AN ALL NIGHT BATTLE

Side of Port Arthur.

Steessel Believed to Shanikwan, Aug. 18.—The Japanese began a night attack on Monday afdark from the east and west of Port Arthur. From their position north of the fortress they set fire to thousands of feet of lumber which had been carried down from Wolf's Hill, and the favoring wind sent mountains of rolling smone southward against the trenches and the inner forts of the fortress. Under cover of this Lieut-Gen. Nogt's army brought up howitzers to the slopes of the Etze Hills, digging trenches and otherwise making that important tableland tenable.

On the east side there was a tremendous all-night battle, no details of which can be obtained, but it is probable that the Japanese advanced from Peteous Mountain, which it is now known they captured on Saturday after having been repulsed on Thursday and Friday with great loss on both sides. Yesterday moraing there was a violent storm of rain, but in the westerly headlands the which can be obtained, but it is Japanese siege guns, numbering more than forty, were in action. Compan-ies of infantry could be seen winding up the Yahuchin road to take the place of those killed or wounded in the assault that must have taken place at dawn.

An Incessant Fire.

From the sea directly southwest of White Wolf Mountain three of the largest Japanese cruisers were delivering an incessant high amgle fire against forts Nos. 4 and 5 of the inner line. The land assault seen from Liaotung Gulf probably was on these forts, the capture of which would force Gen. Stoessel to retire to the east end of the fortress. More to the east end of the lotters and than 700 Japanese wounded were carried down to Louise Bay on Tuesday night and yesterday merning.

The lugger Shanshan, in here from Pidgeon Bay for lumber, says that on Sunday all the eastern approaches had been captured by the Japanese after sixty hours of fighting. On the west they had been repulsed twice at the range of hills south of Table Mountain, but were again attempting to take them.

It is believed that Gen. Stoessel has lost 60 per cent. of his force in killed and wounded. The Japanese on Sunday gave safe escort to more than 100 men and women who are now in Dalny.

AN ULTIMATUM TO CHINA.

London, Aug. 18.—The Associated Fress learned yesterday afternoon that Japan has made a demand of China, practically in the nature of an ukimatum, that she immediately enforce her neutrality in reference to the protected cruiser Askold and the the protected cruiser Askold and the torpedo boat destroyer Grozovol, now at Shanghai. Japan pointed out the the time limit, 24 hours, permitted by international law had expired, and that Japan therefore was at liberty to take such action as may seem to her expedient.

At the Japanese Legation here it was expressly stated that the Tokio Government had no intention of remaining quiescent if Russia attempts to compel China to give asylum to lier men-of-war and authorize repairs at her ports, which would enable them to resume belligerent operations.

After Askeld and Grosovel.

After Askeld and Gresovel.

Should China fail to comply immediately with Japan's demand the division of Japanese warships now in the vicinity of Shanghai will, the Legation declares, be instructed to enter the port and capture the Askeld and Grozovoi, as was done in the case of the Ryeshitelni. Japan has made no secret of her intentiom, but has not consulted the powers, believing that the matter is one which concerns herself alone. Japan is prepared, the Legation further asserts, pared, the Legation further asserts, to recognize Chinese neutrality only so long as it is respected by Russia. With regard to the Ryeshitelni, Japan, it is asserted, is determined not to comply with the Chinese de-mand, submitted in compliance with

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Russia has agreed to the disarmament of the Russian cruiser Askold, now at Shanghai.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Information received in St. Petersburg foreshadows that Japan will decline to restore the Ryeshitelni, or make any reparation, and that on the contrary she will contend that Russia in sendshe will contend that Russia is sending the destroyer to Che Foo on an important military mission herself became responsible for the violation of Chinese neutrality, which Japan at the opening of the war promised to respect to the extent which Russia did.

Will She Apologize

Nevertheless it is understood that Great Britain as the ally of Japan has advised her to apologize. It is believed that Japan realizes that this course will please the western powers, but that she will not follow it because it would mean a loss of it because it would mean a loss of prestige in China, where concession has always been translated to mean weakness.

Mr. Brown visited the Eau as a result of information supplied to him concerning the alleged indiscriminate sale and disposition of intoxicating liquors at the popular summer resort on band concert nights. Rumor has it—whether true or not it has seen at the station this morning just has it-whether true or not it has been impossible to ascertain as tongues are apparently sealed-that the minister experienced a somewhat strenuous time on Tuesday night. The story goes that the preacher faced them and gave them an earnest and forcible talking to, after which, as there were still signs of unrest, he removed from his pockets a Bible and a revolver, and told them he was now unarmed, that he did not want to fight but that no man could afford to show himself a coward in the cause of right, and if the purpose of the men was to or the purpose or the men was to punish him he was prepared to give them opportunity, one by one, to administer the chastisement. "I am talking as a man to men,"he is reported to have said, "and, while I am engaged with one, I shall trust to the honor of the others to see I am not interfered with. The history of Rev. Mr. Brown's visit to the Eau, as told on the bar, is decidedly dramatic and interesting. It appears that the first steps were occasioned by the complaints of some It appears that the first steps were occasioned by the complaints of some Blenheim ladies, who had suffered anmoyance from the carryings-on of several youths said to be semi-intoxicated one band concert night. Some investigation of the alleged nuisance was made by Alfred Youngs, a Blenheim councillor, on the band night following, but he was informed that no liquor was sold at the Eau and whatever had been embibed had been bought at and brought down from Chatham surreptitiously on the

Half an hour's investigation satisfied him that intoxicants were being drunk, but he was unable to locate where it was being dispensed.

Finally Mr. Brown threw off his disguise and walked into the pavillion, displayed his constable's badge and authority and asked to investigate the premises. This was declined and he was assured that nothing of an illegal nature was being done or liquor sold, but to satisfy himself and complete his duty in the matter the pastor-constable secured a search warrant and returned yesterday when a careful inspection was instituted, but nothing was found to in any way incriminate the pavillion or its lessee.

THE ELECTIONS.

Down in Quebec the indications strongly point to a general elec-Liberal newspapers have instituted a vigorous campaign on behalf of the people of Quebec to support French-Canadian Premier for the last time. This they declare will be Premier of their own race for many years to come. The situation is thus described by the Toronto World:

"That the Ottawa Government has decided to appeal to the people the coming Tall is as certain as the fact of night following day, all statements coming from men held to be in the confidence of ministers being merely to hoodwink the Opposition.

"In Montreal ministerial circles, signs are multiplying hourly which can leave no doubt of the fact that the ministry aims at a surprise and a snap verdict from the electorate. All the surrounding counties are swarming with Liberal election workers, although divisions in the party in several of the city constituencies have prevented as much work being done in the Government interest as in many of the rural sections of the province; yet in spite of this trouble the work is going quietly on. The French pres is also being looked after, in a manner that leaves no possible doubt as to the intention of the powers that be at Ottawa."

A POPULAR LEADER.

The "growing time" has had its in fluence upon the popularity of Mr. Borden, the leader of His Majesty's Opposition in the House of Commons. Session by session, since Mr. Borden consented to take upon himself the burden of leadership, his acts and words have added to his popularity and fame, until, from a comparative ly unknown man of a retiring disposition, Mr. Borden has become first favorite-a leader of whom his followers are justly proud: a leader who has the confidence of the entire solid Liberal Conservative party of Canada: a leader whose acts command the admiration of the public at large, and whose words inspire his people with the fuil expectation of victory in the coming contest.

Mr. Borden owes nothing to his nationality or creed. He was not accident of birth, he chanced to be of those who put nationality above all else. He is simply an ordinary Canadian of British parentage. But he has all the qualities which go to make up a successful leader. He is an able speaker; a grand debater; a fair-minded, honest man, who is not carried away by inordinate ambition, nor careless of the rights and comforts of others And, moreover, he has the knack of making friends and keeping them. It is not to be wondered at, then, that when he arrived in Halifax yesterday he was given an ovation such as the old town had never previously given to a Canadian politician. Mr. Borden is a prime favorite, and he has well earned his great and growing popularity .-- Hamilton Spec-

CHRISTIAN AND HEATHEN.

It is necessary, we suppose, to re cognize Russia as a Christan nation and Japan as a heathen nation. But unfortunately the records of the two powers since the war began are such as to discredit Christinaity and to exalt heathenism. It is the Japan ese who have practiced the virtues which we are accustomed to regard as peculiarly Christian; it is the Rus sians who have been guilty of the practices and shortcomings which we are accustomed to classify as "heathenish" and "barbarous."

Cases of cruel mutilation of wound ed Japanese have been brought home to the Russian soldiers. Quite re cently one influential Moscow journ al demanded that the war be made a war of extermination and that no quarter be given to the enemy. On the other hand, the testimony of all correspondents is that Russian pri oners are treated by the Japs with remarkable courtesy and generosity and that wounded prisoners have a careful and kindly treatment in the Japanese hospitals as the wounder Jap soldiers receive.

A marked difference in the spirit of the two national governments is shown in the matter of information about prisoners. The Japanese government sends to St. Petersburg, through the French minister at Tokio, regular reports about the Russian prisoners; all names are given, and accounts of the progress being made by the wounded. This information is furnished for the sake of the relatives of prisoners. Naturally the Japanese government desires similar information about Japanese prisoners, for their men also have relatives who are anxious for inform ation concerning them. But no such information can be obtained. Japanese interests at St. Petersburg are looked after by the United States ambassador, Mr. McCormick. He has made repeated requests for the namtion this fall. The French-Canadian es of the men captured and wounded in attempts to seal Port Arthur early in the war; but his efforts Laurier. Appeals are being made to have been unavailing. A semi-official despatch from Washington says "Mr. McCormick as well as the state department, can do nothing as long Laurier's final term and with his as the Russian government is indifpassing will pass all chance of a ferent to its obligations and violates the regulations to which it pledged itself when The Hague tribunal was organized."

It could be wished that Christian Russia were as worthy the respect of Christendom as is pagan Japan

Fire Under Water.

Fire under water may be produced by placing some small pieces of phosphorus in a conical shaped tumble and then covering them with the crys tals of chlorate of potash. Next fill the glass with water and then add a few drops of sulphuric acid, the acid to be applied directly to the phosphorus and potash crystals by means of a long tube. If the experiment is properly carried out tongues of bright red flame can be seen flashing up through the water, the intense chemical heat produced by the action of the sulphuric acid on the potash and phosphorus be ing sufficient to inflame the latter, al though entirely covered with water.

SEA BATHING.

Hints For Securing the Most Beneat From a Seashore Sojourn. The sojourn at the sea, sea bathing and the fresh salt air play an impor tant part, from a hygienic point of view, for they are exceedingly effica-clous for certain ailments, and the season is not merely a time for distraction and amusement. Of course the salt air does not suit every one, and it is well to be cautious in the selection of a summer locality.

Medical opinion will quickly settle the point. It is wise to choose a maritime climate with a higher temperature than that of the place one ives in. Another rule is to wait a fev

The most favorable hours for the bath are between 10 and 11 in the morning or 5 o'clock in the evening, according to the tide or the particular ocality. Only in rare cases should very small children be bathed in the

It is well to go into the water directly you have donned your bathing suit, wetting the head and feet thoroughly. Those who swim quickly get warm; the others must jump about. It is better to bathe in water just slightly agitated than to dive into whitecaps. In some places from five to ten minutes

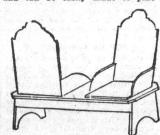

Dress as quickly as possible, wiping the skin dry with a towel without rubbing, so as to leave the beneficial inredients of the sea water on the skin. If one does not get warm quickly it is wise to drink something hot. Children especially should have a small cup of broth or hot milk to restore circulation. In the south two baths a day are not injurious. In a colder, more bracing climate one is sufficient.

Milk, being a food, should not be given as a thirst quencher to children. Water is better, and in great thirst tepid water is preferable to cold. En courage sipping; the habit is easily formed. Thin barley water flavored with lemon or orange juice is an excellent drink for children. It is nutritious and cooling and should contain as little sugar as possible. Boiling water poured over fresh fruit, such as cur-rants, raspberries and the like, and strained off when cold is a simple drink. Just enough fruit to flavor and color the water suffices. Pure lemon juice, say a teaspoonful to half a glass of water, is useful occasionally. Too

Frenchwomen stow these delicate articles in what is called a lingerie basket, covered with cretonne and trimmed with ruchings and lace, and the cover is generally wadded, a large flat bow on the top. In these baskets these dainty garments are not in any way crushed. Sometimes the baskets are divided in four and have a series of trays for each kind of lin-

"I hope it was," he said, beaming with one eye and wiping the other. "Wouldn't it be sweet, dear?"

'Wouldn't it, love?" And the wind howled round the corner as though it was in pain, and from the house three doors below a dentist's sign fell off into the street.

The Origin of the Umbrella, Our name for the umbrella, being obviously taken from the Italian ombrello, naturally refers us to Italy as the source from which we have derived that useful article. If we had obtained it intermediately from France we would doubtless have taken with it the name of parapluie, which in the present use of the implement is a more expressive and proper name than that of ombrello, which signifies a "little shade" and refers to the original use than to its present use as a shelter There seems to be no doubt that the ambrella was first introduced into Italy from the east and from thence found its way into Europe. It seems also that the applicability of the instrument as a defense from rain was quite an afterthought and that it was originally, as in the east, only used to protect the person from the rays of the Prorson's Weekly as a defense against the sun rather

I found the old man in his favorite place, a grassy nook on the mountain side, gazing across the lake to where the opposite mountains rose from the water's edge.

Darrel had a great store of wisdomnot the wisdom of the towns, but the not the wisdom of the towns, but the lore of the woods, of the snow born streams and the mountains. His voice was as soothing as the wind through great pines or the rush of the river through its gorges.

Darrel had lived among these mountains for thirty years, and, please God, he would die her to safe the safe and the safe that the safe he would die here, he said. He would listen interestedly to what I told him of life in the great cities, but at the end his eyes always turned with sat-isfied affection to the ranges that shut him in.

"It's mighty n'ce, I reckon," he would say, "but I couldn't get along without the sound of the river in my ears or the smell of pine and cedar. Once I thought"-What it was he had once planned I never knew until this night.

partner. We was pardners from the first, though he was younger than me. Thar warn't never a better man than Jim. White as you make 'em, straight as one of these here pine saplin's, sory as a deer. We prospected it together, an' we timbered it, an' we ranched it share an' share alike, come good times or bad, until"-

The old man paused a moment. One pinnacle of snow was like a flame of fire, and far down below the darkling lake reflected the flame.

"It was twenty years ago that Mary came here with her father, old man Drury. He took up a claim down to the end of the lake. Mary was just a little gal then, that I could take on my knees an' play with an' teach to fish an' paddle a canoe. An' year by year she growed and growed, pretty as some flower put down here in a crevice of the rocks. An' then one day-I mind it well-I seed she was a woman an' that I loved her. Thar wasn't never no spring like that spring, nor no day like that day.

"I didn't tell her so-I was feared a'most to touch her. I was so rough an' rude an' she so like a flower, but I thought on her a heap. It didn't make no difference whar I was, layin' out on the mountain side with only the stars for a roof, workin' in the shaft or settin' in my shack listenin' to the wind howlin' through the timber an' the cracklin' of the fire, Mary was every-whar. She was in the first star that came shinin' out at night, in the first flowers that sprung up in the bottom lands. The voice of the river in the shallow places was like her laughter.' The old man pointed a sinewy finger down toward a clump of trees below

"It was thar on that point, with the river on one side an' the lake on the other, that I built my house, settin' up here of an evenin'. It was to be a real house—not a log shack—an' vines all over it an' a garden. Many a night I've built that house an' lived in it an' watched Mary rockin' the cradle. I used to travel, too, them nights, me an' Mary, to the east an' faroff kentries

"Jim used to wonder why I left him an' come out here by myself, but it was because I wanted to be alone an' think about it all. I never told him nothin' of how I felt.

"An' then one evenin' I went down to Mary's house for to tell her. It were gettin' dark, as it might be this very evenin'. I landed quiet an' came up the path, an' then I knowed what I might have knowed all along, for Jim an' Mary were settin' lookin' at the sunset—an' each other—an' I knowed they leved each other, an' that was nigh ten years ago.

"I had forgot that I was old an' rough, an' she was young, an' that it was as natural for her to love Jim as flowers to love the sun, but I didn't think of that then. I was wildlike as I paddled away up the lake an' climbed the trail to the shack an' sat thar in the dark cursin' him. God forgive me.

"He come home by an' by, did Jim. I could hear him whistlin' way down the mountain side as if he was happy.

the stars an' talkin' about the claim we had an' if the mine panned out an' of the money we'd get for our red cedar logs. An' then he said, shylike, as if 'twas something wonderful: 'What do you think, Jack,' says he I'm goin' to be married soon—to—to Mary,' he says. Mary, he says.

"It was well he couldn't see my face then in the dark, for something got holt of my heart when I heerd him say it in so many words. I said something, I dunno what, but he was too happy to notice, or maybe he thought I was hurt at his breakin' our pard-nership. Anyway he went on talkin' of his plans for makin' money, of buildin' a home, of, how he loved Mary an' she him. I hardly heerd him. though the words come back to me later. I was kind of dazed like. I saw a man onct whose foot was crushed by a fall of rock in a minit. He didn't seem to feel no pain right at first, an maybe 'twas the same with me

"It was after Jim had quit to bed an' I roamin' abroad the dark that I felt it. All night I tramped through the timber, thinkin' an' fightin' with the wild beast in me. I had loved her first. Thar was plenty other women for him to be happy with What right had he with his good looks an' youth to come between us-he, my pardner, to steal the flower I had watched an' tended?

"I was crazy that night-plumb crazy. Along toward day I come down the mountain straight as a stream for the cabin an' with my mind made up. I would kill him whar he was. He should never have Mary. As for me, I warn't thinkin' about myself. I went into the shack an' found my huntin' knife. Jim was lyin' in his bunk, the faint light from the window on his face, an' he was smilin'. Once I tried to send the knife down an' failed an' twice I tried, but again the strength in my arm seemed to give out. I stood thar lookin' down at him, an' then I flung the knife away an' came out here an' watched the dawn come up over the mountains an' the mist roll offer the lake an' thought of all that Jim had been to me-an' of Mary. It was natural she should love him an' not me. Me! I was right old enough to be her father, let alone bein' rough an' ill favored. As for Jim, how was he to know that I cared, or if he did know he couldn't help lovin' whar nature told him to. Like to like. Youth to youth, who could help lovin' Jim--or

"I wrastled it out here, with the sun comin' up a glory over the mountains, an' at the last I seen how foolish I had been an' knowed it was Mary's happi-ness I wanted—an' Jim's.

"They was married an' lived here for awhile until Mary's little gal died, an' then she couldn't seem to bear the place, an' Jim took her east-him an' me, for what I had was his'n. I get a letter onct in awhile. They're happy an' doin' well." Darrel pointed to a vine covered bowlder near by on which there was eut a rude cross.

"After little Mary died-so pretty, so tiny-I brung her here in my arms an' laid her thar-Mary cryin' beside mean' now I love to come here an' set after the day's work is done. No; I couldn't go east. I couldn't leave her."

he said simply.

A Child's Order. The little girl had been in the habit f going to the kitchen with her mother when the orders were given to the market man who came around every morning. Sometimes she has been ever allowed to give the orders herself after her mother has made out the list. Her mother rather encouraged the child in taking an interest in the marketing. It ed to indicate that some day might become a notable housewife.

One afternoon the little girl's moth er happened to be in the kitchen when the market man delivered the goods ordered that morning. He brought in two large baskets, and she was a bit surprised at the size and number of the

"But I didn't order all that stuff."

Time For Mourning. A lady in London was asked for aid by a poor woman whom she had be-friended. "My husband is dead and haven't a stitch of mourning," said the woman. "Please do help me."
"But," replied the lady, "why go into mourning? You do not really mourn the less of that man. He used to beat you end the children. He stole their clothes and yours to buy drink. He tried to murder you. He had been ab-sent from home for months. Now that he has turned up again and died, you want to buy black with money which should go to feed your children." The woman admitted the truth of it all. "God was good to take him," she said "God was good to take him," she said unaffectedly, "but what will the neighbors say if I don't put on black?" "Well, supposing I do manage to help you, for what day do you want the clothes? When is the funeral?" the lady asked. "Oh, there ain't no funeral, mum," the suppliant answered. "My unsband died nine months ago in the prison 'orspital, but it's only this mornprison 'orspital, but it's only this morn-in' as I've 'eard about it."

The Trying Time

In a young girl's life is reached when Nature leads her uncertain steps across the line which divides girlhood from womanhood. Ignorance and neglect at this critical period are largely responsible for much of the after misery of womanhood. Not only does Nature often need help in the regular establishment of the womanly function, but there is almost always need of some safe, strengthening tonic, to overcome the languor, nervousness and weakness, commonly experienced at this time.

If there is an inness, commonly experienced at this time.

If there is an invalid woman, suffering from female weakness, prolapsus, or falling of womb, or from lencorrhea who has hased Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription without complete success, Dr. Pierce would like to hear from such person—and it will be to her advantage to write as he offers in perfect good faith, a reward of $500 for any case of the above maladies which he cannot cure.

"I wish to tell you the benefit we have seceived from using your remedies," writes Mrs. Dan Hail, of Brodhead, Green Co. Wis. "Two years ago my daughter's health began to fail. Bereything that could be thought of was done be any her but it was of no use. When she be any her but it was of no use. When she be also her with the second of the country with the second of the

The Chortest Twilight

The period of twilight shortens toward the equator and lengthens toward the poles. In other words, the less the thickness of the air through which the rays of the setting sun have to pass the sooner darkness comes From this it naturally follows that the region of the shortest twilight is the one which is situated nearest to the equator and at the greatest elevation,

These two conditions are combined in the region in which stands Quito, the capital of Ecuador. The plateau is 9,442 feet above the level of the sea. It is also surrounded by mountains, twen ty peaks, eleven of which rise beyond the snow line, being visible from the streets of the city. Added to this, it is only fifteen miles south of the equator; hence it has a shorter twilight than any other spot on the equator partly because of the elevation and partly because the western mountains intercept the rays of the setting sun and so cause darkness to follow daylight with greater rapidity than at any other spot

The Garden of Eden.

According to the best authorities, it was in Armenia that the "garden of Eden" spoken of in the book of Genesis was planted. Most of the evidence in support of this theory is topographical. The Bible says that the garden was watered by a river running through it which afterward divided into four heads. The names of these are given as Pison, Gibon, Hiddekel and Euphrates. There is little difficulty about the latter, and Hiddekel is commonly identified with the Tigris, both of which rivers rise in the mountains of Armenia. The others are located by assuming them to be Aras and the Kur, streams which also rise in the Armenian hills. In old docu-ments Armenia is often referred to as the "land of the four rivers" or "the cradle of the human race." Though Armenia does not go quite back to the time of Adam, the country's history is traced to its first ruler, Haig, the great

Some Queer Definitions In the Balley dictionary of 1674 the word "colibus" is defined as follows: "Colibus—a humming bird, which makes a noise like a whirlwind, though it is no bigger than a fly. It feeds on dew, has an admirable beauty of feathers and a scent as sweet as that of musk or ambergris."

The same authority thus describes the loriot, or oriole: "Loriot—a bird that, being looked upon by one that has yellow jaundice, cares the person and dies itself."

Delpino's dictionary (1703) says of the leopard: "Lleupard, or leopard-a yellow beast, exceedingly swift, subtle and fierce and of such a sweet savor that it allures other beasts to it, by which means they are caught and devoured."

From remote times the natives of make offerings to the souls of the departed, particularly a certain pie that they call "food of the soul." The crust must be of yellow corn, the interior tender chicken and small pieces of pork. These pies are wrapped in leaves of the banana tree and baked underground between hot stones. When done, they are placed on the graves or hung from trees close by. Some-times, after leaving them there for an hour or two, the living take home the ples and enjoy them, saying that the souls have already drawn from them all the ethereal part of the substance.

COUNTERED ON PARKER.

Democratic Presidential candidate Democratic Presidential candidate Alton B. Parker, as Judge of the Court of Appeals in 1902, cast the deciding vote and delivered the prevailing opinion in a case brought by a young woman for the unauthorized use of her picture as an advertisement. Reversing both the Special and Appellate terms of the Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals held that the so-called right of privacy was not a legal right. In his opinion Judge Parker reviewed at length the law governing the case, and showed that the Legislature must be looked to for relief.

that the Legislature must be looked to for relief.

A lithographing concern in Rochester was the defendant. The plaintiff, Miss Abigail Roberson, a minor, sued by a guardian ad litem. The lithographing concern had printed twenty-five thousand copies of a poster in colors advertising a brand of flour. The poster contained large picture of a woman with a legend, "The flour of the family." This picture, Miss Roberson asserted, was copied from a photograph of her pureof the family." This picture, Miss Roberson asserted, was copied from a photograph of her purchased from the photographer. The lithographing company pleaded ignorance of any misuse of the young woman's picture, and stated that they purchased the design from an artist, who made it to sell in the ordinary course of business.

The case went upon demurrer, however, so all the allegations of plaintiff's complaint were for the purposes of the suit admitted. The lithographon the suit admitted. The lithographing concern privately declared that they had a perfect defence on the facts if beaten on the demurrer.

Made by Thunderbolts.

In the museums of nearly all the large colleges you will see what appear to be sandy petrifactions much resembling branches of trees. You may conclude that these are the remains of forest monsters that grew in a far-away geological age, but if you will take the trouble to ask your guide or better still one of your guide, or, better still, one of the professors, who are always handy, he will tell you a queer story —one, in fact, that "smacks of the —one, in fact, that "smacks of the marvelous." These tame looking, supposed to be sandy petrifactions are, in fact, real "thunderbolts." Scientifically speaking they are "fulgurites." They are composed of a poor quality of glass, and are made by the lightning striking sandy deserts and plunging downward and latterly vitrifying all the sand with which it comes in direct contact. On the Sahara fulgurites are found in every conceivable shape and size, some thirty or more feet in length and four inches in diameter, others not larger than a lead pencil and still others not larger than a knitting needle. Scientists usually consider fulgurites as being a good index er fulgurites as being a good index to the size and force of discharge of the lightning stroke which formed them.

How the Mails Are Robbed. There is a vast number of employees in the postoffice department, yet only about 400 cases of rifling the mails are discovered in the course of a year. It is so easy to open and reseal letters that it is a wonder there are not thousands of cases. Their fewness speaks volumes for the honesty of the in the service. Here is the method of the expert in opening letters: Place the envelope, address down, upon a piece of dry blotting paper. Then lay a piece of wet blotting paper upon the sealed flap and allow it to remain there under pressure of a book or something for a few minutes. This moistens the mucilage, and the flap may be lifted without injury by rolling a cedar pencil beneath it. The contents being extracted, press the flap back with the dry blotting paper, and nobody can possibly detect the robbery. The only safeguard is sealing wax.

Why Birds Are Easily Poisoned. Birds seem to have no discrimination whatever in regard to poisons, probably because they have no sense and swallow their food without masticating it. They are terrified to paralysis by the appearance of a poisonous snake, unless the terror be due to dread of the appearance of the serpent rather than to an inherited knowledge of its ven as rooks will pick up and eat poisoned grain, and crows and ravens readily eat poisoned eggs or meat. Chickens will eat the poisonous seeds of labur-num and die from its effects. Whether birds such as tits and greenfinches ever do so does not seem to be known. But wild hirds are frequently found dying in gardens, though apparently they have been in good health a few hours before, and their death may be due to the consumption of poisonous eeds:-London Spectator A Short and Caustic Review. In "The Life of Dean Farrar" his son, Reginald Farrar, has included many extracts from "Men I Have Known"—for example, the following story of Browning, which is worth recalling: John Stuart Mill, happening upon a copy of "Bells and Pomegran sent a request to Tait's Magazine for permission to review it. The editor answered that "unfortunately he could not insert a review of 'Bells and Pomegranates,' as it had been reviewed in the last number." Mr. Browning had the curiosity to see this "review", and found the following: "'Bells and Pomegranates,' by Robert Browning: Balderdash."

The Origin of "Tip." It has often been stated that the ori-gin of the word "tip" was from the initials of the words "to insure promptness." I think this is an error. In 1834 to fee a waiter was regarded in New. York city as a bribe—that is, an attempt York city as a bribe—that is, an attempt of one guest to secure attention at the expense of other guests. This is on the authority of Phil Hone, then New York's mayor. "Tip" means "an accidental spilling." A guest who tipped was ashamed of it. So he "accidentally" dropped a coin where and when only the waiter could see it so as to prevent the expensure of a mean trick." prevent the exposure of a mean trick.

DEATH'S CALL

Popular and Esteemed Maple City Young Lady Called to the Great Beyond.

One of the saddest deaths that have occurred in Chatham for some time took place last evening when Miss Ruby Josephine, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Tillson, corner of Prince and Murray streets, passed away at the carly age of 18 years.

Miss Tillson was one of the Maple City's brightest young ladies and her death, which has come quite suddenly and unexpectedly, is mourned not only by the family alone, but also by a large circle of friends. Deceased had been ill but ten days with peritonitis, and although her condition was considered serious it was not thought dangerous. She was a mem-ber of the Park street Methodist church and an earnest worker in the church and an earnest worker in the Young People's Society She was a particularly bright student at school and was very popular among her class mates. She will be greatly missed by her many young friends. Besides a sorrowing father and mother, she is survived by three sisters and three brothers. Mr. Tillson is the local agent for the Pere Marquette and a very popular and exquette and a very popular and quette and a very popular and es-teemed Chathamite. He has many friends who sympathize with him in his sad affliction.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at ten o'clock to the Pere Marquette depot. The re-mains will be taken to Tillsonburg for interment. Rev. Mr. Cobbledick will conduct the obsequies.

THE RUBBA MUMMA. One of the Queer Superstitions of the West Indies.

One of the queerest of the many queer superstitions in the West Indies is that of the "Rubba Mumma," or river mother, of Jamaica. While the colored people laugh to scorn the idea of ocean mermaids, many of them firmly believe that water nymphs inhabit every fountain head of the mountain streams, which are so numerous in their island.

In the old slavery days the sources of such streams were worshiped and sacrifices offered to the "Rubba Mumma." The slaves on the plantations used to persuade their overseers or masters to sacrifice an ox at the foun he wheel of the sugar mill, so that irought might be averted. Unless the 'Rubba Mumma" was propitiated, the claves contended, she would not send lown enough water to turn the mill. In most of the sugar estates a bul-lock was annually killed for this pur-

Icon Subjects. Icons may represent anything from the figure of a saint to a historical scene, such as a martyrdom. Often they take the form of a diptych or triptych or a polyptych crowded with angular or diminutive figures of saints or miniature scenes from the life of the Virgin or some other Biblical person-inge. From the number of scenes con-tained in these objects the peasants came to call them "churches," for there were not more pictorial representations within the church itself. As Usual the Aldermen Cannot be Behind in Fish Yarns-Rival to Messrs McKay and Rutley

"That fish story A. C. McKay as sted by T. J. Rutley, told to the City Engineer, reminds me of a favorite story, which Will Nichols tells," remarked Ald. A. E. Mounteen on the Eau train last night.

"About 25 years ago we had a par-icularly long cold winter and Lake St. Clair and the river were frozen over so long that the fish ate up all the food in sight and were really starving. It was about this time that Frank Judson and Will Nichol decided to go fishing through the ice, at the Lighthouse, When they reached the Lighthouse Frank Jud reached the Lighthouse Frank Jud-sou began to cut a hole in the ice, He and Bill took turns the new was so thick. Well, Will Nichol got hun-gry and began to eat while Frank chupped. Some of the crumbs fell around the hole and as soon as the ice was punctured the fish began to jurne out to get at those arounds. loe was puncture a the fish began to jump out to get at those crumbs, they were so hungry. This gave Bill an idea and he scattered the bait all around the edge of the hele. The fish began to come up so rapidly that Frank and Bill just held a bag at the hole and filled them one at a time, the fish jumping right into the bags. They got 10 bags altogether. bags. They got 10 bags altogether, Will took the fish home and didn't know what to do with them. That year shingles -were scarce. Now these fish were from 3 to 6 pound black bass and they were so thin that they could have been used for a paper knife so Will sold the catch to a man who wanted to shingle his house. Say that house was the sight of the whole town. The scaly fish made excellent shingles and the scales would sparkle in the sunlight with dazzling brilliance. You could scarcely walk along the street on a scarcely walk along the street on a summer's day. That is why the house hasn't its root of fish scales to-day. The neighbors got out an injunction. They said that the reflection of the sun's rays was 'causing them to go blind and they began to sue for damages. The owner got scared of his roof and as shingles got cheaper, he pulled off the fish hides and out on oak."

T. A. Smith Gives an Interesting Account of his Visit to Montreal -Supreme Order S. O. E. Will Meet in Chat-

"So the Supreme Lodge Sons of England hold their next session in Chatham. What induced them to come here?" asked The Planet of Ex-Mayor T. A. Smith, who has just re-turned from the Supreme Lodge-meeting in Montreal as a delegate from the local order.

"Well," repired that gentleman, "I suppose they want to feast their eyes on the handsomest women in the Dominion and they will get a feast fit for the great or the

"Yes, the best in the history of the Order. The Order is growing. The last year was a surprise and every member was delighted with the growth of the Order."

"Did you have a good time in Montreal?"

"Good time, did you say; well, that word 'good' is not one quarter strong enough. We had the greatest time on record, and such a time was hard to beat, in fact no city on the continent could surpass Montreal, and the members of the Order exerted themselves to their utmost to make our visit a memorable one. Every minute we had to spare from our sessional duties was devoted to sight-seeing. I arrived in Montreal Sunday morning, and soon as time would permit we were taken by trolley to 'Boodle' Point. That is not the correct way of spelling it, but that's the way its pronounced, so thinking it a peculiar name I asked the meaning of it and its derivation and was told it derived its name from 'Boodle' hill in Ottawa. Isn't that a nice reflection on our Grit friends?"

Rust Reperts Exaggerated.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—Exhaustive enquiry into the report of rust in Manitoba crops shows reports of damage grossly exaggerated. The principal area affected is along the boundary line, but the damage is by no means general, and the estimates of the loss-affected districts range from two to five bushels per acre. In addition, traces of rust have been observed at Portage, Carberry and Carman, but there the damage is insignificant.

THE WHITE HOUSE.

President Madison's Part In Thus Naming the Executive Mansion. Just how the White House came to e so designated is a question on which historians differ. A local historian in Washington thinks that the burden of proof tends to give credit for the name to President Madison.

The structure was made of Potomac river freestone, and the capitol proper was built of the same stone. At the time the British burned the executive to the tangent of the same and the country was pressed for money to repair the same. The walls of the mansion were only slightly damaged, other than being blackened by smoke. Money was scarce, and congress made an appropriation to have the outside of the house painted. White was selected as the best color. Madison in a letter to a personal friend wrote: "Come in and see me at any time. You will always find me in at the White

The executive mansion may have been called the White House before that time, but this investigator says that he has never been able to find any record of it. If Madison did not officiate at the christening it has been emphatically stated by the historian that he took a prominent part in publishing the fact that the White House was to be the name of the manston. Up to the time of President Madison the executive mansion, which is the legal name for it, was generally spoken of as the president's house, but since then it has been known by its permanent name of White House.

Don't Be Envious. The men or women who envy those who happen to be able to dress well and to enjoy the pleasures of life a little more than those who are compelled to work continually will be miserable all their days, for, no matter how high they may get, they will find others still higher. The envious person never satisfied and never can be. Take the successful men of the city and you will find that the majority of them began just where you did. Then why are you not in equally good cir-cumstances? If you ran a race with a man and lost it, you would hardly blame your failure on the race course. You started even and ran together, and you lost because you couldn't run as fast as he or lacked the power of endurance. So your failure in the race of life is not due to the track, but to your lack of ability as a runner

Scum on the Water.
It has been observed that immediate ly preceding storms an unusual amount of scum appears on the surface of ponds, and in London Nature a plausible explanation of this phenomenon attributes it to change in barometric pressure. It is suggested that the scum formation is due to the rise of marsh grass from the ooze at the bot tom of ponds following a sudden fall in the barometer, presaging weather change, the gas carrying along with it some of the solid matter of the ooze. thus forming the scum.

When the Baby Cries.

The early cry which is painfully trying to some young mothers, especially to a nervous one, becomes less distressing if she stops to think that the lungs, never having been used, need exercise in order to make them strong. For the first three months the infant is too weak, even with a fair amount of crying, to develop the lungs more than one-third their normal capacity, and that these organs cannot be considered perfect until they are inflated to their utmost is enough to make her tolerant of a fair allowance of crying. A year of simple breathing would not accomplish as much toward developing the lungs as a moderate amount of crying each day for a month. It is the deep inhalation, such as accompanies a good ery, which alone can make the lungs strong. Healthy infants cry normally, and they should be allowed to do so a portion of each day. When the cry is whining or continuous, it is usually caused by overindulgence of some kind or by mistakes such as handling the baby when he is more comfortable left alone. Too much entertaining causes nervousness and cold extremities which make necessary too many wraps or too hot a room; this results in discomfort and weakness and lack of fresh air. Pretty Bedspread.

An extremely pretty bedspread is made by taking a new linen sheet and with a dinner plate and small dessert plate or saucer making intersected circles with a hard lead pencil at regular intervals over the spread. When this is done the foundation lines are made for a pretty design of wreaths, on which it is easy to draw flowers or leaves. One wreath of wild roses on another of daistes has a good effect. The smaller circle of green leaves and the larger of any simple flower is a When the flowers have good idea. been sketched stain them the color desired with fast dye. The easiest outline stitch is to sew around the design with sim-ple running stitch and then, going over it again, catch each stitch in over and over fashion. This gives a rope effect

Clear Broths.

Mr. Angus McMillan Tells Them Dodd's Dyspeps a Tablets Will Cure Their Stomach Troubles.

Of pecul'ar interest to the aged is the story of Mr. Angus McM.llan, of Largan P. O., Greagarry Co., Ont. Mr. McM.llan is now over 82 years of age and looks hearty enough to reach the 100 mark. He attributes a large part of his splendid health to Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. He says: "I suffered from Dyspepsia for more than 20 years but never met with anything to cure me till I commenced taking Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets. After using them for two days all the pain and restlessness left me. "I am in one sense a new man and have great reason to be thankful for all the good Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets have done me."

Stomach troubles are one of the burdens the old folks have to bear. It is good news for them that there is a speedy and effectual cure for them in Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.

How He Made the Alps.

Has any painter ever fixed on canvas visions, distinct and haunting, of lands he had never seen? I know not. The nearest thing of the kind was a wonderful erection of brown paper and ap-parently ingeniously arranged shelvings, built up in rocklike fashiou, covered with little green toy box trees and dotted here and there with bits of mir ror glass and cardboard houses, which once puzzled me considerably in the parlor of a cottage. "Do tell me what that is?" at last rose to my lips. heavy wood and long enough to hold several coats snugly. The carpenter has fixed it firmly to the wall, opposite

"That," answered my hostess very slowly—"that is a work of my late 'usband—a representation of the Halps as close as 'e could imagine it, for 'e never was abroad." Anathemas of the Middle Ages. The Rhenish and Westphalian Society of Popular Studies published in its urnal an interesting paper upon the subject of ecclesiastical anathemas launched in the middle ages against animals. These maledictions did not relate to mischiefs already done, but were in the nature of a protection against evils to be apprehended and were solely directed against creatures sidered mischievous. Thus in 1121 St. Bernard cursed the mosquitoes, as some unsaintly Americans have done in more recent times and probably with just as little effect. Even post reformation Protestants sometimes had recourse to comminatory meas vres, as witness the pastor of Dresden who in 1559 cursed the sparrows for distracting his congregation.

Chinese Business

A Chinaman can be trusted in a busiess transaction where a Japanese cannot. The foreign residents of the orient have the greatest regard for the word of a Mengolian. If a Chinaman undertakes a contract, he will earry out the terms of that contract though it impoverishes him. There is no trick ne will not play to win his case where his word is not involved, but once let him give that word and you can bank on it that he will die rather than be-tray it. The Japanese are crafty business men. So long as they see profits in sight they will hold to a contract but if there is a chance of losing, Mr. Jap, in the majority of cases, will find some means to get under cover before the crash comes.

Here's a home game for the girls for rainy days: Move the furniture back space as you can in the center of the loor. Get a tin platter or a large plate of some sort and place it in the center of this bare space,

One girl stands as far as possible from the cen-ter of the room, tosses the "butterfly" in the air and tries to blow it with waves of her fan to the plate in the center of the room. Her object is to have it float down and land in the plate, but it will probably blow clear across the room, where it will fall to

When the "butterfly" has come to rest, its landing place is marked by a card bearing the name of the player ho blew it there, and the second player tries, and so on till all have had a

If five girls are playing, the girl who cans the "butterfly" nearest to the plate scores five points, the second four, the third three points and the fourth two, and the fifth does not score anything. If three are playing, the first scores three points, etc. If a player should land the butterfly in the late that player scores ten points, and esides has another turn.

When all of the players have had a ry at getting the butterfly in the plate eir scores are written down, and then the first one takes another turn, followed by the rest, as before.

The game is fifty points, and it is surprising what a short time it takes to core that number.

Diamonds Are Charcoal. Is it not strange to think that the precious diamond is only a crystal of the purest carbon? That is the reason t is not fusible and cannot be injured by acids or alkalis. The Candle Trick. Cut out of a large apple two or three round pieces the size and shape of the end of a candle. In the center of one end of each one stick a small round piece of peeled almond; this is the wick. Light it and blow it out when the flame has blackened it. Tell your friends that you once had a friend who was colonel of a Russian regiment, from whom you learned to eat tallow andles (at the same time lighting your apple candles), then blow them out, pop them into your mouth one after the other and eat them.

My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' again, and treatment, with ut pre cript ons and treatment, with ut avail. Finelly we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertise-ment of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera ment of Chamberjain's Cone, choisers and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I edy. The result was wonderful. Mr. T. G. Southworth of Colonization Department, who has Temagami district, brings reports of great activity of all kinds going on there. The railway contractors are working double tides, and a mile a day is the ordinary track-laying re-cord. One or two soft spots have delayed progress, and a trestle or two kept back work for a cierce, there was no serious trouble. The contractors are at work on the grade north of Liskeard, and the line will

All train orders are sent over the telephone, no telegraph system being employed. Telephones are also placed in the gravel pits, and elsewhere where required.

The telephone runs from North Bay to Temagami, and as far beyond as the railway has been caried, and there is also a line from Liskeard to Halleybury. The innovation is one of the most practical and valuable that could be thought of in connection with the construc-tion of the railway, and its utility to the settlers in the new district to the settlers in gives rise to much comment. elephone will be carried north along with the railway, and mry prove to be the nucleus for a Covernment-owned system in the north country. At Temagami there are two interesting camps, one in charge of Prof. Cochrane, physical instructor of Upper Canada College. There are about 35 boys here, aged from 10 to about 35 boys here, aged from 10 to 16, who are taught to swim, spar, chop wood, fish and adapt themselves to frontier life. A similar camp for boys from the United eges, and pay a fixed sum for their Herald, a four-page paper, has just made its appearance. Prof. John Sharpe is the editor, and the printwards the erection of a hospital at New Liskeard.

blows down from the snow covered mountains in autumn and winter and suddenly melts and carries off the snow, drying up the atmosphere.

In northwestern Canada there is a similar wind called the chinook wind. So in Greenland at irregular intervals a warm wind blows down from the snow covered interior, bringing an extensive thaw in January and February. As a result we have the extraordinary fact that during eight consecutive days in November and December in one year it was warmer in Jacokshaven, in latitude 69 degrees 20 minutes, than in northern Italy. Upernavik, another tewn of Greenland, was, during part of the time, warmer than the south of France.

Restless Women Constantly Waste Their Strength and Energy. If women would learn to sit still when they sit, to stand still when they stand and to lie still when they lie they would save in a week as much strength as most women devote to a hard washing.

But woman when she sits twiddles her fingers, taps her toes on the floor, rocks nervously and without rhythm; rhythm produces a restful sensation, but she doesn't rock easily and evenly, she jerks the chair back and forth irregularly. When she lies down she continually moves her hands and feet, and even resorts to wriggling her toes, for no other reason under the sun than that she is restless and does not know how to rest without expending more strength in the process. These physical indications of weariness express not only weakness of the body, but weakness of the mind. The woman who constantly taps the floor with her foot while she is sewing or while she is talking with a caller is mentally unstrung. Her mind is wan-dering. This is always noticeable. ever a woman gets in earnest she forgets to tap the floor with her foot, though she may stamp the floor with her heel.

Salt serves admirably when it is as sired to apply either dry or moist heat for a considerable time. The virtue of an ordinary poultice is due to moist heat. Now, the great drawback to such a poultice is that it soon gets cold. If we place over it a bag of very hot, dry salt the poultice will retain its heat for hours provided the part be well covered. A flannel bag will suf-fice. The salt should be heated on a plate placed in the oven or on a stove More warmth will be quite useless. The heat should be too great for the hand to bear. Between the poultice and the salt bag a layer of flannel should be placed. Another way of using the salt bag is to let the fierce heat pass away and to apply the bag with out any poultice over a layer of flan-

TO COUNT BY EIGHTS.

Society For the Propagation of the Octimal System. A society is about to be formed in England for the propagation of what is called the octimal system, or counting by eights.

The most natural to multiply and divide is to double or halve. It is simplicity itself to take one apple (or any-thing you please) and multiply it by placing another by its side; you multi-ply again by adding two more, and so you go on doubling. In the same way you divide by halving.

Now, in the decimal system it is no possible to do anything so neat as that. You must get to your unit, or base, of ten, and it is impossible to do that by the simple process of doubling the low es. You can certainly halve one in the same way as in the new octimal system, but if you take ten you get down to two and a half very soon—a very broken figure-and it gets worse as you go lower. Not so with the eight. It was contended by its opponents that the process of dividing or multiplying by simply shifting the point is not possessing the point in decimals, thirty means thirty, but In decimals, thirty means thirty, but 3.0 means three, which is an easy method of dividing by ten, but how would this be in the new enumeration?

To this the octimalists reply that the figure of ten is quite arbitrary, that the most natural figure is eight and tha. if we had been taught to count by eights we should have experienced no difficulty. In that case thirty would be equal to twenty-four, while 3.0 would be three as at present. Further-and this is where they think they score-3 would be three-eighths, not three-tenths, which they stigmatize as a very difficult division to obtain naturally. It is all very well when we have it marked out for us on a scale, but just think of the difficulty of splitting an apple into ten equal parts and then npare that with the simplicity of obtaining eight parts by merely halv-

Supporters of the decimal system say that the human hand was the basis of calculation, there being ten digits, but octimalists point out that there only eight fingers; that the thumb is a special part of the hand.—Pearson's Weekly.

Artificial Snails. As escargots, or snails, are not much eaten in this country, the discovery that artificial snails are made will not worry American epicures. In Paris it is different. Public knowledge of this enterprise came about through the suit of a Paris workman against his employer for injuries received in manipulating a machine for fabricating snails. It was explained that the employer bought empty snail shells from the dust men and ragpickers. Having cleaned out the shells, the defendant and his people filled them with "mou"
—that is to say, lights, or cat's meat. This soft, spongy stuff before being crammed into the shells was cut into corkscrew shape by very improved ma-chines. When the shell was filled some liquid fat or grease was poured into it, and the trick was done. The fabricated snails were sold usually at 20 centimes

Britain's Note to Russia or Question of Foodstuffs.

he Whole Matter Formally Raised-Conroverts Russia's Right to Sink Neutral Merchantmen, and Demands Compen sation in the Case of the Knight Commander-Russia Will Try and Meet Contrabund Restrictions

St. Petersburg, Aug. 18.—Great Britain has formally raised the whole question of foodstuffs as contraband of war and the legality of sinking neutral ships, in a communication to the Russian Government presented through Ambassador Hardinge. The views are practically those embodied in the King's speech at the proroguing of Parliament. The cor tion makes exception to the Russian doctrine that foodstuffs are contraband, takes a position against the right of Russia to sink neutral merchantmen, and demands compensation in the case of the Knight Compander

With regard to foodstuffs consigned to an enemy's ports the communica-tion maintains that proof that they are intended for a belligerent's mili-tary or naval force is necessary in order that they be considered contra-band. It illustrates in this conten-tion the case of the flour on board the Arabia, which was consigned to a British firm at Yokohama and which was declared contraband by the Vladivostock prize court. Great Britain contends that the Russian doctrine is equivalent to a declaration that all foodstuffs consigned to in enemy's port are unconditionally contraband. The British note argues the question at length against right to sink neutral ships, as l ontrary to international law and age. Although the note is couched in friendly terms it presents the British position clearly and emphatically.

The American Case.

The American case was presented through Ambassador McCormick, and follows the lines of the American declaration at the time of the Spanish war. It is in the form of a protest against the confiscation of flour on board the Arabia. The general contentions regarding coal, naththa, etc., as set forth in Secretary Hay's note of June 10, are also placed before the Russian Government.

Received Without Resentment. The British and American representations relative to foodstuffs have been received without resentment by the Russian authorities, and they are being considered with the probabilities that some modifications will be made in the direction of meeting the views of the two Governments.

CLEAR AND EMPACE LIES THE MAPS TELL

NOT ABOUT LOCATION, BUT IN THE MATTER OF NAMES.

For Instance, Greenland Isn't Green by Any Means, Nor Is the Black Sea Black-The German Ocean Isn't German, and It Isn't an Ocean.

In few places will you find more healthy, robust lies to the square inch than an average map, and this is the document that is daily placed in the hands of our young.

Begin up north and take Greenland. Was there ever a more flagrant imposture than the name of this country? It isn't green and never was green and never will be green. Here is what the gazetteer says about this "green" coun-

"It is high and rocky and barren. It is covered with eternal snow and glaciers. July is the only month in which there is no snow." There's a picture of

How did it get called green? Well. by an unscrupulous falsehood on the part of a tenth century reprobate called Eric the Red of Iceland. This ancient shark accidentally ran against the ice patch in question with a few other Icelanders of his own kidney. He cut back to Iceland and "boomed" it for all he was worth.

He called it Greenland and to delude the Iceland investors and general public said it was a wonderful green country, which he wished them to visit with their families and take shares in some mines he had discovered. Well, some of the deluded creatures went. They never returned to good old Ice land any more.

But there are plenty of equally gross impostures. Take the Black sea, for instance. Why black? Who said it was black? It is no more black than it is pink or purple. The ancients called it the "Euxine"—which means "inhospitable"—sea. That was another good old fiction. It is not at all an inhospitable sea, for, having no tides, it is one of the easiest to navigate. Now and again there are big storms, just to give the sea a realistic touch, but generally speaking it isn't black, and it isn't inhospitable.

The Cape of Good Hope! Good Hope, indeed! Ask anybody who has been round that promontory what they think of it. The only "good hope" they experience is a good hope that they will soon get ashore, for it is one of the roughest and stormiest places known to mariners. What we should call a cyclone on the North sea would be smiled at round the cape as a bit of breeze. The gentleman who called it Cape of Good Hope was a crude sort of humorist. He made his money in the king business, styling himself John II. of Portugal. His faithful subject Diaz discovered it and told his majesty that he had called it the "Stormy cape." But the king would have none of it. He said that he hoped Diaz would find something else round the other side next time he went to the cape, so he called it Cape of Good Hope.

Why the Dead sea? The locality may be as dead as a doornail, but the sea itself is pretty lively. It is the saltest piece of water on the face of the earth, ten times as salt as the ocean. Of course there is no particular vegetation roundabout, and the sea is free from monsters, but that doesn't make the sea itself dead. It is really a most live sea. Why English channel? It's no more English than it's French. The French themselves don't call it English at all, but simply "La Manche."

Then was ever a more absurd name given to that bit of water which sepa rates England from Holland, called the German ocean? Why German? There's nothing German about it and never has been. Dutch, Belgian or British, if you like, but not German Then why ocean? It is not an ocean at all. There is a piece of water that size between Australia and Tasmania, if anything rather wider, which they call a strait—Bass strait. Just fancy the absurdity of teaching the child mind to think that crossing to Ostend or Antwerp is an ocean trip. North sea, too, is absurd. Why north? It is not north of anything in particular. It is east of Britain, west of Holland, Belgium and Denmark and south of Norway and Sweden. It is not a

There are some islands in the Pacific why Pacific, by the way? Where does the peace come in on that deso-late, typhoony, billowy, tidal wavy wilderness called the Friendly islands? Look at the encyclopedia's version of their friendliness: "They are volcanic, and earthquakes are frequent. Islands are frequently upheaved. Hurricanes are constant." Then the friendly natives! The sole reason the islands were called Friendly is because when Cap-tain Cook visited them he found the natives had not got any arms. So they were friendly. No doubt! But when the missionaries tried to convert them they had a different tale to tell. For thirty years they endured "a perilous struggle with the savage paganism of the inhabitants."

I could call your attention to dozens more of cases of monstrous mendacity on the part of the map. But the editor has just taken away my atlas.

Clubmen's Real Worries. McJigger-Here's a rather clever lit-tle book, "Don'ts For Clubmen." Thingumbob-Huh! It isn't the "don'ts" that worry clubmen; it's the dues.

Then Toronto Science Student Suddenly Sank to Death.

James Harold Baridge Sacrificed His Life at Bronte After Affording a Young Lady in An Oarless Boat the Means of Rescuing Herself-Was Born in London, Eng., and Was Student at School of Science.

Toronto, Aug. 18 .- James Harold Baridge, a first-year student at the School of Practical Science, was drowned at Bronte yesterday afternoon. He swam out to the rescue of a young lady who was alone in a rowboat and without means of propeling it. After handing her an oar, he turned and started to swim into shore but suddenly sank without warning in 6 feet of water. Although a large number of persons witnessed the accident, it was 45 minutes before the hody was recovered. Two doctors used every en-deavor to resuscitate the victim but without avail. Mr. Black of Toron-to, a friend of deceased, was instrumental in locating the body. It thought that Baridge was seized with cramps, as he was an excellent swim-

Young Baridge, who is but 18 years of age, had last spring passed his first year examination in mining and electrical engineering, and had been spending a couple of weeks I his vacation at the Temperance Hotel in Bronte. He was born in London, England. It was impossible to locate anyone last night who could give any information concerning his relatives. Mr. Graham, care-taker of the School of Science, had the young man registered as living at 172 Arthur street, but there is no house with that number of the street. Prof. Galbraith, the principal; Mr. Lang, registrar, and the entire staff of the college are away

The body will arrive in the city to-day by train at 12.30 p.m.

CRUSHED UNDER TONS OF ICE.

Clergyman and Undertaker Were on Spe of Fatality.

Winnipeg, Aug. 18.—William Far-quharson, aged 26, was killed yes-terday by the breaking of the front axle of the ice wagon he was driving. Three tons of ice and the box of the wagon practically crushed the life out of him, and he died within half an hour of the accident.

A funeral cortege was coming along behind the wagon at Assini-boine and Main streets, where the smash occurred, and the clergyman and undertaker were called from the procession to assist the sufferer.

He came from Aberdeen, Scotland, last spring.
