last night can hardly be said to have The Advertiser the men would have number of the missiles struck the car, realized the expectations of its promoters. The intention was to have passed from the right or wrong of the matter, immediately brought to a standstill, resolutions condemning the men on why should anyone wish to see good strike, and urging "the public" to jump citizens who formerly manned the right on to the cars and ride. A preliminary meeting had been held in one good citizens and subjects. They did of the banks on Dominion Day; notices | their work properly. They spent freely were sent to all the members; there was an industrious drum-up of the ought to be reinstated. members; and yet, though there are several hundred business men in London, the attendance was comparatively a mere handful. No attempt was made at the last to carry out the original intention of the meeting, which adjourned at the call of the president.

As was explained by the President the meeting was called by the bankers of the city, of whom some half-dozen were present, including the banker of the Company, and one of the directors of the Company, who is also a banker.

There was a good deal of talk about that somewhat mythical quantity, "the public," who, it is said, would like to ride, were they not "terrorized" by public opinion. Our estimate, after careful consideration, is that fully 80 per cent of the citizens of London are in full sympathy with the men; though, no doubt, more or less annoyed and irritated that they cannot conscientiously ride. But their annoyance is not directed against the men.

There was some attempt, pro and con, at estimating the precise relative proportions of blame. Is it worth while at this stage? It is a condition, not a theory, with which we are confronted. What is wanted is a remedy. The Company seem to think the wise thing to do is to attempt to row up against a Niagara of public opinion. They will need strong paddles.

Several of the speakers were quite sure the thousands of men connected with organized labor in London were mere cat's-paws in the hands of a few designing leaders. This is not exactly a complimentary estimate of the artiin their own and various societies and organizations, are not less capable of deciding things for themselves than the gentlemen in Board of Trade 'as-

One or two of the speakers thought they detected catering for votes in Tactics of the Special Detectives some of those who stand up for the men's view. We cannot say that we have detected much that looks like catering for votes, either municipally or politically. There is no such line of cleavage in this controversy. Indeed, The Advertiser has strong expectation that henceforth in London there will be much less, rather than more, politics in municipal affairs. The need of all our municipal bodies is capable, upright, reliable men, irrespective of partisanship. The day is coming.

We need not answer those who argued, either directly or indirectly, against the workmen's right to organization. Such arguments come too late in the century.

One of the speakers spoke of The Advertiser as reprehensibly standing up for what it conceived to be the rights of the men; much in line with Even-Handed Justice.

Some persons who profess a holy regard for law and order are doing little for law and order by aspersing the police magistrate at this particular period. That gentleman should be upheld in dispensing even-handed justice -at a time when a biased or arbitrary use of his powers would sting public feeling with a new sense of resentment. The police magistrate's handling of the strike cases which have come before him ha been judicial and judicious. Reading the report of the so-called board of trade meeting last night a stranger would infer from one or two speeches that the city had been the scene of riot and disorder, whereas every citizen knows there has been no organized rowdyism and very few breaches of the peace of any kind. The people of London have cause to be proud of the record of the last six

We challenge any legal mind to analyze the police court proceedings and point out where the magistrate has not been governed by the plain rules of evidence. Wherever an overt act of violence was proved punishment was inflicted, but in nearly all cases the testimony of private detectives was flatly contradicted by that of reputable citizens. The only serious accusations -those of placing explosives on the track-were utterly disproved, and the wonder is that they were ever made. The magistrate purposely sent one of these charges to a higher court where it was peremptorily thrown out by the igrand jury. Mr. Parke has acted throughout with prudence and dignity in refusing to make a fuss over every idle word, which the Company's detectives professed to hear on the highways and byways.

TROUBLE BREWING FOR THE COMPANY

Arouse Hostility.

Detective Accused of Threatening to Shoot Boys Seeking Shelter From the Rain-Several Disturbances.

One of the special detectives employed by the street railway company acted strangely last night. He was doing duty on a belt line car, and is said to have threatened to shoot a man at the Grand Trunk arch on Thames street. Near the arch is some vacant property belonging to the company, and some time ago Superintendent Potter gave several boys and young men permission to play ball on the company's property. The boys formed a club knows as the Independents, and have a very fair diamond. Last evening property. they were playing as usual, and when the rain came on went under the arch for shelter. The players say they have never molested the cars, and did not bother them last night. They appreciated the kindness of the company in giving them the grounds too much to damage their property. They were, therefore, surprised to see a man whom they took to be a detective pull a revolver out of his pocket and hold ic in his hand threateningly as the car passed. "On the return trip," says Frank McGeary, of 260 Thames street, who was standing in the arch, "the detective again, with the revolver in his hand, got off the car and ordered us out. We went out all right, and I was last. He wanted to search me, but I wouldn't let him. He raised the gun and told me to 'clear out, or I'll blow your -- head off, and take no chances.' I told him to put up the gun—that he was more scared of it than I was, and went on. The third time the car passed there were six detectives in it, but they said nothing. We asked the man with the gun his name, as some of us thought of laying a complaint against him, and he said was McLaughlin." Mr. McGeary is a cigarmaker, employed at the Fraser Company's fac-

SAID HE WAS A SPOTTER. A man named Taggart went to work for the Stevens Brass Manufacturing Company yesterday, but the men did not take kindly to him, as they believed him to be a "spotter" in the employ of the street railway company. He was watched, and seen talking to employes of the company, and was found riding on a street car later on. This morning when he put in an appearance he was treated to a shower of stale eggs and told to make himself scarce, or his troubles would be many. Taggart, when asked, did not deny being a spotter, but put on his coat and made a hurried exit from the building. He presented a sorry sight, being covered with eggs. TROUBLE IN SOUTH LONDON. Shortly after 6 o'clock last night there was an exciting time on the Wortley road, South London, just in front of the Baptist Church. A large erowd of boys, about 12 and 14 years of Endeavor delegates have arrived, aside gers and five detectives on board, they and one of the passengers was struck and the five "specials" made an effort to catch some of the boys, but were unsuccessful. Two of the detectives ran through the yard of No. 3 fire station, one with a drawn billy and the other with a stone, about 5 inches square and 3 inches thick. In getting over a fence the man with the stone dropped it, and it was picked by one

THE HOLIDAY CARS

The Company Offered Police Protection -The Real Reason Why They

Did Not Run. The following is from today's Free Press: "In conversation with Manager Carr yesterday, that gentleman mentioned to a Free Press reporter that The Advertiser's editorial writer pretended to be anxious to know why the cars were not run during Monday afternoon last. "It could have secured the reason at first hand, if it had so desired, from Mayor Wilson, who asked me,' said Mr. Carr, 'as a favor, not to run them. That is the answer to their apologetic editorial."

Mayor Wilson was seen today, and said that Mr. Carr's remarks place him (the mayor) in an unfair light. Carr wrote him on July 1, saying that the Street Railway Company had rea-son to believe there would be disturbance on the holiday, and wishing to know if there would be adequate police protection. The mayor replied, in his private capacity, that if the company really feared trouble they had better not run their cars. He did not, as Mr. Carr says, ask them as a favor not to run them. Mr. Carr also consulted the chief of police, who offered full police protection, but ridiculed the idea that there would be any disorder whatever. The company were only too glad to use the mayor's letter as an excuse for tying up the system, so as to avoid showing the crowd that they were running empty cars. To say that they expected trouble is an uncalled for reflection on the citizens of London.

Get Down to Business at Detroit.

President Clark and the Other Mem bers of the Official Staff Re-Elected.

Detroit, July 6.-After devotional exercises, the business of the great Christian Endeavor convention began shortly after noon yesterday.

Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, in his annual address said: "The past year of Christian Endeavor work has been a year of remarkable prosperity, a year marked by the favor of God, Christian Endeavor has now so largely occupied the field that the phenomenal growth recorded in the early years of the movement cannot be exceeded. Nevertheless the growth has been very considerable, and the accession of a hundred thousand to our ranks within the last twelve months is no small Speaking of the growth of the order President Clark said: "In Spain, in spite of the distraction of the war and the natural antipathy to things American, the societies have all held their own and have even increased in number. Russia, which a year ago was the only country without Christian Endeavor, has now been invaded by the movement, and we hear of our society almost within the czar's household. Our efforts in behalf of universal peace and international arbitration have been a great success.

"The spirit of brotherhood, of national and interdenominational fellowship, of seeking after God and not the things that pertain to office and station will, I believe, characterize this eighteenth year national convention." Treasurer Shaw's report showed exreport of George B. Graff, of Boston, agent of the publishing department, under whose direction the Christian Endeavor World is published, showed cash on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year, June 1, 1898, $1,110; receipts, during the year, $67,956; expenditures, $66,628; cash on hand, $2,439. The western office of the publishing department. located at Chicago, reported an expenditure of $12,563, and $664 now in its treasury.

The following were elected trustees for four years: Rev. C. I. Brown, Mountjoy, Pa.; Prof. H. L. Willett, Chicago; Rev. Samuel McNaugher, Boston; Rev. A. C. Crews, Toronto; Rev. Hugh Walker, D.D., Los Angeles, Cal.; Rev. J. Wilber Chap-man, D.D., New York; Rev. George McManihan, Steubenville, Ohio. The foregoing were elected trustees for one year upon the reorganization of the united society a year ago. Robert E. Speer, of New York, was elected a trustee to succeed the Rev. J. Clement French, D.D., of Newark, N. J., and Rev. N. B. Grubb, D.D., of Philadelphia, was made an additional trustee, to represent the Mennonites, which denomination has heretofore been unrepresented on the board.

ciety were unanimously re-elected, up-on recommendation of the nominating committee, as follows: Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark; secretary, John Willis Baer; treasurer, William Shaw, all of Boston. Representatives on the board of trustees of the united society were elected from each state, territory, and the provinces of Canada. 20,000 DELEGATES HAVE ARRIVED. REDISTRIBUTION!

The Bill Passed Its Second Reading This Morning

By a Vote of 77 to 41-A Majority of 36 for the Government.

[Special to Advertiser per C. P. R.] Ottawa, July 6 .- At 3:25 a.m. a vote was reached on the second reading of the redistribution bill, which was carried by 77 for to 41 against; majority

Mr. Bertram, of Toronto, closed the debate. He said the bill was eminently fair. It did justice to Toronto by giving that city an extra member. Conservative members talked as if they owned Toronto, but it would be seen that at the next general election the Liberals would give a good account of themselves in

Messrs. Osler and Clarke, of Toronto, had previously spoken. The former said that it was one of the anti-election pledges that the Liberals were evidently going to stand by. Mr. Clarke argued that the municipal boundaries were only adhered to where it would be of political advantage for the government to do so. Mr. Powell dealt with the constitutional aspect of the question, and Col. Tyrwhitt said that the bill was unfair to Simcoe, his own county. The vote was a party one with the exception that Messrs. McCarthy and Stubbs (Independents) voted for the, government.

A TALKATIVE BOARD OF TRADE

A Couple of Hours Spent in Discussing the Strike.

No Line of Action Suggested nor Motion Made.

The Meeting Was Called at the Request of the Bankers.

Strained Relations Between the City Council and the Board-Uncomplimentary Remarks Passed-Warm Retorts by Ald. Parnell.

The Board of Trade met last night, at the request of some of the city bankers, and discussed the street railway strike. The discussion was not general, but it was lengthy and lively. Decided views were expressed, and they were far from harmonious. No action was taken. None was even suggested in the form of a motion. President James Mattinson (in the dair), Messrs. P. W. D. Brodrick, D. B. Dewer, R. Inglis, A. St. L. McIntosh, John Bowman, J. H. Ginge, John Campbell, A. H. Beddome, A. W. White; J. S. Pearce, John Cameron, D. W. Blackwell, Ald. E. Parnell, C. B. Keenleyside, A. Talbot, John Forristal and Secretary J. A. Nelles were present.

The president stated that the bankers had asked him to call the meeting for the purpose of considering that vexed question, the street railway strike, and he called upon Ald. Parnell, chairman of the council's special strike

Ald. Parnell said he was not present to discuss the matter, so much as to get the feeling of the prominent citizens as to the best way of having the trouble ended. Up to the last council meeting little or no efforts had been put forward by the people's representatives. Then the strike committee was formed. No business man could deny the fact that the strike was a detriment to the city. Ever since the com-mittee had been formed it had worked with but one object—to get this matter settled. The speaker outlined the negotiations that had taken place with the company and the men. He read the company's proposition of last Friday, and said the chief differences between the two parties seemed to be as to the recognition of the union, and as to the number of men to be taken back. At one time a settlement seemed to be almost in sight. The men were to see what could be done about waiving some part of the question of the recognition of the union if the company would take back all the men, but the com-pany would not consent to this. When the committee found they could go no farther, the advisory committee had been called, and the grievances of the men demanded. A list of the grievances was to be handed to the speaker at an early date. The company had a valuable franchise, and was supposed to give the citizens all the rights and privileges they were entitled to. While the friction continued with their men, citizens could not enjoy the service.

"I think it is the police magistrate's fault," said Mr. Ginge, "that people's lives are in danger. When there is a disturbance-cars damaged, torpedoes put on the tracks, etc.—no one is pun-ished." He did not know whether the right men were taken, but at any rate they were always let go. If a citizen wheeled on the sidewalk at a point where the road was bad he was fined

The business man used the cars was marked. Ladies had been stopped on leaving the cars and their names demanded. The speaker wanted to know whose fault this

It was decidedly wrong not to pun-

Ald. Parnell said that was not a question for him to answer, as each side claimed the other to be at fault. Mr. Bowman-But you blame the company for the strike.

Ald. Parnell replied that he had not said the company was responsible for the strike. Neither would he say the men were responsible for the intimidation. It would be unfair to place the blame on either until the fault was known. It behooved the Board of Trade to take some step towards remedying the existing state of affairs. The only proper method was to fix the blame on the right party. If the company were to blame, the sooner they down to business and straightened out the kinks the better it would be. If the men were to blame, the sooner the public knew it the better.

Mr. D. B. Dewar-What are grievances? We don't know. Ald. Parnell-I have been that I will be furnished a list by to-

Mr. Ginge wanted to know what the Board of Trade had to do in the matter. "What do you think of the Board of Trade interfering?" he said.

Ald. Parnell, who seemed to regard his cross-examination unfair, retorted: "If you ask me what I think of the Board of Trade, I will say I don't think much of them. This is one of the troubles of a sort that the board should before this have tried to settle, instead of holding aloof. They should not be a lot of nonentities."

Mr. Ginge considered that it was a question for the city council, and not for the Board of Trade. Mr. John Campbell (to Ald. Parnell) -Don't you think that the non-acceptance of the union by the company was the cause of the trouble? Ald. Parnell-It would be unfair for me to pass judgment on this matter until the list of grievances is presented. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Ginge urged the board to post-pone action until the grievances had been brought forward. There was nothing for the board to discuss. Personally he had had great sympathy with the strikers the last time. thought it wrong, though, that people were not at liberty to ride on the cars as they pleased without being in danger of having the windows stoned.

Mr. D. B. Dewar, manager of the Bank of Commerce, where the company's account is kept, asked Mr. John Cameron, who was sitting at the table, if he thought the men had any grievances; and if so, what were they. Mr. Cameron replied that he considered the men had grievances. Mr. Dewar-Well, if you know them, let us hear what they are.

Mr. Cameron replied that he did not think it at all reasonable to suppose that a hundred men would go out on strike without having any grievances.
The men claimed, among other things, that they were discriminated against, because they belonged to the union. They say the men were never fairly dealt with. Mr. Cameron, continuing, said he had not intended speaking, if at all, at this stage of the meeting, as he would have preferred that those who called it should first give their own view of the remedy for a state of affairs they all regretted. However, he had no objection to stating frankly what he considered the situation, and what he thought the right solution. Of the three interests involved, that of the company, of organized labor, and of the more general pub-lic (though the general public was itself largely made up of organized labor and those friendly to it), he would speak of the interests of the citizens at large. The citizens were interested, first, in having a good ser-

Mr. Cameron-But we have not a omplete service.

Mr. Dewar-Yes, we have. Mr. Cameron—We have not a complete service, because, among other things, the cars are not running at nights, according to the charter. Mr. Dewar may say the cars are there, in the daytime, for the citizens to ride on, if they choose; but if there is in the minds of the mass of the people a very strong feeling that the men have not been properly dealt with, that conscientious and sympathetic feeling as much deprives them of the privilege street cars as if they were prevented from using them by physical restraint. Mr. Cameron went on to say that, as Lusiness men, they should remember that the main business interest London had in the London Street Railway, apart from a good service, was the money received in wages by the men to be spent with the business of the city, and it was a very ele-mentary statement of economic cause and effect to say that wage-earners could not be good spenders in the stores unless they were in receipt of a fair living wage. On the other hand, as the bulk of the ownership of the com-pany was in the hands of a United States millionaire, so the bulk of the profits were drained into another coun-Another thing could be said for wage-earners and wage-spenders of London, namely, that they did not, like many richer people, rush off to To-ronto, Detroit, or New York to make their purchases. ever have been given away in the first Mr. Mattinson suggested that it was too late to talk about that now. Mr. Cameron said that might be so, but the natural feeling in the minds of the citizens ought to be taken into account by the company in their atti-tude towards the public. Now, there were two ways, upon either of which the company might travel in attempting a settlement. One way would be to employ more detectives; to spend more money in setting litigation in motion; and to determine, at all hazards, to starve the strikers and tire the public. The other way would be to meet the representatives of the strikers, and of organized labor generally, in a frank and friendly manner; recognize them freely in their collective capacity; pay and treat them well; and provide some simple means of settling passing differences—call it arbitration or what you like. Surely, if the great powers of the world think it worth while to hold a meeting at The Hague to endeavor to make arbitration of some sort the general rule, the same principle ought to be worthy of honest trial in smaller disputes. As to the boggle made over recognition of organized labor in its collective capacity, it had, in his opinion, been made too much of a bogie altogether. The Monetary Times, a financial paper, not long ago spoke sensibly as "These labor unions, if somefollows: times troublesome to employers, are valuable to workmen, and the time has come when a refusal to recognize them can have little effect; though recognition does not imply compliance with all demands which a union may The great railways all work with the unions; and he did not think they would care now to have it otherwise. In the United States the great railways know that Mr. Arthur, president of the Locomotive Brotherhood, has been a power for good in using his great influence for moderation, adhis great influence for moderation, advising, and asking only what was fair and right. The attitude of the company, at the beginning of the trouble, in saying that they would not meet the men collectively, had been ill-advised, and it could not be wondered at that organized labor as a whole had considered this refusal by the company a challenge thrown in the face of united labor. When capital was everywhere organizing itself into huge trusts, it was unreasonable to say the men should not organize. It was part of the spirit of the age to or-The company were on the rack. ever settlement is arrived at. It was along these lines, in his opinion, that the true interests of the company would be found. He had only one word to add, namely, that looking to the future, and to what was right, the board of trade should hesitate before taking up any thoughtless attitude of opposition to organized labor.

Mr. Ginge again urged the board to wait. At the time of the last strike it was shown that the management was at fault, but so far as he knew, this time, the men had gone out largely against the will of the majority. Agitators from the United States were

Ald. Parnell said that, if that was the condition of affairs, he would have nothing more to do with the matter. But his understanding was that the grievances would be made public. Mr. Dewar-The men were asked for their grievances five weeks ago and have done nothing yet.

Mr. Ginge-Give them another week. Mr. A. St. L. McIntosh, banker, explained that the meeting had been called by the bankers, because as a class they were thought to be independent of the boycott—that most reprehensible way the strikers sought to gain their end. This meeting had not been called, as some of the speakers seemed to think, for the express purpose of aiding the company, and forcing the strikers. He understood the company had been willing to arbitrate from the first. If the men had said they would drop the union at the outset, the strike would not have lasted

Mr. John Campbell did not suppose the board of trade cared a fig for unions one way or the other. Labor unions had been forced into existence by the union of capital. They were all right until they overstepped their bounds. Then they became tyrannical bounds. Then they became tyrous and and were a detriment to society and and were a detriment themselves. The to the workingmen themselves. workingman was the propelling power took to be worse in its general influorf the world; without him the world would be a poor wilderness, and the dows. was an arrant fool. If the boss—espeMr. Cameron replied cially a young boss—was tyrannical to his men, he would get into trouble particularly if his men were older than himself. There were as noble men among the laboring classes as anywhere, but they were often made the cat'spaw of designing fellows, and that was the trouble in London now. So as he (Mr. Campbell) could see, they wanted only recognition of the union. There may have been other troubles; but not sufficient to cause a strike. It was strange that all the sympathy had been for the employes. If an employe was not satisfied with his job he could leave and get another. Employment had not been so plentiful in Canada for years as at present. Any man who wanted a fair day's work could get it, and get a fair day's pay for it. The whole trouble with the street railway men was stirred up by men who came from the United States. thirds of the men now out would, in his opinion, like to be back on the old terms. They had, in his opinion, been forced to strike against their will. doubted if the city council would have shown so much sympathy for them if they did not have votes. Men who did not employ labor, and who were never known to give even a crust of bread to a poor man, were the ones who shouted the loudest in their favor. The workingmen were the noblest work of God. Bankers were mere things compared to the workingmen. What annoyed the speaker most was that he feared the street railway men were being made tools of. He had no love for the street railway company. It had ruined one branch of his business, but he would not want the company to be made the cat's-paw of public opinion. Half the employes, in his opinion, wanted to be back on the old terms, and nine-tenths of the citizens would ride the cars if they dared. In all the talk there was never a word said about the damage that had taken place through the effects of the strike. He thought it would be base reward to turn out the men who had stood by the company. That was the policy his friend Mr. Cameron had preached to the board tonight, and which he had been preaching all along through the columns of his newspaper If there was to be arbitration, Mr. Campbell went on to say, he would prefer that three judges do the workmen who didn't care for votes, and were above public opinion, and would give all questions a fair investigation. Were he a member of the council, he would do all he could to get the men to go back to work. The company had given a very fair offer. He thought the board of trade should do something along the line of inducing the men to return. Personally he was not much in favor of young bosses. They were apt to be arbitrary even with men older than themselves. Men should be treated as men. In conclusion, he both sides. Inglis, of the Bank of British North America, said the bankers were interested in the city, and this question concerned them. He believed that when the men struck last fall, they had a grievance. Their wages were too low, but the company came to the front and advanced the wages. All the men were reinstated. That was fair. It was known at that time, however, that the trouble would come up again when the six months were ended. The men had quit work the last time at a very unfavorable time for the company. He disagreed with Mr. Cameron with regard to the desirability of the leaders of the strike being taken back. He believed that if the matter were put to citizens to come forward and ride. Take away the catering for votes, and have the police and police magistrate do their duty, and the strike would be at an end. If all the people rode who wanted to, the boycott, in his opinion, would fall flat. Mr. D. W. Blackwell said some of the speakers had not considered the work-ing nan's rights at all. It was not a sufficient answer to say that if a man was dissatisfied he could quit and get out of town. What chance had the individual against this rich company? Without the union the workingman did not have much of a show. He did not see why the Board of Trade wanted to interfere in the matter at all. It was difficult to see how it could do so usefully. He held that the old employes of the street railway were a decent lot of fellows. To recognize the union would benefit all parties, and as for the leaders, he said, because there had to be certain men to do the talking, why should they be debarred?

Mr. Ginge said that often the leaders were to blame for strikes. Mr. Keenleyside suggested that the board appoint a committee to consider how the surplus men could be dis-

Mr. John Bowman spoke at some The question that was affectlength. ing the business men of the city was the general boycett. A species of ter-rorism was prevalent. Who was re-sponsible for it? Not the strikers. There was an influence over them, as over the citizens, and that power was the source of all the trouble. It was detrimental to the strikers. Public sympathy was checked by this coercive force. As a citizen he had a right to ride on the cars if he chose without being threatened with a boycott. The majority of the citizens would ride if they dared. Let the men and the company settle their differences, he said. It was not a question in which the citizens generally should suffer. With such a state of affairs they could not invite capital to the city, and it was outside capital they should encourage. That was what they wanted. They should get down to common sense, and not be influenced by politics or personal interests.

Ald. Parnell, alluding to the remark of a previous speaker, said he was not looking for votes. He had waited five weeks for Mayor Wilson to do something in the matter, but no action had been taken. As for himself he hinted that the end of the strike would see his finish as an alderman. He wished to hurl in the teeth of those who made the challenge that statement that the were merely looking for aldermen votes. He did not propose to quietly hear the aldermen blackened for endeavoring to do their duty. (Applause.) Mr. Campbell also found fault with the aldermen for wanting the cars to run at night. They would only be stoned by a mob, he said. Mr. Cameron defended organized labor against the assumption by several of the speakers that it was responsible for the breaking of car windows, etc. On the contrary, the leading members of the men's organization, who were intelligent men, and knew that disorder would injure their cause, had, to the speaker's knowledge, used their voice and influence against anything like destruction of property. In a place of London's size, there were always thoughtless boys and other persons, who, often out of sheer excitement, did things which organized labor would not and did not countenance. Mr. John Bowman asked Mr. Cameron who was responsible for the intimidation of persons who would like to ride, but did not. This, Mr. Bowman

Mr. Cameron replied that the old scriptural weapon of the boycott was being employed on one side alone. A dispute of this sort was, on a small scale, a state of war, and war was not usually waged with rose leaves on either side. Things regrettable would be found in connection with strikes

After some further discussion, the meeting adjourned, it being left to the president's discretion as to wether any useful end would be served by calling the board together again at a later date.

The third heat of the Canadian League race of '99 began yesterday, and as in the first two, the Cockneys got away in the lead. They will probably finish in the lead, thus winning three straight heats. The running of the league races by heats does not commend itself for general adoption. It makes large blank spaces in the benches. But it is sometimes necessary. Let the bleaching bones of the Poets, the Saints and the Reds, who have fallen by the wayside, tell the mournful story. Now, however, with only the pick of the bunch left, the run down the long home stretch promises Guelph...... to furnish a fine contest. The teams are all seasoned, and have had an opportunity to perfect their team work. The game with Guelph at Tecumseh Park yesterday gave a good idea of what ball-goers may expect during the remainder of the season. The game was fast and close throughout. Leafs tied the sore in the eighth, and it was not till the last half of the eighth, with two men out, that the Cockneys took their lead of three runs and won the game. The visitors made seven good clean hits to the outfield off Cooper, but they were so scattered as to be harmless, and but for infield errors the Leafs would have had but one run. Cogswell made three long, safe drives in succession, while Warner had three sacrifices and a hit to center, giving him a batting average of 1,000. Cooper pitched his usual star game, but by hitting Carey in the sixth and by fumbling a bunt of Lafleur in the eighth, he assisted materially in giving the Leafs two runs. Cogswell, who had not pitched a game for six weeks, looked very easy at the start. In the first inning he Assued passes to Mohler and Babbit, which long hits by McFadden and converted into runs. In the fourth Franck made a homer. Then Cogswell's peculiar drop ball

In the Rearranged Race for the | began to fool the Cockney sluggers. In the seventh and eighth Lohman struck out twice, and Jones and McFadden once each. All three of them struck Toronto's Eastern League Team out in the eighth, but not before the winning runs had been tallied. Babbit reached first on Warner's fumble, stole second, and reached third on Cogswell's error. Cope drove a grounde to right field for three bases, and Franck followed with a three-bagger under the sign fence, coming home on Francis' return of the ball, which bounded over Lafleur's head. Hit by pitcher—By Cooper 1.

Double plays—Babbit to McFadden, Grimshaw to Lafluer.

Umpire—Geo. England. Time—Two hours.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

A good start. The Leafs are game. Cogswell's drop is deceptive. The Leafs are gentlemanly fellows. Carey looked quite familiar in the left pasture. Jones hit a liner to left field so hard that no one, not even the umpire, could see it. It should have brought in a run and been good for three bases, but Umpire England called it a foul.

Jones, Cope and Lohman made splendid running catches.

THE AMATEURS. The employes of the Grand Trunk car shops challenge the employes of the Stevens Manufacturing Company to a friendly game of baseball, the game to be played at Queen's Park on Saturday, July 8, at 3 o'clock. SYRACUSE GETS OUT. George T. Kuntsch telegraphed President Powers on Tuesday that he surrenders the Syracuse franchise in the Eastern League. Mr. Kuntsch paid up his players to July 1. He has sold Malarkey to Utica; expects to sell Lush to Montreal, and has offered Albany, Schenectady and Binghampton the others. Dixon, Winters and Woodlock will probably be sold to the State League teams. Mr. Kuntsch offers to give his franchise and team to anyone who will finish the season in Syracuse.

He has lost money regularly since the season opened. Newark will probably take the franchise. PIE FOR HAMINTON. Hamilton, Ont., July 6.-The Hamilton club of the Canadian League, and the Toronto club, of the Eastern league, met yesterday for the first time this season, and the Canadian Leaguers played rings around the Easterners. Hamilton's heavy hitters knocked Pitcher Brown out of the box in the fourth inning, and then bombarded Hardy, the left-hander recently recruited from St. Thomas, making singles, doubles, three-baggers and home runs off him. Except for errors by Hagerty and Dean in the second in-ning, which let in two runs, the Hamiltons played a faultless fielding game, the work of Phillips, Dean and Mc-Kevitt in particular being good. Pitcher Baker was an enigma to the To-rontos. They got three singles, one of them a scratch, and a home run off him. In the fourth and eighth innings the Hamiltons were aided in their run-getting by Toronto's errors.

A DINNER PILL. - Many persons suffer excruciating agony after par-taking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healing nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with indigestion. When the bait is worth more than the fish it is time to stop fishing.

As a general rule, the way of the transgressor is to plead not guilty.

The Ontario Gold Fields.

A circular on the gold fields of Ontario has been issued by the Mines Contract and Investigation Company, of Toronto. The pamphlet-of about 60 pages-deals with the character of the great 1,000-mile long metaliferous belt of Ontario, its gold, silver, galena, copper, nickel and iron ores, the character of the gold ore, the methods of company formation and stock-broking, curate, Mr. Martin deserves the reand gives a detailed description of buke. leading gold mines of the Rainy River country, a list of the mining companies Incorporated in Ontario since 1895, and an admirable synopsis of the mining laws of the prevince.

1894, gold mining in the Rainy River and Lake of the Woods basin was almost unknown. Today there are three dividend paying mines in the Western Shoal Lake and Lake of the Woods district and two in the region of the eastern Shoal Lake or Lower Seine. which drains into Rainy lake and river. In addition there are 29 producing mines properties which are not yet dividend payers, but which within two years at furthest, appear likely to reach that status. About 500 properties are under more or less active development, but in most cases operations are retarded by a lack of capital. American capital has become largely Interested in these fields, and is pushing the work with vigor. Among the adwantages of the Omtario gold district are its abundance of water power, its plentifulness of timber, its easy and cheap accessibility by rail and water, and the cheapness and comfort of living. The Ontario and Rainy River Railway, soon to be built, will traverse the center of some of the most active gold fields in the district. The character of these is technically described by Dwight E. Woodbridge, the eminent American geologist, who says, in the Chicago Times-Herald: "There is no mining country in the world so thoroughly impregnated with gold veins as Is the Western Ontario district. The peculiar feature of the district is that all the gold veins have been exposed part of the exports; while Great Britby glacial action. The glaciers have scraped the country completely, and left the veins where they can be easily traced by the prospector. The ore is free-milling and very rich."

The Mines Contract and Investigation Company have issued a British edition of this pamphlet, which cannot fail to advertise the Ontario gold fields in the old country. The company have shown commendable enterprise-

A German coal miner, who emigrated to England, and found work in the Northumberland coal fields, has published an interesting little book on "How the English Workman Lives." (London: P. S. King & Son), in which he contrasts the condition of the British laborer most favorably with that of his German colleague. In England, says this miner, whose name is Dueckershoff, his wages are nearly double the amount he could earn in Germany, while his expenses are less. He is better fed, better clothed and better housed; he receives more consideration and protection. The middle class are friendly to him; there are many religious and benevolent institutions that look after him, and his children in time of sickness, and whereas the German employer is "harsh and overbearing," the English capitalist takes a great and constant interest in his work people.

The author is loud in his praises of the fairness of the system by which the miner's work is arranged by lot, so that everybody has an equal chance of a "soft thing." The men are on the friendliest footing underground, and the easy work is reserved for the old men, whereas in Germany "it is all over with the miner who has passed his 50th year." On the other hand, England lacks the "grand German systems of insurance against sickness, accidents, infirmity and old age. On the whole, however, he holds that "no German who is in work here has any longing to return."

Herr Dueckershoff's experience bears out the testimony of every impartial observer. There is no country in Europe where the toiling masses are so well conditioned as in England. We hear a great deal about the industrial development of Germany, but this progress has not been duly shared by German labor. Like everything else in the country, German industry is built on military models. It is organized into a system of trusts and combines to which even the United States scarcely approaches. The state is a working partner in the trust business, directly by means of subsidies, and indirectly by means of tariffs. Germany is in somewhat the same position as was England before the repeal of the corn laws. It is becoming more and more an industrial state, and agriculture is becoming relatively less important. German farms can no longer supply the home demand. The imports of food-stuffs are glowing every year, but unlike England these are heavily taxed for the protection of the agrarians. In Saxony, not long ago, meat was so dear that people were reduced to eating cats and dogs. The trusts can also fix prices in the home market to suit themselves. The American consul at Hamburg in official report, states that the Gerexport trade owes much of its is to the consolidation of Gerustries, which enables manuo sell more cheaply abroad

. They can stand lower

rts by collecting larger nan consumers. The working classes groan under the tyranny of militarism and industrialism, and their discontent finds expression in socialism and other forms of political agitation. If they could catch some of the economic enlightenment of their English brethren, they would find speedier relief than their present methods promise.

The Boston Herald denies that American lumber interests need protection against Canada, and points out that the wages of negro lumbermen in the South are less than the wages of Canadian lumbermen in the north. The Canadian lumbermen can now point to the pauper labor of the United States in support of their demand for a duty on American lumber.

The Bermudas are enjoying prosperity, the revenue of the colony last year showing a marked increase, owing to the growing popularity of the islands as a winter resort. The imports amounted last year to £351,274, and show a steady increase during the last four years, while the exports amounted to £106,104, being a decrease, as compared with the previous year, of nearly £17,000. The United States sent last year about four-sevenths of the imports and took all but an insignificant ain sent two-sevenths of the imports, and Canada nearly the whole of the remainder. Said an experienced church officer: "The grumbling and rage over the heat in church largely springs from original sin. As a matter of fact, a church, especially if of brick or stone construction is generally the coolest place in town."

Sir Charles Tupper's Career.

[Hamilton Times.] Sir Charles Tupper, who was yesterday congratulated in the House of Commons upon having attained the age of 78 years, was born at Amherst, Nova Scotia July 2, 1821. He must have been a hard student in his youth, for he appears to have taken an arts course in Acadia College, and he had the degree and the diploma of the Royal College of Surgeons from Edinburg, in 1843, when he was only 22 years old. In May, 1855, he was elected a member of the Nova Scotia Assembly, and he has been 44 years in public life. Sir Charles is a well-preserved old man, and the Times joins in the hope that he may live many more years to adorn the position he now occupies.

Interesting Experiences of Riders Who Volunteered Assistance to Members of the Fair Sex.

Under what circumstances is it proper and when is it a duty for a wheelman to speak to a woman cyclist on the road and help her if she is in trouble, and to what extent such assistance should go, are questions that bother riders more than a little. couple of women in rocking chairs were watching riders passing along the road in front of them, when one began to mourn the decline of chivalry among "There was a time," said, "when the men on the road were a positive nuisance because they were so anxious to help and so patronizing. Gracious! You could not get off your wheel but what every man who passed would slow up and ask if there pieces Unbleached Table Linen, was anything the matter and could he help you in any way, but now a woman when she wants a little help might stand and look beseechingly at the men till her eyes ached and not one in a thousand would stop to assist. The only way to get any attention nowadays is to flounder down in front of some one, and then if he helps you up he will try to get acquainted and 'mash' you."

Her companion agreed with these remarks, except as to the "mashing" proclivities of the men. She ventured the opinion that wheelmen were less attentive to wheelwomen than formerly, because a few years ago a woman rider was seen only occasionally and every man felt that she should be helped and encouraged, and this was not troublesome, because such few opportunities to do so were received, while now the number of women riding is so great that a man would be bothered incessantly if he was good-natured enough to help every one he saw in trouble. Regarding the tendency of the men to be "firtatious and fresh, she had an experience to relate that tended to prove the contrary. This was

"I was on my way home about 8 thing the matter with the front door them, as they both had lights and they would see me home. They proved themselves gentlemen in every way. I don't know how much of a hurry they might have been in, but they suited their pace to mine, kept me between them and never spoke a word to me all the way except once to ask in which direction to turn. They rode with me to the corner of my block and bowed and rode away without attempting to get acquainted. That shows that the real chivalry is left, for you know I am not old or ugly."

The masculine versions of the reasons why wheelwomen are not more promptly helped out of difficulties on the road was divulged at a bicycle club house while six or more members were lounging in the cafe. They had been talking rather flippantly about chance meetings with women on the road, when one man remarked:

"Excuse me from any more meddling with women who want assistance. I'm worrying myself sick now about a mess I have been in for a week on account of my would-be chivalry. I ran across a pretty woman who had a punctured rear tire and didn't know how to fix it or where there was a repair shop. There was a shop near by and I was wise enough not to try to attempt to fix it and risk being caught attempt to fix it and risk being caught in a two-hour job, so I offered to see her to the shop if she could ride. The wheel ran hard and I took hold of her arm to help her along. We rode only a mile, but in that distance I passed a woman who knows my wife, and I knew the friend would go straight to her with the tale of my doings on the road. with the tale of my doings on the road, That is what she did, and I haven't been able to make my wife believe the truth yet. I don't blame her much, for to be seen on the road holding a pretty stranger by the arm would be a rather tough one for any married man to explain. The only way is to let the women look out for themselves as we do, and that is my motto hereafter.' Another of the party said: "I had something similar happen to me, but it didn't make so much trouble. I stopped to help a woman old enough to be my mother. Her pedal had dropped off and it couldn't be fixed, for the thread on the shaft was stripped and would not take hold. I suggested that she ride with one foot, but she made such bungling work of it, wabbling all over, that I did not have the heart to leave her. She seemed to trust in me and to rely upon my seeing her through, and was so nice that I simply had to take care of her and help her all the way home. She was very grateful and all that, and, of course, I was proud of being so good, but it prevented me from joining the crowd in the afternoon and spoiled all my arrangements

"Mind your own business, and you will avoid a heap of trouble, you bet," chipped in a third man, airily. "I am with you fellows now, though I did believe in warning a person when near a precipice. I wouldn't do it now. Last Sunday I was behind a smartly dressed girl who was going along at a fair attack of summer complant. Nothing pace, and I noticed that the tire on her rear wheel was so loose that it was likely to roll off at any turn and of her, but as I did so and started to this valuable remedy. Wise parents speak, a couple of scorchers came beshould take to heart this advice of tween us and I had to drop behind to upset her.I brushed up and got abreast tween us and I had to drop behind to let some others pass on my left. The woman with the rattlety-bang tire struck pace with the scorchers for a bit, and I expected to see her go over. She soon quit the fast ones, though, and I pushed along and caught up, but as quick as I got in sight of her away she spurted. It began to look like a flirtation chase, although I had no idea

London, July 6 .- Advices have been received from Cabul, capital of Afghanistan, that an Afghan recently discharged a rifle point blank at the ameer, but missed him, the bullet lodging in the shoulder of a general standing near by. It is also said that the ameer's brother, Ishak Khan, attempted to bribe a cook to poison the ameer, and that when the plot was discovered, Ishak fled into Russian Asia and the cook was hanged.

COMING TO CANADA.

An important deputation of Welsh merchants has just left Cardiff, having Canada for their destination. They propose to visit the leading commercial centers of the Dominion, with a view of discussing the best measures to be taken for developing trade be-tween Wales and Canada. The announcement of the Daily News that an agreement has been reached on the proposed all-British Pacific cable has occasioned the liveliest kind of satisfaction in colonial circles here.

ANNA'S HUSBAND SPEAKS UP. Comte Boni de Castellane, who married Miss Anna Gould, has addressed communication to the Prince of Monaco, sharply criticising the prince for his recent letter to Mme. Dreyfus, inviting her and her husband to sojourn at his chateau after the pris-oner's acquittal, of which the prince expressed himself as confident. The comte, who charges the prince with "interfering in an affair which you are in no way concerned," says: "If, as a foreign sovereign, you thought you could influence French officers in the grave verdict that they are about to pronounce, I beg you to note that we none of us would condescend to call to account a prince who is under tutelage. You are perhaps a relative of Dreyfus by marriage, but in that case it is premature to triumph. 'If, on the other hand, it is as a protector of gambling houses that you intervene, permit me to tell you that Dreyfus himself would dispense with your services.

MUSICAL EXAMINATIONS. Lord Strathcona, Canada's high commissioner in London, presided at the dinner of the Associated Boards of the Royal Academy and Royal College of Music. In the course of his remarks, referring to examinations of music in Canada, his lordship said the correspondence in connection therewith had been somewhat tropical, but he trusted that henceforth perfect harmony would prevail, and that the results of the efforts of the associated boards would be to improve the musical education of the Dominion. STREET CARS IN COREA.

H. X. Allen, the American minister to corea, has arrived in London, en route to New York. Railroad building, he said, had been attempted between the capital and its port, and there was considerable exploitation inland, chiefly American, British and German gold prospecting. There were no diplomatic questions of importance pending between the United States and Corea. American business interests he said, were going ahead in rapid fashion. Fassett's and Leigh Hunt's gold mining enterprise was shaping well, employing 50 Americans. Americans had just completed the first electric street railroad in Seoul and cars were now running on it. Americans had also commenced building the first railroad in the country, and then sold their interests to Japanese.

AN UNFEELING CROWD. Madame Dreyfus, accompanied by her parents, drove to the prison at Rennes yesterday. Her parents were not admitted, but she remained with her husband an hour. On leaving, she showed signs of distress. Her eyes were swollen and red, as though she had been weeping bitterly. She is still in deep mourning, and is determined to remain so until her husband regains his liberty. A somewhat larger crowd than usual watched her arrival and departure, and again displayed ut-ter lack of manners and consideration for her terrible position, gathering around her, rudely staring her in the face and pressing one another aside in their eagerness not to lose a single detail of the inward agony which might be reflected in her countenance. visible distress today was a feast for these ghouls, who, however, were speedily dispersed by a squad of gendarmes. The latter finally barred two streets leading to the portal of the

JOHN AND JONATHAN

Fraternize at a Fourth of July Dinner in Old London.

London, July 6 .- At the Fourth of July reception, given by United States Ambassador Choate to a number of distinguished English and American guests, the ambassador made one of the most dignified and statesmanlike addresses he has yet delivered in England. Praising the Anglo-Saxon alliance, the speaker declared that the Anglo-American alliance was no new thing, as was evidenced by the lower-ing of British flags in the channel fleet on the death of Washington, by the sorrow for Lincoln, and by the honest grief at the demise of Garfield. He referred also in eloquent terms to England's sympathy in the recent war with Spain, and concluded his remarks by proposing "The Day We Celebrate." Senator Lodge responded with a most patriotic expression of the deter-mination of the American people to carry on and carry out the war in the Philippines, "not selfishly, but for the civilization of the people." Mark Twain also responded to the same sentiment, keeping the company most of the time in peals of laughter, but closing with this pathetic reference to the alliance: "Wherever one soldier finds himself beneath the shelter of the other flag, he knows he is not an alien, but a kinsman of the blood, and at home." Cardinal Vaughan responded to "The Community of English-Speaking Nations," saying that the destiny of the new century depended on the question whether the control of pended on the question whether the despotic power now looming in North Asia or the liberty-loving Anglo-Saxon was to control the great uncivilized east. Other toasts followed.

The police claim that they are in possession of evidence to show that St. Clair has been married four times within a few months, and that all his brides are living. Chief Hayden is in communication with the authorities at Ithaca and London, Cht., and St. Clair will probably be confronted with two women, whom it is alleged he married in those cities.

The police also say that St. Clair was married on May 23 of the present year to Mabel Coppins, of Canandai-gua. St. Clair married Miss Barry on June 26 at Asbury Methodist Church parsonage, this city, and a week later left her, saying he had been suddenly called to Hamilton, Ont., but that he would be back. He took with him a gold watch and chain belonging to his new bride. After waiting until Monday Mrs. St. Clair went to the police station and told her story. St. Clair was located on East Main street, and Henley-on-Thames, July 6.—The sixth heat of the contest for the Grand Challenge cup, in which the eight of the Argonaut Rowing Club, of London, met the London Rowing Club's eight, was a magnificent race. London started, rowing 40 strokes to the minute, to the Canadians' 38, and slipped away at the outset. They were half a length ahead at the Rectory, and at half the distance were a length and a half ahead, the time at that point being 3 minutes, 23 seconds. Then the Argonauts spurted grandly, creeping up inch by inch, and at 600 yards from home were on even terms. A punishing tussle ensued, but London just contrived to stay the better, and won the heat by a bare half boat's length. The time was 7 minutes, 15 seconds.

DELAWARE.

Delaware, July 5 .- The grandest garden party ever known in the history of Delaware was held last Monday evening on the spacious grounds of Mrs. R. Bodkin. This garden party, which is held annually by the Methodist Church, has always been a great success, but this year it surpassed all previous re-cords. Notwithstanding the threatening state of the weather and the excessive heat, a crowd of about 900 people were in attendance. Four large tables were efficiently served by a bevy of handsome young waiters. The grounds were beautifully illuminated with acetylene gas. As a result of the extra effort to secure the best talent possible, an excellent programme was provided. The chair was ably filled by Mr. J. R. Sutherland, of Napier, whose brilliant flashes of wit and humor greatly enlivened the evening's entertainment. The Whyte brothers, of Toronto, were present, and charmed the audience with every number that they gave in sacred and humorous songs. Speeches were also given by Rev. Mr. Holmes, of Mount Brydges, and Rev. G. Wilson, of Lambeth. The Oneida brass band was present and gave some very nice selections. The programme was brought to a close near midnight and the crowd dispersed with "God day, the greatest interest centering in and the crowd dispersed with "God the meeting of the eight-oared crews Save the Queen." "I have no affection for him, or for anyone else. No faith! no hope!" she pursued, towering above him like a lost but menacing spirit. "You saved my life this morning. You made of that benefit a wrong tonight, by robbing life of all that it held of sweetness and comfort, by showing me what a coarse bit of gilded clay I-poor fool!-have worshiped. I wish you had let me

"Jessie! are you mad?" He had arisen with her, and would have drawn nearer to her side, but she waved him off. There was a terrible beauty in her wrath that fascinated him, in spite of her cutting words.

"I was a happy, trustful child when you crossed my path. I am a hard. bitter, suspicious woman—and the change is your work. You have humbled me for ever in my own eyes, by letting me into the dark secrets of my instability and idiotic credulity. care not what others think of me. shall write to Mr. Fordham before I sleep, and release him; if he still considers himself bound to me, shall tell him plainly that my love is dead-and "You will judge me more mercifully, and yourself more justly one day, Your self-reproaches pain me more than do your vituperations against myself. You have had much to try you today, my poor child. When you are cooler you will retract-mentally, at least-the charges you have brought against one whose heart is now-and always will be-your own. You know me better than you think. I can wait for time and your sober, reason to right me. Implacable as I know Fordham to be, under his impassive demeanor, he will be more lenient to what he will esteem my breach of trust-the wrong I have done him-when once he has heard my defense, than you are at this moment."

You suppose, then, that I am going to lodge a complaint against you?" said, contemptuously. "I shall not mention your name. I should be ashamed to own who was the cause of my folly. You have nothing to dread from your cousin's anger."

And, although his last remark was 2 "feeler," designed to elicit such an assurance, this speech stung him more sharply than had the volley of invectives that preceded it.

Mr. Kirke and Eunice did not return until midnight. Jessie had the evening to herself, and the letter to Roy was sent to the postoffice before she went

If I ever loved you-I think, sometimes, I never did-I love you no longer. Months of doubt and suffering have brought me to the determination to confess this without reserve. I offer no extenuation of my fickleness. I ought to have remained constant, but I have not. May you choose more happily and wisely in the future!

"I write this without conference with my father or sister—in the knowledge, also, that my change of purpose and prospects will be a sorrow and a surprise to both. But I cannot hesitate or draw back. I need hardly say that I entered into pledges with no one else. No one desires that I should, or seeks to win my affections. It rests with you to give me the release I ask of your generosity and humanity, or to hold me to the letter of my bond. If, having learned the extent of the change that has come over me since I gave it, you insist upon the fulfillment of my promise, I shall submit to your deci-

CHAPTER XV.

The September nights were cool among the mountains, and as Mr. Kirke elder daughter drove home through the moonlight, between 11 and 12 o'clock, from the visit of mercy they had been paying on the other side of the ridge, there were white blankets of mist upon the meadows, and filling up the valleys along which their route

The Shamrock's Owner

Sir Thomas Lipton, the challenger for the America's cup, is thus described by Mr. W. J. Henderson in the Outlook's annual "Recreation Number": "Sir Thomas is a picturesque figure in the world of sport, or, for that matter, in any field. He is now about 45 years of age. He was born in ents, and began life in a very humble manner. He started as the proprietor of a small grocery store in Glasgow; he slept in the store, swept it himself, sold his goods, and, so far as was possible, delivered them, too. Although was not a Yankee, he conceived the scheme of hiring persons to pre-tend to be buyers of goods at his store. The result was that he apparently had a crowded place of business, and this brought him real customers. In a short time he was able to open another store, and then he hired persons to with arms full of bundles from one to the other. By such devices he soon built up a large trade, and he then began to extend his business to other towns. He made a specialty of cheese and coffee. He held the trade which he attracted to his stores. He now has a great wholesale house in London, and between two and three hundred stores in various parts of the United Kingdom. His knighthood was conferred upon him by the Queen, as one of the honors distributed at the time of her jubilee. Sir Thomas, about the same time, gave $250,000 to the Prince of Wales' hospital fund. He is a very liberal man, and he subscribed $50,000 for the support of cheap eating-houses in London.

ANNUAL SCOTCH PICNIC. July 18 will be a great day in Port Stanley. It is the occasion of the Scotchmen's annual picnic, and will be on a larger scale than any previous one held by the St. Andrew's Society. All arrangements are being pushed forward as rapidly as possible, and many excellent special attractions are being self-confessed; and whereas, we indorse provided. Stewart, the famous champion, who worsted the best men of the border, viz., the Reorganized Church of Williams,instructor of the Forty-eighth Battalion, will be present at the picnic to give exhibitions. The full pipe band of the Forty-eighth Highlanders, Toronto, will be in attendance also, besides many other attractions. President Wanless, of St. Andrew's Society, and J. MacLeod, visited Cleveland recently, and conferred with the officers of the Scotch societies in that place, in view to getting them to go to Port on the 18th. The officers expressed regret, but they had already set a date and place for their picnic. St. Thomas society will go down with London. NUMBER THREE COMMITTEE.

No. 3 committee of the city council met last night. Tenders will be called for the purchase of 159 gas lamp posts belonging to the city. There were originally 241. The cobblestone crossing from the west side of Market lane to Covent Garden market house will be taken up and the stone used for a gutter on the west side of the produce market. The crossing at the south end of Market lane will be relaid. Wolfe street will be watered, the property owners paying in advance.

COUNCIL NO. 397, R. T. OF T. At the regular meeting of London Council, No. 397, R. T. of T., held in Somerset Hall on July 4, transfers were accepted from five members of Somerset Council, and they were cordially welcomed into London Council. The amalgamation of the two councils has been for some time under considera-tion. Delegates were arranged for, for the alliance meeting, to be held in Toronto on July 11. The S. C.-elect, Bro. T. J. Limmell, started his term of office by offering four special prizes, to create a more individual effort in the order in general, and the home council in particular. The rules governing this contest are very liberal, and we hope the members will show their appreciation of the S. C.'s kindness by making every effort to win one of the four prizes. It was decided to hold a meeting of the select degree on the fourth Tuesday of each month, in Somerset Hall. Owing to the small attendance the installation of officers was postponed until Tuesday, July 18. After a few remarks from Bro. Madden, the council was closed by the retiring S. C., Bro. R. R. Nelson. LATTER DAY SAINTS

Opposed to the Seating of Polygamist Roberts.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

At the semi-annual conference of the London district, Reorganized Church Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints held in Garafraxa, Wellington, Ont., on June 17 to 19, the following preamble and resolution was carried by the unanimous vote of the body, with a further resolution to publish it in your valuable paper:

To the Honorable Members of the United States Congress: Whereas, the great model republic of the United States has ever been the advance agent for freedom and liberty, and hath always fostered virtue from its birth as a nation unto the present; and whereas, some of her subjects have sought to tarnish the honor and weaken the influence of the nation at home and abroad by introducing into its halls legislation one B. H. Roberts, of Utah, known to be guilty of polygamy, the action of our brethren across the British army in bayonet exercise, and Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, in opposing the seating of said B. H.

Roberts. Be it therefore resolved, that we, in conference assembled, representing a, membership of nearly 2,000, earnestly desiring the promotion and preservation of all good laws and righteous principles, beg leave to pray your honorable body to duly consider the many petitions of our brethren touching the unseating of the said B. H.

DENFIELD-A sold right of way to railway company, who built a fence, which they kept up till the present time; but the section men now re-fuse to maintain it any longer, which causes me trouble and possible damage. Can I compel the railway company to keep the fence in repair? -Yes; it is their legal duty to maintain in good repair the fences, and the company is liable to you for damages caused by the neglect to repair and maintain the fences. A written request to the superintendent of the division of the road will probably be all that is necessary to have repairs promptly made.

WEST ZORRA.-A hires with B for eight months at $14 per month, from 27th March. B quit on 19th June, because he could not work on the food he was getting. He received $15 on his wages before that time. Now B refuses to settle up. How shall A pro-ceed? Ans.—He can take summary action before a justice of the peace, or he can sue B in the division court. His claim depends upon the fact that the food was insufficient, which must be proved to the satisfaction of the judge or magistrate before whom the case is Five Tons of Dynamite Fired Off on a Hill Top.

Victor, Col., July 5.—This camp offset the great Pike's Peak illuminations by an artificial earthquake. Five tons of dynamite were fired on the east slope of Bull Hill in blasts of 200 pounds to each charge, the last charge consisting of 500 pounds. Great flames arose over the mountain and large volumes of smoke gathered. The earthquake was felt at Peublo, 80 miles away, but no damage resulted.

TONS OF GOLD

Received in Dawson City in One Day-Prospectors in Hard Luck.

San Francisco, July 6.-A special from Seattle says: Gold dust was pour-ing into Dawson when the Humboldt's passengers left. They allege that on the morning of June 20 a pack train of 20 horses, each animal carrying 200 pounds of gold dust, arrived from Eldorado Creek. There were two tons of it. worth fully $1,000,000. It is said that eleven of the horses were weighted down with dust from one claim.

IN THE LAKE

Twenty-Eight People Immersed by Christian Workers.

Hamilton, July 6.—On Tuesday afternoon the Christian Workers brought a series of special meetings, which have been held in this and other places, to a close by holding a public baptism in the lake at Grimsby Park. There was a large crowd of the workers and their friends present. The steamer Garden City brought over hundreds from Toronto. Rev. Morgan Wood announced the ceremony at the close of his lecture, and consequently all the pavilion congregation was on hand to see it.

Immediately after dinner a meeting was held at the picnic grounds, at which Pastor Fisher, of Toronto, spoke, and a testimony meeting followed. Pastor Philpot, of this oity, officiated at the baptism, Pastor Fisher assisting. There were 28 candidates, all adults. except two girls. Sixteen were from Hamilton, among them being members of both the Methodist Church and Church England.
