Under False Colors

Lord Somerton's Ally.

CHAPTER XXVIII.
"By patient inquiry, I have made myself acquainted with your antecedents, and the selfish ambition that has dominated your whole life. You shall not rise another step by crushing the hearts of those who ought to be dear to me—who are dear to me, but of whose existence I knew nothing among the black hills of India. Your name is mentioned as a possible candidate for Parliament. Mind that you do not serve Her Majesty, the Queen in another way!"
He laughed sardonically, and rose from his chair.
"Mr. Castlemore, are you mad?" the lawyer demanded, his face livid with rage and fear. "Would you have my clerks hear your wild ravings? By Heaven, sir, I should be doing my duty if I surrendered you to the police!"
"You can please yourself, even in that," was the scornful rejoinder. "I have lived upon my wits so long, that I believe both you and your friend, Lord Somerton, will be beaten at the finish. You are both playing at cross-purposes, so be warned, and mark you, I am guarding the interests of Mr. Noel Campbell! I am much given to sentiment or maudlin repentances, but so far as lies in my power, I will redeem the past for the sake of the client to whom you are so devoted, and the blue-eyed daughter of Sir John Sterne!"
Captain Castlemore bowed mockingly, adding:
"Good-morning. I did not come here to say quite so much, but it is best off my mind. In a week or ten days you shall hear from me again, and we will settle accounts—that is, if neither of us is arrested in the meantime."

He strode out of the room, and the lawyer sat rigid and motionless until the sound of Castlemore's footsteps had died away in the echoing corridors.
A dark frown settled on his brow, then, taking up a pen, he dashed off the following:
NOEL CAMPBELL.
My Dear Boy:—I have not seen you for a week, and Adeline takes it very much to heart that you did not even trouble to acknowledge Mrs. Grant's invitation to escort the ladies to the Lyceum, while I was out of town. They particularly desired to see Irving in "The Bells," and your negligence deprived them of that pleasure. I must see you at my office forthwith, in connection with a business matter of a most pressing nature. As I have called at your chambers at least a dozen times without success, I am sending this to your club. There must be no delay, please, as I have already tired of the cavalier manner in which you are treating one to whom you owe so much. I can understand that you are very busy—that you are devoted to your pursuits and all that; but the time for a settlement has arrived, if you are a man of honor. Yours respectfully,
JAMES GRANT.
The lawyer's face was not pleasant to see while he sealed and directed the letter, and muttered:
"Adeline will do the rest!"

CHAPTER XXIX.
Much to Elsie's annoyance, Lord Somerton was waiting for her at Blairwood station, and when the train stopped, his quick eyes at once led him to the compartment she and Annette occupied.
"I began to feel anxious about you, Mrs. Sterne," he observed, closely scrutinizing her pale face. "London is not a nice place for ladies unattended."
He conducted her to the waiting carriage and seated himself beside her.
"Mr. Grant kept me waiting a long time," Elsie explained. "And then he had so much to say to me."
Somerton frowned darkly.

"Like his insolence not to give you special and particular attention," he said. "In another hour it will be dark. I do not wish to bother you yet, but I hope that you will tell me all that the lawyer said. Let us hope that the worst is over."
He spoke almost tenderly, and but for the presence of the maid, Elsie would have felt apprehensive of more of his passionate speeches.
"I will tell you everything to-morrow," she replied. "I have not yet decided upon my future movements, because I am not yet sure how much of Mr. Grant's story to believe."
She shivered a little, and he pressed one of her hands, whispering:
"Why need you worry over the future? Give me the right to guard it. I will protect you before the whole world."
The carriage rattled down the broad drive and pulled up before the entrance hall, greatly to Elsie's relief.

She could not trust herself alone with Lord Somerton for one moment, and, with her maid, hurried upstairs to her own apartments.

It was late when Elsie retired to bed, and then she went with a feeling of horror. How was it possible for her to sleep, and the black hours of night would be crowded with ugly phantoms.
She closed her eyes, and nature, utterly exhausted, almost immediately came to her relief. The fears of a long, sleepless night were forgotten, and when she awakened, the twittering of birds was in her ears and bars of sunlight streaming across the floor.
Annette appeared to be busy in the next room, and Elsie touched her bell.
"Oh, what a lovely, long sleep you have had!" exclaimed the maid.
"Look at the clock, madam."

Elsie did look, and was astonished to find that the hands pointed to the hour of ten.
"Help me to dress, Annette," she said. "I am sorry that I have slept so long, and I have so much to do! But oh, I was so tired and weary!" She glanced anxiously at her, adding:
"Are there any letters, Annette—any letters for me? But you have, perhaps, not seen Stretton this morning?"
"Yes, madam, he met me an hour since in the long walk and brought a letter for you. It is in the small drawer, where I put everything of that kind."

She stepped swiftly to an escritoire and took from the drawer indicated an envelope bearing Miss Sterne's name in bold characters. Elsie knew the handwriting instantly, and a flood of rich color dyed her cheeks, for the letter was from Colin Ernscliffe.
Annette hustled about until the finishing touches were put to Miss Sterne's toilet; then she stammered:
"If you please, I want to ask a favor for my sweetheart—for William. He wants to go to London to-day to buy the new furniture for the lodge."
Permission was readily granted, and Stretton went to London that day with a light heart.

CHAPTER XXX.
The moment that the door closed behind Annette, Elsie opened her letter, and was about to press her lips to the dear writing, when she remembered with a bitter pang that there was, perhaps, a barrier, an insuperable barrier, between her and Colin Ernscliffe.
Oh, to forget the misery that was now ever present—the misery that had followed so soon upon the blossoming of Love's flowery day!
She opened her letter with trembling fingers, and eyes blinded with hot tears. To lose her lover now was the cruellest pain of all.
This was the letter that Ernscliffe had written:
My Dear Little Sweetheart:—How careless and neglectful you must think I am! How prolific of promises which I do not keep! But I have been so busy—how busy you will know some day, and understand why I have not written to you oftener. I have your dear letters safe, and each one has been kissed and read many times, and my only grief is that they should breathe so much trouble that I, at present, am powerless to sweep from your path and mine.
So the gamekeeper is sure that he saw me in the grounds of Blairwood Park a few nights since? What very sharp eyes the young fellow must have! But since he is devoted to your service, my darling, I am disposed to forgive him anything.
You have appealed to me to give you advice in a troublesome hour, but I fear that I am a broken reed, being myself like a straw in the grasp of a whirlwind. But, Elsie, darling, I am coming to see you to-morrow, and promise not to appear before you like a knight of the doleful countenance. I know a great deal of your trouble; I have learned it through Noel Campbell, and I am working in your cause with what, at last, promises some hope of success. I do not think it admissible to come direct to the house, but will meet you in our Court of Love—in the beautiful glade where our vows were first spoken—with its floor of emerald

FACE A SIGHT WITH PIMPLES

Large and Red, Itched and Burned. Cuticura Heals.

"My face was itchy and broke out with large, red pimples. They were scattered all over my face and itched and burned so that I scratched which caused them to grow larger. I could hardly sleep at night. They were a real torture and my face was a sight. The trouble lasted about three months. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and the first treatment stopped the itching and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Ora Goulet, R. F. D. 4, Box 56, Barre, Vt., March 24, 1922.
Use Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum exclusively for every-day toilet purposes.

velvet, its walls dense bowers of flowering foliage, and its music the melody of happy, singing birds. I will be there at three o'clock, Elsie, and may Heaven grant that this be the last time that I shall see cause to visit you by stealth. Forever your devoted lover, COLIN ERNSCLIFFE.

Elsie's heart felt lighter now, though there seemed to be a mournful echo to her lover's notes of hope.
"I know that he is true to me," she thought. "I have not room in my heart for even one little doubt. Oh, my love, my love, why should Fate step in and part us through no fault of our own?"
After breakfast she went through her usual search in the papers for news of her father's ship. Already had it been twice spoken, and there was an opinion among the shipping circles that the City of Richmond would make another record.

"Two weeks more," thought Elsie, "and papa will be in India. Oh, how miserable this suspense makes me! This knowledge that he was so ill! And I can hear nothing of him for a long time yet."
She went downstairs to luncheon, and was relieved to find that Lord Somerton was out. Lady Helena greeted her with studied kindness, and gossiped about the new rector who had been selected to fill the place left vacant by the death of Mr. Villance.
"I did hope that our poor curate would have a chance," she said. "He has devoted the best years of his life to the parish, and knows it so well."

Elsie could not resist a faint smile when she remembered that the curate had several times been summoned before the deacons for preaching sermons which he had stolen from religious publications. He was a poor little man, weak-eyed, weak-hearted, and weak-kneed, but a very hard worker, for all that.

CORNS lift right off

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!
Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

A Union That Over-Reaches Itself

The action of the Vancouver branch of the International Longshoremen's Association in declaring a strike for higher pay will probably lead to that port becoming non-union. The patience of the Shipping Federation has been strained to the limit. The present strike is the second one in recent years which involved breaking the Fads and Fashions.

A buckle of black enamel and cut steel is effectively used on a bouffant frock of gray taffeta. The long rope of pearls may be worn round two or three times around the neck in varying lengths. Simplicity is the keynote of the evening frock. In spite of the lavish use of gorgeous materials. Drapery falling in a cascade effect from the shoulder is excellent for the woman with large hips. A shirred frock of yellow cotton is worn over a slip of cloth of gold and is styled with gold ribbon. Embroidery in pearls and crystals is used on a gown of green lace with a corsage of tinted ostrich. A cloth in tapestry effect is used for the collar, cuffs and pockets of a coat dress of navy portet trill. A rather large buckle of rhinestones holds in place the drapery of a dance frock of white charmesse. Paris is fond of embroidery with sparkle this season, especially rhinestones, brilliants and silver. Brocades, velvets, laces and metallic cloths contribute the richness of beauty to the evening mode.

Imperialism Collapses With the Capture of Ludendorff and Hitler.

Lloyd George Denounces Protection as He Steps Ashore—Summary Trial Denied Home Bank Official—U.S.A.'s Refusal to Participate in Reparations Question Anticipated.

"PUTSCH" ENDED.
LONDON, Nov. 9. A Central News despatch from Berlin says the following message has been received from Munich: "The Putsch is considered to have ended. Ludendorff and Von Hitler have barricaded themselves in the war ministry, which is surrounded by troops. Von Foenner, who had assumed the Premiership of the new government has been arrested. The Reichswehr are loyal to the Berlin Government."

LUDENDORFF A PRISONER.
MUNICH, Nov. 9. General Erich Ludendorff to-day lost his second "Putsch" within three years and to-night is observing the fifth anniversary of the German revolution a prisoner in the custody of Federal troops. The man, who as commander-in-chief of the German forces is credited with having lost the world war for Germany, to-night is an ignominious prisoner of the young Republic.

He so thoroughly despised and against the fragile existence of which he has plotted openly and in secret ever since he retired to his reactionary Bavarian stronghold. Ludendorff and Adolf Hitler, who had barricaded themselves in the offices of the War Ministry after the collapse of the attempted coup d'etat engineered by Hitler last night, surrendered this afternoon to a detachment of Federal troops which laid siege to the building. There was brief fighting between the Reichswehr and the Hitler guards, in which there were a few casualties on each side, afterwards Ludendorff and Hitler emerged from the building and placed themselves at the disposal of General von Losow's troops. The status of Ludendorff and Hitler as political prisoners has not yet been defined for the moment their capture merely marks the physical collapse of Hitler's tragic-comic "putsch" in which the world famed former Quartermaster General of the German army became engulfed.

LOYD GEORGE ACCEPTS BALDWIN'S CHALLENGE.
SOUTHAMPTON, Nov. 9. Lloyd George was given a noisy reception when he appeared on the deck of the Majestic. Cheering crowds awaited his arrival outside the dock gates to escort the British war Premier through the streets. Reporters asked his opinion of Premier Baldwin's pronouncement at Plymouth regarding protection, to which he replied he thought it to be "the most incredible pronouncement, a piece of incredible folly, an insult to the intelligence of the nation to feed starving industries with milkweed straw of the last century with every grain of stamanship beaten out of it." The war Premier said he accepted Mr. Baldwin's challenge on free trade or protection as a domestic issue.

HOME BANK DIRECTORS MUST FACE JURY.
TORONTO, Nov. 9. Ten accused directors and officials of the Home Bank were denied a request for speedy trial before a county judge without a jury, by Mr. Justice Smith this morning, and their trial will traverse to the January assizes. Immediately following the refusal to grant them a speedy trial on the conspiracy charges preferred against them, the directors and officials of the institution pleaded themselves in the custody of the sheriff of York County, and through their counsel, asked that they be placed on trial. Counsel for the defendants asked the judge to grant bail to the accused, but he refused this application, and the defendants were compelled to remain in the custody of the sheriff's officers. Unless bail is renewed, the defendants will have to partake of their Thanksgiving dinner in jail.

U. S. WILL NOT PARTICIPATE.
PARIS, Nov. 9. The fact that the French Ambassador to the United States, M. Jusserand, has requested delay in the publication of Secretary Hughes's declaration regarding the proposed expert Reparation Committee, is taken here as indicating the United States will decline to participate in the Committee. The chances of the Committee being organized are regarded as slight.

CRACOW SITUATION STILL SERIOUS.
WARSAW, Nov. 9. The situation in Cracow, where earlier in the week twenty persons were killed in a riot growing out of railroad strike, is still causing anxiety. The striking railroad workers are disobeying the orders of their union to return to work and are formulating fresh demands. The first of these is amnesty for those responsible for the trouble at Cracow and for the persons who killed Polish officers in the clash between the military and his mob. The second demand is for a fortnight's wages. The Government has refused to comply.

DIED AT PIANO.
NEW YORK, Nov. 9. As he lifted his fingers off the keys and the last chords of "The Miserere" floated away, death lay gripping hands upon Richard Nicols last night and he toppled from his bench dead. He was 63 years old.

THREE KILLED IN EXPLOSION.
BUFFALO, Nov. 9. Three men were killed and twenty injured in an explosion at the plant of the National Aniline and Chemical Co. in Abbot Road to-night.

KER CHOO!
"Where are you going, my pretty maid?"

Big Entertainment at the Crescent Theatre

ATTRACTIVE AMATEUR CONTEST LAST NIGHT.

Last night's Amateur Contest at the Crescent can be ascribed as the best entertainment held at this theatre. Whilst it was purely amateur, it consisted of many talented persons whose ability to entertain was appreciated. The affair was conducted in an orderly manner by Dan Delmar who gave each and every performer an equal chance. Mr. Martin Day, the popular step-dancer carried off first prize, which we agree he certainly deserved. The second prize was awarded Mr. Simmonds, a colored gentleman who sang several numbers. Miss Donnelly in a dance and song was the recipient of the third prize. In fact the whole programme was so well rendered that it was somewhat difficult to judge the three best items.

The picture, "Quincy Adams Sawyer," featuring Blanche Sweet and John Bowser, supported by an all star cast, was enjoyed to the fullest extent by all present. Thrills and comedy predominate in this extraordinary screen drama. Robert Shields sang by request that popular ballad, "The Song of the 29th" and "The Sergeant Major." Mr. Shields concludes his engagement at this theatre to-night, when we would suggest to those who could not gain entrance last night to hear him this evening.

It was announced last night that another Amateur Contest will take place on next Friday night, and in the meantime, the management will welcome the names of any new performers as well as any others who may wish to partake in the next Contest.

Actor Inspires Fearless People

MEN WHO DARE, ADOPT "SAFETY LAST" AS MOTTO.

What are dare-devils? Men who fearlessly take hazardous chances in their different fields of endeavor. Men who plunge themselves into perilous predicaments and come out smiling.

The world is full of those who first with danger, the fireman, the policeman, the Arctic explorer, the African hunter, the soldier and sailor, the aviator, the inventor, the chemist, the "human-fly" who scales the side of buildings, the missionary who fearlessly brings his religion to the savage, and scores of others.

These different classes of "dare-devils" all risk their lives in their own particular lines of duty, fearless of the outcome and prepared for the worst assignment. And they all believe in "Safety Last" and adopt it as their motto to inspire them and make them "carry on."

The thought of personal danger does not enter their minds. The love of adventure, the fascination of thrills and the gambling instinct to "beard the tiger" of their professions makes them look forward eagerly to the next thrilling situation that they will face. These "dare-devils" only deplore one fact, and that is that life insurance companies show great hesitancy about insuring them, policies, some companies refusing it, absolutely. An amusing thing occurred in this regard when Harold Lloyd was performing his hazardous feat—that of climbing the side of a twelve-story building in his new Pathecomedey, "Safety Last," which is being shown at the Nickel Theatre. The comedian was forced to promise his insurance agent that he would never, under any circumstances, be again. But just the same, the thrill is there—and some thrills!

Our Dumb Animals
REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 9th.

Interviewed Manager Murphy of The Avalon Telephone Co., about the insulators which have been lying around on the sides of the country roads and drains to the great annoyance of countrymen. This is very injurious to horses and cows. Linesmen have not removed them promptly when working on new poles and boys have smashed them to the danger of animals and of motor traffic. Quite a number have been shot away by boys using shot-guns. Several complaints have come in about the ruts on Water Street. The pavement is broken and it has been the cause of several horses slipping and falling with loads on. I called the attention of the Council Inspectors to it. In connection with the dog which was run over by car No. 8, the motor-man states he did not see it or know he had run over it. The case was tried in court but judgment has not been given yet. The Secretary received word that all cattle shipped by the Sable I. in future would have rope halters instead of the head rope. The halters will be kept on board. Farmers and others say this is a great improvement. I am very thankful to the Sable I. people for the great interest they have taken in this work. Attended to the landing of 25 head of cattle from the Sable I. also attended a couple of head which came in by train. Was asked to humanely put to death two very large dogs owned by residents of Brazil's Field. The dogs had previously bitten a boy belonging to Torbay. I have been asked to put to death another by a resident of Cochrane St. I humanely put to death a horse belonging to A. J. Harvey & Co. This animal has been in the firm for some years. It was suffering from lockjaw. A case of cruel treatment to a bullock taken away from Campbell & McKays wharf, tied to a cart, is being investigated, complaints having been made to the Society by a prominent merchant. The animal fell, two policemen on the opposite side witnessing the occurrence. Messrs. A. Harvey & Co. have repaired their gateway at the Coastal Wharf entrance making the grade now much better for which the Society expresses its thanks.

Obituary.

MRS. SAMUEL H. GARLAND.

At 6 o'clock last evening, there passed to its eternal reward, the soul of an eminently, charitable and saintly old lady in the person of Sarah Jane Garland, wife of our highly esteemed fellow-citizen, Mr. Samuel H. Garland, H.M.C. of 22 Mullock St. The death of Mrs. Garland severs another bond which has served to unite the present with that distant past in which Newfoundland was famed for the hardihood of her sons and the heroism and devotion of her daughters. Born at Lower Island Cove, Bay de Verde District on March 20th, 1850, Mrs. Garland was the daughter of the late David and Angus Garland of that place. In 1870, she married Samuel H. Garland and some fifty years ago she and her husband came to St. John's where they had since made their home.

That proverbial neighborliness which was so characteristic of the Newfoundland woman of past generations, was especially marked in the late Mrs. Garland and for fully half a century, hers was a familiar figure in the sick room or whenever her tender solicitude or loving care could in any measure lighten the burden of those amongst whom she lived.

It is no exaggeration to say of the departed lady, that she lived for others and reckoned not the sacrifice at which she often had to minister to the needs of the sick or the poor. Her During the terrible diphtheria epidemic which swept the city over forty years ago, Mrs. Garland did yeoman service. Without a thought of self, she threw herself into the fight against the disease whose ravages left many a home desolate and to her untiring vigilance and unceasing effort in the face of odds that must have overwhelmed one less fearless many a child owed its life.

It was not strange that underlying those noble characteristics of mind and heart was the spirit born of faith in God and therefore all-sustaining. When, some forty-two years ago, the noted evangelists, Bromley and Hutchings conducted a series of services in St. John's, the late Mrs. Garland gave her life to God and consecrated her life to his service. Her faith was no mere matter of form; its genuineness was demonstrated by every act of her daily life. Being herself without children, she was ever solicitous for the welfare of the poor and parentless and now that she has laid down her burden and passed within the veil, her reward must be in hearing those words of Sacred Commendation "well done thou good and faithful servant."

The deceased leaves to mourn her loss her ever devoted life-partner, one sister, Mrs. Mary O. Sparkes, one brother, Joseph J. Garland, both residing in Lynn, Mass., and a very large circle of friends.

The funeral takes place on Sunday at 2.30 p.m. from her late residence, 32 Mullock St.—COM.

JAMES A. KING.

A promising young man and well-known resident of the city, James A. King, passed to his eternal rest yesterday at the early age of twenty-eight, after a few months' illness, bravely borne with Christian resignation, at the Sanatorium, where nurses and doctors extended kindly treatment and did all that was possible to lighten the burden—a kindness that is appreciated by his parents and many friends.

The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. William King of Beaulieu and was educated at the Methodist College, leaving there to enter the firm of Ayre & Sons where he early won recognition. From there he went into business with Mr. George Jones; he was also a partner in the general store of Jones and King in his native town. He rendered valuable service to both firms and won many friends, who sympathize with his fond parents bereft of a good son. But it was in the Great War he rendered the greatest service, for when the call of King and Country came—James King was one of the brave young men who went overseas and withstood the trials and hardships of the war and was selected to take special training in artillery engineering because of his marked ability, and he returned to help in the building up of his native land.

He leaves besides a fond father and mother, two brothers, John and Macpherson, and two sisters, May and Beatrice, at home. Kind sympathy is expressed to the family by many friends who feel the loss of one who was so pleasant in manner and exemplary in conduct. The loss is felt keenly but "the Lord's will be done," and the great consolation is in knowing that father, mother, sisters, brothers and friends can meet once more on the happy resurrection morn.

A Reminder

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—Will you please afford me space in your widely read paper to say a few words as a reminder?

In a couple of weeks we will again have the annual Collection for the good Christian Brothers taken up at the different Catholic Churches in the City. Therefore, I would take this opportunity of reminding our good people, and especially the ex-pupils of St. Patrick's Hall and Holy Cross Schools of their responsibility in this respect.

If we but look around us to-day, we will see—not only in our own country, but in the great Dominion of Canada, the United States and other parts—numbers of ex-pupils of these schools filling remunerative positions of respect and responsibility. And many of these will agree with me when I say that were it not for the coming amongst us of this noble order, the Irish Christian Brothers, they would never have the chance to fit themselves for these positions.

Many of our more prosperous citizens can enjoy their comfortable and luxurious homes, and give the Christian Brothers, to a great extent, credit for their success in life.

We all must know that the greatest drawback to the Newfoundlanders at home and abroad, is the regrettable lack of education. Our people have proven their worth—not only in the great World War, but also in the United States, Canada and elsewhere—but when the chance for promotion comes, many of our men must take a back seat and hand their heads for the want of a little learning.

Large numbers of ex-pupils of St. Patrick's Hall and Holy Cross Schools have left their native land—some through choice, but the great majority being compelled—to make their homes in the great republic of the U.S.A. and Canada. Many of them, through the splendid training received in their school days, have made good; and for their success is there any one more anxious than the Masters?

To the many Christian Brothers, boys in and around New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Roxbury, South Boston, Cambridge, Montreal, the great West and other places, I say: "Be sure and have YOUR name in the list of subscribers to the Brothers' Collection this year."

There is no need for me to dwell on the wonderful work of this noble Order since their coming to Newfoundland nearly fifty years ago. There is a most noble work, the education—both secular and religious—of the young, and especially the children of the poor.

Then, in a couple of weeks we will have an opportunity of showing our appreciation of the great work of these grand men.

The better educated the people, the more prosperous will be our country. Realizing the heavy expense in connection with the up-keep of the schools, etc. let us, with the help of our old schoolmates abroad, make this year's collection "The Best Yet."

Hoping that I have not taken too much of your valuable space, and thanking you in anticipation, I remain

Address and Reply

AND WHICH EXPLAINS FOR IT—SELF—AMICUS—HALLOWEEN—
1923.

To Rev. H. V. Whitehouse,
Rector of St. James' Parish,
Carbonear.

Rev. and Dear Sir—As citizens of this town we have heard with feelings of sorrow that you are leaving us after a brief period of five years on account of a promotion to a larger sphere in the Master's vineyard. We desire to assure you of our high appreciation of your valuable services rendered during that period in all the functions of community life. We extend to you our best wishes for your future welfare and assure you a hearty welcome whenever you desire to renew old friendships. Please accept the accompanying purse of gold as an appreciation of your sojourn amongst us, and trusting you will keep a little corner of your memory green of all you loved in our old Carbonear, we feel sure that our sympathy and mutual love cannot better be expressed than in the following quotation. Among other beautiful sentiments of the author of "The Country Parson, who once had an experience like yours and wrote, "When we asunder part,
It gives us inward pain;
But we shall still be joined in heart,
—And hope to meet again."
Signed on behalf of citizens,
M. J. HAWKER,
HUGH CAMERON,
EDWARD P. GOFF,
Presentation Committee.

Dear Friends—In this endeavouring to express my heartfelt thanks for your valuable gift and kind wishes, I am conscious of the fact that these words do not adequately express all that I would fain say. But this at least, my heart tells me that I must proclaim that all the while I have lived in Carbonear I have been treated by all denominations with more generous kindness than I had any right to expect. This alone must forever make the memory of dear old Carbonear a very pleasant one to me. You have all characteristically joined in again to do me this honour and pleasure upon my departure from amongst you. I trust God will bless and prosper you for your goodness towards me. To forget you would be to show myself ingrate, to think affectionately of you is my bounden duty and a real joy.
Good-bye, dear friends, and thank you from the bottom of my heart, for I can never forget you, as I am sure that you will never forget me. "God be with you till we meet again."
Yours very sincerely,
HARRY V. WHITEHOUSE,
Late Rector St. James' Parish,

watched. The section of the Education Act providing for the medical examination of schools was a most beneficent and far-reaching reform. One result has been to make the public realize the importance of dentistry, and it is hoped that before long we may be free from the stigma of being the nation with the worst teeth. Meanwhile our responsibilities are rapidly growing, as the population is increasing at the rate of, say, two hundred and fifty thousand per annum, so that 1930 will show an increase of two million five hundred thousand compared with an increase of two millions at the end of the last census period (1920). It must be remembered, however, that this covered the war, during which births fell a million and a half owing to the absence of the men. But it must also be remembered that although the number of babies who are long in learning to behave like other children of their age." Dr. Eric Fritchard, Professor McIlroy, and other experts declare that the health and prospects of many infants would be improved if those responsible for their upbringing had a better conception of their mentality. Dr. Thomson has endeavoured to furnish a guide that will enable mothers to understand their babies better. He shows in detail what a child should be able to do at its various stages, and how backward children should be trained. It is an excellent little book, but perhaps professional modesty forbids the author from saying that the first step in dealing with a defective or backward child is to obtain the advice of a doctor who understands the causes. Malnutrition is the cause of most infantile diseases. An irritable or nervous infant, or one who is not quick in the uptake, often owes its condition to the absence of some constituent in its food, which, when supplied, turns the baby into a normal individual.

The training of backward children involves ceaseless care and attention, and Dr. Thomson concludes by quoting St. Paul on endurance and happiness, Romans v. 3. A saying that might well be applied to the whole subject of national health. He quotes from the Twentieth Century New Testament: "We know that trouble produces endurance, and endurance stability of character, from which springs hopefulness—a hopefulness which never disappoints." The authorized Version reads: "Participation worketh patience and patience experience, and experience hope." I do not know which translation is the more correct, but I prefer the old-fashioned one.

It longer life is the chief human ideal, we certainly have every reason for hope. The nation is striving hard. Even the consumption of alcoholic drinks has fallen by about two-thirds since 1900. Nevertheless, my correspondent's criticism is justified. We cannot hope for a really healthy nation until the people are properly housed.

We Live Longer Than We Did

Lord Riddell, in John O'London's Weekly, in his article on Body and Mind has written me a number of letters suggesting that while we spend large sums of money in trying to cure diseases, we are really behindhand in taking steps to prevent them. My correspondents are particularly so in the deplorable conditions in various parts of the country, and allege that if this could be remedied we should have far less sickness. It is, of course, impossible to deny the truth of these statements. Everyone knows that damp, dark,

ITS HEALTH AND VIM INTO WOMEN

Says Mrs. MacPherson of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

London, Ontario. "I was always and the least exertion would put me out for a day or two. I had a lump on the top of my head, in the nape of my neck, and when I could not get up without a headache, and when I could not sleep well and was nervous at the least noise, I keep house, but I wash the dishes without any afterwards. A friend living in the States told me what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for her. I began to take it. With the first bottle I felt brighter and got so I could wash and sweep without having a headache. Later I became regular in my monthly terms, I have no lumps all told and am now well. I can truly say that your vegetable medicine cannot be beaten for health and vim into a woman. Mrs. JAMES H. MACPHERSON, 125 St. Brantford, Ont. If you are suffering from a displacement of the bowels, backache, or any form of female weakness write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., 253 Centre Street, Lowell, Mass. Private Text-Book upon "All the Peculiarities of Women." 10c.

insanitary houses and overcrowding are prejudicial to the health and well-being of the occupants, and are therefore a public burden as well as a national disgrace. These letters, however, have led me to reflect upon what has been achieved in the improvement of health during the past seventy years.

The results are certainly remarkable, as will be seen by the following figures which I have had prepared by an expert.

To begin with, in order to show the improvement of the task. Babies have been born in the United Kingdom during the past four years, roughly speaking, at the rate of two per minute, or, say, one million per annum, except in 1920, when the figure was considerably over a million. Last year it was less.

In 1854 the mortality amongst children before reaching the age of one year was 164 of every thousand males and 135 of every thousand females born. The mortality had been reduced in 1919 to 120 and 88 respectively. It is still falling. The provisional figures for 1922 are males 90 and females 89, amazing statistics as compared with those of 1854. This and lessened mortality at later ages have considerably altered the expectations of life at birth. In 1854 it was, for males, 39.91 years, and females 41.85 years. Whereas in 1922 it was, for males, 54.6 years, and females 58.8 years. Increase for males 14.69 years and for females 16.75 years.

During the later ranges of life, as might be expected, the improvement is not so marked. In 1854, at the age of 35 years, expectation of life was, for males, 29.40 years, and females 30.59 years.

Although much still remains to be done, and the nation may have been slower in realizing its responsibilities, this is a substantial achievement. Infantile mortality has been reduced by more careful treatment of expectant mothers, improved obstetrics, and the educational work of the infant welfare clinics. For example, the old-fashioned feeding bottle, with its long tube full of deadly germs, killed off babies like flies. Furthermore, although mankind has been eating for thousands of years, little was known until recently concerning dietetics and the chemistry of the human body. In particular, we were specially ignorant concerning the requirements of infants who could not be fed in the natural way, which, experts agree, is the most beneficial. Even to-day a battle is raging in the medical world concerning the merits of various classes of milk, dried and otherwise, as food for babies.

However, we are likely before long to have more reliable information on the subject of infantile feeding, health, and mortality, as an exhaustive inquiry is in progress at the Glasgow University, under the supervision of Dr. Noel Paton. While due attention is being paid to the rearing of infants, the health of school children is also being carefully watched. The section of the Education Act providing for the medical examination of schools was a most beneficent and far-reaching reform. One result has been to make the public realize the importance of dentistry, and it is hoped that before long we may be free from the stigma of being the nation with the worst teeth. Meanwhile our responsibilities are rapidly growing, as the population is increasing at the rate of, say, two hundred and fifty thousand per annum, so that 1930 will show an increase of two million five hundred thousand compared with an increase of two millions at the end of the last census period (1920). Prohibition

There have been asked on more than one occasion why we do not publish in favour of prohibition. It has been proven that prohibition is either a success, or a general failure in this country or elsewhere. To our mind there is as vast a difference between prohibition and temperance as there is between a man who is sober and a man who is drunk. What is the difference between a man who is sober and a man who is drunk? It is that condition he is fit for his work, but rather a menace. But prohibition made people sober? It remedied all the evils which were told it would, or has it been responsible for greater? Brigadier Hughes, Sup. of the Penitentiary Branch of the Department of Justice, told in an address before a gathering under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society last week, that prohibition was the cause for the dope traffic as well as the bootlegging. He said the authorities had any trouble with the traffic until prohibition came in. He witnessed similar conditions in the country. "Moonshine" was widely known to our people five years ago. White-day in some sections according to reports, every house has a still, and this is the greatest curse to the people of the country has ever known. —Western Star

RECORD OF WORLD CHAMPION MOTHER.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—"I wouldn't take a million dollars for my experience, and I wouldn't give a nickel for any more."

It isn't a war-wrecked veteran who expresses that sentiment this time, but Mrs. Josephine K. Ormsby, the "world's champion mother." The Siamese twins 20 years ago were no more famous to frequenters of side shows than Mrs. Ormsby. In seven years she gave birth to 14 children, including two pairs of twins, a set of triplets and a set of quadruplets. Six of the children survive to-day.

The quadruplets, born September 2, 1901, of course clinched the family's place in history. They were the attraction which thousands paid their dimes to behold and won the title of champion for the mother. Physicians said they would not live, but the entire quartet is here to-day.

Mrs. Ormsby with two daughters and two small grandchildren lives in a cottage about the far outskirts of Chicago, hidden away as quietly as if it were not the home of a national celebrity. They have a flock of geese, chickens, geese, turkeys and a gander.

"It made life pretty hard to take care of all the children, but they were sent from God and they are a comfort to me," says Mrs. Ormsby, a gray and wrinkled woman of 55, turning through the family album. "I was married in 1884. I wouldn't marry like I did if I had it to do over again. Mr. Ormsby and I didn't get along happily, and he left me just before the 'quads' came. I have had lots of chances to marry since I heard he was dead, but I never considered any of them."

"The year after we were married the first baby came, a boy. The next year we had twins, Joseph and Josephine. The next year it was a girl. Then came Daisy, Elizabeth and Mary Alice. Daisy died last year, and these are her babies living with me now."

After them came the triplets, George Dewey, Carter Harrison and Helen Gould. Next was a boy, and then in 1901 came the 'quads,' Edith Viola, John Studebaker, Theodore Roosevelt and William Hearst. George, Helen and the 'quads' are all I have left.

"The paper told the other day, Ma, about a man offering to sell his baby for $50,000," interrupts Edith.

"Well, I wouldn't take $50,000 for any of mine, or for any of these grand babies," says Mrs. Ormsby. "But I don't think it's a good idea to have such big families, and I wouldn't choose it if I had my life to live over. But they're not going to take any of mine away from me."

The Ormsby family had been in modest circumstances before the father left in the early summer of 1901. His departure left them destitute. The quadruplets overnight brought fame and fortune. Mrs. Ormsby had a four-passenger baby carriage built and promenade in state. Finally it appeared that everyone interested had paid to see the 'quads' and poverty overtook the family.

The children were placed in an orphanage, in spite of the mother's protests, until about seven years ago. Then they returned home. The four quadruplets show more variation in appearance than is common among twins, and Edith, the smallest, is less than five feet tall.

SIDE TALKS.

GOD MUST HAVE FIXED THEM.

As I passed my neighbor's home to-day I was greeted by the ten year old son of the household. "Why aren't you in school?" I asked.

"Mary's got the measles and we're quarantined," he said. "I have to stay out doors, so I won't catch them, but mother stays with Mary all the time and she's not afraid. She never catches anything we have. I guess mothers are fixed not to catch things."

A Special Immunity From Measles. As I went along I pondered on that last remark.

"Mothers are fixed not to catch things." Perhaps that is the answer to the question we so often ask: "How do mothers ever do so much and endure so much?" Perhaps they are "fixed" to work all day and then sit up half the night with a sick baby.

Fixed to act as arbiter in endless childish quarrels and then bear in silence the irritability of a tired husband at the end of the day's work.

Fixed to darn, moth holes in her own coat that was new four winters ago so that Mary can have a new dress for the senior ball.

And From Selfishness. Fixed to forget the throbbing of her own aching head in toiling wearily up stairs with a dainty tray set with choice viands for Jennie in bed with a cough.

Fixed to forgive and forget selfishness and ingratitude, to give freely and ask nothing in return.

To pick up the broken threads of life when death breaks the family circle, and to hide a broken heart under a smile that "carries on" for those who are left.

And From Less of Courage. Yes, that must be the answer. I do believe a special grace is granted to mothers to keep them immune from the discouragements and weaknesses that beset the human race.

There is something of the divine in mother-love and endurance and forgiveness, something just beyond the power of the rest of mankind to compass.

"In the strength of Jehovah she comes. Her faith in the sword and her thrift is the shield of the nation. And her courage is greater than drums."

League of Nations

MUST OBEY SWISS TRAFFIC LAW.

GENEVA.—In no European town are the regulations on circulation, both for roads and sidewalks more strictly enforced than in Geneva. M. Hanotaux, France's representative for the League of Nations and Quinones de Leon, Spain's representative, had this fact brought to their attention the other day. They were so deep in a discussion that when crossing a street, they came to a halt and continued their argument in the middle of the road, heedless of the desperate gesticulations by the nearest policeman.

"Here, you two, do you suppose these sidewalks are made for dogs only?" asked the officer as he came up to them.

Both men came back to reality with a shock. "Do you know whom you are addressing?" The officer laid a hand on each.

"I should worry, the sidewalk for yours."

"But, Monsieur, I represent France on the Council of the League of Nations."

"And I, Spain, Monsieur." A broad grin passed over the policeman's face as he replied: "You can represent what you like, but I, I represent the law." The two delegates stepped on to the sidewalk without further discussion.

A QUESTION OF AGE.

"A man's no older than he feels," I say, some forty times a day; but my old rusty springs and wheels show many signs of giving way. When I was younger I could fall and not be lamed in back or knee; as spring as a rubber ball, no accident could mar my glee. But now if I fall down the stairs I'm sure to dislocate my back, and if I stumble over chairs, a lot of ribs begin to crack. I sometimes slide on orange peels, and bust my dome, but still I cry, "A man's no older than he feels," which is a sort of truthful lie. I'd have you think I'm feeling young, and right side up, and good as new, and so, you see, I'm giving tongue to that which is not strictly true. And yet it's true enough, I guess, that I'm no older than I feel, and if my feelings I confess, the tale would make your senses reel. Ah, well, old bones and hully chee, the fact's too sad for tongue or pen, but rusty graybeards hate to see themselves outclassed by younger men. They hate to think that they are done, mere idle dotards on the stage, they'd keep their places in the sun, and so repudiate their age. I feel my sluggish blood congeal, and still I cry, in accents bold, "Men are no older than they feel, and I'm a sorrel three-year-old."

Firing Squad

PUNISHED 346 BRITISH DURING WORLD WAR.

LONDON, Oct. 19—(A.P.)—Out of the many millions of men which comprised the British army during the late war only 346 officers and men so failed in their duty as to justify their execution by the firing squad.

Three British officers were shot—two for desertion and one for murder. One man was sentenced to death three times, each for desertion. Twice he was reprieved but he could not stand the water of blood and mud of the trenches so he deserted again and the third time he was shot.

Forty other men, after being sentenced to death were reprieved only to offend again and be shot. In 265 cases the offence against the military code was desertion, though 37 men were executed for murder. Eighteen were shot for cowardice, three for mutiny and two for sleeping on duty. In all 3,060 death sentences were passed.

English Shun Poor Shoes

LONDON.—London stores will no longer exhibit cheap, shoddy and ill-fitting shoes; in their stead will be found the latest perfectly modelled lasts of Paris.

The shoe makers of England are generally agreed that the public avoid the shops that sell ill-fitting, shoddy footwear and would rather pay more money for shoes that wear well without causing physical disabilities.

The result of the action of many manufacturers in putting cheap shoes on the market to meet the reduced spending power of the public, is that there are huge stocks of these shoes on hand which it is impossible to sell.

St. John's Picked as Rum-Runners Mecca

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Representatives of an English firm, who propose to franchise liquor from this port, are looking for waterfront premises. Transhipment charges on liquor in transit are much lower in Newfoundland than at St. Pierre, and it is understood that several parties engaged in the liquor trade will abandon the French colony for this port.

There are now seven thousand cases of whiskey in bond here with an additional ten thousand cases on route. The Newfoundland Government collects a dollar and seventy-five cents on every case of whiskey landed here in transit.—Montreal Star.

England Lacks Dentists

LONDON, Oct. 18, (A. P.)—There are 3,000,000 children in England who need dental treatment, and it has been said recently by an insurance concern that bad teeth are the direct cause of most of the general debility and minor illnesses which exist to-day. England has only 117 dentists to every million of population which is far from enough.

Unless there is a reprieve the city hawker will become extinct because since 1911 no fresh licences have been issued to hawkers and many of the hawkers of that date are dead or too infirm to carry on their trade. At death, the hawker's badge is reclaimed by the police and not returned to anyone else.
The reason for the withdrawal of the badge is stated to be the advent of the wide-beamed motor buses and taxicabs which are considered to have made the hawker's trade a danger to himself and others.

HOW CANADIAN CORPS SPENT ARMISTICE DAY IN THE CITY OF MONS.

Boche Driven Out and Historic City Occupied in Early Hours of November 11, 1918.—Determining Reasons Why Armistice was Best for Allied Armies.

(Written for The Canadian Press by J. F. B. LIVESAY.)

Five years ago! And yet the day is more vivid now than it was two or three years ago. It stands out boldly in the faded proportion, the dramatic ending of fifty-one months of agony. At the time the significance of Armistice Day was clouded by many things. The army ceased to function as the all-in-all and the politicians came in to their own. "Cessation of hostilities"—a mighty phrase that was to issue in the healing virtues of peace. Unhappily it was but a phrase, there has been no cessation as if anything more embittered, more of an armed camp, nearer by the long strides of these five years to disruption and overwhelm, to the perishment of civilization in the cauldron of anarchy.

News of the Armistice was celebrated in many capitals: demonstrations not devoid of hysteria, so sudden the relief from the strain of years, so bright shone the sun as the war clouds rolled away. But for the fortunate Canadian soldier no place at all was so fitting for its celebration than the historic city of Mons, entered by troops of the 3rd Canadian Division, Maj-General A. C. MacDonnell, in the early hours of the morning, and where at eleven o'clock in the Grande Place the burgomaster presided. Keys of the city to Brig. Gen. J. A. Clark of the 1st Brigade, all of whose battalions had taken part in the assault, namely the Royal Canadian Regiment, Princess Patricia's Light Infantry the 42nd Battalion (5th Royal Highlanders of Montreal) and the 49th Battalion of Edmonton. Pipers of the 42nd (5th Royal Highlanders of Montreal, wearers of the Hackle Highland Scarlet as being affiliated with the Black Watch) led the march past because its troops had been the first to enter that city.

NEWS OF THE ARMISTICE.

Further to the south and the east the 2nd Canadian Division, Maj-General Sir Henry Burstall, whose troops of the 4th Brigade, Brig. Gen. G. E. McCraig in line (Central Ontario) had pushed forward and seized the heights east of Mons—those formidable hills so earnestly scanned by the British Army in August, 1914, for signs of the debouching enemy. This marked the furthest eastern advance of the Allies and it was ten minutes past seven that morning that Brigade Headquarters received this message:—"Hostilities will cease at 11 a.m., Nov. 11. Troops will stand fast by the line reached at that time, which will be reported to Divisional Headquarters immediately. Defensive precautions will be maintained. There will be no intercourse with the enemy of any description."

Throughout all the fighting that followed its attack at Arras on Aug. 26th, right through to Mons, a period of most bitter battle and victory dearly won, the Canadian Corps was attached to First Army, forming its right wing. The official narrative of First Army thus records the final day:—"November 11—During this day the 2nd Canadian Division had gained the high ground south and east of Mons and were forcing the Germans to withdraw. At dawn on Nov. 11th the 3rd Canadian Division entered the town and a line was established east of it. Fighting had been carried on all that night and dead German soldiers lay in the street. The last round fired by the Canadian artillery had shot off the arm of a German staff officer in a Headquarters Chateau by Hill 85 to the east of Mons.

"Early on Nov. 11 Canadian Corps Headquarters were established in the Grande Place at Mons and the first message received was to the effect that the armistice was signed and that hostilities were to cease at 11 o'clock. Sir Donald's Hale's last communication stated: "Canadian troops of the First Army have captured Mons."

OFFICIAL WELCOME TO MONS.

The College of the Burgomaster and Alderman issued the following proclamation:—"After 51 months of the suffering caused by the inhuman, the ruthless and inhuman occupation of the German Army, the City of Mons is at length delivered by the heroism of the British Army, which, at the hour of the Armistice, completes its series of victories in the identical place where, on Aug. 23rd, 1914, it first engaged the enemy.

"The 3rd Canadian Division, at cost of heavy sacrifices, entered the city at 8 o'clock in the morning, thus avenging by a striking success the retreat of 1914. Honor and thanks be to it!

"The Armistice is signed. The German Army has capitulated: brutal force is destroyed; justice and right triumph; Belgium is strengthened and fortified by the terrible ordeal she has passed through.

"Our people have supported with dignity and courage the sufferings of the occupation. We are convinced that in this hour of joy and triumph they will observe a like restraint of self-command.

"We depend on the goodwill of all to maintain order. We also ask our people to return as soon as possible to work. Losses inflicted on us by war are great, and the co-operation of all our goodwill, all our energy, is necessary to heal over quickly the wounds it has caused.

"In this solemn hour our infinite gratitude goes to the Allied Armies, and, among them, from the bottom of our heart, to our valiant Belgian Army and to the King, its heroic Chief.

"Long live the King! Long live the Belgian Nation!"

WHY MONS WAS TAKEN.

No such welcome indeed was possible anywhere and at any other time as that of the loyal Walloons of Mons to the Canadian Corps. A wonderful occasion, reaching its climax when in the afternoon the Corps Commander, Sir Arthur Currie, made his formal entry accompanied by many military notables. A great deal of rubbish was shortly to be whisked about among the disgruntled and disappointed in Carad and London about unnecessary waste of life in the final assault on Mons. It was a matter of outposts, the defense being confined to a rear-guard of enemy machine-gunners; gallant fellows enough—and to bombardment of our advancing troops by enemy batteries withdrawn to the east of Mons. Our total casualties for the period from the Battle of Amiens to the Armistice, Aug. 8-Nov. 11, were 46,405—the heavy price of victory. In the great battle of Cambrai, Sept. 27-Oct. 12, they were 15,106, but in the final month of the war when the beaten enemy was seeking vainly to extricate his armies and re-establish himself on the strong line of the Meuse, casualties of the Canadian Corps fell to 4,419.

The strategic value of Mons and of the hills east of the city is hard to overstate. Even until the last hours of the Armistice hung in doubt. It was vital to capture this position. As Sir Arthur Currie himself has stated:—"The reason Mons was taken was that we obeyed the orders of Marshal Poch that we should go on until we were ordered to stop. That is a thing that means much for Canada. It was a proud thing for our race that we were able to finish the war where we began it, and that we, the young whelps of the old lion, were able to take the ground lost in 1914."

THE ARMISTICE ALWAYS IN DOUBT.

Among men in the front line trenches the Armistice was something of a myth—too good to be true. The enemy before them still fought stoutly; there was still a heavy enemy artillery concentration. On the immediate front of the Canadian Corps that complete breakdown had not manifested itself as it was doing in parts of the line further south. Early on the Sunday afternoon the battalion mess of the Princess Patricia's, then holding the forward line on the fringe of Mons, refused to believe the news told them that the Armistice would be proclaimed next day. Furthermore the terms of the Armistice were then unknown. No one knew of the complete and humiliating surrender. No one could then conceive that the enemy was laying down his arms unconditionally. There was a decided feeling that the politicians were taking a mischievous hand, and now that the enemy was on the run, he must not be allowed to recover himself under cover of an armistice he would disavow so soon as he had re-ordered his armies.

The habit of four years is not easily broken. Habituated to war, its miseries and its perils, the soldier in the field could not at a dozen hours' notice readjust his imagination to its cessation. Two impressions of that day bite deep into memory. One was the disconcerting, the bewildering pool of silence into which one slipped as "Cease Fire" sounded. One's ears ached for the accustomed clamor of battle. The other was the twinkling lights that broke out in Mons as the short winter afternoon wore to its close, an indecent and perilous display of light that for the moment shocked one's feelings.

WAS THE ARMISTICE PREMATURE?

There is a final consideration. Was the Armistice premature? Did we let the Boche off too easy? From the perspective of five years, from the vantage ground of knowledge with before us spread the picture what is now going on in the Balkans would seem that it might have been better to have pushed the hammer over the Meuse and the Rhine and thus have marched on into Belgium there to dictate terms of peace. The Americans were willing and anxious. But their collective losses had been trivial in comparison with that of Britain and France, with that in ratio the Canadian Corps. There was a unanimous wish that the enemy should make a stand long enough on the Meuse stem defeat until winter sealed the desolate trenches. Then, in the spring, with ardor reawakened throughout the Fatherland, he would hope to sell to the Allies at a vastating figure the price of victory. It was not worth it in the scale of men's life. We had paid dear enough. Beyond that, again, is the fact that the Allies themselves, always expecting the fresh American levies, were by now almost exhausted. Kevel to that marvelous series of victories that marked those campaigns months, the British Army was busily night exhaustion. Far in the advance of its railroads, with another transportation everywhere breaking down, it had already become a serious problem how to supply the advancing armies with food and munitions. There was not much punch left. The Armistice was quite opportune.

appointed mate on board of one of Slade's vessels. His practical knowledge of seamanship, and navigation, that he had acquired during the years he served as a midshipman in the Navy, was quickly recognized, and in 1830 he was given command of the brigantine "Thomas and Sarah". He held this charge till 1832, when he was promoted as captain of the "Robert and James".

In 1839, he was captain of the "William". In 1840, he was again given charge of the "Robert and James", and later, in 1845, the "Dorothy". He was still captain of one of Slade's vessels, when in the spring of 1861, like a bolt from the blue, there came the announcement that "Slade & Co." had declared insolvent. This meant a serious loss to many, including Captain Field, for by it he lost his position as captain, together with several hundred pounds on Slade's books.

Because of his recognized ability he was promoted to a clerkship in the office. Before he left England for Trinity, a captain of one of Slade's vessels had spent some time at Trinity gave Field a letter of introduction to a Miss Elizabeth Newhook, whom the captain knew very well at Trinity. Upon his arrival Field called upon Miss Newhook and presented the captain's introduction. He spent a pleasant evening at Miss Newhook's home, and was assured by her parents and herself of a welcome there at any time, I am not in a position to say how many times he did call between the time 1881; but the following entry in the old church books: "March 27th, 1881, married George Slade Field, Bachelor, of Pool, Dorset, England, and Elizabeth Newhook of Trinity." EARLY HISTORY OF HEART'S CASE. My recent visit to Random Sound has awakened in me an interest in the history of some of the places and people there; as far as it is recorded in the old church books, I have looked through those books, and herewith, I give a copy of the entries that I have found there of baptisms, marriages and burials of people in that locality. The majority of entries are in connection with Heart's Case, and one with Gooseberry Cove. In addition to these entries that I gave last week, I now give the following. They may at least awaken interesting memories even though they do not supply any valuable information. The persons, whose names appear most often are John and Mary Baker, of Heart's Case. There is no record of their marriage; but, probably, that is because they were married before the church records were begun. The following children are recorded in the Baptismal Register (between the dates 1785 and 1805) as those of John and Mary Baker of Heart's Case: viz. Nancy, Mary, Elizabeth, Henry, John, Joseph, James, Thomas, and Sarah. In the Burial Register is the following entry: "1807, interred, John Baker, Planter, of Heart's Case."

The following entries are found in the Marriage Register: 1813, married, James Hiscock of Heart's Case and Julia Brenneck of Bonaventure. 1823—Married, Richard Sevior of Rydels Harbour, and Catherine Delaney of Heart's Case. 1850—Married, Philip White of Heart's Case and Susannah Pond of Salmon Cove. 1859—Married, James Baker of Heart's Case, and Susannah Pond of Beland's Bay. 1859—Married, John Soward of Gooseberry Cove, and Mary Short of Hart's Harbour. 1864—Married, John Ryan of Ship Cove, and Hannah Farrell of Heart's Case.

I have reasons to believe that John Baker went to Heart's Case from Trinity at an early date in his life. TO THE CONSUMING PUBLIC: I have been recently appointed Newfoundland Representative for the Walter M. Lowney Co., of Boston, Mass., and ask you, one and all to co-operate with me in placing on the market once again, the finest chocolates ever imported into this Dominion.

were the favorite in this country, but owing to excessive increase in raw material, together with a drastic jump in American exchange, the Lowney firm was compelled some years ago to withdraw their local connections, and consequently some Canadian houses grasped the opportunity, spent dollars in advertising, and through the medium of a good representative one of them stepped into the gap vacated by the good old Lowney firm.

Now, however, the clouds have lifted, the world looks more like normal, and the chocolates unsurpassed, the packages most beautiful, and the prices exceedingly reasonable are three distinct reasons for your renewing friendship with an old acquaintance.

BAPTISMS A HUNDRED YEARS AGO. 1823—Roxanna, child of Joseph and Grace Gover. 1828—Amy, child of Robert and Mary Sexton. 1828—George, child of John and Mary Crocker. (A marginal note to this entry: "I stood Godfather", W. AN INTERESTING WILL, AND PROBATE. I am in possession of an old will that is in several respects deeply interesting. It is written in very beautiful legal script, on a sheet of parchment 14 by 19 inches. It begins (as did all such documents until recent date) with the words: "In the name of God, Amen. These words are written in large old English letters with still larger capitals. It is the last will and testament of one William Ivamy, of New Bonaventure, and was made by him in 1806, and witnessed by James Oakley, Mary Lucas, and John Clinch, surrogate. Mr. William Ivamy was one of the early settlers in Bonaventure, and was the maternal great, great grandfather of the present Mr. George Field in Bonaventure. Thus, Mr. George Field's children are in the sixth generation from the said William Ivamy.

The will, however, in itself is not so deeply interesting as is the probate of it, the necessary certificate of which is attached to the will. The money that is dealt with in the will was in the Bank of England, and hence the probate had to be done in England. This was done in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury by C. M. Pearson, Proctor Doctore Commons, and before the Right Honourable Sir John Nicholls Knight, Doctor of Laws, Master, Keeper or Commissary of the Prerogative Court of Canterbury. This document was issued by "Charles, by Divine Providence Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, and metropolitan. . . . in the seventh year of our translation." It is signed by three Deputy Registrars (of unreasonable names), and to it is attached the official seal of the Archbishop of Canterbury's Prerogative Court. William Ivamy's brother, John Ivamy, Esq., was the sole executor of the will, which was sworn "under two hundred pounds", and stamped, and fulfilled accordingly. It is a dignified, and a formidable looking document, and one cannot fail to recognize in it something distinctly English. N.B.—By referring to church history I find that "Charles, the Archbishop of Canterbury referred to in the probate, was the Most Rev. Charles Manners Sutton. TO-MORROW (SUNDAY, NOVEMBER NINTH) REMEMBRANCE DAY. "In Flanders field where poppies grew between the crosses row in row That mark our place . . . . . in Flanders field . . . . . in trench and field and many tears we shed. We who in dying, shall not ever die if only you in honour of the slain shall surely see we did not die in vain." Wear a poppy to-day—lest you forget.

A LOST OPPORTUNITY. Seeing some pressed green leaves in the pocket book of a friend at the Gairland Hotel not long ago, I asked him what they were, and where he got them. He told me that some nine years ago he and his family were at the Gap of Dunloagh, in Ireland. At the Gap there is a small bridge, and my friend was told by his guide that any wish expressed by him as he passed over the bridge would be granted. This was such an unusually generous reward, promised for such a small expenditure of effort, that the assurance of it quite took away his breath for a while; and by the time he had made up his mind as to how many of the thousand-and-ones things necessary, that he would like to wish for, he was over the bridge, and the opportunity was gone forever. So he gathered up the leaves from a tree near by to remind himself of a lost opportunity to settle once and for ever, by a simple wish, at least one half of the worries that still beset him in business and in private life in Newfoundland. There was something else, too, which at the time he might have had for the wish expressed, plus a shilling or two; but he must tell that part of the story himself.

recorded in the old Registers since 1785; the marriage service has been held in the church with two exceptions. Even when there was no clergyman in the parish, and the service was conducted by a Justice of Peace, or some other authorized layman, it was conducted in the church. Of the two exceptions that I refer to, one was during Rev. W. Bullock's incumbency the other during the incumbency of Rev. Thomas Wood. Re the one in the Personage in Mr. Bullock's time; the following explanation is given in the margin of the marriage entry: "This marriage was solemnized in the personage, owing to the fact that the Church Key had been mislaid." (This could not happen to-day in Trinity, as the church door is never locked, and there is no key to mislay.) The other one in the personage in Rev. Thomas Wood's time, is accounted for by the following marginal entry: "The rector and his assistant being confined to his home through sickness, these persons were married in the personage." To illustrate what I have written about marriages in church by a layman, I give the following entry—"1787, Married James Sinox of the Parish of Lobeth, County of Dorset, and Silene Honore of this District. The marriage was read by Thomas Clifford (Church Clerk) in the church, between 9 and 10 o'clock in the morning."

There is one entry of marriage, with the following marginal note: "The man who was married refused to pay the fee of the Church Clerk." This man was within his rights in doing this, as such a fee was largely voluntary. Yet he was more or less mean about it, as the Clerk had opened the Church for the occasion, and had made such necessary arrangements as was helpful to the comfort of the wedding party; and very likely he had rang the bell for such was the custom to those days. Like the others who neglected to pay the Parson's fee, they have long ago gone to their rest, but the marginal notes in the Church Book (like the name of Pontius Pilate in the creed) associates them for all time with an action that is not to their credit. My experience has been, that a man who is thus intentionally mean at the time of his marriage, does not improve much by the time of death.

NEWELL OR NEVILL? My several references to the Newell family have resulted in a member of the family sending me the information that one of the Nevills in the United States is in possession of a written pedigree tracing the family descent from Richard Nevill (not Newell) Earl of Warwick (the King Maker). It is easy to see how the name Newell might get corrupted on this side of the water, through confusing the letter V with that of W. I hope to be able to get a copy of the pedigree some day, and to let my readers see it. The name Newell has always been associated with a respect akin to love on my part; and as a descendant, on my mother's side, of the person who first brought the name to Newfoundland, I shall be glad to help readers to it any honor that it has been unintentionally deprived of—though I believe I shall always think of it as Newell, nor shall I, by doing so, think any the less of those who were known by that name; for: "The rank is but the Guinea's Stamp, The man's the gold for 'at'."

esting letters re the crimping machines in general, and the one in my possession in particular. My belief that the one in my possession was once the property of Mrs. or Miss Garland of a hundred and twenty years ago, has been considerably strengthened, and the value of it has been enhanced because of this association. The happy memories of by-gone days, that this (and other) things that I have mentioned have brought to others, have given me more pleasure than I dared to expect in return for my part of the work; and this is as encouraging to me as it is often surprising. Those who have thus helped me, will kindly accept my best thanks, and continue the good work.

The Trinity Benefit Club held its semi-annual meeting in the Parish Hall, on All Saints Day. This meeting is intended only for the payment of dues, and to talk over business to be transacted at the annual meeting on the Feast of the Purification (Feb. 2nd). The Club is in good condition financially.

A correction.—For the word "Note" in my article on Captain Freedy last week, kindly read "Note"; and instead of "Bonavista" in the sentence "the original name of Bonavista" read "Bonaventure." For the benefit of the landsman who does not know the meaning of the word "Note," any fisherman will tell him that it is the noise made by water of the ocean as it rolls in upon a beach, or when it strikes a headland, or a reef of rocks. Every part of the shore formation has its own peculiar sound, which is familiar to the fisherman or seaman and, as in the case of Capt. Freedy in the text, this sound enables him to now just note he is. A Note is a note, but a Note is not necessarily a Note. W. J. L.

To-morrow, November 11th, St. Martin's Day, the Church Lads Brigade celebrates its thirty-second birthday. It was formed by Lt. Col. W. M. Gee on this date 1891. To-day its Companies are doing splendid work throughout the whole of the British Empire. Founded on the principle of "Every lad for Christ" and with the following object: "The advancement of Christ's Kingdom among lads of all classes; the promotion of reverence, discipline, and self-respect and all that tends towards true Christian manliness," this organization for "boys" has survived the ups and downs of thirty-two strenuous years of organization and is now at last firmly established. Our founder, Col. Gee, has passed along the great lone trail, but his glorious work survives, carried on successfully by observing the principles of the founder.

Newfoundland had the honour of enrolling the first Overseas Company in 1892. This was due to Sergt. Harold R. Blackler, whose Regimental Number was No. 1. The late Rt. Rev. Llewellyn Jones, Bishop of Newfoundland, gave the movement his heartiest support. The Charter is dated 18th November, 1892 and A. Co., No. 119, B. Co., No. 708 secured their charters on February 6th, 1898. Hearst's Content Company was organized August 10th, 1910, known officially as St. Mary's Company No. 2004. To the late Major Melville the first C.O., Captain C. Wearing Hayward now of British Columbia who is the oldest officer living, the Rev. J. S. Thompson, the first Chaplain, to Lt. Col. W. H. Franklin, D.S.O., then Capt. Franklin, Major W. R. Warren, now holding the office of Nfld. Prime Minister who joined in 1897, and Lt.-Col. Goodridge supported by the generosity of churchmen and lady friends, the Nfld. Brigade is heavily indebted for its early stage of establishment. The first drill Sergt. was Sergt. George Cockshott of the Nfld. Constabulary, and the first Bandmaster was the veteran member of the Royal Nfld. Regt., Bandmaster Bennett of Bennett's famous band. Amongst the first few lads joining were H. R. Blackler, Alan and George Cane, Walter and Edward Reid, Edward Wills, J. Newman, Fred. C. Grant, Geo. R. Williams, Walter Coffin, John Hussey, Henry Lewis, F. Chislett, Jack Collier, Charlie Goodridge, J. Garland, John Hayward, G. H. Press, Chas. Snow, Chas. Lush, W. Cursey, Larry Moore, Chas. Peters, R. G. Macdonald, William H. Lewis, John Hooley and others.

The first meeting place for drill was in the basement of Springdale St. School, and as Allan Cane says, "the acorn planted has grown into a British oak." Percie Johnson when the Brigade was turned out "of school" saved the day and offered a portion of his premises as a drill shed, and the Brigade does not forget his kindness. In April, 1893 Lady Bowring organized the first tableau and dramatic entertainment for the Brigade's funds. Amongst the performers were the late James Smith, Organist; Misses McKay, Mary Brenner and West; Messrs. W. H. Rennie, W. H. Green, Chas. McKenzie Harvey, Fred L. Marriott also took part in the performance. During the years that followed the Brigade was always maintaining strenuously their motto, "Fight the Good Fight." To Capt. N. Snow, who established with Surgeon Major Herbert Rendell's help and Sir Edgar Bowring's generosity, the first section of the Brass Band, which was increased as the years went by, the Brigade expresses their thanks.

To the firm of Harvey & Co., who placed their old Butterine factory as a drill shed to carry on with and to the senior partner of the firm, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, the Brigade's first Colonel we are thankful for many favours. To Sir Joseph the Brigade is indebted for securing the first C.L.B. Armoury on King's Road. This action cannot be forgotten as it placed the organization on a permanent basis. After many years on King's Road and under Lieut.-Col. Robert G. Rendell's guiding hand with heroic pluck assisted by the late Mrs. R. G. Rendell and many friends, Col. Rendell "burnt his bridges" and determined to build the present and best Church Lads Brigade Armoury in the British Empire at Harvey Road, St. John's, Nfld. Col. R. G. Rendell's pluck and energy was marvellous! The building debt was fully paid off after some years of hard work, and with fifteen hundred dollars to the Brigade's credit in the Bank, the Armoury magnificently equipped—worth forty thousand dollars—he asked leave to retire and turn over his command. Col. Rendell also established the C.L.B. Savings Bank, which is still prosperous and encouraging thrift. He was followed by one of the most experienced officers in the C.L.B., Major Richard F. Goodridge, who was promoted to Lieut.-Col. and who magnificently "carried on" the good work until he had given in all twenty-five years of constant loyal services. Officers come and officers go, each leaving their footprints on the sands of time; slowly but surely by their efforts they have built better than they knew.

Lt.-Col. Walter F. Rendell, C.B.E., is now C.O., and while the Brigade in Nfld. is not over supplied with

Armistice Dance

The G.W.V.A. is unremitting in its efforts to organize the "Armistice Dance" in a manner befitting the occasion. Special attention will be given to unique novelty dances, etc., all of which should go to make a most enjoyable evening. In this connection the "Camouflage and Confetti" dances are being specially looked after, and should prove very popular. Intending patrons are assured of a most pleasant surprise as some of the novelty arrangements are new to St. John's. It is a noteworthy fact that most of the dances held under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. have in the past won many tributes, particularly the function held in April last. Tuesday night's dance promises to eclipse anything held by the Association as yet. The Highlanders Association very generously left standing all its excellent decorations which include a bower over the gallery. The decorations will be supplemented by electrical effects. His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Lady Alardyce, will be in attendance, and it is hoped that the various Allied Consuls will also attend. The Poppy Day collections, which have been received up to the evening of the dance, will be announced. The G. W. V. A. have waived their right to the profits from this dance, and is donating same to its Relief Fund. The ex-Service men who are in possession of uniforms may wear same with full decorations, miniatures with dress, otherwise dress is optional. It is the object of the G. W. V. A. to make the "Armistice Dance" a real success and all who can possibly attend are asked to do so.

Harbor Grace Notes.

The Methodist Sunday School held their annual Rally Day Service on Sunday last at the Sunday School, Conaghan Hall, and was very largely attended by the parents and friends of the children. The different items gone through by the scholars were most interesting and a very enjoyable afternoon was spent by all who attended. Rev. Mr. Harris, Pastor of the Church, was present and delivered a very instructive address, which was followed by a brief one from the Superintendent, Mr. Robt. French.

The S.S. Senef arrived in port on Sunday morning last with a load of fish for one of our fish dealers, and after discharging her cargo, took on board a quantity of fish for St. John's. The Senef left port again on Tuesday.

Miss Clara Mursell, of Little Bay Island arrived in town on Monday, on a visit to her brother, Mr. H. Mursell, tailor at the Bank of Nova Scotia here, and was registered at LeDrew's Hotel during her stay. Miss Mursell returned again by this afternoon's train.

Misses Muriel and Maysie Pike of Wabana, came to town on Saturday last, the former on a week's holiday, and the latter to remain for the winter with her aunt, Mrs. N. Stewart.

Miss Barbara Langmead, of St. John's, who has been visiting town, the guest of Miss Stella LeDrew, returned to the city by this afternoon's train.

Mr. McGrath, representing the New York Cordage Co., was in town during last week, in the interests of that firm.

Mr. Robert Tetterford, Jr., who has been working at Sydney, N.S., during the summer months, returned home by Thursday night's train of last week.

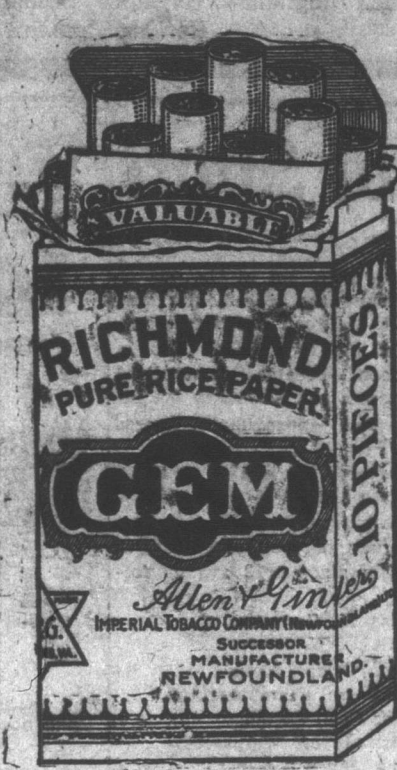

The Boy Scouts are holding their annual "Jumble Sale" to-night—Thursday—in the British Hall. The lads have made a fine collection from their friends and supporters, and we hope that their efforts at the Jumble Sale will prove very successful.

Miss Barbara Langmead, of St. John's, sang a very impressive and beautiful solo, entitled "Babylon," in her usual good style at the evening service, of the Methodist Church on Sunday last, which was greatly appreciated and enjoyed by the large congregation present.

Poppy Day will be observed on Saturday, the 10th inst., and we hope that the "Poppy Girls" of our town will, at the close of the day, have received "worth while" amounts, to help along such a worthy cause. The message from Flander's Fields has not lost its significance, but each year is remembered and kept evergreen, for still we find—

"In Flander's Fields, the poppies grow Between the crosses, row on row."

Hundreds of Gem smokers have said to us, from time to time—"Why don't you pack Gems like your other cigarettes?"

To meet the wish of the many Gem Smokers we shall from now on pack Gems, wrapped in tissue, lined foil, in the regular "Slide and Shell" package. This will insure the cigarettes retaining their shape and freshness at all times, and will also prevent them becoming loose in the pocket.

We can't make the cigarettes any better, it's impossible, so we have made a BETTER PACKAGE for the best cigarettes.

Positively none better—Yes—and now we're DOUBLY positive there are none better.

Ask for Gems in the new package.

Now you can treat 'em rough, the new package protects them

GOOD EVENING!

FISHERMEN OF NEWFOUNDLAND!

Motor Boats:—The first motor boat was shown at the Paris Exhibition of 1889, being fitted with the petrol motor invented by Daimler. The Fishery Board of Scotland is demonstrating the value of the motor boat to the fishing industry; the National Lifeboat Institution is experimenting with various types of motors in connection with its boats. At the exhibitions in London and Paris in 1905 and right on to the present time, fishermen in Scotland and Newfoundland continue to give evidence of the popularity of the motor boat for fishing purposes.

Like the motor power of a fisherman's boat THE GRAND COLISEUM is fast becoming a power appreciated among the buying public for all kinds of Hosiery, Gloves and Lovely Sweaters, Workingsmen, Fishermen and all classes of the public are cordially invited to give us a call.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

$10.00 a week, or $12.50, or $15.00 or more—just whatever amount you need, we will pay you, every week you are ill or injured, commencing the first day of disability and only finishing when you are completely cured.

The cost is so little that any one week of disability pays you back all that you pay in for six months. For example, $25.00 per week only costs $25.00 for six months and carries $5,000 of principal sum.

Right Now, while you are well and uninjured why not ask us to completely protect you?

We have been paying claims for 36 years.

An Interesting Fact.

An honest and thorough test was made in Canada to prove that RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE was superior to Pure White Lead.

A mixture of 100 lbs. of RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE and 5 gallons of Boiled Linseed Oil was matched against a mixture of 100 lbs. of Pure White Lead and 4 gallons Boiled Linseed Oil.

NOTE:—RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE stood 1 gallon more Linseed Oil, therefore more economical for painting.

A wood surface was painted with a heavy black line in the centre, then two coats of RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE was applied, the black line was completely hidden.

A like wood surface and black line was covered with four coats of the Pure White Lead, and the black line was still noticeable.

NOTE:—RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE only took two coats to hide the black line, the same amount of paint in each case was used.

THE RESULT:—RAMSAY'S PINNACLE WHITE is superior to Pure White Lead because it takes 25 p.c. more oil and spreads with a greater hiding power a much larger surface, it stays white much longer.

There is nothing better made for painting Churches, Schools, Houses, etc.
