Congress Saves Canada | WILL HELP OTTAWA

Now It Is For Us to Make That Safety More Secure-Canada's Opportunity to Regain Fiscal Independence -Increase British Preference to 40 Per Cent-Blunder of Liberals Retrieved.

United States Congress has saved Canada from herself. It remains now to see what Canada will do to make secure that safety before an extra session of that legislative body can be called

President Taft now is face to face with his bluff or threat (as you may call it) to summon an extra session of congress to deal with the reciprocity proposals. The danger of this, as the president sees it, is that it places the whole question of tariff revision in the hands of the Democrats, with the electoral advantage consequently involved. It is a question now, whether, from an economic standpoint, United States is really sincere about reciprocity with Canada. The World has repeatedly affirmed that continentalism is the dream of American statesmen, which they will seek to accomplish either by commercial or political strategy. It is no answer to this argument to say that the opponents of reciprocity are flaunting their loyalty. When Canada crossed the threshold of the twentieth century there loomed in the future a brilliant national existence—an ideal of free and independent nationhood. If that ideal is worth having it is worth striving for, and Canadians should even be prepared to submit to sacrifices for its maintenance. But Canada's ideal is linked with the motherland and the other nations within the empire. So reciprocity with the United States, as proposed, is inimical to Canada's future.

The tragedy of the deal with the Washington administration is the binding nature of the contract; binding because it must be accepted in its entirety. There is no provision for an amendment. If it is adopted Washington will have a proprietary interest in framing Canada's fiscal policy. The schedules are already agreed to. No analogy can be drawn between the deal with the United States and the favored nation to her own interests, extending to these nations special treatment as provided in an intermediate schedule. And this arrangement recognizes as an established principle the British preference. But under the arrangement with the United States all these favored nations, twelve or fourteen of them, will have access to the Canadian market for their national products and manufacturers that are satiable here on the basis of the schedules granted to the United States, without being obliged to give any corresponding advantage in return to Canada. Is it any wonder that Clifford Sifton said, "We are putting our heads into a moose"?

This striking feature of the gul ability of the Canadian commissioners to Washington cannot be too seriously apprehended.

The splendid principle and freedom of the British preference in contrast to this was pointed out in the British House of Commons the other day. Mr. Asquith, in replying to a question by Austen Chamberlain, why Great Britain had not met the Canadian preference, said that it was not the policy of the Dominion to demand an equivalent advantage from England, but that each country was free to control its own fiscal policy. Mr. Asquith has the right idea. Compare that with the other proposal, which in practice, if not in design, links Canadian fiscal independence with the administration of the Republic. That principle was established a year ago when, threatened by the Big Stick, Mr. Fielding met President Taft at Albany and granted certain tariff concessions to prevent the imposition of the "maximum" duties by the United States. That was the first blunder. Sir Wilfrid Laurier enunclated the same principle in the West last summer, when he told the farmers that he could not answer their demands for a tariff revision until after the negotiations at Washington.

Thus it will be seen that the influence of the Big Stick has prevailed on the Laurier Government; and that is a greater insult to Canadian pride than any juggling of tariff schedules could possibly be.

Now that congress has ignored the reciprocity pact, it is worthy to note that five Liberal newspapers in Canada closely identified with cabinet ministers are advocating an increase in the British preference. More significant than this is the attitude assumed by Mr. Carvell on Thursday last, when, addressing the house in support of the resolution, he turned towards the finance minister, and, with deliberate gesture and tone, said he would be glad to see the preference increased to 40 per cent. If Mr. Carvell was not inspired to make this utterance, his manner was decidedly suspicious.

FATAL FIGHT OVER GIRL

oung Montreal Man is Indicted for Murder.

MONTREAL, March 4 .- In the court of King's bench, the grand jury has returned a true bill on the indictment for murder against Rossario Casavant, charged with killing Ernest Bigras. The young men had a quarrel over a girl residing in Seigneurs-street, with whom Bigras was keeping company. Bigras worsted Casavant in a fist fight, but a few days later Casavant struck Bigras on the head with a stick, in the end of which there was a nail. The nail entered Bigras' head, and four days later he died in the Hoted Dieu from the effects of blood ponsoning.

Sung at Ottawa Parliamentary Press Gallery Dinner. (Tune: "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet.")

On the old White House verandah sat Fielding and Philander.

Said Philander unto Fielding, "You are on the point of yielding, For a teardrop dims your eye." "They're not tears of woeful sadness, they are tears of joyful gladness;

Firm free trader I've been right along, But I've never had a chance, sir, to make the interests dance, sir, That is why I sing this song:'

(Refrain): "Put on my free trade bonnet, with the red ribbons on it, While I knock the tariff wall away; For a cheaper winner may be found a winner On the next election day.

Said Phillie unto Willie: "This question may seem silly, But it's needed on the whole. Could you stretch another point, sir, pray do not disappoint, sir,

On the free list put soft coal?" Fielding smiled a smile seraphic, then he said in language graphic: "Knoxie, dear, I fear you do not see. I'll hit fruit men and packers, but it's hands off coal and crackers, That's true reciprocity."

To look young and attractive looking, you must be gowned in a smart tailored suit, which fits perfectly; with becoming lines-with style-and individuality.

We make a special study of all these features.

Orbicular, a shifty player that one year swept everything player that one year swept everything before him at Juarez, and which was pointed out for the Special, broke down so badly in a recent workout that it is the intention of his owners to retire him to the stud.

The announcement from Lexington. Ky., that Milton Young, ex-Master of McGrathiana, in its day the home of Onadago, Hanover, Inspector B., Cesarion, and other famous stallions, will this year campaign a strong stable of racers on the tracks of the Middle West, is refreshing news to the turf nearly two score years Milton Young has been a conspicuous figure in the thorobred world. As far back as 1870 the blue and white stripes of the stable were famous from one end of the country to the other. In those days it was sons and daughters of Old Bonnie Scotland that contributed largely to his success. The day he won with the four B's at the old Cote Brilliante track in St. Louis-Bootjack, Boot-black, Beatrice and Beatltude-is still remembered by the surviving members of the old guard and stands as a memorable achievement, one without a par-allel in turf history.

In 1883 Young astonished the country by selling his string in which, among others, were Ascendor, then favorite for the Kentucky Derby; Bestman, winner of the first great Western Handicap at Washington Park," and several others, to R. C. Pate of St. Louis for the reported price of $18,-000, that being the largest price at racing establishment in America. The call of the turf grew too strong for Mr. Young, however, and he was lured back again. As he had sold his old colors with the stable his new horses carried a navy blue jacket and white sash, and this was borne by Lizzie S, a famous heat-performer in her day, Bankrupt and many others. At the time that Bankrupt, then a yearling, came into Mr. Young's hands, James R. Keene had just failed in business and the colt, being by Spendthrift, was named Bankrupt, a name that so incensed Mr. Keene that the men did not speak for years. As a two-year-old Bankrupt won seven straight stakes, and in going up the line Mr. Young declared to friends that he had still one that could

Early in the season Countiess appeared to "favor the good leg" but under the care of Trainer May, the member yielded to treatment and is now apparently as strong as ever. Like Sir John Johnson, Countiess has been seen to advantage of late at Montcrief Park, and must be seriously considered in the save that Francis J. Pons will retire from the official roster."

Coming in the face of the equally positive announcement of Governor dilichrist to the effect he would veto any measure passed by the legislature, the statement of Brown has set many to figuring on "who is who." The business men and cooler heads do not the sitate to state that in their opinion this is the last winter meeting for Florida, at least for some time. In the Printers' League some nice pin spilling was also recorded, with the evening section grabbing off most of the big totals, altho the mornings showed a big improvement over the week previous.

In the latter The Mail and Globe are coming along nicely, and may yet make it interesting for the two World teams, who seem to have had things pretty much their own way since the start of the second series.

In the evening section, MacLeans gained in the lead by taking three straight, while Toronto Typesetting slipped a cog by dropping one of their three to Dunlop & Rose, third place holders, with the latter, however, very much in the race and still probable contenders for the championship.

In this section the Courier Press has taken the place of Saturday Night, and while not figuring on doing anything wonderful this season, feel they will have a team next year that will give all comers a battle for the honors.

In the Eaton League both sections are tightening up considerably, the Printers still having a shade on the rest of the field in No. 1, but with the Engineers right behind and Fifth Floor coming strong the typos will have their work cut out to finally land in this section.

In No. 3 there is a nice battle on between the first three teams, A3 being in the lead, with Winnipeg Office and E 1, 2 and 3 tied with only one game down.

In the Apple League the end of another week finds all teams again as tightly bunched as possible; in fact, from first to last one seems to have a strangle hold on the other, and with the last not even ready yet to cry quits

In the two-men leagues all teams have taken up their work with en-thusiasm, and in each a successful sea-son is assured; with a nice array of prizes to be distributed at the close.

In the Eaton Two-Man, Ernie Williams, their popular president, has very generously come forward with a twenty-dollar donation, and with the nightly allowange from each roller should mean a fat pocket-book.

He had vowed some time that day. He had vowed some time previously that if we ever did win again he would drop dead. And me almost kept his word. As the last man was retired Getzine took a back fall. But, if we made a sorry showing after a good start that year, we sure had lots of fun setting the start. We trained in the sprins at Mobile, Ala. There we met a rabid fan named Jack Hooper, who had cleaned up sixty thousand dollars in bets on us against the St. Louis Browns the preceding the St. Louis Browns the preceding fall. At least he said he had done so, and as he always had plenty of money and as he always had pienty of money with him, we didn't think it necessary to argue. He wanted to blow the players to a wine supper every night we were there. But of course, Manager Watkins set his foot down hard on the proposition. Watty couldn't see how such generosity could improve out hatting even out batting eyes.

Two Philadelphia players had been retired in the ninth inning and a man was on first when Sam Thompson ambled to the plate. He hit a line drive that cleared the right field fence by inches. I see that the bunt is falling into disfavor. Well, I, for one would like to see it barred. We tried it out years ago, but it didn't seem like baseball so we did not use it to any great extent. Some Men Don't Like Toupees

And there is small wonder at it. The average toupee is not natural looking, and not becoming. Many are clumsily made, heavy, and don't fit. Many others are thrown together so as to sell a few dollars cheaper than the first-class product, and they show it.

Toupee Making Has been more than a part of this business. It has been, and is, a hobby with Mr. Pember, and the result is that The Pember Store Toupees are to-day just about as near absolute perfection as it seems possible to get.

A Pember Toupee has peculiar merits found in no other make — it is light as a zephyr, natural looking as your, own hair, merges into your hair as though it grew there, has a particularly natural parting, is dressed like your own hair used to be, and is always perfectly secure when on the head.

In addition to these points, the price is quite moderate for the value. It would be a good idea to investigate this Toupee matter privately, and here.

Richard Smith, the west end builder, has bought of Jos. Russell, M.P. for East Toronto, the green trotter. Thelma. Thelma has not been raced except in matinee work and that not for some time, when she showed extreme speed, but was somewhat erratic. Now that she has some age her new owner looks for great things from her. Thelma is a bay mare, 7 years old, sired by Wildbrino, first dam by Five Points, second dam by Winfield Scott. Mr. Smith will likely stake this mare in the slow trots.

Richard Scott has that good pacer Billie Simms at work. He is getting his daily log and will no doubt be in good shape when the bell rings. Mr. Scott is very much taken with his new one and expects to take down a good many first premiums with him this summer.

To show the amount of business done in Toronto in horses, in conversation with the managers of Burns & Sheppard's Repository, the writer was informed that for the year 1910 the value of the horses shipped from that mart to the western provinces thru Winnipeg for the west alone amounted to over $435,000. That speaks volumes for the managers of the Repository. Should the reciprocity agreement become law the farmers of this country would see a very large falling off in the horse trade, as St. Paul, Minneapolis and other large centres for horses would no doubt get most of the trade, as the haul would be so much shorter. Toronto is the horse mart of the Dominion and the western provinces take the surplus not required in Ontario.

The King Stake at the Columbus (0.) Grand Circuit meeting will be open to 2.04 pacers. That will let in Earl Jr. (2.034), May Day (2.034), Alcyfras (2.034), Bland S. Frank Townsend of Mercer, Pa., has a fast prospect in Billie Arion, son of Arion (2.07%), that he will race this year over the half mile tracks.

Joan, Dulie, Archdele, Pemsa Maid and Soprano are likely to meet in a free-for-all race this season.

Chimes of Normandy (2.16%), by Chimes, owned by A. B. Coxe, Paoli, Pa., will soon drop a foal by Baronmore (2.14%). Barney H. Demarest, who brought out Prince Alert (1.57%), behind a wind shield and drove Huntrees (2.20%), Bateman (2.22), Alley (2.19), Driver (2.19%), to a high wheel sulky for Alden Goldsmith, will start out as a professional harness horse starter this season.

Mr. Ball of Winnipeg has bought Major McGregor (2.154), and he will be shipped west. Major McGregor in 1900 was started 16 times and won 14 of the events. Since coming to Toronto he has been used mostly as a driver by the owners of the Empire Stable. He is a grand street horse, a prompt, fearless driver and when his owners let him step down the street he took some beating. No doubt his new he took some beating. No doubt his new owner will race him, as he has had a good rest and should make a great horse in his class this summer.

Matters in the borse market were a bit better during the past week than they had been for the previous fortnight. A feature of the sales was the demand for delivery teams, the Maher Horse Exchange especially being favored in this way. Some purchases were also made for the west. In fact, there was a renewed demand three marts a couple of hundred general purpose and draughters and a few lighter horses were taken for New Ontario. A prominent mine owner has also given orders for three first-class carriage horses and a couple of single drivers. He says the horse is good enough for him and for the country roads is preferable to the automobile. Messrs. Crow and Murray have alarger string of show horses this year than ever and some stars. crops up to create doubt on this point, the question of world's championship may be regarded as something that has been laid away in lavender.

For proof of this, hark back to the way Johnson's coming to San Francisco was handled by the San Francisco papers. There were comparatively meagre reports of the champion's arrival the morning after. Since then, there has been no mention of him, unless maybe a brief reference to an arrest for speeding. Johnson himself seems quite content to have it that way. Fighting is the thing furthest from his mind, and, strange tho it may seem, he is not courting publicity.

He has a bungalow out by the sad see waves, but it is merely a starting point for automobile trips. It is yery seldom that he is to be found there. For Jack Johnson now, the world is one big boulevard, and he has discarded his boxing gloves for goggles. He is arrested so frequently that someone has arrested so frequently that frequently that frequently that has no wall steel ladder wither and only seemed and the made of modern dan cisco papers. He has a bungalow out by the sad sea waves, but it is merely a starting point for automobile trips. It is very seldom that he is to be found there. For Jack Johnson now, the world is one big boulevand, and he has discarded his boxing gloves for goggles. He is arrested so frequently that someone has advised him to enquire into the feasibility of securing a season ticket or book of fine coupons. It has been pointed out to him that he could hand a coupon to cach park policeman who stops him for fast driving, and thus do away with the mecessity of getting upearly in the morning to attend court. Johnson is the duliest subject an interviewer ever tackled. That is, if the interviewer is after "fight talk." In order to get the big colored man to discuss with briskness and intelligence any question relating to pugliism, one has to lay a foundation for such discussion by posting him as to what is in progress. Without such stimulus, his mind is a blank, or at any rate, his lackadaisical manner would lead you to such a conclusion.

The writer contrived to get Johnson to discuss the outlook a day or two ago, by quizzing him about the large number of practically untried heavyweights that were being so extensively advertised. Johnson had not spoken a dozen words before it became apparent that he considers the "hope" industry a huge joke. He warmed up slightly to his subject after a while, and prattled along without further questioning.

prattled along without further questioning.

"This fellow Carl Morris, who has been taken in hand by an Oklahoma millionalre, is the biggest joke of the lot," said Jack. "When he was first spoken of I was slightly interested and made up my mind to watch his career, but I see he is not to have any career for a while. They are going to coddle him and try and brings him along under cover. They won't allow him to meet even a third-rate man, if my information is correct, but they're going to employ trainers and coachers and give him a private ring education. That settles Morris, in my opinion, because you can't make a fighter that way. Experience is the most valuable part of a fighter's stock in trade, and the only way you can gain experience is by giving and taking hard knocks in real fights.

Carl Morris a Joke

There is no telling of course, what a year, or even a few months, may bring forth, but for the present the puglistic situation, so far as it affects the heavy weights, has been completely flattened out by one Jack Johnson.

Bill Naughton writes in his syndicate letter:

On the part of the public there is neither interest nor speculation in the doings of the big fellows. The notion has crystallized apparently, that Johnson is unbeatable, and until something crops up to create doubt on this point, the question of world's championship the confidence. A man who expects to get to the top of the puglistic ladder without experience or confidence. A man who expects to get to the top of the puglistic ladder without experience or confidence is a fool."

RECIPROCITY MEANS ANNEXATION

Col. George T. Denison Prints Inside History of Intrigue of Liberal Politicians to Hand Canada Over to the United States.

In the 12th chapter of his book on Simile Struggle for Imperial Unity," Tool. George T. Denison gives some of the inside history of the movement started in 1891, in favor of reciprocity with the ultimate object of handing Canada over to the United States. Col. Denison is able to quote some important letters passing between the late Honore Mercier, premier of Quebec, and Charles A. Dana, publisher of The New York Sun, one of the prime mov-

col. Denison quotes a speech of Serator Sherman in the United States Senate on Sept. 18, 1888, which bolled down, is as follows: "The time has come when the people of the United States and Canada should take a bridger view of their relations to each other." Referring to the attempt of the United States in 1812 to take Canada senator Sherman says:

the third spain, France and Mexico hold hold the territory then held withen without serious detriment to the interests of prosperity of the hited States, and widhout the dance that was always present of concern with the European, powers maining—governments in contiguous aritory. It was a wise policy and a resist to acquire these vast recessity to acquire these vast recessity to acquire these vast recessity to acquire and are now held. Precisely the same considerations poly to Canada, with greater force, the commercial conditions have vastichanged within twenty-five years. Allroads have been built across the ontinent in our own country and in mada. The seaboard is of such a hiracter, and its geographical situation is such on both oceans, that percent freedom as to transportation is beloutely essential, not only to the mosperity of the two countries, but to the entire commerce of the world; and as far as the interests of the two speles are concerned, they are dividing the residuous properties of the two countries, but there should be a perfect free-

Rests Upon Accident.

A denial of that Intercourse, or the withholding of it from them, rests simply and wholly upon the accident that a European power one hundred years ago was able to hold that territory against us; but her interest has practically passed away and Canda has become an independent government to all intents and purposes as much so as Texas was after she separated herself from Mexico. So that all the considerations that entered into the acquisition of Florida. Ionisiana, and the Pacific coast, and Texas, apply to Canada, greatly strengthened by the changed condition of commercial relations and matters of transportation. These intensity, not only the property, but the absolute necessity of both a commercial and a political union between Canada and the United States.

"THE WAY TO UNION WITH CANADA IS NOT BY HOSTILE

THE WAY TO UNION WITH CANADA IS NOT BY HOSTILE LEGISLATION, NOT BY ACTS OF RETALIATION, BUT BY FRIENDLY OVERTURES. THIS UNION IS ONE OF THE EVENTS THAT MUST INVESTIGATION OF THE SITUATION, AND NO POLITICIAN OR COMBINATION OF POLITICIANS CAN PREVENT IT. THE MEUE POLICY OF THIS GOVERNMENT IS TO TENDER FREEDOM IN TRADE AND INTERCOURSE AND TO MAKE THIS TENDER IN

SUCH A FRATERNAL WAY THAT IT SHALL BE AN OVERTURE TO THE CANADIAN PEOPLE TO BECOME A PART OF THIS REPUBLIC.

The settlement of the Northwest Territory, the Louisiana and Florida purchases, the annexation of Texas, and the acquisition from Mexico are examples of the adaptation of our form of government for expansion, to absorb and units, to enrich and build up, to ingraft in our body politic adjacent countries, and while strengthening the older States, confer prosperity and development to the new States admitted into this brotherhood of Republican

"With a firm conviction that this consummation most devoutly to be wished is within the womb of destiny and believing that it is our duty to hasten its coming, I am not willing for one, to vote for any measure not demanded by national honor that will tend to postpone the good time coming when the American flag will be findingal and sign of the union of all the signal and sign of the union of all the English-speaking peoples of the continuent from the Rio Grande to the Arotic

After quoting the late Brastus Wiman, a number of American newspapers and the late Goldwin Smtih to show how the intrigue was helped by Canadian public men, Colonel Denisor quotes a letter written by Francis Wayland Glen, secretary of the Continental Union Association, giving the details of a meeting called by Wikird Laurier on Nov. 4, 1893, which sent a deputation to New York to ask funds of the National Continental Union League for the approaching elections. The delegation met Mr. Dana, Mr. Carnegie and Glen in the office of The Sun on Nov. 6. Mr. Tarte asked as beginning for $50,000 with which to purchase LeMonde newspaper, and John Morrison of Toronto, who represented Sir Oliver Mowat, asked for $50,000 to purchase a labor paper in Toronto. Mr. Carnegie asked Mr. Tarte if he was prepared to pledge the Liberal party to the independence of Canada as a presude to the continental union. Mr. Tarte replied that if the union furnished the money for the elections and the Liberals were successful, they would do so. Mr. Carnegie them asked Hom. Mercler if he would contest the Province of Quebec in favor of the independence of Canada as a presude to the continental union. He said "Yes."

Colonel Denison interjects here that this statement could not be taken a reliable. "Glen himself was not reliable and it is not at all probable that Si Wilfrid Laurier had anything to dwith sending these men to New York and yet some of them may have tolden that he had, or Glen may have as sumed it. Certainly Sir Oliver Mowamapplication of any kind. I do not be leve he would have entrusted him with any mission, and I am sure Sir Oliver Mowamapplication of suy kind. Mr. Mercler said his trip the east had been a success and wou bring out a strong and very important movement in favor of Canadian independence. In Its Fight.

The following, from The Chicago Daily Journal, shows that the spirit of trotherliness exists even among the newspapers of the Windy City:

EXPLANATION TO READERS OF THIS PAPER.

Compositors employed by The Chicago Examiner and The Chicago American yesterday afternoon struck and left those offices without printers.

James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union, on being informed of this action, last night sent the following telegram from Washington.

"American and Examiner, Chicago, linois. Strike unauthorized, illegal and without warrant. You are authorized to publish this despatch.—James I. Lynch."

The violation of the contract rights of the Hearst newspaper was a violation of the contract under which all the other newspapers worked, and as The American is able to-day to print only four pages, the other newspapeers limit themselves to the same size issue.

In The columns of The Chicago Examiner and The Chicago newspapeers all the other Chicago newspapeers the other newspapeers for type set on a basis of wider columns the president of the union insisted that printers should be paid for work they did not do.

The statement of the circumstances leading up to yestterday's strike is as follows:

"On Feb. 3, 1911, James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union; J. W. Hays, vice-presented the statement of the statemen

Typographical Union, No. 16, employed in the daily newspapers of Chicago.

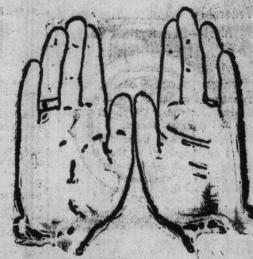

"The award went into effect at one in all the offices. After it became effective, a question was raised by printers employed in the offices of The Chicago American and The Chicago Examiner, the printers claiming they were entitled to be paid on the basis of 13 1-2 ems per line, whereas the actual type set measured less than 13 ems per line. The columns of The Chicago Examiner and The Chicago American are slightly narrower than the columns of all the other Chicago newspaper. Therefore, in demanding compensation for type set on a basis of wider columns, the president of the union in papers, in compilance with thee contract with the printers' union, agreed to sumit the disputed question for settlement to the joint standing committee, a body authorized under the conract between the typographical union and the newspapers to settle all differences of opinion. This offer of settlement was made in the communication by Victor F. Lawson, president of the Chicago local American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in a letter dated Feb. 18. It was renewed in or letter dated Feb. 28. In spite of these requests and also in spite of an offer made by the management of The Chicago American and Examiner to denesit the small difference in wages with the president of the Chicago Typagraphical Union, No. 16, to be held by him until the final award was made, a strike was called at 3 p.m. yesterday in the o ces of the two newspapers mentioned. This strike was ordered in violation of the most binding contract and acreement to refer any and all matters in dispute to the standing committee for settlement. In taking that action, the union violated its own bylaws as well as its contract, and arbitration agreement."

Good Roads Cline.

C. H. Cline, barrister, of Cornwall, was in the city Saturday. Mr. Cline is a great advocate of good roads. His idea is that the Federal government should build as standards one or more trunk roads, east and west, and that the provinces should build one or more roads north and south to meet these trunk roads. These roads would be standing examples of how roads should be built. It looks like a good idea.

Thursday Night's Protest Meeting In Massey Hall

The mass meeting in Massey Hall next Thursday evening, to protest against the reciprocity agreement, so far from being of Conservative inspiration, will, to judge by the appearance of the platform, look more like a Liberal rally, for the 18 prominent Liberals who signed the memorial against the agreement will all occupy seats. Probably no small portion of the assembly in the body of the hall will be said to The Sunday World: made up of citizens who usually vote $1000 capital goes in with a man with cut loose on a great issue.

"I am willing to take any of the men back," said Manager Bailey to The World Saturday night, "but I will not reengage them as a body.

Mr. Bailey said they had no reason to strike and all of them were making "good" money.

J. P. Bickeil & Co. say at the close: Early in the week eleventh-hour liqui-ation took place, values recording new dation took place, values recording new lows for present bear movement, but toward the close of the week there was heavy covering for short account and slight improvement in investment demand, which was inspired by very light receipts, and the opinion that the proposed treaty between the United States and Canadas would not be ratified at the present session of the United States Congress. The immediate tendency of the market is difficult at the moment to forecast, as there are a number of unusual factors present, that will have a great deal of bearing on future values. The proposed trade treaty is the most important one. We continue to advise scalping operations, and, as receipts are extremely light, and we are approaching the crop scare period, we favor accepting the long position on all good declines for moderate profits.

Why do they wear their hats in the legislature? is a question to which those familiar with parliamentary principles and usuges have a ready answer. It is not as some young city people might imagine because some of the members are from back country districts, and are unenlightened upon urban ettoret. ban etiquet.

The foundation of the right is bus

The foundation of the right is based upon the most profound and important principle of constitutional government.

The origin of the custom, according to some historians, was picturesque and dramatic, and formed an incident in one of the most thrilling events in the vivid annals of continental Europe.

In the troublous times, immediately ante-dating the reign of terror and French revolution, the King of France, as a means towards stemming the rising tide of revolt, summoned a convention of the states general. When the French monarch arrived on the scene, the representatives of the French democracy kept their hats on. The monarch demanded the reason why they did not uncover in the presence of royalty.

A chosen spokesman informed the angry and agitated monarch that the states general retained their hats to assert the principle that, in their capacity of representatives of the expression dishes of the sentatives of the sovereign right of the were as follows:
Year ending Dec. 31, 1908.....$ 50,893.81
Year ending Dec. 31, 1909..... 169,555.30
Year ending Dec. 31, 1910..... 207,899.93
The net earnings for 1910 show the bond interest earned almost three times a member of parliament during house proceedings has been the assertion of sovereignty of the people.

Very few of the present legislators at Toronto wear their hats while the house is sitting. Sir Oliver Mowat frequently wore a high hat tilted forward almost over his eyes. Sir Oliver's big hat was then the most prominent object of the famous veteran reform prime minister's attire.

Sir James Whitney and the other members of his caldinet, also Hon. A. G. Mackay, leave their hats in their rooms. Alian Studholme, the irrepressible Labor representative, who is so uncompromising on everything else, compromises on the hat question by presented a skull can.

What, another insurgent? was an ejaculated query when outspoken criti-cism of departmental administration was heard from a ministerial membe in the house. In the case alluded to the insurgency was a minor portion of a speech in the main strongly com-mending the progressive policy of the administration. It was not that the government was doing verong, but its work was so welcome that a great quantity was wanted and in faster de-liveries. While the provincial oppositthon has failed to develop anything this session upon which to appeal for the support of the electorate every week has witnessed to the substantial additions to the progressive policy of the government. This is the natural sequence of the election of a government party containing a large proportion of the most vigorous representative men of the newer portions of the province. Loyal to the core in their adherence to the Whitney government, the sharpest criticism has this session come from the right of the speaker. No healthler sign is possible of the vitality of the

MINING STOCKS AFFECTED BY WEAKNESS OF OTHER MARKETS

Hollinger the Leading Issue in Point of Strength-Advances 25 p.c. in Week.

SUNDAY MORNING

World Office,
Saturday Evening, March
Interest in the Toronto mining exchanges in so far as spectacular price movements go, veered from the regular Cobait stocks to hollinger, the pressive excelling between $5.76 and $5.30; this week Last Saturday these shares were selling between $5.76 and $5.30; this week they touched $8.25, a net advance of 245 points, or about 40 percent. And it cannot be said that this rapid appreciation in values came as any great surprise to "the street." There has been only a modicum of Holinger stock in the market since the time the flotation was made, and from the underwriting price of $3.50 per share, the issue has mounted to its high figures with scarcely a set-back. It is altogether probable that a moderate short interest had been accumulated shortly after the initial trading in the shares on the mining markets, and when those who had taken this side of the exchange took note of the rapid advance in values, endeavored to cover their committements, they found themselves compelled by sheer necessity to take a bir loss, before they to cover their committements, they found themselves compelled by sheer necessity to take a big loss, before they could command sufficient stock to meet

During the same year the Cobalt Lake, to make a comparison, shipped $00 tons of ore, of nearly the same standard, and thereby turned a debit balance of some $10,000 into a surpius of $60,000. Shareholders of Little Nipissing are asking themselves how such a discrepancy could have occurred. $10,000 was paid out for the new lease on their Peters'n Lake holding, but, deducting this, there is left a considerable sum unaccounted for. These figures are only apcould command sufficient stock to meet their contracts. A successful squeeze of shorts generally proves an attractive buying argument, and the movement in Hollinger was no exception to this rule.

A public offering of 100,000 shares of Hollinger stock was underwritteen in New York at $3.50 per share late last year. The total capitalization of the company, which is known as the Hollinger Gold Mines, Limited, is $3,000,-

DOME ERECTING MILL

Work Progressing Rapidly—Should Be Up by May 15.

PORCUPINE CITY, March 2.—(From Our Man Up North)—The foundation to the big mill at the Dome is going in and two drills are at work pounding out the rock where the stamps are to rest. A 50-foot cut is being made to the south and east side where the mill is to stand, while the north and west sides run out even with the earth surface.

The management at the Dome are anxious that the mill should be up and ready for work by the middle of May, but contracts do not call for a complete mill before June 1. The company's millwright is on the job, watching the work as it progresses.

Cotton Gosstp. Erickson Perkins & Co. had the folicwing at the close of the market:
Heaviness prevailed thruout to-day's short session, and the market plainly showed the weakened technical position brought about by the elimination of the short interest on the recent upward swing on 80 to 100 points. Bulls have again demonstrated their inability to advance prices in the face of poor trade, large receipts and general apathy, and the market looks more than ever dominated by fundamental conditions, namely, supply and demand. Present indications point to a gradual sagging to 14c, where a renewal of trade buying is expected.

ENQUIRE FIRST, THEN ACT GOVERNMENT TOO HASTY

Before the government attempts of disturb the present conditions, Mr. Wickett suggested that it secure:

1. A report from the railway commission on the probable effect of the diversion of trade south on our transportation system.

2. The appointment of a tariff commission and a report on effect of the proposed changes on certain industries.

3. A report from the labor cepartment on comparative prices in Canada, Great Britain, the United States, the twelve most favored national the past fivt years. tions during the past fivt years.

Mr. Wickett said in part:

Transportation.

Transportation.

The problem of transportation must accordingly remain not merely a trade question, but a national and political question. Already on certain classes of freight it is cheaper to send from Ontario and Eastern Canada via Mexico to Vancouver, than direct by the C. P. R.; and on some commodities rates from Liverpool via the Suez Canal are lower than via Montreal. This can but mean that British Columbia is to be a new distributing centre for to be a new distributing centre for Western Canada to the far east, and on many lines to Great Britain and Europe, as well; while the Hudson Bay route must be regarded as a minor auxrope, as well; while the Hudson Bay route must be regarded as a minor auxiliary, whose ultimate success it is impossible to predict. One can readily understand, therefore, how the present tendencies are towards a three-fold division of Canada—cast, west and centre—a fourth division might be made of the marritime province. One can understand federal effort to secure facilities for transport by rul and water reaching into the interior, with the object of combining all provinces into a united and contented country. Our great interior must be linked to the Atlantic and the Pacific, otherwise the door of Canada remains but half open to the world. Experts assure us that if our transportation facilities are to be successful, the ships that leave our shores laden with Canadian produce, must return laden with the produce of other countries. The grain and salmon and lumber that leave British Columbia for Great Britain must return with British wares, and the ships that leave tish wares, and the ships that leave Eastern Canada with freight for transshipment across Mexico, must depend for their continuance on return cargoes to Great Britain thence Britis, cargoes to Canada. What will be the effect of Canada's encouraging the diversion of freight from our present and prespec-tive routes east and west? The effect may be much more than we anticipate is such a policy of diversion to the United States in harmony with our present ambitions which are costing many millions yearly, and will cost minion? If our freight might just as well go south, why are we spending from $50,000 to $100,000 or more per mile for our Grand Trunk Pacific and why are we planning for a Hudson Bay route? There would seem to be a clash or a change of policy somewhere.

In 1890, there were three railway lines from the United States entering into med for hurry. The government has been considering for some time the appointment of a tariff commission. millions more to this young Do-

day lines cross it at over a dozen points, and a number of stub lines run to the border and can readily be ex-tended to tap any desired district. These great foreign transportation companies must undoubtedly follow with interest, and perhaps with more than interest, the courst of our trade san expert body and with a report from legislation. Indeed, it is whispered that a the railway commission on the likely certain agricultural publication recenty received some $50,000 from some corporation in favor of freer trade with country and the governmental routes. the United States, and if the growing as well would be in a position to form number of railway lines from the United States are not able to get sufficient small about these things, but let us act small about these things, but let us act in a spirit worthy of the issues at return freight, may we not expect these rations to endeavor to secure control of the means of agitation, i.e., the play. western press, for anything they may desire? It is quite possible that from freer trade with the United States wo may get some honey, but we may be stung for our trouble. I submit that before the government asks the country to give its support to a diversion of trade southward, it should ask for a public report from cur railway commission for the guidance of public opinion as to possible results. The delicacy and intricacy of our trade relations warrants one in asking that the public be fully informed by this expert body, whose business it is to study this special set of problems, before they can be expected to vote on a measure that may mean so much for our national stability, and on which they cannot

When a certain prominent "Hilltopper" was requested recently to go to the Union Station to meet Cousin Isabel he faced a task that was calculated to dismay most men. In the first place he had never seen a photgraph of her. The necessity for his selection as isster, who knew her well, had suddenly fallen ill.

"Never fear," said his sister, when Mr. Hilltop demurred, "you can't make a mistake. Just pick out the prettiest girl you see, with dark eyes and hair and a tall, graceful creature. That will be Cousin Isabel.

So Mr. Hilltop waited at the station. Many young women alighted and many of them were pretty. Some of them stood about a sudden of the trade proposals.

Itall, willowy brunette, dark of eye, graceful of carriage and strikingly beautiful, entered the waiting room. For a moment is the gazed about expectantly. Then Mr. Hilltop stepped boldly forward.

"I-ah—I beg pardon," he said, "but are you cousin Isabel—er—I mean Miss is abel Dash?"

"Nover fear," said his sister, when Mr. Hilltop, "but really, you see, I can hardly be blamed. My sister told me to select the prettiest girl in sight and—you see, with dark eyes and hair and a tall, graceful creature. That will be Cousin Isabel didn't come—"

"Oh, yes, she did,' said a chilly voice at his elbow, and Mr. Hilltop turned to meet the scornful gaze of another pair of dark eyes, which continued to look scornful gaze of another pair of dark eyes, which continued to look scornful gaze of another pair of dark eyes, which continued to look scornful gaze of another pair of dark eyes, which continued to look scornful gaze of another pair of dark eyes, which continued to look scornful gaze of another pair of dark eyes, which continued to look scornful executions it has been carrying on affecting of fisherless international waterways. the important and successful negotia-tions it has been carrying on affecting ur fisheries, international waterways. and the proposed international railway commission, etc., may not have moved it to help out the Republican party from the impasse into which it had fallen. Morley Wickett Suggests at home and now differ from them, are not patriotic as well. Our negotiators propose certain changes by the United States in their tariff. It may be that Into Effect.

In an address before the Canadian Club at London the other day, S. Morley Wickett, formerly professor of political economy, discussed the reciprocity arrangement from a non-partison standpoint.

Before the government attendations are wise ones; it may be that they are not but whether they are not, it is the duty the government to convince us. We want to be informed on these points just as much as we do on the possible results of trade diversion. As a possible transportations. tariff discussions I have never heard nor read of one in which so little material for argument was presented by the government. Now the various interests affected by the proposals—milling, British Columbia fishing, the steel intersts, the salt industry, paper industry and pork packing and certain lines; of fruit growing, have made strong recommendations to the government that injustice is being done them, and that some of them will be practically killed. The pork packers, for example, point out that on account of hog cholera in the United States, they would not be able to purchase hogs in would not be able to purchase hogs in the United States freely, and recipro-city in pork would, therefore, only he apparent, and their industry must nacessarily suffer, if not go to the wall; and Dr. Rutherford, the Dominion veterinary, states that it would be impos-sible for the packers to secure Americar hogs without at least a 30-day quarantine on each shipment. I mention this merely as one of a great many possible illustrations affecting this and the other interests concerned. It is not to be thought for a moment that our Canadian negotiators are omni-scient, or have the most reliable information or knowledge with regard to a multitude of industries, about which edge. It is not, therefore, British jus-tice that these industries should have their conditions of continued existence changed without careful investigation and these industries being consulted and warned. The proposition resolves itself into their being executed without being heard, and without any right of appeal. The reply is simply—You are too late. The Big Stick. A year ago the United States bran dished the big stick and threatentd that the maximum tariff would be apthat the maximum tariff would be applied against this country unless certain tariff concessions were made. The duties of certain lines of industries, particularly lithographing, leather and scap, were then reduced without the industries affected being consulted at all. If the government's hands were forced, allowance must be made. But it is not transfer services affected by the scattering of the services are transfer services affected in the services are transfer services and the services are transfer services are transfer services and the services are transfer services are transfer services are transfer services and the services are transfer services are transfer services and the services are transfer services and the services are transfer services are tr it is an extremely serious situation, if, without a moment's warning, by order in council, or by the party whip, the conditions under which capital has conditions under which capital has been invested can all be changed. If domestic and foreibn capital once gets the notion that the government of the day, on political provocation, or for political expediency, may change materially the duties on certain lines of goods, without the interests concerned being consulted, and carefully considered, it must prove in the end to be a great prejudice to the continuent investment of many lines of capital among us. ### SIX OF THE LATEST CHIC TAILORED SUITS FROM PARIS

BEAD TRIMMINGS ARE USED ON DRESSY SUIT MODELS—Tho there seems to be absolutely no relationship between beads and tailored wear, yet many of the French suits in more dressy style, have bead embroideries on the coats. A Redfern model, pictured here, of supple black satin, has a sailor collar and pocket motifs embroidered with the small "milk" beads of white porcelain which show up very strikingly on black. The cut of coat and skirt, in the straight, unshaped effect, is very smart. The pocket motifs—set high to suggest a shortened waistline.

This style has crept back to favor, as some of the advanced Parisian models reveal, tho as yet the peplum has not appeared in readymade garments. The suit pictured is of crow's wingblue satin — the very dark blue that is almost black in the shallows—and the braiding is done with fine black soutache. The sailor collar on the coat, in conjunction with the fitted peplum, makes this little spring suit very smart indeed.

Of Your Automobile Maintenance by Keeping Your Car at Home, Of interest to all automobile owners and parties who are building, that have not a garage, also contractors and farmers: The McMartin Portable Automobile Garages are made of best open-hearth steel galvanized. They are Rust-Proof, Lightning-Proof, Weather-Proof, Strong, Lasting and Attractive in Appearance; made in sections and shipped knocked down; put together with bolts; easily taken apart or set up; can be moved wherever you move; especially adapted as Automobile Garages, Outing Cottages, Boat and Bath Houses, Hunting Lødges, Storehouses, Contractors' Storage and Tool Houses.

For cottages it may be sub-divided into two or more rooms, with metal lath and plastered partitions. When walls are lathed and plastered, you have a building as warm as any brick or wood-walled building.

Maintenance cost either makes the automobile practical or extravagant. The garage charge is the big item in up-keep cost, and is a perpetual expense. Keeping your car at home, in your own garage, does away with all storage charges. The saving in one season by having your own garage will generally amount to more than the garage charges. The home garage also tends to reduce repair expenses. The man who keeps his own car at home soon becomes accustomed to doing more or less fixing of his own machine that would otherwise be done at the garage. Particulars as to cost, etc., by

THE LIGHT OF FIREFLIES.

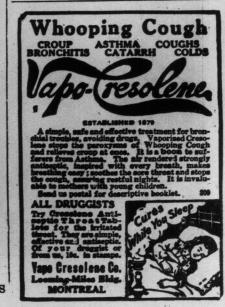

A study of the luminescense of the firefly, and especially of the chemical problems involved, by F. Alex McDermott, of Washington, D.C., has brought forward several very interesting points.

So far as is now known, says this investigator, two constant chemical factors, water and oxygen, are necessary for the production of light by a living organism. The third necessary factor, the substance oxidized, may be, and probably is, variable. The luminous organ of the firefly consists of two layers of material under the outer transparent covering. The inner of these two layers consists mainly of guanin, a compound similar to uric acid, and this probably serves as a reflector. The outer layer consists of a mass of cells, normally of a pale yellow color. Both layers are pene-trated by innumerable minute trachae (ducts) which unite in the interior of the insect to form larger passages and run together in the outer layer of yellow cells, forming a network some-what resembling the finer veining of

It is practically certain that in life these passages are filled with air, and it seems probable that the photegenic process is accompanied by the evolu-tion of carbon dioxide and the consumption of the oxygen of th eair.

Who Made a Fortune in Private Enterprises, Gives His Best Thought and Energy to the People of His Province CAN PAC

HERE is nothing Canada needs so much in her nascent nationhood as ideals. Some people by ideals mean dreams and notions which never can have any place on earth and could not be tolerated at either of the subjective poles. Ideals are merely the best things in the world; the perfection of human progress; the reality of hope and the substance of things not seen by humanity in the first-week-kitten stage. The men who make ideals manifest are the men who give the practical lead to nations. They are not only dreamers, but workers. Their thoughts are the toil of the future, and the toils of the past are their abandoned dreams, still beautiful and inspiring for those who follow, while they dream new labors for the days to come. They are not only dreamers, but workers. "The dreamer lives for ever," says John Boyle O'Reilly, "but the toiler." that is, the mere toiler, "dies in a day." Lord Rosebery who understands these toiling dreamers and has never been quite sure whether he should be one himself, calls them practical mystics. He takes Oliver Cromwell as an example, and history is the setting in which the jewels of their lives are emblazoned. They have knowledge, but they have the greater wisdom of action; and the still greater wisdom of the abandonment of the fruits of action. What they do is done for the gain of the nation or the race, and they gain the world by losing themselves in the world's work. In India they call these men of royal race Rajputs. But he is not a Rajput who is one outwardly. He is a Rajput who is one inwardly, and the tokens are of the heart and the spirit.

It is men of this stamp that make a nation great, and if true greatness ever crowns this Canada of ours it will be by the adoption of the standards such men raise. "Let us raise a standard to which the wise and the honest may repair," said George Washington. "The event is in the hands of God."

Fortunately Canada has already produced many men of the type of disinterested self-devoted public spirit, and who have cheerfully sacrificed private ease and profit for the sake of public service. In every provincial government there are some who work not for the gains of office, but for the public good. The esteem and respect of their fellow citizens is sufficient reward, the it may not equal the satisfaction which follows accomplished duty.

It might be thought by some, and the mistake does occur, of thinking that such men are so absorbed in their duties and ideals that they do not touch the levels of ordinary humanity at all. This would be a failure on their part, were it the case. For it is towards the perfection of human kind they are tending, and not towards a super-humanity. They do not differ from the kindly race of men. But they are not afraid of the gulfs and the deeps where the common herd find no lure. All nations that become great furnish such men as naturally as the orchard furnishes bloom and fruit. The Canadian orchard is already in blossom.

Ontario especially has been happy in her public men, and as occasion requires there seems to be no lack. When the development of Cobalt brought about the expansion of the T. & N. O. Railway, and the construction of the Transcontinental Line entailed its extension to Cochrane there was some speculation as to where a suitable man could come from, or how he could be induced to immerse himself in such an engrossing and inconspicuous employment. Jacob Lewis Englehart was the man, ground and turned and edged on the great wheels of experience.

Mr. Englehart is not a Canadian because he could not help it, but by personal choice and election. He came to Ontario in 1870 at the age of 23, and is a naturalized citizen. Born in Cleveland, November 2, 1847, he went to New York in 1860 and engaged in the oil trade. He became a partner in his firm, and ten years later founded his own business at London. The Ontario oil fields looked good to him, and he made them good. The London business gave way to the Hamilton business when he bought out the Carbon Oil Co., and moved it to Petrolia in 1881. Ten years later there was another reorganization and the concern moved to Sarnia. In the course of this oil trading Mr. Englehart acquired much railway knowledge, for oil and rails have an affinity. He met all the oil kings and all the railway kings, and when he had learned all their moves, he chose a bigger game than they knew how to play.

Public service offers a career for the young and swealthy, and for the mature and successful. So may our young men of leisure elect not to waste their time and talents. but to give them to the nation; and the elders of the business world leave their own successes to assure the success of the country. The T. & N. O. is a case in point Returning from a holiday in Europe in 1906 Mr. Englehart plunged into the multitudinous detail of the provincial railway. The section men say he knows every nut and bolt on the road. He can grasp the broadest aspect of public policy and he masters the minutest details. It is not only that he can, but he does. He is of the Kitchener type in military matters, and leaves nothing to chance. Everything is provided for. Railway engineers will tell you that the T. & N. O. Railway has the finest piece of roadbed outside of England. That means thoroness.

JACOB LEWIS ENGLEHART

And there is not a man who works under him, but knows that he has a heart. The widow and the fatherless are not forgotten. The stranger and the sojourner in the northland could tell many a tale of generous consideration.

Mr. Englehart has been loved where he dwelt, and his neighbors have him in remembrance. He has made his sorrows a praise to the Lord, and heavy bereavements have become the means of lifting the burdens of others. A munificent gift to the citizens of Petrolia was Mr. Englehart's own house. for use as a public hospital, with the beautiful grounds of 35 acres as a park. In the Town of Englehart his sponsorial care has been exercised in many pleasant ways, the pretty park and conservatory testifying to his love of beauty. When such ability, such experience, such philanthropy and such amiability are devoted to the public benefit, there is good reason to hope that the best traditions of older lands are to be perpetuated and excelled in Canada. Such men are an earnest of the world that is to be.

Living so closely to the United States as we do, where the money-god thunders his new commandments, and the only gospel for general public consumption is the gospel of self-assertion, Canada cannot be sufficiently grateful to men who will set such an example of citizenship as Mr. Englehart has given. Hundreds of young men with brains and education and the abiding sense of human potentiality turn cynical thru frequent experiences of selfishness and indifference to national interests, and abandonment to all that goes under the name of "graft." It has gone so far that the big men, the clean men, the generous-hearted and big-hearted men are often called fools for their pains. Not only, then, for mere efficiency of service; not for the successful operation of public utilities, and the development of national resources are our public men of this stamp to be honored; but for the demonstration they make of what can and what ought to be done with the opportunities that have been granted to them; to be an inspiration for those who follow, a testimony that life to not all vanity, nor wealth the only goal; but that in work for others and in identification with the expanding life of the people there is to be obtained the gichest treasure of earth, and the deepest wisdom of life.

The King and the Queen and the Crowd

By W. B. Thompson. LONDON, March 4.-Long experier has made me somewhat of a judge of breeds cheers. A great personage is never cheered when he is unknown to the sight of the multitude. People are too intent on gazing and observing to give vent to their feelings at the mo ment of passing. They forget the shouting till afterwards. This is why as a rule a London crowd seems always more demonstrative than a provincial one where royalty is concerned.

The latter seems to see; the former has seen before and wants to cheer. has seen before and wants to cheer. Some people have been suggesting that the greeting given to the King and Queen on their progress to open parliament was not remarkable for its enthusiasm, but the truth was that everyone wanted so much to see the King and what he was wearing, and the Queen, and what she had on, that they did not cheer. When during this year state progresses have become commonplaces there will be abundant

The gather ng was a very crowded one, and had the large dining-room at the club been twice the size it would not have been too ample for those who desired to hear the Unionist leader. He was not to my mind, in his happlest mood. He had been speaking in the house of commons in the afternoon on precisely the same subjects, and it was not to be expected that he could impart freshness to the themes. Mr. Balfour freshness to the themes. Mr. Balfour otherwise is not improving as a speaker. I always imagine his mind as being of the periscopic order, and thus seeing all round. He continually catches himself up and finds himself tripping when he need not. He suggests a man who is thinking out his views, and as he comes along the mental pethway suddenly finds unexpected vistas opening out here and there. Unfortunately that sort of thing is death to enthusiasm. death to enthusiasm.

do, if opposed, is also known, but what the lords will do, not even the lords themselves know. To-day they are a anxious to reform themselves as a schoolboy trembling in fear of a spanking; to-morrow they sulk and refuse to do anything.

What they probably will do is to listen to the dictates of Mr. Balfour, who is once more the absolute master of his followers in the house of lords, and Mr. Balfour is an expert in the art of delaying matters, and will do so as long as he possibly can, but in the end, if he thinks that a reform bill in the house of lords will help the fight against the veto bill in the house of commons, the bill will be produced; if he does not, we shall probably hear a great deal more about its advent, but great deal more about its advent, but we shall never see much of it.

Whichever policy the lords may adopt it is a matter of indifference to the gover ent and the Liberal party. From their point of view, both policies have their advantages, and the government will be quite ready to go forward with their attack, whether the lords produce a reform bill or not.

"Shadow of The Cross" In London Gallery

Picture by Canadian Artist Recently Exhibited in Toronto Creates Stir

LONDIN; March 4 .- A strangely ingenius pictorial experiment which for more than a decade has filled auto what Private Ortheris lovingly calls "The bloomin' old rag over'ead" is diences in Canada and the United States with wonder and awe, has been placed on view at the Dore Galleries. It is by Mr. Henri Ault, a Canadian artist, and, seen in full light, is an ordinary representation of the amply draped figure of the Saviour silhouetted against a clouded sky. But the moment the lights are turned out and complete darkness prevails in the room the figure of Christ remains as a black silhouette against a luminous, phos-phorescent background, on which ap-pears, a little vague in outline, but still > Unlike the "picture with the moving eyes," this "Shadow of the Cross" owes nothing to mechanism and cunning contrivances of lighting. There is no reason to doubt the assertion that no phosphorescent matter is applied to the surface of the canvas, and that the painter is spite of terrotter. that the painter, is spite of tempting offers, has been unable to reproduce the effect, which is presumably due to the mixing of some phosphorescent substance with the pigments used for the sky. The picture would thus be painted partly with ordinary pigments— the figure and the part of the sky there the cross appears when the light phosphorescent mixture, which is only used for the luminous portion.

Aeroplanes For Army Officers

Experiments Along Mexican-U.S. Border Have Created Strong Impression in England.

LONDON, March 4.—The experiments made in America with aeroplanes under conditions of actual warfare along the conditions of actual warfare along the Mexican border have created a strong impression here even among the officials of the war department, and this is undoubtedly the reason why it is now said that in a very near future a large number of aeroplanes will be bought for the use of English army officers. The British War Department was until quite recently, almost assured of the uselessness of the areoplane for military purposes and, like German miltary authorities, pinnied its faith almost entirely to the dirigible airship, but now the authorities will dethis year in the matter of anti-skid devices for chains. The majority of these are based on the principle of permitting circumferential creep; that is, the chain which encircles the tire is not anchored rigidly to the rim of the wheel, the felloe or the spokes, but the chain is free to creep slightly on the tire. This has the advantage of constantly changing the position of the cross chains on the tire and so preserving the tire. Another advantage of the circumferential creep is that when starting the tire can start faster than the chain. Owing to the friction of the chains on the There is particular activity shown

This main link extends across the entire tread and to its ends are ordinary steel hook links for connecting with the circumferential chains. The Kant-skid chain can be anchored to the wheel felloe.

On the Weed chain the ordinary type of cross chain is used and the circumferential chains have the usual clasp fasteners. A useful device to be used in conjunction with Weed chains is the equalizer spring, which consists of four radially placed springs that sit outside of the wheel spokes. At their centre they connect with a common chain part that surrounds the wheel hub, and at the outer ends hook onto the circumferential chains is the wheel hub, and at the outer ends hook onto the circumferential chains are on steel forged centre link, which is car on steel forged centre link, which is heat-treated, is to give increased mileage. It has a corrugated surface bearing on the order and a plain surface bearing on the tire. Ordinary hookshaped steel links are used to connect cross link to the circumferential chain. A novel fastener is used for the circumferential chain. It is a curved lever with a hook on each end. One end of the chain fulcrums to a bend in the lever and the other end hooks into the short arm of the lever. On the long arm is a side hook which is anchored into the chain link. By this lever arrangement a take-up of 1%-inch in the chain length is possible.—

Goodyear Tires Lead by 128% At the Toronto Motor Show

Y a careful count on the Opening Night of the Toronto Show, (Feb. 25th), it was found that, comparing the number of Goodyear Tires on cars shown, with the representation of other makes, Goodyear had an actual lead of 128%.

The total number of sets bearing the Goodyear name and trade-mark was 57 sets. The next competitor had only 25 sets.

Is this not an overwhelming demonstration of Goodyear prestige? Is it not a safe assumption that the tires so generally chosen by the car manufacturers as proper equipment, are the tires you should choose to have on your car?

Goodyear Tires Will Be Standard Equipment on All High-grade Cars For 1911

We have received tire contracts from every Canadian automobile manufacturer, calling for a total of over 60 per cent. of all the cars to be turned out for 1911.

Orders were placed with us long before our factory in Bowmanville was completed. Manufacturers knew the Goodyear reputation, and were prompt to avail themselves of the advantages to be derived from the manufacure of these celebrated Tires right here in Canada.

Already we have been obliged, by reason of the heavy demand, to increase our factory facilities. We are now well equipped to handle the enormous business in Goodyear Tires that is springing up all over the country.

For, be it known, the phenomenal Goodyear lead of 128 per cent. at the Toronto Show is not merely a local popularity—this record is but an index of the strong approbation of Goodyear Tires that is being shown everywhere throughout the Dominion.

Standardization of Design Was Keynote of Recent Show

Manufacturers Have Arrived at Type of Car Which is Ideal Some General Comment.

It has been said by experts that the expect that the time will come when the higher grades of cars that questine parts of one make of car may be tion has been now rather thoroly setused in another. Such complete stand- tled and the refinements are what deardization as this would hardly be mand attention. First of these in importance has been silence and it is generally conceded now that the engimanufacturer in order that a continued possible in solving the problems along this line that have been handed to advance may be made in construction then and shop practises.

But the one car may differ from another in many details, there is no reason why we should not arrive at a standardization of general design, and standardization of general design, and this is rapidly approaching. Manufacturers seem to have determined upon a certain type as the ideal car for what is by far the largest class of motorists, everyday people with moderate incomes. This ideal type predominated at the recent Toronto Show and these were terrelease to the standard stand dominated at the recent Toronto Show and there were a very large number of models which for practical purposes corresponded to the following specifications: Price, from $1000 to $2000; engine, a four cylinder, four cycle, water cooled motor of about thirty horse-power; double ignition by means of magneto and storage battery; clutch, metal to metal discs or leather faced Corresponded to the following special cations: Price, from $1000 to $2000; engine, a four cycle, water cooled motor of about thirty horse-power; double ignition by means of magneto and storage battery; clutch, metal to metal disco or leather faced cone; transmission selective; three speeds forward and reverse; control, hand and foot brakes, both on drums on the rear axle; foot accelerator; spark and throttle levers on the steering wheel; steering grear irreversible; carburetor, float feed; mustroom values of ling beam; body, five passenger touring with or without fore doors; top folding with side curtains.

One of the most important and significant changes that has occurred in the motor car industry during the past twelve months is the passing of the E. R. Thomas Motor Company of Buffalo, from the control of the Thomases into the hands of the well-known financial house of Eugene Thomases of Eugene There will, of course, always be a steel in the history of the country steel.

Thomases into the hands of the well-known financial house of Eugene Meyer, Jr., and Co., of New York City.

The Meyer interests have secured a small group of officials from the Packard Motor Car Company and have given them absolute control of the reorganization of the Thomas Company and its subsequent operation. This sroup has been carefully chosen with a view to placing a past master at the head of each of the important departments of production, marketing and finance. W. L. Body Design.

In body design the fore door is becoming almost universal. The general lines of the 1911 body are a happy compromise between the extreme torp do of last year and the ordinary touring car.

In the realms of the commercial vehicle very rapid advances have been made. All sorts of machines from the light delivery waggon to the five or ten ton truck were on exhibition and when one sees the ease with which the motor waggon does its work and the saving of time and expense which it makes, there is no doubt that the horse as far as hauling and delivery horse as far as hauling and delivery work go, is doomed.

Tires, accessories and removable rims have all kept pace with the general forward movement. Taking it all round the cars shown are rapidly nearing perfection and a man who cannot suit himself after a tour of the show must be hard to please indeed.

THE E-M-F.

There are probably no exhibits at the automobile show which will be more popular than that of the E-M-F Co. of Canada, Limited, Walkerville. Ont. This high valued and low priced car has been a drawing card at the shows since its inception and recent figures issued by the A. L. A. There has been practically no change in the chassis owing to universal satisfaction. The four L type cylinders develop 30-horsepower, and a speed in excess of 50 miles an hour. The three speed reverse selective type of transmission is the same standard

The special extra attraction on the Cast.

The special extra attraction on the bill for the week is J. C. Nugent, one of vaudeville's author comedians, assisted by Miss Jule York, in Mr. Nugent's best skit, "The Squarer." Mr. Nugent and Miss York keep their auditreatest play of modern times, "The pears as Dr. Williams, an osteopath, the offering, abounds with grotesque comedy.

Thru the sketch a story runs, a story of martial difficulties not unusual to the stage. The Three Juggling Hardings, who will appear as the extra added attraction, have gained an international reputation of being America's premier hat scalers and clubists of vaudeville. The members of the troupe are jugglers far above the average. While their agility and skill are shown in every one of the numerous tricks they perform, the hat scaling, one of the principal features of

A Chat on Acting With John Drew

John Drew having been asked recently if an actor ever really is, on the stage, the character he impersonates, replied: "No, no, not for a mo-ment. To assert otherwise is merely a delusion—a delusion frequently voiced a delusion—a delusion frequently voiced by certain actors, and some of them very excellent actors, at that. To ac-tually be the characters he imperson-ates would be for an actor a physical and mental impossibility. It would probobly be his death. Let me illus-trate. Hamlet's entire history—and rarely has a life story been more polg-nant and tragic—is acted on the stage within a space of three hours. Edwin Booth and Henry Irving played the role of Hamlet for one hundred con-secutive nights. Do you suppose that either of those players could actually have been Hamlet for that period—Hamlet with his distraught mind, his maddening suspicions, his strange frenzles, his spells of agonizing ter-ror—and not have gone mad himself? would be impossible.

"In this connection I recall a woman

"In this connection I recall a woman who once said to me referring to an impersonation of Camille by Madame Duse, the Italian actress: 'She positively was Camille—ther tears were absolutely real.' After a moment I asked: 'Did you ever read Tennyson's "Death of the May Queen?" 'Oh, yes,' the lady replied, 'and I cried my eyes out over it.' 'And, why' I continued, 'did you cry? Did you think you were the May Queen?" 'Oh, dear, no, 'she answered. 'but I felt so sorry for the poor child.' 'And that,' I said, 'Is why Madame Duse wept—not because she thought she was Camille—but because she was in sympathy with her.' she thought she was Camine—but be-cause she was in sympathy with her.'
"No, I repeat, a played could never by any possibility be the character he impersonates. All acting is to a great-er or less extent an imitation. It is an imitation of a figure in your mind's eye-an imitation of an imaginary man. You cannot be that man, but you must do your utmost to be in perfect sympathy with him; so that you may present him to your audience clothed with the proper physical and mental attributes, and you must also give careful consideration to the style of garments that particular man would wear. In that particular man would wear. In a word, you must create a personage who will appeal to the eye, the intellect and the emotions.

"Many players consider acting an emotional process. It is not. It is a purely intellectual process, it is were an emotional process, the player would be constantly affected by external happenings. Making a conception a solidly intellectual one, it becomes fixed, and nothing external interferes with it. Edwin Booth's conceptions of the

The Women's Medical Dispensary

It is often said if you want anything done get a busy person to do it and in making a study of the different charitable institutions of Toronto we find the same names appearing over and over again, proving the old adage true "The willing horse pulls the heaviest load."

Our women doctors have all been overworked showing a crying need for women in the medical profession.

The Woman's Dispensary is about a dozen years old and from the fact that over thirty-seven thousand consultations have taken place shows what a want this work fills in the

Each year its ministry has grown and the most capable woman doctors give their time ungrudgingly to this work bringing deliverance to many shrinking helpless women, unable to secure medical attendance and fearful of the hospitals. The dispensary has lately secured as its home number 18 Seaton-street and the faithful few who have treed by the movement have guaranstreet and the faithful few who have stood by the movement have guaranteed the payments for this home trusting that the public will come to their assistance with donations sufficient to not only pay for the building but enough that it may be properly equipped. Many cases come for help that necessitate a slight operation after which it is necessary for the patient to rest twenty four to forty-eight hours. If a resident nurse and beds were provided this would obviate the necessity of sending the patient to a hospital.

While she speculated, astonishment for the time driving from her mind

A devil indeed was looking out of the negro's eyes as he rose, and it was with relief that the girl saw Willing's hand move toward the butt of a revolver that protruded from his pocket. Presumably the negro, too, saw the movement, and had enough intelligence in his sluggish brain to tell him the meaning of the gesture. At all events, his tense strung limbs relaxed—he hade a fourth report. And on the heels of that—for so powerful had been the shock that the girl had not moved attitude of a cat about to spring—then attitude of a cat about to spr

There was a dozen cries, not one—a chorus like the raving of as many maniacs—and sharp above them rose he sound of an exploding pistol, the detonation rearing and reverberating in the pent stone walls, and another and another. There followed the sound of hurrying feet. Some seconds later, lantern's yellow door became visible in the darkness at the foot of the stairs, silhouetting Willing's feet and legs as he backed slowly down the corridor swearing furiously to himself in a half-

The Pleasure of Reading

Herein lies the real pleasure of reading—to touch hands with those who, having truly loved, have had the divine gift to translate their experience into communicative words so that we, sitting in our home, or lying on the hillsides, may be transported in imagination to live in joy what they may have passed thru in pain. Pleasure is transportation. It is a veritable carrying over of the spirit in the stress of a joyous experience.

In reading we re-live the dead and the past. It is not the David and Jonathan of the Bible of whom we read as loving each other; it is our better selves blossoming in fine impulses towards our friend.

It is not a fictitious tale of Faust and Mephistopheles; it is our own soul living the temptation and finding its strength thru the imagined experience.

We are again children who see the real in the ideal, and for whom the make-believe is the actual. And who shall say that children are not the very types of pleasure-knowing beings?—From "The Pleasure of Reading," by Temple Scott.

University of Cambridge.

(ENGLAND)

THE ENCYCLOPAEDICA BRITANNICA, as a most comprehensive exposition of exact knowledge, will be regarded as having found a natural abiding place. On its side, in assuming the charge of a most powerful instrument of a general instruction, the University takes a step in fulfilment of its responsibility towards a wider circle than that of its students.

A New Era of Human Experience

The importance of such an event as the issue of a new edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica would be very inadequately recognized if one thought of it merely as the publication of a book. It is much more than that -it actually marks an era of the world's social development, no less than of its commercial and industrial enterprise. The new discoveries in science and the remarkable expansion that has accompanied every branch of activity in all civilized countries during the last twenty-five years have involved a virtual reconstruction both in the premises and the conclusions upon which a large part of the knowledge of the eightles was based.

A Need of the Day

The new (11th) Edition will therefore meet a pressg need of the day, in that it will present, in orderly and convenient form, a scholarly and authoritative inventory of extant knowledge, in the light of the most recent research, and will supersede and displace all previous editions, as well as unauthorized and incomplete American reprints. The civilized world will be able to take stock as it were, of its knowledge—to reduce to concrete form the latest results of study, of experience, and of experiment in every department of knowledge.

The Greatest Book in the World

Successive editions-ten in all-of the Encyclopaedia Britannica have been issued since its first appearance in Edinburgh in 1768-1771. No other work of its kind has enjoyed so long and honorable a career, and none has been so widely distributed. Of the Ninth Edition. with Supplement (including mutilated and garbled American reprints), more than 400,000 copies were sold throughcan reprints), more than 400,000 copies were sold throughout the world. The work has gained a position of preeminence among works of reference which has never been seriously challenged. As a comprehensive repository of human learning, as a register of social and industrial progress, it has been a potent instrument of popular culture for the English-speaking people. It has, moreover, now come to be an international institution.

No completely new Edition of this celes and work has been issued since the Ninth, the first volume of which was published in 1875, the twenty-fifth in 1889.

Published by a University The publication of the new Eleventh Edition of the great Horary of universal knowledge by the University of Cambridge will be a fitting culmination to the steadily widening task of popular culture which Cambridge has successfully carried on for more than five centuries. Carlyle said that the true University is a collection of books, and since the new Encyclopaedia Britannica is a library in itself, it is fitted by its authoritative character and its universal appeal to exercise a far wider educational influence than if it were to be issued, as in the past, by a private publisher. Cambridge has, since 1871, been closely identified with University Extension—a movement having as its object the diffusion of knowledge outside the circle of mere students. The publication of the new Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica will be another step in the direction of spreading the influence of this ancient public institution beyond academic or local limits.

The Encyclopaedia Britannica is the only work in any language which has ever attempted to give adequate treatment to the whole field of human endeavor and to ensure that this shall be accomplished at the hands of the foremost scholars. All previous encyclopaedias have had a national limitation, being written by Englishmen for a national limitation, being written by Englishmen for Englishmen, by French for Frenchmen, by Germans for Germans, and Americans for Americans, and inevitably they have taken much of their contents at second hand from translations. The time is past when the scholars of one country alone were qualified to sum up the ascertained knowledge of the world, and to pass final judgment upon it. To-day an investigator in Germany to-morrow another in France, or, it may be, in some college in Canada—working inconspicuously along original lines of research—may add some new contribution to the world's knowledge which will modify, even if it does not actually nullify, previously accepted theories.

1,500 Contributors

It was therefore essential-in fact, it was inevitablethat the Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britan-nica should be planned and edited as a work of international scholarship. The 1500 contributors represent all civilized countries. The editors recognized at the outset that in the last twenty-five years there has been a closer communion of scholarly aims as between the nations of the world, and a readier acceptance of the achievements of other countries than ever before. They therefore approached their task in the spirit which recognizes that scholarship to-day knows no nationality, Among the many Canadian authorities who have contributed to the new edition may be mentioned the following: Prof. George McKinnon Wrong of the Toronto University, Dr. George Robert Parkin, CAMG., Professor William Lawson Grant of Ouean's University.

The Whole of the MS. Written Simultaneously

The new (Eleventh) Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is the only work of any magnitude ever written as a complete whole. Practically the entire contents have under the editorial eye before a single page was sent to the printer, the contributors having been at work simultaneously with a common purpose. In the past, the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been produced volume by volume, each having a different date from the others. In the case of the Ninth Edition, the interval between the completion of the first and the twenty-fifth volume was fourteen years.

Continuous Editorial Control

A decided advantage over its predecessors consists of the dact that, in the case of the Eleventh Edition, a large and exceptionally efficient editorial staff has been engaged continuously during eight years in directing the work of the contributors. All the volumes are of an even date (1910), and the information under each heading is complete and individual, and does not appear elsewhere, even in a different setting.

Reduced photograph showing difference in size between the volumes of the New (11th) Edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica on ordinary paper, and on the famous India paper. Note that, though the contents of corresponding volumes are identical, the bulk and weight are reduced by two-thirds in the new format.

The New Encyclopaedia Britannica

That the new (11th) edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica—besides being new, i.e., the result of a fresh survey of the world—carries forward the famous characteristics of earlier editions while developing other features which were latent, the reader may best judge for himself from the prospectus and specimen pages for which this announcement invites him to enquire. From these sources he will learn that, for the first time in its history, an edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica has been written, and will be issued, as one consistent whole, from A to Z. He will learn that the consequently more systematic manner of its preparation will be recognizable throughout its pages in the better distribution of more exhaustive information under twice as many headings as appeared in the previous edition, and that this development, while enhancing the value of the Encyclopaedia Britannica as a book for study and for reading, greatly increases its usefulness as a work of quick reference. He will learn also that, by the employment of India paper, a book of which the contents have always been intended for reading, has been rendered readable at last in the shape of light and slender

Sig Campanari, the famous and most popular baritone of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, is by universal acknowledgment one of the greatest operatic stars and concert attractions of the present time. He alone of all artists bears the distinction of having been engaged at the Metropolitan Opera House for twelve consecutive seasons. Giuseppe Campanari was born in Venice, and was a 'cello virtuoso at the age of nine years, when he traveled thruout Europe with his brother Leandro giving concerts in the larger cities. At the age of seventeen he accepted the position of first solo-'cellist in the grand orchestra of "La Scala" in Milan. Vocal art, however, attracted him greatly, much against the wishes of his friends, he secretly studied voice culture. During his career as 'cello virtuoso he appeared with extraordinary success in the leading cities of Europe.

Or if he writes one, as Eigar and Sibelius have for the violin, as Rachmaninoff has for the planoforte, as Reger has for both instruments, what does he do? He writes a symphonic plees in which the violin or the planoforte is the most conspicuous instrument, and he cares not whether he makes it "grateful" or "ungratefull" to the virtuoso, so long as, forsooth, makes it "grateful" or "angrateful" to the virtueso, so long as, forsooth, the music chall impart his doese and under the music and the content of the concerto, because he must have some respite from the everlassing class and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the "favorite" medicorlies, the plays it to the unnest of his ability, after and the many of the virtues. As the chemists are making pretty nearly everything out of coal tar products, including perfumes and flavoring extracts that can hardly be distinguished from genuine fruit and flower products, it does not seem incredible that vegetable matter, especially beans, should be induced to yield imitations of animal pro-

It is rather surprising, however, to learn that beans can be made to yield caselne in quantities to make it rival milk as a cheese producer without first being fed to and digested by a cow or a goat. Of course, milk comes under the head of the proverb that "All fresh is grass," and it will be extremely interesting to observe proof that milk and flesh foods can be gained by a dhemical foods can be gained by a dhemical short cut that eliminates the ruminating animal.

It may mark a great advance in making of food products, for what can be made out of the Soja bean can probably be made from other beans, and the chemists of the world, being directed towards this end, will show the way to produce cheese, milk and casoine without the intervention of the cow, saving much loss, and making these important products very cheap.

The Montreal River

By W. Milton Yorke, of Gowganda.

This is the prospector's highway Cut out by the Creator's hand, From Temasking's rolling waters Way up to the height of land; Thru leagues of dusky jack pines, Still north and west it winds its way Where northern tempests roar.

And its waters sing of the northland As they tumble towards the sea, A silver song in notes of foam Of the lone land, vast and free. With its unshorn miles of pine land, Its mineral treasures rare: Of prosperous homes and ax man's might To shear its valleys bare. It calls to the hardy prospector, It calls to the hungry throng, In whispers low, as its waters flow

Where the smoke of the Indian tepee Meets the haze of the northern sky, And lonely hut and tent are seen As the river boat sweeps by With its load of fortune seekers, Who northward turn their gaze, And follow the Montreal River Thru its winding forest maze.

Its pine clad shores along.

These are the pilgrim fathers, The men who go before. And blaze the trail for the coming host, As our fathers did of yore. And the river is now the highway, Which carries their hopes and fears, The canoe is the ark of safety. And silver the dream of years.

And so, on our mortal journey We dream as the years glide by, And our lives resemble the river, That reflects the northern sky-To some the reflection is murky, To others, the color is blue, Let us all sail under pure colors And a ship that will carry us thru.

Talking of boxing, course the C. L. A. officials view the apropos of the new Metropolitan Club, movement with distrust and something akin to alarm. Whether there is any cause for their uneasiness the future alone can reveal. It will not be surdous progress in popularity prising, however, if the new ass since the old days when Harry Piper tion proves to be a real live active body. The C. L. the best kind of physical culture to the doors of the workers of Shoreditch, and what is under consideration now is what particular system to adrot. A moment or two ago I rang up Mr. Meredith Clease, and he has very readily and kindly consented to come down and give a lecture and demondown and give a lecture and demonstration free of charge. If we can once get and keep the interest of the man in the street, whether he works with his hands or is a clerk leading a sedentary life, then the scheme may well lead to most important and far-reach-countries. lead to most important and far reaching results. If a long view is taken, it will be seen that the rate-payers purse will be saved in the long run; more symnasia mean fewer men thrown on the rates thru ill-health and incapacity to work. That is the point in a nutshell."

A Lacrosse Revolt.

So once more there is a revolt in lacrosse circles and a new association should be satisfied and another swamped. The Toronto crew, composedl of H. D. Wise, J. F. Scholes, Wm. Ramsey and Alex. Elliott, had the heaviest boat, and they rested on their coars, breasted the swell and won the race, the first prize being two was necessary, so that this one coarse took three days to decide. A double sculling race had eight entries. It will be a long time before another professional regetta of such dimensions will be given on Toronto Bay, if ever.

That cinched the matter and subs the late J. S. Garvin, Dan A. Ross and "yours truly" had the honor to draft the first book of rules, which has since been amended and revised almost out of existence. The Example of Shoreditch.

In connection with the aforementioned municipal boxing scheme, an interview had by the representative of a London paper with the town clerk of Shoreditch, one Dr. Mansfield Robinson, has so much meat in it that it appears to me well worthy of quotation. Cutting out extraneous matter Dr. Robinson said:

"We have not as yet engaged a regular professional instructor, but the attendant at the baths is an excellent boxer and he gives the lessons at two-pence apiece. But we have under sonsideration a much wider and more ideration and provide adequate facilities for the same under municipal auspices. This Is a Question That Every Man Ought to Study Carefully at Least Once a Year.

Copyright, 1911,

HERE is no doubt that most men believe that they are honest. The grafter who sells his vote thinks that it is the law, not he, who is in the wrong. The burglar who enters a house at night and takes everything of value that he can carry away, tells himself, no doubt, that he is merely trying to bring about that equable division of property which he thinks would be made in an ideal condition of society.

Lord Bacon, a deep and philosophical thinker, admitted that he sometimes took bribes, but defended himself on the ground that he never took them save from the right side.

The vanity of men prompts them to fool themselves constantly, unless they occasionally take thought, and really examine their own conditions of mind.

The barn-storming actor who falls into the habit of telling other actors that if given the chance he would be greater than Henry Irving at last comes to believe it. He fools himself

The cart-tail orator, who fancies, because he can arouse the plaudits of a handful of sidewalk loafers that he is a second Daniel Webster, fools himself quite as effectually. The vanity of the actor and the orator does not harm any one but themselves, consequently it is of little importance. But when whole collections and companies of individuals, practising hypocrisies and petty deceits and dishonesties, begin to imagine that they are high-minded citizens, working for lofty ends, it is time for some one to awake them to the actual state of affairs.

The thief and the crook are both menaces to society, even when they frankly admit that they are what they are. But the hypocrite is ten times as dangerous, for, after fooling himself, he begins to fool other people, and the discovery of his rascality comes after he has done an infinite amount of harm.

The smug side-whiskered gentleman who is lavish with benevolences, a pillar of his church, foremost in all reform movements, and yet who takes advantage of other men's necessities to cheat them out of their property, believes, without a doubt, that he is a really good citizen. As a matter of fact, he is considerably worse than a footpad, for the footpad's victim has a chance to fight back.

The railroad president, who, after unitingwith other men to engineer a corner in the coal-carrying business, announced that "God in His infinite wisdom had entrusted the coal to those most fitted to manage it," probably fooled himself. He fancied that his was a devout and pious utterance, when it was actual blasphemy.

In forcing the price of coal up to twenty dollars a ton, the coal carriers and operators, without a doubt, were responsible for more deaths than the war with Spain. And every death from cold, due to their greed, was a deliberate, cold-blooded murder.

A few of them, open and self-confessed pirates, made no bones about what they were doing. These men were at least straightforward and aboveboard, and therefore not nearly so dangerous as the canting hypocrites who talked of being entrusted with the coal mines by the Creator.

There are a few very rich gentlemen in this country, who, because they have bestowed their wealth on many charities, justify the more than questionable means by which they

These men are not a whit better than the politicians in New York who collect money from gambling houses and other vicious resorts, and justify themselves yearly by giving some of it back to buy fuel and potatoes for the poor, whose interests they have betrayed to the despoilers of the poor, who seek special legislation in the Aldermanic chamber and at the State Capitol.

A thief is a thief, no matter what guise he wears. If he knows he is a thief there is a chance to reform him. If he is fooling himself, neither fine nor imprisonment will do him

When the man who, with others, was responsible for the iniquitous Ice Trust gets out of jail, he will, of course, look upon himself as a martyr. Unquestionably it has never occurred to him that he deserved the punishment he got. Instead of thanking his lucky stars that he got off as easily as he did, he is resentful because his fellow-men sent him to jail at all.

If this gentleman had not contracted the habit of fooling himself early in life he might have been of great service to mankind, for there is no disputing the fact that he has brains. But he believed that he was greater than the law, and that belief made a wreck of

Now turn to men who are not vicious, and not criminal, but merely idle or vain. In every city, however small, there are from one to ten thousand pompous gentlemen who pose about clubs or grocery stores, according to the size of the cities, giving sage advice on all subjects to their brethren, and fancying that they are really important.

Usually they are taken at their own valuation, and grave attention is paid to everything they say or do. But now and then some inquiring person comes along, asks them a few pertinent questions about what they actually know, and lo! they discover that they amount to nothing after all, and that they have merely fooled themselves with the belief that they were factors in human affairs.

There is another class of men who hurry about here and there, busying themselves with everybody's affairs save their own, and imagining that because they are usually out of breath and weary at the end of the day that they are patterns of industry. But when you check them up and find that the sum total of their accomplishment is nothing at all, you discover that they, too, have been fooling themselves.

In one of the stories written just before his death, David Graham Phillips, an earnest, sincere and forceful writer. spoke of the human tendency to measure a man's height together with the tower he was standing on. Thus the youth with a wealthy father judges his own importance by the deference that is paid to his inherited wealth.

It is this habit that is behind all snobbishness and pride of birth-qualities that are ridiculous even in Europe, and utterly idiotic

If you have ever seen a foolish little pugnosed dog, sitting up in state on the seat of a carriage that is being driven down a fashionable avenue, and looking with contempt on the mangy dogs that go nosing along the gutter. you can understand what snobbishness really

A man who has fought his way up to any position of responsibility has a shadow of right to be proud of his achievement, though he seldom entertains any such feeling.

But the individual who is thrust into prominence by accident of birth, by favor, or by chance fools himself utterly if he indulges in any self-congratulation because of his station.

Every man ought to ask himself at least

And, above all, if he has talent, let him not fool himself into the belief that he is using it, tury. The great majority must eat their bread in the sweat of their face, and find little enjoyment in the working. To live in a fool's paradise, imagining that somehow and sometime chance will provide for them, is the worst kind of self-deceit-the kind that fills poorhouses and homes for the aged-and too often penitentiaries.

Perhaps every one must fool himself a little -either in over-estimating or under-estimatkept away from evil knows whether or not he is honest, as many men who have believed themselves honest have discovered late in life, to their sorrow and ruin.

Obey the Scriptural injunction, "Know thyself," if you can. You will find it one of the hardest of human accomplishments, but if you can compass it you will be surer of keeping out of trouble, and consequently of doing a little real good, than nine-tenths of our
