THE WORST STORM

THAT HAS VISITED THIS SECTION IN MANY YEARS.

NO OUTSIDE MAIL SINCE MONDAY.

Early Tuesday morning a snow storm came up from the South-east, and all day it kept increasing in force and fury. The wind veered around to the North-east and blew a gale. The storm continued in full blast throughout the night and all the next day. The estimated fall of snow is anywhere from 18 to 30 inches, and it is piled in gigantic drifts of 10 and 12 feet.

The train service as a consequence is sadly demoralized. The first train to leave Woodstock is the St. Stephen freight which should go out at 6:00 a. m., but on account of the accident the night previous it did not leave until 10 o'clock. It proceeded as far as the "70 mile post," about six miles this side of Canterbury, when the snow-plow left the rails and tried running on top the drifts. This occasioned delay, and the delay occasioned the snowing in of the train. The express from McAdam in charge of Conductor Holt came as far as Canterbury station, where, in waiting it too, became stalled. Conductor Swift was sent down from Woodstock with the "hobo" engine and before he reached the trouble he had a case of his own, for he became a fixture in a huge drift. The downward express, Conductor Dow, proceeded as far as Benton where it was ordered to cross the other express, and while thus waiting it suffered the fate of the others.

All this would be enough for a good story of fiction. But this story is not fiction. In fact the very strangest part of it all is that it is true.

Two engines were sent from McAdam and another from Woodstock, but evidently these were sent to keep the others company, for they promptly followed the precedent of the others.

A large crew of men were employed with shovels and yesterday the road was cleared, while today the trains are beginning to get around in their proper order.

Many passengers are aboard the trains, among whom is a lady from the vicinity of Woodstock, who, in very poor health, had started for Boston to enter a hospital. The wife of Superintendent Newcombe is said to be another passenger.

The Houlton train got stuck in rounding the "Y" at Debec. Fred Lindow was sent to its relief with a double header. The Gibson train left on Tuesday from Woodstock on time. She had 27 passengers mostly women, and today the train reposes in a big drift three miles this side of Keawick.

On this section of the road there has been a sort of a passenger train every day. The "hobo" has been cancelled since Monday. Fred Lindow ran a special plow train from Aroostook on Wednesday and made good time in getting to Woodstock. Conductor Henderson of Grand Falls Branch left Aroostook Wednesday morning ran to Edmundston, 57 miles, back again, 57 miles, down to Woodstock, 56 miles, arriving at about 6 p. m. Leaving Woodstock about 8, he ran back to Aroostook, making good time. This was a record-breaking run—226 miles in one of the stormiest days ever known in the country. Chas. Henderson knows all about managing a train in a snow drift.

Early Thursday morning Conductor McKendrick left Woodstock with a double header and ran to Presque Isle. Returning he ran for train 52, and was delayed somewhat by a broken axle. Fred Lindow ran north about 8.30 Thursday evening.

No outside mails had been received from Monday to yesterday.

SHE "FLEW THE COUP."

Another rather startling sensation has developed, but this one that will not cause anybody to be startled; nor will it create business for the lawyers, unless a divorce is sought.

A certain man and woman, married to each other have for some time resided at Grand Falls. The man went to the woods and got in a good winters work. He came home with his money, which, with some he previously possessed, made the neat little amount of $200 in cold cash.

Evidently his wife thought with this amount of money she would be able to get along in the world easier and happier without her husband. So one day last week she gathered up her few belongings, tied them up in a red bandana handkerchief, and while her husband slept the sweet sleep of the just, she pilfered his pockets and crept out into the night; out on the cold mercies of the wide, wide world. In popular language she swiped the dough and flew the coup.

This woman is nothing if not economical. She had money enough to carry her to the Pacific coast, back and forth several times, but she bought no railway ticket. Long years her sturdy limbs had served as her only means of conveyance. Was newly acquired wealth to weaken her pedal capacity? No; she began afoot her journey to parts far from Grand Falls.

The walking was good until she came to Hartland, where she was overtaken by the big blockade. Here she bought a ticket for Woodstock, and boarded the express for that town Tuesday. Since the ADVERTISER has not been apprised of her movements,

What about the husband? He had

THE TUCKER-CANOVAN AFFAIR.

(Correspondence St. John Globe.)

JOHNVILLE, N. B., FEB. 22, 1898.
To the Editor of the Globe:

Sir,—So many conflicting statements have been made with regard to the location of the Tucker residence and the condition of its inmates at the time of the death of Miss Minnie Tucker, that I determined to visit the place for personal observations. What I saw there I am about to reduce to writing with other observations pertinent to the subject.

The country represented by Johnville and Glassville may be aptly described in a few words as being to much land for the space it occupies. The hills are high, rugged and numerous, and running in every conceivable direction; the valleys narrow and crinkled and much cut up by meandering streams. In the midst of one of these little valleys and near a stream that flows into the big Chickedihawk, is situated the much-talked of Tucker homestead. It is a log cabin, built of hewn lumber and shingled on the north end; old now, but at one time unquestionably a neat little residence, far better and more comfortable, we may believe, than the homes of many of our forefathers when first they settled in New Brunswick, and even larger than similar dwellings I passed on my way thither. The first impression I received of the much-diversified scenery in the immediate vicinity of the supposed tragedy was that it would be a glorious place to camp in for a week or a month. To any one tired of the noise, dust and heat of the city, this valley and this Tucker residence would be together a most welcome retreat. He would find streams to fish in and game in the woods, while Mrs. Tucker's furniture, consisting of chairs, table and bedstead, with a good stove to cook upon, would add very materially to his comfort, and be at the same time eloquent reminders of his not too distant separation from civilization, although the place is so far remote and its isolation so intensified by the encircling hills that seem to frown down upon the little vale and its human habitations that none of the moral influences that obtain in either Johnville or Glassville would be impressed upon the minds of the people living there.

Human pride, or something of a similar character, naturally inclines us to resent any word or act that tends to detract from our own good name or our relatives and friends, or even from the good moral standing of the community in which we live. Johnville did not deserve to have its fair name associated with such a crime as that of which Mrs. Tucker and her daughter have been accused. That truth was made in this instance to subserve the unwarrantable interests of haste, sensation and ambition, is but one of the many evidences that ill-formed writers are ever ready to rush blindly into print. The dead Minnie Tucker was said to have been a general favorite in Johnville, when, as a matter of fact, few people of that place ever saw the young lady. And as to her personal appearance, he it remarked that the Hartland correspondent of one of the St. John papers is, perhaps, as good a judge of beauty as the lady witness who gave evidence in her examination to the effect that the dead girl resembled her mother.

Both press and pulpit have ever been (and justly too) persistently outspoken in their denunciations of the harmful practice of cheap novel reading, because of the undoubted bad influence that such vicious literature has upon the pliant minds of the young. But if the imaginable actions of impossible characters in fiction be so dangerous, where shall we place the limit to dangers that are put in the way of the young in the sacred precincts of our homes by the sensational reports of actual crimes and the prominence given in our newspapers to real characters who have grievously offended God and injured the necessary laws of society? The editor may sit behind his office desk and hold up his hands in holy horror while he gives vent to his utter amazement that such a crime and so much misery should be brought to light within so short a distance as thirty miles from the enlightened town of Woodstock, but if he would cease to be so sensational in his reports of murders and suicides, and if our wise governments would put a stop to their atrocious legal murders, one effect of which is to lessen man's respect for the sacredness of human life, and would instead commission their well-paid school inspectors to seek out the many isolated places where children are growing up in ignorance, to appoint some means for them to acquire a little education there would be fewer crimes and much less misery to report.

Sincerely yours,

J. E. M. S.

MAN'S DANGEROUS AGE.

It is a singular fact, yet one substantiated by statistics, that most crime is committed in this state by men 29 years old, says the Albany Times Union. This is not only true of the lesser but also of the greater crimes, although a man is presumed to be at that period of his life not only in the zenith of his physical, but also in full and complete appreciation of right and wrong and their respective consequences. This condition is a problem which has not been solved by the student of criminology and one which is made the more complex by the fact that the ages of 21, 17 and 45 years nearly equal it, with the intervening years showing a far less percentage of crime.

A FLUSH DELEGATE.

A Carleton county farmer who had been an eager listener to the discussion on the money question at the meeting of the F. and D. Association Thursday afternoon, repaired to his hotel at the close of the meeting and astonished a party of friends by fishing from his inside pocket a wallet containing no less than $2700 in bills, which he counted right before their eyes. Evidently the money question which seemed to worry so many members of the convention, cut no ice with him.—Fredericton Herald.

DID HE LOVE HER?

They faced each other in the brilliantly lighted drawing room. The girl had risen in her excitement and stood with her hand clutching her throat. Her eyes gleamed and her face was white and set.

'I know I should not have told you, Emily,' the man was saying, his eyes fixed upon her face with a sort of despairing eagerness. 'I know it. But—I could not help it. I have struggled against it so long. Do not look like that. I should not have told you.'

He buried his face in his hands and the girl's voice whispered huskily:

'No, you should not have told me.'

He raised his head and threw it back with the suggestion of defiance which he often had, and which she had always liked.

'I am not so sure about that after all,' he said suddenly. 'I love you—you, you, and no one else. It was right that I should tell you. If you love me what wrong could be greater to all three of us than that I should marry Alice? Is an engagement sacred? Emily, do you—do you love me?'

Emily's hands hung limp and helpless by her side now. She dropped into a chair.

'God help me!' she cried for I do.'

The man made a swift motion towards her, but she sent one look at him from her miserable eyes that made him pause. He waited in silence until she spoke again. Her voice was monotonous and passionless.

'Listen,' she said. 'You say you love me. I have said that I love you. You are a man bound in honor to the noblest woman on earth. I am bound to her by ties stronger than those of honor. I love her. She is my friend. I would rather die than cause her unhappiness. And, though I have said I love you, I would rather never see you or hear of you again than cause her unhappiness. No one can know her, live with her, be admitted to the honor of her companionship without being ennobled, without coming to worship her. I will forget what you have said. You must marry her.'

'I love you,' persisted the man.

'Did you not once love her?'

'No,' he protested passionately. 'I admired, esteemed, worshiped her goodness, but—I love you, Emily.'

'Are you quite sure?' persisted she.

'Try me and see,' cried he, with the swift upward motion of the head, which means that he would defy the universe for her.

'Very well,' said she slowly. 'If you love me, do this for me. Make my friend happy, never let her guess that I have dared be disloyal to her. Never let her dream that you were faithless to her. Marry Alice, if you love me.'

There were protestations and reasoning. Emily with firm, set face, persisted. By and by he arose.

'Very well,' he said. 'I think you are wrong, but because I love you and have promised to do your bidding I will marry your friend. And because I love you and because her happiness is dear to you I will make her happy. Goodbye, Emily.'

'Because I love you,' he repeated, and then went away. And Emily, standing behind the curtains to watch him as he went, sobbed aloud:

'My dear, my dear! But you did not love me or you would not have done it. You did not love me! Did he love her?'

GIDDY BICYCLE GIRLS.

The writer in the New York Herald includes in his report of a visit to an art gallery the following episode:

I might have completed the romance in my fancy had not my attention been attracted by three bicycle women who were directly in front of me, and out of pure curiosity I followed them I was disappointed that they would not linger in front of Bonnington's "Normandy Coast Scene," but I made a mental note to return and continued in pursuit. I followed them through the room of the porcelain eyed "Herculeum bronzes, wondering what would interest these up to date young people. They finally paused in front of the three much battered "Graces."

'I wonder what wheels they rode,' said the frivolous youngest.

'Wheels of fortune, of course,' replied the eldest, and on they sped, stopping again when they reached a handsome old sedan chair.

'They couldn't have had wheels in those days,' again exclaimed the youngest.

'Whoever invented that as a mode of conveyance must have had 'em,' said the second.

I could stand it no longer; they were too modern, and I wanted to return to my Bacchante.

A QUEER MONSTER.

While traveling at one time in the west the writer's attention was arrested by a remarkable object. In outline it resembled an immense serpent, and it writhed and twisted as it flashed along in the sunlight. Since then it has been seen covered with a hard iridescent shell, and it appeared almost or quite dormant. It is much more active sometimes than at others, and when the mood is on it it will run and leap and rise and fall with a tremendous roar. The people said that while they could not tame it, they succeeded in making it work, and it was serviceable in carrying heavy objects, which, however, differing from most beasts of burden, it would only carry on its bosom. It loves the valleys and refuses to be driven up a hill. Wherever it travels it always goes in it bed, and those familiar with its habits say that if by chance it leaves its bed disaster is sure to follow. It has great commercial value, and its shell is sold in many places.

But the strangest part is yet to be said. It is a fact unparalleled in nature that this wonderful creature has arms, but no legs, and its head is at one end of its body and its mouth at the other.

And this queer monster is called a river.—Chicago Record.

What has become of Hartland's proposed shoe factory? Whoever is most interested in the project should get a hustle on. "Procrastination is the thief of time." The Dispatch suggests a shoe factory for Woodstock, and if one is established there, Hartland must bid goodbye to the idea of its having one. The Dispatch speaks of the factory at Shediac as a huge success. It was established last year with $22,000 capital, and paid a handsome dividend. The Amhurst Boot and Shoe Co. has been declaring an annual dividend of 10 per cent for 30 years. Let our Shoe Factory come!

It is many years since the railway has been so blocked with snow, and it looks as if it need not have been if proper descretion was used, and the right preparations were made against the storms. But probably running a railroad isn't as easy as it looks to be to the public.

CURIOUS "SPELLS" OF SOUTHERN NEGROES.

There are numerous harmless 'spells' which are regular observances in the lives of the average southern negroes. Besides the root chewing, the track lifting, etc., they have a love philter of frogs' legs cooked in still water, and the ashes of a bat are powerful enough to keep away a rival or an enemy. To make a dog stay at home they cut off the tip of his tail and bury it under the doorstep. To make a wife obedient they "draw her picture" and hide it in the shingles. Thus, waking or sleeping, there is a constant forcing or counteracting of destiny.—Philadelphia Times.

Contrary to reports in the papers last week Rev. Joseph Noble of Woodstock, was not seriously injured, but he passed through rather an exciting ordeal.

John Rowly of Johnville who was accused of being engaged to Minnie Tucker positively denies that he ever had any intention of marrying the girl nor was he intimate with her.

The F. C. B. ministers of St. John are at Fredericton fighting against the Orsrites taking the name of Free Baptists. They have a petition against the bill signed by 350 persons.

Jas. P. Kelley has been appointed Police Magistrate of the town of Grand Falls. Alex. Matheson and Henry Boone have been appointed Justices for the Peace of Victoria County.

The St. Stephen freight due at Woodstock at 10:30 at p. m. met with an accident below Woodstock on Monday night, and she did not get into town until 5 o'clock next morning.

Shaw & Dibblee while soliciting the trade of all of Mr. D. E. Currie's customers in tinware and stoves, respectively ask everyone still owing Mr. Currie to call at their store and settle not later than the 8th of March.

Mrs. Canovan and Mrs. Tucker are spending a comfortable winter in the county gaol. It is rumored that the analysis of Minnie Tucker's stomach did not reveal strychnine, but we have no authority for stating this as a fact.

R. W. Richardson informs the ADVERTISER that he intends building several cottages for sale. The lots whereon they are to be built are situated on McMullin's flat on the east side of Main St. The location is splendid for dwellings, being only a few minutes walk from the business portion of the village.

It is quite unusual for building to be carried on in the winter in Hartland, but this season there have been five buildings erected so far. Samuel Harmon has his house up and enclosed; A. Thornton's new building is coming along towards completion. This is to be used as a millinery store and sample rooms.

A meeting of the rate payers of the school district was called for Thursday night, but on account of the blocked condition of the roads it has been postponed until this evening—Saturday. This special meeting is to consider the question of erecting a new school house. It is expected many different opinions will be expressed.

Rev. A. Lucas, Field Secretary of the Provincial S. S. Association, addressed a meeting in the Reformed Baptist church on Monday evening. He discoursed on Sunday School work and was listened to by an attentive congregation.

The Baptist church is beginning to take on an orthodox appearance inside, in fact, from the way it is beginning to look it will be the finest church in the village. A baptistery is being placed inside, and other modern ideas are being introduced. In a very few weeks the building will be ready for dedication.

Application will be made to Parliament to incorporate the Tebique Manufacturing company, of New Brunswick, as general traders and manufacturers of gypsum, lumber, lime and pulp, and to build dams, piers, booms and remove rocks and make all necessary improvement on the Tobique river in New Brunswick, also to own, manage or lease hotels.

Dr. Estey had a regular Klondike excursion on Tuesday and Wednesday. He received a very urgent call to Newburgh, and started despite the severity of the storm, with his horse and sleigh. He got as far as Chas. Richardson's, and from there made the trip on snow shoes. He reports the journey something terrible, and says it is quite enough of Klondike for him. Next morning he came to Newburgh Jct. which he reached in an almost completely exhausted condition. He came up on the special Wednesday evening. Dr. Curtis was at Windsor in the storm. It took him all day Wednesday to get in to Hartland.

Estey & Curtis have just put in a large new line of plain and fancy stationery, consisting of note paper, letter paper, foolscap, legal cap, envelopes, all sizes, writing tablets in variety, exercise books and scribblers, pens, inks rulers, rubber bands, etc., etc. They have a line of the finest paper and envelopes in fancy boxes that sells from 20 cents upward. When you want something especially nice call for one of the following writing papers: London Gray, Royal Crystal Bond, Court Russia, Egyptian Antique, Achilles, Vellum Wove or Venetian Bond. Splendid paper 5 quires for 25 cents.

A year ago today the question of starting a canning factory was first laid before the Board of Trade. It is time to start another factory of some sort. . . The friends of Miss Charlotte Moore of Meductic will be glad to learn that she is on the road to recovery and that her limb will not have to be amputated as was anticipated before Dr. Secord took charge of the case. . . R. Wilmot Balloch of Centreville has received word from Wisconsin of the death of his brother, John Balloch, resulting from an attack of pneumonia. Deceased was the youngest son of the late John Balloch of Woodstock. When a mere lad he went away to the Western States. He followed the farming and lumbering business. Sheriff Balloch is a brother. The wife of deceased and three children survive. Mr. Balloch was here about three years ago, to attend the funeral of his brother, James Balloch, who died at Centreville about that time—Dispatoh.

A Successful Evangelist.

Rev. W. A. Dunnett, a Man Whose Good Work Is Widely Known.

He Relates Events in His Career of General Interest—For Years He Suffered from Heart Trouble, and Frequently from Collapse—On One Occasion Five Doctors Were in Attendance—He is Now Freed From His Old Enemy, and Enjoys the Blessing of Good Health.

REV. W. A. DUNNETT.

From the Smith's Falls Record.

Throughout Canada, from the western boundary of Ontario to the Atlantic Ocean, there is no name more widely known in temperance and evangelistic work than that of the Rev. W. A. Dunnett. Mr. Dunnett has been the Grand Vice-Councillor of Ontario and Quebec in the Royal Templars, and so popular is he among the members of the order that in Montreal there is a Royal Templars council named "Dunnett Council" in his honor. For more than ten years Mr. Dunnett has been going from place to place pursuing his good work, sometimes assisting resident ministers, sometimes conducting a series of gospel temperance meetings independently, but always laboring for the good of his fellows. While in Smith's Falls a few months ago in connection with his work he dropped into the Record office for a little visit with the editor. During the conversation the Record ventured to remark that his duties entailed an enormous amount of hard work. To this Mr. Dunnett assented, but added that in his present physical condition he was equal to any amount of hard work. But it was not always so, he said, and then he gave the writer the following little personal history, with permission to make it public. He said that for the past thirteen years he had been greatly troubled with a pain in the region of his heart, from which he was unable to get any relief. At times it was a dull, heavy pain, at others sharp and severe. Oftentimes it rendered him unfit for his engagements, and at all times it made it difficult to move. His trouble was always visible to the public and frequently when conducting service he would give out, and doctors had to be called in to attend him. This occurred to him in the Yonge street church, Toronto; the Baptist church, Woodstock, N. B.; the Methodist church, Carleton Place, Ont. On another occasion while preaching to an audience of 2,500 people in the Franklin Street Congregational church, at Manchester, N. H., five doctors had arrived and were in attendance before he regained consciousness. In all these cities and towns the newspapers freely mentioned his affliction at that time. Mr. Dunnett said he had consulted many physicians, though, he said, to be entirely fair, he had never been any great length of time under treatment by any one doctor because of his itinerant mode of life. In the early part of the summer of 1893, while in Brockville assisting the pastor of the Wall street Methodist church in evangelistic services, he was speaking of his trouble to a friend who urged him to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and next day presented him with a dozen boxes. "I took the pills," said Mr. Dunnett, "and I declare to you I am a well man today. I used to worry a great deal over the pain about my heart, but that is all done now, and I feel like a new man." All this the reverend gentleman told in a simple conversational way, when it was suggested that he let it be known, he rather demurred because as he put it, "I am almost afraid to say I am cured, and yet there is no man enjoying better health today than I do."

At that time, at Mr. Dunnett's request, his statement was only published locally, but now writing under the date of Jan. 21st, from Fitchburg, Mass., where he has been conducting a very successful series of evangelistic meetings, he said:—"I had held back from writing in regard to my health, not because I had forgotten, but because it seemed too good to be true that the old time pain had gone. I cannot say whether it will ever return, but I can certainly say it has not troubled me for months' and I am in better health than I have been for years. I have gained in flesh, hence in weight. I would prefer not to say anything about my appetite; like the poor, it is ever with me. Yes; I attribute my good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and you have my consent to use the fact."

married that woman, and she had thus by sacred vows bound herself to love him, cherish him, obey him, till death. She had kept his house in order and fried his pork and pancakes for years. To leave him thus unceremoniously, and without just cause or provocation was bad. To swipe the proceeds of many months, or maybe years, hard bone labor was simply too much to bear and a gross indignity to him as her lord and master.

What was there for him to do? Did he make love to some other of Grand Falls' fair damsels and thus console himself? Not he! He was too honest and righteous and true for that!

What he did do was to attempt to trace the footsteps of the wife of his bosom. Enquiry at the railway station told him she did not go by rail; no person had let her have a horse. The air ships do not touch at Grand Falls, hence she must have walked. Mr. Man secured a rig and started off on his errand of wife hunting, in a much sadder frame of mind than that with which men usually engage in this sport. From house to house he traced her, and on Thursday he arrived at Hartland. From the station agent here he learned his faithless wife had two days previously bought a ticket for Woodstock. Crestfallen he pensively counted out the few coppers that remained in his once flush pockets and found his cash on hand fell far short the price of a ticket to town. Without further words he slowly and dejectedly buttoned up his coat, jumped in his pung, and drove on to Woodstock in search of the truant spouse, - And such is life!

HARTLAND BRIDGE.

A DELEGATION COMING TO INTERVIEW THE GOVERNMENT ON THE ABOVE MENTIONED MATTER.

It is understood that there is to be a meeting of the citizens of Hartland on Wednesday next to appoint a delegation to come to Fredericton to interview the Government respecting a bridge on the St John River at that place. The people of Hartland are very much exercised over the Government's failure to redeem their promise twice made to build the bridge, and they now mean to ascertain from the Government whether or not they propose to put the amount necessary to build in the appropriation bill. Our friends in Hartland and thereabouts, have already exercised a great deal of patience in connection with this matter, very much more than the people of very many other places where the work was necessary for the development of business—Gleaner.

The Board of Trade Meeting was postponed on account of the storm, and will be held next Wed. March 2nd.

SENSE AND NONSENSE.

First Drummer—A few days ago a locomotive lost its smokestack in a collision. Well, sir, they just stuck a barrel over the hole and went along as if nothing had happened.

Second Drummer—That reminds me of an accident that happened to a train I was on recently. The engine jumped the track and was smashed all to finders; but in five minutes we were moving along toward the next station, where we arrived only a little late.

'Humph! How could that be?'

'We got out and walked.'

'Have you heard from your son who started for the Klondike three months ago?'

'Yes; got a telegram from him yesterday.'

'Has he had any luck?'

'Fine. He's been sick in Seattle, and the Doctor has ordered him to come back home.'

Don't forget about the cheap sale of lamps at Keswick's.

'Talk about luck! That man Denslow has it in triple-plated chunks.'

'How do you figure it out?'

'Why, his wife was born on Christmas, and Christmas is also the anniversary of their marriage. You see, the rest of the year is pure velvet for him.'

If you want a choice cup of coffee go to Keith & Plummers just received a fresh lot.

Dickens—There is no such a thing as social equality. Did you ever know a place where everybody was on a dead level?

Wickens—Yes, the cemetery.

If you want to please the boy get one of Shaw & Dibblee's handsleds, they are closing out sleds at 20 per cent less than the regular price.

He—I wish I knew what you think of me.

She—Oh, I don't think of you.

MOONSTRUCK.

The moon has been held responsible for many extraordinary influences it is supposed to have had upon human beings. Some hold it responsible for luancy, while others affirm that more people die at the full moon than at any other period. It seems, however, to have been undoubtedly proved that the moon has great effect on health and life.

Two very extraordinary cases have been put forward in support of this theory. These both refer to people whose fingers have been moonstruck. The first is that of a young man who always felt at the time of the full moon a peculiar sensation in the thumb nail of his left hand. His finger invariably began to bleed at precisely the time when the moon came to its full.

The other case is that of an older man, who from his fifty-third to his fifty-fifth year always suffered from what is described as a "periodical evacuation of blood from the extremity of the forefinger of his right hand."

A celebrated doctor mentions another curious case of the startling effect the moon had on a certain young lady. With the increase of the moon she invariably became plump and exceedingly handsome and pleasant to look upon. When the moon decreased, however, her face began to undergo a change. She became haggard and positively ugly; so much so indeed that she made it a custom to exclude herself from society for some days after the moon had commenced its decrease.—Pearson's Weekly.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

Can a glazier give a window a glass too much?

When a Daniel comes to judgement is the latter glad to see him?

Piano-Teacher (to the father of one of his pupils). 'I have come to ask for your daughter's hand.' 'Oho! that's your game is it? You have been making love to my daughter instead of teaching her? Very well, you can have her; but I shall deduct the money I paid for her lessons from her dowry.'

Care of the Complexion.

It is a well-known fact that a torpid liver produces a sallow hue and a dull complexion. You need not expect a clear, beautiful complexion if the blood is rendered impure by a sluggish action of the liver, which cannot properly perform its function of purifying and filtering all impurities from the blood. Ladies, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills is an invaluable remedy, for by their action on the liver and blood they promote true beauty by rendering the blood pure. This is the secret.

GOOD ROADS.

At a meeting of the Roads Association in Fredericton last week, the value and proper use of road machines came up for a discussion. The gentleman who spoke from experience were unanimous in the opinion that the road machines were very valuable when handled by experienced men. It was suggested that the Government might appoint an experienced man to operate each of the machines owned by the Province, and sent to different districts, as the machine seldom did good or satisfactory work when operated by inexperienced men. The following resolution passed:—

Resolved, that the use of road machines has been found very satisfactory when it has been thoroughly tried under proper management, and therefore its more extended use is strongly urged upon all sections of the Province.

A discussion ensued as to the proper width of country roadways. A variety of opinions prevailed, but no resolutions upon the subject were passed.

Hon. Mr. Emmerson spoke of the prevailing tendency in all sections of the Province to encroach upon the highway by parties when building fences. He had thought of introducing legislation providing for regular surveys to prevent this encroachment.

He also presented some statements and statistics comparing the Highway Act of 1886 with that of last year, and claimed that conditions were improved under the latter. Mr. Emmerson also spoke of the necessity of the bounds and widths of all public roads be definitely located and rigidly adhered to.

THE CHARM OF MUSIC.

A writer from Africa, alluding to the African's fondness for music, says: "Nothing is done here without a song. Your boatman sings all day long, keeping time with his paddles; the woman beating rice beats in time to her voice; your carriers sing to their tread, and the farmer to his hoe. Joy, grief, pain—all are shown in spontaneous song. Their songs are always extempore, and adapted to present circumstances. The ordinary method is for one person to sing a bar, and the whole company to join in a responsive chorus, consisting, generally, of a single syllable, suited in sound and meaning to the sentiment. Current events are described often with great accuracy, and they frequently ridicule the manners of some king or chief."—Ram's Horn.

Pratt's Astral Oil is the best illuminating oil, you can tell by trying it. Buy it of Shaw & Dibblee.

JENNY LIND.

The great Swedish cantatrice, Jenny Lind, is affectionally remembered by many families in this country for her gentle devotion to her own people and her humble religious spirit as much as for her marvelous songs.

There still stands in Philadelphia an ancient church which was founded in the reign of Gustavus as a mission for the Swedish emigrants then dwelling in the Western wilderness. Queen Christina, in all her mad vagaries, never forgot to send aid to this little church. A pair of carved cherubs which were her gift still guard the organ loft. The church, oddly enough, remained a mission station, supported by the Swedish government, until the early years of the present century.

When Jenny Lind visited Philadelphia in 1852, the enormous prices charged for tickets to her concerts excluded most music-lovers of limited means. Her wonderful gift was a delight largely for the rich.

She had heard, however, of the little mission church; and on Sunday morning a plainly dressed woman entered and knelt among the poor worshippers, listening devoutly to prayers and sermon. It was only when she joined in the hymn that they knew they had entertained unawares, if not an angel, the woman of all the world who had the voice of one.

When the service was over, she lingered in the churchyard to shake hands with her country people, and talk to them in their own tongue.

Her friend, Lady Taylor of Bourne-mouth, tells the following touching story of this noble songstress. She declared her intention of retiring from the operatic stage, giving as a reason that the pursuit was so engrossing that it hindered her devotion to higher things. Lady Taylor found her one evening sitting on the beach; her little Bible on her lap, and renewed the argument in favor of the stage.

'You owe your work to the world,' she said.

But when that work,' said the great singer gravely, 'makes me care little for this,' touching the book, 'and nothing for that,' looking at the sunset, 'it is time to give it up.'

Not many women or men when the "hand" or "foot offends," as the Master expresses it, are strong enough to cut it off, that they may not be hindered in earnest preparation for the "life that is to come."—Musical Record.

FORCING THE SEASON.

It is rather early to talk about garden and farm seeds, and Estey & Curtis do not want to appear as attempting to force the season by advertising them now—especially when there is five feet of snow where you expect your garden to be. Still now is a good time to let you know that they have selected a splendid stock of seeds from the best growers.

'So he praised my singing did he?'

'Yes; he said it was heavenly.'

'Did he really say that?'

'Well, not exactly, but he probably meant that. He said it was unearthly.'
