commission, will be, I am assured, about $1,500,000, so that if the contract of 1898 had not been disturbed, the loss to the Company to the end of the current financial year would not be less than $6,000,000. "Wisdom is justified of her children." As the man held by his opponents chiefly responsible for the Railway Contract, 1898, responsibility for which I have always proudly avowed, I now point to the losses in operation by the Reid Co. and the Railway Commission as my justification, as proof of the wisdom of those public men who were responsible for the making of that contract. We had a vision of future conditions. Our vision has been justified. Our opponents were purblind. They have been confounded by results. We who acted for the Colony in 1898 felt satisfied that the operation of the Railway would be attended by yearly losses, and we agreed to compensate the Reid Company for those apprehended losses by giving them land subsidies. Our enemies said that we were giving them the Colony and the wealth thereof. The loss in operation has been proven; the profit from all the land given to the Reid Company has not been proven. I have been persecuted for twenty years and more for my share in the 1898 contract, and I do not expect that, the persecution will cease, though the records show that I was right, and my opponents wrong. If the loss to the Reid Company were $6,000,000, the loss to the Government if it had been operating during all the period would easily have been double that amount. The present method of operation by Commission is unauthorized, and illegal, and was entered into in violation of the constitutional rights of the Legislature. It was made shortly after the Legislature closed, and must have been contemplated long before that. No such contract or arrangement should have been entered into without the deliberation of the Legislature. The Reid Company declares their inability to operate the road. The great cost of coal, and of labor, and of supplies generally, make a great loss in operation so certain that the Reid Company has openly declared its inability to go on. Shall it then be operated and controlled by the Government directly, through one of its departments, or by a Government appointed Commission. Either under the Government directly, or under a Commission, the operation will be inefficient, expensive and corrupt. That has been the experience elsewhere, as well as here. One alternative is to confide the operation to a new Company, under a new contract, and when the Colony comes to enter into a new contract, if it ever does, the terms of such a contract will be illuminating in the highest degree as to the wisdom of the makers of the 1898 contract. The question must be dealt with at once, and with courage. I suggest the making of a temporary contract with the Reid, for operation until affairs resume a normal condition. The present dual control should be abandoned.

LEADING AUTHORITIES NOW SHOW JUST WHAT TANLAC REALLY IS.

Physiological Action of Principal Ingredients of Celebrated Medicine on the Human System is Explained.

SUPREMACY CLAIMS WELL SUPPORTED

Many of the Medicinal Elements Have Been Known and Used Since Civilization First Began.

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine which has been accomplishing such remarkable results throughout this country and Canada, is composed of the most beneficial roots that have been known to science. The formula is purely ethical and complies with all National and State Pure Food and Drug Laws. Altogether, there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeutic value.

Many of these ingredients have been individually known and used since civilization first began, and some of them have been used and prescribed by leading physicians everywhere, but until they were brought together in proper proportion and association, as in the Tanlac formula, humanity had not heretofore realized their full value and effect.

In referring to one of the more important ingredients of Tanlac, the Excelsior Britannica says: "It has been the source of the most valuable tonic medicines that have ever been discovered." In referring to others of the general tonic drugs contained in Tanlac, the 13th Edition of Potter's Therapeutics, a standard medical text book, states that "they impart general tone and strength to the entire system, including all organs and tissues."

As a well-known authority in describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac, the following is quoted: "It is commonly known as a 'run-

Ireland, and Some Statistics.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—I trust that you may be able to spare the space in your valuable columns, to kindly favour me with the publication of this letter.

From the many articles which have appeared in your paper recently in favour of the Press and Publicity Committee of the S.D.L.L.N., one who does not keep in close touch with the subject, might be led to believe that England is indeed a very blood-thirsty and cruel ogre; but when one has statistics at hand, the subject takes on a decidedly different complexion.

Between January 1st, 1919, and February 6th, 1921, the number of persons killed in Ireland was 337, and the number of persons wounded was 590, divided up as follows:

	Killed	Wounded
Police	224	326
Soldiers	54	143
Civilians	278	479
	557	111
	59	590

Now, it would be absolute nonsense to suppose that the British Government ordered the killing and wounding of its own soldiers and police. But, supposing for argument's sake that the Sinn Feiners killed and wounded only police and soldiers, and that all the civilians were killed and wounded by the police and soldiers, we find that the rebels have killed 84.4% and wounded 81%, or, more than 4 to 1.

In addition to the above figures 535 R.I.C. barracks have been destroyed, and 173 barracks have been damaged, apart from the destruction of civilian property that has taken place.

In spite of the above statistics, however, the crimes of which Sinn Fein are found guilty—the atrocious murders of soldiers, police, and officials, the execution of civilians who have been marked as spies or traitors, the burnings and robberies—are ignored, while the military and police are accused of specific crimes of which they have not been found guilty.

It is certainly not much of a compliment to the intelligence of English audiences that at this time of day, after examples of Sinn Fein hatred and treachery, the murder of British officers and soldiers, the insults to the flag at home and abroad, the pronouncement that England is the only enemy, and the deliberate attempt to injure her in foreign countries, they should be told all these engaging fables of an Ireland anxious for peace, but suffering from brutal tyranny and oppression. It may be that the Labor and Radical parties will find that, after all, their audiences are not quite as dull as they anticipate. Mr. Asquith, for instance, has discovered, to his amazement, that English people seem to reserve their indignation for the murders committed in Ireland, and not for the measures taken to repress these murders. Under Mr. Asquith and Mr. Birrell Ireland did not suffer from what is called militarism. Affairs were administered on the advice of the Nationalist party, and that advice included an insistence that the law must not be enforced. The result was the Easter week rebellion of 1916.

Thus experience has demonstrated that there will never be peace and real freedom in Ireland apart from a firm administration, the just punishment of crime, and the overthrow and destruction of political secret societies.

Thanking you in anticipation for space.

Sincerely yours,
L. CULLEN.

H. R. H. The Prince of Wales

AND THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT.

St. James's Palace, S.W. During my recent tours I had an opportunity of seeing the strength of the Boy Scout movement; it has spread to every land and corner of the Empire, and its possibilities for the future, both at home and overseas are very great.

There is an erroneous impression abroad that the work of the Boy Scouts is carried on without money; unfortunately, this is a complete misconception of the position. Considerable sums are required to meet the expenses of the Association. At least £200,000 is essential in order to "carry on" and to put the movement on a sound footing.

On all sides I hear of grateful admiration for the men who have voluntarily carried out this work for their younger brothers during the past 12 years. I want to suggest that everybody who feels with me should express it by subscribing to a fund, which we could then offer to the Scouts' Association as a mark of appreciation for its splendid work.

The movement, as I have seen for myself, is healthy and growing steadily; last year it increased in numbers and efficiency beyond all expectation.

Will you help it to double its numbers this next year?

£200,000 Wanted for Boy Scouts.

The Prince of Wales' Appeal for Funds for the Boy Scouts Association is gradually realizing the amount asked for by His Royal Highness—viz., £200,000.

At the time of going to press the sum of £55,000 had already resulted in addition to which the Council of the National Service League at an extraordinary general meeting voted the sum of £10,000, and the Prince has so much at heart.

His Royal Highness now invites the Colonies to support this worthy object, and if each reader contributes to his newspaper the simple sum of one shilling the Prince's desire would immediately be gratified.

Disgraceful Coastal Service.

There has been considerable dissatisfaction over the coastal service between here and Battle Hr., particularly the past three or four years. And it has long been felt that the time has arrived when the facilities of travel should be materially improved. Human beings should be treated a little better than cattle. It is scarcely good enough in this so-called advanced age to have men, women and children—from a hundred to two hundred—herded together like so many swine in a sty with filth ankle deep. It would be unprintable to actually describe conditions as they have prevailed on this service, which are a blot to our boasted Christianity.

Four Millions of Public Monies

SQUANDERED BY THE LIBERAL-REFORMERS.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir.—The revelations which are being made daily since the House opened, are staggering in the extreme, and one wonders what possessed the electorate to put such a lot of incapables in the House of Assembly. The whole bunch of them should be given terms of from five to ten years in the House of Correction at Quidi Vidi.

The greatest spendthrift of the bunch is Hon. W. F. Coaker. One calls to mind how this demagogue raved and roared in the days of the Morris Government when public money was spent in building the branch railways and lighthouses around the coast. Those were the days when he was hailed by the fishermen of the North as the second Moses sent to lead them out of bondage. They sent him to the House of Assembly to look after their public affairs and to see that their taxes were not squandered. He mapped out a course and laid down rules of Spartan simplicity beyond which none of his followers dared pass in pain of annihilation.

But what a change has come over the spirit of his dreams since his stalwart adherents made him the Premier's Boss. He spends money (the people's) like water. Where the Morris or Cashin Governments spent thousands he must spend millions. What matters it to him whether times are bad, whether men are out of employment or not, whether the cry is going up from all over the country "for God's sake give us bread," he must have his picnic and travel in luxury to the sunny lands of Europe and other climes because—he is Coaker.

When the Cashin Government went out of office they left over three million dollars in the Treasury to tide the Colony over the rainy day which they and every sane business man saw coming as an aftermath of the great war. Did Coaker and Squires add to that nest egg so as to be in a position to help people now the period of depression has overtaken us. Let their answers, as tabled by themselves to questions put by Sir M. P. Cashin and the Opposition in the House these days, tell their own tale, and a sorry one it will be for the country before it is all told.

Amount voted to increase their own salaries 50,000
Loss on running Coastal steamers 100,000
New addition to G.P.O. 115,000
Snow Shovelling Hr. Main Bye-Election; Animals for Campbell's menagerie; Dunfield, for drafting Fish Regulations 100,000
Total $4,170,000

The staggering sum of over four million dollars of the people's money has been squandered with absolutely no hope of ever getting any returns for it. This is your Liberal-Reform Government, fishermen of Newfoundland. BEHOLD!!

The man responsible for most of this public waste and extravagance is your "God-sent" Coaker—the man who was going to reduce public extravagance to a minimum and make this little country an Eden for the fishermen to live in. One year of his rule has placed us in the chains of bondage for the next twenty years. No matter how vast we do or how prolific the seasons are for us, the Coaker chainlars so riveted on this Colony that fret and chafe how we may we cannot free ourselves from them. To allow him to prolong his rule is merely to add to our burden and to fasten the chain more securely.

Generations unborn will yet curse the day when Coaker and Cokerism were allowed to rule Newfoundland! The Coaker Fish Regulations have proven a menace to the public and have ruined scores of merchants all over the country. They will also be the ruin of many hitherto independent and prosperous fishermen, and hundreds this coming summer will be denied fishery supplies solely on account of the Fish Regulations. Let Coaker or any of his satellites deny this fact if they dare.

To placate a number of Northern fishermen who last fall looked to Coaker to make good his promise to keep up the price of Labrador fish, a half million dollars of the public funds of the Colony was voted by the Government to pay for fish. Men of Bonavista and Trinity Bays, is this fair to the rest of your fellow-fishermen in other parts of the country (who in many cases have their last year's catch of fish still on their hands unsold) to take the taxes wrought from all to pay the few. Your motto is "to every man his own." How does this motto apply in this case? Is it fair or manly or honest for a few to benefit at the expense of the many?

The occasion to vote money from the funds of the Colony to pay for fish would never have arisen had there been no Fish Regulations. It is an undisputed fact that but for the Regulations over one hundred thousand quintals of fish would have been sold to the Americans at a price which would have netted the fishermen ten dollars per quintal before the end of October last year. Business men on Water Street know this, and can prove it.

What does Scammell, or Mews, or Hibbs, or Hon. John Browning, know about the price of fish in the foreign markets? They never exported a fish in their lives. These are the class of men who are shouting in favor of the Regulations and are trying to make the fishermen believe in them. Consider well if these men's opinion should be taken before those who have spent their lives at the fish exporting business and who from experience are qualified to give an opinion.

Thanking you in anticipation for space, Mr. EDITOR.

Yours truly,

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS AND NOBODY'S BUSINESS.

I have a friend who has four children under seven and who assists her husband in the running of an inn. The amount of work she accomplishes is the wonder of everyone who knows her. She has help of course, but I have known her in a slack season to do the cooking for ten, with occasionally four or five extra, to do part of the serving, and to take all the care of the children who functioned as chambermaid, dishwasher, cleaner and mother's helper.

One would say that this woman would have the right to consider herself absolutely absolved from every outside burden, wouldn't one? But she doesn't, and thereby hangs my tale. She is without question the most public-spirited woman in the neighborhood.

As important as Smallpox is Isolate. Here is just one small example. There has been a vicious boy in the district school nearby. His viciousness has spread like a terrible disease. It is surely as important that he should be isolated as if he had smallpox. There has been much talk and complaint about him, but it was left for this woman, unquestionably the busiest woman in the neighborhood, to act.

I suppose it wasn't wholly a question of business that kept the other women from acting; it was partly because they didn't like to get mixed up in anything so unpleasant.

I think a great many of us have that feeling and there is no doubt that it keeps us from doing our duty again and again.

A Tragic Lack of Public Spirit. I know of a case where a dangerous man went about the neighborhood speaking insultingly to women. This happened seven or eight times before one woman reported the man because she was afraid that she might be drawn into something unpleasant. Finally something much more serious happened, of which a child was the victim, and the man was placed where he belonged and where he should have been put weeks ago if some one of those women had had courage and public spirit.

Of course I do not admire a person who is always looking for a chance to meddle anyone than anyone else does. But I do admire the man or woman who has the courage and makes the time to attend to some of the unpleasant jobs that, because they are everybody's business, are nobody's business. Don't you?

Government to pay for fish. Men of Bonavista and Trinity Bays, is this fair to the rest of your fellow-fishermen in other parts of the country (who in many cases have their last year's catch of fish still on their hands unsold) to take the taxes wrought from all to pay the few. Your motto is "to every man his own." How does this motto apply in this case? Is it fair or manly or honest for a few to benefit at the expense of the many?

The occasion to vote money from the funds of the Colony to pay for fish would never have arisen had there been no Fish Regulations. It is an undisputed fact that but for the Regulations over one hundred thousand quintals of fish would have been sold to the Americans at a price which would have netted the fisher-

TO POSTAL TELEGRAPHS.
Viking reports all well; no men on ice.

War Graves Visitation.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I should esteem it a great favor if you would kindly make it known through the columns of your paper that I have been advised by our International Headquarters, London, England, that in connection with the visitation, by relatives, of the graves of soldiers in Belgium and France, suitable arrangements have been made whereby loved ones of those who fell upon those particular battlefields will be able to visit their graves.

Should there be any relatives or friends of those brave heroes, in this country, who are anxious to avail themselves of the arrangements made by the Salvation Army, I wish to say that they would be met by our officers on the other side of the water—looked after and cared for in London, their conveyance across the Channel arranged, to the graves of their dear ones and back again to London, and every possible help given until they are again safely in the boat for Newfoundland.

Any further information will be gladly given by myself or any of my officers at the Territorial Headquarters, Springdale Street.

Yours truly,
THOS. MARTIN,
Colonial and Territorial Leader,
April 9, 1921.

Personal.

Mr. D. P. Duff, of the Reid Co., returned from a business trip to Canada yesterday.

Sir John Crosbie, who was on a business trip to Europe, returned by the Kyle yesterday.

Rev. Fr. Pinault, of St. George's, arrived by the Kyle yesterday, and leaves by to-morrow's express en route to his parish.

Hon. W. F. Conker, who was to Europe on business matters, returned yesterday by the Kyle.

Mr. M. S. Sullivan, M.H.A., returned by yesterday's Kyle from a business trip across.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Jerrett, Brigus, returned from Canada by the s.s. Kyle yesterday.

Mr. J. Sellars and Mr. J. W. Hiscock, who were visiting the different fish markets, were passengers by the s.s. Kyle yesterday.

Rev. A. B. Stirling left by Saturday's express for Carbonear on business in connection with Queen's College campaign.

Mr. J. F. O'Neil, of Bay de Verde, returned by the s.s. Kyle yesterday after an extended business trip to Canada and the U.S.A.

Mr. W. Flaroy, of Jas. Baird, Ltd., who has undergone a successful operation at the General Hospital by Drs. Keegan and Anderson, is now well on the road to recovery.

Mr. Frank Walsh, ex-Q.M.S. of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, and one of the first five hundred, left by the Sable I. on Saturday last, for the U.S.A., where he will reside in future.

Mr. R. G. Ash, Secretary of the Nfld. Fire Underwriters' Association, returned from Grand Falls by Friday's express.

Shipping Notes.

Schr. Netherton which loaded at Job Bros. & Co. arrived at Alicante on Tuesday last.

S.S. Rosalind arrived at Halifax at 1 p.m. Saturday after a good run from this port. The ship left for New York at midnight and is due there to-night.

S.S. Manola 4½ days from St. John N.B. reached port yesterday with general cargo to Harvey & Co. The Manola sails for Montreal when discharged and is scheduled to leave that port on April 25th.

During the run to port from Louisburg, the Kyle had one of the most trying experiences of the season being over 30 hours forcing her way through heavy sheet ice. A number of scattered seals were seen by the Kyle's crew during the trip.

HOW CAN IT BE DONE?

London, New York and Paris Association of Fashion Selling Ladies' Silk and Tricotine Dresses for 11.98 and 16.98

A Mercantile Feat That has Bewildered the Pessimist and Silenced the Skeptic

Remember the Old Saying

"Time and Tide wait for no man."
Suit bargains like these wait for no woman.

The mighty power of READY CASH has been phenomenally exemplified in the colossal purchase of TWO HUNDRED LADIES' DRESSES from a panic-stricken manufacturer at a mere fraction of the cost. It was a big, bold, mercantile effort that required PLUCK, NERVE and CONFIDENCE.

These beautiful Dresses could not have been bought for twice the money under ordinary circumstances, but, CASH IS KING and we were there at the physiological moment with long green kale, that's the secret of how-we-can do it, and patrons of this store will get the benefit of this tremendous saving.

GREEKS HEAVY LOSERS.
CONSTANTINOPLE, April 11. A communication issued yesterday by the Angora Government says there have been fresh Turkish attacks in the region of Bursa. Three columns advancing toward Anum Karahissar have inflicted heavy losses on retreating Greeks, it is said.

NEW FORCE FOR RUSSIA.
RIGA, April 11. The new internal army, composed of carefully selected Communists, which is proposed as the basis of a huge force to enforce the dictates of the Third Internationale, is rapidly being organized in Russia to replace the old Red army, according to authentic reports.

PEASANTS ON THE RAMPAGE.
RIGA, April 11. Peasant riots in Western Siberia are reported in advices received here from Moscow yesterday. The peasants have revived the old Green army and occupied Tobolsk, cutting that town off from the Trans-Siberian railway, advices say.

MOSLEM TREATY.
CONSTANTINOPLE, April 11. A disposition on the part of Turkish Nationalists to discontinue their propaganda against the Sultan is shown in a treaty entered into with Afghanistan, in which Afghans recognize the Sultan as Caliph. The treaty is an offensive and defensive alliance, and prohibits the signing of pacts without mutual consultation.

Grand Falls Notes.
Grand Falls is still going strong and is a hive of industry in comparison to other parts of the island. The mill shuts down one day extra, Saturday, in order that employees need not be laid off.

A serious accident occurred at Badger on Monday last when a lad of 7 years, named Dwyer, son of the agent foreman of the A. N. D. Co.'s Millertown branch, was hit by an engine which was backing up. He was attended by Dr. Smith who rushed him to the Lady Northcliffe Hospital at Grand Falls, where with the resident doctor's aid his leg had to be amputated above the knee.

The people of Grand Falls intend to erect a War Memorial in the London Cenotaph. It will have the names of the Heroic Dead inscribed on it. The cost will be about $5,000, most of which has been already subscribed. The memorial is now being made in London under the direction of Mr. Surchum, a director of the A. N. D. Co., and will be sent over during the summer.

The fire in the Company's coal pile is practically out, being well under control. The loss will be a very heavy one.

Evangeline High Cut Boots, Low Shoes and Dainty Pumps at 25 PER CENT REDUCTION at SMALLWOOD'S Ladies' Dept.

Harbor Grace Notes.

Miss Ida McRae left town by Wednesday afternoon's train to connect with the s.s. Rosalind en route for New York on a visit of some weeks. We take this opportunity of wishing her a most enjoyable holiday.

Mr. T. C. Mackinson, of the Goules, near Brigus, was in town during the first of the week, visiting his mother, Mrs. E. N. Mackinson. His many friends were pleased to see him once again.

The s.s. Mary, Capt. A. Bourne, came off dock Wednesday forenoon, after having some painting done and her keel attended to. She left the same day for Bell Island.

The very frosty weather of late, has put the rink, which had been closed for the season, in good trim again for skating during the last few days. We hardly know what to think of the weather man. He seems to be very keen on keeping Jack Frost with us as long as possible; but there is no use in kicking, as the saying goes; we must only "grin and bear it."

Mr. E. Barnes' motor boat "Zelda B." left port Wednesday for Bell Island. Mr. Thos. Thistle took passage by her to the island.

Mr. G. Christian, of Messrs. Archibald Bros. Ltd., has been in town for the last few days.

Both Boot and Shoe factories have been working now for some time past; although the full number of hands are not employed just yet, but no doubt, as the Spring advances, they will be in a position to take on the usual amount of employees once more. This tends to help matters considerably and we are hoping to see things change and conditions become brighter ere much time has elapsed.

A concert, consisting of songs, recitations, drills, etc., took place at the S.A. Citadel last night and was very enjoyable to all who attended.

Mr. A. French, representing Messrs. Soper & Moore, St. John's, is in town to-day.

McMurdo's Store News.

MONDAY, April 11. We have all our new Seeds open now and ready for the spring business. As usual we have the reliable and famous seeds of Messrs. Sutton & Sons of Reading, England, the old firm whose seeds we have now been handling for some years, which seeds have given the utmost satisfaction to all concerned. And, as usual, we have our usual line of best American Cabbage Seeds. This latter line we have been importing from the same New York house for over thirty years; and we are thus sure of our ground on all the seeds we import. Do not experiment with Seeds, get the kind that experience has proved reliable. Send your name and address for catalogue, post free.

MR. KARL S. TRAPNELL, Eyesight Specialist, will be out of town until Friday, April 15th. Office will be open as usual for accepting repairs and delivering glasses.—apr11,21

King's Cove Notes.

Cupid was rather busy during the first part of this winter. No less than six of our younger generation decided to relinquish their life of single blessedness and cross the matrimonial sea. The weddings were conducted at the R. C. Church and the writer extends his congratulations to all the contracting parties.

Quite a number of social entertainments were held during the past winter, all of which were very enjoyable. A concert was held on St. Patrick's night in the R. C. Hall. All the performers did themselves credit and are deserving of great praise.

Concerts were also held on Thursday and Friday of last week, in the Orange Hall under the auspices of the younger members of the Orange Society. Both proved decided successes and the audiences were loud in their praise.

Nearly all our people are well stocked with wood in spite of the balustrade winter we have experienced.

Quite a number of our young men who have been at work in the land of the Maple Leaf have returned to their native home, the work at which they were employed abroad having been suspended.—ELI CURTIS.

"St. George for Merrie England."

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Next Saturday week, April 23rd, is St. George's Day. Just two weeks. What are we going to do about it? I have been told that the Society of United Fishermen are taking steps to organize a joint parade of all Protestant Societies. What a great idea. It is most fitting that the idea should, in a fishing country, emanate from The Fishermen's Society. What a great parade that would be. The Society of United Fishermen, the British Society, the Sons of England, the Orange Society, the C.E.L., the Fieldians, the G.L.B., the Highlanders, the Methodist Guards, and even the church organizations. I go even further than that. And would suggest that the Roman Catholic Societies be also asked to participate in the parade. Why should they not. Are they not part of the country and the Empire, and does not St. George stand for England, the nucleus of the Empire. Does not the Empire stand for freedom and justice and religious toleration? Is not that the secret of its success. All classes and creeds are fairly treated. It is not so long ago since a Jew was the Premier of Great Britain. To-day a Jew is Viceroy of India. Lloyd George, a Unitarian, is the Empire's leading man. Where can you get such opportunities for ability, no matter from what source it springs. There may be a few hat heads who do not know on which side their bread is buttered, but these we must rather pity than censure. They have much to learn and must look at big things in a big way. There is no reason why the Knights of Columbus, the B.L.S., the Star of the Sea, the Mechanics, the C.C.C., and other institutions should not be asked to join the parade and, in the morning, with all the bands available, march to Government House, and pay homage to the representative of the head of an Empire on which the sun never sets, and in which every member has an opportunity to rise to its highest positions.

Yours sincerely,
GEO. W. B. AYRE.

T. McMURDO & CO., Ltd.,

THE PIONEER DRUG HOUSE. Established 1828. Incorporated 1920.

In re-organizing our business at the beginning of last year when times seemed prosperous, somewhat drastic changes were made in credit terms to our customers in the belief that it would ultimately prove to be for their benefit as well as our own. Results to-day have proved our forecast to be correct, and as a consequence we are now in a better position than ever to serve our friends to advantage with a new and up-to-date stock.

From being pessimists in apparently good times we are now optimists when many think there is nothing but "blue ruin" ahead; and in consequence we are now prepared to entertain extending longer credit than is indicated by our general terms, where desired, to approved wholesale customers.

We have the necessary Stock and Capital to do a much larger business. We are desirous of keeping our present staff on at suitable wages necessitated by higher cost of living, and to do this an increase in trade is hoped for. This we anticipate getting by efficiency of service, combined with the high grade goods we carry and sell at lowest possible prices.
