Premier States Commission Will Sit Again on May

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, April 20.—The City of London Bill was given its second reading in the provincial house here at 12:30 p.m. today.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, April 20 .- The Legislature got ahead with considerable business today. Before the orders of the day H. H. Dewart brought up the question of the Gregory Hydro Investigating Commission, sitting after this Legislature had been dissolved. He wanted to know if the commission would submit its final report before the house dissolved. The premier said that he understood the commission would sit again on May 12 for a few days taking evidence and therefore would not report to the house. Defective Flue Blamed For Officials of Organization Well Mr. Dewart immediately moved the adjournment of the house to discuss the matter. He declared that the hydro commission evidence would be used as political football during the election and that the commission responsible course" when there was no parliament.

He trusted that the premier would close up the commission and have it make its last report before May 4. Mr. Raney asked if Mr. Dewart were suggesting any legal difficulties. Mr. Dewart replied that law and decency demanded that the commission conclude its work before parliament concluded its affairs.

It was understood when the commission was appointed that it would wiped out the town of Burke, Mcreport to this house. Mr. Ferguson Dowell County, 25 miles west of Bluesaid that the inquiry, according to field. talk, had found nothing inefficient in the hydro management. He hoped the premier would see the propriety of having the commission conclude its work. The premier replied that the big work of the commission could not be finished in a day and that its report would be valuable to any gov-ernment which might come back after the election. George Halcrow, East Hamilton, said that anyone with the welfare of public ownership at heart would have the commission conclude

The Minority Rule at Toronto.

Hon. Howard Ferguson, Conservative leader by his own will, minister one time in a department that peddled timber limits to political friends, has apparently succeeded in thwarting the will and desire of the government of the province of Ontario. Leader of a group not one-quarter the size of the legislature's membership, he has stubbornly and with persistent malice set out to block the process of redistribution. The tactics were old, small and unusual-largely because it has been in the past very hard to find men small enough

The henchmen of Ferguson talked on hour after hour, knowing full well that each hour of the time of the legislature that they could assassinate brought victory that much nearer. Time to a man in that frame of mind is not valuable. It becomes an incumbrance, and something to be toyed with and finally city people do their buying. "Nearly every market day

He plenty, and get them at a much lower price than we promised to facilitate the work in every way, and there is reason to believe that his idea of fighting the obstructionists to a finish, even if it meant the postponing of the election, would have been the best way out.

Every man in the Ontario Legislature knew when Premier Drury announced the bringing down of redistribution that it meant quick work under the most favorable auspices. The committees were to be named from the various parties, and this would give equality in representation. There were no loaded dice in the Ontario could have had redistribution, the city of London its two members, had not the blatherskite tactics of Howard Ferguson and the small group sitting around him stopped the whole work of the house.

The Farmer as a Businessman.

Keeping a set of books on the farm is no longer day's work on hundreds of farms in Ontario. Prof. popularize this work than could possibly have been in the wake of these pioneers. accomplished in any other way. The fact that he has with him in this matter accounts for the success that has attended his efforts.

Of perhaps greater importance than anything Prof. Leitch can say is the testimony of the men who are be this period of quiet at the end of such a life. They furnishing him with the material from which he gets have made their full contribution to the community. the hour of acceptance of tenders was the money invariably pays the 1 per on the nabit of retiring the hour of acceptance of tenders were not cent commission for getting the loan, at a certain time, you cannot delay his cost figures. These figures were all it was about time to go out and start the chores for obtained under carefully noted, positive conditions, and the day. they will stand up under investigation as being the average costs.

The man in the city is often heard to make the statement that the farmer gets his living for nothing. Not for one minute. Prof. Lettch allows him a salary, based on what his services would be worth if he went to work for another farmer with equal responsibilities to his own. He charges him for his house, for all the supplies furnished to the house from the farm, for the use of horses for other than farm work, etc. There is no chance for the farmer to be fooled or to fool himself muddy feet, etc. The average school principal or under the system.

The predictions of trouble were such weak things that the U.S. Shipping Board now finds it good business to advertise as one of its slogans, "Travel on dry ships." Passenger traffic is far ahead of last year, and there is not any trouble in securing a capable crew.

It used to be considered dangerous to send a shaft against John Barleycorn. He was a big duffer and a dangerous-looking gent, but after having used him rough for a few years people and governments alike have found out that his wrath is preferable to his

What positive trash, verbal chaff and same people drive right past our farms when they are loud-mouthed nonsense must have been sprayed upon out for pleasure. They never seem to think that they might buy to better advantage by going right to the farmer when the season is on for certain things. There are times in the fall when they could buy apples by the Mr. Wellington Hay suggested the only possible barrel or the bag, and they could store them away just as well as we do, and by doing so they would have have to charge when we have to make frequent trips to market and deal the produce out in basket lots. People often lose sight of the fact that when a farmer and his wife come to market for the day it means a day's work for them, and the farmer knows that when he has to buy a day's work from any person he has to pay quite

We pass the suggestion along for what it is worth. There is no doubt quite an element of truth in it. The man with the motor car could no doubt make it a business to go to the source of supply many times and buy to much better advantage.

London, Aprli 21 .- A few weeks ago I predicted that the comparative calm which has prevailed in the political seas of Britain during the past few years was coming to an end. Recent parliamentary scenes leave no doubt that the prolonged political depression is to be followed by a period of storms-it may be hurricanes.

No amount of organization or propaganda can excite a deal of feeling in an electorate over trivial and unreal issues. The war was real enough. Why the cabinet split in 1916? Who was responsible? Should a general election have taken place in 1918 or 1919? Ought the open and declared opponents of the government of the day to have then received government support, or at least government neutrality?

These are questions which agitate a few who are personally interested, but they leave the nation cold.

But the war was supported by men of all parties and therefore provoked no political controversy. The minority which opposed it was negligible and challenged no parliamentary discussion on the question. The treaty of peace was on the whole accepted by all parties when first submitted to parliament. The leaders of the opposition parties in the Lords and Commons at the time of its presentation offered no serious criticism of its provisions. Legislation proposed by the Coalition-although in ordinary seasons much of it would have aroused angry passions-coming as it did after the war had exhausted emotion, passed with no more than a feeble murmur

Take, for instance, such controversial topics as adult suffrage, enfranchisement of women, wholesale reductions in hours of labor, representative government in India, and notably the conferring upon Ireland of a measure of home rule more complete than any proposed by Gladstone. Any one of these measures proposed before the war would have led to heated discussion throughout the land.

On that assumption, we are on the eve of greater and more fundamental changes affecting the lives of every class and condition of men and women than has yet been seen in this country. Hence the new sense of struggle with which the political atmosphere is palpitating.

Glorious April Afternoon Proved But Prelude to Night of Horror.

To be sure, there were some indications that there was a war on. For the past twenty-four hours, sundry merchandise had been snoring and attling and mumbling overhead on is way, express prepaid, to the fair ity of Ypres just back a way.

Scuttles of smoke, freight cars, coal xes, packing cases, it sounded like, soaring swift and high overhead, to land away in Ypres this fine day with far, clumsy crash.

Music and Perfume

But hereabouts the larks were singing and the air was full of that perfume of the soil which, in Flanders especially, both thrills and nau-seates. It was the Scotties who first sensed the trouble, Canada's four Highland battalions were the left brigade, on their left were the French onial troops, Turcos and Algerians. From the German breastworks ross, at 4:30 p.m., a soggy green-h cloud floated on the soft breeze towards the French lines, it was a lazy and filmy cloud that dragged its way listlessly across the moist fields. But when it touched the Turco's the world went mad.

The German guns smashed out, the easant afternoon was ripped to ieces, thunder and lightning crashed down from a blue sky and the shimmering sunlit air was smeared and fouled with smoke and the spouting fumes of destruction. The startled Canadians scrambled

But a battle at evening is a dreadful thing, for night is coming, and old instinctive flow cold in the human heart. Yet the sun was still in the sky when the Scotties were moving left-ward to plant themselves as a flank along that side that had gone like wax; it was not yet dusk before the st Brigade was on the march from Ypres, near which they had been resting. The young division, without warning, had manhood thrust upon it. What had happened, nobody knew, save that the Huns had shoved a great sodden wedge of men in north of the Canadians, where the French lonials had been. Therefore in darkness, the Cana-ians flung a flank to face that wedge and thickened up their line. That done, they decided to attack. And under a misty moon, at midnight, at-

Desperate Tree-To-Tree Fighting, With Canadians as Aggressors.

C. H. McNiven, late of the 10th on Albion street, saw something of the attack on St. Julien Wood, and gives these experiences of the battle in which Canadian troops were first subjected to "gas" by the Germans.

Canadian Press Despatch.

St. John, N. B., April 21. — The learnship Empress of Britain arrived here last night from Southmpton and Cherbourg with 701 assengers.

Dr. W. J. Black of Ottawa, deputy He says:

"The day before the attack on St. Julien Wood, C Company, in which I was at the time, was engaged in a game of football. In the middle of the game we saw a great greenish yellow cloud rolling along on our left. While we were wondering what it we were wondering what it was, a French officer came charging along on horseback, shouting that the Germans were killing the French colonial troops with poison gas.
"The battalion was gathered together immediately and started at once under the lead of the late Lieut. Col. Boyle, to the 2nd Infantry Brigade headquarters. As night officers of the 10th Battion having been obtained that the Germans were digging in, in St. Jul-

"That night the 10th and the 15th Battalions, both of the 2nd Brigade, attacked the wood, and in a desperate tree-to-tree fight drove them back to the far side, and all through the night they kept on making counter-attacks, all of which we repulsed. Another conference of officers was held just as dawn was breaking. They had an intuition that the enemy would shell the wood during the coming day, and accordingly moved us back to the edge of the trees, a pro-ceeding the wisdom of which was ap-parent all next day, when 'Heine' and sizes into that wood.

"We escaped this shelling pretty well, though we had some casualties from flying splinters and the riccochets off the trees. That was the end of the show in a way. We stayed in those little trenches—they were only a foot or two in depth; we dug them with our trenching tools—for the next three days, and if we had had the necessary reinforcements we would have made an advance. As it was they were not forthcoming, and so we just sat tight.

"After that we returned to a rest on our morale. It was our baptism to action, and perhaps we were not yet able to realize to the full the personal effect of the war.

"With the exception of the P.P.C.L.I. none of the Canadian troops had up to this time been in action, at least not in any action on a large scale, and such casualties as had occurred had been more or less accidental. After the second battle of Ypres the people at home began to feel the reaction of war in a new aspect, because it was then that the first casualty lists of any size came in."

"Some of our men who got a touch of the chlorine died from its effects right there. Just choked and gagged and coughed till the strain and the gas killed them. But I never saw any of the wounded killed by the Germans. I remember there was one man in the turnip field, he had been hit in the head, and I thought he was dead. The ruins of Ypres, Langemarck and St. Julien have formed a grim memorial to the fortitude of those who died in their defense, but dogged determination of their citizens to rebuild, and the daily results of their labors is a living witness of the invincibility of man, that triumphs even over death. Shell holes and splintered trees remain, and if you looked out over Gravenstafel Ridge on a Sunday afternoon when rain was falling, it would not be hard to recall the impression of a "quiet spell on the Ypres front."

Prominent Leader of Party Is Reported Amongst Those Dead.

Special Cable to The Advertiser.
Mulheim, April 21.—Armed guards patrolled the inner city today, as new outbreaks are threatened by hunger rioters.

Communist leaders in the two-day demonstration, which cost the lives of nine men with sixty wounded, have demanded that the city supply compensation for wounded members of their party and the survivors of their dead.

Refusal of this demand may mean a renewal of fighting, it is feared, and ambulances are being held ready.

A varied circulation has been given unconfirmed reports that the Com-munists had planned a general up-rising in the occupied district of the Ruhr and that the outbreak here was part of the revolutionary program. A prominent Communist leader is reported to have been among the dead. One of the seriously wounded has been positively identified as the agitator Kurtin, a leader in the sailors' rebellion at Kiel in 1918.

Most of those dead and wounded were rioters, whose total strength has been reported at from 4,000 to 25,000. Disturbances are being reported from districts near here. A few persons are said to have been wounded in fighting at Oberhausen. A bartender was killed in a suburb as an aftermath of the disorders in the inner Efforts to start a general strike were unsuccessful.

Swatting the Filthy Fly May Help Save Your Life; Man's Most Deadly Enemy

Toll of Deaths In Ontario Due To Disease Germs Carried By Flies Greater Than That Taken By Many Other 'Agencies. Now Is the Time To Insure a Summer Free From Flies.

of all flies are bred in manure. When manure is not readily available, the female fly lays her eggs in garbage, human excrement, decaying vegetable matter, slops, trash, rubbish or almost any other available filth. In early spring or late fall these eggs develop into full-grown files in from twelve to sixteen days, while in warmer weather it takes only about eight to ten days.

Flies' Habits of Eating. Immediately after hatching into a full-grown fly, his first impulse is to feed. He usually gets his initial meal right at his birthplace. He is never particular about the kind of food he eats. It matters little to him if it is eats. It matters little to him if it is a manure, garbage, human excrement or something else. He rarely establishes permanent quarters, however, at his birthplace. Shortly after birth he takes his initial flight to some near-by kitchen or dining-room. Should screens at the windows and doors embardass him, he ds very willing to take a few meals at the open garbage pail while waiting his chance to get into the house.

Flies are prodigious eaters. They have been known to devour nearly half their weight of food at a time. Furthermore, they like to eat at very brief intervals during daylight hours. And here follows one of the most dangerous, as well as nauseating feaangerous, as well as nauseating features about files. Their digestive processes are extremely simple and the food they eat passes through their bodies with the greatest facility. Many substances eaten by files pass through their digestive tracts un-changed by their weak digestive fluid. As a result, after a fly has dined on tuberculosis sputum or typhoid de-box has been found to produce fifty specks in the course of 24 hours. The reason even more fly-specks are not visible is that they are largely liquid and frequently almost colorless. Many authorities now believe that there is far more danger from disease germs that pass through flies' bodies than from those that are entangled on the standard flies and flies are entangled on the standard flies are entangled for the standard flies are entangled flies are entangled for the standard flies are entangled for the standard flies are entangled for the standard flies are entangled flies are entangled flies.

that pass through files' bodies than from those that are entangled on their feet and legs.

One of the most important things to know about files is the distance they fly from their breeding places. Unfortunately, this is one of the things about which little definite information is to be had. The conclusions obtained from experiment and general observation indicate that if there is an abundant food supply at or near their breeding places they do not have a very great tendency to fly far from such a place. With favorable environments and poor accommodations abroad files usually remain within a few hundred yards of their breeding places. Ordinarily they aprear to leave their breeding places in all directions, like the rays of light from a lamp, so that the farther one goes from their original source the goes from their original source the

Published by the Provincial Board of Health, Ontario.

Files are the filthest and most dangerous enemy of man. Every summer they kill more people in Ontario than are killed during the entire year by murderers. Iightning, storms, cyclones, mad dogs, poisonous reptiles, angry buils and other vicious animals combined. How do they do it? By carrying the germs of typhoid fever, dystemetry, infantile diarnhoes, tubercutoris, smallpox and many other diseases to our food. In fact, the only objection to calling the ordinary housefiles "typhoid files" is that it might leave the impression that typhoid is the only disease they carry, while in reality they spread a tremendous amount of dishacter of all intestinal diseases.

Life History of Files.

Female files lay from one to four, or even five lots of eggs, and about one hundred and twenty eggs at a time. They slways lay the eggs in filth of some kind. About 35 per cent one fulled are consulted by discharging their vile, disease-ladem excreta either at manure is not readily available, the female fily lays her eggs in garbage.

The slid of the garbage can. Any lid, they all detriorates on the lid of the garbage can. Any lid, they all detrioration between the sore of the can, may be used. Two small what her to can, may be used to the lower side of this lid. This is not food and shelter.

Now, by far the greatest objection to file some from the faot that we have been lower to go a half mile further in fless the time of food and shelter.

Now, by far the greatest objection the fact that we know conclusively that, besides being a discomfort and carrying filth, they stream the too of the can, may be used. Two shall walable, the leave of food and shelter.

Now, by far the greatest objection to flee one of the cone of the file to enter the can. The strap, which is one of the cone of the trapholy the can be a trapholy to the file to enter the can. The strapholy the file to the file to enter the can. The straphol to the file to enter the can. The straphol to the file to the file to feature is too important to be passed by lightly. The Real Purpose of Flies.

It used to be urged that files per-and resources of the entire house hold to the utmost to keep itself ever reasonably free from these dangerous, dirty pests. A great deal can be accomplished, however even under these circumstances, and particularly so if no horse stables, livery barns, open some stables, privies, or other places having accumulations of unscreened filth, exist within a hundred yards or more of the house. One of the secrets of any successful fly fight is to begin tuberculosis sputum or typhoid dejecta, analyses of the resulting flyspecks show the presence of the live germs of these diseases.

As might be expected, since flies are great feeders they deposit correspondingly large quantities of excreta. A single fly confined in a paper box has been found to read the second and since flies in individual homes is cleanliness. All filth about premises, such as manure, garbage, faecal matter,

The next step of importance is to screen the house so that stray, traveling flies can not gain admission or obtain food or shelter. Make sure that your screens fit the windows closely, particularly at the top, as otherwise great numbers of flies will find their way into the house. When opening a screen, door or window, always chase the files away first. It goes without saying that such doors and windows should not be kept open longer than necessary.

The next step is to destroy all flies that gain admission to the house. The best way to do this when there are comparatively few flies, is to use the ordinary five or ten-cent fly swatter. It is well to have several in the house or one in each room, so that one is already handy when a fly is found. A few fly swatters in the house where there are small boys or girls to wield them will work wonders, particularly if small prizes are offered for flies swatted. The use of sticky fly paper is another excel-lent means of catching flies in the house. It is very efficient, particularly where there are too many flies to swat easily. Its efficiency will be greatly improved if, instead of being laid down flat it is so placed that ing laid down flat it is so placed that it will have one or more raised portions. Flies much prefer to alight on some clevation rather than on a plain flat surface. Some objection is raised against sticky fly paper, because of its liability to be misplaced or blown against objects or onto the floor. Carefully pinning or weighting it overcomes this objection to some Fly traps as a rule are rather unassthetic and are rarely effective in the house, because only a few fire gain admission to a well screened house, and when for any reason a large number of files have gained admission to a room it is always desirable to kill them off quickly. This may be easily done by closing the doors and windows and dusting pyrethrum or Persian insect powder around the room. Similar effects are obtained by burning the powder. This soon stupefies or kills the files, although it is harmless to people. The files should then be swept up and destroyed. Be sure to use only fresh destroyed. Be sure to use only fresh powder and keep it well covered in a tight can when not using as it rapidly deteriorates.

or certain rooms where flies do not have access to liquids or moist foods, large numbers may sometimes be poisoned by using a solution of one It used to be urged that files performed the useful office of scavensegrs. This argument no longer holds.
We now know that while they do consume filth and germs, they almost invariably return and deposit them on our food as part of their own dejecta.
But, you ask, are files utterly useless? No, indeed. They serve a puropose. Files cannot breed without filth, and the more filth the more files. One of the purposes they serve, therefore, is that of an index to the sanitary conditions of the town, of

"PERFECT FOOD WILL AID YOUR HEALTH."

Cake—delicious dessert—queen of sweets—chocolate, caramel, frosted or plain—pound cake, white cake, angel food or sponge who can resist its appeal?

Serve it often as a dessert or to the children between meals—ours is more than a toothsome food.

Our cakes are the first word in quality and the last word in delicacy and richness. And in order to serve them in all the daintiness and attractiveness that befit their goodness, here's what we have done-When the cake comes from our oven we wrap it in paraffin paper with greatest care. This insures its delightful freshness, provides a protection against moisture and retains the deliciousness of the food.

We then place the cake in a container, chosen for the protection it affords and the handiness of its size. Traced about the box is a blue ribbon—symbol of the excellence and highest quality which we shall uphold.

And printed upon it is our guarantee of the purity and ideal conditions under which our cakes are baked.

he new lands overseas. The history of the romantic islands never held a more suggestive time than April, 1923. Hundreds of Lewis-men, in the years before the war, left the island by the mail steamer for Glasgow, there to take passage on the liners that were to take them to their new bornes. But this week to their new homes. But this week the liners called at Stornoway for the first time.

The croft alone is a poor bulwark against starvation; the epic loyalty of the exiled Lewis man and woman, that tenacious memory of love and life in the old world, is one of the brightest lights in the strong character of the islanders.

An Economic Necessity Emigration for the last 200 years has made life possible to the remnant of the islanders. Yet emigration in the island is not the restless spirit to make good that it is in the south, generally speaking, or the symptom of the colonizing instinct. It is an economic necessity. The islander would not leave his beloved island if he could stay. He always comes back when he can afford to. But the old crofter's house can no long record them, nor the tiny croft provide their frugal fare. Where can they turn? They could never remain a threat to the existence of the old people; it is not in their nature.

And so today the broken circle of the Bay of Stornoway, over which the white gulls eternally wheel with their plaintive calls, will witness the spectacle of a human drama more tremendous in its setting and emotional appeal than any since the first Norseman coveted Lewis.

Vorseman coveted Lewis. Fine Young Men.

How It Is Done.

How can all these things be? Well here is how it is done: A drop of purified vaccine prepared here in Ontario by the Provincial University and supplied free by the University and supplied free by the Provincial Board of Health is placed on the arm. Then an ordinary sewing needle, carefully sterilized, of course, is pointed through the vaccine, and one one-thousandth of an inch is set into the very surface of the skin, so that no blood whatever there. This is done rapidly eight shows. This is done rapidly eight or ten times, all inside an eighth of on inch, on three different spots, the process taking much less than a minute. Of course, the arm is washed first; this takes up most of the time spent in vaccinating by this new method. As soon as these tiny little pricks are made, the surplus vaccine is washed off and the sleeve pulled down—total time spent from rolling

Chicago, April 20.—Eight home rune, one less than the world's record of 29 years ago, were made in the final game between Chicago and Pittsburg today, Chicago winning 12 to 11, when George Hartnett, recruit catcher, slammed out his second homer and crossed the plate with the winning run in the nimth. The Cubs made six of the homers, while the Pirates gathered two.

Thistles were not given as good a test as might have been expected, considering that at the last moment Dr. (Cap) Stevens brought over the Detroit Women's Swimming Association's team, champions of the State of Michigan. It served to prove that the girls in the east of the U. S. play better basketball than there more westerly sisters, as it recalled the Shamrock-Chicago Uptown Brownies' game. However, the main thing was that in this case the receipts went to charity, so none of the fans had cause to feel that they hadn't got their money's worth. The game was a splendid example of sportsmanship. The Detroit girls made a hurried trip at little notice, and after a hard series to do their bit for another city's unfortunates; Thistles laid all plans aside to fulfil their promise. And if the united welfare didn't gain as much as it might have, nothing can be taken away from the efforts of the two teams. Last night's game will always be a bright spot on Thistles' record.

Brantford, for years a stronghold of baseball, has been handed rough treatment this year. First the town that boasts a dyke was ousted, or ousted themselves, from professional baseball, and now the Inter-County League comes along and shows them the door and tells them to shut it as they go out.

Arrangements are practically settled for a series of games next week between Thistles and Shamrocks. As soon as this is over, they can go on about the new city hall. Meantime, Thistles have gone up in the betting, and, as one amateur plunger put it last night, the odds will be about even when the first game is staged.

"Toots" Doherty, Mallhall, Sumners, George are shortstop prospects, and all look good. Southcott and Jeffries are third sackers, both of whom will likely be out today. Smith and Carfrae and McWhinney are outfielders, who may have to show some edge over youngsters from Sunshine Park, and should.

The workouts start at 3 o'clock unless the pros should carry on longer than they usually do.

There has been considerable discussion as to the advisability of having the new league in affiliation with the O. A. B. A., some favoring a strictly amateur On the other hand, there is a league. On the other hand, there is a strong feeling in favor of an independent league to enable outside batteries to be brought in to strengthen the teams. However, the point will be finally decided at Monday's meeting, with present indications pointing to an independent league. The new league will be a nice compact four-club circuit, comprising Sarnia, Watford, Forest and Strathroy.

comprising Sarnia, Watford, Forest and Strathroy.

The Watford Baseball Club has taken on a new lease of life, and, under the enthusiastic leadership of the new president, H. W. Nixon, is looking forward to a most successful season.

The minstrel troupe of the Andrews Wire Works of Watford is putting on a minstrel show in the Lyceum for the benefit of the baseball club in the near future, and it is expected that the proceeds will see the ball club off to a good start financially.

The big crowd of fans who loyally turned out to see the charity effort and to cheer the Thisties to victory did not get a chance to correctly estimate the real working power of the Thistles. At ro time in the game were they really pressed into a hard-working mood. For tile most part of the game the Thistles teyed with their opponents, and only swung into something like their stride in the dying moments of the game.

Frequently they combined while standing still on the floor, passing the ball all around the Detroiters and showing no hurry to shoot. In the last eight minutes, however, they ran in 21 points, falling just one point short of their total for the preceding three periods.

The Detroit girls played without one of their star players, who was unable to make the trip. This fact may have upset their game somewhat, but their main trouble seemed to center in beating the defence. They were checked closely at times, while at other periods they were allowed to carry the game to the defence end of the floor. Bessle Graves and Frances Talbot, the newly-acquired defence star, played a nice game in the guard positions. Bessle was played on forward for a while, and while there accounted for two field baskets.

FEAR TROUBLE

Tokio, April 21 .- "Within the law but morally wrong"—here is a verdict on Japan's latest message on the twenty-one demands, a verdict given by some students of the history of Japan's notorious acquisition of 1915. When the Gaimsho, in Tokio, tour she won the unanimous approval of press critics. Her "Il Baccio," in character, was followed by deafening character, was followed by deafening cation by China for an abrogation was of the 1915 treaties, political Tokio with knew that the Gaimsho had the law the greatest difficulty that she was and a big part of the legal argument on the question on the side of Tokio. But foreigners who lived in after she had responded to several Pekin and Tokio in the year 1915 are slow to forget the twenty-one demands.

Before the second year of twenty-one demands on China. Commonly known abroad as South Man-churia, the country involved in the twenty-one demands is really the Kwantung leased territory, al-though certain sections of the de-mands, including that on Shantung, have already been abrogated. When Japan asked China for the now well known rights in Shantung and well-known rights in Shantung and went further to demand that Japan-ese hold one of the valuable sections of Asia, namely, the section of South Manchuria controlling the South Manchurian railway district and valuable ports of trade, foreign observers in Pekin and Tokio were astonished. In the three months of the present car the savings business, as a whole, cal. Pack as increased nearly 100 per cent over hat done during the whole period which year the savings business, as a whole, has increased nearly 100 per cent over that done during the whole period which preceded it.

in a statement just issued by the director, M. E. McKenzie, at the head office in Queen's Park. Toronto, it pointed out that a new branch bank requires, as a rule, four or five years to reach the point where business pays a profit on cost of operation. That stage has been reached by the Ontario Savings Office in twelve months—some branches in less than three months.

"It is not, of course, maintained that the capital cost of establishing, furnishing and installing these offices has already been returned in profits, nor could that be expected," says Mr. McKenzie. "But the cost of operating them is now covered, and from now on capital covered, and from now on capital charges will be taken care of, and the equipment will remain as a valuable

"From now on, it should also be rointed out, the ratio of expense will rapidly decrease as the volume of business grows. The connection has been established. The Ontario Savings Office has won the confidence of the people of Ontario."

NEW YORK CURB

Reported for The Advertiser by Jones, Easton, McCallum Co. New York, April 20.—Close—

Bartlett Frazier—Confidently look for a reaction.
Clement Curtis—A trading market is likely.
Hurlburd Warren—We should prefer to await a break before making purchases.
Harris Winthern Francisco

Huriburd Warren—We should prefer to await a break before making purchases.

Harris Winthrop—Foreigners showed more interest yesterday.

Jones, Easton, McCallum—It is not improbable that the new selling will carry prices somewhat lower, but we look for no extended decline until the outcome of the crop is more assured.

STOCKS.

Houseman & Co.—It would take little encouragement to advance American Can, Studebaker and Woolen.

Post & Flagg—The market has no definite tendency dependent upon every cocurence.

Clarke Childs—Pere Marquete, Illinois Central, Norfolk and Southern look like a purchase on dips.

Harris Winthrop—Taking profits on advances might be advantageous.

Jones, Easton, McCallum—If you prefer to take the stock market as your guide, there is sufficient evidence there to justify you in selling some stocks. The market has been unable to maintain budges, as good an indicator as anything.

New York, April 20. - Trading in sugar futures on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange was nervous and unsettled today as a result of the filing yesterday by the government of a suit to enjoin trading in futures unless backed by actual sugar on hand.

New York, April 20 .- The raw sugar market was unsettled again early today. and trading was light. There was a small saie of Cubas by an operator to a refiner at 6%c, cost and freight, equal to 7.91 for centrifugal, which represented a decline of %c from the last previous sale, although Cuban holders were ask-ing much higher prices.

Yesterday's announcement by the government seemed to bring in considerable overnight selling orders, and their able overnight selling orders, and their execution this morning caused opening declines of 7 to 17 points in raw sugar futures. Later, however, a steadier feeling prevailed, and prices rallied on covering and buying believed to be against sales of actual, and at midday the early loss was regained on present crop positions with prices six points net higher. Business in refined sugar was still light, but prices were unchanged at 9.60 for fine granulated. Refined futures

Grain Markets

Winnipeg, April 29.—The local wheat market followed the decline in the United States markets brought about by reports of good rains in the winter wheat area, and dropped 1%c for May and 1%c down for July. The market rallied following an easy opening, but at midsession broke again, with May touching a low of $1.21%.

Chicago, April 20.—Rains which afforded some relief to dry sections of the winter crop territory had a bearish effect on the wheat market today. Frices closed heavy, 1½c to 2½c net lower, with May $1.24½ to $1.24½ and July $1.22½ to $1.22½. Corn lost ½c to 1½c and oats ½c to ½c. In provisions the outcome varied from unchanged figures to 50 down.

Western, as well as southwestern, arts of the winter wheat beit received more or less moisture, and the wheat bears put particular stress on reports that in the chief producing sections of Nebraska the rain amounted in places to fully an inch. Weakness in the market was afterward temporarily offset by a government report suggesting a probable decrease of 5.5 per cent in spring wheat acreage this year. This report was, in turn, more than counterbalainced by a bearish view of the Kansas State report implying that the condition of the Kansas crop is much more favorable than federal figures would indicate.

Selling, led by eastern houses, found the wheat market without much support in the last part of the day.

Government figures pointing to increased planting of corn and oats this season tended to weaken prices for feed creais.

No price advances of note have followed the announcement that wages of steel plant employes were increased 11 per cent on April 16, and it is evident that this has been taken care of in present prices. Indications are that the only notable advance in prospect, as indicated last week, is that of wrought pipe which, it is claimed, has not moved upward in the same proportion as ether lines. The demand is very strong, and, as evidence of the activity in industrial building, quite a call is developing for larger sizes.

Canada report a most active market on bars and angles, and it is stated that their mills have orders on hand that will run them at capacity for the sum-mer months. The Hamilton price of 3.10 would appear to be somewhat

Collections fair, slow. conditions now favoring an upturn, they had decided to once more get aboard, and were taking on a long line, but as near their own price as possible.

In cotton also pressure was applied, and prices yielded rather easily. From one of the best-known Wall Street cotton traders the prediction was forth-coming that October cotton was headed downward through 20c a pound, but the wish was held to be father of the thought, as this speculator was said to have first gone short a large line of the commodity.

An outstanding feature of strength when the rest of the market appeared weak was Corn Products, in which speculative buying had been more or less apparent for the past few days. It was thought that as refined sugars advanced to the householder substitutes would be sought, and for this reason Corn Products, with an output indicated by its name, would find an increased demand for some of its own brands. Wall Street heard of a prospective increase in activities to beyond the 66 per cept of capacity which Corn Products mills had been running of late, and this seemed to add weight to the theory of new demands from erstwhile sugar consumers. This stock, though, slumped off as a heavy selling wave overtook the entire list.

It is learned from official sources that a company is now under organization to take over the shares of the Baldwin Gold Mining Company. Limited, deposited with the Chartered Trust and Executor Company, under the agreement to purchase which was ratified at the annual meeting held recently. This agreement called for the sale to an English syndicate of 1,600,000 shares at 2 shillings a share for lots of 5,000 shares or over, or 1 shilling and 9 pence for lesser amounts. Under the terms of the sale the stock had to be picked up not later than Oct. 4, 1923, or any time previous to that on 30 days notice. The company being formed will have a capital of £1,000,000, or approximately $5,000,000, and besides purchasing the Baldwin will acquire and develop other promising properties in the Kirkland Lake district. The information as taid by Inspector M. R. Winters of the Children's Aid Society reads: "That Arthur Dusome days previous, thereto, being in control of a house situated at 240 Sandwich street, did unlawfully permit a child under the age of 16 years, stance exposing such child to an idle and dissolute life, thereby causing her to be or become a neglected child within the meaning of the act.'

A second charge against Duvarney was "unlawfully give or furnish a child under sixteen years tobacco, to wit, cigarettes." The courtroom was well filled when the trial of Duvarney started. Lawrence Laforet, the young bride whose attempted suicide led to police interference, was there with her hus-band. Mrs. Duvarney was present to support her husband. Along the back of the court sat the row of girls who had been receiving dancing instruc-tions in the Duvarney home. Many

WANT AD TIPS

A QUICK CASH SALE

When circumstances compel a Want advertiser to sell for cash a piece of real estate, used automobile, or other thing usually sold on terms, he is under a handicap, but a handicap which the right Want Ad will do much to remove. The mistake in such a situation is to price the thing and then to say, without explanation, "For cash only." The advertiser wishes to mention the cash stipulation, for otherwise inquirers who cannot possibly pay cash will come, wasting his time and their own; but the cash stipulation requires to be presented in association with just the right selling idea.

By itself, cash payment will keep away inquirers; but if, in stipulating cash, the advertiser suggests he will sell for a very low price, he will immediately interest many people. The world is full of people looking for bargains. They are on every street, in every home. When a Want Ad, even though it stipulates cash payment, announces a bargain, it will have a heedful audience.

The advertisers who used the following quoted sentences in their Want Ads had to sell for cash, but they inserted messages which got

"Price cut $250 for quick, cash sale."

"You can profit at my big loss. I cannot sell my car on terms, as I must have the money. $300 below real value."

"I have put a price on my 5-room, modern brick bungalow which will sell it in four days at the outside-perhaps in one. $3,775-Cash

"Best cash offer this week takes my mountain camp; three rooms, fully furnished; beautiful spot in Platte forest; fine fishing, hunting; moving south and must sell at once."

Furnish a big enough incentive in your Want Ad, and crowds will come flocking to pay cash for automobile, real estate, or anything else commonly sold on terms. Such an incentive is a real bargain. It will be logically explained in your Want Ad by your necessity to sell at once and for cash.

The former was made easy by the famous mystery ships called P. and Q. boats, which were nothing more than heavily armed decoys full of wonderful in-struments necessary to the discovery

Strange Manoeuvres.

About a month before the spasm was due to come off, the boys commenced their finesse of training, and it was a common sight to see a party of seamen in the Royal Marine Barracks picking up a few moves, and our fellows were often busy at the struments necessary to the discovery and destruction of the unseen enemy at sea.

He reminded them of the past history and achievements of the corps, repeating part of the famous speech of Lord St. Vincent at the battle of the Nile. In his speech, the earl said that there never was an appeal made for courage, loyalty and devotion, in which the Royal Marines did not more than realize the highest expectations, and if ever the hour of real danger should come to England, the Royal Marines would be found their country's sheet anchor. "I need not remind you men of the fact that you have already proved this once at Antwerp, and I of the fact that you have already proved this once at Antwerp, and I you will do so again, and add fresh laurels to our glorious corps. ### ROME TODAY MARKS 2,676TH ANNIVERSARY

Premier Mussolini Decrees April 21 as Labor Day Instead of May 1.

Associated Press Despatch. Rome, April 21.—The celebration oday of Rome's 2,676th birthday was perhaps the most solemn in the long history of the eternal city. Premier Mussolini promulgated a decree establishing April 21 as Labor Day instead of May 1, and this, the traditional date of the city's foundation, becomes a national holiday.

A leading feature of the ceremony was the administration of the Fascista oath to the national militia as the troops in a hundred Italian cities were reviewed by the Black-Shirt leaders and by the chiefs of the army and navy. In this city the premier himself and Gen. de Bono reviewed the phalanxes.

Enthusiasm was without bounds. Hundreds of thousands of people crowded the streets or found posi-tions in the windows and on the balconies. Some took up their stations on the housetops, while others climbed trees to see the procession. Mussolini's appearance was the signal for a tumultuous outburst. As achments of militia passed before him with standards flying and bugles sounding, the men took a solemn oath of absolute loyalty to the nation and to the iron discipline of Fasciamo. Later there was a patriotic ceremony at the tomb of the "unknown soldier."

Dr. Todd, who was attached to the Army Medical Corps here during the war, spoke on "Egyptian Medicine," and illustrated his lecture with lantern slides.

They thought death was merely a translation to another life. They did not think of King Tutankhamen as dead, but rather as translated to another life.

> It sounds grotesque, but it is right.

particularly those of kings. That is why they were secluded."

At this point Dr. Todd presented several diagrams showing the manner in which the tombs were hollowed from cliffs in the most inacces-sible places. He also showed a re-production of King Tut's mother-in-law, and from her facial characteristics expressed the opinion that she likely died of tuberculosis. Dr. Todd also expressed the belief that King Tut succumbed to this disease, because of the physical appearance represented by his bust.

A Good Job

In fact, the work of the Control Commission has been thoroughly done. One of the officials of the Union of German Industries tells me that he has investigated the destruction of three hundred and thirtyseven factories, and that the loss in them was some hundreds of millions of dollars.

All kinds of machines for the making of munitions were destroyed and the head of one of the largest German institutions said in his estabdishment alone sixty thousand such machines were crushed by means of a magnetic crane. Dr. Fuller explained that many children of five years of age were being treated. Efforts were made even to save the baby teeth, which parents were so prone to leave to their early fate. "The condition of the baby or decidious teeth have a direct bearing on the condition of the second teeth," said Dr. Fuller. "It was found necessary to combat the very prevalent idea of allowing the first teeth to be lost because they would get another in its place. You see, it is not generally known that by the time the second tooth is ready for eruption there might not be room for it. This results in irregularities."

The stars of the game in the past were professionals, who, although fine fellows with good horse sense, were for the most part illiterate men incapable of making any sustained ficiencies, as such, did not interfere with their playing fine golf.

Those of us who must reflect hould remember there are a goodly number whose games are ruined by too much theorizing, or perhaps I should say too little, for as some one has said, it is not a little learning that is a dangerous thing, but being satisfied with a little.

The man who plays a good game and knows how he plays is, in my opinion, vastly superior to the person who just plays a good game. The latter's game is more easily demora-lized. With the above qualification most golfers would make quicker of a stroke.

If one can swing a fourteen-ounce club as fast as a thirteen-ounce one, by all means use the heavier club. The practical problem for the golfer is to use the heaviest club which will give the maximum of speed.

It is not the weight, then, that swing should form an arc more in the nature of an ellipse than a circle, and the plane of the arc will depend on the build of the player.

THIS is the Season for planning your crop for future harvest. Study the "Canadian" Series Catalogue.

At thirty, you want to plant "Protection"; the maximum smount for the minimum cost. The yearly premium on a Whole Life Policy for $10,000 is only ($24.25 per thousand) $242.50.

At forty-being better off-you want to plant "Provision" for the future -something you yourself may enjoy ripely at sixty. At forty the annual premium, on a twenty year endowment policy for $10,000 is $522.50 ($52.25 per thousand).

But the "Interchange Privilege" in our whole life policy, at age 30, permits you the choice-at forty-of any one of nine other plans. You will probably elect the retroactive 30 year Endowment of which the Annual Premium is $412.40, a little less than the original premium on your endowment policy.

This gives you a policy unique with the London Life; carrying full protection at small cost which may be converted into Provision ten years hence with:

1. No indebtedness against the original policy:

2. No lump sum to pay down:

3. No medical examination:

4. No increase in premium:
