COMMUNICATION.

EDITOR GAZETTE:

Knowing you to be interested in all that pertains to the welfare of Mildmay, I beg to bring to your attention a matter that should, and I believe would receive the support of the people of Mildmay and vicinity.

It is a recognized fact that the county of Bruce has been the greatest colonizing county in the province. Her sons and daughter are to be found everywhere—especially in our great west, and even so far as the Pacific coast—while many have crossed into Uncle Sam's domain, and have become prosperous citizens of that Republic.

Mildmay and Carrick have contributed a considerable quota to the number who have left to seek fortunes in other places. Now Mr. Editor, the point I wish to bring to your attention is this—I know that a great number of those who have been away for many years, would be delighted to see the scenes of younger days, and renew acquaintances perhaps well nigh forgotten. What is the matter with the matter with the people of Mildmay and Carrick, organizing a home week next summer and giving the wanderers an opportunity of coming home? I am sure if this project were taken up, and received the support of Mildmay and vicinity, the re-union would be a grand success. Let us hear from you and your townspeople Mr. Editor. With mutual co-operation a re-union could be arranged to would long live in history and memory.

CHAPTER VII.—(Con)

"For shame, Sir Phillip Maude, laughing. "You judged against Charlie rather fondly of hunting—compatible with the of the public service, won't the right way to put it gets a Government appointment. Remember, he is young."

"Yes; I'm not likely to it," returned the baronet with a bitterness indeed hardly have accounted for young—deuced young — too young to marry."

"I think upon the whole prefer that fault in a husband's opposite," replied Maude murely.

"Allow me to hope, Maude," said Sir Phillip, sing his ire manfully, "you never have cause to repent opinion. However, I have say. I only wanted you to well over what you are about. We must endeavor to find thing else for Charlie."

"You are very good to murmured Maude, deeply to "Tush, child! I must write my letters," and so the baronet disappeared.

Miss Williamson meditated some considerable time of foregoing conversation. It had already occurred to her to be mind that if Charlie was as estly in love with her as he fessed to be, it was strange difference to this opportunity start in life that had come to Was Sir Phillip right? and her cousin thinking a good more of the sacrifice of his pleasures than of her health, he so peremptorily declined to the East? It might be she had more than once com ed, Charlie was by no means voted or demonstrative love to regard her a little too m if already his wife.

She could not help reflectin on the baronet's thorough fishness. It was evident he v favorably impressed with C and equally transparent t was by no means pleased at jection of this appointment he had been at considerable to obtain. Yet no sooner clearly ascertained that she to marry her cousin, than once promised to exert him more in his behalf.

That she had committed thoroughly to that enga now, Maude was fain to e She had not meant to do s her indignation at hearing C disparaged, and the temptat making a pointed rejoinder proved too much for her—the latter, that has lured a many of us to our undoing, was all very well that she find fault with Charlie, but sh not going to sit by and list words to his detriment from one else; and had it been than Sir Phillip who had been detractor, the chances are M would have flamed out much fiercely.

CHAPTER VIII.

A few days after Maude's c nation with her guardian, an tation arrived for the whole y to spend three nights at Ath residence of Ashby Crax Esq.

Two days' cover shooting was inducement proffered to the tlemen, while Mrs. Rainham Maude were assured they w find a pleasant party collected do honor to the occasion. The dies especially rather looked ward to this change, as Chitt Lodge waxed somewhat dull times, especially on hunting Of course they should have plenty of resources within t selves, but then the bigger pa humanity by far has no preten ever to be what it ought.

FOUGHT TO A FINISH.

Tiger and Crocodile in a Battle in the Water.

In India a native went to bathe in a ravine. He was in the water up to his neck when a tiger on the hill above gave a leap toward its prey. But the tiger had not calculated that, since his victim was much lower than himself, a leap of the right strength for a horizontal range would carry him far beyond his mark; consequently he fell some ten feet on the other side.

Now, it happened that a hungry crocodile was at the same time drawing a bee line under water toward the native. When the crocodile had almost come upon his prey he heard a splash just in front and made a dash, bringing his enormous jaws down on the tiger's paw.

The bather nearly fainted with fright when he saw the tiger fall into the water, and for a few moments he could not understand why the creature did not devour him. Why did he persist in keeping one of his paws under water, beating savagely with the other? And the water turned red!

Then all at once the assaults of the tiger became more furious, and his growls developed into roars. The huge tail of a crocodile reared up out of the water. The other was and tand te it dille out uch wa-

WORRY DOES KILL.

It Slowly but Surely Destroys the Cells of the Brain.

Modern science has brought to light nothing more curiously interesting than that worry will kill. More remarkable still, it has been able to determine just how worry does kill.

It is believed by many scientists who have followed carefully the growth of the science of brain diseases that scores of the deaths set down to their causes are due to worry and that alone. The theory is a simple one, so simple that any one can readily understand it.

Briefly put, it amounts to this: Worry injures beyond repair certain cells of the brain, and the brain being the nutritive center of the body, the other organs become gradually injured, and when some diseases of these organs or a combination of them arises death finally ensues.

Thus worry kills. Insidiously, like many other diseases, it creeps upon the brain in the form of a single, constant, never lost idea, and as a crop-

THE CEMENT INDUSTRY.

One of the Greatest Factors in the Growth of Canada.

Constructional development and improvement is and will continue to be in Canada for some years hence, one of the greatest factors in our growth. Cement has become an indispensable in structural work of every character and type, as are the hands of the laborer who does the work and an ambitious country will never tolerate a monopoly in a material so universally used in both public work and private enterprise.

When the cement merger was formed last year, the news was received by consumers and independent manufacturers alike with some misgivings. The consumers thought he foresaw great increases in prices, and a serious curtailment of the work of construction. Some of the independent manufacturers thought they were the hazy distance a "Standard Octopus" in the cement industry in Canada and that trust methods would be employed to whip them into submission or crush them out of existence. The incorporators declared emphatically, that there was absolutely no ground for such alarm, but that they had been for Reuben's Rapid Rise.

Like Napoleon who rose to fame on the bones of France, Reuben Truax, Jr., has been lifted to wealth by the man who unhorsed so many people in Walkerton. The fate of Sheldon and the rise of Truax are among the spectacular happenings of the year.

WIT AND HUMOR

The priest of the parish had preached a sermon on the Day of Judgment. He impressed on his hearers what a great event it would be when the last trump should sound and the dead should rise.

Patrick met his pastor next day began discussing the sermon. "Shure yer rivrence," said Patrick, "I had no idea till ye preached yesterday that the day o' judgment wud be sich a demonstration."

"Will that Ulster gang of Prodesans be there?" inquired Patrick doubtfully.

"Well, father, will th' Ancient Order of Hibernians be there?" "Why certainly, Patrick."

There's a story told of two Irishmen who in their hotel room at night ordered cocktails because they had heard some gentlemen ordering them at the bar.

Clifford. News of the death of Mr. Alex. R. McCullough, of near Souris, Man., was received by telegraph by Mr. James A. Fraser of Monday about noon.

The Safe Plan.

When things go wrong and I get mad and all the world seems grim and sad, I do not let my cranky mood bring gloom into my neighborhood. I do not snarl and snap at folks who don't deserve malicious pokes.

Three Removes are as Bad as a Fire. That gem from the philosophy of Benjamin Franklin contains a lot of truth.

WALKERTON.

A wild duck that wandered rather close to town on Monday paid for its neglect by falling into the hands of J. A. McDonald and Geo. Titmus of the Business College here, who killed it with a rifle.

Mr. Jacob Lambertus, Sr., has bought the Vendome Hotel in Teeswater, which for the past several years has been conducted by Mr. Richard Harrison, formerly of Walkerton.

George Wisler of this town claims the pennant for having good garden truck. He had some good garden truck that ran the high average of 648 kernels to the cob.

Another didn't know it was loaded accident occurred here last week, when Mr. Chris Kloefer, who drives one of the creamery waggoners for the Walkerton Egg and Dairy Company, had his finger blown off and his hand badly lacerated by the explosion of a gun which he was cleaning at the time.

Hints For Housewives.

Table napkins and tablecloths should never be starched.

A weak alum bath is good for tender feet which suffer in summertime.

The best scrubbing brush for porches is made by clamping a scrubbing brush in a mop handle.

A few drops of ammonia in a cupful of warm water applied to paintings will remove spots.

Baked beets served with a little melted butter sauce, salt and pepper make a delicious vegetable course.

When making soup, allow one quart of cold water to every pound of meat.

Bananas put through a sieve, sweetened with a little confectioner's sugar and flavored with a teaspoon of lemon juice, make a good accompaniment to cream of wheat.

Soak clothes in warm water the night previous to washing, for it facilitates the operation, and lessens the rubbing required.

When there is any difficulty about threading the machine needle, lay a piece of white paper against the eye and it will be plainly seen.

Hiccough, however bad, is cured by an infusion of spearmint in boiling water, and a dose of this also relieves flatulence and the giddiness of indigestion.

Sustains Fatal Blow.

Kincardine, Oct. 23.—James Young, aged 60, met with an accident which ended fatally on Friday. He was engaged in helping to move a barn, when the chain broke, and the capstan arm, flying back, struck him in the stomach.

Unfair Assessment.

The assessment plan and method of taxation in the city of Edmonton appears to attract much attention. It is generally known as the single tax system. Under this plan, land values are taxed for the full value of the land and no tax is levied for any improvement in the way of buildings.

Legal Question.

J. F. S. Brunner.—Qu.—A son, after he was 21, continued to work for his father for a number of years without any definite agreement. The son had the use of the horse and buggy, together with board, clothing, and spending money; and also whatever money he earned by working occasionally for others.

Ans.—In one case a father wrote to his son, who had left home, telling him if he would return and work at home he would give him fifty acres of his farm if he got married. The son returned and remained on the farm, working for his father except occasionally, when he worked for other people for wages for himself.

There are cases where a parent promises his child that if the child will remain and work at home he will provide for the child in his will.

On the other hand, it has been held that where a son remains at home working on the farm and living with his parents, and getting his board and clothing and spending money, he is merely staying there as a member of the family, and has no claim upon his parents for wages.
