VOL. IX.

We seldom say anything in our advertisements about our Millinery Department, It seems unnecessary. Every lady in Chatham knows that if she wants a strictly up-todate hat or bonnet she must go to "Stone's" for it; and the reason why our millinery is the most stylish and best is simply that we employ only the best milliners and trimmers Wages no object with us if they can do the work. We send them to New York and all the other centres of fashion, in order that they may place before you what they know to be the very newest creations. Visit our millinery section this week and get posted.

The Government Majority Will Reach 150 --Further Results.

HOW THEY STAND. Ministerialists.....

London, Oct.—The only results of the day's polling received to-night are those from the Flint and Carnarvon districts, both of which elected Lib-erals, and from the Shepley Division of Yorkshire, West Riding, which re-turns a Unionist. These do not after the gainst of the respective parties. the gainst of the respective parties. There have been elected 481 members thus far, 322 of which are Ministerialists, and 159 are representatives of the Opposition. There is no probability that the result of the balloting in the 189 constituencies still to be heard from will materially affect the pre-sent position of the party, and it is generally conceded that the Ministerial majority in the new parliament will be in the neighborhood of 150.

The Liberals have capture da seat in Westmoreland, where Sir Joseph Savory, Conservative, the former Lord Mayor of London, suffered defeat.

Sir Robert Reid, Libera', who was connected with the Venezuelan arbitration, had beengre-elected for Dumfries by a slight decreased majority, while the Liberal Imperialist, Mr. H. Asquith (formerly Secretary of H. Asquith (formerly Secretary of State for the home department), had been returned from East Fife, with double his previous majority.

The Ministerialist gain remained 23 and the Opposition had won 10 seats.

Thursday afternoon, October 11.

That is the date. It is not necessary to stick a pin in it, however. Everybody will know all about it when it arrives. The air will be so full of it that all other business will have to be suspended. And why not? After 2,000 odd school children have faithfully performed their scholastic duties for a year, the public are certainly willing to serve them for one great, big, roaring, red-letter day. That is just what it means and nobody should forget it.

Will the band play? Well, rather. The boys' band, too, the best on earth. Yell? The boys? After listening to them, the racket and enthusiastic tumult made at the Conservative convention will resolve itself.

In other words, Thursday next has been selected as the date of the annually school children's day at the Great Peninsular Fair for the boys, their sisters, parents, cousins and aunta. This announcement will be readily understood. The public have been anxiously waiting for it. So have the children. No other day in the year is to be compared with it for solid enjoyment and uproarious fun. There is not a moment in the entire afternoon but is chock full of excitement and pleasure. The admission is placed at ten cents and the schools close. That's all that's necessary.

The Great Peninsular opens to-morrow and, if the weather is kind, all will be well. Everything has boomed. Entries are larger and better than ever, the trials of speed more interesting and the crowds will be bigger. All the railroads are giving special single fare rates from the 8th to the 12th inclusive. Success is assured.

CREED SHOULD NOT COUNT.

The talk of William McGregor, M. The talk of William McGregor, M. P., seeking refuge from the coming storm, indulged in by a Conservative contemporary is the silliest bosh imaginable. There is no doubt that if he were chosen again as the Liberal candidate for North Essex, and would accept, he could win hands down from any candidate the Conservatives may put in the field.—St. Thomas Journal.

If the Journal wants to know the M the Journal wants to know the truth of the matter a friend of ours can furnish it, William McGregor is not running again because he found he could not carry the Liberal convention. And the reason the Liberals, at least a number of them, wanted to get rid of him was because he was a Roman Catholic. For the same reason in this county Ald. Stephens, of Chatham, is the Liberal candidate instead of John A. McGregor, of Tilbury. Now, The Planet has little sympathy with any kind of a creed cry. It does not believe a man should get a position whether or not he is fitted for it just because he is a Roman Catholic. But if he is fitted for it surely his creed ought not to be a bar

TWO NATIONS.

The sending by Lord Roberts of congratulatory despatch to the King of Portugal on the occasion of the latter's birthday, and the review at Komatipoort, in honor of the same event, draws attention to the long friendship that has existed between Portugal and Britain, a friendship that has remained for no apparent reason for hundreds of years. It does not appear on the surface as if there was anything much in such an alliance for England. Portugal is a noaccount power, unable to pay her own way, while Great Britain in a mighty empire whose flag is supreme on land and sea, and the friendship between the two countries, therefore seems somewhat incongruous, and but ill accords with the European notion that Great Britain's friendship is of the kind that the boa constrictor fee's for the heifer. Portugal would scarcely make one decent mouthful for the British lian, but instead of taking that mothful, Britain has more than once landed troops to rescue Portugal from the invador, notably toward the close of the Seven Years', War when France and Spain endeavored to force the little kingdom into an alliance against England, and in the Napoleonic wars at a later stage of the world's history.

Portugal does not seem to have gone out of her way to help England during the recent South African unpleasantness, though she allowed Carrington's troops to pass through her territory, but she may for all that have rendered other services which, while not particularly conspicuous, may have been none the less valuable. Anyway England has, long been Portugal's friend, and the Portuguese lamb has been lying down for some centuries with the British lion withsuffering the fate that usually falls to lambkins who take such chances,

TWO MILE A MINUTE.

The American Railway Company has been recently organize i in New York with the object of hurling passengers from New York to San Francisco in less than 24 hours, or to Chicago in about five hours. It is designed to build a marvellous single rail elevated railroad across the continent. It is to be raised so as to avoid the delays of traffic on the surface, and is to be a single rail because it is said that greater speed can be thus secured. The cars will be built of aluminum and will have a capacity for carrying fifty persons. The cars will be supplied with electric brakes by which it will be possible to come to a stop in forty feet. The cars will be operated singly, a gearless electric motor being placed in the pointed prow of each vehicle. This will be controlled by one man. Generating stations will be scattered along the route at intervals of about 100 miles, and the current will be supplied from these, but it is the intention of the projectors of of the line to cater to long distance travellers only, for the time lost in starting and stopping trains is considerable and the wear and tear of the machinery is very great, so that by keeping these trains on the move it is chaimed that their running expenses will be reduced to the lowest possible point. This scheme is the conception of Capt. Lina Beecher, of Brook-

Although The Planet tries to make out that the Conservatives have not engaged Pinkerton detectives for the coming Dominion election, it does not give the ctump of the coming the coming the coming the coming the coming the coming the company of th coming Dominion election, it does not give the story a direct denial—The Market Guide.

There is no necessity of giving the story a direct denial. We all know stituency in the past. WOMAN STOPS A DRIVER.

Her Indignation Aroused by the Beat ing he inflicted on his Horse.

N. Y. Times. "Get down off that wagon, you big

A determined woman, stylishly lressed, and with eyes flashing with indignation, gave this command to Roland Herring, a negro, who was beating a horse covered with sores emaciated, as to be scarcely able to stand, at the intersection of One Hundredth street and Columbus avenue, Siturday afternoon. Herring fried to urge the animal on, but the plucky woman held fast to the horse's

A crowd quickly gathered, and Herring, seeing further resistance was useless, got down off the wagon. The woman then proceeded to unhitch the his own liver, but—and why should horse from the wagon, and, with the assistance of others, had about completed the task when Policeman Mc-ried—" Manus, of the West One Pundredth street station, attracted by the crowd,

"Arrest that man," said the woman, pointing to Herring. "I will make a complaint against him. Just look how shamefully he has been treating this poor beast!"

Policeman McManus took Herring to the station house, the woman and a great crowd following. There the complainant gave her name as Mrs. Mabel R. Pearson, of 8 West Ninetyninth street. Herring gave his address as 210 West Sixty-second street, and said he conducted an express business at that number, Mrs. Pearson said she had seen Herring beating his horse unmercifully.

Herring was arraigned yesterday morning in the West Side police court and Mrs. Pearson was on hand as the prosecuting witness. She related to Magistrade Meade the story of Herring's crueify. Herring's only excuse for his conduct was that he was too poor to allow the animal to rest. He was severely reprimanded by Magis-trate Meade and bound over. HIS CONSECUTIVE LETTERS.

"Now, Arthur," said Mrs. Barrington, as her husband put three hand-bags in the seat beside her in the sleeper and handed over six baggage checks, 'I want you to be sure and write to me every day, and tell me everything you think, just how much you miss me, and all about the way the servants get along." "Oh, I'll keep you posted," he re-

"You go ahead and have a good time and don't worry about me, I'll get along some way. Of course it'll be lonely and all that, but I'll manage to pass the time. It'll be rather dismal for me to sit on the front porch alone when it begins to get dark, thinking of you in the gay crowd having a good time, and never giving a

"Arthur Barrington," his pretty wife interrupted, "if you continue to talk) that way I just sha'n't go. You know I shall think of you every minute I'm away, and if the doctor hadn't said sea air would be good for me I wouldn't have thought of accepting Aunt Laura's invitation, Please don't fret me, love, will you? Remember that, wherever I may be, and no matter how gay my surroundings, I shall there has been corruption in this con- be thinking of you and" (lowering her voice to a whisper) "my soul will still be communing with your soul."

They threw kisses at each other as the train moved away. Then Barrington went to his office and began writing letters. They were to his wife. He each by filling a sheet with endearing words and declarations that he was very lonely without his darling. Then followed the local color she wanted in the form of comments on occurrences of the day in and around their home. The letters were not dated, but he sealed and addrssed them, and arranged them in a bunch, so that his stenographer could take off the top one day after day and drop it into the mail box. She had been gone nearly a week when there came a telegram for him. Of course telegrams had to be opened, and, when Miss Wildreth, the sten ographer, read the message she turned

"Why don't you answer my questions about the housemaid's ankle and your liver? Am awfully worried." That was what Elizabeth Barrington had telegraphed. After studying the matter for a while Miss Wildreth decided that it was necessary for her to act. She was clever enough to hold a position that not more than one man out of fifty could have filled, and she had the habit of keeping her eyes and ears open. Still, she said to herself:

"The housemaid's ankle? I can see how he might know something about

But instead of finishing what she had started to say she wrote the following dispatch: "Leg and liver O. K. Don't worry."

It was about 10 o'clock the next day when another telegram for Arthur Bar-"Yesterday's letter contradicts telegram. Why are you deceiving me? Are you better to-day? Shall I come

The stenographer's reply was as fol-"Am true as steel. Don't think of coming home." Miss Wildreth had just begun to feel that she had succeeded in settling the disagreeable business when a messenger boy arrived with another telegram, in which her employer's wife said:

"Don't understand. What do you mean by being true as steel? Something tells me you are worse. Wire mmediately."

The stenographer replied: "Never mind reference to steel. Am all right." Mrs. Barrington watched eagerly for the postman on the following day, and when he handed her Arthur's letter the opened it with trembling fingers. Eagerly she scanned the first page and was about half through the local color when she jumped up and ran to her aunt, crying:

"Merciful goodness, what can this mean? Three days ago Arthur wrote that the housemaid was 'still laid up with her lame ankle,' which I have tried in vain to get him to tell me about, and that he was not feeling well and the doctor had told him his liver was out of order. Yet here in to-day's letter he tells me that the housemaid has just fallen out of a cherry tree, spraining her ankle, and that he made himself a Welsh rarebit night before last and ate so much of It that his liver is all upset. Why on earth did the housemaid climb a cherry tree when she had a lame ankle, and what ever possessed Arthur to eat a Welsh rarebit when the doctor had just warned him about his liver?"

Her aunt was trying to figure it out, when Elizabeth Barrington happened to think of the telegram she had reselved the day before.

"This letter must have been written about the time they were sent," she said. "I'm going home. Something's wrong. Arthur's liver trouble has gone to his head. My poor darling has lost his reason. He writes a thing and then denies it by telegraph. By starting to-night I can be with him to-morrow afternoon. Oh, how shall pass the weary hours!"

Miss Wildreth broke down and made full confession when Mrs. Barringon rushed, wild-eyed and pale, into her husband's office. Then the two young women sat together in the private room and wept.

"If I hadn't accidently knocked over he pile of letters he left to be mailed." the stenographer sobbed, "they would oot have been mixed up. How shall ever be able to explain it to him?" "You needn't try," Mrs. Barrington answered. "I'll explain to him when he comes out of the woods. I'm so glad he doesn't know anything about this. He mightn't be having a good this. He mightn't be having a good time at all if he did."—Chicago TimesSCHOOL REPORT.

The Travelling Passenger Agent of the Lake Erie Tells One.

He is Back From an Outing in Montans, Idaho and the Pacific States.

Allie Drake, travelling passenger agent of the Lake Erie, and Herbert Fisher, are delighted with the western country. They have just returned from spending a couple of weeks with from spending a couple of weeks with Mr. Drake's urother, at Clark's Ford, Idaho, and Mr. Drake says that the western country is the place for the young man. This state is covered with timber—pine and cedar—and it is all of splendid size. This forest wealth is being developed, the trees are cut chiefly, however, for telegraph poles. The men will work at cutting poles for a while, they hunt and trap, again they prospect for minerals and, again they prospect for minerals and, they tire, return again to the work of cutting trees. Often when walking along you will come to a hole in the hillside just large enough for a man hillside just large enough for a man to stand in and you will hear a tap, tap. The hole has been made by a prospector and 100 feet into the moun-tain, the man is working and the tap, tap, tap you hear is the noise the pick makes against the rock. Montana and Idaho are great cattle states and great herds roam at large.

Spokane Falls made quite an impression on Mr. Drake. It is a pretty city, surrounded by a nice country. It depends chiefly on the railroads, It depends chiefly on the railroads, its mines and its manufactures for its prosperity. Butte, Montana, is a lively and progressive city. D. D. Martin, formerly in J. W. McLaren's drug store, has a splendid situation and is doing well. The salcons in Butte are open all night, and the miners will patronize them till morning then go too their work. The mines are right at the side of the city, and the mountain is honeycombed and you the mountain is honeycombed and you can walk half over the mountain at from 20 to 25 hundred feet below the surface. The Anaconda and the Never Sweat are the two great copper mines in the vicinity of Butte City.

Mr. Drake got a permit to go through the works, but he couldn't get one to go down into the mine, and he didn't want one when he learned how the descent was secured. (The mine is reached by means of an ele-vator similar to those used in stores, only made stronger. The descent, however, is much more rapid, and so

A BIG CATCH. Citizens in this sensation-producing entre have often heard of the seaserpents and other incongruous spe which ambitious fishermen ar constantly coming across in our his-torical river. But now a local devote of the piscatorial art has taken the cake with the capture of a real live man. The haul took place quite re-cently but the successful angler is ex-tremely modest over his capture. The Planet learns, however, that on cast-ing his line he hooked the new specimen in the nostril. It is needless to say he was landed and the hook was nly removed by a physician after re turning to Chatham, REPREHENSIBLE CONDUCT. Commodore Mills' splendid yacht, Cynthia, came into port at Chatham on Saturday. Speaking to his friend W. N. Morley, Mr. Mills complained with good reason of the action of the boys who stand on the bridge and pelt the yacht with stones. Sunday afternoon Mr. Mills went up the river in the little naptha launch belonging the Cynthia, when some boys on he bridge, crying out, "kill the Yankees," threw stones at the launch. One of the missiles hit one of the gentlemen and caused a nasty bruise Such action on the part of the youths of Chatham is more than reprehensible and whoever the guilty parties are they should be sought out and punished. Commodore Mills is a gentleman who is always welcome in Chatham, and the easiest way to send him away with a bad opinion of the city is just such treatment.

THE MISSOURI RIVER.

Navigation on the Missouri River the third greatest waterway in the world, has been practically abandoned. This is the meaning, in plain words, of a statement from the report of the Lighthouse Board, published last week, which says:

"The lights in the Missouri River were not shown during the fiscal year, as no boats were navigating that

While it is generally known that the amount of traffic on the river has been light for a number of years, the fact that it has been completely should not be a been completely should not be a bendered. that it has been completely abandoned and that the Government has even ceased to keep its beacons lighted will cause genuine surprise.

The last boat that attempted to make regular trips up the Missouri River was the Fowler, which made three trips in July, 1899, and then sank at the mouth of the Osage. The year before that the Benton tried to make regular trips, but was wrecked on the Omaha Bridge. There was no navigation on the river between the times that these two boats attempted to keep up a service and the chances are that n the lighthouse report for the next fiscal year makes its appearance it will tell the same story about the abandonment of navigation on the Missouri. Millions of dollars have been spent on the Missouri River to make it more Navigable. The channel has at time been deepened in places and mo has at times been lavishly spent. But at the same time that the Government was attempting to improve the river with one hand it was destroying navigation thereon with the other hand by issuing permits for the construction of bridges and other artificial obstruc-

Owing to the determination of Congress to make no river and harbor ap-propriation this year, however, practically all improvements on the Missouri will be stopped for many months. All work of whatever kind will have to be dropped until an appropriation is made. An attempt has been made during the past ten years, to confine the waters of the river within its banks, and much labor and money have been expended to this end. Now, all this will have to be stopped for a year at least, and between 200 and 400 men will be laid off. The probable result will be that the work already done will go to ruin and that within a short time the river will become a wild, unattended stream, unfit for navigation and a menace to the territory through which

The last important movement to keep up navigation on the Missouri was some eight years ago, when Kansas City capitalists constructed three boats at a cost of $105, 000 for the St. Louis-Kansas City trade. They were the A. L. Mason, the State of Kansas and the Missouri. They ran most of one season, when the Mason was wrecked near the mouth of the Osage and the other boats were put on to the Mississippi trade.

The real cause of the abandonment of navigation on the Missouri, according to well-posted river men, is the fact that the river has been made unnavigable by artificial obstructions. This is clearly shown by Captain Isaac M. Mason, who is familiar with the history of navigation for many years back. His statement will be of interest not only to river men, War Department officials and railroad men, but to American citizens generally, who cannot conceive that any set of men would be so shortsighted as to allow obstructions to be built across the Missouri or any other river to the exclusion of navigation. Here is what he has to say on the subject:

ness, and so it has been abandoned.

The following official extract from

"If I am asked what has caused the abandonment of navigation on the Missouri River I answer advisedly and with out hesitation, artificial obstrucions. The obstructions are principally bridges, so constructed as to make the river too dangerous to enable it to be

We have been approaching this condition rapidly during the past decade. The case which perhaps might be called the final one was that of Captain David Silver, whose boat (the Bright Light) was wrecked on the Boonville Bridge, I think, in 1892. He sued the bridge company, and the case was fought so long and the cost of attorneys' fees and other expenses was so great that he didn't have the money to replace the sunken boat. Whatever he may have secured by a compromise or other wise was eaten up by the costs

Because of the danger caused by these bridges the rate of insurance on high-grade goods is so great that merchants cannot afford to ship out steam-boats to carry them. All that the boats can get is such stuff as nails and low-grade commodities. The result is that there is no money in the busi-

Outside of these artificial obstructions the Missouri River is just as navgable as it ever was. Of course, taking the boats off the river has made ome difference in the depth of the channel, as boats continually passing up and down increase the depth of the channel probably a foot. But there is ust as much water in the river as there was years ago. when there were as high as forty boots in the Missouri River trade, carrying California pas-

And what has happened to the Miss ouri is slowly happening to the Mississippi. It may not come in my day, but come it will, if the same policy is kept up that has prevailed for a few years past. I am asked why the War Department grants so many permits for the construction of these obstruc-tions. I cannot tell. I have been going to Washington in the interest of the rivermen for forty years and I expect to keep going as long as I live. I know what the river means to St. Louis. Without it St. Louis would be naught. The more it is protected the better it is for the city.

The Mail and Empire from its Ottawa Ottawa, Oct. 7 .- There was a good attendance at yesterday's Cabinet meeting. 'Although nominally only 'parish" business was transacted, yet it was parochial work of a rather important character. It affected numbers of the Liberal faithful who have been clamoring for, and expecting, Government jobs. Whatever vacancies have existed for some time are now nearly all filled, but in order to stimulate all "the boys" to work hard during the election, the announcements of promotions and appointments will be withheld until after polling day. The formal act of dissolving Parliament was again postponed, as Ministers have not yet got their lists of returning officers complete, but will in a day or two, so that the announcement of dissolution can be made either to-merrow or Tuesday. Nominations will take place on Tuesday, November 6th; polling on Tuesday, November 13, the judgment of Mr. Justice Gwynne sets at rest the decision over the Supreme Court, over which some doubt had arisen :-"For the reasons above given, I am of the opinion that the appeal, in so far as it relates to the by-law 601 of in all courts and that the judgment in the action must be ordered to be entered for the plaintiffs with costs n so far as relates to the said by-law 601. The form of judgment (being limited as was the action to the interests of the plaintiffs, the new appellants,) should be to the following effect:—Declare that the council of the municipality of Tilbury West had no juriscipality of Thibury West had no juris-diction to assess and charge as they have assumed to do by the by-law 45 the lands in the pleadings mentioned, the property of the appellants, namely lots --; to restrain the council of the township of Romney from taking any steps or proceedings to enforce the by-law No. 601 of the township of Romney in the pleadings mention-ed against the said land.

Declare that the registration of the aid by-law is ineffectual and void and has imposed no lien on the said lands in respect of the assessment in said by-law assumed to be imposed. As to by-law No. 602 there can, I think, be no doubt that the council of the township of Romney, have jurisdiction to pass this by-law. It is nothing but a by-law to repair and maintain a drain constructed under the arrests. a drain constructed under the provis-ions of 36 Vic. C. 37, Whether there has or has not been any miscarriage in the proceedings taken under the pro-visions of the statute as regards such a by-law is not a matter open to inquiry in this action. In so far, therefore, as relates to by-law 602, the appeal must be dismissed, but as the main, and indeed almost the whole contention on the appeal related to to by-law 601 and costs of the appeal do not appear to have been increased by the contention as to by-law 602, the appeal in so far as relates to that by-law is dismissed without costs."

The case will now be probably taken to the Privy Council by Romney Tp.

DINGMAN'S, King St., Chatham

To many women life is one round of sickness, weakness and ill health. To attempt even the lightest household duties fatigues them. Many of the symptoms accompanying this state of decline are: a feeling of tiredness waking, faintness, dizziness, sinking seeling, palpitation of the heart, shortness of breath, loss of appetite, cold hands and feet, headache, dark circles under the eyes, pain in the back and side and all other accompaniments of a run down and weakene doonstitution.

All these symptoms and conditions are simply the result of a poor quality and defective circulation of the blood, with a wasting away of the nerve forces.

By feeding the system with

So saying Sir Norman entered the open doorway and found himself in a long hall, flanked by a couple of doors

The driver stopped at his call and on each side. These he opened in rapid succession, finding nothing but silence and solitude; and Ormiston — who; upon reflection, chose to follow—ran up a wide and sweeping staircase at the end of the hall. Sir Norman followed him, and they came to a hall similar to the one below. A door to the right lay open; and both entered without ceremony and looked around.

The room was spacious and richly furnished. Just shough light stole through the oriel window at the further end, draped with crimson satin, embroidered with gold, to show it. The floor was of veined wood of many colors, arranged in fanciful mosaics, and strewn with Turkish rugs and Persian mats of gorgeous colors. The walls were carved, the ceiling corniced, and all fretted with gold network and gilded moldings. On a couch covered with crimson satin, sheet himself. In this fashion like the window drapery, lay a cith-ren and some loose sheets of music.

Don not seem sacrilege to throw any so like an angel into that horrib look at the corpse. It was a young girl with a face as lovely as a poet's plague-pit?" 'I never saw an angel," said Ore vision. That face was like snow now; and in its calm, cold majesty, looked as exquisitely perfect as some miston, and he and his friend start-ed to go after the dead-cart. "And I daresay there have been scores as ancient Grecian statue. A circlet of pearls was clasped round the snow-white throat, and bracelets of the same jewels encircled the snowy, taper arms. On her head she wore a bridal wreath and veil — the former of jewels, the latter falling around her like a cloud of mist. Everything was perfect, from the wreath and veil to the tiny sandaled feet; and lying there in her mute repose she looked more like some exquisite piece of sculpture than anything that had ever lived and moved in this groveling world of ours. As the cart stopped, the two young men approached the edge of the plague-pit and looked in with a shudder. Truly, it was a horrible sight, that heaving, putrid sea of corruption; for the bodies of the microschip with the way and thrown in in niserable victims were thrown in in cartfuls, and only covered handful of earth and quicklime. Here "Are you sure?" said Ormiston, glancing again with new curiosity at the marble face. I never saw anything half so beautiful in my life; but you see she is dead of the plague."
"Dead! Oh, she cannot be! Nothing and there, through the cracking and sinking surface, could be seen prosinking surface, could be seen pro-truding a fair white arm or a baby face, mingled with the long, dark tresses of maidens, the golden curls of children and the white hairs of of children and the write hairs of old age. The pestilential effluvia arising from the dreaful mass was so overpowering that both shrank back, faint and sick, after a moment's surfaint and sick, after a moment's surfaint and sick, after a moment's surfaint and sick after a moment and s pointing to the plague spot. Meantime the driver, with an eye to business, and no time for such nonsense as melancholy moralizing, had laid the body of the young gir an the ground, and briskly turned his cart and dumped the remainder of his load into the pit. Then, having flung a few handfulls of clay over it, he unwound the sheet, and kneeling beside the body prepared to remove the jewels. The rays of meon and his dark lantern fell on the levely snow-white face together, and Sir Norman groaned despairing ly as he saw its death-cold rigidity The man had stripped the rings the fingers, the bracelets off the irms; but as he was about to perform the same operation pecklace, he was stopped by a stortling interruption enough. In startling interruption his baste the class entered the beautiful heck, inflicting a deep scratch, from which the blood spurted, at the same moment the dead girl opened her eyes with a shrill cry. Uttering a yell of terror, as well he might, the man sprang back and gazed at her with a look of horror, elieving that his sacrilegious robbery had brought the dead to life. Even the two young men - albeit, neither of them was given to nervousness or cowardice-recoiled for an instant and stared aghast. Then, as the whole truth struck them, that the girl had been in a deep swoon, and not dead, both simultaneously darted forward, and, forgetting all fear of infection, knelt by her side. A pair of great, lustrous black eyes were staring wildly around, and fixed themselves first on one face and

"Where am I?" she exclaimed, the upper corners himself with the with a terrified look, as she strove air of a man quite used to that sort to raise herself on her elbow, and of thing. Ormiston recoiled from touching it, and Sir Norman, seeing fell instantaneously back with a cry of agony, as she felt for the first time the throbbing agony of the what they were about to do, and knowing there was no help for it, made up his mind, like a sensible

And with a prelonged shriek of anguish, that thrilled even the hardened heart of the dead-cart St. Alban's and the others took up the sound; and the two young men paused to listen. For many weeks the sky had been clear, prilliant and driver, the girl fell back senseles again. Sir Norman Kingsley sprang to his feet, and with more the air of a frantic lunatic than a responsible young English knight, caught the dead-cart, and was about springing into the driver's seat, when that in dividual indignantly interposed. "Come, come; none of that! If you were the king himself, you shouldn't run away with my cart in that fash-

ADDING MACHINES.

Inventors Are Busy In Devising Au tomatic Mathematicians. There is unusual activity among in rentors at present in the effort to produce machines for mathematical purposes, and perhaps the largest numbe of applications received at the patent office for any one line of fivention these days is for patents for improve-ments upon adding machines. The electric computers in use at the census office have reached a higher degree of accuracy and speed than any other automatic mathematicians, but there are many other devices for making computations already in use through out the country which are being rapidly improved and even in their imperfect state are a great advantage wher large calculations are necessary.

"For many years many attempts, more or less successful, have been made by inventors to devise what are known as adding machines," said Commissioner of Patents Duell in Washing the other day, "but not until recently have such machines come into general use, for the double reason that they are easily thrown out of order and cannot be repaired by the ordinary mechanic, and, secondly, because they are not accurate, especially in carrying over from one denomination to another, as from units to tens, tens to hundreds, etc. Adding machines are now coming into extensive use in banks, counting houses and large business concerns where long columns of figures are to be recorded and added, and they serve to make an expert accountant out of any one who can become skilled in manipulating the keys, for the machine, even in its present state of development, is less liable to error than the human brain, because it never gets

The adding machine noon which inventors are now working with considerable activity is one in which the number or unit types are set up by means of keys in position for printing. Connected with these number types are what are known as total number wheels, which, when the number types are restored to their position, continue to move in the same direction until all the numbers have been printed. These total number wheels are moved at each operation of the machine a distance corresponding to the key operated, so that as soon as all the separate numbers are printed one may read off from the total number wheels the sums of all the individually recorded numbers, thus frequently saving a long and arduous mental calcula-

"The earlier machines had many at tachments that have been found to be useless, and by omitting these inventors have made the present adding machine comparatively simple. It is now their main effort to develop a machine that will not make errors. This will probably be accomplished by improving the apparatus that prevents the inthe end of each operation, by keeping ertia of the overthrow the parts locked except during the instant of time that the operator is pressing the key, and by perfecting the mechanism for transferring from one denomination to another."

Little Olive Oil.

United States Consul Skinner, at Marseilles, says in his last report: "French farmers are disposed to abandon the cultivation of olive groves, as in recent years the prices obtained for the oil have not been satisfactory. Pure olive oil for edible purposes is at present practically unknown in any important market, and if it were offered for sale it is doubtful whether it would be accepted by the public, except as an inferior article, as the average consumer at the present time prefers the neutralized taste of a mixture of the olive and vegetable oils, and would mistake the fruity flavor of the pure juice of the olive for an adulterated product. For some domestic pur poses, and particularly for frying vegetables, arachide oil-or peanut oil, as we call it-is considered, even in France, the home of the olive, superior to any other product."

It Lures Black Bass. "The best bait for black bass I ever struck," said a man who is an enthusiastic fresh water fisherman, came across this summer up at Lake Hopateong, in the northern part of New Jersey. It is the invention of George Decker, one of the guides up there, and he has taken the precaution of having it patented. It acts on the principle of the ordinary spoon hook, but instead of trolling with it, with a sinker, it is made of wood and floats on the surface of the water. You just cast from your boat toward shore and reel in slowly. As the bait revolves on the surface of the water it looks like a big miller. The bass will rise to it when they won't take live bait and snap at it. A slight pull from the rod will hook the fish, and > is there for keeps."

The Time Is Close

October 9th, 10th and 11th are the red letter days for the County of Kent this year

Last year everybody said the Fair was a good Fair-this year is going to be a great deal better.

Every resident in the County is anxious or ought to be anxious to see the County prosperous. A good County Fair is the best sign of a prosperous County.

Let everybody then push it along and show the people what a really good Fair Kent can have.

ART OF "JUIJUTSU."

SCIENCE OF KILLING WITH HANDS AS PRACTICED BY JAPANESE.

It May Be Taught to Policemen-Interest ing Demonstration Given Before Police Officials in Boston by John J. O'Brien, Ex-Chief of Police of Nagasaki and Japanese Many New Grips and Holds

It may be that the police of Boston and of New York will be taught ton and of New York will be taught the ungentle art of juijutsu, which is the Japanese "science of killing with the hands," or killing without weapons, says The New York Jour-nal. Then goodby to policemen's clubs and clubbing by policemen. Re-tractory prisoners will suffer, not from cracked skulls, scalp wounds and bruised muscles, but their arms and bruised muscles, but their arms will be dislocated or their necks and backs wrenched until they submit. John J. O'Brien, formerly of ton and ex-chief of police of Nagasaki, gave an exhibition of juijutsu at the bureau of criminal investiga-tion in Boston the other morning to the police commissioners, Superintendent Eldridge and many of the inspectors and captains. O'Bron explained that juijutsu enables small men easily to overcome g and strong men. The truly weling strong men. The truly veling science is peculiar to one school of Japanese wrestlers, who teach it to the children and to Japanese j-olicemen, who have neatly surprised bulky, tipsy foreign sailors with it. O'Brien went to Nagasaki to study juijutsu and became so proficient at it that he was made chief of police. O'Brien was assisted in his de-monstration by a small Jap, K. Ince, who, although he is not strong, does know how to "kill with his hands." The former chief at once admitted that the "holds" and "grips" he illustrated are all "foul" from a sporting point of view. "But if a nan is coming at you to do you bodily harm you do not stop to balance the niceties of fair and foul work," said self. Let the other fellow take care of himself." So saying, O'Brien and Inoe clinched. and O'Brien broke the clinch by throwing the Jap over his knee, Ince went flying and came on the mat with force enough to jar every bone in his body. But the Jap got and smilingly requested the pleasure of howing some more "holds" to the ommissioners. "A knowledge of anof where and how to take atomy, hold of a man, of the location and uses of the muscles, is all that is necessary," said O'Brien. "Why, I've often seen Japanese boys of 8 years, sons of wrestlers, master men hree times their age with the juiiutsu. Ince asked Commissioner Adams, a well trained athlete, to brace him-self, to make ready to resist. So te lid, and the Jap could not push the commissioner from his stronghold. But he jabbed one finger in the commissioner's body where muscle brace was not effective, and Mr. Adams almost fell.

"How about a man who is about

terested policemen.
'If a fellow draws a gun at long range, I may be his, but if he comes to me he's mine, sure," answered O'Brien, and he told Ince to make as if to draw a pistol from his hip packet. Like a flash, O'Brien grabbed Inoe by the wrist and twist-ed his arm. The Jap was forced to lean over, to rise on his tip toes, then to fall on his knees. If he had not, O'Brien could have twisted his arm out of its socket.

"Now I'll show you what to do then a man seizes both lapels of your coat," said O'Brien, and so he seized Iroe. The Jap grasped the instructor in the same fashion, quick as lightning placed his right foot against O'Brien's stomach, jerked him toward him and suddenly sat down. O'Brien sailed over the Jap's heat and fell on his back several feet away. The Jap was standing over him before he could arise. "The man who is thrown in this way, said the instructor, "falls with his muscles rigid and looks for no further trouble. It's a fine way to end street row." "If a man comes at you with stiff left lead, what can you do?" asked one of the commissioners.

O'Brien rattled off something in Japanese, then rushed at Ince, hitting straight from the shoulder at his head. The Jap crossed his hands a few inches away from his face, and O'Brien's wrist landed in the vise so formed. Ince seized the wrist with his right hand, twisted it, and his right hand, twisted it and O'Brien fell on his knees, completely at the other's mercy. "There are many more ways of getting away from a punch like that," said O'Brien. "Here is one."

O'Brien, with his open right hand, struck up Inoe's arm at the elbow. In half a second O'Brien's left hand shot under the Jap's left arm and gripped the back of his neck. The Jap was perfectly helpless.

"With this grip, in this position, I could break his neck," said O'Brien.
The demonstration greatly interested the commissioners and police officials. O'Brien showed many new grips and holds, of which there are 200, but he said a thorough knowledge of ten or a dozen of them will protect any man. He said he could teach these holds to a squad of policemen in four days. From Boston O'Brien was to go to New York, where he will demonstrate juijutsu to the police commissioners. to the police commissioners.

Point d'esprit, on which are applie trailing sprays of lace, is to be one of the most popular materials for young girls' evening gowns during the winter. Squares of oriental cloth make stylish and inexpensive trimming for cloth gowns, if artistically used in combination with gold buttons, buckles or braid. The girl who never before wore silk

Women have suddenly developed a mania for fancy and beautiful hosiery, and the stocking counter of a good shop would make a rainbow feel faded Automobile coats for autumn wear are shown in cranberry red cloth, heavily strapped, severely plain and three-quarter length. The three-quarter length coats seem destined to take the place of the trailing coats of last season, so far as severe cloth coats are concerned. The craze for gold trimming is de veloping in a most effective way through combination with vy lace. Beleios of guipure, poin de venise, carrickross, etc., are applied upon gold tissue and finished with gold buttons or tassels. ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

Hog manure is hard to excel for the peach orchard.

The quince makes the best stock which to dwarf the pear. Poultry for the plum orchard and hogs for the apple orchard.

Clay soil or a preponderance of clay is considered best for the quince. An assortment of fruit grown proper ly is safer than making any one kind a specialty. The soil for fruit trees, as well as for farm crops, should be of good quality and well drained. A dwarf tree is one that is budded or grafted on a different kind of stock, having greater or less affinity, but not so congenial as its own.

One advantage with dwarf pears is that they usually come into bearing the second or third year after planting out and are especially adapted to limited grounds.

In selecting scions for grafting large fruit trees get them from bearing trees. Such scions will produce fruit quicker than those cut from young trees which have not borne fruit. Never allow the blighted leaves and branches to remain on the fruit trees. They should be cut out and burned as soon as discovered; otherwise the disease spreads from branch to branch

ANIMALS AS BESIEGERS.

Their Patience and Strategy Indies Power of Ratineluation-Peccary Is the Champion.

There are plenty of garrisons and sieges and reliefs in wild life, and some of them very pluckily sustained. Short rations, sorties and assaults tread on each other's tails, and the besiegers do not always get the best of it.

ne champion besieger is a wild called the peccary, which is about the most frightful beast alive and lives in he. s in the South American forests. You cannot discourage a peccary; you can only kill him. These beasts have a particular dislike to monkeys and frequently watch for an opportunity to cut one of from the main woods. Now and then the herd will manage to surprise a party of monkeys near an isolated tree or clump. They make the most of the chance.

The pigs rush forward, and the monkeys skim gayly up the trees out of harm's way. But as the clump is isolated from the forest there is no escape via the branches, and dare not come down and run for it. The peccaries surround and invest the tree clump, and there they will sit patiently for any length of time, while the monkeys chatter angrily aloft. If a monkey comes to the end of the rations within reach and becomes so desperate through hunger that he tries to run the gauntlet, he is torn to pieces by the tusks of the besiegers in a few seconds. The onthe prowling jaguars—a kind of leop-ard—in the neighborhood may get to know of the siege. If they do, they will come to the rescue, not for the monkeys' sake, but because they are fond of peccary. Then the belenguered garrison escapes while the re-lieving column is tackling the investing peccaries. Put these pigs are so fierce that even jaguars will not attack a really big herd of them.

The most formidable of besiegers the wild buffalos of Central These will imprison even America. a panther if they get him in the op-The panther generally makes for a high reck, but as the buffalos car browse on the grass around, they will hold out any length of time, while the panther starves. They form a big, irregular circle round the rock, the sentinels keeping an eve browse. Often a man gets treed in this way. His only chance, unless a party of horsemen relieve him, is to set the dry grass alight on the lee side of his rock. This will fire half the district if there is any wind, and it always scares the buffalos off.

It is on the sea bottom that some of the queerest sieges occur. If two or three lobsters or fighting crabs come upon any weak and soft water beast hiding in a hole, they frequent ly join forces and besiege him. the usual sufferer is a hermit crabthe small, soft bodied crab that lives in an old whelk shell, with his hard claws hanging out. The other crabs surround this belligerent and try to starve him into surrender. They sit down in a circle and wait, but often one of the bigger lobsters will try to crack the whelk shell with his claw. This seldom succeeds, for such shells wal's slowly, pulling the shell with him, but when he tries to do so the besiegers bustle him and grab at his protruding legs. He has to draw them in and remain still. Sometimes the siege is raised by the arrival of larger sea prowlers, who attack the investors, but more often, as the besiegers grow hungry and find the her-mit still holds out, they begin fighting among themselves, and the lesieged hermit escapes in the confus-Sometimes, however, the siege succeeds, but the hermit dies at his Field mice exist in colonies, burrowed an inch or two below the surface of the ground. If the marauding rats can a fairly lonely colony-one that is not connected with half a dozen others, that is—they mount guard over the outlets and try to starve the mice out. The besieged are no fighters and merely sit and cower, and though they sometimes make a sortic and get promptly eaten they more often frustrate the rats by dying underground,-London Answers.

Spry Old "Bobs." A characteristic anecdote of the Commander-in-Chief is at present co-ing the rounds of the camps in South Africa, says The Pall Mall Gazette. While Sir Redvers Buller was at Pre-toria he accompanied Lord Roberts one afternoon on a ride to the western part of the town, where a small teeplechase course had been arrang ed for a weekly paper chase. Lord Roberts turning to General Buller, Roberts turning to General Buller, said: "Come, Buller, let us take the jumps!" "Too old for that sir!" replied Sir Redvers. Whereupon the Commander-in-Chief cancered forward and took all the jumps. Lord Roberts is 68 and Sir Redvers 61.

The Origin of Greenhous William Watson of Kew says the first greenhouse erected in England was in the Apothecaries' gar-den at Chelsea in 1684. It merely had glass sides and was heated by a kind of oven. In 1717 a glass roof-ed house was built by the Duke of Rutland at Belvoir castle for foreign grapes, heated by furnaces placed un-der the floor of the house was first used in 1788, and hot water soon afterward was applied to a small house in the Jardin des Plantes at Paris. —Mechan's Monthly.

General Fitzhugh Lee is a prominent and patriotic figure in Lincoln J. Carter's stirring and really beautiful play, "Re-member the Maine." Captain Sigsbee is another of the characters—also Admiral Dewey—these characters are not merely thrown in to attract, but in this magnificent production by Mr. Carter—act and speak just as they did during the real struggle. They are the sensible—coherent result of necessity in making a play of merit and not of the cheap trashy sort.

This week's offerings at the local theatre will without doubt be accorded very large andiences, as they are not only along en-tirely different lines, but are both exception-ally good of their kind. Lincoln J. Carter is acknowledged to be the greatest producer of startling stage effects in the United States and he claims that "Remember the Maine" is the greatest "thriller" he has ever put out. For those who want high-class melodrama nothing better can be had then the

The production of Hoyt's famous comedy, "A Brass Monkey," is vouched for by the manager of the Grand and promises to be the comedy treat of the season. It has been playing only the high-priced houses in the larger cities of the eastern states and Mr Cairns was only able to secure one of the four dates they are playing in Canada by offering special inducements to the pro-prietors. The company is high-classed in every particular, and the production will be one of the very best that patrons of the Grand will be offered this season. "Rember the Maine" is a stirring play of modern times. The idea of writing a play was suggested by Mr. Carter immediately after the Maine was destroyed—and in consequence the result is a dramatized diary of actual events—with of course play-makers license in small detail allowed. Mr. Carter spent some hundreds of dollars gaining facts for this play. "Remember the Maine" comes to the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 9th and 10th, fair

"A Brass Monkey," at the Baker theatre last night. The—well, the piece, is unlike anything that has been seen here for a long time. Mr. Hoyt always said, when he wrote the play, that he was not strenuous on the play and he would be satisfied if the andience was entertained, and there is wrote the play, that he was not strenuous on the play and he would be satisfied if the andience was entertained, and there is no question about his wish being gratified here. Constant, streams of laughter was evoked by the comicalities of William Keller Mack as Jonathan Mud, victim of superstition, and his daughter, Baggage a good but meddlesome child. The presence of Mack's name on the list of players is elosquent testimony to the funmaking possibilities. Their singing of, "The Dresden China Girl," in the first act made a good impression. Mazie Trumball, as Baggage, introduced some singing, musical and dancing specialties that thoroughly earned the applause they received. Madeline Lowrie, Margarat Burnham and Estelia Weaver as the three sisters, Faith, Hope and Charity, shared the honors of the production with their singing of the "Geisha of Tokio" in the second act. A main feature of the musical interpolations is the singing of the "Holy City and the Road to Mandalay" in the second act by Miss Taylor, the possessor of a rich soprano voice. Thomas J. Dempsey and Charles J. Morgan as Dodge and Dolittle Work, respectively, helped the fun along by their cleverness. The piece is interspersed with any number of up-to-date specialties, and in fact everything to make one laugh. It is a whirlwind of fun.

BITS OF FUN.

"No, he hasn't proposed yet," sighed Genevieve. We suggested that the fellow doubtless knew when he was well off. "No, I suspect the trouble is he doesn't know when I'm well off the way papa is plunging in pork," said the beautiful girl, with a sad smile. Ah, love was indeed a great mystery. -Detroit Journal.

"We're just getting our new company in shape," said the business man. "Do you happen to know of any one who is a particularly good book-keeper?" "Yes, I do. There's Jimson," promptly replied the bibliophile; "I loaned him a book early in the spring and he seems to think he's to have and hold it to the end of time." -Philadelphia Press.

one,"-Puck. This talk about the father who punishes his wayward boy with a trunk strap is all nonsense. Everybody who ever started to go away on a vacation knows that the trunk strap is always lost,-Somerville Journal.

"This boy of mine," said the disressed parent, "has always been backward in his lessons. He doesn't seem to be smart enough." "You leave him with me," said the old-fashioned pedagogue, significantly; "I'll make him smart."-Philadelphia Record.

"What is coeducation, my son?" "It is a foolish system of education, father, whereby the male students are perpetually condemned to see themselves crowded for first honors by an inferfor sex."-Cleveland Plain Dealer.
