EXTRAORDINARY

In British Naval and Military Circles-Menacing Indications.

Hong Kong, Nov. 3.-Extraordinary activity has prevailed in naval and military circles here during the past few days. But no information on the subject is obtainable. The British firstclass cruiser Powerful has just taken on board over 2,000 tons of coal, and all the other British warships here are taking on board stores and ammunition. It is reported that they have been ordered to be ready for sea immediately. The British second-class cruiser Bonaventure has been recalled from Manila, and arrived here last night. She is now coaling with all possible haste. It is reported that the British gunboats have been ordered to rendezvous here. At the navy yard here the ordnance department is most active, and is engaged in mounting slege guns. MENACING SIGN.

London, Nov. 3.-The fact that the coast-guardsmen throughout the United Kingdom have been warned to be in readiness for mobilization is regarded as a menacing sign. Many of them have already joined their ships. CORNERING COAL.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 3 .-- A morning paper publishes the following: The probability of a war received fresh impetus yesterday by the action of England, who purchased a large amount of American coal for immediate delivery at her West Indian naval stations. In response to hurried cablegrams from London, ship brokers engaged in the West India trade spent the greater part of yesterday searching for tonnages capable to transport the coal from Philadelphia and Newport News to points where it will be most convenient for English war craft to fill their bunkers. Sailing vessels from 1,000 to 2,000 tons carrying capacity are particularly in demand. The first shipments are to be sent to Kingston, to be followed by vessels for Bermuda St. Lucia and Demerara, which are the principal ports in the West Indies subject to Great Britain. It is also proposed to discharge a part of the purchase at St. Thomas, a Danish island, where hulks will be used. It was reported yesterday that two British warships had been ordered here to undergo slight repairs, which under ordinary circun stances would have been made at either Halifax or the Bermuda Islands.

KIPLING'S POPULARITY. It has been stated by many critics that Mr. Kipling is essentially a man's poet, but an incident connected with the publication of "The Truce of the Bear" would seem to dispute their judgment. When the poem was published in Literature, Messrs. Harper & Brothers advertised that the number containing the poem would be sent upon receipt of 10 cents, etc., and, strange to say, of the many orders received more than half were from women-a fact which tends to show that the genius of Mr. Kipling is appreciated by women as well as by men.

London, Nov. 8. - The situation regarding Fashoda is practically unchanged. Baron de Courcel, the waw Sir Thomas Sanderson, permanent under secretary of state for foreign affairs, was absent from Lord her by the King of the Belgians. Salisbury's reception yesterday. The special dispatches from Paris this morning repeat the semi-official statement that the evacuation of Fashoda British navy. is accepted in principle, but that other points in the Bahr-el-Ghazal region will be maintained. Various rumors are affoat as to the Abyssinian expeditions nearing the Nile to assist the French, but nothing authentic is known on this point. M. Delcasse, French minister of foreign affairs, is expected to announce his policy in the Chamber of Deputies tomorrow (Friday). It is admitted on all sides that Fashoda offers no difficulty, provided a way can be found to save

Right Hon. Britain's occupation of Egypt is based solely on might, and has frequently been denounced by the Khedive himself, by his suzerain, the Sultan of Turkey, and by France, as illegal, while the other powers have quietly tolerated. It is this that has caused the British Government to decide that the time has come to proclaim the protectorate over Egypt before there can be any question of an international conference, or of the pro-

Realizing that no time was to be lost Lady Cromer hurried back Lord Cromer to Cairo, he being the one strong man of sufficient force and resolution to take charge of the process of annexation of the land of the Nile, which he has practically ruled as British plenipotentiary for fourteen years. His wife was dying here at the moment when it became necessary for him to return to his post. Knowing that her days were numbered, and being passionately devoted to her, he wished to resign in order to remain with her to the last. With RARE HEROISM AND PATRIOTISM the dying peeress would not hear of his abandoning his post. She insisted in traveling out with him to Egypt, condemned as she was by the physicians at the time, and breathed her last in her husband's arms a few days after her arrival at Cairo. Such a sacrifice on the part of Lord and Lady Cromer would hardly have been necessary were not vast national interests at stake.

THE KAISER APPROVES. There is every reason to believe that the German emperor is cognizant of this projected move on the part of Great Britain, and that his approval was obtained last summer at the time of the mysterious conferences between Arthur Balfour and the German ambassador here, concerning which so Indeed, much speculation prevailed. there is every reason to believe that it is this that has led him at the present moment to abandon his visit to Egypt, as he might otherwise find himself at Cairo as the guest of the sultan, and of the latter's subordinate, the Khedive, at the very momen? when Lord Cromer was proclaiming the protectorate.

The Danakiels, who occupy the territory between Obok and the mountains of Abyssinia, killed four French soldiers, and seized 400 camels, 4,000 rifles, a large quantity of ammunition and valuable gifts intended for the Negus. Terrible Mortality on a Spanish Transport-General Cables.

London, Nov. 3.-Referring to the increasing cordiality between the United States and Great Britain, Right Hon. John Bryce (who was a member of the last Gladstone ministry) said in a the United States I was much struck with the change in public sentiment. The spontaneous outburst of feeling in Great Britain when the European powers wished to intervene against the United States during the recent war with Spain made the Americans understand how close we felt the tie between them and ourselves. They have shown that they appreciate and reciprocate our sentiment. I would never advocate a formal alliance. At all events, the obstacles at present are serious, but all the conditions exist for a solid and durduction of the sultan's concessions to able friendship between America and Great Britain. They have no adverse interests anywhere in the world, and they have common aims in sundry regions. Everywhere each can render a great service to the other side, and they can understand each other easier than either one can understand any other foreign nation. Nature and his tory meant them to be friends, and the closer and deeper that friendship is the better it will be for the greatness and welfare of both."

German papers express their feelings very frankly. The Hamburgische Correspondenz says: "The United States are conducting the peace negotiations as they conducted the war. The mask of humanity is being gradually dropped, revealing the brutal hand of strength. When the protocol was signed not a foot of the Philippine soil was in American hands. RECEPTION

To Lord and Lady Aberdeen at Ottawa -Thousands of Persons Bid Their Excellencies Farewell.

Ottawa, Nov. 3 .- The final reception in Ottawa by Lord and Lady Aberdeen was held in the senate chamber last evening, and lasted nearly three hours, during which time over 1,000 person paid their respects to their excellencies and wished them "Bon voyage."

The reception was very informal, and was probably the most representative of the personal popularity of their excellencies, and of the strong hold they have on the affections of the great mass of "the people" of Ottawa, of any of the many receptions which have been held in the senate chamber during the last five years. "Society" was well represented, and several of the ministers and some of the officials of the civil service were there, but the great Hon. John Bryce on Anglo-Ameri- majority of those who went up to shake hands with their excellencies and Lady Marjorie were not fashionable people.

It was essentially a democratic gathering, the female element predominating, and it was pleasing to see the kindly manner in which their excellencies took leave of working girls and Salvation Army lassies who mingled with those higher in the social scale who had also come to say good-bye. Immediately before the reception his Worship Mayor Bingham and some fifteen or sixteen aldermen, accompanied by City Clerk Henderson, presented an address from the city council. [C. P. R. Special to The Advertiser.] Ottawa, Nov. 3.-Lord and Lady Aberdeen took farewell of Ottawa today. They left for Toronto by way of Brockville. They will have two hours to wait in Brockville for the westbound train, and during that time will hold a reception. A guard of honor from the Forty-first Battalion will be present. From Toronto their excellencies will go to Montreal, and from there to Quebec, where Lord Minto will be sworn in as governor-general on the 11th inst., and Lord and Lady Aberdeen

The Cuban War Has Already Cost Uncle Sam $160,000,000.

Believed It Will Cost About $10,000,000 a Month More During This Fiscal Year.

Washington, Nov. 3.-The completion of the treasury returns for October leaves the net cost of the Spanish war up to the present time about $160,000,-000. This result is obtained by deducting from the entire cost of the military and naval departments since the beginning of March the cost upon a peace basis as indicated by the expenditures of previous years. The expenditures on account of the war are far from ended, however, and the treasury officials have no basis for judgment as to when they will diminish. It is hoped that the cost of maintaining garrisons in the dependencies, with the other incidental expenses of the war, will not average more than $10,000,000 per month during the remaining eight months of the fiscal year, which ends next June. If these estimates are verified, $80,-000,000 will be added to the present tures up to the beginning of another fiscal year will be $240,000,000. It is Manager Carr Says He Has Plenty of Men.

At 6 o'clock last night, after another day of negotiating, the difficulty between the street railway company and the striking employes looked anything but bright, and the result of the consultation with Mr. Everett, of Cleveland, over the long distance telephone, did not tend in any way to dispel the gloom. That gentleman, who has, like everybody else, troubles of his own, is possibly perplexed over the 4-cent fare battle in Cleveland, which has now battle in Cleveland, which has now broken out, after hanging fire for four trealers had gone back. The men, on the other hand, have receded somewhat, and reconstructed their union clause, so as to make it optional on the part of future employes whether they shall affiliate with the union or not.

THE COMPANY'S REPLY. Yesterday's deliberations opened with the presentation of the following statement by the company to the men: "10:30 a.m. "The London Street Railway Company, in reply to proposal of employes dated Nov. 1, '98, beg to state that the second clause, namely: That all employes entering the service of the company after this date should become members of the Employes' Association duty to call the commissioners together within 30 days if satisfactory to the at once and ascertain the number of company,' cannot be accepted by the men required, who shall be sworn in company. After discussing the question for some time the company submitted the following collorary:

AT THE CAR BARNS. There was considerable activity at the car barns yesterday. The windows and office doors are being boarded up, and in case of any more trouble these will prove more impervious to eggs and bricks than the glass. Rumors are affoat that the non-union men are to be provided with accommodations at the barns in the event of the company being unable to procure lodgings. Mr. other places, and also that the Monmay be, many strangers were seen going into the car barns in the course of the afternoon. Strangers loomed up from everywhere.

CONFERRING WITH THE POLICE. The mayor and Mr. I. F. Hellmuth waited on Chief Williams with a view afforded in the event of the attempt being made to operate the cars. The chief suggested that it would be better to hold off for a day or so longer, until the populace had cooled down. The, mayor opposed the idea of putting police on the cars and making them marks for stale eggs, rocks and brickbats. He jokingly said to the chief that he would sooner that the chief should stand on the one end and he (the mayor) at the other. COMMISSIONERS' ORDERS TO THE CHIEF. At the last meeting of the police commissioners the following instructions feet. were given to Chief Williams: The chief of police must protect all persons and property. In the event of the chief informing the mayor that he must have additional men, then it is the mayor's that the chief is not able with the additional sworn-in constables to control the mob, it shall be the duty of the mayor to read the Riot Act, and if found necessary to call out the militia. runaway accident. MAYOR WILSON SPEAKS.

The mayor when seen last night said he did not know what would be done in case of trouble. If the police were unable to handle the crowd in case of trouble, the mayor wondered whether or not the soldiers at Wolseley Bar-racks could be called out. The chief magistrate of the city had power to call out the militia, but the Seventh Battalion was the militia in London, called upon.

At a meeting of the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners, the following resolution was unanimously passed: "That we extend our sympathy and support to the street car employes, and pledge ourselves not to patronize the cars until the trouble is amicably settled between the company and its employee.

MURDERED!

Believed to Have Been the Victim of Buffalo Burglars.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 3 .- Peter Allan, 40 years old, a night watchman at the Grand Trunk sheds, was shot and killed early this morning while on duty. The identity of the person or persons responsible for his death is a mystery, but they are believed to be safe-crackers, whom he tried to stop while they were fleeing from Patrolmen Hyde and

The office of the Western Beef Company had been robbed, presumably about 2 o'clock. Later the patrolmen discovered three men acting suspiciously, and when the officers called to them they fled, firing two shots at the officers, which were returned without effect. Later they fired a third shot, and this, it is believed, is the one that killed Allan, who, it is thought, attempted to intercept them.

It is possible, however, that Allan was struck down by a stray bullet in the running interchange of shots between the officers and the men they were chasing.

Santiago de Cuba, Nov. 3.-A rumor that the government transport Panama went down in a sale in the Windward passage, off Cape Maysi, yesterday, and that few of her passengers or crew escaped, has caused a great uneasiness here. There is no telegraphic communica tion between Santiago and Cape Maysi and it is therefore impossible to verify the story at present. The report was brought by a fishing echooner, which arrived here this morning. Her captain says he picked up a quantity of wreckage marked Panama. The Panama was a prize that was captured during the war. She was not in the best of shape when she left here Monday. Her bottom was fouled with marine growth, and her engines were in bad condition. Many seamen have considered her unsafe. She had 300 persons on board-passengers and crew and was bound for New York by the way of the north coast and Havana. Congressman Dalzell, former Congressman Huff, of Pennsylvania, and a party of friends, who spent several days here, were on board the Panama. A number of officers who were bound home on sick leave were also among her passengers. The Panama carried no mail. Postmaster Hugo Hydeman considered her unsafe, and refused to put the mailbags aboard of her.

The game was lively and amusing, and a great novelty to most all present. The Woodstock nine are well up in the game and outplayed London at every point. This was the first game of a local series of matches in the Indoor Ball League, and the interest displayed by the spectators promises well for the popularity of this novel sport in London. She gave our representative an interview in the matter of taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and related the story of her experience with this remarkable remedy, as follows:

"For over a year I have been afflicted with intense pain in my back, extending from the base of my spine up to my shoulders. I sometimes felt dizzy, and could scarcely venture upstairs without sitting down to rest. I ascertained that my distress was due in a great measure to the deranged action of the kidneys. My loins ached continually, and I could scarcely bend my back. I did not pay much attention to my trouble at first, thinking it would wear away, but in this I was disappointed, as it gradually grew worse "Not getting any relief from the many home remedies I tried, I became more anxious about my condition, and began to look around for a cure. I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got a box through Messrs. R. T. Mack & Co., druggists here; and before I had finished a month's treatment I was completely cured, and now I am feeling as well as ever, and my back is strong and without ache or pain. I can highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills for lame back and many distressing troubles arising from the

dian Ranching Industry. The latest Canadian letter in the London Times from the colonial editor of that paper, Mies Flora Shaw, is dated from Calgary, Sept. 23, and is devoted to a description of the ranching industry of the Northwest Territory. The conclusions which Miss Shaw draws from her own observation are highly commendatory and full of gratifying prediction. The favored ranching district of Canada, she writes, comprises an area of about 200 miles from south to north, and 300 miles from east to west. One element which makes this district very favorable to cattle-raising is the fortunate distribution of the water supply. Another element is the prevalence in winter of the mild winds, which find free passage from the Pacific Ocean through the Crow's Nest and Kootenay Passes, and which not only modify the cold, but tend to keep the grass fairly free from snow, thus rendering it possible for hardy cattle to remain out all winter. Miss Shaw enters into an elaborate comparison between the pastoral industries of Canada and Australia, Australla, she saye, has an advantage in climate, having ten months of summer to Canada's five. But Canada has the advantage in geographical position, being six days' distance from Europe against Australia's six weeks. The writer notes the radical difference between Australian and Canadian methods of ranching. The owner of cattle in Australia fences his pastures at his own expense, and does not consider that he has efficiently provided for the safety of his valuable herds until he has also supplemented the naturally poor distribution of the water supply by sinking a sufficient number of artesian wells, or constructing tanks and water holes. These precautions cannot be taken over a large extent of land without involving a very heavy expense, and it is well that the profit should be raised from the largest possible number of cattle. Hence, in Australia, where the pastoral industry has now flourished for a hundred years, the raising of cattle is carried on upon a very large scale, almost entirely by capitalists. A well-managed station is worked like a gold mine on a commercial basis for the benefit of the shareholders. The effect of the system on the lives of those practically engaged in the industry is not agreeable, as it necessitates for each manager of a station and his limited staff complete isolation in the center of areas

> In the Canadian Northwest, the climatic conditions make a different system necessary. Sometimes, in search of shelter, herds will stray for several hundred miles, driving all the time before the wind. To interfere with this instinct is disastrous. A fence across the line of drift will in bad weather give sufficient cause for a large percentage of mortality. Fences necessarily disappeared under pressure of the local conditions, and the herds are allowed to mix, the grazing land being common property. In Australia, the pastoral system is built on the individual possession of extensive properties; in Canada it stands on the common use of land and water.

sometimes extending to 2,000

We quote the following passage from Miss Shaw's letter, which, we think, will tell strongly in favor of Canada with intending emigrants in the Brit-

"One immediate result of the difference indicated between the Canadian and Australian methods of ranching is that in Canada the industry is not reserved entirely for the operations of the rich. That the owner of many herds will be in a better position to carry on a profitable undertaking, and to face the accidents of occasional loss than the owner of a few head of cattle, is obvious. The rule must hold good in Canada as elsewhere. But land and water are a public possession there is no need for the employment of the vast capital required the system of private ownership. In the Canadian Northwest any man having earned enough money to buy a cow may turn her loose upon the public range. If he can succeed in finding her and branding her calf in the following spring, he will be the possessor of two animals instead of one, and may continue while he works for wages to add to the number of his herd until such time as he sees a chance of making profit enough to justify the establishment of a separate homestead. This is the poorest kind of rancher, and in this way beginnings are of-ten made. The richest of Canadian ranchers own herds ranging up to about 15,000 head, and some of them have already established themselves in charming homesteads surrounded by the same kind of comfort and refinement which Englishmen associate with the life of an English country house. Between the two there is every grade and stage of development. Homesteads ranging in importance from the little lumber shack, which may have cost less than £25 to build, to the stone house, spreading its red-roofed veran-das in the midst of well-kept lawns and flower gardens, are scattered in sparse groups throughout the prairies. them all the ranges are open. For all alike the creeks are running."

In addition to the favored district referred to, Miss Shaw points out that there are immense areas stretching to the east which lack only a wider distribution of water supply to render ready used for grazing purposes. Acis that the distribution of water should contemporary concludes its friendly of the unnatural Franco-Russian alli- enforced by each party against the cure it for you.

be governed so as to give every 50,000 acres of unirrigated land a 5,000-acre lot of irrigated land upon which the highest forms of farming can be carried on. The soil needs nothing but water to render it highly productive. Under the proposed system, if it can be realized, agricultural and pastoral communities can be interspersed throughout the country and the lands intervening between the small irrigated areas will become all serviceable for grazing purposes. The realization of such a scheme on a wide scale belongs to the history of the future. The ranching industry, as it exists under present conditions, offers ample opportunities for expansion, and is sufficiently interesting and attractive to private enter-

Miss Shaw describes in an entertaining manner the co-operative system of periodically rounding up all the cattle of a given neighborhood, each ranch owner furnishing men and horses accofding to the number of cattle he possesses. These riders scour the country, and drive every head of cattle to a given center, where the representatives of each ranch pick out their own cattle (which they identify by brands), and then brand all calves which are running with the cows. The brand is the mark of ownership, and if it is not duly affixed, that property is lost. The price of a 4-year-old steer of prime quality sold for shipping to England to be slaughtered on arrival is from $40 to $45, and the market is continuous for as many as can be delivered at this price. The Kootenay mining market has in the last two years added a considerable local demand, but this is not yet sufficient to alter the price of cattle, which is fixed in England. Miss Shaw puts in another good word for the Canadian ranching industry, thus:

"It is at this period of the year (late in August and early in September) that the advantage possessed by Canada in her proximity to European markets is appreciated, the price of cattle which is shipped alive being nearly double that realized by Australian steers slaughtered for export as frozen meat. Thus, while as the result of his climate the Canadian rancher has less capital expenditure than the Australian to face in the beginning, he has before him as the result of his geographical position the prospect of a larger profit. * * * To speak in general terms, it may be said that nearly the whole expense of Canadian ranching is chargeable to labor. The small man who gives his own labor, has, thereless relative expense than the rancher on a large scale, a circum-stance which tells in favor of the beginner. The rancher on a large scale, working on a well-established and properly-organized ranch, should be able in ordinary circumstances, to keep his expenditure within a limit of from 20 to 25 per cent of his gross profits, and with cattle at £8 a head it is his own fault if these are not considerable. With ranches maintained on the Canadian scale a yearly sale of 2,000 head of cattle is large. There are few ranches, if any, which do business on a greater scale than this, nor are there There are few many which do so much. A yearly sale of 500 to 600 head will give comfortable returns, and sufficient occupation to the owner who manages his own ranch, and the rancher who can count on selling 100 head of cattle a year is already in an independent position. The expenses of living on the prairie are so light that very happy lives are bed and cheerful homes established on a much more modest basis than this."

Mies Shaw thinks that conditions combine in the Canadian Northwest to point to a development of the ranching industry on the basis rather of a large number of small herds than of a relatively small number of large herde. This is owing to the greater care which the owner of a small herd can take of his stock. The closing paragraph of Miss Shaw's letter, summarizing her opinions, constitutes a splendid advertisement for our great Northwest:

"Ranching in Australia represents a great individual system of production in which there is no room for considerin Canada represents a natural occupation which a certain number of men will always follow for choice, and from which the amenities of civilized exist-Australian station is a place of business; the ideal of a Canadian ranch is a home. In the Australian pastoral industry there are advantageous opportunities for the investment of British capital. It is to the Canadian industry that British parents should look for the more delicate and difficult investment of their sons. "The practical considerations raised by this aspect of the question shall be dealt with in detail in another letter, after the conditions of the agricultural industry on the prairies have been examined. In the meantime, it may be interesting to note that the openings which are presented by the very recessity limited to young men. # Great Britain Still Capable.

The Louisville Courier-Journal has a friendly article on the subject of Great Britain's prestige-an article of a tone once rare beyond the lakes, but now happily the opposite of uncommon. The Courier-Journal points out that Great Britain's desire for peace has been mistaken, more than once during the past ten years, by others powers as pusillanimity. Russia, Germany, France, each in turn presumed upon this impression, until, as the Courier-Journal says, it began to lead to the belief in them equally valuable with those al- the case of some that Great Britain's cording to the statistics of the land de- much feeding, "an indifferent tame lion, partment there exist in this neighbor- and gentle as a suckling." article as follows: "It is not necessary to discuss here the abstract right of Great Britain to control the Valley of the Nile, through Egypt, its dependency. That would lead us too far afield. It is sufficient that British public opinion is practically unanimous in claiming that right. France may not have gone to Fashoda because she thought Great Britain would not fight, but it looks that way to the average Englishman. Having, as he believes, a clear case of justification, he also sees an opportunity of signifying to Europe that he is still to be reckoned with, not only on the seas, where he is easily ahead of any other nation, but also on land, where he is still formidable. Should Great Britain submit to the invasion of her territory by a nation of inferior strength and resources, it would but tend to confirm the halfformed impression that she will not go to war with a first-class power at all. Such an opinion would be sure to lead to fresh aggressions. Hence the strength of English feeling brought out by the Fashoda incident. The provocation may seem small, but it is time for Great Britain to vindicate her prestige as a military nation. The United States have just taught Spain, and through her all other nations, that even shopkeepers can fight efficiently, and Great Britain does not propose that the lesson

We do not desire to disparage Mr. Whitney's abilities and merits, whatever they really are, or may prove to be, but it could hardly be said that where Mr. Meredith failed, Mr. Whitney would be likely to prevail, on the ground of superior intellect.

There were a number of causes for Mr. Whitney's good run, but they were mainly temporary causes.

Among them we place pretty well in the foreground the over-confidence of the Government and their friends.

They have learned an always needed lesson, as shown by the effects of oldtime zeal and vigilance in East Wellington and South Ontario.

The probability now is that the Ontario Government will gradually acquire its average normal strength. If the Opposition turns out to be competent and numerically effective, ance is already wearing off. The French are getting their eyes opened.

The ward system seems to be in bad odor from the Atlantic to the Pacific. We quote with pleasure and approval this emphatic testimony from the Yarmouth (N. S.) Telegram:

Yarmouth was the first town in the province to become incorporated which did away with the ward sysincorporated tem. No one hears of any desire to return to the division of the town into wards. The present system is so universally popular that not even cranks suggest a departure from it.

A Firebrand Extinguished,

[Brockville Recorder.]

Mr. Carscallen tried hard at Oshawa to rekindle the race and creed flame that for so many years was the stockin-trade of the Ontario Opposition, but the attempt was received with coldness, and the man from Hamilton was greatly disappointed if he expected to see it fizz.

Put Down Bribery. [Guelph Mercury.]

Every person who gives a bribe should be punished with imprisonment without the option of a fine, and every voter who accepts one should be dis-franchised for life. This may appear drastic, but such a law, vindictively

Spare the Sparrows. [Chatham Planet.]

There is a gun club near London, Ont., that destroys sparrows by the thousand. This is a sport that should be put down by law. Sparrows are undoubtedly good insect destroyers, and are also useful as public scavengers. It is true a number of persons rail against the sparrow as a nuisance, but this appears to be based on prejudice more than on proof.

> Tired of "Dan." [Ottawa Citizen.]

The great ram Dan is dead. That much-abused animal, which nearly disrupted a constituency, which took up more time, and consequently money, to discuss his case in the Legislature, than would have bought a stock farm, and which was responsible for more bad puns and newspaper verse than probably any other quadruped, except the cow that kicked over the lamp at Chicago, has passed away.Poor old chap! It's too ram Dan bad!

A Candid View. [Chicago Chronicle.]

The one thing certain is that the trade returns do not at all strengthen the hands of Dingley and other American commissioners who have been making a great ado about Canadian discrimination against the United States. They indicate that we can well afford to make a liberal abatement in the monstrous duties we have imposed on Canadian products in order to secure for our goods in Canada the same

Altogether it is certainly one of the best arranged theaters in the matter of lighting by electricity in the country, and reflects credit on the London Electric Company, of this city, who had entire charge of the work, under the capable supervision of Mr. Bert Hunt. The erection of the building was under Mr. John Purdom's effective management. He had complete control of the construction of the building, and sub-let the other contracts. As a result of his skill and good judgment, St. Thomas has a model theater. Every part of the building contains the most modern appliances, and Mr. Purdom has shown himself capable of erecting one of the finest structures of the kind in Canada.

After the first act last evening Major B. H. Rothwell was called upon for a speech. He thanked the large audience for turning out so strongly, and said he hoped the theater would please them, as every effort would be made to give them the best shows possible under the management of Mr. R. Mr. John P. Quinn, the Converted American Gambler, in the City-His Novel Orusade Against the Evil-Evangelistic Work.

The fallacy of the belief that "chance" has any part in a game with professional gamblers was thoroughly exposed last evening at No. 152 Dundas street by John P. The room is stocked with a variety of drop-case machines, the squeeze spindle, a weight machines, and other machines common at country fairs, all of which are proven to be, in the hands of a professional, perfectly safe-for the professional. A circular table covered with green baize attracted a great deal of attention, when Mr. Quinn demonstrated the complete hopelesness of getting ahead of the professionals in any of their games. In card games he knew all the cards held by his opponent, although his opponent shuffled and dealt. With dice, aces were thrown at will. ### Probably Not.

It was said of Oliver Wendell Holmes that some of his best jokes were made at times when there was nobody to appreciate them save a chance listener.

One such fortunate listener tells of a reply which she, sitting in a street car, heard Dr. Holmes make to a complaining writer of little wit and less talent. "I've worked with all my heart on that book," said the young man, who had been treating the doctor to a long account of a recent collection of poetry which he had edited. "I've used my best taste and judgment and research, and I feel confident that nobody could have done the thing better or more thoroughly than I have. And what reward do I get? Harsh criticisms for my omission of a few popular poets and a paltry $100." "A hundred dollars!" echoed the Autocrat of the Breakfast Table wearily. "Why, I wouldn't have written that book for $1,-000, I'm sure!"

The collector of poetry smiled with gratification, but the listener turned to regard a passing dray lest her face should betray her. - Youth's Companion.

A Losing Joke.

Mr. Jones was clerk in a city office, and owing to the jealousy of his fellow clerks was daily subjected to many petty annoyances. One day his enemies thought they had hit on a plan which would amuse them and add to Jones' discomfort. The next morning when Mr. Jones entered the office one after another came up and said to him in a tone of horror:

"Why, whatever is the matter with you! Are you ill? You look simply ghastly. Mr. Jones sat listening quietly for a few minutes. Then suddenly, to the surprise of everybody, he got off his stool and slipped into the manager's office. A short time only had elapsed when the manager appeared, followed by Mr. Jones, and, addressing the astonished clerks, said:

"As Mr. Jones is so unwell I have granted him permission to take a day or two's holiday; so you must divide his work equally among you until he returns."-Pearson's Weekly.

THE WIFE OF TOMMY ATKINS

Her Lot Described by a British Officer

-Conditions of the Married State. The question of permission to marry is a burning one in the barrack-room. Only a limited number of men are allowed to marry, the strength of the roll varying with the establishment of the corps; sergeants are given permission to marry, as a matter of course, if there is a vacancy in the establishment, but no soldier is allowed to enter the blessed state unless he has seven years' service, £5 in the savings bank, and two good conduce badges. I have heard it said that there is such a thing as borrowing the £5 till the necessary permission has been obtained, but there is no getting over the other two conditions. The married quarters seem comfortable enough; what strikes us most is the enormous number of babies and quite young children who swaren around the door of every quarter, occasional yells, leading to the hasty arrival of a flushed and heated-looking matron to restore order in a summary fashion. The allowance of space does not strike one as particularly liberal, soldiers with small families being given only one room with the minutest possible scullery, the fathers of larger families rejoicing in an extra room. Sergeants, as a rule, have two rooms, but otherwise have no pull over their comrades of lower rank. The wives of the private soldiers add largely to the scanty pay of their husbands, by doing washing for the men of their husband's company, and twice blessed is the woman whose good man belongs to a company having few married soldiers. In this case she will be able to get more to do than her less fortunate sisters. Some of the women who have a reputation as washerwoman earn plenty of money by washing for the officers of the regiment. A little conversation with the ladies is a liberal education in esprit de corps; each woman thoroughidentifies herself with the regiment to which her husband belongs; and even in these days of short service it is not difficult to find women whose fathers and grandfathers have solsoldiered in bygone days under the tattered colors now hanging in the sa-cred precincts of the officers' mess The ladies of the regiment, as a rule, take great interest in the welfare of humbler sisters, frequently visiting them in their quarters, and giving more than there sympathy at one of those crises which occur so frequently in the married block, and generally lead ultimately to the object of their solicitude applying for extra accommodation, owing to an unauth-orized addition to the strength of the battalion.—From "Social Life in the British Army." by a British Offi-cer, in Harper's Magazine for Novem-

CHILD MARRIAGE. A marriage took place the other day, the parties being a Bhattia widower of about 40 and a Bhattia girl of about 9. The disparity in age is rather start-ling, and it is aggravated by other cir-cumstances; for instance, the widower has a daughter of about 18 engaged as a teacher at a school of which her father is honorary manager, or something like it. And his girl-wife of 9 is a pupil at the school under his daughter of 18. The first thing the girl-wife of y did on marrying was to remonstrate with her daughter of 18 as to how she, the mother, could possibly sit at school on a bench while the daughter taught her from a chair! What is the podaughter to do? She must give up her appointment as school mistress, or her dear mother of 9 must give up attending school. It is for the father and

They Must Steal on the Enemy Unseen To Be Effective.

Reasoning from superficial facts, much has been written of the failure of torpedo boats. It is as well to correct this impression now while events are still fresh in the popular mind. The idea of torpedo attack is attack under cover of darkness, rain or fog. The construction and painting have this object in view. There is no protection against even the lightest projectile, and to make a successful attack the boat must remain undiscovered until almost the moment for the discharge of its Ball Cock... must remain undiscovered until almost torpedo. Our vessels fully compre-Youmans died early this morning hended the dangers of torpedo attack, and all precautions were taken to guard against one. In spite of this, one of them had a narrow escape from being torpedoed by the Porter, not having been discovered until well within striking distance. In this case the cruiser was a lost ship, and ever after had the utmost respect for the possibilities of successful torpedo attack. Had the Porter been certain that the vessel sighted was an enemy, and had it not been necessary to disclose her presence by signals, etc., the attack could have been successfully made, and the Porter would have escaped without harm. No lack of discipline, lookouts, or attention was in any way responsible for the incident. these being fully up to the high state of efficiency in our navy. Only the favoring darkness of a stormy night and the advantage which we took of the cruiser's smoke made such a result possible. Contrast these conditions with those under which the Spaniards made their gallant but foolish efforts at Manila and Santiago. They showed splendid heroism, but how was it to be expected that thin torpedo craft could live and approach through a fire that destroyed armored cruisers? Their chief defense—invisibility—was lacking. Torpedo boats have sufficient speed to choose their time of attack, and, to be successful, the time chosen must be one favorable to the torpedo boat-not favorable to the enemy, as was the case in both attacks in this war.—From "Torpedo Boat Service," by Lieut. But I have kept my eyes open, and I know that she carried rings set with precious stones that sparkled bravely, and chaffered long for a good price because, she said, they are worth much. Ah! yes; and on another oc-casion she had with her a gold watch —an English one. And last night, when she and Andre passed out loaded with packages, as if bent on a journey, it was to the money-changer's that my Pierre, who is the shrewdest of urchins, tracked them. Ay, trust me, they were not as poor as they pre-tended to be."

"While they hide some of their hoard, we will relieve them of the rest," exclaimed a third, with ferocious glee. "It is ten thousand shames that they should be rich while we are in want! There, then, must be the booty they sought. With yells of triumph and expectation, half a dozen of them put their shoulders to the door; it was wrenched off its hinges, and a posse of the most villainous-looking fellows Vivien had ever beheld rushed pell-mell into the miserable apartment.

A long stare from the astonished intruders, and then a groan of disap-pointment. All they beheld was a figure extended on the wretched bed, beneath a coverlet which concealed all but his wan features and closed eyes, while a nun, with clasped hands, her face hidden as much as possible by her cap, knelt beside him.

"What means this," demanded one of the boldest of the men, half inclined, to suspect a ruse. "Hush!" said Vivien, rising, and bending over her patient. "He still breaths; but I pray you not to come too near, for it is the fever." Several of the men recoiled. others, angry at not having found anything, began to murmur, and one made a suggestion that horrified the trem-

Vivien felt her blood go cold; but remembering her assumed character, she said boldly:

"You shall not do anything so cruel in my presence. It is at the risk of your own lives that you breathe this tainted atmosphere at all; but if you are so fearless, carry my patient to the nearest hospital. He will be received there, and I will take care that his bearers are rewarded for their trouble."

But no one volunteered for the task on the contrary, the most daring had edged to the door, for the motionless form, the ghastly visage, on which the lurid giare of the burning house gleaming fired into the lock of the door, a ed through the skylight fitfully, and crash, roars of laughter, and the rush the dark-robed figure that stood beside it, impressed them in spite of that when some one suggested that Andre's hordes were probably hidden in the cellars, they all trooped away to make explorations there.

"If we find nothing below we will burn his old house in revenge!" muttered a ruffian, who had provided himself with a torch, which he waved to and fro, as if longing for the moment in which he could work some fresh devastation.

As the last of the marauders quitted the chamber, the Englishman raised himself on his elbow and pointed toward the door.
"Now is your time! In that garb you

The wind was in the southwest, but changed very suddenly to northeast, driving the vessel on the beach. The yawl boat was lowered. but it capsized, and broke away almost instantly. When they found the vessel was going to pieces the mate, John Downing, made a line fast around his waist and tried to swim ashore, but the heavy seas washed him back, and he was pulled aboard. The captain then made a line fast to a stick of timber. and cast it overboard, and it went ashore. They then threw lumber over, which fammed the timber on the shore, and made the other end of the line fast to the vessel. The mate then made another line fast around himself and got ashore, afterwards pulling the men ashore one at a time, the captain being the last one to leave the vessel. The mate ordered one of the men who had a match safe to seal it with tallow and bring it with him. Had it not been for this no doubt some of them would have perished with the intense cold. They made a fire, and kept warm. The vessel went to pieces in three hours. The shipwrecked crew arrived at Wiarton on the tug McAulay, and go today to Chicago.

This report recommended that the Ontario union should grant a sum of money to the Quebec union to enable it to carry on its work in the line of distributing literature throughout the province. This recommendation was adopted by the convention.

Mrs. Thornley, the provincial president, delivered her annual address. It was expected to be bitter, and the expectation was not disappointed. They had scored, she said, a great victory. The battle was the Lord's. There had been political rascality and trickery. She attacked the government for delay in introducing the plebiscit bill. There had been trickery at the start in the first draft of the bill, in speaking of alcoholic, instead of intoxicating, beverages, and in the clause relating to cider. The season of the campaign seected was the worst possible. polling booth arrangements were bad; the punishment for frauds inadequate; intimidation was practiced; prohibitionists in London were threatened with the boycott. Quebec had gone against them, but Quebec was an ignorant province. Mrs. Thornley concluded by peremptorily demanding at the hands of the Dominion Government and Parliament the immediate introduction of a measure prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.

The superintendent of the curfew bell committee reported that the curfew bell hald proven a great success in the many cities and towns where it had been tried, but that the authori-ties in almost every case were en-tirely too delinquent in enforcing the law. It was urged that it was the duty of every member of the union to see that the law was enforced, and to call the attention of the authorities to any case of violation. This report was presented by Mrs. McKee, of Toronto, Nov. 3.—A meeting of the directors of the Excelsior Mutual Life Assurance Association was held Tuesday night. The stockholders have received no dividends since the organization of the company six years ago, and are complaining loudly.

Curé of

B. B. B. Cured Mrs. Harrison Henley, of Musquodoboit, N.S., In 1895, and the Boils have never come back.

Anyone who has ever suffered from boils, knows how sick and miserable they make you feel.

When you think you're about cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your wretchedness.

Boils are simply the outcropping of impure blood.

When the blood is purified, cleansed and vitalized by Burdock Blood Bitters, the boils quickly disappear, never to return—the cure is permanent-your misery is at an end, and your health and strength come back again.

Such were the results in the case of Mrs. Henley, of Musquodoboit, N.S., who recently wrote the following letter:

"In the spring of 1895 I was continually troubled with boils, one coming after another for about six months. Some as large as a hen's egg.

"My blood was in a very bad condition and I was very miserable all summer. "In September I got a bottle of B.B.B. and began taking it, I felt better after I took one bottle. I kept on taking the Bitters until I had taken five bottles and can say I have been well ever since and have never had a boil on me since.

I can safely say from my own experi-ence that B.B.B. is the very best medi-cine in existence for any blood disorder." MRS. HARRISON HENLEY.

Startling Fatality of Croup

The terror of childhood is croup. It is the most fatal of all diseases among babies and young children. It usually begins with all the appearance of a commoncold. The child coughs, is restless, has more or less fever. As the disorder progresses, if relief is not had, the fever increases and breathing becomes very difficult. At last this difficulty becomes permanent, the pulse fails, the face becomes pale and is bathed in cold sweat and the end is not far off. Shiloh's Consumption Cure is a sure cure for croup, as half a century of successful experience clearly shows. Mrs. J. B.

Martin, of Huntsville, Ala., writes to the S. C. Wells Co., of Le Roy, N. Y., as follows:

"GENTLEMEN: I write this letter to tell you what a valuable medicine you have in your Shiloh's Cure. I think it is the greatest remedy ever discovered, and several of my friends to whom I have recommended it are as enthusiastic as I am. My baby, who is now nearly two years old, was brought up on Shiloh, and a fatter or more healthy baby cannot be found in this section. If he were croupy of a night, had a cough or a cold, one or two doses invariably relieved him. I would not be without a bottle of it in the house for ten times the price of it. It has saved me many a dollar in doctor's bills. I will many a dollar in doctor's bills. I will send you a picture of my Shiloh baby if it will be of any service to you."

Shiloh's Consumption Cure is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee that the purchase money will be refunded in case the medicine does not do everything that is claimed for it. 25c., 50c. and $1 a bottle in United States and Canada. In England 1s. 2d., 2s. 3d. and 4s. 6d.

A request was received that the electric light decided upon for the corner of Wellington and Regent streets be placed at the corner of Welling and Cheapmittee agreed. An account from the London Electric Light Company for $2,231 91 was passed for payment. Ald. afternoon session yesterday agreed upon an offer to the city, which will likely result in an agreement between the two councils. The offer will be recommended to the county council at its next sitting, and approval is confidently expected. The county proposes to pay for the maintenance of each county patient in the Victoria Hospital per day the sum of 75 cents, to which shall the added the government grant of 30 cents per day per patient, making a total of $1 05 per day per patient. If the cost of maintaining patients is less than this sum, then the city profits by the difference. If the cost shall prove to be more than $105, then the city will be out fust to that extent. But should either party find the investment an unprofitable one, the agreement may be terminated on giving six months' notice of such intention, after the expiration of five years. The other clauses already practically agreed to were reaffirmed. They propose to advance $15,000 to the city at 31/2 per cent interest after the building is completed according to present plans. The cost, if any, of securing legislation to confirm the agreement is to be jointly borne. Matters of detail are to be settled by a joint committee. This offer is practically the same as the sub-committee of the county hospital committee decided upon some time ago, and is very favorably regarded by the mayor, who is of the opinion that the city council will not refuse to accept it.

STRUCTURE OF COLONIES. From the origin of a colony is deducible its whole political and social structure. Colonies of royal foundation, by a kind of moral pangenesis, tend to reproduce all parts of the mo ther country that are suitable to the new environment—its inequalities of rank, governors who are the image of the sovereign, an executive, legis lative, and judicature that are the delegation of his authority. But these institutions must grow; they cannot be made. The attempt to create an aristocracy in Carolina, and the proposa! to manufacture one in New South Wales, necessarily failed. Yet in toth one grew up, or is growing up. In the South there was an unup. In the South there was an untitled aristocracy, with the aristocrat ic temper, exclusive institutions, and four distinct classes (the descendants of the lords of the manor, villelns or tenants, bond-servants, and slaves, who had a chief existence in Virginia, Carolina, and Maryland)—planters, overseers, mean whites, and negro slaves; the fall of Richmond saw happy ending of all that. In the British colonies, as in England, there is an increasing passion for titles, and of about 60 grades in the Byzantine hier-archy of the English monarchy at least eleven have been transplanted to colonial soil.—Appleton's Popular Science Monthly for November.

Country girls in Spain seldom wear hats or bonnets of any kind, and in the smaller places they do not even put mantillas on their head, adorning their hair with flowers instead. It was in Spain, by the way, that the custom of a bride wearing orange blossoms in her hair originated.

Cats are held in great reverence in Persia. The shah alone has 50 of them, and each one has an attendant of its own, with a special room for meals. When the shah travels the cats go also, being carried by men on horseback.

ANGLO-AMERICAN PENNY-POSTAGE

Mr. J. Henniker Heaton Points Out Important Facts-A Triumph

for His Idea. H. Henniker Heaton, M.P., writes to the London Times as follows: Sir,—The important telegram which you publish this morning, stating the desire of the American Government to inaugurate penny postage with England, will be read with general satisfaction. It is only right that this great branch of the English-speaking race of the world should not delay in joining us in this new departure, you predicted in your leading article few weeks ago. It frees me from considerable em-barrassment, because for some time to come New York must be the port for Canada and our enemies did not fail to point out the difficulty and even absurdity of establishing penny postage with Canada and two-penny postage with the United States—through which country the letters would have to pass to Canada.

Those of our friends who said they would only support me if I confined my efforts to obtaining imperial penny postage were not aware that (in my opinion) there are more British-born subjects in the United States than in Canada, Australia and Africa.

At all events these figures are worthy of consideration: Total number of letters sent from the United Kingdom to the United States last year, 11,500,000; total number of letters sent to the colonies in Australiasia, Canada and Africa last year from the United Kingdom, 10,-

It is curious, too, to notice that the estimated loss to the British Govern-ment by the establishment of penny postage to America will amount to exactly the same sum is that to be incurred by the establishment of imperal penny postage, viz., about £75,-000 for the first year. I have calculated a loss of 11/2d per letter on 12,000,000

The whole of this money could be saved if the postal authorites would have the courage to put on a sensible foundation the question of the cost of carriage of the mails to America. We paid last year £108,000 for the service. Thirty thousand pounds would have been ample.

The cost of a first-class passage to America, including cabin accommoda-tion and food is £20. The charge for conveying the same weight of letters as the passenger is £37 10s. The cost of conveying an equal weight of newspapers is about £3. I commend this problem to the attention of our excellent man of business, the postmaster-

Dodd's Kidney Pills are the only remedy on earth that prevents Bright's Disease from killing, by rooting it out of the system entirely. There are quite 100 roads of one kind and another over the Pyrenees between France and Spain, but only three of
