LADY LAURAS' RELEASE
—OR—
THE STORY OF A SPOILED BEAUTY.

CHAPTER XLIII.

"Please do not speak of Angela in that manner," said her ladyship. "She is quite different from other girls. If she has fled deliberately and of her own free will, she has had some very strong reason for it. That is quite clear to my mind. If she were wild, light of thought, given to flirtation, I might waver in my opinion. But she is not frivolous; she is full of sweet wisdom and gravity. You know that."

"I should not have thought running away from home was a course that Miss Rooden would take," he admitted. "But there is no accounting for surprises of this description. Has she left no address, no clew whatever? Is there no means by which she can be traced?"

"None whatever," replied Lady Laura.

"Because, if there is," he said, "I will soon find her."

"There is no clew whatever."

"You do not know why she left home, whither she has gone, how long she will remain away or when she will return?"

Lady Laura was quite within the bounds of truth when she answered, "No."

"Then I do not see how anything can be done," he declared. "For her own sake it will be advisable to keep this absurd freak of hers as quiet as possible. It will never do for it to be known in society that this has happened. Do the servants know Laura?"

"Only the two maids, Doris and Jane. I told them to be silent until I had seen you."

"You feel sure that they have said nothing?" he asked, anxiously.

"I am quite sure," replied Lady Laura. "They are both most trustworthy; they will never say a word about it. But," she added, looking up helplessly at him, "what must I do?"

MRS. ANDERSON TELLS WOMEN

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leslie, Sask.—"For about a year I was troubled with a distressing down-bearing pain before and during the periods, and from terrible headaches and backache. I had to go to a doctor, and as I knew several women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results, I finally bought some and took four bottles of it. I certainly do recommend it to every woman with troubles like mine. I feel fine now and hope to be able to keep my medicine on hand at all times, as no woman ought to be without it in the house."—Mrs. OSCAR A. ANDERSON, Box 15, Leslie, Sask.

Mrs. Kelsey Adds Her Testimony
Copenhagen, N. Y.—"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get relief from pains and weakness. I was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my housework and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you to publish this letter if you think it will help others."—Mrs. HENRIETTA KELSEY, R. F. D., Copenhagen, N. Y.

Sick and ailing women everywhere in the Dominion should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before they give up hope of recovery.

"Leave the matter to me," he answered. "I will do the best I can. I shall say in an off-hand manner before the servants that Miss Rooden has gone on a visit, and that she need not be expected back here, and she will meet us in town. It is an extraordinary freak; but no one can account for a girl's actions."

The captain was not very sympathetic, nor did Lady Laura expect sympathy; but he was not unkind; and she left him, wondering whether this great sorrow which was so terrible to her would soften his heart.

"What can it mean?" she cried to herself in the seclusion of her own room. "It is all so mysterious to me."

"What can it mean?" exclaimed the captain, as he paced up and down the library. "Great Heaven, what can it mean?"

CHAPTER XLIV.
Lady Laura Wynyard had shown her husband one letter. There was another and more explicit one which she carefully hid from him. It ran thus:

"Dearest Mamma,—I know that my leaving you in this manner will be a great sorrow and a great surprise. I cannot tell you why I am going, but you know that you may most safely trust me. Remember this, that my return depends entirely on yourself. When that unfortunate will which the captain persuaded you to make is destroyed, I will come back at once, but not until then. I have thought of many plans by which you could let me know when this takes place, and the best, the safest, is by advertisement. I shall contrive to see the Times every day. When the will is destroyed, send the following words for insertion in the advertisement sheet of the Times: 'Return without fear; I have done what you wished.' The hour in which I read those words I shall begin my journey home. Do not let any one see this letter; and, above all things, do not let the captain learn that I know about the will. I shall soon see you again, my beloved mother, and then I will explain all that now must seem like a cruel mystery to you."

"From your loving child,
"ANGELA"

Lady Laura wondered even more when she read that note. What could it mean? What connection could there be between the will she had made and Angela's leaving home? Fortunately for her, not the faintest suspicion of the truth occurred to her. She was one of those dreamy creatures who seldom realize a thing unless it is put before them in startling colors or in emphatic words. Lady Laura Wynyard thought of the will she had made and of Angela's flight from home, but could not see how they bore upon each other. If any one had pointed out to her that the will she had made gave her husband the greatest interest in her daughter's death, and that her own death would make him a rich man, she would have been roused at once to a sense of danger, to a perception of what might be passing around, to the knowledge of a terrible tragedy that was being played before her eyes while she herself was quite unconscious of it. Fortunately, she did not even so faintly dream of it. Brilliant, graceful, and beautiful, as she was, Lady Laura was not a clever woman. She was sweet, gentle, and amiable, refined and sensitive, but no one would have described her as clever. She was accomplished and well read, but she had little of that valuable quality that people call cleverness. She had the most implicit trust in Angela, and in some vague way that she could never explain to herself, she had long had a feeling that Angela was older, stronger, and wiser than herself; and she felt now that her daughter would not have done what she had without some urgent reason.

The best complexion was put upon Angela's absence, so as to avoid scandal. The captain, in speaking of Miss Rooden's departure as very sudden and unforeseen, was careful to add that she would join them when they went to town. The secret of her mysterious flight did not get known in the neighborhood at all. All friends were told the same story—Miss Rooden had gone on a visit, and would join the captain and Lady Laura Wynyard in town. But, if the secret lay lightly on the household, it was a weighty burden on the minds of Lady Laura and her husband. The captain could not understand the occurrence, Angela had been so reticent with him.

"It's no love-affair," he said to himself—"I should not care so much if it were; she is not like other girls—she has never cared about lovers. For what can she have gone away? The matter has nothing to do with her mother; yet how the girl could have a secret from her I cannot imagine—they were so devoted to each other."

It was curious to see how this strong, usually careless man was affected by his step-daughter's disappearance. He did not sleep well; he did not eat well. His usual high spirits deserted him, and he became moody and silent. He was always asking himself how much did she know, had she any suspicions concerning him, had she found him out. To him it seemed impossible that she could have discovered anything. He had surrounded himself with precautions, he had made himself secure behind a whole rampart of explanations. He had made it impossible that he should be taken by surprise. She could never have the faintest suspicion of him, though he was bound to confess to himself that he had not liked the look of her face on that morning when she declined to ride or to drive. Had she known the secret of the will, he could have understood her conduct; but she did not know it.

"I am weak and foolish to trouble myself about the fancies of a girl—she has a thousand unknown to me." But, when he was alone with his thoughts, the same agitation, the same uneasy apprehension tortured him. Had she found him out, and had she gone away to seek advice and strengthen her case? The fear haunted him.

The captain was so unlike himself that he had no inclination to go to town. It was of little use, he told himself, now that all his schemes were upset. In the depths of his dark, and desperate heart he had made his villainous plans. The first and foremost was the compassing of the death of Angela. She was the one great barrier to his path. Lady Laura was fragile, delicate woman, whose long martyrdom, he saw, must soon end; her health and strength were failing daily. Now, with Angela escaped from his power, he realized that he was in an awkward position. If anything happened to this delicate wife of his, the property would go to Angela; and the almost certain probability was that she would never either see him or share it with him in any way. Then he would be a poor man. The will about which he had taken so much trouble would be absolutely valueless.

HOW THE BABY LEARNED TO SMILE.

The first few weeks she never knew the faces of the people who came flocking round her crib by day. She looked at them with cold disdain. And recognized but hunger's pangs. We watched and wondered all the while. Just when our babe would learn to smile.

"She is too small," the mother said. The white I stood above her bed. And hoped to see those big blue eyes. Light up with wonder and surprise. "The world is all so strange and new. She has not grown accustomed to this curious life cut out by and by. You'll see a twinkle in her eye."

And then one morning when we woke. The mother looked at her and spoke. And something marvelous took place. A smile lit up the baby's face: A smile! As radiant to see. As blossoms on a cherry tree! A smile to us much brighter far. Than morning sun or evening star.

I fancy while that night we slept. An angel to her cradle crept. And touched those little lips and eyes. With brushes dipped in summer skies. And golden liquid from the sun. And taught her how the smile is done. At least I'm telling all the while. That's how our baby learned to smile.

TRINITY

A SHORT HISTORY OF WILLIAM KELSON, ESQ., OF HEREFORD, ENGLAND, AND TRINITY, NEWFOUNDLAND.

About the middle of the 18th century, there lived in the parish of Hereford, in the County of Hereford, England, a well-to-do gentleman-farmer by the name of George Kelson.

The family name had come down to him unaltered through two or three generations; and his careful every day life in the performance of his threefold duties--to his God, his neighbour, and himself, was an assurance to all who had dealings with him, that the family name would never suffer through him. In his first year of practical farming, after the death of his father and mother, George Kelson had lived alone in the fine old house in which he was born, and which his father had left to him. During the year, he tried hard to get himself to believe that the faithful old housekeeper, who studied his every comfort, was all sufficient for the happiness of what he referred to, as his quiet home life.

I repeat, he tried hard to get himself to believe this; but how far he was from actually doing so, would have often become apparent to others, if they could have seen him in the library during the winter evenings, with the book that he had taken from the shelves to read, closed on his knee, and his troubled expression indicative of efforts on his part to settle some very important question.

Though no one knew it but himself a decided change had come to his thoughts and plans, since Mary Hefford had visited the farm, a few weeks before, in company with her mother, and her father Colonel Hefford. He was glad that they had accepted his invitation to come back again in the near future, and to spend a week at the aristocratic old farm house, that in its arrangements and equipment was suggestive of many comforts and luxuries, not usually found in such surroundings. He decided that so far as he was concerned, nothing should be left undone that would tend to make the visit of the Colonel and his family thoroughly enjoyable.

The visit was an enjoyable one. The dining room that had been used only in a restricted way since George Kelson had taken personal charge of the house, had been thoroughly restored to its requirements for the use of a larger number of people. As George personally inspected it all just before his guests arrived, the old familiar things, and covers laid for four, reminded him of days gone by, when all this was in evidence at every meal. As he took Mrs. Hefford in to dinner, followed by the Colonel and his daughter, and was seated at the table with Mrs. Hefford on his right, and the Colonel on his left, and Miss Hefford at the other end of the table, it reminded him of the days when the dear old father and mother, and his mother and self made up that number.

The presence of Miss Hefford in his dear old mother's place at the table, reminded him of the fitness of things and practically decided for him the question that had been worrying him for the past fortnight. During the evening he seized the first opportunity to assure Miss Hefford of his love for her, and asked her to become his wife. For several reasons it was not difficult for her to say yes, and with her father and mother's consent, the last few days of their visit were spent in making plans for their future.

It was a happy day in the parish of Hereford when Mr. Kelson returned to it with his bride, and they took up their permanent residence in the old farm house. The next three years were very happy ones to them, for God had blessed them with two healthy boys, who at their baptism were given the names of William and Joseph respectively, and from that date every effort was made to develop their physical, mental and spiritual parts. During the next ten years two girls and a boy were added to the family; but the two elder boys--William and Joseph--were inseparable in their daily life; and when their school days were ended, and the question of their work in life was to be decided, it was not surprising to their parents to find that the boys had one vocation in common--they would fit themselves practically for a business life, and then put their knowledge into practice, in one of Britain's colonies across the sea, of which they had heard so much at school.

Hereford was too far inland for them to learn anything practical about the sea; so by the kindness of an uncle who had spent some years in colonial development, they went down into Gloucester, and secured positions in a shipping office, in the seaport town of Bristol; where during the next two years, a thorough knowledge of colonial business was obtained. In the year 1808 William and Joseph Kelson left Bristol in the brig "Gannet" consigned to Robert Slade, Trinity, Newfoundland, with the promise of a position there. It was an opportune time for William Kelson to arrive in Trinity, for Mr. Joseph Gover, who had been Slade's agent for years severed his connection with the business that year, and William Kelson was appointed to succeed him. (His brother Joseph went north to Labrador, where for several years he carried on a successful business, married, and raised a large family at "Pinware," and died there.)

From the first day of Mr. Kelson's taking charge of Slade's business, he fully realized the responsibilities, developed a sturdiness of character, and a brusqueness of manner, that had come down in his blood from his grandfather. This brusqueness, however, was largely superficial, and underneath it all was the kindest of hearts that he had inherited from his mother.

As the representative of the firm of Robert Slade, and in his daily life as a citizen, he took a deep interest in everything that had for its object the spiritual and temporal benefit of the people of Trinity. In the old books that contain the record of the doings of those years, Mr. Kelson's name appears for years as Church Warden; and in every subscription list of money collected for church and school upkeep and extension, his name appears as one of the largest subscribers.

His peculiarities of action, which are embodied in several stories that are still told of him, and which are as deeply interesting, as they are highly amusing, only go to show how human and natural he was.

Those who knew him best, maintain that a shortness of temper, and a "crankiness" that he so often exhibited, were results of his living so much alone in bachelor life, and that those traits of character largely disappeared after he had taken unto himself a wife. It was nothing new to see him going to the Parsonage in the evenings to spend a pleasant hour with Rev. John Clinch; but when those visits became increasingly frequent, people began to suspect that there was some other attraction besides that of the Parson.

Mr. Clinch's only daughter was a child of eleven years at the time; but there was living with the family a Miss Ann Hipditch. Upon her rested the responsibility of admitting visitors as announced by the big iron rapper on the front door, and later to open the door when the visitors were leaving. The fact, that when Mr. Kelson came and went he was in no great hurry, either to pass on to the drawing room, or to go out into the night; and that the delays were attended with whispering, and other sounds, which though new to the parsonage hall, the Island of Newfoundland, were not unnatural, confirmed the suspicions that Mr. Kelson was getting wiser as he grew older, and that Mrs. Clinch would soon have to look for another maid.

That all this became a stern reality, the following entry in the old Church Register will attest:--
"1818--January 29th. Married William Kelson, of the parish of Hereford, in the County of Hereford, England, and Ann Hipditch of Trinity, in

The highest compliment that could be paid by a business firm to one of its employees, was paid to Mr. Kelson by Mr. Robert Slade--Mr. Kelson was offered a partnership in the business, and upon his accepting it, the firm name of Slade and Kelson became familiar to the people of Trinity and elsewhere.

In 1837 came the death of Mr. Robert Slade, and the end of the firm of Slade and Kelson.

The business was reorganized under the name of Robert Slade and Co., and with Mr. Kelson again as agent, the business went on with unflinching regularity, and supposed prosperity. Then, however, though the public were unaware of it, times in Slade's business had begun to change, and profits to disappear.

In 1860, like a bolt from the blue, came the announcement that Slade & Co., had failed, with heavy liabilities and but few assets. Before this Mr. Kelson had retired from the business, and he and Mrs. Kelson had gone to live in the house which stands to-day next to the shop of Mr. Sam Grant. After Mrs. Kelson was called to rest, Mr. Kelson's niece, Miss Emily Bayly kept house for him. About that time someone had revived the subject of "perpetual motion," and Mr. Kelson got himself to believe that it was possible of achievement, and that he could produce a machine that would embody all its supposed possibilities. This provided him with an occupation of the deepest interest to him in his declining years, till in 1866 God called him to rest.

At his request, his body was laid beside that of his wife in the little Wesleyan Cemetery in Trinity, and one head-stone marks the two graves. (I intended to give the inscription on this stone; but when this article was ready for the press, the stone was covered with several feet of snow.)

N.B.--William Kelson, Jr. (whose name is often confused with that of William Kelson, Sr.) was a son of the Joseph Kelson who did business on the Labrador. Hence William Kelson, Jr., was a nephew of William Kelson, Sr., and the father of our Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Pittman of today. When Joseph Kelson died on the Labrador, his brother William in Trinity adopted his two children, William and Mary, and they came to Trinity to live. Mary married Robert Bayly in 1828 and died in 1848, and William was married to Elizabeth Mary Ash in 1833, and was lost in Trinity Bay in 1855.

A FEW ITEMS OF LOCAL HISTORY OF TRINITY.

1806--Joseph Gover of Weymouth, Dorset, England, married Grace Waterman. Mr. Gover was Agent for Slade at this time. His family were, Thomas, Joseph, John, Margaret, and Camilla. After Mr. Gover's death in 1821, his widow married a James Penry of English Harbour in 1830.

The Sextons were an old family in Trinity. The first Sexton came from Dorset, England. George House Sr., came from Bonavista in 1832, and married Elizabeth Sexton.

Property at Hog's Nose, near that of the House family was once owned by Samuel Finch. He went to Canada and John Pittman, step-brother to Finch succeeded to the property. John Pittman was a son of Benjamin Pittman and married Ann Tocher.

The property of James Collis and Robert White at Hog's Nose, was at one time the property of Jenkins & Archer, who did business there. Thos. Archer died in 1783.

Captain Thomas Verge lived on Tack's Hill; owned a schooner and carried on a business. He and his son were drowned when his schooner was lost between Trinity and St. John's. Henry Burnell (the Constable) and his son, and a prisoner who was being taken to St. John's, were drowned at the same time. Dennis Cashman and William Stoneman were the only persons saved.

CHILDREN OF REV. JOHN CLINCH.
I have been asked to give the names of the children of Rev. John and Hannah Clinch, who were born in Trinity. They were as follows:--Edward Jenner, born 1876; Thomas 1788; George Charles Routh 1790; John 1793 (died in infancy); John 1796; Frederick Garland 1799; Mary Elizabeth 1803; Joseph Hart 1805. N.B.--Mary Elizabeth became the wife of Rev. William Bullock; and John signed his calling as surgeon. His father came to Newfoundland as a surgeon.

A FEW BAPTISMS OF EIGHTY YEARS AGO.

1842--Aquila, child of Martin and Eliza Miller, Trouty. (Died February, 1823.)
1843--Richard, child of Richard and Hannah Vivian, Cat Cove.
1849--Richard, child of Richard and Mary Cook, Trinity.
1849--Jane, child of George and Marianne Bellows, Trinity.
1849--Silva, child of James and Ann Senack, Trouty.

GEORGE GARLAND'S BIBLE AND PRAYER BOOK.

In preparing my week-end items, just when I believe that I have called attention to everything that I can possibly gather about the Garland's in Trinity, something else turns up, and I am glad. This time it is George Garland's Bible and Prayer Book. Several of our people will remember having seen it in its depository in the Garland's Pew of St. Paul's Church over forty years ago; but owing to its having been kept in careful custody all those years, many of our younger people know nothing about it. The book is 1 1/2 inches long, 5 inches wide, and 3 1/4 inches thick. It is bound in dark red leather, edged and clasped with heavy ornamental brass. It contains the Prayer Book, the Bible, Canticles in Metre, Family Prayers, and the whole Book of Psalms in Metre by Sternhold and Hopkins. The history of the Book is during his stay in Lisbon. On the 17th Parish Church of St. Toland, Southwark, England, in 1795 by Henry Martin Esq. In 1816 it had become the property of George Garland Jr., during his stay in Lisbon. On the fly-leaf is the following:--

Compreto In Lisbon para duzentos reis. Anno Domini 1816

In hoc signo vinces. GEORGE GARLAND, JR.

Whilset on a fly-leaf at the back of the book is the following:--"Livro de oracao's pertencendo a George Garland; Anno de Jesu Christo, 1816."

It was brought by George Garland to Trinity, and used by him in St. Paul's Church until he left for England in 1833 (The year he died). The book was left in the Garland Pew in St. Paul's, and in 1840, when the tablet (that is now in the Mortuary Chapel) was erected over the family pew in memory of George Garland, the book was placed in a drawer of the seat under the tablet, and the following note was appended to it by Thomas Drawbridge. "It is requested that this book should never be taken out of the seat, over which is its original owner's monument." Owing to years of faithful use, the binding of the book was broken, and the leaves were loose. Twenty-six years after this, Miss Margaret Deborah Garland visited Trinity, and having found her Uncle's book in this condition, she took it back to England with her, and handed it over to her father, John Bingley Garland. This action on her part, and her father's action afterwards are told on a title page of the book, in the hand writing of John Bingley Garland, as follows:--

"This Bible was brought from the 'Church in Trinity, Newfoundland, by my youngest daughter, 'Margaret Deborah Garland, 'she having seen it there in a very 'injured state, and obtained permis- 'sion to bring it to me; being con- 'fided from the Manuscript Writing 'on some of the leaves, that I would 'again return it to the Church, with 'binding restored, returning the origi- 'nal manuscript, and requesting 'that such Bible, thus newly bound, 'should remain in the Church, agree- 'ably with the wishes expressed. The 'Bible was delivered to me by my 'daughter on the 29th Day of Novem- 'ber, 1867, being the 76th anniversary 'of my birthday

"Stone Cottage, near Wimbors, Dorset."

The book, thus beautifully re-bound and placed in a joshall brass-bound oak box, was sent back to Trinity, to the rector and Warden of Old St. Paul's. They accepted it in trust and guaranteed to have it carefully preserved amongst the other book treasures of the Church, and this has been done to date. (I shall be glad if some one will kindly send me a translation of the Portuguese words in the book.) In the preface to the Metrical Psalms as given at the end of the book, is the following note; which, though somewhat old fashion in its phraseology is not without its timely suggestions for the use of some of the spare time in our private houses on our day and generation, for the development of Christian manhood:--
"These Metrical Psalms are set forth to be sung in all Churches, of all the people together, before and after Morning and Evening Prayer; and also--in private houses, for their Godly solace and comfort; lay- 'ing apart all ungodly songs and ballads, which tend only to the nourish- 'ing of vice, and corrupting of youth."

SAFEGUARD THE PROCEEDS OF YOUR LIFE INSURANCE

Most men consider life insurance necessary for the protection of their dependents. Having provided adequate life insurance is it not equally important to provide by Will for the payment of the proceeds to a Trust Company for investment, so that the provision made for dependents may not be dissipated? In this way their future income may be assured. We shall be glad of an opportunity of discussing this subject with you more fully.

East End Young Voters Monster Rally.

Prominent Men of "Ours" Lead Committee. Challenge Repeated to Prime Minister. Executive Council to Make Humber Deal Terms Public.

A great rally of the young voters of the East End was held in the Mechanic's Hall last night, when the first young voters committee in the District was formed. Curiously enough, the first Chairman of that Committee is Mr. Len Stick, the first Newfoundland-lander to join the Nfld. Regiment. He is No. 1 of the famous Blue Puttees. The Secretary is Mr. Thomas Smyth, another War Veteran who has suffered terribly in the cause of his country.

Mr. J. R. Bennett, Leader of the Liberal-Labor-Progressive Party and Mr. C. E. Hunt were present and addressed the gathering. When they entered the hall they were greeted with rousing cheers and the slogan Bennett and Better Times.

Chairman Gordon of the Senior Committee called the meeting to order and announced its object was the election of a Chairman and Secretary of a Young Voters' Committee. Mr. Geo. J. Scriver moved and Mr. P. Dobbins seconded, that Capt. Len Stick be appointed Chairman and ex-Pte. Thomas Smyth, Secretary. The motion was passed unanimously and the gentlemen took their places at the table. Mr. Stick and Mr. Smyth thanked the meeting for their election.

LEADER GIVEN OVATION.

Mr. J. R. Bennett being called upon to speak was given a great ovation. He opened his speech by congratulating the meeting on its selection of a Chairman and Secretary. He referred to the excellent reputation of Captain Len Stick, who was No. 1 in the Royal Newfoundland Regiment. The Secretary, Mr. Smyth, was also a member of the Blue Puttees, and was a prisoner in Germany for one and a half years. It was a happy augury that the men who were so ready to respond to the call of their country in 1914, were again ready in 1923, when their country needed them to fight in their behalf. Mr. Bennett then referred to the manner in which Constitutional rights had been trampled upon during the past three and a half years, how the Government had been afraid to meet the representatives of the people. Dealing with the conditions in the city, he said they had been brought about by the domination of Coaker, and yet the Government has the audacity to come and ask the people to give Coaker another chance when the result of his damning influence is seen in the closed mercantile houses and idle clerks. The Bennett Party stands to improve these conditions. It is useless for any man to say Squires controls the Government, he is only in by the grace of Coaker, who controls 11 seats of the 21. Though Squires may twist and turn, Coaker will continue his policy the same as in the past.

HIDING IN RECORDS.

The Government is not before the country on the Humber Proposition, but on its own record. The Humber Deal was not the issue. A great deal has been said about the Humber Proposition, much of which is untrue. They said the Opposition was opposed to the Humber, but the Opposition would vote for it if it was a good deal and in the interests of the country. Mr. Bennett was one of those who voted for the Nfld. Products Bill and the Humber Proposition. The latter was introduced by Sir Robert Bond, it was debated for days and nights and when it went through it was a different proposition altogether. What was the case with the Humber Deal may be with the Humber. If Sir R. A. Squires was sincere he would have discussed the Deal in the right place. Coaker said that the men of the Union would have first claim on the jobs, what right have these men over St. John's men or the other parts of the Island?

PEOPLE'S RIGHTS OUTRAGED.

There is nothing constructive in the papers supporting the Government. They devote columns to personal attacks on Sir Michael Cashin and himself as who is Leader, and he had the full support of Sir Michael Cashin. He arranged with Sir Michael Cashin to go to St. John's West with Hunt and Linegar and win, while Mr. Bennett would go to Squires' home, Mr. Grace, and win there. He referred to 1919 when industries were thriving and all tradesmen were working full time; is it so now? The Government had prostituted every right and he had no doubt that the young men were going to do Newfoundland belonged to them. In the past fifteen months, said Mr. Bennett, over 10,000 had gone away. They had not gone on excursions, but to seek a living which had been denied them in their own country.

REALIZING THE SITUATION.

He was glad to see the young men realizing the serious situation, and manufacturing industries, subsequently agreed to guarantee half the Deal if Newfoundland would guarantee the other half. Months ago the British Parliament passed the guarantee and Newfoundland has sealed the bargain with the Imperial authorities. It only remains for ratification by the Newfoundland Legislature. But it is in this that the people have to be aware that too many springs are added to the Deal. In constitution Mr. Hunt stated that of $2.00 earned at the rocks, only 80 cents was left, $1.20 went to the Government; and if the present Government is returned only 10 cents will be left. He appealed to the younger men to look at it in the light that Coakerism is killing St. John's. All could not go to the Humber and the only way to do away with Coakerism and save the city is to vote the straight ticket for Higgins, Fox and Vinicombe.

MR. HIGGINS COMPLIMENTS COMMITTEE.

Mr. Higgins, who was the next speaker, thanked Messrs. Bennett and Hunt for their attendance and speeches and complimented Messrs. Stick and Smyth on their appointments. He referred to the excellent record they had in the Government and was glad that, like so many others of their kind they were again in the fight for Justice and Right. The New Committee of Young Voters was going to fight a "strong" campaign and would not be bothered as to how a man voted in 1919. For that reason the lesson is one that can be passed on to the seniors that the younger men are going to follow the traditions of their forefathers and emulate the spirit of "our own country, our own coal birthright." This is the spirit in which the young voter, as well as the old, has to live and rear his family, is not going to be kicked and spat upon so, the young man now forsakes the nickels and other amusements because the job is theirs as well as the candidates. It was time for all to pause and think of what the vote meant. He said, however, that the difference between this and other elections was that ordinarily when a Government came back for a renewal of office the first act was to lay their record before the public and say, we have done such and such. The Government has not done this because they have not done their work.

WHERE THE COUNTRY FITS IN.

Mr. Higgins addressed the young voters particularly and said that they must not be misled by the Humber Deal. He reiterated his statement made at the Star Hall that there was a sting in it and that sting was the payment to Rodde of two and a quarter millions. It was like swapping a horse in the dark, we could not see what we were getting. Referring to the splits scandal, Mr. Higgins said if every house started to burn splits we could never burn all that have recently been bought. Instead of exporting fish we ought soon to export splits. The country cannot exist on relief work. We cannot expect reduction of taxation if nothing is being produced. In years before ordinary men were able to get along because there was employment, but to-day there was nothing. The poorest man might have a brilliant son but there was no chance for him in this country to-day. The thing that makes it possible to make us realize our ambitions is industry, there is no chance if the only thing we have to depend on is relief work. All the boys who are in Bermuda are anxious to get home, it is a natural feeling. Coaker was afflicted with fancy ideas, said Mr. Higgins. He said "I'll run the railway." He did to the tune of four million dollars and said he would give up politics.

MILLIONS TO REIDS ALREADY.

His fancy cost the country four million dollars and now we have to pay Reid another two and a quarter millions. If the Bennett Party pays a dollar a quintal to have the fisheries successfully prosecuted it is better to spend a million dollars that way than to lose it on unprofitable relief work. That is the policy which will appeal to everybody, four-fifths of the industry of the country is the fishery. We know what we have. Let us hope that there are gold mines about but we do know the fish are in the sea. If other industries can be developed said Mr. Higgins, let it be so, but pay most attention to the fisheries. Mr. Higgins asked what encouragement had been given the fisheries the past three and a half years? In the first place Coaker's office killed it. He ran away from his office and left his tools there. Mr. Higgins flayed Coaker for his neglect of his Department and wound up his speech by impressing the desire for the straight ticket vote or none for Higgins, Fox and Vinicombe.

MR. VINICOMBE IN SHORT ADDRESS.

Mr. Vinicombe followed with a short address in which he congratulated the Chairman and Secretary and the young voters on their splendid turnout. He reviewed his entry into politics and his career down to the present, campaign and pledged a continuance of his interest in the welfare of the District. He referred to our young men in Ford City and Bermuda, who were driven away from their homes, and he was sure that when the Bennett party was returned prosperity would once more shine on the land and they would all come home again. Mr. Vinicombe's remarks were warmly applauded and then the Chairman called on Mr. Fox to speak.

MR. FOX ON COUNTRY'S CONDITION.

Mr. Fox referred at length to the sterling qualities of Captain Stick, the new Chairman, as a soldier and also referred in splendid terms to the Secretary. The same spirit which animated them in 1914 was bringing them into the fight, which was vastly similar to the other eight years ago. "The first law of nature is to protect the land we live in and to-day young men and old men are called upon to protect the land from which they spring. Newfoundland stands tonight on the edge of a precipice, said Mr. Fox. It needs only a slight push to send her into an abyss from which there will be no recovery, her destiny is hanging in the balance. The Newfoundland we refer to is not our hills and valleys, our forests and streams, it is our wives, our families, our brothers and sisters. Newfoundland is its people. The real issue is not whether the Humber Deal is to be accepted or rejected, but Coakerism vs. Newfoundland. Are we going to permit a man to rule for another four years our country which is now almost ruined? Mr. Fox referred to the representatives of the North who spoke at a recent meeting, and he said that these men truly expressed the opinion of the Northern men. The North cannot go on without the East, West and South and conversely the East, West and South cannot get along without the North. When we say we are fighting Coakerism it does not mean the section over which he rules, but the Government which he represents. Mr. Fox referred to the prosperous state of Newfoundland in 1919 and the want and destitution which now prevailed. The sturdy men were nearly all gone.

AWAY WITH THE WASTERS.

The Humber Deal was merely dust thrown in the eyes of the country, and the Government is now trying to say that the Opposition is opposed to it. This is a deliberate falsehood. He also expressed the stand of the Opposition as in favor of it provided it is good for Newfoundland. Eighty per cent. of Newfoundland depended on the fishery. Newfoundland first came into prominence on account of her fisheries, and if they are allowed to die out she will also go down. The Government should put its record before the electorate, but it won't because it can't. There is only one cry now, "Away with them!"

HUMBER DISCUSSION CHALLENGE.

Mr. Fox then challenged the Prime Minister, Dr. Campbell, the Executive Council or any other part of the Government to come on any platform and give the Humber Deal with all its pros and cons. He did not think that this challenge would be accepted. The manner in which constitutional government had been violated was also dealt with by Mr. Fox, as well as the great emigration which had taken place. When the Lloyd George Government, with whom the Humber proposition was started, went out of power, the Bonar Law Government finalized the Deal because it was a good thing for English capitalists and England, so the Bennett Government would finalize the Squires' Government part of the contract. England was in the contract as first mortgages and if anything went wrong she would sell the proposition, get her own money out and Newfoundland would have the rest if there was any, so that the statement by Squires that it was on a 50-50 basis was another falsehood. Mr. Fox spent some time on details of the Deal such as are known, and concluded his remarks by thanking the audience for the great hearing he had received.

The People say
Bennett's victory
Is more certain and certain.

To-day finishes the last lap of the fifth round.

It was some fish!

So much so that the attempt to save Squires himself from the oncoming rush was fruitless.

Cashin, Linegar and Hunt will poll at least 600 more votes than the highest Coakerite in St. John's West.

Keep her going, Jack Cadwell, start the sixth week drive for a record majority.

Last night's meeting of the Bees was a failure.

Sir Richard, who refused to show up on Friday night, put in appearance last night.

So I suppose his papers to-day will say four or five hundred were present.

It will be interesting to note that the room itself is filled to capacity when something less than one hundred are present.

The crowd littered when the Premier said the three Bees had a chance of election.

Joe Long has said so long to Grimes who is going to be so far behind when the poll is declared that he'll never go there any more.

Bennett's thirty-six Standard Bearers are on the battle grounds, and not one of them are "Paid to Fight."

Now look for the sows from Burin, Fortune and Burgeo Districts.

The Conception Bay Districts are without exception—good for bumper trips for Bennett and Better Times.

Lloyd George government endorsed the Humber Deal when he was defeated. Bonar Law concluded his contract.

The same here, Squires Government endorsed the contract, and if Newfoundland has a fighting chance at all the Bennett Government will complete it.

The Bennett policy is one that will encourage the Humber and every other industry.

Not forgetting that to our fisheries we must give first preference.

That is why the Bennett Government will as soon as it takes office give the Fishermen a substantial bounty on their catches.

About the most amusing items we see daily in the Advocate and Mail are that they claim someone is trying to steal Squires, Campbell's and Coaker's brains.

We never heard anyone accuse them of having any.

But even if they had we know of no one that is particularly anxious to have their limited allotment.

If he brains they refer to are those which built the cab stands, Road de Luxe and organized a Horse Police Squad then they needn't fear anyone is going to steal them.

To increase the public debt twenty million dollars in forty months does not require brains.

To be candid, Mr. Warren should publish another advertisement offering another one hundred bones to the guy who didn't steal his documents to relieve some of his associates of the dust that is crowding out their imagination.

Heaven pity the poor thief if he expected to get anything worth while when he would so far forget himself as to steal the brains of the Executive Council.

Next week will see the beginning of the final dash:

Coakerism is finished

Squiresism is finished

Cambellism is finished

A new Government is going to take charge.

Bennett is the "Man of the Hour". Because the people are looking to Bennett for "Better Times."

Altogether!

Oath-Bound Representatives A Menace.

Unworthy of a Free People—
"Those Who Would be Free
Must Themselves Strike
the First Blow."

All men feel a peculiar pleasure in the enjoyment of freedom; but there is a greater pleasure in its attainment if it emanates from just sound principles and pure virtues—and there is no country or nation that can offer the true principles of freedom to its citizens unless its constitution is based on these principles.

The above was written by a celebrated journalist at a time when a certain class or section of his country was seeking to dominate its public economic life. The principles he enunciated are as vital to-day when first written. Freedom is necessary, absolutely necessary, to individual to-day in order that he may enjoy the fruits of his toil and secure in his possession of such rights as he has rightly acquired. If freedom which an individual or organization aims to accomplish does not emanate from just laws and sound principles of government it ceases to be such.

In order that Freedom may be properly enjoyed and used as a means to the benefit and betterment of all irrespective of class or creed it must be guided and regulated by the fundamental principles. If a man is to enjoy the blessings of Liberty, his rights must not be fettered nor his power nor judgment subservient to those who would use him for their own base ends. True Freedom must be hand in hand with "just laws, and principles and pure virtues." It is indeed futile for us to endeavor to-day to apply to our country these great principles of Representative Government to which we are already alluded. At the present moment the public life of this country is dominated and controlled by corrupt influences by those who day in and day out preach their virulent gospel of class hatred, and for their selfish aims endeavor to sow dissension and discord amongst us. In order to justify a continuance of this present lamentable state of Men of Mr. Coaker's mental calibre forget that a member of the legislature does not go there solely to represent those whose votes elected him but rather to serve his country and his fellow countrymen as a whole and not any particular class, creed or section of them. It has happened that public men whose in the ranks of the Liberal-Labor-Progressive Party under the leadership of Mr. John R. Bennett to-day have had sometimes to place themselves in opposition to their personal wishes because of the general welfare of the country as a whole.

Members who are nominees of Mr. Coaker and his P.P.U. cannot, according to him and their oath, exercise independence of thought and action if they should run counter to the District Council. Can anyone conceive of anything that strikes deeper at the roots of democracy and the institutions reared upon it than this Oath to which every representative of Mr. Coaker's organization must subscribe? What a calamity befalls this country when our destinies are entrusted to oath-bound representatives of such influences.

We and every fair minded and honest citizen heartily subscribe to the doctrine of the rule of the majority, but we must condemn any policy which seeks to perpetuate the rule of a minority to the detriment and at the expense of the majority. True Democracy favors "Equal rights to all, privileges to none." It is opposed to monopoly and sectionalism. Monopoly and privilege destroys fair thought and Democracy. Down with monopoly and privilege must be the slogan of a free people. Those who would be free must themselves strike the first blow. Coakerism as we know it is a menace that is violently opposed to Democracy and must be destroyed if we are to be a free, prosperous and an independent people.

It now remains with the people of this country in view of the revelations and scandals of the past years to decide whether the intended freedom of Representative Government, which has been the heritage of the past, is to prevail or that the invidious attacks against it shall survive.

It is now for the country to decide if Freedom shall again flourish or be covered with a funeral pall. There can be no mistaking the issue before the country at the present time. Men are gambling with the future of Newfoundland. If we permit them to play the game with loaded dice we shall do so to our eternal disgrace and infamy.

Finding Relief She Tells Others.

Madame Telesphore Parent Took Dodd's Kidney Pills for Bright's Disease, Rheumatism and Dropsy.

She Found no Relief till she used the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Valer Station, Que., April 6—(Special).—Mde. Telesphore Parent, a well-known resident of this place, is recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to those who suffer from kidney troubles. Madame Parent states:—"I have suffered for eight months with Bright's disease, rheumatism, and dropsy. I could not sleep at night, and felt heavy and sleepy after my meals. I took three boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they did me a whole lot of good."

Madame Parent's trouble came from the kidneys, as is evidenced by the relief she got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. When the kidneys became clogged or out of order, the circulation becomes sluggish, the impurities are not strained out of the blood and the result is weariness and lack of energy all over the body. This condition is not only disagreeable but dangerous as well. The impurities in the blood are the seeds of disease.

Guard against these diseases and get back your accustomed energy by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

THE EVENING TELEGRAM, LIMITED, PROPRIETORS. All communications should be addressed to The Evening Telegram, Ltd., and not to individuals.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Saturday, April 7, 1923.

GROSSLY INCONSISTENT.

It is screamingly inconsistent for the Mail to denounce Cashin as one of the makers of the Railway Contract, 1898,—the "Reid Deal"—and in the same breath claim that credit be given to Squires for the Humber Deal, which is based on the Reid Deal.

Cashin supported the Reid Deal, in 1898, and so did Morris! But Squires came into public life under Morris, and supported him for years, especially upon his branch railway policy.

But why talk now about ancient history, the Reid Deal of 1898? What about the Reid Deal of 1923? What terms has Squires made to acquire the railway, as part of the Humber Deal?

COME TO THE FIRING LINE.

The Mail is untruthful in ascribing to the Telegram the statement that Sir Michael Cashin dropped a libel suit against the Advocate "simply and solely because of a request made by Mr. Coaker."

The Truth: Nothing But The Truth

Squires Preferred a Promise to Performance—He Delayed Humber Development for Selfish Political Ends.

On Thursday the "Mail" said, "The cry of Bennett and Better Times" is but a promise, but Squires has brought the gift of the Humber, more work and better wages."

And yet it was only last Wednesday that the "Mail" said: "There is no contract. There is only an arrangement to go into effect if the electors support the Government."

It is untrue that Squires has brought the gift of the Humber, or work and wages there, if by the assertion anything more is meant than the merely preliminary work illegally paid for by the Colony itself.

It is also the solemn and mighty significant truth that the Humber scheme might this very day be the law of the land, and work be in full swing, but for the cruel heartlessness and political cupidity of Squires.

reprehensible departure from a carefully thought out programme. The political trickery of Squires is responsible for the delay. He was thinking only of votes in this connection.

From the foregoing it will be seen that Coaker is going to have the right of his life to retain his own seat and if this is the case in his supposed stronghold, what hope can his hirelings have in Trinity and Twillingate Districts.

At 11 o'clock his Excellency the Governor and party from Government House, accompanied by Mr. Edgar Bowring, paid an official inspection to Bowring's Southside where they watched the landing of seals from the s.s. Sagona.

Sagona Will Finish Discharging To-Day.

SEALS ARE LARGE SIZE. The work of discharging the Sagona's seals continued all day yesterday, 3,360 prime young harps were landed up to 6 o'clock, the net weight being 138 tons, 0 cwt., 1 qr., 7 lbs.

The Reckless Boatman

Between the lea shore of Coakerism and the oncoming waves of millions squandered in waste and extravagance, what is likely to be the fate of the country? Therefore, men of Newfoundland, vote for safe, sound and sane representatives, the standard bearers of BENNETT AND BETTER TIMES.

Coaker Weakening in Bonavista Bay.

From our correspondent in Bonavista Bay, we learn that Coaker is steadily losing ground in Bonavista Bay. This is what he says:

"There is a wonderful change in this Bay since last year. In this section there are 380 voters, and we have gone over the names and, giving Coaker every doubtful one, can only find 63 that may be in his favor."

"Confederation of The Labrador"

"SOLD FOR THE PRICE OF A SHEEPSKIN"

Sale Plotted in Secret Without the People's Warrant—Labrador Fishermen Beware!

The Advocate discussed yesterday what it calls "the Confederation of the Labrador," and in doing so, it does not deny that the Government has negotiated a sale to Canada of this great dependency of Newfoundland.

The Advocate deceitfully talks of the sale as a mere settlement of the boundary lines, as though it were nothing more than a delimitation of the boundaries prescribed in writing, whereas it is a sale of that portion of the Labrador admittedly ours, and the extent of which was to be made clear by the Privy Council.

The full rights of the fishermen on the Labrador will never be interfered with. The only right the fishermen, as such, possess on the Labrador—the right of fishing,—they possess even now in common only with all British subjects, and this right, of course, they would continue to have, as they have it now on Canadian Labrador, but only as they now have it there.

A STARTLING DISCLOSURE

Reids Hold 26 Grants Totalling 571,687 Acres of Land on the Humber.

Squires Says Contracting Company Will Not Pay Reids One Cent for Same--Who Will Pay?-- Is it the Government?-- Voters Beware! Bennett Will Boost Humber and Protect Your Interests.

Some weeks ago a challenge from the members of the Bennett Party was published in the Telegraph and News. Sir Richard Squires was asked to discuss some phases of the Humber Deal, which the public up to the present time have not been informed about. Sir Richard has so far not answered the challenge. Instead the "spread" story of work, work for thousands is being told in the columns of the Mail and Advocate, in addition to pamphlets which are being distributed wholesale. Everybody knows that employment is badly needed for our people. All would welcome and give every legitimate encouragement to any enterprise that would give labor. The Humber proposition is one of these enterprises, and so far as the Deal has been entered into between the British Government and the Newfoundland Government every member of the Bennett Party supports it. The ratification of the Deal in the Legislature makes it final. It is in the ratification, however, that Newfoundland may not get a square deal. This is the reason why Premier Squires will not disclose the whole facts. He asserts that the Reids will not be paid anything for their lands. Now what will they get? Are the Reids philanthropists? Are they the people that will give anything of value away for nothing? You are asked to believe so. The Reids own a half million acres of land on the Humber. Without this timber land there can be no Humber Deal. You can't run a pulp and paper plant without material. Just consider Reids giving away the following limits, which they hold in fee simple on the Humber:—

Lot 40—29,896 Acres	41—7,285 "
42—17,408 "	43—11,712 "
44—9,568 "	45—18,720 "
46—5,120 "	218—57,600 "
219—24,704 "	220—16,570 "
221—5,824 "	222—30,500 "
223—27,968 "	224—21,850 "
225—29,150 "
Total 571,687 Acres.

These limits extend from Bay St. George and Bay of Islands up to the Bottom of White Bay. Neither Reid nor any other person would be expected to hand over this property for nothing. Yet the Squires-Coaker crowd expects you to believe they will. Don't trust them. Don't let deceivers get you. Bennett and his party will see the Humber proposition through and what is more, that the country will get a square deal.

Coal Areas to be Worked

WILL BE MEANS OF LIVELIHOOD FOR 8,000 PEOPLE.

Success has at last crowned the efforts of the St. George's Coal Fields Co. Ltd., to interest capitalists in the development of the St. George's coal field. The fact that during the past three years the project received some of the encouragement which it deserved. The South Branch Piasco on which the Government sank a quarter of a million dollars furnishes an outstanding example. The history of Mr. Coaker's visit to the coal areas in company with Messrs. Halford, other members of the executive and Messrs. Reid, is well known. Had not Mr. Coaker been beguiled into expending the money voted on the Reid area, St. George's Coal Fields would be today employing thousands of men. The Government deserves the strongest condemnation for its action in this particular. It has been through the untiring zeal of Mr. Freeman, President of the St. George's Coal Fields Co., that Newfoundland is having a coal mining industry established. Mr. Freeman returned by S.S. Rosalind from Boston and New York told the Telegraph to-day that a company is now being formed to go right ahead with operations as soon as spring opens. The arrangements were closed on the reports submitted by Mr. Freeman and those of an American engineer who went over the property last year. The property transfer is being made for one million dollars. Beyond the fact that the agreement had been signed, Mr. Freeman refused to give further details as his report had first to be submitted to a meeting of shareholders which takes place next week. The first operations of the new company will be the building of a spur line to connect with the trunk line railway. Exploration of the whole property will involve the expenditure of about $200,000. Mining will be carried on simultaneously with the exploration work. It being decided to operate on the Humber seam first. Mr. Freeman stated that the company plans going ahead on an immense scale and when the mines are in operation it will be the

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING APRIL 6th.

Received report of some stables on Pleasant Street. Went and interviewed the owners, who had the repairs attended to and buildings cleaned. This has been quite a hard week on truckmen, owing to the condition of the streets. I interviewed all mercantile firms and asked them to take lighter loads, which they did. I had two horses taken off the street suffering with sore shoulders. I also asked the Council to have the manure cleared off the streets, as the filth makes it harder for the sleds to slip over the snow. King's Bridge Road needs cleaning badly. In fact all the city streets need attention. I will have a new lot of pictures ready this week. Have received an order to send some to one of the schools, from one of our public spirited gentlemen. A fine setter dog was found by a prominent East End legal gentleman lying on the street near King's Bridge. He kindly conveyed it to his stable and phoned the S.P.A., who made enquiries and found the owner, Mr. A. R. Williams, of the G.P.O., who promptly looked after it. All friends of the Society for Protection of Animals living in the outports and along the railway are asked to send me confidential reports of the condition of all animals that are ill-used, underfed or overworked. All firms using horses in lumber woods are asked to take particularly good care of horses and see they are in good condition before loading in railway cars for shipment to St. John's and arrangements made for water and feed enroute.

Kyle Outward.
TAKES UP GLENCOE'S ROUTE.
S.S. Kyle, Capt. Cross, left port at 5 o'clock this morning to take up the Glencoe's route of call along the South West Coast. The ship took a full cargo of supplies. Amongst the passengers who left by her were Messrs. E. B. Outerbridge and Eric Chafe, candidates for the J. R. Bennett party at Fortune and Burin districts respectively. Mr. W. McK. Chambers, the Bennett candidate for Burgeo, P. J. Grace, Claude Hall and Hon. W. R. Warren.

S.S. Digby is due here to-morrow from Liverpool. The ship has 1300 tons of freight for this port.

S.S. Canadian Snapper will return from here to Louisbourg to load coal. S.S. Vedamore sailed from Halifax yesterday direct to England. There was not sufficient outward freight offering to warrant a call at this port.

Local Representatives Returns.

TELLS OF INTERESTING VISIT TO WEST INDIES.

Among the passengers to arrive by S.S. Rosalind yesterday was Mr. Gerald S. Doyle, the local representative of Dr. A. W. Chase Company. Mr. Doyle left New York on February 3rd, and first visited Bermuda. Here he met many of the Newfoundland men who are engaged in constructing the new hotel and he says they are all well and doing good work. Some of the younger men say they are going to remain there after the work is finished, as they can easily find lucrative employment. Leaving Bermuda Mr. Doyle visited practically all the British West Indies going as far South as Demerara. At that place he met two Newfoundland nuns, who have been there for 45 years in the Ursuline Convent. They were delighted to meet a Newfoundlanders, and made many inquiries about St. John's and friends here. From Demerara Mr. Doyle visited Venezuela, and went up to Caracas the Capital city, situated 4000 feet above the sea level, and considered the finest city in South America. He returned to New York by way of the Panama Canal, and at Panama had the pleasure of witnessing a review of the American Fleet at the time both the Atlantic and the Pacific fleets met to be reviewed by Secretary of the Navy Donby. It was a wonderful sight to see all the destroyers going through the Canal. During March more ships passed through the Canal than any month since it was opened.

Speaking of the West Indies, Mr. Doyle said it was surprising to see the enormous number of passengers and freight steamers calling at the different islands from all parts of the world, bringing thousands of tourists, British, American, French and Dutch steamers of the most modern type stop at the West India Islands, so that freight and transportation problems have been reduced to a minimum. The climate was excessively hot in most places, and it was difficult for a northerner to get through much work in the noon day. Business opens as early as seven in the morning, and many stores close from eleven until afternoon. At several islands he received enquiries for Newfoundland fish, particularly at Trinidad and Demerara, where our codfish is in good demand. Several dealers seemed anxious to get in touch with Newfoundland exporters.

During his travels Mr. Doyle met one Newfoundlanders, Rev. Fr. McGuire, who was then going on a visit to Bishop Galton of Georgetown, Demerara. During the tropical days he longed for a sight of a bit of snow, but the nearest to it was a view of Sanna Maria Mountains in South America from sixty miles at sea. Those mountains are 18000 feet high and are covered with snow all the year round. Mr. Doyle's visit was a business one, this territory now being placed on a similar footing to Newfoundland, as regards the advertising and distributing of the firm's products. In the West Indies, business conditions are good in most places and as a Newfoundlanders he received a cordial welcome wherever he went.

Miss Louise Orr.

PROMINENT IN BROADWAY MUSICAL COMEDY.

Miss Louise Orr, daughter of John B. Orr, is now appearing at the Globe Theatre, New York, in a musical comedy, "Jack and Jill," produced by John Murray Anderson. Miss Orr has a prominent role under Ann Pennington and Clifton Webb, Broadway celebrities. The production will run throughout the entire summer. Miss Orr, it will be remembered, made a hit as leading lady in the "Quaker Girl," produced at the Casino last winter. Mr. Murray Anderson has made a wonderful success of the Four Editions of the Greenwich Village Follies, demonstrating clearly that Newfoundland can achieve fame abroad, which is denied them for want of opportunity. Donald Brian, who was born at Topsail, C.B., is another Newfoundlanders starring in Broadway and is famous over the American Continent.

The big match was played at Rye and was attended by a great gathering of students from the various universities.

GRAND RALLY IN WEST END.

Spacious Hall Filled to Hear
Weeks Report.

Sir M. P. Cashin Describes Awful Conditions as the Result of Coaker-Squires
Rule--Bennett Candidates Will Have Record Majorities.

There was another large gathering at the West End Headquarters last night, the rooms being filled to capacity, and hundreds having to be content with standing room. The second canvass of the District started last night when pamphlets were distributed. Mr. Linegar, the popular labour representative, addresses the meeting. He told of the splendid canvass they had made during the day, when their house to house calls started in No. 5 ward. They had given the Government candidates a head start to see what story they had to tell. They saw every kind of conditions during that canvass, and the sights that met their eyes, was positive proof of the mismanagement of the affairs of the country by the Squires' Government. Women in St. John's to-day are praying that the Bennett party will be returned to power so that the privations and destitution they are experiencing may be done away with, and the country brought back to normal. From the reception they had received Mr. Linegar was more than convinced that St. John's West was for Bennett and Better Times.

MAINLY ABOUT THE HUMBER DEAL.
Mr. Arthur English was next asked to speak, and he, like Mr. Linegar, spoke of the terrible conditions existing not only in St. John's but throughout the country. In referring to the so much talked of Humber Deal, Mr. English urged upon his hearers the necessity of looking the issue straight in the face. It was the first time in many years that there was a real issue before the people and the fate of the country depended upon how they were going to vote. They have refused to lay bare the Humber Deal and take the people into their confidence, because there is something deep and dark behind it all, and because Coaker and Squires refuse to take the people into their confidence. They tell you in one breath that they have entered into a contract and the Mail and Advocate tells you in the next that no contract has been signed yet. He believed with Governor Harris that there was a big swindle behind it all. In conclusion Mr. English urged upon all to vote for the Bennett candidates, men who will put the deal before the people and if it was a good deal would put it through for the people.

THE MENACE OF COAKERISM.
Mr. Hunt spoke of the menace of Coakerism, that has been killing St. John's since Coaker and Squires took charge of the Government of this island home of ours. Government under Coaker control means that Coaker can put the Government out of business just when he pleased. Coaker and Squires have already driven 10,000 of our young manhood out of the country, and thousands of others would have to go if they were again returned. The challenge to explain the Humber Deal has not been answered yet and is not likely to be. It was an insult to the people in which Squires, Campbell and Coaker are asking the people to swallow this bait. Mr. Hunt asked for the straight ticket, no "Splits" are wanted in St. John's West, but the whole three CASHIN, LINEGAR and HUNT.

SIR MICHAEL CASHIN TELLS OF TERRIBLE CONDITIONS IN THE CITY.
Sir M. P. Cashin told of the wonderful reception received during their house to house canvass yesterday, when over 200 homes were visited. They were received with open arms everywhere. Sir Michael was sorry for the many sad cases of destitution that he and his colleagues had met due to unemployment. It was a terrible story. Conditions are worse in Obituary.

MR. MICHAEL J. RYAN DEAD AT BONAVISTA.
Mr. E. J. Ryan, who is now in the city, received a telegram on Thursday from his brother Nicholas at Bonavista, informing him that his brother, Mr. Ryan, had passed peacefully away that evening, Thursday, the 5th. Deceased was the fourth son of the late Mr. Michael Ryan and brother of Hon. D. A. Ryan, Messrs. Nicholas, Edward, Patrick, John and the late Hon. James Ryan. He was in his 68th year and was born in Bonavista, receiving his education there in the Parochial School. After leaving school he worked with the firm of James Ryan & Co. where he continued till about four years ago when he retired owing to ill-health. He came to St. John's about two years ago and spent a year in the Hospital, where he underwent several operations for internal trouble. He recovered his health to some extent and was able to return home about 18 months ago. About Christmas of last year he became ill again and grew gradually worse. He took to his bed in March and grew weaker day by day till the end came. He lived at the old homestead at "Cove," which he inherited from his father. Deceased was unmarried. He was a very intelligent man and inherited the keen business ability of the family. The funeral took place to-day at Bonavista. Mr. E. J. Ryan knowing that his brother's death was not far off made several attempts to get to Bonavista. He chartered the tug Hugh D. on Wednesday. They got half way across Conception Bay when the pumps got choked. As the ship began to leak the captain would not risk going on and they had to return. The Telegram extends its sympathy to the relatives of the deceased in their sad bereavement.

CHAPTER XIV.

COMMODORE SHIPS.

While the fleet of fifty years ago was quite large and consisted of the various rigs which go to make up the mercantile marine, there were several ships of an outstanding character, and which were looked upon as the commodores and greyhounds of their day. It may therefore be of interest to the reader to learn of a few of these ships, and more especially of their fate. The largest ship that ever came here, and owned locally, was the Eurydice, of the firm of Baine Johnston & Co. This ship came here some twenty-five years ago. The Eurydice, though having some local interest, was not counted as one of our own fleet, and only made one visit to this port. She had been engaged in deep water sailing, and shortly after her voyage to St. John's she was lost during a heavy gale at the Mauritius. There were other vessels which at first had been engaged in the East India and China trade but which finished their days in the Newfoundland trade. Amongst those was the barquentine Beltrees, owned by the firm of Walter Grieve & Co. The Beltrees was a beautiful ship, staunchly built and well planned, and was certainly a home on the ocean. For a long while she was commanded by Capt. Skinner, who gave up her command for the purpose of taking charge of the new iron bark Avalon. The Beltrees had an excellent career, was staunch and well kept, and was always looked upon as one of our most beautiful vessels. Some thirty-four years ago, when coming to St. John's, she was overtaken by storm, went ashore at St. Pierre, Miquelon, and became a total wreck. It seemed a pity for such a splendid vessel to meet with disaster, but such is the end of the average ship, and such was the end of the Beltrees. When touring Placentia Bay on the S. S. Active a year or two after the Beltrees' loss, I fell in conversation with the steward of the little steamer, and he remarked how small the Active was when compared with the last ship on which he had held the same position. I questioned him as to which ship it was, and he told me it was the Beltrees, and what a nice voyage they had made, and how long he had been on her, and how near they were to port when they grounded near St. Pierre and had to scramble for their lives and abandon their fine ship. The Avalon was also a beautiful ship, specially built at Greenock under the supervision of Capt. Skinner, and built for the Newfoundland trade. The Beltrees' record was long and contained many a tragedy of the sea, and many a strange incident of foreign climes and distant lands. But the Avalon's career was short, not more than a year or two. As usual, the ship loaded for Brazil, made a fair passage down, and was returning home in ballast, but she has been listed amongst the missing ships and no one has learned the tale of her destiny. The good captain's monument may be seen at Belvidere, but of his loss no one has learned. Like all such cases, there were of course many surmises and superstitions amongst sea-faring men, and the general opinion at the time was that the good ship had run into a water-spout and thus met her end. Those water-spouts, as our readers are aware, are seen in the southern latitudes and are very dangerous to navigation; they seem to form on the surface of the ocean and to rise like some mighty pyramid, and there remain until they explode with thunderous sound, and thousands of tons of water sent out in many directions. A ship running into one of these water-spouts causes it to burst, thus the torrent of water falling upon the ship means immediate destruction. I have heard the Avalon's loss discussed and talked about many times by men who had been in the Brazilian trade and who were supposed to have been in close company with the Avalon on her last voyage and who were interested in her welfare, and the opinion expressed and generally admitted was that the Avalon met disaster by the treachery of a water-spout.

Another excellent ship of the sixties was the bark Constance, of the firm of Baine Johnston & Co., commanded by Capt. Glass of Greenock. Like the Beltrees, the Constance had a long career in local and foreign sailing, and about twenty-five years ago she was wrecked at Barbados and was sold for the benefit of the underwriters; thus she went out of commission and probably became a hulk, and may be used for that purpose yet. There was also the bark Lavenia of J. & W. Stewart's. Her career was long and useful, and in her palmy days she was commanded by Capt. Mackenzie; but some twenty years ago she was in command of the late Capt. Wilson. She met her fate at Chance Cove, near Cape Race, and thus added one more to the almost numberless ships whose timbers lie in those waters.

Contemporary with those ships we have mentioned, there was the bark Olinda, built for the firm of McBride & Co., and afterwards purchased by the firm of Edwin Duder, and for nearly a half century was in command of Capt. Samuel Prowse. It was said that the captain's wife made nearly fifty voyages with him on the Olinda. The ship was finally commanded by Capt. Kendrick, who on a return voyage from Brazil got caught on the Sable Islands, a graveyard for shipping, and there the beautiful ship was held and finally buried in the sands. So the list could be increased but it is the one story—the story of disaster, of danger, and of death. There was a beautiful ship, the Camelia, always in command of the late Capt. Harvey, and after a most successful career she went down with the brave captain, his good wife and little daughter, at Scatterie, near Sydney. And there was the bark Maria, lost on the Bird Rocks, Sydney, while in command of the late Capt. John Snow. There was one other bark which is worthy of mention, and which had a long career, both in foreign waters as well as locally. She was truly a beautiful ship. It was the bark Parajero, commanded by the late Capt. Tom. The Parajero was owned by the firm of Baine Johnston & Co., and like all other ships she was well built and well equipped, and was always commanded under strict seafaring discipline. She carried as a rule a ship's carpenter and a sailmaker, and usually an apprentice or two, as such was the custom in the days of ship sailing. Amongst the lost ships the Parajero met her fate quite near our own doors, as some of our readers remember, that something over twenty years ago she struck at Petty Harbor Motion and became a total wreck. Such were some of the ships which built up the trade of Newfoundland, and such their endings. Their log-books and their records are long lost in oblivion, and their names and their commanders and the firms which owned them and which took such pride in them, are almost unknown to the present generation.

Household Notes.

Steamed figs served with whipped cream make a delicious desert. Always blend flour in cold milk before adding it to boiling milk. Steel wool will remove rust spots and other stains from linoleum. Diced canned pears, oranges and coconut make a delicious dessert. Never put pepper into anything to be fried, as it will cause the rissoles or fritters to break.

Try adding one-third cupful of grated cheese to your muffin batter. A griddle cake recipe is improved in flavor if a little cinnamon is added. Toasted French bread and grated cheese is nice served with onion soup. Eggs are delicious shirred with fresh tomatoes in individual service. Porcelain-top tables are not affected by acids, but enamel-top tables are.

Place salmon loaf in a border of vermicelli and serve with tomato sauce. Add a little cinnamon to the powdered sugar in which you roll doughnuts. Sprinkle vanilla ice cream with macaroon crumbs and serve with preserved figs. An excellent light business luncheon is a buttered baked potato and buttermilk. Be sure that all vegetables to be used in salads are thoroughly cooked and chilled. Unsalted lime applied with a garden spray to the walls of the cellar will banish mold. A delicious light supper is toasted graham bread served with orange marmalade and cocoa. A pound of flour generally makes twenty-five to thirty doughnuts, depending on size. Bake best fritters on a hot, greased pan, like pancakes, and serve with roast fowl or meat.

The Sale Of Labrador.

Why Not Utilize it for Ourselves?

In yesterday's issue we raised the question that forms the title to this article. To-day we propose to examine this matter somewhat more fully. Within the past year there has been talk of a gold find on Labrador and all over Canada and United States prospectors, miners, and investors, are making ready to test this "find" and develop whatever mineral value the region has. One has only to look at the papers from day to day, to read the public despatches, and to follow the utterances of mining journals and authorities, to realize that this Labrador gold strike promises to be the biggest thing the world has ever seen since the Klondyke rush of twenty-five years ago. As we pointed out yesterday, the most recent announcements regarding Labrador show that many thousands of men and hundreds of tons of provisions, stores, machinery, etc., will be despatched to Northern Labrador as soon as navigation opens. From this there should be a big revenue for this country and out of the mineral wealth that may be found, Newfoundland ought to have a share. But what has the Squires-Coaker party done in regard to this matter? What steps have been taken to turn this great discovery in our territory to our advantage? Here is the last utterance on the subject:—

North Sydney, April 3.—A steamship service is being inaugurated to cope with the traffic expected to offer between here and Labrador in connection with the gold rush. According to a statement at the Board of Trade meeting to-day, it is expected upwards of thirty-five thousand men will go to Labrador this summer. This predicts a rush of 35,000 people to Labrador the coming summer and supplements a statement by Mr. H. C. Bellow, at Sydney the same day, that his Company will send 5,000 men and 100,000 tons of supplies. What steps are Squires and Coaker taking, we ask, to deal with this situation. Why is Squires being allowed to secure all this traffic and gain all the money that is to flow from it. What measures have Squires and Coaker taken to deal with the presence of thousands of men to secure the enforcement of the Revenue Laws and to enforce law and order in that region? When people reflect on this they will realize that this is the biggest thing that Newfoundland has ever seen, that besides this gold rush the much vaunted Humber Deal is going to be a mere side issue. The carrying out of a gold rush on this scale is going to mean millions for Newfoundland if the Government acts promptly and properly, but so far not a step has been taken by Squires and Coaker or anyone on their behalf to grapple with the situation. It is quite in accordance with the blundering and incapacity which these people have shown since they secured control of the Government of this country, that at this moment, when thousands of men from all parts of the world are planning to proceed to Labrador to seek for gold, Squires and Coaker on their part should be preparing to sell the territory to Canada for a few million dollars. If we had at the head of affairs, men of any foresight and capacity, the whole machinery would have been created long ago for turning this great incident in the Colony's history to the best advantage financially, industrially and otherwise. There should be many millions in this gold rush for Newfoundland if the Government was alive to its duty in the emergency, but with this, as with everything else, the Squires crowd is pursuing a policy of drift. Indeed in this case it is pursuing a policy of worse than drift. It is proposing to sell the goose that lays the golden egg. It is proposing to turn over to Canada the whole Labrador territory for a paltry few millions, when the outcome of this gold rush may be the revelation that in Labrador is one of the world's greatest gold deposits. For that reason every elector in Newfoundland ought to unite and vote for Bennett and Better Times.

Bay Roberts Acclaims.

BENNETT, HICKMAN AND ARCHIBALD.

Special to Evening Telegram. BAY ROBERTS, April 6. Bay Roberts welcomes Bennett, Hickman and Archibald and bespeaks for them a hearty and courteous reception. The Cable Hall, which has been engaged as a committee room is daily thronged with voters reading and digesting the political news. Quite a lot of work is being done on the wharves and roads, possibly with an eye to hoodwink the electors, but the slogan is "We want a change and Bennett and Better Times." The intensive training given Calpin the past week will not qualify him as a politician of any great merit. In his own field of business as a purchaser of produce, he has been successful, and it may also be said from the fields of others he has reaped the harvest. Piccott spent a few days here and has gone to Spaniard's Bay. His old popularity is indeed old, it's past. Simmonds should be on Hr. Grace Island by this time if he took his today's reception in Spaniard's Bay to heart.

Lament of the "Shuneen"

Sure I thought I had the voters Of Placentia safe and sound, But I find they're all against me Since I started to go round.

'Tis the frozen mit they give me, And an icy stare with that, So I'm sorry now, I tell you, That to Coaker I did rat.

Up the Bay, too, all did tell me, That for "Shuneen" they'd no use, So this only makes it certain, That I've surely cooked "me goose."

Then the Cape Shore people tell me, That no "traitor" need come there, So the very name of Bonia Sounded hateful in their ear.

In St. Mary's, too, 'twas echoed That no Shuneens need go there, So no wonder I'm lamenting, And with rage would tear my hair.

Salmoner men frowned upon me, When I asked them for a vote; For they only looked upon me As a SQUIRES-COAKER "goat."

Then Trepassy capped the climax, Put the "Kibosh" sure on me, When both men and women shouted: "You're a Shuneen, we can see."

So this Shuneen cry I'm hearing, Hearing all the day and night, Then no wonder I am groaning Underneath my shameful plight.

But too late, alas, I've found it, That I played a hateful game; For 'tis in the ditch I landed When I got that "Shuneen" name.

RIDICULES THE MAIL SCRIBBLER

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,—A writer, who is a notorious Coaker heeler, tells us in his bouquets in the Daily Mail, that all the women are for the Humber Deal because it will give more work to their husbands, brothers and sweet-hearts.

Allow me to tell this individual that our men folk would much prefer to be working at their accustomed trades and occupations here at home, under a Bennett Government that would restore the old time prosperity, than sawing logs on the Humber to the music of the summer horse stingers or to the didoes of Jack Frost, in a winter temperature.

The less too he has to say about sweethearts, the less ridiculous will he make himself, for if women were depending on the like of him for a sweetheart there would be no husbands, brothers or any men whatever to engage in work, either on the Humber or anywhere else. There would be nothing left for us women but to go out on the Humber ourselves patching and darning for Collishaw's imported dogoes.

Maybe that is what he would like to see all of us women employed at.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE INCONCEIVABLE MEANNESS.

Self-justification is the law of human thoughts. I don't suppose anyone ever did anything so mean, so selfish, so wicked that he did not, nevertheless, find means to justify his deed to himself. But I heard of something the other day that I cannot conceive of anyone's being able to justify.

A very dramatic true story precedes the part that has to do with this inconceivable meanness.

A Passion for Life Insurance.

Some years ago there lived a young man who, although he was apparently a pleasant, normal young man, must have been unbalanced in some way. Though making only as much money as the average young man of 25 or 26, and though he had a wife to support, he had a passion for taking out enormously large insurance policies.

Rumor went about that he had taken out $150,000 on himself.

Rumor was wrong. He had insurance policies to the extent of $450,000 and he was aiming to make it half a million.

How on earth could he pay the premium on all these even for a few months?

When the question was asked, vague answers of real estate deals by which he had made much money on the side were given.

The real answer came out when he was arrested for forgery.

How He Raised Money.

By means of forging he had raised large sums which he had used to pay his premiums. He had also borrowed money on notes, on one of which he had gotten the endorsement of a young office mate of his.

He was allowed out on bail and a sheriff detailed to guard him. Despite the most careful guarding he was found dead in his sleep under circumstances which suggested but did not prove suicide.

Of course there was a big fight between the insurance companies and the family as some of the insurance was void in case of suicide.

Ultimately the family collected about $200,000.

And now comes the part of the tale which leaves me wondering how the insides of the minds of those two women, who were the chief beneficiaries, must feel.

The whole thing happened some years ago. In the office where that man used to work there is another young man who is just paying the last instalment on a $2,000 note which he endorsed for his office mate for friendship's sake.

And the two women relatives of that man who received something like a $100,000 a piece would not do one thing to help him out.

There Might Be an Explanation.

The story comes to me third or fourth hand. Some of the details may be wrong. But if they were right it certainly is not easy to see how those women can possibly give the faintest justification to themselves for their course.

Somewhere, presumably, they are living—buying themselves pretty things, going to the theatre, going to Church probably, and all the time inside their minds they carry about this inconceivable meanness.

Bring them up against a shoplifter or a modern Magdalene and they would probably look down on her.

There are many strange things in this world but fewer stranger than the insides of people's minds.

EARLY CABLES.

FRENCH WEAKENING?
LONDON, April 6.

This week's visit to Great Britain of Louis Locheur, former French Minister of Construction, during which he had conferences with Bonar Law, Lloyd George, Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Earl Derby, Secretary for War, regarding the broad questions of the Anglo-French relations, is declared to be considered by British officials as showing a definite weakening on the part of the French on the whole question of the Ruhr occupation.

BOCHUM AGAIN STORM CENTRE.
ESSEN, April 6.

Bochum is again the storm centre in the Ruhr because of repeated acts of individuals against French troops and continued refusal of German officials to obey French army orders. Penalties have been imposed on the city and French soldiers yesterday collected fines by force. The streets on which the banks are located were blocked by troops while a detachment went into the Reichsbank Branch and seized two hundred and fifty million marks. Bochum is still without police protection and when there are signs of unrest the French send up sausage balloons from which they watch movements of the population.

A TYPHOID EPIDEMIC.
COLBAT, Ont., April 6.

Advice from Colborne to-day say that there are now six hundred and fifteen cases of typhoid there, representing one-fifth of the population. There have been nineteen deaths. There were one hundred cases last week. Drinking water is being brought from a lake some distance from the town and is selling two gallons for a quarter.

FRENCH NAVAL IMPROVEMENT.
Paris, April 6.

Preliminary tests recently made with modernized French battleships indicate, it is stated, that slight alterations have improved the firing distance of their sixteen inch guns from thirty to forty per cent. While French naval circles exercise the utmost secrecy as to exact improvement, there is a suggestion that the French battleships now outdistance those of other navies of the world unless the same process has been carried out in the matter of slight elevation.

NOT GUILTY.
HALIFAX, April 6.

Allister Munroe, was this afternoon found not guilty of the murder of Leslie Corkum, Halifax grocer, on October 31st. The jury returned with a verdict of acquittal after an hour's deliberation.

Household Notes.

Egg or mushroom sauce is usually served with broiled fish, and lemon sauce with bluefish.

Milk puddings should not be cooked in a hot oven, and pastry should not be placed in a cold oven.

WINTER GOES.

The winter days are flying, the tempests feebly roar, so let's have done with sighing for spring is at the door. The grass will soon be springing, the jays will be singing, and the poets will be singing the spring.

When I was young the winter had many joys to show, and like a loosed sprinter I cantered through the snow; but now that I am older, with twinges in my shoulder, and heart and feet grown colder, the season seems all woe. Before the winter's over I'd give nine tons of snow, to scent the smell of clover where vernal zephyrs blow; I'd swap all sleets and slushes to see the nodding rushes where yonder streamlet gushes in bright ecstatic flow. All life seems vain and hollow when winter chills the air; I'd rather chase a swallow than ride a polar bear; I long to herd a sparrow among the braes of Yarrow; I yearn to tool a narrow behind an old blind mare. And now the spring is coming with healing in its wings, and soon we'll hear the humming of hens and bees and things; the snows no more will cloy us; the blizzards won't annoy us, so let us be as joyous as fifty-seven kings.

Political Paragraphs.

If the "Humber Deal" is a good thing it would be well to have an honest Government to carry out its promises.

The present Government made a muddle of everything that they undertook. They would also make a muddle of the Humber Deal.

The best plan then is to take no chances but to turn them out and elect a Bennett Government. It is the only way to save the country.

The sentiment of the outports is, no doubt, against the present Government and all the boodle given out at the eleventh hour will not save them.

The people will take the money and vote against the Government. It has always happened so, because the common people have more intelligence than the squanderers give them credit for.

After all is said and done a certain admiration is due to Squires and Coaker for their gall and impudence in expecting the people to elect them again after reducing the country to such a state of gloom, misery and depression.

The result of this election from the Government standpoint resolves itself into the question: "Can we get enough of money to buy enough of voters of the country to make a majority?"

The sooner polling day comes the better it will be for poor old Terra Nova. The way that squandering, extravagance and "buying up" are going on no country can stand it.

When the expenditure of the past 12 months is revealed the people of Newfoundland will be so horrified that the names of Coaker, Squires and Campbell will be execrated by generations yet unborn.

But the people are determined on a change and a change we are going to have. The times are too bad to allow a Government with such a record four years more.

Mr. Coaker's Advocate takes merit to itself as being against the merchants and ridicules the Opposition because there are merchants like Hickman, Mohroe, Crosbie, Ayre, Long, and Moore in it. Just so, but will Mr. Coaker's Union Stores give out supplies for the fishery next month?

Sir Michael Cashin is admitted by all to be one of the ablest and most successful Finance Ministers we ever had. He is a lover of strength to any party and no dishonesty has ever been proven against him. In the face of these facts the Government organs insult the intelligence of a certain section of the electors every day by telling them that they should not vote for the Opposition because there is such a man in its ranks. What hypocrisy.

One way of translating the argument of Mosdell and Clouter is this, "Cashin has brains and ability though he has given up the leadership to Bennett he will be able to use his brains and ability. What shall we do about it? We can't perform an operation on him that would turn him into a mute or a fool. We can't buy him, we can't silence him. Would that we could take him outside the Narrows and drown him." "No, we'll not do that, but we'll frighten the North with his name."

Bennett is the Leader, Messrs. "Advocate" and "Mail," and you will have sorrow to know it after polling day. The "Cashin" cry and the "Humber" cry will not save you now, the people have their eye on your three years record of squandering and increasing taxation and they refuse to see any "red herring" that you draw across the trail. They want to punish you for your political crimes.

Squires and Coaker are fond of delivering "Humber" speeches to the public these days. I would suggest more interesting topics such as "How we spent the twelve million loan?" "Why we increased the taxes from 88 to 63 per cent?" "How we got Reid in his place?" "What our trips to London cost the taxpayers?" "How

Public men who have been false to their country, false to their trust and who have squandered the money of the tax payers, have been impeached before and sent to jail. Squires imported detectives here from New York to scrutinize the accounts of the Cashin Government in

In Bennett's bounty system it is the fishermen who catches the fish that will get the bounty. It cannot be taken by any middle man and cannot be attached. It will go direct into the pocket of the man who catches the fish. The merchant will have nothing whatever to do with it. The payment will go direct to the fisherman.
