

GERMANS MUST FIGHT ALLIES AND THEN TURN TO MEET THE ONCOMING RUSSIANS

GERMANS CONTINUE THEIR ADVANCE INTO BELGIUM; DECISIVE BATTLE SOON

Believed in Many Quarters That Clash Between Germans and Allies Is Actually Going On—Russians Take Several Towns in East Prussia—Germans Levy War Tax of Fifty Million Francs on City of Liege.

(Special to The Standard through the International News Service)

London, Aug. 21.—The announcement made this afternoon by the French war office that the German forces continue to press forward across the Meuse river at Huy in great force confirms the belief here that the German assault along the whole line of the allies is under way. Germany's problem is to overwhelm the allies with one blow and then turn their attention to the oncoming Russian hordes. The Czar's great machine is already in motion and, like the German and Russian general staffs, doesn't consider the sacrifice of men if their object is obtained.

A Russian official statement confirmed the occupation of Lyck, an important German town in east Prussia, fifty-seven miles from Gumbinnen which was taken several days ago. This would tend to show that the advance is steady and must soon make itself felt upon the operations in Belgium and Alsace Lorraine.

Lyck was stormed after a two days' siege. The Germans retired in good order, but were forced to leave behind a quantity of stores. When the initial attack was made by the Cossacks supported by machine guns, these were driven back with heavy losses by German and infantry continued the fight forty hours, then large reinforcements arrived and the place was stormed.

London, Aug. 22.—Very little has yet become known of the operations of the early week which put the German army between the Belgian forces and their French allies, and enabled the Germans to occupy Brussels.

It is supposed the Germans must have brought up their strong forces behind their cavalry screens, and that a severe battle must have been fought to compel the Belgians to abandon Brussels and retire on Antwerp.

Whether or not the French forces were engaged with the Belgians is not known.

No information is available as to whether the Germans now intend to devote themselves to the task of reducing Antwerp, or to an endeavor to force their way southward into France. It seems, however, that the determination is to attack the Belgian army of some 150,000 men who are still in or around Antwerp.

London, Aug. 22.—A dispatch to the Daily Express from Ostend, Belgium, says that on Friday an encounter occurred between the allied troops and the Germans at a spot probably southwest of Brussels. The result was favorable to the allies. German Uhlans have been seen at Waterloo.

London, Aug. 21.—Great Britain has decided to make a loan to Belgium of $50,000,000.

The money will be raised by treasury bills for which tenders were called today.

The Germans already are advancing in the direction of Mons. They have occupied about fifteen miles northwest of Brussels, and Wetteren, eight miles southeast of Ghent, and apparently intend to overrun the whole of northern Belgium to the sea.

Cavalry patrols have been seen as far as Malines, fourteen miles southeast of Antwerp, and it may be expected before long to hear that the Germans have occupied Ghent and Bruges and possibly even Ostend.

If, however, that is their intention, a clear invasion of France through Belgium must be still longer delayed.

The German general has imposed a tax of $40,000,000 on the city of Brussels.

German Advances in Belgium Continue

Paris.—Despite the great secrecy surrounding all military movements, the facts that the German advance in Belgium continued today is established as a fact. From their basis on the Meuse river, large columns were moving steadily south and west and a decisive battle cannot be long delayed, in fact some authorities maintain it is now progressing. Gen. Colonel Rousset, a retired military critic, excellent reputation says the critic, even when begun along the coast of Mons, two hundred miles. He estimates the opposing forces at two and a half millions.

The French operations in Lorraine seem to be checked to await completion of the movement in Upper Alsace until that section is swept clear. The German attacks on Metz and Strasbourg cannot take place as the French couldn't advance beyond these tremendously strong posts without reducing them.

The Matin says, "The French have captured thus far ninety one field guns, four flags, and nineteen automobiles from the German."

It is officially announced that the Germans were defeated at Tienen, suffering heavy losses. It is believed that the allied forces opposed the Germans here. Military experts see great significance in this engagement as showing the plan of the allies to be to separate the Germans in Northern Belgium from the main army on the Meuse, quite near Namur.

THE TARIFF RESOLUTIONS TAKEN UP

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—During the first part of the evening sitting of the House tonight Hon. C. J. Doherty introduced two amendments to the Nationalization Act, passed last week. He stated that the Imperial parliament in passing the act, had made these amendments, and asked the Canadian authorities to put them into effect.

The first provided that on the dissolution of a marriage between a Canadian woman and an alien, by which the former had lost her Canadian nationality, she could be re-naturalized without waiting for the customary five years period. The second provided that where the husband of a Canadian woman changed his naturalization she may, by declaration, retain hers. The amendments were given first reading.

The House then went into committee of ways and means, and took up the tariff resolutions. Mr. E. M. Macdonald, of Pictou, suggested a stamp tax.

Hon. W. T. White pointed out that the people of Canada were only bearing a small share of the cost of the increased naval and military expenditures.

Princess Patricia Light Infantry Not Going to Valcartier

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The Princess Patricia Light Infantry, which is now assembled at Ottawa, will not go to Valcartier for training. This is considered unnecessary as the men are all experienced soldiers. It is expected that they will leave for Aldershot on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week. They will go in company with the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery which is at present at Valcartier.

GOVT TO INVESTIGATE WITHDRAWAL OF LIQUORS AND TOBACCO FROM BOND

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—The government will investigate the circumstances connected with the withdrawal from bond of liquors and tobaccos. As to those withdrawals which were in the ordinary course of business, the government will take such action as may be just and equitable, so that no injustice may be done. In cases where it appears that goods have been taken out of bond to evade the new duties of customs and excise for financial advantage, the new duties will be enforced. If this were not done speculators would make very large sums at a profit when citizens are making heavy sacrifices for the state, and the government would be deprived of the greater part of the revenue it has in expectation from these sources.

ROBBED DEAD ON FIELD OF BATTLE

Paris, Aug. 21.—Eighty three German prisoners, accused of robbing the dead on the field of battle, arrived today at Clairmont Ferrand, capital of the Department of Puy-De-Dome, where the police had great difficulty in restraining the population from attacking them. When arrested in Moushausen, many jewels, a number of wedding rings, and large sums in money were found on the Germans. It is alleged that these valuables were stolen from the bodies of officers and soldiers.

It is armed that either of the Germans. Considerably more powerful, though slower in speed is the French armored cruiser Montcalm, attached to the French-China station. Her speed is twenty-one knots and she carries 612 officers and men.

POPE'S PHYSICIAN TELLS OF PONTIFF'S DYING MOMENTS

Rome, Aug. 21.—The Corriere D'Italia today publishes an interview concerning the last hours of the Pope's illness, in which the Pontiff's physician sets down some of his conversations with his patient and dwells upon the effect upon his condition of the war news from northern Europe.

Dr. Marchisava declares that the gravity of the Holy Father's illness began on Wednesday, August 19. On that day he was depressed, his pulse was rapid, and his temperature rose to 102 degrees. There was tremor of the lungs, but mentally he was alert.

At half past ten the collapse occurred. Oxygen was admitted and the patient was revived. His vigor returned and the afternoon of Wednesday he seemed better. His hands were as white as those of a child, but they were warm. He began to speak again, saying to me: "Doctor, won't you give me some coffee and milk? Why don't you come near me?"

"These words deceived some of those present into hope, but soon the prostration returned. I asked him how he felt, and he answered me: "Better, doctor, thank you."

"Instead of becoming better he grew rapidly worse until evening, when his temperature rose to 104 degrees. The albuminuria increased and the other symptoms all were grave, while the nephritic complication indicated that the patient could live only a few hours."

"Before midnight his consciousness had almost entirely disappeared. Aware that the end was approaching, I put the crucifix in his hands. He muttered a few words, repeating them slowly. He kissed ardently the little ivory crucifix. Once more he turned his dull glance around the room and then expired. Never have I seen a more serene death."

Eighty-one Pieces of Artillery Taken from German Army

London, Aug. 21.—In a despatch from Paris the Exchange Telegraph Company's correspondent sends the following summary of alleged German losses as printed in the Paris Matin:

"Twenty-four cannon taken by the Belgians from the third to the fifth of August at Liege.

"Three cannon taken by the French at Margennes, August 11.

"Six cannon taken by the French at Othain, department of Meurthe, August 12.

"Twelve cannon taken by the French near Schirneck, Alsace, August 16.

"Twenty-four cannon taken by the Russians at Stalluponen, east Prussia, August 17.

"Twelve cannon taken by the Russians at Gumbinnen, east Prussia, August 17.

"This makes a total of eighty-one pieces of field artillery, besides which were captured, a number of pieces of heavy artillery, rapid fire guns, aeroplanes and nineteen motor wagons."

In addition the Germans lost two flags to the Belgians at Liege, a cavalry standard was taken at Diest, and a flag was captured by the French at St. Blas, August 15.

ST. JOHN'S COMPANY OF INFANTRY FOR FOREIGN SERVICE GOES TONIGHT

Men of 62nd Under Captain H. E. C. Sturdee, Will Take Train at 6.36 For Valcartier Camp—Orders For Today.

The Overseas Company of the 62nd Regiment will leave for Valcartier this evening at 6.36 o'clock. Col. J. I. McAvity, who has been organizing the company received orders yesterday afternoon to send the officers and men of the company to the center of mobilization for the first Canadian contingent.

that the company had been ordered to proceed to Valcartier the news was received with considerable enthusiasm. The officers are much gratified that they will accept the hard work of training at Valcartier with cheerfulness, and if called upon to show their mettle at the front will give a good account of themselves.

Capt. Sturdee, who goes in command of the company, is one of the most popular officers of the militia in the city, and has hosts of friends about town who while regretting his departure will wish every success and a safe return to his native city. He is a son of the late H. Lawrence Sturdee, High Sheriff of the city and county of St. John and has been connected with the 62nd Regiment for quite a number of years. He was appointed a lieutenant of the regiment in 1908, and for some years has been captain of G. Company. He enjoys the esteem of his fellow officers and is particularly popular among the men.

Capt. Sturdee is well known as a cricketer, and has taken an active interest in various sports.

Lieut. E. H. Welch is also a native of St. John, but lived for some years in Prince Edward Island and in the West, principally in Alberta. He was appointed a lieutenant of the 62nd about a year ago and has made a reputation as a keen and efficient officer.

Last night the members of the company, except those detailed for special duties, were in their tents on the Barrack Green at an early hour, and word was sent to those on leave of absence to report by one o'clock today.

Orders for today were posted as follows: Orders by Captain H. E. C. Sturdee, Officer Commanding 62nd Infantry Co. for Foreign Service. (1) The Overseas Company will parade as usual at 7 o'clock for breakfast. 8.30 a. m. for bathing parade. 9 a. m. commanding officers parade. (2) Men on leave will be notified to report at the barracks not later than 1 p. m. tomorrow. (3) The company will parade at 4 p. m. for issue of Oliver equipment, water bottles and lockings. (4) The company will fall in at 6.30 p. m. in full marching order. (5) Rifles and side arms will be turned in to the Quartermaster 62nd Regt. at 4 o'clock parade. Belts will be retained. (6) The company will march off at 8 p. m. to train at the Union depot at 6.36 en route for Valcartier.

PIGSLEY PLAYS POLITICS WHILE CANADIANS PLEDGE MILLIONS TO THE EMPIRE

Ottawa, Aug. 21.—Battles cost more than battleships. Canada could have purchased three of the most powerful Dreadnoughts that "Science could build or money supply," for $35,000,000, but thought the price too high. Today, the gladly, and without question, voted $50,000,000 to pay the cost of the war for seven months, till the end of the fiscal year. It was the first big war credit vote in the history of the Canadian Parliament, and, as such, will be historic.

"Never before has the House of Commons been so absolutely unanimously in its treatment of a money bill. Under ordinary political conditions there would have been an endless chain of questions, a parading of old politics, economic ghosts, much heated rhetoric, everything, or anything, but progress. But there was not a solitary dissenting voice today. Sir Wilfrid Laurier merely made the suggestion that the Prime Minister should give details of the estimated expenditure, and, in a few cogent words, Sir Robert Borden complied. He told the House that some $30,000,000 is appropriated to the militia. This will include the cost of mobilization, equipment, transport, maintenance, and pay of troops. Naval expenditures will take about $6,000,000 which does not include $1,150,000 paid the Chilean government for two submarines. The balance would be to meet contingencies which are inseparable from a state of war."

The Premier added significantly that it was the intention of the government to maintain additional troops for the defence of Canada, and to stand ready to send other contingents to swell the armies of the Motherland, should they be required. The announcement was greeted with cheers of approval from all parts of the house.

Then for the first time since parliament met, political partisanship raised up its head. Mr. Pugsley broke faith, finding the government magnanimous enough to let the Liberal party cut for a time for its misdeeds, he seized an opportunity of making political capital out of the St. John's Armory. He wanted to know about furnishings. He saw that Col. Hughes, who is working night and day at the present time, had to leave the house to catch a train and so could not answer him, and he started to lap the minister about these furnishings.

Mr. Pugsley introduced a distinctly note and sought to make a petty political point by resurrecting the ghost of the naval controversy.

The ex-minister of public works transgression was all the more regrettable and distasteful in as much as he sought to disguise it with a clumsily affected solicitude for the coastal defences of the country.

"Would the minister of naval affairs tell the House whether or not it was the Laurier Naval Act that enabled the government to place the Rainbow and Niobe in commission?" "Was it not under the Laurier Naval Service Act that two submarines were purchased for the defence of the Pacific coast?" "Was it not this same act that enabled the administration to equip other vessels for defence purposes?"

There was all the earnestness, all the persuasiveness, all the gravity and plausibility in these questions that Mr. Pugsley, by virtue of the long practice, can so cleverly assume. Yet the House was far from deceived. No one in the Commons but knew that Mr. Pugsley sought campaign material not knowledge of matters of defence.

There was an impious silence on the Liberal benches. Sir Wilfrid Laurier shifts slightly in his seat. Mr. Hazen rose to reply. He got a warm cheer, a cheer that was significant. Gaiety, but with a fine touch of scorn, he gave the man who was once his rival, the information he pretended to want for his own sake.

But he declined to be drawn into a political discussion when countless other and infinitely graver matters are challenging the country's attention. This harsh note in the day's proceedings was followed by something better and bigger. Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux rose to say that Hon. Dr. Borden, postmaster general in the Laurier cabinet in its active service in the ranks of the heroic defenders of Liege. Stirring cheers greeted this announcement, and Sir Robert Borden was noticeably moved.

The temper of the House continues splendid; it is a businesslike parliament, which does not stand on ceremony. Never within the memory of the oldest correspondent has there been such a faithful attendance of the party whip is gone, so far as session is concerned. Mr. White's splendid explanation of yesterday has done much to allay fears and restore confidence. While the government's answer to England's call has been "ready, aye, ready," it is at the same time able to give the assurance that with the country "all goes well."

Practically all the business of the war session was completed tonight and prorogation will take place tomorrow. (Continued on page 2)

will meet coupon payments on bonds

New York, Aug. 21.—One of the prominent international banking houses announced that it had made arrangements to meet coupon payments due September first, on railroad bonds of the aggregate value of $75,000,000, in Paris and London. Similar announcement is expected soon from the controller of New York city regarding municipal warrants largely held abroad, some of which mature in another three weeks.

THE PACIFIC COAST STRONGLY PROTECTED BY BRITISH CRUISERS

No Need to Worry Over Incursion By German Cruisers—British Cruiser Newcastle and French Cruiser Montcalm Patrol Coast—Former Faster and More Powerful Than the Enemy's Boats.

Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 21.—Seattle papers today publish the story of the arrival on the Pacific coast of the British cruiser Newcastle and the French cruiser Montcalm, which they say are being coaled from Esquimaut station and are cruising up and down the coast. There is therefore no longer need to keep from the Canadian public the news that their Pacific littoral and harbors are well protected from any incursion by the two German cruisers Leipzig and Nurnberg which were operating in these waters at the opening of the war, but which are now supposed to have fled to Samoa to take refuge in the German fortified naval station of Apia.

M. M. S. Newcastle is a second class protected cruiser, faster and more heavily armed than either of the Germans.

Considerably more powerful, though slower in speed is the French armored cruiser Montcalm, attached to the French-China station. Her speed is twenty-one knots and she carries 612 officers and men.

When the announcement was made that the company had been ordered to proceed to Valcartier the news was received with considerable enthusiasm.

The officers are much gratified that they will accept the hard work of training at Valcartier with cheerfulness, and if called upon to show their mettle at the front will give a good account of themselves.

UP-TO-DATE NEWS OF THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE MILLION DOLLAR MYSTERY AT THE UNIQUE

For some weeks past patrons of the Unique Theatre have been closely following the "Thanhouser" serial drama, "The Million Dollar Mystery," a chapter of which is shown every Monday and Tuesday, with the story appearing in the St. John Standard every Monday morning. The general verdict up to date reflects great credit upon the producers and upon the management of the theatre for the presenting of a picture that for sensation coupled with mystery, and a plot most interesting, has never been equalled. The daring adventures of the Four Hundred, a band of conspirators, members of which represent the nobility of Europe and the cloak of mystery that surrounds the disappearance of the million dollars, with the escapades of Florence, the daughter of the millionaire, who has not been shown since his thrilling escape in a balloon, and the wonderful intelligence of the butler, who seems to know a whole lot more than the average servant about his master's affairs, have been keeping patrons of the Unique on an edge during the past four weeks.

An interesting feature of the entire series is that each episode sustains the interest and seems to better the preceding. "At the Bottom of the Sea," the fifth chapter of the story listed for presentation Monday and Tuesday, is no exception to this rule. A fast motor boat race, and the actual destruction of a speeder in mid ocean by fire, with a swim for life against the waves, are the more important scenes in the fifth edition. The fact that ten thousand dollars is being offered by the Thanhouser Co. for the best solution to the mystery is a strong incentive to follow the picture. The final chapter of the story has not yet been written; it will be selected from the best of the solutions sent in before December the twenty-third.

In order that each and every person may have an opportunity of seeing "The Million Dollar Mystery," which now has a reputation all over the world for being the masterpiece in serial photo plays, and to allow every lady and gentleman at a five cent admission price, the auditorium will remain at ten cents during the showing of "The Million Dollar Mystery," otherwise it would be quite impossible to meet the expenditure the presenting of it involves. This scale of prices pertains to the matinee as well as the evening performance, and will no doubt be greatly appreciated. Special reservation has been made for the ladies in the balcony, and those patronizing it will find it an excellent place to view the performance.

Further interesting details of Chapter five of the Million Dollar Mystery will be given in Monday's paper.

NEWSY NOTES FROM UNIQUE AND LYRIC

No small amount of praise has been given to the management of the Lyric this week for the excellent programs presented. It is quite evident that the desire of the Lyric is to keep the minds of the people, from the war for an hour at least, thereby offering a diversion in good wholesome amusement. Double bills rule this week. Judging from the line-up of features for next week, patrons may look forward to something exceptionally good.

Mack's Musical Revue has been meeting with great success the past four days at the Empress Theatre, and will be glad to see them return Monday next when they will offer a grand bill of new features, one of them being a grand patriotic song spectacle.

"At the Bottom of the Sea" is the title of the fifth episode of the Million Dollar Mystery at the Unique Monday and Tuesday. In this edition much food for thought is given and a twisting trail is opened with the result that the spectator is left in doubt as to whether a hint has been given as to whereabouts of the million dollars. Novel, spectacular and thrilling scenes are strong characteristics of this number, the most outstanding scenes being the chase in the motor boats, the boat of the conspirators on fire in mid ocean and a desperate swim for life against the dashing waves. Starting next Monday the price of admission for the Million Dollar Mystery will be reduced, the balcony being five cents for afternoons and evening and the auditorium ten cents. Special reservations will be made in the balcony for the ladies, and every person may now have the opportunity of seeing one of the most wonderful serials ever produced at the same cost of an ordinary picture program.

The program for Monday and Tuesday at the Unique will also include a two-part Keystone comedy with Chaplin in the leading role, "Caught in the Cabaret," and a Beauty Film fantasy, with an abundance of exciting scenes, "The Dream Ship." This makes one of the best programs seen at the Unique in months.

At each performance the Corey Bros. win new laurels at the Lyric. It is safe to say that they present an act the like of which has never been seen in St. John before. It embraces many branches of the amusement tree hitherto known. Their finale is not only a dangerous piece of work but is also spectacular.

New interest centers around "The Mutual Girl" this week owing to the fact that she is lost, and no one seems to know anything as to why, when or where she disappeared. In chapter twenty at the Unique Wednesday and Thursday, Dunbar, the man of mystery, is introduced, and he with the gangsters and police force of New York start to solve the riddle, and they meet with many wonderful experiences on the streets of the metropolis.

Nero or the Burning of Rome will be presented at the Unique Wednesday and Thursday in addition to the regular program. This subject is repeated at this particular season in order to show the method of fighting in the days of old. The sterling descriptive lecture that proved so popular when delivered with this feature some time ago will be repeated.

For the first three days of next week the Lyric has secured the services of Beach and Carroll, two talented ladies who will offer a mixture of Irish wit and humor with an interesting song feast. These artists are particularly pleasing and will no doubt prove very popular here. A feature of their entertainment is the wearing of several late creations of the dress makers' art, from Worth's establishment of Paris.

A grand patriotic demonstration in film will be given at the Unique next Friday and Saturday. A special one-part feature has been secured in the English drama, "A British Soldier." This will show in a clear and vivid

MACK'S MUSICAL REVUE HAS A BIG PATRIOTIC FEATURE FOR NEXT WEEK

Introducing bright musical number by St. John composers, in addition to an attractive programme.

The Opera House will again be the Mecca for the amusement lovers of the city next week, for Mack's Musical Revue returns there on Monday for another engagement. The company promises some new novelties in musical and comedy features, one of the prominent numbers being the first stage presentation of a new patriotic toast and march song, "Canadians All," the lyrics for which were written by David H. Waterbury, and the music by D. Arnold Fox of this city. This new song has created quite a furore when sung lately at banquets, as it has a catchy refrain and carries a direct appeal to the hearts of all true Canadians. The company is making a special feature of its presentation with full chorus and appropriate tableaux and stage setting.

DAUGHTERS OF EMPIRE WILL HOLD MUSICAL

Entertainment in Imperial Theatre for benefit of Soldiers Funds.

The Brunswick chapter of the Daughters of the Empire has heartily engaged in patriotic activities. The members of this chapter are now hard at work along various lines. They feel that it is necessary for them to raise certain funds. As one move towards this end, they have decided to give music in the Imperial Theatre at an early date. An admission of twenty-five cents will be charged. The programme, which is being prepared, is in honor of the allied armies, and will comprise a number of high class selections particularly appropriate at the present time. Several box parties are already being formed, and reservations will be made for others who apply early. Military men who may be in the city are asked to kindly attend in uniform. The affair will be in charge of a committee of about thirty, headed by Mrs. Travis (Regent), Miss Thompson, Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Allingham.

The exact date of the entertainment will be announced later.

The manner the many risks a soldier takes when fighting for his country. The spy system is also presented in a forcible manner. Among the many scenes that command interest in "A British Soldier" is the actual wreck of a large train and its fall from a broken bridge into the waters below. The engine and cars are seen plunging right along and with a fearful suddenness crash over the bridge. The escape of the soldier from one moving train to another is also a daring piece of work as is also the mad drive through the streets of London in an automobile. Special music of a patriotic nature will be rendered with this subject.

The vaudeville act with the rather peculiar name of "The Jiggerups" will be the special attraction at the Lyric the last three days of next week. The Jiggerups hold records as being two of the fastest dancers at present exploiting vaudeville. Their style is entirely different from most features of this kind and their walk mimics are alone worth seeing. The act is prettily dressed and have been the headline of the bill in each place they have been seen in for the past year.

THE REVERSING FALLS IN MOVING PICTURES

Film Company's men in St. John taking pictures of Falls and other features.

The wonders of St. John's reversing falls will be one of the chief features in a series of moving pictures that are being made by the New England Educational Film Co. throughout the New England States and this vicinity. Two representatives of the company, R. H. Derrah, director, and C. Frank Wald, camera man, arrived in the city on the Governor Dingley yesterday morning. The men went at high tide to a point above the falls and got an excellent series of pictures of the rapids with the water flowing up; and during the afternoon they snapped some vessels going through the gorge at slack water.

Mr. Derrah is a former St. John man who has been residing in and about Boston for the last twenty-five years. Before leaving St. John he was employed with Emerson & Fisher.

He now devotes his time to the study of educational and commercial features of New England, and has prepared several booklets, including Derrah's Street Car Guide of New England.

Fine programme secured for the next week at Waterloo Street Theatre.

When Lucille Love, the famous girl of mystery, found herself alone with her arch enemy, Loubeque, she was naturally afraid, particularly since he was in control of the only boat which could bring them to safety. However, she kept a firm spirit and determined to brave the worst. He becomes engaged in a smuggling scheme which she tried to prevent, and—but to continue to describe the events which follow in the seventh chapter of this fascinating series would detract from the pleasure of the photo-play. It should be seen to be enjoyed. This chapter is one of the best in the whole series, and will be presented at the Gem Theatre on Monday and Tuesday next.

For the Wednesday and Thursday show there is a strong Esau story with Francis X. Bushman in the leading role, entitled "The Voice in the Wilderness." It relates to the love of a young author for his wife, but her judgement of him, and their separation. The scenes work out happily at the close, but the story being

ST. JOHN EXHIBITION
 September 5th to 12th
 The Only Big Fair This Year in the Maritime Provinces

This season's Exhibition will include as one of its principal features, the most extensive agricultural display yet presented to the people of this province. Particular attention has been given to this portion of the Exhibition and it will be far above the standard.

In the amusement line a programme has been arranged superior to anything hitherto attempted in St. John. Heading the list of attractions is Motor Polo, intensely exciting, games being played every afternoon and evening. There will be in addition many other high class acts so that visitors to the fair need never lack entertainment.

The Industrial Section of the St. John Exhibition has been growing with each succeeding show, and the display to be made next month will, judging from the applications for space, surpass anything seen in the past.

On three days of the week the Dog Show will be held, this feature in itself commanding a large share of attention.

GERMAN RANGE FINDERS IN THE FIELD.

This photo shows observation ladders and shields of the German artillery with brushwood screens. Each artillery commander makes his own observations. Covered positions are generally used when the artillery first comes into action, when "indirect laying" is employed, but guns are hurried up in support of infantry as the action progresses, when "direct laying" is practised, although there is no telephone communication between the infantry and artillery units. Observation shields are used by battery commanders when no ladder is used. The two arms can be seen protruding above the shield in the picture.

The St. John Standard

ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, AUGUST 22, 1914.

IS IT A CHALLENGE?

In the grave position which Canada as an integral and important part of the British Empire, today finds herself, a position which necessitates the calling to arms of our young men and the contribution to the Motherland of our treasure and our resources, it is the bounden duty of all Canadians to bury political differences and stand united to prove to the world that this country is one with Britain in time of trouble, as well as in prosperity. This is the conception held by most loyal Canadians of the proper course to be followed at this time, and it must be said that acquiescence in this opinion has been very general.

Judging from despatches from Ottawa, dealing with events of yesterday's session, Hon. William Pugsley, ex-Minister of Public Works, does not feel that he is bound by this understanding. It is reported that he arose in his seat in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon and, under the most flimsy of excuses, attempted to create political capital. He is reported as having struck the only discordant note in a session otherwise perfectly harmonious, where members had dropped political differences and were standing together in support of whatever measures the Government deemed it wise to take to meet the situation which had arisen. It was distinctly not a time for political speeches or for Pugsley's Platitudes, yet, if the report of the proceedings received by The Standard is correct, and we have every confidence in it, the ex-Minister of Public Works adopted the role of Pugsley the Partisan rather than Pugsley the Patriot.

It is stated that he attempted to resurrect the ghost of the Laurier Naval Policy and wanted to know if the measure which the Government today is taking were not being carried out under the Laurier Naval Service Act. Hon. Mr. Hazen supplied the information asked for but showed his superior sense of the fitness of things by refusing to be drawn into a political controversy with the truculent ex-minister.

It is hardly to be expected that loyal citizens of Mr. Pugsley's own constituency, at this time, are desirous of discussing political questions; the newspaper organs of that gentleman have expressed a disinclination for the fray. But apparently the man to whom they profess allegiance misses the broad patriotic view of the duty of Canadians. As ever he is looking either for political controversy or political advantage.

If Mr. Pugsley represents the Grits in his utterance in Parliament, and if the Grits desire to make of this situation an occasion to discuss the ghostly figure of the Laurier party to adequately safeguard Imperial interests in Canada; if they wish to go on record today as approving the stand of the Laurier controlled Senate in strangling Mr. Borden's proposal to render financial assistance to the British Navy, when such assistance would have been of most value; if they are prepared to defend the ill-advised attempt of their provincial leader to play politics at a time when their own newspapers state all partisan feeling should be buried, then the members and newspapers of the Conservative party will not seek to avoid the conflict.

It must be remembered that Mr. Pugsley has fired the first gun and if, as the result of his action, facts are produced which are not to his liking, he has only himself to blame. The men of St. John are loyal. Liberals and Conservatives are standing together to do the very best they can to meet the conditions which, as true subjects of the Empire, they must face cheerfully and willingly. To enter upon political controversies, or inject party bitterness, at this time, would not be wise. Matters of greater moment are before us. But Mr. Pugsley is the leader of the Liberal party in this province. His attempt to twist the situation into political channels is made either with or without the approval of his followers and the newspapers supporting him. If the Liberal party do not approve, they should repudiate. If they do approve, then they cannot object if the Conservative party and press take up the gauntlet which the ex-Minister of Public Works has apparently thrown into the ring. To paraphrase the statement of Sir Edward Grey, made in the House of Commons when Great Britain entered the struggle with the Empire's foe, "If Mr. Pugsley, the Grit press and the Grit party in this province will have it, they shall have it in full measure."

BOGUS WAR "NEWS"

DIARY OF EVENTS

HISTORIC DAYS IN CANADA

Just 203 years ago tonight, on August 22, 1711 a great English fleet of fifteen men-of-war and forty transports loaded with troops entered the St. Lawrence, bent upon the conquest of Quebec. Besides a number of New England soldiers, the transports carried seven regiments of veterans from Marlborough's army and a battalion of five-seasoned marines. Sir Hovenden Walker, in command of the formidable fleet. Col. Nicholson had previously captured Fort Royal, and changed its name to Annapolis, and all Acadia was in his grasp. The fleet was proceeding to Quebec, Nicholson was marching overland to Quebec. Apparently the knell of the French in Canada was about to be rung, but the English were disappointed. On that fateful August night, when the British vessels entered the St. Lawrence the river was shrouded in fog, and Admiral Walker was aroused from his sleep to find his vessel threatened with destruction among the breakers of the north shore. The flagship, by dint of expert seamanship, contrived to escape, but eight other vessels following its lead were not so fortunate and were dashed to pieces on the rocky shores of Egg Island. More than a thousand men paid with their lives the price of the admiral's incompetence and carelessness. Sir Hovenden Walker, whose reputation had previously been good, was forever disgraced. After holding council with his officers, the admiral decided to return to Boston with the remnants of his fleet without striking a blow. When the news of the disaster reached Quebec, there was great public rejoicing, and thanksgiving services were held in all of the churches of New France. Nicholson, in rage and disgust, had to return to Boston, lamenting the failure of his high hopes. By the peace of Utrecht, which was signed in 1713, the Hudson's Bay country, Cape Breton, and St. John, now Prince Edward Island.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION

QUEEN ELEANORA OF BULGARIA, FIFTY-FOUR TODAY. Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria, whose proposed visit to America attracted much attention a few months ago, is the second spouse of the reigning Tsar, Ferdinand I. Before taking up her residence in the royal palace at Sofia she was a Princess of Reuss-Kostritz, and had achieved wide celebrity as a Red Cross nurse in the Russo-Japanese war. Born fifty-four years ago today, August 22, 1860, she was in her fourth year when she became the bride of the Bulgarian Prince. The marriage was performed in February, 1889, and within a year the old kingdom of Bulgaria was restored and the Prince became a Tsar and his wife the Tsarina.

The Bulgarian Queen or Tsarina belongs to the youngest line of the ancient family of Reuss, rulers of petty German states. From her youth she was a serious student of social and economic problems, and interested in many philanthropic and humanitarian societies, especially the Red Cross. She had practical training as a nurse and when Japan and Russia went to war she volunteered to serve the sick and wounded in the field. She was attached to the Red Cross organization of Gen. Russakow's Russian army, and her ministrations won for her the title of "The German Florence Nightingale." She was placed in charge of a Red Cross hospital equipped by the Duchess Vladimir of Russia, and her work of mercy often carried her into the very midst of the terrible carnage. On several occasions she was under fire, but she never flinched from her duty, and proved herself an able executive, a tender nurse and a brave woman. She was decorated on the field for her services, and her appearance was always the signal for hoarse cheers from Russian throats, while the Japanese cried "banzai" in her honor.

She was a spinster, well advanced in years, when the little god of love—or perhaps a shaft of diplomacy—led her to the marriage altar and the throne. She soon gained the love and respect of Bulgarians by her interest in their welfare, which found expression in the founding of hospitals, schools, and other institutions for the public good.

When the Balkan war flamed out and the Bulgars about the task of crushing their old enemy, the Turk, the Queen again donned the uniform of a nurse. No danger dismayed her, she insisted on going to the relief of the bullet-shattered and diseased soldiers in the hell-hole of Adrianople. In the front and in her hospital at Sofia she was not only a directing force and executive, but found no task too menial in caring for the sick and wounded troops. She called to the point of exhaustion and nervous prostration, until her royal husband at length forced her to take a rest.

No more strangely assorted pair could be found than Queen Eleanora and Tsar Ferdinand. The Tsarina is essentially practical, safe and sane, and with a high sense of duty. Her spouse, on the contrary, shrinks from the sight of blood, and loathes hospitals and the sight of suffering. He has a passion of flowers and perfumes. He has an abiding fear of disease and death, and after the Queen's return from the plague-infested camps the Tsar refused to see her until all danger of infection was past. The Queen is plain, almost homely, and belongs to that type of spinsters who forsake matrimony and children to "mother" the whole race of stricken humanity. Although a Queen, she is still a spinster in spirit, and it has been said that if she were American she would almost inevitably be a leader of the W. C. T. U.

FIRST THINGS

TRANSATLANTIC LINERS.

The first transatlantic liner to be operated in power was launched at New York ninety-six years ago today, August 22, 1818, and was formally christened the Savannah. The vessel bore little resemblance to the ocean leviathans of the present, for she was a tiny wooden craft of 250 tons. The "crazy crank" who thought it possible for a ship to cross the Atlantic by steam power was William Scarborough, of Savannah, and the boat, although built in New York, was named after the owner's home city.

By the April following her launching, the Savannah, was ready for the sea, and on April 10 1819, she left New York for Savannah, which was to be her American terminus. On May 24th, the little liner steamed away from Savannah on her maiden voyage, as the first steam vessel to cross the ocean. From Liverpool the Savannah proceeded to St. Petersburg, Russia, and in December, 1819, the Savannah was again anchored in the Georgia city, fifty days out from the Russian capital. Thus Scarborough, "crazy crank" achieved for Georgia the honor of revolutionizing the commerce of the world. Savannah will celebrate the centenary of the sailing of the Savannah five years hence.

NEWS OF THE CHURCHES BAPTIST

E. M. A. Bleakney, Acadia 13, was ordained at New Boston, New Hampshire, June 10, 1914. Moderator, Rev. C. A. Reese; clerk, Rev. W. P. Robinson. Sermon by Rev. M. R. Foshay, Acadia 99, other parts of the service were taken by Rev. Messrs. J. H. Nichols, J. S. Lewis, E. C. Goodwin, and W. P. Robinson.

The calendar of the Halifax Presbyterian College for 1914-15 which has recently come to hand, is a concise compendium of all necessary information regarding the work of the college. This is the oldest college of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and is now in sight of the centennial year, having been founded in 1820.

The College Buildings. Beautiful for situation is the college, crowning as it does the elevation overlooking the picturesque North West Arm, Halifax. From every quarter of the globe whither her sons have gone to preach the everlasting gospel, there are windows open toward "Pine Hill" upon whose sun-crowned brow stands the house of many enduring memories.

The regular course of study in the college is in keeping with the standards of a progressive church. The library of some eleven thousand volumes constitutes an admirable equipment for study and research.

Rev. Joseph Sullivan, M.A.D.D., lately of Montreal, is announced as one of several American preachers who are supplying the pulpit of Hillside Baptist Church, Glasgow, Scotland, during the month of August.

Rev. H. Y. Corey, returned last week from Penfield, N. B. There he spent Sunday, the 9th inst., with the churches of the Penfield group.

Rev. Arthur S. Evans has resigned the pastorate of the Upper Gasquet church and will be in readiness for service in any field desiring pastoral service.

Rev. Edwin Crowell, who has supplied the pulpit of the Canoe, N. S. church during the past five weeks, has returned to his home in Fairville, N. B., and will be available for service on the 23rd and after.

Rev. F. L. Orchard, of Woodstock, occupied the pulpit of the Fairville church last Sunday, preaching to large congregations. Rev. A. L. Tedford, of Norwick, Conn., is supplying Woodstock during the pastor's absence.

Rev. J. B. Gannon, of North Sydney, is spending his vacation among our home churches in Kings County, N. B. Rev. Dr. W. C. Kierstead, of Fredericton, supplied the Carleton Presbyterian church on the first two Sundays in August. In one of his last sermons, Dr. Kierstead discussed the European war situation, much to the edification of those who heard him.

The Edith Avenue Baptist Mission, East St. John, was crowded on Sunday, the 16th inst., when Rev. Percy J. Stackhouse preached on "The Value of Unfilled Ideals." Mr. Stackhouse and family will leave for Ulick, N. Y., the next day, going by way of Amherst, where they will remain for a few days.

Rev. Charles A. Britton, of Vancouver, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Gooes, St. John West. Mr. Britton preached in the Charlotte Street Church on the 9th inst.

PRESBYTERIAN

First Presbyterian Church West St. John will welcome the return of their pastor, Dr. J. A. Johnston, who resumed his work tomorrow after an absence of six weeks in Winnipeg, where he supplied the pulpit of Rev. David Christie of Westminster Church during his visit to Scotland.

Rev. Andrew Burrows, D.O., of Hamilton, Bermuda, who has been making St. John his headquarters for several weeks during his summer visit to the Maritime Provinces, left yesterday for Pictou, N. S., where he and Mrs. Burrows will make their home until their return to Bermuda in October. Mr. Burrows says he has thoroughly enjoyed the weeks spent in St. John, not only because of the enjoyable climate, but also of the friendship and acquaintance he has formed or renewed while here. Several congregations in the city and province were pleased to hear him from his pulpit during his stay.

At a recent meeting, the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island dealt with two resignations. Rev. M. N. McLeod resigned the pastoral charge of the congregation of Inuvik after a pastoral site of eleven years, his resignation to take effect after the first Sabbath of November. Rev. A. S. Stewart who has been pastor of Valleyfield congregation for the long period of thirty-six years, resigned his charge much to the regret of a loyal and devoted people. His resignation was accepted and Rev. J. W. McKelvie was appointed interim moderator of session.

WAR WILL NOT HOLD UP VALLEY RAILWAY WORK

Acting Premier Clarke says everything points to programme being carried out as arranged. Fredericton, Aug. 21--That the war situation will not tie up the St. John Valley Railway construction despite the financial situation throughout Canada, was the interesting announcement made today by Hon. George J. Clarke, Acting Premier, who with other members is here attending a meeting of the executive council.

"Everything in connection with the St. John Valley Railway is alright in every way," said the Acting Premier, "and while the war has of course lightened up the money market, yet so far as we can see the construction on the sections from Gagetown to Centreville will go on and that part of the road will be finished this fall as anticipated, the war situation may somewhat delay the construction of the rest of the road, but we are looking for business conditions to get back to normal again by next season."

THAT HORSE CASE. A preliminary examination was begun yesterday morning in the charge against Thomas Brady of obtaining a horse under false pretences. Edward Hogan said he owned the horse and in the possession of Brady had a warrant sworn out for his arrest. Asked where the horse was now, he said he supposed it was in Brady's barn and said he had been told by policemen he could have it but he declined to take it pending the decision of the court. Thomas Ham also gave evidence and said he had understood the horse belonged to Hogan until he saw a boy out in defendant's barn and heard Mr. Brady say he had bought it from Mr. Hogan. The case was adjourned for further witnesses. In setting the case down for 9.15 this morning the magistrate said: "This will be another remainder to my credit." R. S. Ritchie appeared for the defendant and Urban J. Sweeney conducted the prosecution.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTES MAY HELP IN GOOD WORK

The following circular letter is being sent out by Miss Hazel Hunter, superintendent of the Women's Institutes to the members of the Institutes.
Sussex, N. B., Aug. 14, 1914.
Dear Madam:
At this time of stress which has fallen upon our empire, no doubt you are anxious, like every British subject, to do something in aid of our mother country. It has been suggested that our Institutes might, in addition to their other useful purposes, be able to serve their country in a special manner by just now devoting their efforts for the purpose of contributing to the comfort and support of our brave soldier boys who will soon be going to the front to engage in strife and endure the privations which war brings.
Perhaps our members would like to contribute in aid of the hospital ship, which is being accumulated by the Daughters of the Empire. It is a worthy object and I heartily recommend our different branches to assist in this noble undertaking. In their several communities. Any sum so collected should be promptly forwarded to Mrs. Bruce, 37 Bleeker street, Toronto, and a statement of the amount so forwarded sent to me as soon as convenient by the secretary.
It is also proposed that our members would be glad to contribute to the comfort of our Canadian soldiers during their campaign by making some useful and necessary articles. A list of the South African war Canadian women prepared and sent to the war many hosiery which were most highly appreciated and I think it would be a very patriotic undertaking for our members to render some such aid in this emergency.
Any of our branches who feel disposed to take up this work may write to Mrs. T. H. Bullock, 183 Germain street, St. John, who will send a pattern of the hosiery and also a list of articles to accompany same, such as socks, handkerchiefs, bandages, and

The following circular letter is being sent out by Miss Hazel Hunter, superior of the Women's Institutes, to the members of the Institutes.

Dear Madam: At this time of stress which has fallen upon our empire, no doubt you are anxious, like every British subject, to do something in aid of our mother country.

Perhaps our members would like to contribute in aid of the hospital fund which is being accumulated by the Daughters of the Empire.

Any of our branches who feel disposed to take up this work may write to Mrs. T. H. Bullock, 153 Germain street, St. John, who will send a pattern of the hassock and also a list of articles to accompany same, such as socks, handkerchiefs, handbags, and

THOSE RESERVISTS STILL PRISONERS

Men thought to be Germans held for orders from Halifax—Under Military guard.

Two foreigners who were arrested Thursday at Meckam and brought back to the city by a guard from the 2nd Regiment sent out by Col. McAvity, were taken before him for examination yesterday morning in the Lower Cove armory.

One of the men admitted being a German reservist who was trying to enter the States to get back to the colors of the Fatherland, but little could be learned from the other, who is thought to be a Hungarian.

Let us help in this work as much as we can and live up to our motto: "for home and country."

Tire Troubles Which Goodyears Best Combat

These are the reasons—the exclusive features—which brought Goodyears to the top. These are the savings—proved by millions of tires—which have won them more users than any other tire in the world.

Rim-Cuts Our No-Rim-Cut feature makes this trouble impossible. We control it by secrecy. No other faultless way has ever been found to end this major tire trouble—a trouble which ruins one old-type tire in three.

Blow-Outs We save the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric by our "On-Air" cure. This cure on air-bags—under actual road conditions—means a tremendous addition to our own cost. No other maker employs it.

Loose Treads By a patent method we form in each tire—during vulcanization—hundreds of large rubber rivets. This method—used by us alone—reduces by 60 per cent the risk of tread separation.

MORE HELP FOR SOLDIERS

Woman's Canadian Club gives practical and prompt aid to men going Overseas—Ready to do more.

A representative meeting of the Woman's Canadian Club was held at the residence of Mrs. H. A. Powell, Queen Square, last night. Mrs. E. Atherton Smith presided. The report of the executive as to the making and distribution of the abdominal belt for the use of the soldiers proceeding overseas was presented by Mrs. Powell. The report showed that nearly 400 of these belts have been made by members of the club. They are being forwarded to Valcartier for distribution, as may be directed by Captain H. E. C. Sturdee. The belts are said to be much appreciated by men on active service, and were proved to be a boon during the South African war. The report showed that the dainty linens had been put up in boxes and given to the men leaving yesterday. Each box contained sufficient for three meals, and with it were the words: "Best wishes of the Woman's Canadian Club for a safe return home."

The officers in command of the men expressed great appreciation of the kindness and thoughtfulness of the members of the Woman's Canadian Club in helping to give the men a good send off.

Col. J. L. McAvity said that if the same treatment could be accorded the men who are yet to go away it would undoubtedly be valued. The report concluded by stating that it was the unanimous determination of the members of the Woman's Canadian Club to spare no effort in the direction of doing everything possible, no matter how long the wait may last, to help the soldiers from Canada who have so gallantly responded to an unexpected call to arms.

ARTICLES PROVIDED NOT FOR MEN ON FIELD

Red Cross Society work intended only for Emergency Hospital needs.

The president of the red division of the local Red Cross Society states, with reference to the view expressed by a "military man of experience," as recently published, that night shirts, pyjamas, pneumatic jackets, etc. for soldiers on the field would be useless, that the present work of the society is not, and could not be, intended for the soldier on the field. It is explained that the ladies of the red division are acting in concert with Col. H. H. McLean and other military authorities to provide for the positive needs for emergency hospital only. These hospitals, the president says, are being opened up wherever along the English coast at the present time. The garments already made and to be made hereafter will be forwarded to the hospital at Ottawa, or sent under official supervision with other hospital supplies to suitable destinations.

WOMAN'S CANADIAN CLUBS OF PROVINCE HAVE CONTRIBUTED $800

Mrs. E. Atherton Smith arrived home from St. Andrews yesterday. Mrs. Smith, who had the privilege of organizing the Woman's Canadian Club of St. Andrews and St. Stephen, reports that the total contributions of the provincial Woman's Canadian clubs towards the proposed hospital amount to about $800. Members of the clubs at St. Andrews and St. Stephen helped much towards a good send off of the soldiers leaving for Quebec yesterday by providing hampers and abdominal belts.

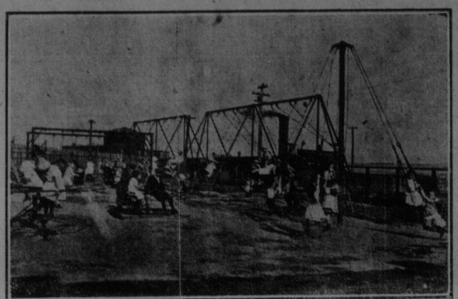

Will Leave Next Week.

It is expected that artillery volunteers for foreign service will leave for Valcartier next week. Recruiting for both home and foreign service is still going on. Yesterday the recruiting sergeant at the army enlisted 42 men. Some difficulty was experienced at first in getting suitable men for drivers, but in the last day or so a large number of men have volunteered as drivers.

PATRIOTIC DEMONSTRATION BY PLAYGROUNDS CHILDREN

An inspiring scene both at the Shamrock Grounds and in streets — Nearly three thousand in line of march.

SCENE IN SUPERVISED PLAYGROUND

Some of the apparatus for the use of the children is shown. The pleasure derived from the games and exercises may well be imagined. The children are also taught self restraint and receive other benefits.

The demonstration given by the children of the city yesterday afternoon in connection with the closing of the supervised playgrounds proved the most successful. Nearly three thousand children who have been playing in the grounds in different parts of the city took part in the exercises and the showing made was a remarkable one. Coming, as it did, so soon after the departure of St. John's first contingent to the war, the parade and other features were along patriotic lines, and the efforts of the kiddies were highly appreciated by every citizen. The exercises started with a monster parade from King street east to the Shamrock grounds, and the sight of the sturdy youngsters marching to the strains of patriotic music, so soon after the military demonstration of Thursday, brought home to those who viewed them, a feeling that the spirit of the time was present even among the youngest citizens.

BASKETRY AMONG CHILDREN

The playground children, especially the boys, take great pride in their basket work and the desire to produce the best is ever evident.

The flags of Great Britain and her allies, properly escorted by a guard from the St. Stephen's Cadets, were carried in the procession and the children marched with a martial air that was inspiring.

Heading the procession was a large banner bearing the inscription "Some of our daddies and brothers have gone to the war" and the sight of this accompanied by the children was a combination that brought a grip to the throats of many persons in the streets.

The Start.

It was nearly two o'clock when the children lined up in King street east ready for the start of the parade. There was no great bustle among the children, but the martial spirit that has been evidenced in St. John since the start of the European struggle, had evidently made an impression on the minds of the youngest in the throng, and they all obey the words of command with the air of veterans, and when the march started they opened out with true military precision.

C. D. Howard, superintendent of playgrounds and recreation for the city, acted as grand marshal, and assisting him were W. H. Golding, W. C. Allison, W. Green and Rev. Gordon Dickie.

The Sons of England Band was in the front rank and played a selection of patriotic music during the march and also in the grounds during the other exercises.

Two automobiles carried city and playground officials, and the chief marshal had as aids two members of the Police of the Circus Company and their horses. Mayor Frink, commissioners Potts and Wigmore were on hand to assist.

The children were marshalled according to the playgrounds from which they came, and at the head of each division was a banner indicating the playground represented.

The Parade.

The huge Union Jack, fifty feet in length was carried spread out, and following were the flags of the allies, mottoes bearing the words, "Vive La France," "Plucky Little Belgium," "Banzai Japan," "Hold Out, Russia is Coming," were carried in front of the flags, and as they came along the vast crowd on the streets cheered and applauded.

When the parade reached the section of Main street, now being repaired, all traffic was held up and a clear way left for the children.

The sight at the Shamrock grounds was an inspiring one. The children marched in by the eastern gate and formed two deep around the edge of the grounds facing the grand stand. Then from the centre of the ranks in deep centre field there appeared the guards and the bearers of the Union Jack flanked by the flags of the allies. Patriotic airs were rendered by the band, and the flag bearers and their guards marched to the front of

PICTURE MAN TAKE FOR A GERMAN SPY

R. H. Darrah former St. John resident, in city to take moving pictures of Reversing Falls.

To come under the suspicion of being a German spy with its possibilities being arrested and shot at sunrise, or thereabouts, was the rather unusual experience of R. H. Darrah, a former St. John boy who came here at the instance of the Eastern Steamship Co. to take moving pictures to advertise the tourist attractions of St. John. The first idea that Mr. Darrah had that he was a spy was a German spy was when his assistant went to the Customs House to get his moving picture apparatus. The customs officials thought Mr. Darrah was a German spy and refused to allow the moving picture machine to be taken from the Customs House.

Officials of the Eastern Steamship Company and the Board of Trade got busy and finally persuaded the customs officials that Mr. Darrah was innocent of any fell designs and that if allowed to carry out his plans the city would get much valuable advertising.

Yesterday Mr. Darrah, with his moving picture machine operator took pictures of the Reversing Falls, and he completes his work here today.

To a reporter Mr. Darrah said he had recently spent about seven weeks in Boston taking pictures, showing the extent of the steamship transportation service from that port. When he exhibited these pictures to a group of steamship men at the Eastern Steamship men asked him to complete the picture from that company's point of view by showing the arrival of their boats at St. John and some of the scenic attractions here.

Mr. Darrah has made a special study of this kind of publicity work and has connection which enables him to place his travel pictures before millions of people. He was the first to take up this kind of work in connection with the advertising of railway lines, and his work in connection with the New England Educational Association has been much appreciated.

At one time Mr. Darrah worked with Emerson and Fisher of St. John and still has a keen interest in St. John.

DEMAND FOR SPACE STILL KEEPS UP

Exhibition promises to be a great success — Many new entries in all departments.

There have been busy times at the St. John exhibition offices this week. Many who had heard that the great exhibit would be held off beyond the war are now that they are reassured, taking more interest in the event than ever.

Entries are still being received and many of them are, by courtesy of the management, being accepted, although the time for receiving them has expired.

One department, more than any other, that might have been affected disadvantageously by reason of disturbed conditions, is Machinery Hall. The expense of taking the machinery to the exhibition and of installing it is of course a factor with exhibitors. Splendid music by the City Cornet Band added interest to the already large number of installations in Machinery Hall.

Programme Enjoyed

The ladies of the Home for Aged Females were delightfully entertained on Thursday evening when several pupils of Leinster street Baptist Sunday school went with their superintendent, J. L. Collins, to the old ladies' home and a pleasant evening was spent by all. Mr. Collins took charge of the evening and an entertaining programme was carried out. Refreshments were served.

In writing home to his mother, under date of August 21st, Mr. Reid says: "We have completed our first week of training, and our major and officers are well pleased with the regiment, the major yesterday, after an attack (who having seen active service in South Africa) in three months I would compare you with any regular regiment of cavalry," he said also, "I must inform you, that you may not get away for a month, or three months at the most, as we would not start hard drill for three months first."

War has not been declared yet, but Germany has presented an ultimatum to Russia and France, which must be answered in eighteen hours. Two things are on everyone's lips, one is, "Well done Canada; when the report came of Canada offering 20,000 men. The other is, "Bravo Ulster; when it was heard they had offered their services. Tomorrow will tell us. Every one is certain England will step in, and off we go to Egypt to relieve the regular garrison. The Military Band is playing, "On the Mississippi River," the whole regiment is keen to be of some use, and even if we only relieve the garrison, it is more than I dreamed of having a chance of doing.

One thing that is playing a tremendous factor is the attitude of England, and the immense fleet which assembled only two weeks ago in full war fittings. The fleet is ready, all our naval ports are boomed and other than our war ships will be fired upon if they move after sunset.

THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN

By HAROLD MAC GRATH.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaving her home in California to go to him in Allah, India. Umballah pretender to the throne of that principality, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir, because he fears the American may insist on his royal rights. Upon her arrival in Allah, Kathlyn is informed by Umballah that her father being dead, she is to be queen, and must marry him forthwith. Because of her refusal she is sentenced to undergo two ordeals with wild beasts.

John Bruce, an American and fellow passenger on the boat which brought Kathlyn to Allah, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the scene of her trials becomes frightened and runs away, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party.

After a ride filled with peril she takes refuge in a ruined temple. The holy men and villagers, believing her to be an ancient priestess, raise from the tomb, allow her to remain as the guardian of the sacred fire. But Kathlyn's haven is also the abode of a lion, and she is forced to flee from it, with the savage beast in pursuit. She escapes and finds a retreat in the jungle, only to fall into the hands of a band of slave traders, who bring her to Allah to the public mart. She is sold to Umballah, who, finding her still unsubmitting, throws her into the dungeon with her father.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn and the colonel. Umballah's attempt to recapture them is unsuccessful, and the fugitives are given shelter in the palace of Bala Khan.

Supplied with camels and servants by that hospitable prince, the party endeavors to reach the coast, but are overpowered by a band of brigands, and the encounter results in the colonel being delivered to Umballah. Kathlyn and Bruce escape from their captors, and return to Allah, where Kathlyn learns that her father, while nominally king, is in reality a prisoner.

Kathlyn's resourcefulness and bravery are the means of rescuing him, and once more they steal away from Allah, but return broken hearted when they learn that Winnie, Kathlyn's young sister, has been taken to Allah. Umballah makes her a prisoner. She is forced to enter the palace and in turn is crowned queen of Allah.

One attempt to get Winnie out of the closely guarded palace almost costs Kathlyn her life, but the second plan succeeds, and Kathlyn and Winnie, their father, and Bruce find a hiding place in the home of their Indian friend, Ramabai, and his wife Punidita. The latter is the lawful queen of Allah and public sentiment in her favor is growing. The people at last weary of Umballah's misdeeds, and the colonel and Bruce fighting under him, Kathlyn has been left at home, but when tidings that the revolutionaries have been defeated reach her she rushes out and assumes command of the scattered forces. She saves the day for them. Umballah flees for his life.

Umballah has crept back to the city, and, with one of the women of the harem as an accomplice, murders the poor old king. It is arranged to have Punidita, a member of the royal house and wife to Ramabai, crowned queen. But Umballah, having secured the priesthood, the great power in Allah, as ally, comes back to the palace with the authority of his first official act is to imprison Kathlyn, Winnie, the Colonel, and Bruce.

CHAPTER XXIV.

"Those ropes were cut," declared Ahmed. "But who in the world could have cut them?" demanded the Colonel.

Ahmed shrugged. "We may have been followed by thieves. They could have used the elephant trails, as we were forced to use the elephant trails. As we keep our eyes about us, Sahib. When one speaks of gold, the wind carries the word far. And then . . ." He paused, scowling.

"And then what?" "I do not want the Memshahib to hear," Ahmed whispered. "But who shall say that this is not the work of the gurus, who never forget, who never forgive, Sahib?"

"But they would not follow!" "Nay, but their servant would, on the fear of death. I will watch at night hereafter."

Ahmed searched thoroughly about the ledge from which the east side of the bridge had swung, but there was nothing more, she was convinced that her eyes had deceived her. Besides, her body seemed dead and her mind too heavy for thought.

Umballah, having satisfied himself that the camp would not break till morning, slunk away into the shadows. He had fallen again; but his hate had made him strong. He was naked except for a loin cloth. His beard and hair were matted, the latter hanging over his eyes. His body was smeared with ashes. Not even Ahmed would have recognized him a yard off. He had something less than nine hours to reach the cape before they did; and it was necessary that he should have accomplices. The fishermen he knew so well of predatory habits, and the promise of gold would entice them.

The half island which constituted the cape had the shape of a miniature volcano. There was verdure at the base of its slope and trees lifted their heads here and there hardily. It was a mile long and half a mile wide; and in the early morning it stood out like a huge sapphire against the rosy sea. Between the land the promontory there lay a stretch of glistening sand; there was half a mile of it. Over this a flock of gulls were busy, as scavengers always are. At high tide, yonder was an island in truth.

Sometimes a British gunboat would drop down here suddenly; but it always wanted its time. The fishermen knew nothing; nothing in the way of guns and powder ever was found; and yet the British raj knew that somewhere about lay the things for which it so diligently and vigorously sought.

On the beach fishermen were disembarking. A sloop with a lateen sail lay at anchor in the rude harbor. Some of the fishermen were repairing nets, and some were tinkering about their fishing boats. Beyond the beach peated a few huts. Toward these other fishermen were making progress.

The chief of the village—the headman—disembarked from this sloop. He was met by his wife and child, and the little one clambered about his legs in ecstasy. Among the huts stood one more imposing than the others, and toward this the chief and his family wended their way. In front of the hut stood an empty bullock cart. Attached to one of the wheels was a frisking kid. The little child passed to play with her pet.

Absorbed in her pastime, she did not observe the approach of a gannet being with matted hair and a pair of eyes black and fierce as a kite. She rose screaming and fled toward the house.

The holy man shrugged and waited. When the parents rushed out to learn what had frightened their little one they were solemnly confronted by Umballah.

"I am hungry." The chief saluted and ordered his wife to bring the holy man rice and milk. "Thou art an honest man," said Umballah. "Thou art poor."

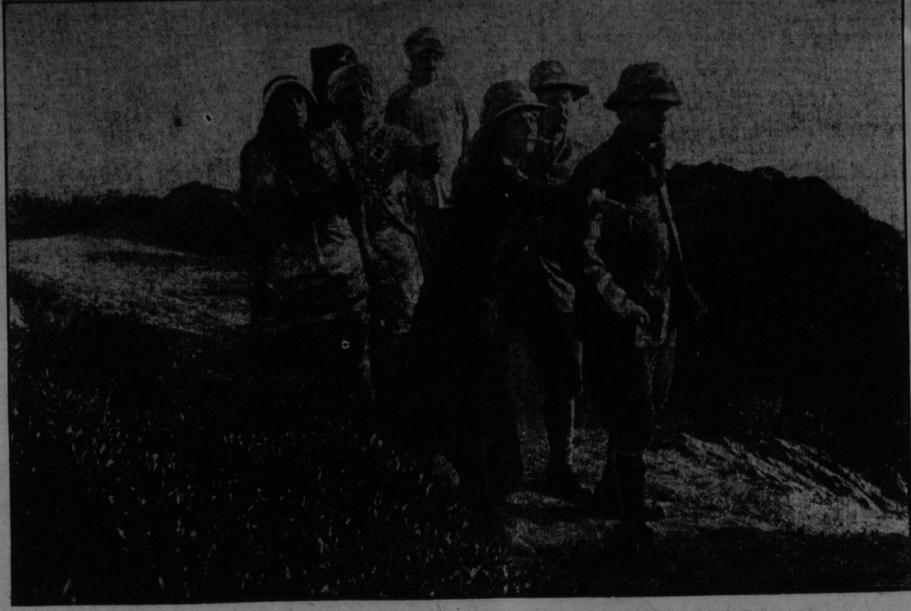

"That is with the gods I serve." "But thou art not without ambition." "Who is?" The chief's wonder grew. What meant these peculiar sentences?

"Wouldst put thy hand into gold as far as the wrist and take what thou couldst hold?" "Yes, holy one; for I am human. Whither leads these questions? What is it you would of me?" "There are some who need to be far away to see things. Well, good man, there is a treasure under your feet," falling into the terrestrial.

The chief could not resist looking down at the ground, startled.

"Nay," smiled Umballah, "not there. Think; did not something unusual happen here five years ago?" The chief smoothed the tip of his nose. "My father died and I became headman of the village."

"Would you call that unusual?" ironically.

"Look!" cried Kathlyn, pointing seaward. What she saw was Umballah setting adrift the boats.

fought against it for weeks, without avail. And frequently now, when alone and undisturbed, he could see the old guru, shaking with the venom of his wrath, the blood dripping from his incriminated fingers, which he shook in the Colonel's face, flecking it with blood. A curse. It was so. He must obey that invisible will; he must go on and on.

His pipe slipped from his fingers and his head fell upon his knees; and thus Kathlyn found him. "Let him sleep, Memshahib," warned Ahmed from across the fire. "He has been fighting the old guru."

"What?" Kathlyn whispered back. "Where?" Ahmed smiled grimly and pointed toward his forehead.

"Is there really such evil, Ahmed?" "Evil begets evil, heaven born, just as good begets good. The Colonel Sahib did wrong. And who shall deny some of these gurus a supernatural power? I have seen; I know."

"But once you said that we should eventually escape, all of us?" "I still say it, Memshahib. What is written is written," phlegmatically.

Wearily she turned toward her tent, but paused to touch the head of her sleeping father as she passed. Her occidental mind would not and could not accept as possibilities these mysterious attributes of the oriental mind. That a will could reach out and prearrange a man's misfortunes was to her mind incredible, for there were no precedents. She never had witnessed a genuine case of hypnotism; those examples she had seen were miserable buffooneries, travesties, hoodwinking not even the newboys in the upper gallery. True, she had read of such things, but from the same angle with which she had read the Arabian Nights—fairy stories.

Yet, here was her father, thoroughly convinced of the efficacy of the guru's curse; and here was Ahmed, complacently watching the effects, and not doubting in the least that his guru would in the end prove the stronger of the two.

One of the elephants clanked his chains restlessly. He may have heard the growling of a cat. Far beyond the fire, beyond the sentinel, she thought she saw a naked form flash out and back of a tree. She stared intently at the tree for a time, but she saw nothing more, she was convinced that her eyes had deceived her. Besides, her body seemed dead and her mind too heavy for thought.

Umballah, having satisfied himself that the camp would not break till morning, slunk away into the shadows. He had fallen again; but his hate had made him strong. dared not fire, for fear of killing the man; so without hesitation or fear he caught the leopard by the back of the neck and by a hind leg and swung her into the sea.

The chief was severely mauled, but he was able to get to his feet and walk. The white woman had saved his child and the white man had saved him. He would remember.

Thus the leopard quite innocently served a purpose, for all her deadly intentions; the chief was filled with gratitude.

When the Colonel and the others came into view the former seized Kathlyn by the shoulders and shook her hysterically.

"In God's name, Kit, don't you know any better than to wander off alone? Do you want to drive me mad?"

"Why, father, I wasn't afraid!" "Afraid? Who said anything about your being afraid? Didn't you know that we were being followed? It is Umballah! Ah! that gives you a start!"

"Colonel!" said Bruce gently. "I know, Bruce, I sound harsh. But you were tearing your hair, too." "Forgive me," cried Kathlyn, penitent, for she knew she had done wrong. "I did not think. But Umballah!"

"Yes, Umballah. One of the keepers found a knife by that bridge, and Ramabai identifies it as belonging to Umballah. Whether he is alone or with many, I do not know; but this I do know; we must under no circumstances become separated again. Now, I'm going to quit the chief."

But the chief said that no person described had passed or been seen. No one but a holy man had come that morning, and he had gone to the island in the sloop.

"For what?" "The chief smiled, but shook his head. Umballah's not basket of gold and precious stones?" demanded the Colonel.

The chief's eyes widened. There were others who knew, then? Bruce noticed no surprise. "Colonel show the good chief the royal seal on your document."

The Colonel did so, and the chief saluted when he saw the royal signature. He was slightly bewildered, and gradually he was made to understand that he had been vilely tricked.

"To the boat!" he shouted, as if suddenly awakened. "We may be too late, lords! He said he was a holy man, and I believed."

They all ran hastily down to the beach to seize what boats they could. Here they met a bear roaring obstacle in the refusal of the owners. The chief, however, signified that it was his will; and, moreover, he commanded that the fishermen should handle the oars. They would be paid. That was different. Why did not the white people say so at once? They would go anywhere for money. Not the most suspicious sign, thought Ramabai. They got into the boats and pushed off.

On the way to the island the Colonel consulted the map, or diagram, he held in his hand. Umballah was not possible that Umballah knew the exact spot.

A filigree basket of silver, filled with gold and gems! The man became as eager and excited as a boy. The instinct to hunt for treasure begins just outside the cradle and ends just inside the grave.

To return to Umballah. Upon landing, he asked at once if any knew where the cave was. One man did know the way, but he refused to show it. There were spirits there, ruled by an evil god.

"Take me there, you, and I will enter without harm. Am I not holy?" "That put rather a new face upon the situation. If the holy man was willing to risk an encounter with the god, far be it that they should prevent him. An ordinary seeker would not have found the entrance in a lifetime. Umballah had not known exactly where the cave was, but he knew all that the cave contained. When they came to it Umballah sniffed; the taint of sulphur became evident both in his nose and on his tongue. He understood. It was simply a small spring, a mineral, in which sulphur predominated. He came out with some cupped in his hands. He drank and showed them that it was harmless. Besides, he was a holy man, and his presence made ineffectual all evil spirits which might

WHOLE BODY A SOLID RASH

Thick, Fine and Red. Agony of Itching and Burning Frightful. One Cake of Cuticura Soap and Box of Cuticura Ointment Cured.

Lower Oatman, N. B.—"At first my child's body was a solid rash and as the rash grew and spread, I thought the skin came off as if it had been scalded. It was a very thick fine rash, and it was so itchy and burning that the child just cried all day long with little spasms of yellow matter in them. The skin on every finger split down on each side and looked like a ruff. His toes broke out in little yellow pimples and the bottom of his feet did the same and he would cry for relief. There were three pieces sticking in his feet.

"The agony of itching and burning was something frightful. If he got a chance he would scratch the skin right off and make a sore, but to prevent that I made mittens for him out of cotton. Every twelve or fifteen minutes I would wash his hands and feet with Cuticura Soap and Ointment. The first night the child slept the whole night through, the first night for four months. I am thankful to say the cure was complete and I just got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." Signed Mrs. Samuel Higgins, May 17, 1913.

AGRICULTURE

THE MUSHROOM AND ITS CULTURE.

(The Eastern Farm and Home.) The cultivation of mushrooms has lately become of commercial importance owing to the high prices which have been obtained both in Canada and the United States. In most European countries, the gardeners and florists have long been successful growers. The growing of this crop is rather uncertain. While I have no doubt that anyone with a little care and attention to the details, which require very careful attention.

The condition under which mushrooms may be successfully grown are limited, therefore much care is necessary from the start. In a good many cases, failures can generally be traced to the reckless disregard of conditions or to wrong ideas as to the cultural requirements. They are usually due to (1) poor spawn, (2) unfavorable temperature, (3) very poor manure which contained little hay, peat moss or corn stalks to any extent, not that it is deleterious to the mushrooms but it should be used only in very limited quantities, if at all in large cities the municipal ordinances require that all stable manure be removed promptly from feeding places, or be disinfected. If disinfected, crude carbolic acid, or sometimes corrosive sublimate is used, hence this manure should not be used for mushroom material. I question whether the manure from veterinary hospitals will take place the temperature very often going higher than 150 degrees. It is then turned over, putting that which was on the outside of the old pile on the inside of the new, and that which was on the inside on the outside. This pile is well tramped down, and the thermometer is inserted to ascertain can be had at very little extra expense. Mushrooms for family use can be grown in cellars or dwellings, but care should be taken to have the manure prepared outside, as the odor from fresh manure in the cellar is not very desirable to have in the house. As to the preparation of the compost, we commence to collect the fresh manure from horse stables. I have found in my experience that manure from horses, that have been fed on good hard grain and clean hay with good clean straw for bedding, has given the best material for the growth of mushrooms. Fresh manure from cow is sometimes used with horse manure in forming up the beds, but I have not seen any advantage whatsoever from its use over that of plain horse manure. In fact, in my opinion it is not as good. Hog manure is not to be used whatever is the composting of mushroom material as it is impure and malodorous and makes a great propagating bed for noxious insect pests. Manure containing saw dust or shavings is not very good for mushroom growing, neither would I care to use manure which contained sawdust, peat moss or corn stalks to any extent, not that it is deleterious to the mushrooms but it should be used only in very limited quantities, if at all in large cities the municipal ordinances require that all stable manure be removed promptly from feeding places, or be disinfected. If disinfected, crude carbolic acid, or sometimes corrosive sublimate is used, hence this manure should not be used for mushroom material. I question whether the manure from veterinary hospitals will take place the temperature very often going higher than 150 degrees. It is then turned over, putting that which was on the outside of the old pile on the inside of the new, and that which was on the inside on the outside. This pile is well tramped down, and the thermometer is inserted to ascertain tail the head in the pile. Be sure not to let it become fire fanged. In a few more days repeat the operation of turning over and continue to do so at intervals of three days until the heat of the pile has dropped down to about 120 degrees. To find about the proper texture, take a handful and squeeze firmly. If it holds well together and does not emit any water, it is in the proper condition for use. The next operation is the placing of the material into the proper beds. Where floor space is not an important consideration it is best to have the beds built either flat or in ridges. If one must economize in space the shelf system will be found very good, while the additional cost of labor involved in growing a crop in this manner is an item to be considered also. When the mushroom crop is over and all material taken out, the shelves should be thoroughly cleaned and given a good coat of lime, to avoid any increased danger from insect depredations.

If flat beds are used they should be from 8 to 12 inches deep, putting in about three inches of peat moss, time and making it perfectly firm, then add more, and so on until completed. In ridges one will get more surface space. They are made two feet at the base and run about 20 to 24 inches high making the pile compact and tight. Another good way is to make slanting beds when they are made against a wall, thereby also setting more surface space. Having thus got the manure into its proper place, and the thermometer inserted, watch until the temperature drops down to 70 degrees. It is then time to put the spawn into the bed. This spawn is the carrier of the mushroom "seed" or mycelium. It is made up of horse and cow manure and dried and finely ground. It is then packed in a wooden box, and is inoculated with mycelium or "seed" of the mushroom. Having the spawn on hand it should be broken up into pieces about the size of a small egg and placed about 8 inches apart in holes made in the manure about three inches deep, being sure to fill the hole in again and make very firm. No condition should be made but the water immediately after spawning, is very important. The spawn or mycelium will have run through the entire bed, it is then time to ease the bed and cover it over with loam to the depth of one or one and a half inches. This loam should be principally of chopped rotted sod or soil procured from beneath a sod field. After applying this cover to the top of the bed it should be made perfectly firm and smooth.

In order to conserve the moisture, put on a covering of clean dry straw to about the depth of two inches, until the young mushrooms appear, which is generally in about seven or eight weeks after spawning. The straw should then be removed. It is possible that the bed may become dry after picking of the mushrooms begins. If so a very light sprinkling of water at the same temperature as the water in contact with the clumps of mushrooms, which discolors them somewhat. The water is generally done immediately after a picking. Under no circumstances must the bed be deluged. When it is time for picking and the beds are in full bearing, the mushrooms should be picked every day, or at least, once in two days. In picking the mushroom should be grasped by the cap, and should be twisted or pulled up very easily from the soil. This twisting disconnects any mycelium that may be clinging to the base of the stem (or stem), if they come up in large clumps and twisting cannot be practiced they will have to be cut, but cutting is not recommended as the part of the stem left must decay and will be a source of danger. Where a mushroom has been taken out and no part of the stem left, it is well to put some soil into the cavity.

When mushrooms are gathered they should be taken to the sorting room, where the stems are cut reasonably short and any dirt that may be on the cap brushed off. They should be put up in very attractive packages, and they are a first class and high priced product. The size of the packages depends on the class of market to which one caters. A good way in which to advertise your products is to enclose a copy of some recipes on cooking and preserving of mushrooms with each box. The quantity of mushrooms that can be grown on a bed, is hard to estimate. Some growers say there is profit if only half a pound per square foot is produced but it certainly should never be less. Others growers have had about two pounds per square foot, but these have been exceptionally good crops. I do not favor the continuation of old beds by renovation as it will not pay commercially. Another reason is that it generally harbors disease and injurious insects. When the cropping is at an end the manure is taken out and used on garden crops, and sometimes used with a mixture of loam for potting up of soft wooded cuttings. Some sections are better adapted than others for outside culture of mushrooms. I believe it would be worth experimenting with to a limited extent to see if conditions are at all favorable. Where climatic changes are marked, the culture of this crop on a commercial scale is not recommended. It does best where there is an average temperature of from 48 to 55 degrees F., provided there are relatively few days when the thermometer goes as low as 32 degrees. Where drying winds prevail it is very difficult to obtain the proper degree of moisture for the best development of the crop. In growing mushrooms out of doors it is advisable to use some inexpensive covering, such as straw, to protect from the drying influence of sun and wind. There are few enemies of the mushroom, but having provided the proper conditions for growth they should not be any great trouble to the grower. Mushrooms and other fungi should be used when quite fresh. "Mushrooms, owing to their pronounced taste, are often used to flavor other foods and are also helpful for the digestion." "In addition to their frequent high nutritive value fungi often contain other valuable substances, such as phosphorus and lecithin." Dr. A. Lorand.

TO LIVE STOCK BREEDERS.

The following letters are being sent to farmers of the province, and particularly live stock breeders, by J. B. Daggett, secretary for Agriculture, which should prove of particular interest to those engaged in the Department of Agriculture, Fredericton, N. B. Honorable J. A. Murray, Minister. Circular to Live-Stock Breeders: As a result of the policy of the Department of Agriculture, in aiding Agricultural Societies to purchase purebred stock, numerous enquiries are being received, as to where suitable breeding stock can be obtained. At the present time this Department is not in a position to give satisfactory information to these enquiries.

In order to increase the efficiency of this Department in supplying the additional cost of labor involved in placing the Breeder and the Purchaser in closer touch with one another, it is proposed, that an accurate record be kept at this office of purebred stock offered for sale by New Brunswick breeders. To facilitate this work the cooperation of breeders would be greatly appreciated by this Department, by their supplying a list, together with a detailed description and the price of animals offered for sale, and by their sending a corrected list of their offerings at the first of each month. In this way we hope not only to be of service to those looking for stock but to the breeders as well.

Kindly address communications to the Live Stock Branch, Department of Agriculture, Fredericton, N. B. Yours very truly, J. B. Daggett, Sec'y for Agriculture.

Department of Agriculture, Fredericton, N. B. Honorable J. A. Murray, Minister. The live-stock situation in the province is such that the Minister has decided to continue the assistance to Agricultural Societies in procuring purebred stock for breeding purposes, under the following regulations: (1) Stock must be bought and sold under the direction of an Agricultural Society. (2) The Society procuring stock will be required to make an annual report to the Department of Agriculture, giving the number of purebred animals in the district: (a) Are pure-breds increasing or decreasing in the district? (3) Assistance will not be given to more than two breeds in any one Society, one beef and one dairy breed; the breeds to be determined by a majority vote of the Society, at a regular or special meeting, notice of the vote to be taken having been given by mail to each member of the Society at least one week prior to meeting. (4) Animals purchased with the assistance of the Department to be sold by auction to the highest bidder, and only members of the society holding the sale to be allowed to purchase the same; or the animal to remain the property of the society for the use of its members only. (5) Animals to be bought subject to approval of an officer of the Department, and must be subject to tuberculin test. (6) Societies obtaining assistance under these regulations to make a report to the Department of cost of animals, expenses incurred in the transaction, and the amounts received from sale of cattle (if sold), certified by the President and Secretary of the Society. (7) Under the above regulations the Department will pay a bonus of 15 per cent of the purchase price of an animal costing $50 or under, and

THE CHOICE OF BREEDS

In studying the needs of the different months in the year, it will be seen that some months the egg-type hen is at a premium, other months the larger birds. To illustrate: The practical poultryman has eggs to sell in January, depending for these upon hens that moulted early and pullets. In February his income is largely dependent on the sale of the birds that have proven unprofitable as winter-layers. In March and April market eggs are usually lower than at any time of the year, but if he has stock desirable for breeding for utility purposes, he will be getting the best prices of the year for surplus eggs—supposing that he has used a goodly number for his own February hatching. April is also the time to get the best prices for winter hatched broilers. Any spring month the item of poultry manure is worth adding to the profits. In most localities there are no specialties for May, prices of eggs usually remaining low. June and July eggs bring good prices and this is a good time to sell all mature hens, who are not laying well and all birds who are chronically broody, for roasters are in demand. August and September are still money-makers, if one has persistent layers—and other birds should be marketed. October is the time to sell all old hens which moulted late, for they will never again pay their board. November and December, early hatched pullets should be rearing in dollars. Now as to which breeds will answer the majority of these purposes each must decide for himself. Mediterranean are light, rather small; nervous and fit only unless well handled; mature quickly; active forsters; eat less than heavier breeds. Asiatics are large and heavy; mature slowly; produce brown eggs of good size; are contented in confinement and thrive in cold climates.

25 per cent of purchase price when above $50. (8) Not more than six animals to be bonused in one Society in one year. (9) The birds purchased under the above regulations to be reserved for use of members of the Society only, and not to be disposed of without consent of the Department. (10) Notice of desire to participate in the above to be given to the Department before purchase is made. N.B.—This circular cancels former circulars in this connection. (Signed) J. B. Daggett, Fredericton, N. B. Sec'y for Agr. July 24, 1914.

Daniel O'Connell—"The Liberator"

DANIEL O'CONNELL has given the world many a genius and many a Lover of Liberty, but none greater than the eloquent O'Connell. This noble Irishman unselfishly devoted every moment of his life to regain the freedom of his Fatherland, and hastened many reforms for Ireland. Daniel O'Connell was the first to realize the irresistible strength of a union of millions of Irishmen, and to this end he labored night and day. Huge mass meetings were everywhere organized throughout Ireland and addressed by the masterful O'Connell. When confident of success and with victory in sight he was arrested and condemned to prison. When liberated his splendid constitution was shattered, but he continued until his dying hour to work and pray for Irish Liberty. It is needless to say that Daniel O'Connell was opposed to any Prohibitory legislation which invaded the Natural Rights of Man. He would no more vote for such tyrannous enactments than will our millions of Irish-American citizens. They know that there is no evil in the barley brews and light wines of their fathers—EVIL ONLY IS IN THE MAN WHO MISUSES THEM. For 77 years Anheuser-Busch have honestly brewed honest brews, and they are proud of the popularity their great brand Budweiser enjoys with those of Irish blood. Our Irish citizens have helped to make our nation great among the nations of the world. Seven thousand, five hundred people are daily required to keep pace with the natural demand for Budweiser. industries.

Fur farming in Prince Edward Island received special attention from the members of the Dominion Royal Commission which met in Charlottetown this week.

The two witnesses examined were Mr. W. E. Cameron, B.A., one of the leading fox men of this province, and one of the Foxes scholars from Prince Edward Island, also Hon. Charles Dalton, whose name and fame in connection with the industry have spread round the world.

Every member of the commission, starting with Sir Rider Haggard, took a hand in the questioning. They recognized that the business was a unique one—in the words of Sir Alfred Berman, it reminded him of the diamond and ostrich industry in South Africa—and they were anxious to get all the information about it from the financial and other standpoints.

THE ACTIVITIES OF FOX COMPANIES

The report of the Commissioner of Agriculture shows good advance in business.

The following excerpt is taken from the report of the Commissioner of Agriculture issued March, 1914:

"The fox industry has created great corporate activity in a field where such enterprise had been conspicuously lacking, inasmuch that there were more new industrial and trading companies chartered in the province in the year 1912 than in forty years before, while in 1913 the new companies exceeded both in their numbers and capitalization all that had been incorporated since the province was united with Canada, including those of 1912. And during the same two years more capital from outside of the island was invested, in corporation enterprises within its shores than had been brought in during the period of a generation before."

"Under authority of the act passed by the Legislature in April last entitled 'An Act to Impose a Tax Upon Foxes Held in Captivity in this Province,' which imposed a tax of 1 per cent on the value of the increase in lieu of the income tax of 1 1/2 per cent, formerly paid, an official enumeration was made in August last, with a valuation of the young foxes for the purpose of taxation."

FOX SKINS AND THEIR COSTS

A London Fur Broker gives his idea of cost of Fox furs.

A London fur broker who visited Prince Edward Island in the Autumn of 1913, and inspected the foxes in some ranches in the vicinity of Charlottetown gave it as his opinion that the pelts he saw were on an average worth $1500 each.

In this connection the following extract from a lecture delivered by J. B. Tompkins, a well-known American Scientist before the members of the Academy of Science, Baltimore, Md., on April 20th, 1914 is significant:

"While I was in Europe last summer I visited the Zoological gardens in London, also those in Antwerp and Brussels and in Paris, France, and not one of these places had a specimen of a Silver Fox. They said when I enquired about them, 'they were too rare and expensive to be found in zoos.' Seeing some fox skins in a large retail fur store on Rue De La Paix, Paris, I went in and priced them; they asked fifteen thousand francs, that is three and four thousand dollars respectively. Upon my return to New York I saw in 'Reville's Press' window, on 4th Street, some skins. I went in and they showed them to me and they asked $500 for the lighter color skins and $2000 for the real dark ones, but they were no such skins as I priced in Paris, and I might say in neither case were the pelts to be compared with those I have seen on Prince Edward Island."

PELT VALUE

The pelts obtained from the ranch-bred foxes gradually improved in quality owing to careful selection.

Year	No. of Skins
1905	11
1906	8
1907	28
1910	27
1911	10
1912	1
Total	85

It may be noticed that since 1910 no skins of the highest P. E. Island quality have been marketed in London or elsewhere.

Fur Producers Limited

FUR PRODUCERS LIMITED is a promising, profitable proposition—it is built upon a sound business basis; the board of directors is made up of reliable men; the most successful fox raisers in Prince Edward Island are caring for the foxes; it has the lowest ranching arrangement of any company in existence, and the highest protective features have been adopted, which means good production and good production means good dividends.
