

MRS. AND MISS KINRADE NOT AT INQUEST IGNORED THE INSTRUCTIONS OF PROSECUTOR

Steps Taken to Enforce
Their Presence
Tonight

MINOR WITNESSES
WERE EXAMINED

Shop Girl Tells of Seeing Ethel Kinrade Down Town on the Morning of the Murder.

[By Our Own Man.]

Hamilton, April 23.—Another sensational turn was given to the Kinrade murder mystery, when the crown decided to issue subpoenas to compel the attendance at court of Miss Florence Kinrade and her mother to give further evidence, as to Ethel Kinrade's death.

They were expected this evening, but for some reason at present unknown, they did not arrive.

The crown fully expected them, Dr. Bruce Smith, and a number of assistants being present, to listen to Miss Florence's evidence.

Both Crown Attorney, Washington and Provincial Detective Miller, instructed the family to be in Hamilton, ready to be called, but apparently no attention was paid to the requests.

They did not even inform the authorities that they did not intend to be on hand.

Minor Witnesses.

In the absence of the principal witnesses several others of minor importance were called. Nothing very startling was brought out, except, perhaps, that Miss Ethel Kinrade, the dead girl, had made arrangements to go skating with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ernest Kinrade, on the afternoon of her death. No reason could be discovered as to why she did not go.

A young lady in one of the downtown department stores swore positively that Miss Florence Kinrade was down town about 11 o'clock the day of the murder, although the family swore that she had not been out of the house.

Mrs. Taylor gave evidence to the fact that she had seen a tramp on the day of the murder, and that she was sure his actions did not cause her any alarm.

Baum in Hamilton.

Another feature of the case was the appearance of Jimmy Baum, the actor-mechanic of Portsmouth, Virginia, the witness for the hand of Florence Kinrade. The girl, behind the mask, and choir singer.

He arrived at 6:30 o'clock, accompanied by Detective Jos. Rogers and a Pinkerton man. He was escorted by scores of newspapermen, but was not communicative, or rather his guardsmen would not allow him to converse.

Jimmy, it is understood, will give testimony on the alleged proficiency in handling revolvers of Miss Florence.

The crown would not betray its line of examination for Mr. Baum, nor would they disclose the reason, they knew—why the Kinrades were not present.

The prevalent opinion was that they remained away on advice from their solicitor, Mr. G. Lynch-Staunton, and that tonight's session will probably witness a legal battle on the question of Florence's testimony.

It was stated on good authority that the detectives had covered every inch of Miss Kinrade's trips, and that she would be given a most searching examination along this line.

The detectives are certain they have discovered the murderer, but only coming session will furnish the clue that will unravel the mystery.

The Public Barred.

There were few outstanding features in tonight's testimony. The crown gave orders that the court room was to be cleared of spectators, the press alone to enjoy the privilege of being present, but there were enough tickets issued to comfortably fill the place, and as a result both Mr. Blackstock and Crown Attorney Washington were displaced. The public, however, being excluded on the next occasion.

All the witnesses told a straight story. Mr. Ernest Kinrade was questioned, especially on Miss Florence's trips abroad, but nothing of importance was brought out. It seemed that these jaunts were not freely discussed among the family. Mrs. Kinrade not even knowing that Florence had been on the stage.

Mr. Blackstock was in better form than on the previous occasion five weeks ago. Crown Attorney Washington was associated with him. Mr. George Lynch-Staunton, K. C., represented the family, and was assisted by Messrs. Hobson & Lees, Corner Anderson and Leeson streets.

The temperature of the news was spread from all over the province.

The inquest was late in starting, it being 8:30 o'clock when the first witness was called.

Mrs. Taylor's Evidence.

Mrs. Taylor, 166 Markland street, was the first to give evidence. It was at her house that several women, at the last session of the inquest, testified to having seen a tramp on the afternoon of the murder. Mrs. Taylor saw the tramp, also. He went down the lane directly at the rear of the Kinrade property.

QUITS CHURCH FOR LAW.

Toronto, April 22.—Mr. D. C. Hosack seems finally to have withdrawn from the church, has taken offices in the Crown Law building, and has begun to practice law. The chances are that to law and to public affairs he will henceforth devote himself.

WHY THE KINRADES FAILED TO APPEAR

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Hamilton, April 23.—Although it is impossible to get any official statement to that effect the crown officers believe that Florence Kinrade and her mother acted on the advice of their lawyers, when they failed to attend the inquest last night. It was simply taking advantage of a legal technicality, and it is thought that there was no special reason outside of this for these witnesses not attending.

An officer left for Toronto early today to serve new subpoenas, which were made out last night by the corner, and it is not expected that they will be disobeyed.

The session tonight promises to be sensational. A crisis in the case has been reached, and that is one reason for barring the public from the inquest. This will be more strictly enforced tonight.

FATAL AFFRAY AT WINDSOR RINK MAN SHOTS MOULDER

Harry Norrie Near Death As Result of Quarrel and Peter Shea,
His Assailant, Locked Up in Canadian City—
Shooting Follows Fist Fight.

Detroit, April 23.—In a quarrel at the Windsor roller rink on Wednesday night, Peter Shea, manager of the Wayne Hotel roller rink, shot Harry Norrie, a moulder, of 565 Field avenue. Norrie is in a critical condition at Grace Hospital. Shea is locked up in Windsor.

The stories of the affair are varied, but witnesses agree that the trouble started when Norrie, who has several times been ejected from the Wayne rink, met Shea and started to discuss his fancied grievances. Angry words

JIM BAUM INTERVIEWED BUT DIDN'T TELL MUCH

Gave No Indication of What Would Be His Testimony at Tonight's Inquest.

Hamilton, April 23.—Despite the precautions which the crown authorities have taken to muzzle Jimmy Baum, the actor-mechanic, who came here from Portsmouth, Va., to give evidence in the Kinrade murder case, reporters succeeded this morning in having an interview with him. Baum was very affable, spoke highly of the Canadian climate, and evinced particular interest in the expert manner in which Toronto policemen draw their batons, comparing them with the manner in which the Portsmouth bluecoats draw their clubs to pound "Niggers."

Baum was prepared to say what he thought of Canada until he found out that they were just about right, heaved a visible sigh of relief, and said that Canada must be about right then, too. Baum gave no indication of what he would swear to this evening.

CROOKS AND CONSTABLE EXCHANGED SHOTS IN STREET

Officer Mills Surprises Pair of Crooks Breaking Into a Store at Pottersburg and Revolver Duel Follows, the Thieves
Making Their Escape.

A couple of daring crooks were working in the vicinity of Pottersburg last night, and they did not hesitate to fire on Constable Thomas Mills when he discovered them trying to break into the store of Grocer Thomas Neely.

The constable had been looking around the town, and was returning to the city shortly after 12 o'clock, when he noticed two suspicious-looking characters standing in the shade of a house. Pretending that he did not notice them, he walked on some distance, and when he was out of sight he doubled back to where they had been.

He discovered one of the men standing on guard while the other was attempting to pry open the door of Mr. Neely's store. Constable Mills at once advanced to wards them, whereupon they drew revolvers and opened fire. Mills had his revolver in his inside pocket, but as soon as he could get it, he returned the fire, and the housebreakers took to their heels. Not before Constable Mills had a good look at them, however, and it is hoped that they may be identified shortly.

The one at the store was a man 5 feet 10½ inches in height, and was dressed in a dark suit of clothes of a quiet pattern, while the other was somewhat shorter, and wore a light-colored suit. In their flight, they dropped some articles that it is expected will materially aid in their detection. High Constable Hughes refused to say whether any definite clue had been obtained as to the identity of the men, but the constables are working on the case, and it is expected that they will be located within a day or so.

MEDICAL SCHOOL GOLD MEDAL GOES TO E. F. JEFFRIES

Lead All the Students of the Fourth Year—It Is Said the Silver Medal Was Won by Clarence Brown But This Is Not Confirmed.

The gold medalist of the London School of Medicine is Mr. Edwin F. Jeffries, son of Mr. James Jeffries, of J. H. Chapman & Co.

The announcement was made this morning that he led all the students of the fourth year in the race for honors and scored high in all subjects.

Born in London.

Mr. Jeffries lives at 247 Pall Mall street, and is but 22 years of age. He was born in London, and has resided here all his life. He received his public school education in the Simcoe street school, under the late R. M. Graham, and was the boy's gold medalist when he passed the entrance.

Mr. Jeffries went to the London College, matriculating from that school with high honors.

Last year he was scholarship man in the School of Medicine, and followed the good work of his former tutor, by graduating with the very highest honors.

He has been appointed house surgeon at Victoria Hospital.

The Silver Medalist.

It is understood that Mr. Clarence Brown is silver medalist. He is a son of Mr. George Brown, of this city, and is a brilliant student.

There was also a rumor to the effect that Mr. Paul Polson, at the present time house surgeon at Victoria Hospital, and been awarded the silver medal, but this could not be verified.

The examinations were practically completed at 1:30 today, when Prof. Dearness handed in his botany papers, but Dr. Waugh held them back, as he contemplated a trip to St. Thomas.

DEED NOT LOST FROM
MR. GRAYDON'S OFFICE

Was First Uncarried Ten Years
Ago by Ex-Ald. Hugh M.
Douglass.

The deed made by Mr. William Bowman 40 years ago, transferring the property at Port Stanley to the city, has been located. It is at present in the hands of City Solicitor Meredith.

About ten years ago, the deed was required by the city owing to a lawsuit brought by ex-Ald. Hugh Douglass. It was found in a tin box in the city solicitor's office, and was transferred to Mr. Meredith.

Mr. Meredith has located a deed which he thinks is the right one, although he has not investigated the matter.

"I have a Bowman deed among my papers," he stated at noon today. "I expect it is the right one, although I have not examined it closely enough to see. I have been very busy, but when the opportunity comes, I will look into it."

This situation that gave promise of creating not a little uneasiness, will probably be cleared up within a very short time.

HEAVY LIQUIDATION
IN THE GRAIN PITS

Chicago, April 23.—Demoralization was general today in the grain pits on the board of trade, heavy liquidation, which caused the sensational slump in wheat prices yesterday, having extended to coarse grain. During the first few minutes of trading, July wheat sold off to 81½¢, which was three-quarters of a cent below the low point of the preceding session. Corn for May delivery broke more than 4 cents from the best marks of the previous day, declining early in the day to 87½¢ per bushel.

FIELDING'S STATEMENT
CALLED EXCELLENT

The London Standard Congratulates
Him on Budget Speech.

London, April 22.—The Standard congratulates Mr. Fielding on his excellent financial statement. It says he chose wisely in deciding to balance the national accounts rather by a reduction in expenditure than by imposing new taxation. The renewal of the practice of attaching sinking funds to loans issued in London should have the effect of making them more popular and at the same time putting the country's finances on a sounder basis.

THE SHRINERS OWN THE TOWN

Red Fez Is the Badge of Honor in London Today.

500 NOBLES EXPECTED

At the Ceremonies Tonight—Arrangements Made for the Louisville Convention.

The Shriner's own the town!

The Red Fez is the badge of honor today, and the Desert is spotted with rich caravans of Nobles on their way to the Oasis of London for their regular half-yearly ceremonial session.

Every train this morning brought many Nobles to the city, and they were given the warm welcome of the Shriner by Mayor Stevel, Illustrious Potentate A. L. Davis, Ill. Noble City Clerk Baker, chairman of the reception committee, and all the other Nobles.

Detroit Shriner's Here.

This afternoon brought in large numbers. Detroit came 30 strong from Moslem Temple, headed by Illustrious Potentate H. D. Rogers, and all his officers. Past Illustrious Potentate William Vansickle, and Cep. Geo. W. Powle, commander of the Moslem Arab Patrol, the best in America, Toronto sent down a large delegation in charge of Illustrious Potentate W. P. Ryrie and Noble Roger Miller, and two score Eameses Temple Shriner.

They came in a special Pullman. There will be about 50 candidates taken over the hot sands of the desert. The majority of them are from the city, and are being prepared for the ceremonies of the evening.

Visitors are in the city from many places—St. Louis, Detroit, Hamilton, Toronto, Windsor, Sarnia, Chatham, Brantford and many other places.

It is expected that 500 Nobles will be present at the ceremonies tonight.

Met Railwaymen.

A meeting between Ill. Noble A. J. Nixon, chairman of the transportation committee for the Louisville convention, and Mr. L. W. Kearns, T. P. A. of the Pere Marquette, F. E. Wise, C. L. of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, and W. C. Collins, of the C. H. and D. was held this morning, when arrangements were completed for the trip to Louisville. There will be a special train called the Mocha Temple Special, consisting of four Pullmans and other cars.

The train will have a complete shriner crew from London to Detroit. The Pere Marquette will look after them the rest of the way.

It will be a great trip," said Ill. Potentate A. L. Davis. "We will have almost a hundred go down, and they will not have a chance to forget that we are from Canada."

NEW ONTARIO RESERVE

Vast Tract of Land in Rainy River District To Be Reserved.

Toronto, April 23.—An order-in-council has been passed, setting apart the new forest reserve of 1,000,000 acres in the Rainy River district. The official announcement was made last evening.

The mammoth new reserve comprises the densely wooded territory west of the eastern boundary of the district and contiguous to the international line. It includes a large portion of Hunter's Island, a well-known haunt of game. The order-in-council also provide that the new reserve shall be a provincial game preserve.

The reserve adjoins a similar allotment of land set apart by the State of Minnesota. The original plan of the promoters was to utilize the two million acres as a vast international reserve, conducted jointly by the officers of Ontario and Minnesota. The Provincial Government has not, however, followed this course, and the Ontario reserve will remain solely under the jurisdiction of this Province and be offered solely by its own wardens.

The staff for this work has not yet been selected.

Teachers' Salaries Are To Be Closely Investigated by Board

A SAVING IS TO BE EFFECTED

Kindergarten Will Be Looked
Into—A Radical Move by
This Year's Board.

The board of education will hold a special meeting very shortly, probably next Tuesday, to slash the expenditures of that body if it is at all possible to do so.

For some time it has been alleged that the increase in the school rates has been excessive, and now some members of the board have thought that retrenchment is in order.

Not that the members intend undermining the efficiency of the present system, but an effort will be made to cut the expenditure somewhat, and allow the city some money for other purposes.

The Salary List.

The salary list will be gone over. The schedule of salaries introduced by the board last year has resulted in a large increase, more than some trustees thought possible.

This will be dealt with, and an endeavor will be made to bring the expenditure for salaries within a smaller limit, and arrange a schedule that will not cause so rapid a rise in the expenditures as has been the case.

Removing Teachers.

In addition the board will consider the question of asking for the resignation of teachers, both in the Collegiate and public schools, not up to the standard. It is freely stated that there are a number whose services could be dispensed with, without loss of efficiency. No names have been mentioned in this connection yet, but it is more

NIAGARA ICE JAM NOW UNDER CONTROL

Water at Lewiston Drops Twelve
Feet, Following Blasting Operations.

Youngstown, N. Y., April 23.—The situation throughout the entire length of the ice jam in the Niagara River is this morning believed to be under control.

At Lewiston the water has dropped about 12 feet from the time blasting began until this morning, and the ice kept the downward pace with the surface of the water. In spots where the ice was weakest holes to the depth of 20 feet are now visible. Of course, the rugged borders of drift ice, which threatened to demolish half the village of Lewiston, are still anchored high on shore, and will probably require a week of warm weather before they will slide back into the stream.

Between Lewiston and Youngstown half a dozen holes of noticeable diameter peeped through the ice during the night, and from some of these water is pouring and rotting the surface of the ice below.

Opposite Youngstown a new channel about one-third of a mile in length has just streaked across the grey surface of the ice close to the Canadian shore. Under the embankment of the southern edge of the fort the gigantic furrows of ice, warped in by the pressure of the dam are now weakening. Once they looked like solid concrete, but now they have the appearance of ancient boulder walls. All these signs are believed to show that the tremendous mass of ice has lost its integral strength, and that it will soon fall apart and slip down the river.

Relief has crowded out anxiety all along the lower Niagara. Residents feel that there is no further danger from high water, and that the only danger will be that from a sudden rush of loosened ice.

"GO AHEAD" SAYS
CHAIRMAN JONES

Intimates That the Real Estaters
Can Dig as Though They Were in Pompeii.

The Real Estaters are going after the water commissioners.

There are some accounts that the members of this body want explained, he they say, and they will ask for them.

The expenditures referred to aggregate $15,729.87, and are for the most part labor as per the contract. Mr. Joseph Lawrence, the spokesman, is anxious that they should be made known.

"We want to know what these items mean," said Joseph.

He met Chairman Jones yesterday afternoon, and stated that he wanted to have the accounts investigated.

"Go ahead and investigate," said Chairman Jones. "Go as far as you like. The accounts are there in two offices, so fire away. We can stand it. So far nothing has been done."

LONDON, FRIDAY, APRIL 23.

VIEWS OF A GREAT NAVAL EXPERT.

An article on the naval situation, in the Nineteenth Century and After for April, by Sir William White, for many years director of British naval construction, and familiarly known as the father of the modern British navy, is both timely and instructive, and should have a reassuring effect upon the British people.

Sir William presses home the point that the main strength of Britain's navy now and for some years to come must consist of pre-Dreadnought vessels, and that to treat them now simply as a reserve, magnificent or otherwise, is to unduly depreciate their importance. No comparison limited to Dreadnoughts, he says, gives a measure of the actual relative naval forces of various countries. In making a decision as to the margin of strength in these particular classes of warships that should be provided, the Government should have regard to two important considerations—first, the enormous preponderance in numbers and power of the British navy in ships of the pre-Dreadnought type; second, the ignorance which still prevails in the admiralty as to the actual particulars, including offensive and defensive powers, of the latest German battleships and cruisers.

The second point made by Sir William White is that the first lord of the admiralty's statements as to German acceleration were inaccurate as regards two of the ships, and that in what he said regarding the other two there was nothing new. In the writer's opinion reasonable men will be prepared to believe that the publication of the German statements has been made in good faith, and is intended by its authors to remove misapprehension caused by Mr. McKenna's speech, and to relieve the tension and anxiety which have been produced thereby in the minds of British people.

As to the so-called "secret procedure" of the German admiralty, Sir William points out that that secrecy was really begun by the British admiralty about four years ago, when the Dreadnought and Indomitable classes were introduced.

It is noteworthy that this high authority is not a believer in hasty action by the Government in the construction of the latest type of battleship. He expresses the belief that it is unwise, until more is known about Dreadnoughts, to go on building them on an increasing scale of size and cost. The method of laying down a great number of ships simultaneously is, he says, useless as a device for stopping German competition.

The writer devotes considerable space to proving that Great Britain has still a distinct superiority over Germany in the manufacture of materials for war vessels, and shows that Mr. McKenna underestimated the number of ships in Great Britain capable of receiving Dreadnoughts.

Sir William quotes the following comparison of British and German warships which will not exceed twenty years in age in the year 1912, adding that if the figures had been made public at the beginning of the debate in the Commons, there would have been no approach to a "scare":

	British.	German.
Pre-Dreadnought battleships	40	20
Aggregate displacement (tons)	535,000	241,000
Total number of guns of calibre from 6 to 12 inches	650	384
Number of armoured cruisers	35	8
Aggregate displacement (tons)	416,000	75,000
Total number of guns of calibre from 6 to 12 inches	470	112

A considerable number of the British armoured cruisers are distinctly superior to some German battleships in offensive and defensive power. The British battleships have 152 12-inch guns in their armaments; the German battleships 40 11-inch. British cruisers carry 68 9.2-inch guns, as against six 9.4-inch guns carried by the German cruisers. When it is remembered that this mighty fleet will be supplemented in 1912 by at least 16 completed Dreadnoughts, and that 20 such vessels will be ready if the four contingent Dreadnoughts are laid down, while Germany anticipates the completion of 13 ships only by the autumn of 1912, it must be admitted, says Sir William White, that no true reason exists for anxiety as to Britain's naval strength three years hence in comparison with Germany, or that the accelerated completion in the latter country of any possible number of Dreadnoughts by that date can threaten Britain's superiority, since she can build as fast and probably faster. Sir William's final conclusion is that there is absolutely no reason for the naval scare of which so much has been heard of late.

MR. DANIEL D. MANN ON RECIPROcity.

Mr. Daniel D. Mann, the Canadian railway magnate, gives his views on reciprocity in the Saturday Evening Post, which is showing an unwonted but timely interest in the affairs of this country.

While Mr. Mann admits that Canada has reached a position of economic independence and is no suppliant for favors from her neighbors, he is too well acquainted with the resources and conditions of both countries to deny that both would profit by closer trade relations. He specifically favors a free exchange in fish, coal, iron ore, pulp and lumber. The people of the New England States would benefit by the free admission of fish from the northern waters and coal from Nova Scotia. The coal mining interests of Nova Scotia, if they lost the Montreal market, would be compensated in New England, while the United States coal interests would gain in Montreal what they lost in Boston. The present tax on soft coal also hits the consumers north of Lakes Ontario and Erie. On the other side of the continent there is unlimited coal in British Columbia and Alberta, which should find a market in the Pacific States, where very little coal is mined. As to iron ore, Mr. Mann says the abundance of it in Eastern Canada is infinitely greater than her handy stores of coal, and is sufficient for Canada's needs and the American market as well. Mr. Mann also sees no menace to the Canadian pulp and paper industry in allowing the free exportation of pulpwood to the United States, provided free trade in wood and pulp are admitted free into the United States. He estimates that the Canadian supply of pulpwood is the largest in the world, while that of the United States is nearing exhaustion, and argues that on the basis of a free exchange the tendency of the pulp and paper industries of the continent would be to gravitate to the source of supply, which is in Canada.

Mr. Mann believes that the tariff is at best an expedient, and that as its crude necessities are outgrown, and the distribution of nature's favors is better understood, the courses of trade will find their natural channels. However, he thinks that a tariff for revenue necessities will remain, though the tariff for industrial expansion, while it will continue, will diminish in importance.

Mr. Mann sounds a ringing note of Canadian self-reliance. He points out that Canada has arrived, not in the guise of a poor relation of republic or empire, but in the right of her own united power. "You can no more revert to the old Canadian idea of reciprocity than you can replace the locomotive by the stage coach. To discuss the possibility of the absorption of Canada by the United States is utterly to forsake practical politics. You must realize that Canada is a nation so much bigger than any tariff wall that she can afford to be, as she is, undisturbed by it." And he adds this information, which is needed by some of our neighbors, and which faithfully reflects Canadian opinion and sentiment:

"Sometimes I am asked whether Canada is loyal to England. I answer that Canada, like England, is loyal to the Empire. There are still a few people on this continent, I believe, who imagine that Canada pays tribute to the King of England. There is reason to suppose it is bigger than the United States. It is a free confederation of inter-dependent states, each of which has as much liberty to do as it pleases as any state of the Union. In that free confederation, Canada has a place that grows more important every year. She has an unique identity in the world which, if she became four or five or six states in the Union, she could not enjoy."

A UNIONIST FREE TRADER'S VIEWS.

The "tariff reform" movement in England has no stronger opponent than Lord Hugh Cecil, son of the late Lord Salisbury, and a Tory of the Tories. In an article in the Nineteenth Century on "Unionism and its Fiscal Sore," Lord Hugh Cecil deals at some length with the difficulties of the Unionist party. Britain's withdrawal of preference from Canada, he says, was one of the causes which led the Dominion into making a commercial treaty with the United States. According to preferentialists that treaty should have been the first step to political unity between the two contracting parties, but as a matter of fact, after it had continued a number of years, it was broken off, and the relations between Canada and the United States have not been so cordial since. Experience does not sustain the preferentialist policy, which presupposes that the colonies and the mother country are distinct bodies, with separate and conflicting interests. "We shall draw the Empire together," says Lord Hugh Cecil, "not by formally recognizing and powerfully emphasizing the separateness of its constituent parts, but rather by seeking out opportunities for common action when the Empire can move and feel as a single whole. Such common action does, as the South African war showed, effectually strengthen the sentiment of unity throughout the body."

The writer points out that the taxation of food, which we are told is a necessary part of the colonial preference policy, implies the taxation of the poorest of the people, "in order to make richer the colonial farmers, who are already very prosperous, and whose manufacturing interests, like the woolen producers of Yorkshire." He predicts that even if such taxation be imposed, it will be reversed after the following general election; for an English working class electorate will not permanently endure the taxing of the almost starving for the benefit of those who are better off. In Lord Hugh's opinion, Unionist free traders will never be assimilated by the "tariff reformers"; more likely are they to tolerate the situation for the time being. He takes no stock in the claim that Great Britain can obtain her revenue by taxing foreigners, and deprecates the manipulation by the state of the "springs and courses of commerce."

London has a population of about 50,000, but its policy of delegating the care of its parks to the lowest bidder is worthy of a hamlet of 500.

Individuals are wiser than nations. Only fools or knaves would act as the various political entities of Europe are acting in piling up armaments in the name of peace and civilization and groaning under the weight.

Ordinarily a candidate for a municipal office makes his application in person and on the spot. In this city a municipal committee travels to Toronto to look him over. We are getting some novelties in municipal government.

Engineer Kelsch advises buying out the London Electric so as to give Niagara power the whole field. This is obviously the wisest course and the fairest, if the company is disposed to be reasonable, but anyone who suggested it six months ago was branded as a corporation hireling.

The bill for the disestablishment of the Church of England in Wales has been introduced by Mr. Asquith. It is almost certain to be thrown out by the House of Lords, though the great majority of the Welsh people passionately desire the legislation. How long is the United Kingdom going to put up with the anachronism of an hereditary chamber, which is both an enemy and a reproach to British liberty and democracy?

The Toronto News says it is hopeless to look for a material reduction in expenditure under Mr. Fielding, and that he is in the hands of the local riders of the party. Mr. Fielding's estimates for the current year show a reduction of $9,224,243 in ordinary expenditure, and $13,347,215 in capital expenditure. Applicants for local public works—the "riders"—are being turned away empty-handed. The Government is retrenching vigorously and in doing its duty is incurring the ill-will of some of its supporters. The comment of the Toronto News is ungenerous and remote from the facts.

THE SHEATH OF SIGHs.

(Carolyn Wells, in Life.)
One more unfortunate
Gasp for breath!
Rashly importunate,
Laced most to death.

Gaze at her tenderly,
Dressed with such care;
Fashioned so slenderly
By corseteers.

Look at her garments,
Clinging like cement,
Judge her not scornfully,
Think of her mournfully.

Gently and humanely:
Not of the left of her,
All that is left of her
Now is pure womanly.

O, to what meagreness
May a plump body come!
Banking with eagerness
Left but a modicum.

See those silk slips of hers
Clinging so lovingly
(One might almost say,
Sneaking those hips of hers).

See her soft tresses
Escaped from the comb;
Her fair golden tresses,
While wonderment guesses
Whose head they're from.

She is dressed rightly,
No matter how tightly,
Her heart is compressed;
Director sheathing
May stop one's breathing,
But one is well-dressed!

FAST TYPESETTING.

(Toledo Blade.)
A record was made in this office yesterday—one which we believe is the world's record. A matter of the Blade staff, Milo Bennett, set 30,000 lines of type on the Mergenthaler in just 7 hours and 40 minutes. For those who do not understand the printer's technical term, we hasten to explain that this means Mr. Bennett set 3,777 lines, or about fourteen columns.

Miss Homer—Undoubtedly; they each

THE MOUSTACHE AND CHRISTIANITY.

(New Orleans Times-Democrat.)
"The moustache has a religious significance," said a clergyman in a Lenten address. "It forms, you see, in company with the nose, a cross."

"In the time of the Moslem invasion of Spain, mixed marriages rendered it impossible to tell a heathen from a Christian, so the Spaniards took to shaving all the face but the upper lip. Thus every Christian could be told at a glance a cross—a cross part flesh and part hair."

"From its religious the moustache has come to have an elegant significance purely. Men now wear it to proclaim their faith, but to magnify their beauty. Its source, however, is in Christianity. The Spanish invasion men either wore full beards or went clean-shaven."

AN EXCEPTION.

Gayer—Where? I think I'd call it the "button box."

GOOD SENSE.

Winston Churchill may have his faults, but when he intimated that Great Britain took the United States into account in her shipbuilding programme, he talked good sense and good politics.

THE QUEEN AND GEN. BOOTH.

(Manchester Guardian.)
In view of General Booth's recent tour in Denmark, Scandinavia and St. Petersburg, and of the celebration of his 80th birthday, the Queen and the Empress Marie of Russia received General Booth at Buckingham Palace, and heard from him some account of his life's work, his late tour and his plans for the future.

The general was at the palace about an hour. Seen afterwards, General Booth said he did not know how far it would be proper to speak of the interview, but there could be no objection to his saying that the Queen and the Empress received him most kindly and sympathetically. He showed keen interest in the work of the Salvation Army, and wished him and the army all possible success in their endeavors to ameliorate a lot of the friendless and the fallen. The Queen and the Empress got the general to write his name in their birthday books.

Asked by a press representative about the Salvation Army's prospects in Russia, General Booth said it had as yet made no beginning, but all he wanted was facilities and opportunities, and he felt that in this matter he had at least the warm sympathy of the Empress Marie.

"The Land of Nod" Tonight.

"The Land of Nod," a musical extravaganza in a prologue and two acts, by Adams, Hough and Howard, will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House this evening. One of the principal reasons why "The Land of Nod" has been so unusually successful is on account of the unique character creations and novelty and picturesque-ness of the play. This delightful extravaganza is full of bright comedy, its music, of which there is an abundance, is of the spirited, popular kind.

William Faversham Tomorrow.

William Faversham will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House tomorrow evening. He will be seen in Charles Frederic Nirdlinger's "The World and His Wife," an adaptation of Jose Echegaray's Spanish masterpiece, "The Great Galeoto." What the heedless gossip of busybodies can accomplish is exposed in this play, unquenchable calumny instilling doubt, wrecking a man's peace of mind, and, at last, destroying the good name of his house, his wife, his friend. Mr. Faversham is supported by an especially capable company, which will include Julie Opp, Olive Oliver, H. Cooper, Morton Selson, Berton Churchill, Lionel Belmore and Harry Redding.

"It's Never Too Late To Mend."

The types which Owen Davis has drawn in his latest melodrama, "It's Never Too Late To Mend," are said to be exceptional. They are all taken from life and the prototypes can be found at any moment within the confines of Manhattan Island. As a play "It's Never Too Late To Mend" is said to be full of action and incident. "It's Never Too Late To Mend" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday next.

"Strophon's Bride."

"Strophon's Bride" was repeated last night before a good audience at the Grand, and pleased the audience. The performance was smoother than on the previous evening, and the characters were all well taken. The music by J. Lamont Galbraith, L. R. A. M., was most pleasing, and the composer received many compliments on it.

Shabby Clothes Mean Shabby Work

Go into any of the big offices. Pick out a hundred men. Separate the shabby from the well dressed. And you'll find the unreliable men, the careless men, the men-at-the-bottom, are the shabby men.

Shabby clothes seem to breed a shabby mind, just as bad thoughts breed bad habits.

It's the clothes we wear every day, that influence our lives, just as it is the things we do every day that make us what we are.

A frock coat and an hour in church on Sunday, won't equalize six days of shabbiness and dishonesty.

Dress your body and you dress your mind.

She started and her eyes fell. Then she rose suddenly and looked squarely into his. "There are other crimes than those which are marked by blood," said she. "Perhaps I am not altogether guiltless."

Frank shuddered. He had expected her to repel the charge which he had only made in the hopes of showing her into what a morbid condition she had fallen.

"My hands are clean," she went on, "but my soul is in shadow. Why did you make me speak of it? You are my friend, and I want to keep your friendship, but you see why it must not grow into love; must not, I say, for both our sakes. It would be fatal."

"I do not see that," he cried impetuously. "You do not make me see it. You hint and assert, but you tell me nothing. You should give me facts, Hermione, and then I could judge whether I should go or stay."

She flushed, and her face, which had been lifted to his, slowly sank.

"You do not know what you ask of me," she murmured.

"I know that I have asked you to be my wife."

"And it was generous of you, very generous. Such generosity merits confidence, but let us talk of something else," she cried. "I am not fit—not well enough, I mean, to speak of serious matters tonight. Tell me about your affairs. Tell me if you have found Harriet Smith."

"No," he returned, "greatly disappointed, for there had been something yielding in her manner a moment before. 'There is no Harriet Smith, and 5742—A Pretty Morning Dress.

The front fullness is laid in fine tucks to about yoke depth, and a round collar completes the neck. Full length sleeves ending in narrow bands or shorter ones finished by a full of lace are both included in the pattern. The fullness is ribbon tied in front, but a belt of the material will do as well. Cashmere, challis, albatross and percale are all suitable for reproduction. For 36-inch bust measure nine yards of 36-inch material will be required. Sizes 32 to 42 inches bust measure. I do not even know that there is a Hiram Hucks, for he, too, has disappeared and cannot be found."

"Hiram Hucks?"

"Yes, her brother, and the brother of Mrs. Wakeham, whose will has made all this trouble. He is the heir who will inherit her property if Harriet Smith or her children cannot be found, and as the latter contingency is not likely to happen, it is odd that he should have run away without letting us know where he can be found."

"Is he a good man?"

"Hardly, I consider him a rascal, but he has a good claim on the property, as I have already said, and that is what angers me. A hundred thousand dollars should not fall into the hands of one so mean and selfish as he is."

"Poetic justice is not always shown in this world. Perhaps if you found the true heirs, you would find them also lacking in much that was admirable."

"Possibly, but they would not be apt to be as bad as he is; too much interested to hear a song that Emma composed when we were happier than we are now."

"Indeed, I do," was his eager reply. "Sing, I entreat you, sing; it will make me feel as if the gloom was lifting from my heart."

"But at this world she came quickly back and sat down in her former place by the fire."

"I do not know what came over me," she said. "I never sing." And she looked with a severe and sombre gaze into the flames before her.

"Hermione, have you no right to joy, or even to give joy to others?"

"Tell me more about the case that is interesting you. Supposing you found Harriet Smith or her children?"

"I would show them the will and put them in the way of securing their fortune."

"I should like to see that will."

"Would you?"

"Yes, it would interest me."

"You do not look very interested."

"Do I not? Yet I am, I assure you."

"Then you shall see it, or rather this newspaper copy of it, which I happen to have in my pocket-book."

"What, that little slip?"

"It is not very large."

"I thought a will was something ponderous."

"Sometimes it is, but this is short and very much to the point. It was drawn up in haste."

"Let me take it," said she.

She took it, and carried it over to the lamp. Suddenly she turned about, and her face was very white.

"What odd provision is this?" she cried. "About the heir being required to live a year in the house where this woman died?"

"Oh," he said, "that is nothing. Anyone who inherits this money would mind such a condition that."

Mrs. Wakeham wanted the house fitted up, you see. It had been her birth-place."

Hermione silently handed him back the slip. She looked so agitated that he was instantly struck by it.

"Why are you so affected by this?" he cried. "Hermione, this is something to you."

She roused herself and looked calmly at him, shaking her head.

"You are mistaken," she declared. "It is nothing to me."

"To someone you know, then — to your father?"

"How could it be anything to her, if not to me?"

"True, I beg your pardon; but you seem to feel a personal disappointment."

"You do not understand me very well," said she, and turned towards the door in welcome of her sister, who just came in. She was followed by Doris with a tray on which were heaped masses of black and white cherries in profusion.

"From our own trees," said Emma, as she handed him a plate.

He made his acknowledgments, and leaned forward to take the cherries which Doris offered him.

"Sir," whispered that woman, as she pushed into his hand a little note which she held in her hand under the tray. "Just read this, and I won't disobey you again. It's something you ought to know. For the young ladies' sakes, do read it, sir."

He was very angry, and cast her a displeased look, but he took the note. Hermione was at the other end of the room and Emma was leaning over her aunt, so the action was not seen; but he felt guilty of a discourtesy for all that, and ate his cherries with a disturbed mind. Doris, on the contrary, looked triumphant, and passed from one to the other with a very cheerful smile.

When Frank arrived home he read that note. It was from Doris herself, and ran thus:

"Something has happened to the young ladies. They were to have had new dresses this month, and now they say they must make the old ones do. There is less, too, for dinner, than there was, and if it were not for the fruit on our trees we would not have always enough to eat. But that is not the worst. Miss Emma says I shall have to leave them, as they cannot pay me any longer for my work. As if I would leave them, if I starved! Do, do find out what this means, for it is too much to believe that they are going to be poor with all the rest they have to endure."

Find out what it meant! He knew what it meant; they had sacrificed their case, and now they must go hungry, wear old clothes, and possibly do their own work. He made him heart-sick; it made him desperate; it made him well-nigh forget her look when she said: "Our friendship must not grow into love, must not, I say, for both our sakes. — It would be fatal!"

He resolved to see Hermione the next morning, and if possible persuade her to listen to reason, and give up a resolve that endangered both her own and her sister's future comfort.

To Be Continued.

HAMID SUBMITS TO YOUNG TURKS

Remains on Throne, But His Power Is Very Greatly Curtailed

THE PEOPLE NOW RULE

Capital Garrison Gradually Being Replaced by Soldiers Faithful to the Reformers.

Constantinople, April 22.—The Young Turks have won another victory over Sultan Abdul Hamid. The Sultan will remain as sovereign of the empire, but he will place the affairs of government entirely in the hands of the ministers responsible to parliament.

Tewfik Pasha, the grand vizier, has arranged a compromise with the chiefs of the constitutional party and this has been confirmed by the Sultan personally to several of the constitutionalists, who, with the utmost privacy, were introduced into the Yildiz Kiosk today.

In addition to promising to withdraw himself from administrative activities, the Sultan agrees to a change in the personnel of the troops guarding the palace, and the replacing of the Constantinople garrison by troops from the corps which has practically been investing the city for four days.

The changes in the garrison will be carried out leisurely, one battalion at a time entering the capital, until all the disaffected forces in Constantinople are replaced. The public will scarcely be aware of the change, and it is certain that this will be accomplished without either acts of violence or bloodshed. For the present, at least, there need be little fear of bloodshed within the city, but there is much to fear from the riots and massacres that are now sweeping over the districts under Turkish domination.

The Crisis Past.

The authorities are closing their eyes to the great number of deaths yesterday and today from the units stationed in the capital. Tonight hundreds of soldiers, uniformed, but without arms or uniforms, were slipping out, bound for Asia Minor. Their old battalions will be freshly recruited and shifted to the provinces, which will make the introduction of the constitutional soldiers an easy matter. Fewer white or green turbaned priests are seen on the streets. Many of them have left the city for places in Asia, threatening to raise the country and return with the faithful to rescue the Grand Caliph and save the religion from the unbelievers. Newspaper editors issued threats to resign today, but the city announced that the crisis was past, and this caused general relief. Politics were discussed freely in the cafes, but the talk was surely mentioned. The reckless talk of a few nights ago about the sovereign was not indulged in.

Palace Unguarded.

A correspondent drove to the Yildiz Kiosk, which, as far as could be seen from the approaches, appears to be unoccupied. Not a sentinel or soldier was in sight, even at the main gates. The palace was absolutely silent.

The Sultan, however, is expected to show himself to the public at the Selamluk.

The fleet sailed this afternoon for the Mediterranean, ostensibly for manoeuvres, but in reality as a guarantee that the investing army would meet with no opposition from the navy. The only vessel that remains here is the cruiser Medjidieh, and she is moored in front of the Dolmabahce Palace.

The Sultan, or those acting in his behalf, have supplied the constitutionalists with a list of the principal members of the palace group who brought about the events of the last week. This list includes Chakir Pasha, first aide-de-camp to the Sultan, Rear Admiral Said Pasha, son of the former grand vizier, Kiamli Pasha, Emin Bey, secretary of the Serbesti, Vahdetti Bey, editor of the Kolkhan, Mourad Bey, manager of the Mazan, and Iemali Kemel, deputy of Berat. Some, or possibly, all, of these have left the capital.

It is understood that there are to be no reprisals, except that the palace officials implicated are to be dismissed.

The members of the cabinet today offered their resignations to the grand vizier, Tewfik Pasha, but he declined to accept them. He said that the existence of the present cabinet was under the constitution, irregular, and that he felt that the ministers ought to remain in office until they could leave the country without a Government. He urged his associates to retain their portfolios, pending such changes as might be suggested. All the members of the cabinet thereupon consented to remain. As a matter of fact, the cabinet is practically a Young Turk cabinet, because the ministers who were appointed since April 13 are in no way disposed to do anything in opposition to the wishes of the committee of union and progress. The committee represents in the cabinet are Rifat Pasha and Inman Pasha.

The principal commanders of the army of investment and the garrison within the city are acting together. Inman Pasha said today that the warships could be relied upon to support Parliament and the committee. The Constantinople newspapers that follow Liberal policies are writing in the most open manner of the desirability of submitting the competence of the Sultan to an ecclesiastical high court with the ultimate object of deposing him according to the regular forms. The Gatala has published what purports to be a telegram from Monastir saying the provincial Caliph has obtained from the highest ecclesiastical court of his jurisdiction a decision to the effect that the Sultan is no longer capable of reigning over the faithful.

INCREASED WHEAT YIELD

Probably This Year's Acreage Will Give 115,000,000 Bushels.

Winnipeg, April 22.—The prospect of an increased grain acreage in the Prairie Provinces as a result of high prices, is attracting much attention. Frank O. Fowler, secretary of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, is in receipt of many wires from eastern cities on the subject. He said: "The natural increase in acreage this year will be about 800,000 acres at a rough estimate. This is the result of lands thrown open and homesteading. The average last year was about 700,000 acres in Manitoba. This year it will be about 7,500,000 acres. At an average crop of seventeen or eighteen bushels per acre, which is a very good yield, this will mean an increase in the estimates of last year of about 15,000,000 bushels. Add this to the estimated 100,000,000 bushels of last year's crop may be roughly estimated at about 115,000,000 bushels. Of course, this is taking every advantage and disadvantage into consideration."

In older sections, Mr. Fowler thinks, the acreage may increase to some considerable extent.

"SPRING FEVER"

The need of a spring medicine seems to be universal. This is due to the fact that during the winter the blood becomes impure on account of the hearty food eaten. This causes that tired, weary, all-gone, don't-care-to-work feeling, which is so prevalent at this time of year.

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

That Tired Feeling.
Mr. F. H. Leard, Saskatoon, Sask., writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters as a blood builder and think it the best blood-purifying remedy. Everyone should take it in the spring to cure that tired feeling that comes to so many at this time of year."

Use It Every Spring.
Mr. H. Langley, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters as a spring tonic, and I find it the best thing I can take. It builds me right up and I use it every spring. It is excellent for the blood."

ALL APPLICATIONS GO TO COUNCIL

Board of Works Did Not Recommend an Assistant City Engineer.

ROW RE PAVING REPAIRS

It is Said the Logan Brick Company of Ohio is in the Hands of a Receiver.

After a long discussion over the matter of recommending an assistant city engineer to succeed the late Robert Kirkpatrick, No. 2 committee, at their meeting last night decided to submit all the names of those who had put in applications.

At the outset Ald. Saunders moved that the committee recommend that Mr. George Wright's application be accepted. Mr. Wright, he said, was willing to come for $1,200 a year to start.

Ald. Cooper Objects.

Ald. Cooper, however, took exception right away. Mr. Stagg, he said, had put in an application at $1,000, and there was an application in from W. Hollinsworth, whom the committee had seen on their trip to Toronto, and he thought that these applications should be considered also. Engineer Graydon favored the appointment of either Mr. Wright or Mr. Hollinsworth.

The Applicants.

Ald. Rose said he would support Ald. Cooper, but thought that all the names might as well be submitted, and it was finally decided to do this.

Among the applications received were the following: W. S. Lee, Montreal; A. K. Gunner, city engineer, Fredericton, N. B.; C. H. Stiles, London; C. S. Leach, of the C. P. R., Montreal; W. Stagg, London; W. R. Rogers, Toronto; W. Greenwood.

The Parks "Economy."

The question of accepting the tender of E. H. Whiting for looking after the city parks was again laid over, as the members of the committee want to look into the matter further.

"I isn't fair for Mr. Whiting to have $300 worth of city flowers at his place," said Ald. Saunders. "He should either be willing to take that much off his tender or else give the plants to us o' plant."

"Has he got any account against the city for taking care of them?" asked Engineer Graydon.

"If he doesn't get the job you can't blame him for putting in a bill for his care," said Ald. Rose.

A Question.

"Did Mr. Pearce spend all this money without keeping any record of it?" asked Ald. Saunders.

"There is none as far as I know," said Engineer Graydon.

"I would move that this committee demand all books and papers of the parks commissioner, so that we may find out where we are at," said Ald. Saunders.

"Mr. Whiting says that he has no claim on the plants a tall," said Ald. Rose. "He says they are not his and he has no right to tender on them."

"Mr. Pearce told me last fall that Mr. Whiting was to be paid for the care of the plants," declared Engineer Graydon.

It was decided that Engineer Graydon and the committee shall go to Mr. Whiting's today and find what additional plants he will be willing to place in the parks.

No Guarantee Again.

City Engineer Graydon stated that he had written to the Logan Brick company, with a view of getting bricks to repair the pavements on Talbot and Bloor streets, and had received a letter saying that the company was in the hands of a receiver.

"That is what you get for having no guarantee," said Ald. Cooper.

"This city certainly does get soaked sometimes," said Ald. Rose.

"All these people should put up proper bonds and securities," remarked Ald. Cooper. "Look at that King street pavement, too."

Mount Pleasant Hill.

Mr. Brooks asked that Mount Pleasant Hill be ravelled, and stated that he was willing to pay half the cost. He asked that better gravel be used than was put down last year.

The request was granted. The city engineer was also instructed to write to the London Township Council and take up the matter of laying a sewer on Mount Pleasant avenue, as the present one is in very bad shape.

Renwick Avenue.

Robert Frazer asked that something be done to improve Renwick avenue. Mr. Frazer is building five houses on property there. The committee decided to go up and see the street.

Mrs. Alfred, who fell and broke her leg last winter, stated that she is in bad circumstances, and asked Ald. Engineer Graydon.

"You go up and see the street," said Ald. Rose.

"I don't know," said Ald. Rose.

"Did you ever hear?" said Ald. Rose.

"Do you know whether she went alone?" said Ald. Rose.

"I don't know," said Ald. Rose.

"Did you hear her mother or sister?" said Ald. Rose.

"Did you hear anybody went with her?" said Ald. Rose.

"Yes, Miss Elliott," said Ald. Rose.

"Do you know where Miss Elliott met her when they set out?" said Ald. Rose.

"No," said Ald. Rose.

"Did you hear they set out together from Hamilton?" said Ald. Rose.

"No," said Ald. Rose.

"Did you correspond with her when she was in the south?" said Ald. Rose.

"Yes, about once a week," said Ald. Rose.

"Have you got any of her letters?" said Ald. Rose.

"I don't think I have," said Ald. Rose.

"Have you looked?" said Ald. Rose.

"You had better look, and bring them to court if there are any. Where were those letters from?" said Ald. Rose.

"Portsmouth and Richmond," said Ald. Rose.

"Which came first?" said Ald. Rose.

"I don't remember," said Ald. Rose.

"Did these letters tell you what took her south?" said Ald. Rose.

"To sing in a church," said Ald. Rose.

"Was the church at Richmond?" said Ald. Rose.

"I don't remember," said Ald. Rose.

"Did she tell you when she came back what she had been doing?" said Ald. Rose.

"Yes, singing in a church," said Ald. Rose.

"As a professional singer?" said Ald. Rose.

"She herself told you that?" said Ald. Rose.

"Yes," said Ald. Rose.

"Did she tell you what her salary was?" said Ald. Rose.

"No, nor did any of the family," said Ald. Rose.

"Did she tell you she was acting in a theatre?" said Ald. Rose.

"No," said Ald. Rose.

"When did you hear of that?" said Ald. Rose.

"I don't remember," said Ald. Rose.

"Did you hear of it prior to the death of Ethel?" said Ald. Rose.

"I don't remember. I don't think so," said Ald. Rose.

"I need hardly suggest that it would have made a considerable impression

MR. AND MRS. KINRADE NOT AT THE INQUEST

She said that she was at home on the afternoon of the murder. A tramp came to her house, going to the rear door, and rapped several times, but she did not answer. After five minutes he left, going down the lane at the rear of the Kinrade home. Mrs. Taylor described him as being of medium height, and wore a light overcoat with a peak cap. She did not know whether he was fair or dark.

"Were you afraid of him?" asked Crown Attorney Washington.

"No, not exactly, but I did not open the door," she said.

"What time was this?" asked the attorney.

"About 4:30 o'clock," she said.

"Was there anything suspicious about her?" asked the attorney.

"Not that I know of," she said.

"Did you inform the police?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, a day or two after," she said.

Young Mrs. Kinrade.

Mrs. Ernest Kinrade was the next witness.

She swore that she had been married seven years last January, and had always lived in one of the houses owned by Mr. Kinrade, sen., and had never paid any rent for the house. They had lived in their present location, 5 Kinrade avenue, for two years.

The night before the murder Miss Ethel and Miss Florence were at her house for dinner. That was the last time she saw the girls together. They came shortly after 6 o'clock, and left sometime after 9 o'clock.

"Did you know of any disagreement between them?" asked the attorney.

"None whatever," she said.

"You were on intimate terms with them?" asked the attorney.

"Oh, yes," she said.

"Could you give me an opinion as to the relations existing in the family?" asked the attorney.

"They always seemed like a very affectionate family," she said.

"Nothing in your mind would suggest a disagreement?" asked the attorney.

"Nothing," she said.

"Did you ever hear Florence speak of Miss Elliott?" asked the attorney.

"No," she said.

"Did you ever see her?" asked the attorney.

"No," she said.

"Miss Florence was the only person so far as you know who ever saw Miss Elliott?" asked the attorney.

"So far as I know," she said.

"Did you know Miss Florence was away for a fortnight prior to her going south for the summer?" asked the attorney.

"I don't remember," she said.

Went to Goderich.

"Do you know of her trip to Goderich?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, she sent me cards from that place," she said.

"Any other place?" asked the attorney.

"Yes, but I don't remember from where," she said.

"Where were these places, in Canada or the United States?" asked the attorney.

"Was this the first knowledge you had of her taking these tours?" asked the attorney.

"Yes," she said.

"Did you know she was going before you received the cards?" asked the attorney.

"I don't remember," she said.

"Did you have a conversation with her on her return?" asked the attorney.

"Yes," she said.

"Did she tell you much?" asked the attorney.

"She said she had been having a good time, and had been singing at concerts," she said.

"Was it a professional singing tour?" asked the attorney.

"She told me it was a pleasure trip," she said.

"Did she tell you she was remunerated for singing?" asked the attorney.

"I never heard her say," she said.

"Did she tell you who accompanied her on this trip?" asked the attorney.

"No," she said.

"Did the family ever tell you that somebody accompanied her on the trip?" asked the attorney.

"Not that I remember," she said.

"Did anybody accompany her?" asked the attorney.

"I don't think so," she said.

"Do you remember approximately the time of the tour?" asked the attorney.

"I don't know," she said.

"Did you know of her tour to Syracuse?" asked the attorney.

"Yes," she said.

"Before she went?" asked the attorney.

"I don't remember," she said.

"Do you know whether she went alone?" asked the attorney.

"I don't know," said Ald. Rose.

"Did you ever hear?" said Ald. Rose.

MANY SPORTSSOX COME BACK
DEFEAT DETROITNaps Lose to the Browns in Fourteen Innings—Results in American.

Chicago, April 22.—The Tigers lost their second game of the season here this afternoon, when Billy Sullivan's Sox partially repaid the Chicagoans for the three straight drubbings administered there in Detroit last week. The game was won in the eighth by a score of 2 to 1, after Detroit had scored the first tally.

It was the opening of the local season here and yesterday's postponement greatly diminished the attendance. Only 8,111 fans turned out.

Eddie Willett was sent in the box against Smith. Both twirlers did good work, and it was a duel up to the eighth inning, when four hits and a sacrifice sent the three men around the bases for the game.

Willett was steady at all times, and up to the crucial moment in the eighth looked as though he had the much-touted Smith, against whom Mullin gave such a wonderful performance on opening day in Detroit, held safely.

Today's defeat for the Tigers cut down their lead, and even their standing with New York. The Highlanders, by defeating Washington, are now tied for first place with 21. The score:

NAPS ARE AFTER
"SPITTER" WALSHReported That Cleveland Has Offered Three Pitchers for Him.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 22.—Fans were in a ferment today over a report that the Nap management has offered pitchers Liebard, Berger and Falkenberg to Chicago for Ed. Walsh.

Manager "Billy" Sullivan, of the White Sox, is quoted as saying that under no consideration would Walsh be traded. Comiskey himself could not be located.

Chicago, April 22.—"I will not trade Ed. Walsh," was the reply of President Comiskey of the White Sox, today, when his attention was called to the story that Cleveland was about to offer three pitchers for the big spitball artist.

"There is no foundation for the story," said Comiskey. "I would not trade Ed. Walsh for any three players under any circumstances."

HON. ADAM BECK'S

Dymont's Courtown II. May
Not Go to the Plate.

Toronto, April 22.—Eddie Gleason has arrived at the Woodbine from President Walsh, who is a half-brother to the photographer, the pride of the Beck stables here. Moorshot is a three-year-old, and stands easily sixteen hands high.

The Detroit Tigers have lost their old-time respect for one Smith, twirler for the Sox, and yesterday he again took them home with him on the run.

A. H. Brenner's Pleading Tremorgo and Gold Bottom came down at the same time.

Photographer Better.
Photographer looks better than ever and his right foreleg is in good shape again.

Photographer has started in eight races in the last two years, won six and been unplaced twice. He has gathered in $4,045 for his owner, Jack Parker, who bought from Tom Welsh last fall. He is a good-looking colt, with Golden Garter—Flora Mac, and a full brother to Charles Edward.

Ching Hare and King Holladay, three-year-olds from Charlie Phair's stable, worked three-quarters in 1:23. Trainer J. Dick arrived with J. H. Madigan's horses from Fort Erie. The stable comprises Elliott, Simcoe, Fire Bug and a two-year-old, Jockey J. Mallin also came along.

Courtown Has Gone Wrong.
Courtown II, the hope of the Dymont stable in the plate, has gone wrong again.

This horse was looked to have the plate at his mercy a year ago, but a week previous to the race he went wrong. He was declared out of the plate, and sent to rest up for the season. Courtown II, wintered well and showed good signs of the old trouble until Tuesday, when he commenced to favor the leg on which he went wrong a year ago.

The veterinary was called in, and it has been done that was possible to get the plate right again. When asked about the horse this morning, A. E. Dymont confirmed the story of the horse going wrong, and said he did not think that Courtown II. would go to the post.

This means that the stable will have to depend on Fort Garry to carry the colors in the plate. This colt has improved greatly in the past twelve months, but the loss of Courtown II. will be a big blow to the stable.

NATIONAL LEAGUEWin Opening Game From Pittsburg by Score of 7 to 4.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 22.—The National League season was opened locally here today with an exciting game at Exposition Park, Cincinnati defeating the home team by a score of 7 to 4, thus advancing into first place. A band concert was the only ceremony that marked the opening of the season. However, everyone in attendance was supplied with a whistle, and the many exciting features gave all ample opportunity to start the season with plenty of noise.

Pittsburg began the run-getting in the initial inning on a hit by Clarke and Wagner's triple, but the visitors forged ahead in the third inning and kept in the lead until the eighth, when an error by Mowrey allowed the home team two runs, placing them in the lead.

The hopes of the local enthusiasts were dashed to the ground in the final round, however, when Cincinnati made four runs in the same number of hits, coupled with three errors.

Brandon was relieved in the sixth, but the heavy hitting was not stopped. Pasternak played a steady game for the visitors, making several sensational catches and hitting well. Score:

Errors—Wagner, Wilson, Leifeld, Mowrey.

The two charter members of the Hold-Out Club, J. Kling and Johnny Evers, are wavering in the faith, and will shortly get in under. That will spoil some good press agency stuff.

Covaleski came back yesterday and pitched one of those games that made Philadelphia famous. The Giant-Killer should be real good this season.

There has been nothing said of late regarding James Jeffries and Jack Johnson, champion light exchangers. The press agents are cheating a little.

As an orator Jim Jeffries is as fluent as a stuttering school girl trying to recite "Curfew Shall Not Ring Tonight." The only interesting thing he said was that he would fight the Senegambian, but he gets at the job the better for all parties concerned.

LET us who are shoemakers be shoemakers for you—don't experiment with foot-deformers, temper-imitants and such that masquerade as shoes—but wear a shoe instead that gives comfort from the start and retains its shapeliness permanently.

Shoemaking is peculiar. Certain shoe concerns there are who make shoes on honor, who take pride in turning out the best shoe possible, while certain other concerns have so had their pride of workmanship "commercialized" that the cost of making their shoe is reduced below the good-shoe possibility standard—and inferior shoes turned out.

We are of the first class. Maybe, its because we've been shoemakers all our lives, and our fathers before us. At any rate the pride of the craft is ingrained in our very being.

We want to—we strive to—we earnestly endeavor to—turn out the best shoe in Canada. We want to make a pair of shoes for you, reader. And when you have worn them one month—or six months—we want you to say, as many thousands of shoe-wearers say: "I will never wear other than

Now, it is not merely mental our striving to make the best shoe you ever put on your foot.

We go about it in a very practical and shoemaker-like way. First of all, we select the best leather to be found in all the world—for the most part genuine Canadian leather—the kind the best shoemakers in the world sigh for. Tough—pliable—closely-textured—well-tanned—sound clear leather.

We test that leather—we cut it up—make shoes of it—and wear the shoes.

Then we give it to our cobblers to make into Hartt Shoes.

Now, these cobblers are not fear-driven foreigners. They're good sturdy, healthy New Brunswickers, pretty nearly every man.

They're shoemakers by inheritance, too, with the pride of the Craft that makes them take keen interest in everything they do. And when we give these fellows our good material to work on, they start in to build Shape Permanence into Hartt Shoes.

That's the thing we insist on in Hartt Shoes—SHAPE PERMANENCE.

And because they have Shape Permanence is the reason Hartt Shoes do not commence to hurt your foot a day or so after you commence to wear

The matter of price there are two ways of making Men's Clothes. One is to secure the order at the best price possible and then make up the garment to suit the price.

You may get ahead of your tailor on the choice of material, but he has the "strangle hold" when it comes to the "insides" and the workmanship.

The other way (Sovereign Brand Way) is to make up the clothes as they ought to be made and then charge a fair living profit. This is the way the Sanford Company makes "Sovereign Brand" Clothes and the way we price them. It means a square deal to you and to us.

HAY DROPPED TO $12 A TON

But $13 Was Paid for a Couple of Loads This Morning.

OATS ARE UNCHANGED

Market Today Was Only Fairly Well Attended—The Quotations.

There was not a very large market this morning, hay being the only commodity that was present in any quantity. The price today showed a tendency to drop, $13 was offered for a couple of loads, but this was by special agreement. As a rule the hay brought $12, though some especially fine loads brought $12.50. Clover hay sold most for $11, and the hay brought $12, brought the $12 and $12.50 price. There were upwards of 30 loads offered and the demand was good.

Oats remained practically the same in price, some few loads bringing $14.50, though the most were sold for $14. The supply was not very large, and did not nearly meet the demand. The prices for today remain practically unchanged, and are as follows:

The next show will probably be held out-of-doors, weather permitting. Pointers and setters will be the chief exhibits, and these classes will be judged by Mrs. Watson, of St. Thomas, who is considered one of the best judges in America.

Those present at the meeting were: President, Dr. Drake; first vice-president, Dr. Niven; secretary, treasurer, Dr. Fred Wood; Messrs. Bowman, Oke, Westbury, McCarroll, McNeill, Briggs and Williams.

FARMERS LOOK FOR A BOOST IN PRICE

Are Holding Back Their Hay in the Belief That It Will Go Up to $18.

A number of the farmers in the vicinity of London are holding back their hay in the anticipation of another increase in price. There are those among them sanguine enough to believe that it will go up as high as $18 a ton, and they claim that this will be caused by the local scarcity.

The buyers on the market, however, have a wholly different story to tell, and they hold that hay has now reached the maximum price, and that a drop will come almost immediately, and they predict that after the spring seeding the price will likely go as low as $10. Lower than that it is not likely to go, for lower than that the farmer would find it more profitable to use it himself about the farm than to dispose of it at a price lower than $10.

Plenty of Hay.

Those who are in a position to know say that there is plenty of hay still in the vicinity of the city. This year there was at least as good a supply as last year, and last year the grain dealers of the city baled thousands of tons of local hay. The prices that have maintained for local hay this year have made its use for baling practically impossible, and almost all the supply for this purpose has come from the country to be shipped to the city. It is just that much more hay in the country to be shipped to the city, and under the circumstances it is very unlikely that there will be any advance in price, while it is easily seen that the possibility of a drop in price is very great.

SOME DON'TS FOR THE TRIP CANDIDATES

Timely Advice for the Competitors in the Great Advertiser Trip-to-Europe Contest.

Don't talk; hustle. Don't tell everybody you know how many votes you have in reserve. Don't cast clipped coupons that have expired, as they will not be counted. Don't believe every fairy tale that you may hear. There are many such in motion.

Don't neglect to keep busy. Don't imagine that each subscription that someone else gets will cause you to lose.

Don't procrastinate, but work. Don't miss one person, as if he "does not" he "will" take The Advertiser. Don't get careless, but put in your votes as you get them—and hustle.

Don't get discouraged, for there are many homes in and about London and its suburbs where you may find any other candidate has visited. Get after them at once. Don't forget to report each one. In short, WORK.

Don't tell anyone where you stand or where any other candidate stands, if you know—or think you do. Don't say anything, "saw wood." Don't interfere with your sister candidate.

Don't forget the close of the Contest is only a little more than three weeks off. Don't think your chances of winning the Free Trip are not as good as any one's.

Don't forget that from now till the first of May the money sent in for subscriptions is worth twice as many votes as formerly. And don't forget that this offer closes absolutely on May 1.

Don't forget, either, that it is the last special offer that will be made during the contest. Don't miss the last sight of the good time you will have during these nine days, for if you mean success or failure to you.

Don't neglect to make a strong bid for success.

It may not take a very large vote to win. Don't ask the Contest Manager other candidates. Don't use any campaign tactics you would not like your sister contestant to adopt. Don't lose sight of the good time you will have in Europe IF YOU WIN. Don't leave in Europe the pleasure of being counted the winner.

Don't forget the close of the Contest is only a little more than three weeks off. Don't think your chances of winning the Free Trip are not as good as any one's.

Don't forget that from now till the first of May the money sent in for subscriptions is worth twice as many votes as formerly. And don't forget

DR. BANKS' ADDRESS ON MODERN PALESTINE

Interesting Description Given a London Audience of the Holy Land.

Modern Palestine was Dr. Banks' subject at the Auditorium last night. His lecture dealt largely with the Palestine that is most familiar to all Bible students, but the very excellent pictures and descriptions of the places illustrated proved both interesting and instructive to the large audience that listened to the lecture. Most of the lecture was given over to a description of the places made famous in Bible history.

There are three diverse elements that make up the 60,000 population of Jerusalem. Of these 40,000 are Jews, 12,000 Christians, and 7,000 Moslems. There were many pictures of Jerusalem and all of great interest, but the most interesting of the many historical sites, and the tower of the Virgin, where both Christians and Moslems came to pray.

Many of the sacred places of Palestine are in the hands of the Moslems and are closed to Christians.

Some interesting views were also shown of the traditional sites of Old Testament scenes. Absalom's tomb, where the passing Jew to this day stops to hurl a stone at the monument that marks the resting place of an ungrateful son.

There is also a tree called "Absalom's Tree," which is supposed to be the tree in which Absalom was caught by the hair. The tree has grown in the form of a gallows and, perhaps, this is a more likely reason for it being called "Absalom's Tree."

Tomorrow night Dr. Banks will give the concluding lecture of the series on "The Palestine Underground," which will deal with the excavations and discoveries in the ancient cities of that country.

"Christmas Day is only three hours long in the Finnish town of Tornio," said a traveller. "I spent last Christmas there. At sunrise I got up to see my presents at the door by Christmas mail and night had fallen before I got through breakfast."

Countess de la Premiere, a once famous beauty, was found unconscious in a wretched room in the ancient city of Leno. The old woman had plenty of money, but was noted for her avarice, living the life of a miser, and keeping her wealth in a cupboard in her room. When the police called at the neighbors, they were alarmed by the sound of the door being opened, and entering the room they found her nearly dead from starvation, and also discovered that rats had been about as usual.

Last year there was a record in marriage in New South Wales, the happy couples numbering 12,615. The population at the end of last year was 1,655,022, an increase of 31,808, of which 26,458 was due to the excess of births over deaths.

Originality in Decoration

To make your rooms more attractive, more cosy, to make your house more homelike and to give it an air of distinction, to emphasize the tastes and individuality of the owners, is the main object of house-decoration. Not merely to cover your walls and to give them a different color—this is the work of a billposter, but the other requires the art of the experienced decorator.

WE PLACE AT YOUR DISPOSAL A STAFF OF SPECIALISTS, men whose entire time is given to the study of one particular line—either carpets or draperies, or upholstery or wall papers and decoration. Men with the ability to give you an artistic result whether you wish to spend ten dollars or two hundred dollars, and who will give you the same attention in either event.

BEFORE YOU DO ANY PAPERING, let us talk it over with you and suggest some new styles of decoration. We will give you estimates and can convince you that our prices are the lowest and that we can give you the greatest results for the amount you wish to expend.

OUR PARLOR PAPERS are new, beautiful and inexpensive.

OUR BEDROOM PAPERS are dainty and artistic, and can be matched in chintz and dimity for boxcovers, draperies and upholstery. These will be featured on Friday and Saturday.
