Local News.

Remember the Horticultural Show to-morrow.

At the last fair in Galt there were only about 50 head of cattle offered for sale.

A man in Goderich had his finger bitten off last week by a vicious horse.

The Welland canal is crowded with grain-laden vessels bound for the lower ports.

Pentland post office is about to be reopened, Mr. George Ford being appointed Postmaster.

Mr. James Harris, an old and respected resident of Galt, expired suddenly on Tuesday last.

Deer are said to abound this fall in the large swamp which comprises part of Ellice and North Easthope.

Mr. Geo. Forbes, of Elora, has a squash which measures 4 ft. 4 in. on the smaller circumference, and weighs 44 lbs.

Thirteen doctors and eight lawyers live and have their being at Ingersoll. A healthy and peaceful locality it must be.

Elora is to have horse races on Tuesday. Plethoric purses of from $5 to $20 are to be competed for. Go in, gentlemen.

A lad named Schotodau was killed on Wednesday, in Nissouri, in consequence of the horses running away and throwing him from the wagon.

The silver-at-discount movement was abandoned in Stratford, on Tuesday last. The cause was the bad faith of two or three who were parties to the bond.

On Saturday week, a man named Clinton was fined $35 by the magistrates in Mitchell for abusing his wife. A lesson severe enough to be salutary.

Two years ago North Easthope voted the closing of all the taverns in the township. Next Friday the people will be required to say whether they are of opinion that they should be kept closed.

Three houses near St. George were entered by burglars on the night of the 5th instant. In one place no booty was obtained, in the second the robbers found $2, and in the third $110 rewarded their perseverance.

A barn with its contents, belonging to a Mr. Gabell, of Elms, was entirely consumed on the night of Sunday week. It was a clear case of incendiarism, and the guilty party, a man named Beaken has confessed that he did it. Gabell's loss is over $1,000.

John White, Esq., M.P., for Halton, broke some of the cords of his ankle while attempting to get on the train, a few days ago, and has been confined to his house ever since.

A girl in Wallace cut her wrist with a piece of broken bowl, on Tuesday evening, severing the main arteries of the arm, and almost bled to death before the arrival of a doctor.

A heavy thunder storm passed over Owen Sound on Thursday. In Sydenham, the lightning struck a barn belonging to Mr. Davis, in which was the whole of the crop from 145 acres, and which was totally destroyed. Loss $2,000. No insurance.

Mr. Henry Freeland, aged 73 years, was killed on Friday week, while on his way from his house in Trafalgar to Georgetown. There was evidence of his horse having kicked all the way down a hill, and the unfortunate man was found expiring at the bottom, with a small indentation in his head.

YOUTHFUL BURGLAR IN FERGUS.—A series of burglaries have lately been committed in Fergus by boys, some of them not over 15 years of age. The business has been going on for some months without detection, although six or seven stores were entered at different times, and money and small articles carried off.

Charles Powney's hardware store was broken into last Friday night, and a knife, revolver, and some other things taken. A lad named Harvey, son of respectable parents, was arrested for the theft, and confessed that he took the articles, but denied breaking open the door. After being before the Magistrate he was sent for trial. The other places broken into were, Thompson Sherwood's grocery store, A. Stewart's boot and shoe store, L. C. Munro's drug store, and Fredrum & Huffman's drug store. Entrance to these was generally effected through the cellar windows.

A son of Mr. Bedford, 6th concession of Bentick, met with a severe accident occasioned from the kick of a horse which knocked over several of his teeth fractured the lower jaw, and ruptured some of the principal arteries of the face.

FATAL MILL ACCIDENT AT WOOD-STOCK.—On Saturday morning about 3 o'clock an accident occurred in the mill of Messrs. Parker & Hays, resulting in the death of a man named Forbes and the wounding of another named James Stuart. Two of the millstones burst, and were found scattered over the premises. The machinery and building were badly damaged. The cause of the accident is unknown. Loss about $1,500.

Mr. Dickens has just engaged for one hundred farwell readings in England, for which he is to receive the sum of $2,000 without risk.

THE MURDER OF MR. MCGEE

Special Despatch of Toronto 'Telegraph.'

OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—Patrick Buckley and Doyle were arraigned after the other proceedings. On being brought into dock Buckley was dreadfully excited.

His bearing was like that of a man out of his senses. When the indictment was read over, he cried out, "My God! to think I would hurt the man who was the darling of my heart! The man that I loved like my own soul! I call God and Heaven to witness, I would not hurt a hair of his head! The man I loved above all others! He was my friend and I was his!" He broke down here, being thoroughly prostrated. The tones of his voice were most piteous. Doyle looked a poor crazed creature and whined out, "Oh! my God! Sure I know nothing about the man! Sure I wouldn't hurt a hair of his head! I fought for my Queen and country, and oughtn't to be placed charged with a crime like this!" Being asked by the court if he had any counsel, he said, "Sure I don't care. I know I'm innocent. I don't care what they do with me."

The pleas of not guilty were entered up, and further consideration postponed till Monday, prisoner's counsel not being present.

Very few were in court, but those present could not help showing their disgust at Buckley, who was so insolent and defiant in April last, and who, when in the witness box then, snapped his fingers at everybody.

Beautiful Forever. A large amount of interest has lately been excited in England, in connection with the prosecution of Madame Rachel, the celebrated renovator of female beauty. Lord Ranelagh, it will be remembered, has been rather unpleasantly mixed up with the affair, and if not rendered "beautiful forever" has certainly been made notorious for some time to come. We notice that on the 20th ult., this beautifier of the votaries of West End Fashion, was placed at the bar of the Central Criminal Court in London, charged with obtaining money from Mary Tucker Borrodalle by false pretences. Mr. Sergeant Ballantyne opened the case on behalf of the prosecutor. He said that his client, who was the widow of an Italian officer, although an exceedingly vain and simple woman, was a woman of high integrity. She first became acquainted with the defendant in July, 1866, having visited her establishment for the purpose of procuring certain toilet requisites—parures, washes, &c. Mrs. Borrodalle inquired whether Madame Rachel could make her beautiful forever, and the latter replied that she could without any difficulty do so, for the modest sum of £1,000 sterling, which Mrs. Borrodalle paid her. At first she hesitated for a few moments, but Madame Rachel intimated that a certain nobleman who had already betrayed a penchant for her, would most assuredly, declare his passion for her, after she had been beautified; thereupon the ambitious lady at once consented and handed over a cheque for the amount.—Subsequently, in consequence either of Mrs. Borrodalle's case being a rather obstinate one, or because she desired to be more than ordinarily "beautiful," additional expenses to the amount of £360 were incurred. Soon after she was shown a gentleman who was introduced to her as "Lord Ranelagh," and who was stated to have been for some time consumed by a secret love for Mrs. Borrodalle. The result was, that the poor dupe of her own insensate vanity and of Madame Rachel's greed, became engaged to be married to the quasi nobleman, and the wedding day was fixed. Before the marriage could take place, however, Madame Rachel represented that further outlay was needful, and a cheque for £1,000 was the result. Subsequently Mrs. Borrodalle, who really seems to have been insane, gave up all her jewels, dresses, and even her plate to her relentless persecutor. In the course of her examination Mrs. Borrodalle stated that Madame Rachel had "bewitched her," that she had obtained complete control over her, and that she (Mrs. Borrodalle) was compelled to do anything or write anything which she was told to do or to write by Madame Rachel.

After a number of witnesses had been examined, and an immense number of letters in the case were submitted to the jury. After they had been for some time out of court it was announced that they were unable to agree, and that the prisoner has obtained a respite until next sessions. Her case, however, is rare, and in the words of Sergeant Ballantyne, "London has been cleansed of one of its foulest stains."

OUR CIRCULATION.—The Globe of Saturday copies our challenge to the Advertiser about the respective circulations of the two papers, and then adds: "We don't know anything of the circulation of the two journals, but the Mercury ought to have the largest, since it is much the better paper of the two. The Mercury's offer is a very fair one." We would now inform our Toronto contemporaries that our offer, after being published a week, was not taken up by the Advertiser, so that our statement that the circulation of the Mercury is DOUBLE that of the Advertiser remains unchallenged and uncontradicted. Henceforth the public will not fail to remember that all the vapouring of the Advertiser for its circulation is destitute of truth, for by its silence it has made a tacit acknowledgment that the circulation of the Mercury is DOUBLE that of its own. With regard to the compliment contained in the Globe's paragraph, we trust that our efforts and enterprise will continue to merit for the Mercury the good opinion expressed by it and our contemporaries generally throughout the Province.

DEMURET'S MONTHLY.—This Magazine well deserves its great and increasing patronage. It is such a work as a man need not be afraid of introducing into his house. Though fashionable, it is not frivolous. On the contrary, it is full of sound sense, useful information, and vigorous, high-toned thought. There is more for the money than in any other two magazines, and the quality is as good as the quantity is generous. Surprise your wife, sister or daughter, with a year's subscription, as a birthday, Thanksgiving or Christmas gift. It will pay well for the investment. W. Junger Demoret, 473 Broadway, N. Y. $3.00 per year.

Measures are in a forward state for being erected in Galt, in commemoration of the late Cardinal Wiseman. The site alone will cost £50,000.

Despatches to the Evening Mercury

(BY ATLANTIC CABLE.)

London, 13.—It is generally considered that the events of the last fortnight made little change in the political condition of the continent to lessen chances of war. While on one hand the press of Germany have assumed a quieter tone, and profess to be more sanguine of peace, on the other hand it is known that France has refused the formal demand for the recall of French troops from Rome, and at the same time Prince Gergentel has brought to Paris the proposal of Spain to cement an alliance with France by sending 30,000 troops to Rome. This proposition and approaching interview which is appointed to take place at Bayonne between Napoleon and the Queen of Spain are looked upon as foreshadowing an alliance, the object of which is to rid France of the curse of the Holy See in case she should be plunged into war, so that by this means France, if without any other ally, could make Spain useful. There are rumors that several fighting regiments have been recalled from Africa, that Gen. Leboeuf has been sent on a special mission to Germany, and that Prussia has determined to annex the Grand Duchy of Baden, add to the feeling of distrust in the permanence of existing peace. This feeling is faithfully mirrored in Paris by the depression on Bourse, and consequent decline of Rentes. In diplomatic circles the situation is pithily summed up in these words: "No fear of war, though it may begin to-morrow."

Paris 13.—The Patrie yesterday thinks the report that the Prussian army is to be reduced to 150,000 men is false. The Standard says that on leaving camp at Chalons, the Emperor summoned the general officers to his presence and thanked them for the zeal they had shown, and said the days he had passed in the camp had given him great pleasure and satisfaction.

American Despatches. New York 12.—The steamships City of Baltimore, Napoleon Third and Colla from Europe arrived to-day. Among the passengers of the former are the English cricketers.

Rather Point, Sept. 13.—The Peruvian arrived inwards at 3 o'clock this morning, with 93 cabin and 249 steerage passengers.

New York, Sept. 13.—Letters from Peru state that an earthquake commenced at 5:30 p.m., on the 20th August, extending from Bolivia to the southern parts of the Chilean coast, and over 100 miles inland. The towns and cities mentioned in last night's dispatches were literally ruined, as all buildings which were not destroyed were so badly damaged as to require demolition for prudential reasons. All the public edifices in Arica were destroyed, including the custom house, which contained more than four million dollars worth of goods, all of which are lost. The Congress of Peru unanimously passed a resolution giving the President unlimited power to succor the inhabitants of the southern coast. Over one million dollars have been contributed by the inhabitants. Nearly all the towns in Mene, in the province of Huancu, were destroyed. At Callao the sea burst over several houses skirting the shore, completely gutting them of their contents. The next night a fire broke out, and 57 houses in the business portion of the city were destroyed, entailing a loss of a million and a half of dollars. The steamer Santiago, bound from Callao to Valparaiso, was carried to sea by a great wave, in a few moments; the wave returned towards the shore carrying the steamer with it, taking it with all its passengers safely over a high cliff and leaving it safely inside the channel. At Iquique the shock lasted over four minutes, after which the wave came and destroyed about three quarters of the place, with many lives. Over 600 hundred people were drowned at Arquipu, the city is a complete ruin, the river has changed to two colors, thus showing volcanic eruptions. In the city of Guayaquil but little damage has been done, the towns of Ibaiza, San Pablo, Atacqui and Imita are in ruins. A lake of water is now occupying the site of the town of Cotacachi. The entire population of those towns and of Otavalo have perished, amounting to nearly 30,000. The towns adjoining Quito have almost entirely disappeared, with their inhabitants, the few left alive being obliged to flee to escape the pestilence arising from decomposing dead bodies. A large proportion of the wealthy inhabitants of Quito had died from pestilence or disaster.

LAKE SUPERIOR COMMERCE.—The Owen Sound Times, speaking of the benefits which would accrue to Canada from the opening up of the North-west, says: "Much has been said and written respecting the mineral wealth of the Lake Superior Region, and the great contrast afforded between the development and traffic on the American and Canadian shores of the lake—the one being fast opened up, and already sustaining an immense and remunerative traffic with the more settled portions of the country; whilst the other, admittedly equal, if not superior, in mineral wealth, remains a solitary and almost unbroken wilderness. In order that our readers may have an idea of the extent to which the contrast goes, it is only necessary to give the figures of the shipping to both sides of the lake. By official returns, we learn that during the season of 1867, there were 21 steamers of aggregate tonnage of 15,216 tons, on the route between Cleveland, Detroit and Lake Superior, making 211 passages to the American side of the lake, as compared with the fortnightly visit of one solitary steamer to the Canadian shore! The number of passengers carried were respectively 14,583 and 588. Nor is this the whole contrast; for besides these twenty-one steamers, there was a large fleet of sailing vessels engaged in the traffic to the American side, making in the aggregate no fewer than 200 passages."

DISTRESS AT RED RIVER.

We do not recur to this subject with the intention of adding fresh details of suffering. We have already stated the case; grasshoppers as thick as locusts have eaten up every green thing on the Red River Settlement, even the weeds, and 14,000 human beings are left without sustenance.

The appeal of the people of the Red River Settlement lies to Canadians, from whom they expect fraternal sympathy and assistance. From the movements on foot, having for their object the raising of means for relieving their necessities, it is safe to assert that they will not be disappointed.

They have no hopes, can have none before another year passes round, and effectual relief must be measured, as well by the length of time that must intervene before the colony will produce anything for the support of its inhabitants as by the number of the population.

The appeal of the people of the Red River Settlement lies to Canadians, from whom they expect fraternal sympathy and assistance. From the movements on foot, having for their object the raising of means for relieving their necessities, it is safe to assert that they will not be disappointed.

They have no hopes, can have none before another year passes round, and effectual relief must be measured, as well by the length of time that must intervene before the colony will produce anything for the support of its inhabitants as by the number of the population.

The Braes of Yarrow

An Historical Tale of the Sixteenth Century.

When Gilbert Elliot sprang into the saddle the groom who had attended him, before releasing his hold of the saddle, said warningly—
"It's a kittle beast, maister, an' a'be's name the cannie for haen been fast i' the stable for twa days."
Gilbert nodded impatiently, and the horse bounded across the yard toward the Portcullis Gate. Whilst the portcullis was being raised and the drawbridge lowered, his horse pawed the earth with as much impatience as its master.
The road clear, the horse dashed over the bridge, and was then suddenly stopped by an old man who gripped the bridle stoutly. Gilbert raised his whip to strike the man, when the latter raised his face and he recognized Andrew Horne.
"Hands off, Andrew, every instant is precious for the life of Spens is on my speed."
"Then ye ken Tushielaw has him? The dwarf body Horne told me that yebody kenned."
"I know all, and I have the King's pardon here. Do not stay me, man—"
"But my laddy wants to speak wi' ye."
"Where is she?"
"In St. Cuthbert's Abbey."
"Bid her rest there till I return. Let go, let go."
Andrew could restrain the horse no longer, as the rider now gossied it with his heels, and it darted along the Esplanade, down the High Street, and through the Netherbow Port.
Andrew gazed after him with a dissatisfied expression.
"The child's daft," he muttered as he stood puzzling his head as to the course he should adopt; "daft to think that my laddy would bide here when she kens maister is in the hands o' Tushielaw; and daft to think that single-headed he can rescue the maister from Tushielaw's grip on Yarrow braes. He couldnae dae't even if he had the King's ain order for't i' his hand."
With his grey head bowed in perplexity he took a few steps forward as if again to return to St. Cuthbert's, and again halted.
"There's ane nicht help us," he said, glancing wistfully back to the Castle, "if I could only win at her."
"It's a late hour to gang chappin' at the door o' great folks; but they stick i' the bog wha dinn't try to get out, see I'll gang back an' speer any way."
He retraced his steps to the Castle; the drawbridge had not yet been raised since Elliot had passed out, so he reached the postern without difficulty.
He knocked and was presently answered by the warder asking the password of the night.
"I dinnae ken the word, friend, but I want to see my Laddy Douglas on a matter o' life an' death."
"Ye cannae pass the nicht without the word," was the gruff response; "get over the brig as quick as ye cam' for it's gaun to be raised."
"Sauna save us, man, dae I no tell ye it's a matter of life and death I come about."
"Cannae help that."
"Would ye no jist speer at Captain Lindsay if he would see Andrew Horne?"
To this there was for several minutes no response. Then the trap of the postern was shoved back, and the warder eyed the importunate visitor suspiciously. Satisfied by his inspection, the postern was opened and Andrew was admitted.
He found himself in the presence of Lindsay, who, in going round the guard, happened to arrive at the gate just as his name was pronounced. Recognizing Andrew's voice and name as those of the man who had called daily to inquire for Gilbert Elliot during his illness, he gave orders at once to admit the suitor.
With grateful respect Andrew explained in an undertone the object of his visit, and Lindsay promised to assist him and to endeavour to procure an immediate audience with Mistress Douglas. He consented to this the more readily, as he had learned that Heron Barras had quitted the Castle a little while before.
Gilbert reached the ancient barge of barony, Linton-on-the-Lynn, without interruption. But while he was passing through the burgh his horse cast a shoe. The day had already broken so that he had no difficulty in finding the smithy, which was close to the burgh, and on the mail road to the South.

A patriotic Irishman has run away with $400 of the Whelan defence fund. Some patriotic lawyers will run away with the balance.
Affected young lady, seated in a rocking chair, reading the Bible, exclaimed: "Mother, here is a grammatical error in the Bible." Mother, lowering her spectacles and approaching the reader in a scrutinizing manner, says: "Kill it! kill it! it is the very thing that has been eating the leaves and book-marks."

According to a San Francisco paper a new vein in the matter of church fairs has been struck in California. At a festival given by the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Placerville, in aid of the building fund, a wedding was included in the order of exercises. A charge was made for admission, and the expedition proved successful. What next?

ALBION HOTEL, MONTREAL, P. Q.

IN 1857 MR. DECKER purchased the "Albion," which then contained fifty rooms. In 1859 he added a new wing of forty rooms. The steady and rapid increase in the business compelled him, in 1862, to build a second new wing of fifty sleeping rooms, with large dining room, capable of seating two hundred guests. Notwithstanding all this additional accommodation, hundreds of merchants and others, patrons of the "Albion," have been obliged to seek accommodation elsewhere during the Spring and Fall business seasons. Encouraged by the liberal patronage extended to the "Albion," the proprietor has built a third edition of ninety sleeping rooms, large parlors, reading room, office, and bar—fronting on McGill Street. Fifty of the sleeping rooms will be furnished and ready for the Fall Trade. In the Spring of 1860 all the improvements will be completed, when the "Albion" will have an entrance on McGill Street instead of St. Paul Street. The charge will be $1.40 per day, as heretofore. THE WHELAN TRIAL.—The proceedings in the Whelan case are expected to be closed to-day at 5 o'clock. It is said that Hillyard Cameron, in his speech, will enter into a justification of himself for undertaking Whelan's defence, in order to conciliate the Orange body, of which he is Grand Master. Mr. O'Reilly is expected to make a strong case for the conviction of Whelan. He will show first, from circumstantial evidence, the strong probabilities that Whelan committed the murder. This from two other points—the evidence of Lacroix, who swore he saw Whelan do it, and that of Callen who swears that Whelan admitted that he had done it. The array of evidence will be almost irresistible. The difficulties of the defence are, indeed, very great and the greatest interest is felt to hear Hillyard Cameron make his speech. The motion for a new trial, in the event of Whelan's conviction, will not, it is said, have the slightest attention paid to it by Judge Richards.
